Bush wins big, but coattails too short

Republicans win White House but not Congress

Associated Press

Vice President George Bush was elected the nation's 41st president on Tuesday, sweeping past Michael Dukakis to assure four more years of Republican rule in the White House. Democrats countered with decisive control of both houses of Congress.

"Obviously, it feels good," the president-elect said as he received the nation's verdict in his adopted hometown of Houston. Asked when he would get down to the work of forming a government, Bush replied, "Tomorrow."

Dukakis offered his concession first in a private telephone call, then later at a nationallytelevised rally with supporters in Boston. "The nation must work together," he said.

Bush planned a Wednesday morning news conference and then a triumphant return to Washington. He received a

INDIANAPOLIS- Democrats are celebarating the victory of Secretary of State Evan Bayh, who last night became the first Indiana elected governor since

Bayh declared victory after Republican Lt. Gov. John Mutz conceded the gubernatorial race at about 10:15 Tuesday

But the young Democrat had only respect for his opponent, who served as lieutenant governor under Governor Robert Orr for eight years.

'I want to take this opportunity to say John Mutz is a fine and honorable man. He is a worthy opponent," Bayh, 32, told supporters. "We should take no satisfaction in defeat-

ND voters brave long lines

Students who cast their votes at Stepan Center Tuesday received some unexpected time to make their decisions as the wait to vote reached close to an hour from 1 p.m. until the polls closed at 6 p.m.

"I thought it would only take about 5 minutes," said sophomore Tim Rock, who waited in line for 45 minutes.

The long line baffled election officials who attributed it to a larger voter turnout than expected and by the presence of only one voting machine.

"They really didn't expect this many people to vote," said election judge Judy Niespodziany. they could at least have given us two machines," said Junior Meg Juliano, who waited in line for an hour.

"We have no control over the number of machines, the County determines that," said Election Inspector Roy Davis.

As the 6 p.m. closing time for the poll approached, the question of whether those in line would be able to cast their vote.

Br. Thomas Balthazor, Democratic Precinct Committeeman, said,"The doors to the polling place will be closed at six, but everyone who is already in line will have the chance to vote.'

Both Davis and Balthazor said that the long wait was not unique to the Stepan polls. "I've heard that larger turnouts than expected are causing long delays throughout the county," said Balthazor.

The long delay angered many students and caused

IN BRIEF

Scores of novice anglers are attracted to a course at Valdosta State College that allows students to earn college credits while fishing. Titled Freshwater Fishing 315, the course is filled to capacity each quarter with students who want to bait hooks and reel in catfish, bluegill, perch and bass. "It's a fun course," said instructor Lindy Evans, 45. "The homework is excellentmeaning go fishing." Before graduating from the course, students make one or two visits to fishponds in the area to test their skills.

'Rape road' not as safe as many might think

Crisp fall nights often compel us to renew our appreciation of the beauty and serenity of these campuses on a walk or a run through the grounds. Many of us should stop and think who may be behind us on these ventures.

There is a prevailing false sense of security in this community that has made us irresponsible about our safety. Students from both schools have indicated that these crimes are something that happen in other places like state schools, big cities and dark alleys. That, unfortunately, is irrational and immature.

Students are obviously not exercising the common sense we all claim to possess. No matter how many mailbox flyers we receive pleading us to use safety measures, we seem to be tossing them in the can before reading them or after saying yea, yea, we've heard that before,

We jog alone in the dark with our Walkmans on volume ten. Football season brings many Saint Mary's students to and from the Notre Dame campus often unaccompanied and often in an altered state of mind. If Saint Mary's students are alone and miss the shuttle, they often take a risk they are repeatedly warned against. They walk alone to their destination on the road between the schools.

This road is commonly referred to as "rape road" by students because of an incident that occured in the Spring of 1985. A Saint Mary's student, who didn't think it could happen to her, was raped right here between our two campuses iust three years ago.

This is not an issue of campus versus campus or of security's responsibility to students with lighting and escort services. This is not an issue of men versus women. This is an issue of awareness and apathy. The 1985 incident is still close enough to our experience as students to stand as an example of what can happen if we are careless. There is a tremendous sense of distrust of security on these campuses, which hinders the cooperative relationship that should exist. Disrespect has festered on both sides. Students enjoying freedom from authority in college often rebel with sarcasm and lies when security officers ask questions or enforce rules designed to protect us. Also, students often make demands on Security beyond the call of duty simply for their convenience. Security officers have offended students' integrity by condescending to them rather than recognizing potential problem situations. Officers have passed students by on the road between the schools without offering assistance.

Another problem resulting from attacks like rape and assault is that the victims are somehow coerced into silence, either by their own displaced guilt or by their fear of public harassment. Protecting the offender does not serve the victim nor the public. Mailbox flyers do not hold a candle to the potency of recent example here in our "safe" community.

When this kind of attack occurs-- and it does-it is our responsibility to ourselves and our community to take measures to amend the situation. We must spark our awareness and jar our common sense to look out for ourselves and the safety of others.

More people have survived cancer than now live in the City of Los Angeles. We are winning.

HPC discusses undergrad housing

By DANNIKA SIMPSON News Staff

The Hall Presidents' Council met Monday night at Pasquerilla West.

Karen Flaherty, Executive Coordinator of Student Life for Student Government, spoke about the housing policy for next year.

In a letter sent to all undergraduates, except seniors, Student Residences stated "There can be no guarantee of being assigned to the same hall or even that on-campus housing will be available" so that next year's freshmen will not have to be put in temporary housing. As it stands now all returning undergraduates will be put into a lottery system to determine who will be able to live on campus next year. Flaherty met with Sr. Jo Giarrante, rectress of P.W., and will try to meet with other members of the committee that suggested the procedure for on-campus housing.

Flaherty feels that the "main objective (of Student Residences) is to get students to committ earlier to staying on campus." She suggests that students should "read and understand the letter" and then take action and "write letters to Evelyn Reinbold, Director of Student Residences" to try to get the housing policy changed.

In other business, Senate Report stated that students will be given calendars during registration that will tell them of all the events during Spring Semester. Any group wishing to have an event included in the calendar should see Joe Cassidy by November 15, 1988.

Chris Lee and Kathleen Maglicic announced there will be a Senior Block Party on November 18 at the ACC. The Block Party will be open to the entire Notre Dame community as well as to the South Bend community. The Block Party will be like an ethnic festival featuring food from many different countries. Lee stated "There will be lots of food and entertaiment." Lee also stated that the Block Party will be "a worthwhile event because we (students) take a lot from the community but don't give much back."

Lastly, the Junior Class will be going bowling Thursday November 10 at 9:30 p.m. at Beacon Lanes. The Graduate Student Union will be sponsoring Grad Night at Theodores on November 15 to tell students about graduate schools. Liam Canny from Pangborn said representatives from Aetna will hold a meeting in the Alumni Room of the Morris Inn Thursday at 7:00p.m. to discuss summer internships. Dress will be informal.

Another B-1 bomber crashes, all four crew members safely eject

Associated Press

ABILENE, Texas-- A B-1 bomber crashed Tuesday and all four crew members ejected safely, one man getting out seconds before the crash, the Air Force said.

"All of them were taken to the Dyess hospital and are in good condition," said Air Force spokesman Linda Gellnere of Dyess Air Force Base, where the long-range military bomber was based. The plane crashed around 3:30 p.m., roughly eight miles northwest of Dyess.

Lou Paulsen of Abilene, who witnessed the crash, said the plane appeared to be making a normal flight away from the base when smoke starting coming out of a left engine as the craft was circling.

"At first there was just a puff of smoke, then fire," said Paulsen, who was about two miles away. "It looked like it started to go out, then it flared up big."

It was the second crash of a B-1B bomber, as the production version of the plane is known. The first, 13 months ago, claimed three lives.

Paulsen, who is an Air Force reserve member, said the pilot apparently abandoned hope of returning to Dyess and decided to ditch the plane in an unpopulated area.

"It banked back toward the left, then they started ejecting," said Paulsen, who was watching with his wife. "Three chutes came out, right after another. Then the plane started veering left into the country.

"The last parachute came out seconds before the plane crashed in a ravine in an unpopulated area," he said.

The B-1, built by the Rockwell International Corp., is the first new long-range bomber to be produced by the United States in more than 25 years.

Hesburgh talks on nuclear arms race

By KELLEY TUTHILL Staff Reporter

"Now people are saying 'this is insanity' and two unlikely Gorbachev people, and Reagan, said that we should cut these things (nuclear arms) in half right away," said Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president emeritus, Tuesday afternoon.

Hesburgh's remarks were part of a lecture titled "Prognosis for Peace," in which he discussed the nuclear race of the past and present. The informal talk began in the coffee room of the Center for Social Concerns and due to the size of group the 45 minute questionand answer session was in the auditorium of the CSC.

"Our goal should be the widest conditioning of an antinuclear instinct as potent as hunger," said Hesburgh. "I think that everybody has to really get with it and work where you are."

Hesburgh said that the United States got into the arms race because the Russians did and the Russians got into it because we did. Hesburgh said that there is a myth around that somehow we were always catching up in the arms race. In reality, he said, at the time of the Cuban Missile Crisis the U.S. had 5,000 nuclear warheads and the Russians had Hesburgh referred to the eighties as a "burst against war." He said this is due to the fact that for the first time in 44 vears we had a treaty that "pointed us downward rather than upward." "The second thing that happened to us today is something curious happened in the Soviet Union perestroika," said Hesburgh. Union:

"We are on the verge of a totally new relationship as two major powers and a lot depends whether this man (Gorbachev) survives, a lot depends on whether the next president, whoever he is, is willing to sit down and talk,' said Hesburgh.

Hesburgh said that today war is an unthinkable way to solve differences among nations. He also said that no rational leader is going to start a nuclear war.

"It is about as phoney a baloney as you can think up," said Hesburgh in response to a question about the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). He cited lack of research and the enormous vulnerability of the program as the reasons why it should be cut off.

The question of universities and their involvement in the testing and development of nuclear weapons was raised by a member of the audience. Hesburgh said, "The majority of universities, including this one, will not do government research, that cannot be published. We don't do anything that is kept secret except in war time.

Hesburgh gave a chronological account of the years following the invention of "The Bomb." He said, "I think that it is terribly important not just is going to happen," said Hesto see where we are this day, on the verge of electing a new president, with all kinds of implications for peace, but also where we came from.

Hesburgh said that he believes we are on the way to reducing nuclear weapons but that it depends on people getting excited enough to not let the movement towards reduction die down. "When enough people get excited, something burgh.

"The operative word is building trust between two great nations at the same time with verification of building down rather than building up." said Hesburgh. "We have to keep the downward motion going or we are in trouble."

Hesburgh's lecture was part of the Center for Social Concerns "Call to Peacemaking Week."

Secretary of State Shultz makes plea to new president regarding Soviet relations

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- Secretary of State George Shultz on Tuesday urged the next U.S. president to be realistic and deal with the Soviet Union when it is in America's self-interest.

"We shouldn't be afraid to do it," he said in an election day speech to young political leaders from around the world.

He praised the reform efforts of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and said that, if Gorbachev succeeds, "the Soviet Union will be a very different place."

In his foreign policy speech, Shultz said Gorbachev and his supporters "deserve credit for recognizing the problems and trying to solve them."

As a result, he said, "the environment for democratic values, peace and freedom is probably healthier than it has been for some time.'

Within the Reagan administration, Shultz has played a leading role in promoting arms-control agreements with Moscow and seeking other ways to reduce tensions.

His speech, which had the earmarks of a valedictory, was aimed at presidential candidates Michael Dukakis and George Bush as well as foreign leaders. Shultz said everyone should recognize the dangers of ballistic missiles and chemical weapons proliferation.

"When we see an opportunity for problem-solving, when there is an opportunity to do something that they (the Soviets) want to do and that we think it is in our interest, in the interest of friends around the world, we shouldn't be afraid to do it. In other words, engage," Shultz said.

He said whether Bush or Dukakis won, the United States should be vigilant in dealing with the Soviet Union. "We're going to be realistic but, at the same time, pragmatic," Shultz

On a related subject, Shultz said he was confident the Soviets would complete their withdrawal of troops from Afghanistan despite an announcement last week that the pullout had been suspended.

The Soviets last spring committed themselves to remove by Feb. 15 the last of the more than 100,000 troops they have had in that country.

Austria's Waldheim accused of link with 'Kristallnacht'

Associated Press

VIENNA-- Political instability and anti-Semitism in Austria helped pave the way for the annihilation of Jews that began with the violence of Kristallnacht 50 years ago, Chancellor Franz Vranitzky said Tuesday.

Nazi thugs ran rampant on the nights of Nov. 9-10, 1938, in Germany and Austria, which Adolf Hitler had annexed to his Third Reich eight months They before. burned synagogues and shops, killed scores of Jews and arrested thousands for deportation to concentration camps.

The Nazis named it Crystal Night, boastfully, for the shattered glass that littered the streets.

issued a statement through his press office saying "the devastation and destruction" of Kristallnacht "as well as the mishandling and the horrific deaths of numerous people showed the regime of that time in its entire brutality.'

"The nearly complete expulsion and destruction of the Jewish people has left deep wounds in the country up to the present day," Waldheim said.

Vienna had 180,000 Jews on that night that began the extermination of 6 million European Jews by Adolf Hitler, who was born in Austria. About 7,000 now live in the city.

In West Berlin, 5,000 people held a solemn procession to > Avi Weiss, an American rabbi and outspoken opponent of Waldheim, said the Austrian observances are hypocritical while he is president.

Weiss, who came to Vienna for the occasion, said, "it is a false commemoration, since 50 years after the event strong elements of Nazism remain here." He called Waldheim "an unrepentant ex-Nazi."

Vranitzky took over the ceremonial duties because of controversy about Waldheim, who was a German army lieutenant in the Balkans during World War II but denies committing war crimes.

Fasters in Washington, D.C. finally break after nearly four months

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-- Eight advocates for the homeless on Tuesday ended 48-day, wateronly fasts staged as a protest over funding cuts in government housing programs.

Carol Fennelly, a moving force behind the capital city's Community for Creative Non-Violence shelter for the homeless, was the first to break the fast, at 9 a.m. EST with a meal of pea soup, apple juice and sourdough bread sent by wellwishers from San Francisco.

She then checked into Howard University Hospital, where she was listed in critical condition after undergoing a series of tests that revealed a dangerously low blood potassium level. Her condition was later upgraded to serious.

Hospital spokesman Norman Brooks said Fennelly, 39, would likely survive.

"She looked weak, but she was conscious," Brooks said.

"She is not in great shape," said Mitch Snyder, founder of the shelter. "Her veins are completely shot and she has no blood pressure,"

Three hours after Fennelly ate her first meal since September, seven other activists, including Snyder, similar fasts. Snyder said the protest was staged to get Congress to restore the 75 percent of the nation's housing budget that has been cut over the past seven years and, in general, to draw attention to the plight of the homeless.

"We did what we believe is right," Snyder said. "We aren't concerned about the impact. . . we just hope something will

Chinese soldiers working to rescue hundreds in quake rubble

Associated Press

BEIJING-- Army rescuers and medical teams finally reached stricken villages Tuesday in a remote area near Burma where China's worst earthquake in more than a decade killed at least 930 people last weekend.

Official Beijing radio said more than 100 people had been rescued from the rubble of collapsed buildings and many more were believed to be trapped.

It said 1,000 soldiers were involved in the rescue operation and the central government had allocated $53.6 million.

Sunday night's temblor registered 7.6 on the Richter scale, indicating a quake of tremendous destructive force. It was centered in Lancang and Menglian counties of Yunnan province, about 240 miles southwest of Kunming, the provincial capital.

More than 170 aftershocks had been felt by Tuesday afternoon but their strength was declining, said Li Xianhu of the State Seismology Bureau in Beijing.

About 14 counties were affected, covering 16,000 square miles in a long corridor near Yunnan's southwestern frontier with Burma. Officials said they did not know the population of the mountainous, junglecovered region, most of whose residents are farmers of the Lahu, Va and Dai minorities.

Information on casualties and rescue work was sparse and most government offices refused to answer reporters' questions, but the Civil Affairs Ministry told the U.N. development Program and World Food Program offices in Beijing more than 930 people were killed.

Mutz disappointed with close defeat

By MICHELLE DALL Senior Staff Reporter

INDIANAPOLIS- November 8 was a bittersweet day for Indiana Republicans.

While Rep. Senator Richard Lugar defeated his opponent Democrat Jack Wickes in a landslide victory, Republican John Mutz was not as fortunate.

Mutz, who has served as lieutenant governor of Indiana for the past eight years was defeted by his Democratic rival Secretary of State Evan Bayh.

With 79.9 percent of the precincts reporting, Bayh received 52.8 percent of the state-wide vote, compared to Mutz's 47.2 percent. This translates to about a 100,000 vote margin of victory for Bayh.

Bayh, 32, is the son of Birch Bayh, former U.S. Senator from Indiana.

In his concession speech Mutz stressed that despite his loss he was proud of his past accomplishments. "In the past 13 years we've changed the course of Indiana history," he told supporters at the Republican headquarters in Indianapolis Tuesday night. "I have seen things happen I only dreamed of when we first started. Now I'm proud to say

Despite his apparent optimism, Mutz admitted he was disappointed with the election results, saying, "... My idealism has been shaken a bit tonight."

Quoting Democrat Adlai Stevenson, Mutz continued, "I'm too old to cry and it hurts too much to laugh."

Incumbent Governor Rovert Orr also expressed disappointment in the campaign outcome but said, "I know John Mutz will be recognized in history as the man who came to the forefront of Indiana government and made great economic gains. He worked toward the general welfare.'

Steve Goldsmith, who ran on Mutz's ticket as lieutenant governor said, "John is a man who's given a quarter of a century of public service to Indiana residents. Pat Hinton, St. Joseph County field coordinator for Hiler, said, "I thought he would do better than that, after watching the students' reaction to the debate (at Notre Dame). After the debate I thought there was no doubt he was the more qualified candidate."

Ward concedes defeat after his early lead in votes disintegrates

"It does not look as though we're going to win this campaign," said Third District Congressional candidate Tom Ward in a statement to reporters last night.

Ward, the Democratic contender, while acknowledging that a computer breakdown in LaPorte County would delay the official results for at least a day, essentially conceded defeat at 11:25 p.m.

Ward came out with a very strong early lead, but seasoned campaign workers in the Demdid not signal a quick victory. "The initial results are from St. Joe's County, and they're always very pro-Democratic," volunteer.

Well, it was a long evening, but perhaps not long enough. By 11 p.m. Hudgins was describing the mood among the Ward volunteers as "very somber and reserved. They're not expecting any miracles."

Ward's campaign manager, Mike Marshall, had said previous to the candidate's speech that Ward would not be conceding defeat. Nevertheless, Ward thanked his staff for their efforts in this year's campaign as well as the one in 1986. When asked why the campus was so important, Marshall cited the closeness of the previous race and said, "Notre Dame just happened to register a lot of new voters.' U.S. must call for election in Liberia

For more than a century, the United alternative parties.

Currently, Liberia is governed by Dr. Samuel Doe, a ruthless dictator who came to power earlier in this decade in a bloody coup d'etat. Doe has kept power only by means of brute force. He has killed and brutalized thousands, unconcerned about human rights. He has ignored the Liberian constitution, a document he originally accepted, by constantly refusing to recognize the right of the press and of opposition parties to exist. He has kept power by fraudulently declaring himself the winner of an election he most certainly lost.

And what has the United States done about all this? Despite Doe's glaring disregard for Liberia's own interests and his obvious stealing of millions of dollars in United States aid, the Reagan administration has continued to support strongly the Doe regime. There is little evidence that a Bush administration would alter this line of thinking.

The only thing preventing the removal of Doe from power is the perception among Liberians of the U.S. government's unconditional support of Doe. He is extremely unpopular with the Liberian people. Doe has syphoned off millions of dollars from the government to his private accounts in Switzerland and severely mismanaged the

It is far more likely that when Doe falls, the successful opposition would be furious with our support of the Doe regime and would repudiate many current U.S.-Liberian agreements. The loss of the only Voice of America transmitter on the African Continent as well as key telecommunications facilities for U.S. facilities in West Africa is not unlikely should opposition forces achieve total power under current circumstances.

Recognizing the limitations of United States foreign policy, it still seems necessary that the United States should immediately withdraw all forms of aid to Liberian government. The withdrawal of funds to Liberia is the only way the U.S. can effectively promote democracy in Liberia.

The U.S. should condition the release of aid funds on the holding of free and fair elections for the national government with U.S. government observation. With the State Department and Congressional observation and tactful pressure, it is doubtful whether Doe could avoid calling for an election or be able to cheat successfully. The opposition parties would also provide effective watchdogs in monitoring the elections.

Samuel Doe might resist pressure from the United States to call for elections. Given Doe's unpopularity, however, he could not hold on to power for long without U.S. support. It would only be a matter of time before opposition forces lashed out against Doe's regime. In the long run, Doe would have an angry populace just waiting to bring him to justice, it is doubtful whether Doe could avoid the fate of many a dictator and be forced to find exile abroad. Without U.S. support, Doe could not retain power in Liberia after an election voted him out of office.

Liberia is perceived by most countries inside and outside of Africa as a uniquely American problem. Failure by the United States to stand up to the Doe regime has also represented an international embarrassment of the Reagan administration in foreign policy. It seems absurd that the U.S. would abandon the long-term interests of its closest ally in Africa for misguided short-term advance. There has never been any threat of Liberia going communist, a fact of which both the United States and the Soviet Union are aware.

The United States appears afraid, however, to use its unique influence in Liberia for the most trivial of reasons. The immediate withdrawal of funds from the Doe regime seems equivalent to an absolute obligation on the part of the U.S. Withdrawal of aid funding is the only possible policy open to the United States to promote true democracy and human rights in Liberia.

Learn from mistakes of Bush "rally"

Dear Editor:

Now that the dust has settled from the visit of Vice President Bush to Notre Dame, it would do us all some good to reflect upon the events of one week ago. The arguments over details, and of who knew and did not know of the ticket distribution are now essentially irrelevant. Nevertheless, the attempt by Mr. Schlapp to claim that student government (the student body president or vice president) was notified about the change of time is a complete fallacy. What should concern us, both as a University and a community, is that the University's name, its people, and its affiliation with the Catholic Church were used as a backdrop for a political

As the details of "who did what" unfolded last week, we found the principle rationalization of those involved to be that "such is politics." We find this not only to be unsatisfactory but also antithetical to the values of this University. Notre Dame, as a place committed to the value of intellectual debate, should not be about staging political pep rallies. Rather, the forum we provide must promote an atmosphere of rigorous scrutiny where people of differing political ideologies are encouraged to actively participate in all events, as the Bush visit had originally been cast to be. The vice president was invited to lecture at this University on serious issues that were not to be overtly political in character. The members of this community should be insulted that all they received was a typical campaign address, slightly tailored to the Notre Dame audience.

To avoid such a fiasco in the future, the University must take a much more active and "hands-on" approach in organizing such a high profile event. We can ill afford to leave the reputation of this University, and the principles it stands for, in the hands of an advance team whose sole responsibility is to package its candidate. It is our hope that the University continues to invite those persons who are leaders in their field and leaders in our country, but does not again enter into such a contrived circus. We believe that, wittingly or unwittingly, Notre Dame was manipulated and used as a grand photo opportunity. Hopefully the wisdom gained from this unfortunate experience will be applied to similar events in the future. Moreover, students who participate in planning such an event in the future must be cognizant of their responsibility as members of this community. No matter how glamorous the event appears, we must not fall victim to partisan politics and cheapen the intellectual character of this University. As students, we should be proud that national leaders wish to come speak on our campus. However, the context of their appearance must be commensurate to the mission of this University.

It was a singular triumph for Bush, but ticket-splitting voters delivered a strongly Democratic majority for the incoming 101st Congress.

Democrats appeared to be padding their margin in the Senate, and were marching solidly toward renewed command of the House. They appeared to be adding to their ranks of governors, Dukakis, whose hopes for an upset faded as his rival piled up the precious electoral votes, won at home in Massachusetts. He also won West Virginia, Rhode Island and the District of Columbia and led in nine states, including New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

In the popular vote, with 58 percent of the precincts reporting, Bush had 27,936,468 or 54 percent. Dukakis had 23,881,576 or 46 percent for Dukakis.

It wasn't even close where it counted in the electoral votes. Bush had 295 and was leading for another 69, while Dukakis had 34 and was leading for another 133 as the vote counts moved toward the West Coast.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen had his Senate seat to go home to. He won handily as Democrats moved out smartly to renewed control in Congress Republican Senate Leader Bob Dole conceded a new, probably stronger Democratic majority, and in an extraordinary declaration, said Bush, bore some of the blame.

Dole, assuming a Bush triumph, said it was "probably correct" that there wouldn't be a mandate to go along with it. But that wasn't the Reagan view. In a statement, he said of Bush and Quayle, "their mandate will continue the changes that create jobs, prosperity and peace for all Americans.'

Lugar wins Senate seat with record vote

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS-Voters gave a huge vote of confidence to Richard Lugar on Tuesday, sending him back to the U.S. Senate for a third term by a record margin of victory over Democrat Jack Wickes.

With 84 percent of the state's precincts reporting, the Republican senator had captured 68 percent of the vote and held a margin of more than 600,000 votes. Lugar had 1,163,601 votes to Wickes' 557,392.

ECTION '88: Election Round-up

Six Indiana congressmen, three Republicans and three Democrats, won re-election Tuesday to the U.S. House. Election returns in the state's remaining four congressional districts were inconclusive at mid-evening. The winners:

- Lee Hamilton, the state's senior-most representative, defeated Republican challenger Floyd Coates of Scottsburg in the 9th District.
- John Myers, the most experienced Republican, defeated Democrat Mark Waterfill of Plainfield in the 7th District. • Andrew Jacobs Jr., who has held the 10th District seat
- since 1974, beat Republican James Cummings of Indianapolis. • Dan Burton won a fourth term from the 6th District against
- Democratic challenger George Holland of Indianapolis. • Dan Coats, a former Dan Quayle staffer when the 41-yearold vice presidential candidate served in Congress, beat
- Democrat Jill Long in the 4th District. • Peter Visclosky beat Republican Owen Crumpacker, a disbarred Hammond attorney, in the 1st District. The district has traditionally voted heavily Democratic.

The gender gap, cited early in the presidential campaign as a problem for Vice President George Bush, turned out to benefit him. An ABC News poll found Bush leading strongly with men, 56-43 percent, but Dukakis narrowly ahead among women, 51-48 percent.

The selection of Dan Quayle did not appear to impact the presidential voting. According to NBC-Wall Street Journal exit polling, 21 percent of voters said they had reservations about Quayle but voted GOP anyway; 16 percent said they might have voted for Bush but Quayle's presence on the ticket helped them decide to vote for Dukakis. However, NBC poll analyst Sheldon Gawiser said almost all the 16 percent were Democrats, leading him to conclude Quayle actually had little effect. Some 63 percent said Quayle's selection did not affect their vote for president.

A list of Dan Quayle successors has not been drawn up yet, said Gov. Robert Orr and other top Republicans on Tuesday. The governor will appoint Vice-President Elect Quayle's successor to the U.S. Senate, who will then serve until 1990. A special election will then be held to determine who will serve the last two years of Quayle's term. Among the names mentioned in published reports and speculation by political insiders are 4th District Rep. Dan Coats; Lt. Gov. John Mutz; Indiana House Speaker Paul Mannweiler, R-Indianapolis; state Rep. Patrick Kiely of Anderson, chairman of the Indiana House Ways and Means Committee, and Marilyn Quayle, the senator's wife.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen rode his statewide popularity to a fourth term Tuesday even as his state voted overwhelmingly for the Republican presidential ticket. He of Rep. Beau Boulter, who had complained about allowed the incumbent to seek re-election wh the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

The governor-elect and his lieutenant governor, Frank O'Bannon, said they plan to continue the issues set forth during their campaign.

"This is a victory for the people of the state of Indiana. It is a victory for the people who came together to lay the foundation for prosperity, who invest in education and frugality in government, who work hard to develop job opportunities," Bayh said.

Education will be the top priority of the Bayh administration, Bayh said. Their first step, however, is to make a smooth transition into the governor's office, he added.

"Education is the number one priority. It should be in every government,' O'Bannon said. "The one year (Indiana Governor) Bob Orr did it it made a big difference.'

The lieutenent governor-elect said making reductions and channeling funds to education will also be very important to Bayh, who stressed reduced government spending throughout his campaign.

"At its very finest, politics and government can inspire each and every one of us. . .to make a state we can all be proud of," Bayh said. "It is the honor of my lifetime to help lead the way.

Thousands of supporters rallied at the Democratic Party headquarters in the Indianapolis Convention Center, a stone's throw from the State Capital. Many said Tuesday was a night long overdue for Indiana Democrats.

The last Democratic Indiana Governor was Roger Branigan, who served one term beginning in 1964.

"The turning point (this year) came when the Republican machine tried to take Evan Bayh off the ballot," said Indiana Democratic Party Chairman John Livengood. "That set a vindictive tone that haunted their campaign.'

But Bayh's Press Secretary Fred Nation said he felt his candidate won the race weeks ago.

"We had a very disciplined campaign on a few major issues and we stuck to it," Nation said. "Two weeks ago, we had the playing ground to ourselves. Every day we waited for an offensive and it didn't come until two weeks ago.

Nation said he thought the race between Mutz and Bayh was not particularly negative because the Republicans were unable to find anthing negative about Bayh, he said.

Even at 32, Bayh is no stranger to politics. His father, Birch Bayh, was a three term U.S. senator and former speaker of the Indiana House of Representatives.

The younger Bayh, a graduate of Indiana University and the University of Virginia Law School, was elected Indiana Secretary of State in 1986.

•With 59 percent of the vote counted, 58 percent of the voters were in favor of Proposition 2, which would allow only convicts whose sentences exceed 50 years to skip the Indiana Court of Appeals and take their cases directly to the state's highest court. Forty-two percent were opposed. Currently, convicts can appeal directly to the supreme court if their sentences are greater than 10 years.

•Proposition 3, which would allow county officials to be elected as often as voters support them, appeared headed for defeat. With 59 percent of the precincts reporting, 63 percent opposed the proposition and 37 percent approved it.

Maryland's tough handgun control law held a surprisingly big lead in early returns Tuesday, in a contest seen as crucial to impending gun control debates in other states. With 10 percent of the state's precincts reporting, support for the state's law banning cheap handguns known as "Saturday Night Specials" was ahead 150,595 votes or 61 percent, to 96,070 votes or 39 percent for repeal. The gun law battle provoked a bitter political fight that become the most expensive in state history. The National Rifle Association spent more $4 million to repeal the Maryland statute.

running mini-series format. ABC, of course, hopes for the former.

For 18 hours in 1983, "The Winds of War" attracted an audience of 140 million viewers. The story covered the events leading to America's involvement in World War II, specifically focusing on how those events affected the Henry family.

Victor "Pug" Henry (Robert Mitchum), a Naval officer and unofficial envoy for President Roosevelt in Europe, dealt with international leaders of the time. Pug's son Byron (Hart Bochner) and his Jewish wife (Victoria Tennant). (You didn't expect this to be a history lesson entirely, did you?)

As "Winds of War" drew to a close, Pug's sons Byron and Warren (Michael Woods), in the Navy, prepared for war. Natalie, her son Louis, and Aaron found themselves stranded in Italy in the shadow of growing Gestapo power. The film's final scene presented Pug looking into the grim future on the day after Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

"War and Remembrance" begins one week later on December 15, 1941 as Pug takes command of the U.S.S. Northampton at Pearl Harbor. The drama unfolds as Pug faces his wartime responsibilities, his crumbling marriage, his reunion with Pamela, and his estrangement from Byron. The full power of Nazi Germany is fulfilled as Natalie, Aaron, and Louis are shipped off to concentration camps.

During the course of the film's 30 hours, viewers will experience Midway, the assassination attempt on Hitler, the D-Day invasion at Normandy, the Battle of the Bulge, and the first explosion of the atom bomb.

Over five years in the making, "War and Remembrance" is ready for its world premiere. Filming of this landmark project began in Lourdes, France on January 6, 1986 and continued through Italy, Austria, Yugoslavia, Switzerland, West Germany, England, Poland, Canada, and America, where filming ended on September 18, 1987. Auschwitz, the Polish concentration camp was opened for filming for the first time in history after two years of negotiations with Polish government. All this time and effort will definitely add to the film's realism and integrity.

While the entire mini-series is over 30 hours long, ABC will air only the first 18 hours next week. The remaining 12 hours will be shown in the spring. This division makes the viewing time seem shorter and adds to the suspense and intrigue of the movie.

Whether viewers will tune in to watch this series is ABC's major concern. However, when the winds have died down, the remembrance will hopefully be a ratings high.

This is Shakespeare

CHRIS WELSH accent writer

bawdy, raucous, slapstick comedy," isn't quite the average student's evaluation of a Shakespearean play. "Boring, droll, depressing and tragic," is perhaps a more apropos description.

But with the holiday season approaching, Notre Dame's Communiucation and Theatre Department unleashes "Twelfth Night" by William Shakespeare, a seasoned tale, full of fun and decidedly lighter entertainmemt. In fact, those responsible for the latest glimpse of the Bard's work here at Notre Dame chose it because of its universal appeal.

Set as a modern-day New Year's Eve costume party performed in Elizabethan costumes, and replete with anachronistic sets and props, "Twelfth Night" spins a romantic yarn of love in the far-away land of Illyria.

The play tells the story of two fraternal twins, Viola and Sebastian. The twins are separated during a shipwreck, and although each survives, they both believe the other to be dead. Viola disguises herself as a man, which leads the other characters in the play to mistake her for Sebastian. This disguise and mistaken identities, typical Shakespearean comedic devices, are the basis for much of the confusion and therefore the fun.

The rationale for selecting "Twelfth Night" is complex, and could be the basis for an entire article by itself. However, Mark Pilkinton, director of the Notre Dame production and associate profeesor of communication and theatre, describes his fifth directorial turn as an attempt to "promote Shakespeare," and "hook people off the street who have had no previous exposure to the play."

He desribes this particular piece as "one I've wanted to do for a long time," due primarily to its appeal to those unfamiliar, or even uninterested in standard Shakespearean fare. Those familiar with the play should enjoy it just as much, though, as only a few words in the text have been changed.

The play has also been cut down to two hours, but as Pilkinton notes, "I've tried to cut the play in such a way that only those most familiar with "Twelfth Night" will notice. Besides, all the texts of Shakespeare are corrupt anyway," he commented, indicating the impossibility of preserving an "authentic" script.

The set was designed by Williard Neuert, assistant professor of communication and theatre, in an attempt to convey a modern, festive, glitzy New Year's Eve party, an appropriate modern counterpart to the "Twelfth Night" celebration of 1602, which featured the first performance of the play. Thus, contemporary scenes for today's modern audience were integrated with authentic Elizabethan costumes (designed by Professor Richard Donnelly of Purdue University) and language.

The result of this work is an enjoyable performance of classic literature which transcends its stuffy contemporaries by reaching out to all with its bawdy comedy and infectious humor. This universal aspect guarantees a good time for everyone.

Performances run from Wednesday, November 9 to Saturday November 12 at 8:10 p.m. and Sunday November 13 at 3:10 p.m. Tickets are $6 main floor and $5 balcony and are available at the door or at the LaFortune Box Office, weekdays 12:15 to 6 p.m. Student and senior citizen admission is $4 for the Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday performances.

The Observer / Jennifer O'Donald

Sir Toby Beich (Tony Lawton), Maria (Nancy O'Connor), Sir Andrew Aquecheek (Joseph Keiler), and Clown (Joseph Medel) celebrate New Year's Eve under an anachronistic Christmas tree in "Tweifth Night."

Basketball Tickets

Special to the Observer

Student season tickets for the 1988-89 Notre Dame basketball season are still available at the Joyce ACC box office.

Athletic Department director of promotions Bubba Cunningham says that student ticket sales are down from last year, despite the improvements in the Irish home schedule.

"I can't figure out why they're not selling," Cunningham said. "I guess the students are still thinking about football, and not basketball."

A few lower arena seats are still available for student purchase at $85, half off the price for the general public. Plenty af bleacher seats are available to students at $68 for the season.

Students can purchase tickets from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the JACC ticket office until the Notre Dame-Yugoslavia game Nov. 18. This season's home schedule includes Syracuse, Indiana, Temple, Duke, USC, DePaul and Louisville.

"ABC doesn't sit on our selection committee," he said. ABC and the Sugar Bowl have had a good relationship for years and recently extended their contract, he said.

"But they don't become involved in making decisions. When it comes to the point that we have to make a decision-beyond Notre Dame--we will make the decision," he said.

Again, Holmes was asked whether the Sugar Bowl might sever its contract with the SEC, since the league's intramural schedule almost guarantees losses that hurt rankings.

"It's certainly a question that our executive committee will have to address pretty soon, because we have a negotiation period coming up," Holmes said.

"I think that if you look at it over the long haul, the SEC has been awfully good to the USF&G Sugar Bowl. At the same time. the Sugar Bowl has been awfully good to the SEC."

tain of the team, his role is cru-

"This is what we're building up for," said Garrett. "If we don't run well at districts we don't get to NCAA's.

"My job is just trying to keep the runners confident and upbeat," said Garrett. "The big thing is to act kind of as a liaison between coach (Piane) and the team.'

Both his teammates and his coach agree that he does an excellent job as captain.

"He not only says the right things but he demonstrates through his example, his sincerity," said Piane. "He does everything I can ask and he does it well.

"He is also not afraid to communicate with me. He has a good sense of how the team feels.

Senior Ron Markezich, who has been a teammate of Dan's for the last four years, agreed.

"Dan has really helped me," said Markezich. "He's a great captain. He keeps the team together. He's been a great leader since high school.

Besides the NCAA race, Garrett holds the Notre Dame record in the outdoor 5000meter race, running the 3.1mile circuit in 14:10. Last year, he was the top finisher in all but one race.

In high school, he led his team to an undefeated season and a state championship in his senior year. His team was the first in New York history to be rated number one from beginning to end of the season.

Despite all his accomplishments, Garrett has had his share of setbacks. He missed his entire sophomore season due to tendonitis in his hip.

"That injury was really frustrating," said Garrett. "I had been running since the seventh grade and then I couldn't run at all. I still went to all the meets, trying to be a part of the team even though I wasn't running.'

Recently, Garrett has experienced an unexplained setback in his running. For some unapparent reason, his times have risen over the last two meets.

"Technically speaking, I've been running like dogmeat," Garrett said. "But that doesn't mean that I'm done for the season."

Neither Piane nor the runners have been excessively concerned with this lapse in Garrett's performance, because they know his capabili-

"Dan is as hard a worker as anyone," said Piane. "He always gives 100 percent."

Garrett's outlook reflects his success in the past.

"You take each meet as it comes," said Garrett. "If we run well, we realize it will help the team get to nationals. If we run poorly, we look over and see what we did. We're just trying to peak towards the end of the season."

As for future plans, Garrett wants running to be a part of his life.

"I'll always be active," said Garrett. "I want to run competitively, but it's not like professional football where that's all you do. I'm not sure what's going to happen. It could just be jumping in a road race in my home town."

"I think his future is still in front of him," said Piane. "Danny is still very young and has a brilliant future ahead of him.'

Rocket launches career as a receiver, kick returner

By BRIAN O'GARA Sports Writer

When Raghib Ismail came to visit Notre Dame last spring, all he wanted to see was the football field tunnel and Touchdown Jesus

"We walked out onto the field," recalls Ismail, "and then walked all the way down to the other end zone, looked around and there it was. And I said 'Oh wow, this is great. I've got to come here.

That trip down the field to the end zone does not take nearly as long this fall for the freshman from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The nickname says it all. He's The Rocket.

"I got that nickname in eighth grade in track," says Ismail. "My coach said I came out of the blocks like a rocket."

The freshman split end has had a fast start here at Notre Dame too. Ismail has caught nine passes this season for 198 yards, including a 58-yard bomb from Tony Rice that set up a go-ahead touchdown against Miami and his first collegiate touchdown against Purdue.

The Observer / Trey Reymond

One of Ismail's greatest weapons is his well-publicized speed. The Grace Hall freshman has run the 40 in 4.18 seconds last summer at a AAU practice, and recorded a 4.28 average after two runs on the first day of football workouts in August.

A standout tailback in high school, Ismail accounted for over 7300 yards and 74 touchdowns in 26 games at Meyers High School. But when the Rocket stepped on the Notre Dame campus this fall, he wasn't taking handoffs in the backfield, he was fearing taking licks in the secondary.

"I remember telling Coach Holtz that I would play anywhere I could contribute,' recalls Ismail, whose brother Qadry is a running back at Syracuse. "Then I found out the first day that I was going to be split end and I thought, 'Oh no, not reciever.' My first feeling was of helplessness. As running back you have the defenders in sight and could give them a little of what they're giving you. But at receiver you're going up for the ball with your back to the defender.'

But the new position has been kind to Ismail. He is a vital part of a 9-0 top-ranked team and had a key block of a field-goal attempt in the second game of the season at Michigan State. And Saturday the Rocket exploded. After several close calls to breaking the big one, Rocket took home two kickoffs for touchdowns as the Irish routed Rice 54-11.

"All year long we would pass the first wall of blockers," says Ismail, "and on the films we always see how one more block or one other move or just a split-second would be the difference between a 30-yard gain and a touchdown.

"We work so hard at it in tell us to play like we practice. why he is such a success as an

We take special teams as another offensive play--its one of the biggest plays in college football.'

With the two returns of 83 and 87 yards, Ismail moved to the top spot in the nation in kickoff returns by averaging just over 37 yards a return, over six yards more per return than his closest rival.

Ismail cited Steve Belles' crushing block that sprung him for the final 40 yards of his first return on Saturday

"Out of my peripheral vision I saw a guy chasing me," recalls Ismail. "Then POW, he was gone. Today I saw it on films and I couldn't believe it. He got a 'Tyson' on that one--he crushed him.'

As Ismail speaks, he squirms and gestures. He can't stop moving. He can't stop thinking about how badly he wants to succeed on the football field.

"He's got such a great attitude," says receivers coach practice. The coaches always Pete Cordelli. "You can see athelete and a person. He's a real inquisitive guy--he wants to watch films and ask questions so he can learn things and learn to do things well.

It is that attitude that made Ismail a fast learner at receiver. And he had a lot to learn.

"As a running back all I had to worry about was running fast," says Ismail. "But now I've got to read coverages and learn different ways of running routes and blocking--oh my goodness--blocking bigger defensive backs.

"There are a lot of little things that I knew nothing about when I was a running back," says Ismail. "Its like all starting over again. I've learned a lot but I still have a long way to go."

But just he did in eighth grade track, Ismail is out of the blocks for a speedy start. And, lucky for the Irish, the race he's running will make him a weapon for Notre Dame for a long time.

Easy-going Brown saves intensity for playing field

By FRANK PASTOR

Dean Brown is something of an enigma.

Notre Dame's junior offensive tackle excels at a position which requires a tremendous amount of intensity by maintaining an easy-going personal-

"He's one of the easier-going kids on the team," said Irish offensive line coach Joe Moore. "He's not a very intense person, or an ill-tempered person. He's just a nice kid."

Brown has become an integral part of the offensive line since taking over at the tight tackle position early in spring practice. The Canton, Ohio, native was moved from guard to tackle in order to bolster an offensive line depleted by the graduation of its senior mem-

The offensive line, widely considered one of the major question marks for the Irish suddenly come into its own. Brown compares the line to a well-oiled machine.

"The offensive line machine, and each position is like one little piece of the machine," said the 6-3, 283-pound junior. "If one person lets down, he lets everybody else within that unit down. That's the attitude of all offensive linemen. I can truly say that the guys we have on the line are competitors in the rawest form."

"Dean's a very important part of that machine," adds Moore. "His inexperience and his inconsistency show up once in a while, but when he's humming on all cylinders, he's a pretty darn good player.'

Moore points to Brown's enormous strength and quickness as his most important assets. These are as much a product of home cooking as of extensive training in the Loftus Sports Center.

"The weight program that's before the season began, has set up now is really intense," been a part of. The strength coach (Scott Raridon) and his assistants put a lot of time and pens the mark of a true cham- Tony Rice is one particular effort into trying to get us into the weight room and getting us to lift the proper things. Of course, I always look forward to going home and getting some of Mom's cooking, too.

Notre Dame proved to be the best college choice for Brown since it was close to home and offered the right blend of athletics and academics. The three-year letterman out of McKinley High School in Canton believes the three years he's spent under the Dome have brought him closer to legendary figures those enshrined at the NFL Hall of Fame in his hometown.

"Football and academics monopolize the vast majority of time we (student-athletes) have in the day," said Brown.
"It's difficult trying to prepare mentally for practice every day of the week, trying to get better, and then you've got to work done.

"But no matter what hap- way that they act towards me." pion is a person who can handle Dillon resident to whom Brown all the adversity and shift gears a little bit to be mentally strong in any situation he faces."

Brown likes to "just mellow out and think" while listening to jazz music in the little spare time he does have during the week. His thoughts don't center on anything in particular, but run the gamut from past experiences to the direction his life may take in the future. He also takes time out of his busy schedule to get acquainted with his fellow residents in Dillon Hall.

"I try to be personable," said Brown. "I feel that it's important to stay on a pretty even keel with everybody. I don't have that stereotype that, 'He's a football player, and he has to be arrogant all the time.' I try to set a good example for the freshmen and the people I know said Brown. "It's the best I've shift gears to get the school- in the dorm. I try to adjust to the different people and the has adjusted. The junior quarterback roomed with Brown for two years before this season, and his presence in the Irish backfield serves as an incentive for Brown to keep opponents out of that same backfield.

"I try to keep the guys (opposing defensemen) off all the backs," said Brown. "But it is a good feeling to know that Tony's back there. I've known him so long, he's just like a brother to me. I know what he's thinking all the time. Being in a personal relationship with him makes it a little more gratifying for me."

By successfully keeping these defensive linemen away from Rice and the other Irish backs, Brown has helped Notre Dame get off to its fastest start in years.

Knicks top Bulls; Hornets win first

Special to The Observer

Johnny Newman scored a career-high 35 points to lead the New York Knicks to a 126-117 victory over the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night.

Michael Jordan had 31 points for the Bulls, but it was not enough to stop the Knicks from recording their first win of the season. Both teams now have 1-2 records.

In other NBA action, former Irish star Kelly Tripucka scored 24 points to lead the Charlotte Hornets to a 117-105 win over the Los Angeles Clippers, the first ever for the expansion team.

Atlanta defeated Indiana 112-107. New Jersey outscored Washington 109-101.

Sugar Bowl still lists Notre Dame as top priority

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS -The director of the Sugar Bowl says he's serious about a possible matchup between No.1 Notre Dame and the Southeastern Conference champion.

"I find it interesting and amusing that nobody really will take us very seriously as to where we might stand with Notre Dame," Mickey Holmes told the New Orleans Quarterback Club. "We feel very good about it.

"We make no bones about Notre Dame being our priority. The people on the West Coast know that. The people in West Virginia know that, the same in Miami and with Florida State."

The loser of the game between No.2 Southern Cal, 8-0, and No.6 UCLA, 8-1, has been mentioned as a possible Sugar Bowl team, as has No.3 Miami, 7-1; No.4 West Virginia, 9-0, and No.5 Florida State, 8-1.

Auburn, 8-1 and No.9, is in a three-way tie in the SEC race with Louisiana State University, 6-2 and No.12, and Georgia, 7-2 and No.17. Each has one conference loss, Auburn's defeat by LSU.

"USC and UCLA are two pretty good football teams and very much in the mix, as far as we are concerned," Holmes said on Monday.

"We have made an effort to get Miami," he said. "One thing we can't allow ourselves to forget is that LSU could win the SEC championship outright," he said.

"I can see a scenario that you should think about, and that's that LSU beats Miami. That's the reason we can't get too excited about Miami, because Miami isn't interested in a rematch.

"And if LSU should beat Miami on the 19th, they could be ranked higher than anyone else in the SEC, including Auburn, in the national rankings.

"LSU is very much involved in the championship picture as far as the SEC is concerned, and with that being a fact, Miami is pretty much on the back burner. And Miami understands that."

"The whole thing boils down to that there will be no movement in any direction by anybody until Notre Dame decides how it wants to handle its postseason appearance," Holmes said.

He said the ABC network will have no say in the decision.

He's a rare Irish All-American

Top-10 NCAA runner Garrett leads ND cross country

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO Sports Writer

It isn't every year that Notre Dame is the home of one of the top 10 NCAA runners in the country.

In fact, it has been 24 years.
Dan Garrett, a fifth-year senior completing his final year of eligibility on the men's cross country team, finished sixth overall in the 10,000meter NCAA Championship race last year, the best finish by a Notre Dame runner since

Garrett's awesome performance was representative of the entire team effort last year, improving with every meet, peaking at the NCAA Championships. The team finished seventh at the race, which was also its best since 1964.

Garrett surprised a lot of people at the meet, including himself.

"I was really surprised,"

said Garrett. "I thought I had a chance at making All-American (top 30 runners in the race), so I got out in that race and after two miles I caught the lead group.

"When I found myself in that group I couldn't believe it," Garrett continued. "Towards the finish people started kicking in and I managed to stay up there."

Indeed, Garrett managed just fine, running the 6.2-mile course in 29:24.74, which is averaging 4.7 minutes for each mile on the course.

"Frankly, I was somewhat surprised," said cross country coach Joe Piane. "He placed fifth in districts, so I thought he might finish in the top 10 or 15. Dan ran very well, and when the track season rolled around he proved that his performance was not a fluke."

Now, the second-year captain from Clarence Center, New York, is playing a vital role in the team's quest of reaching the NCAA Championships for a second straight year. If the team achieves this goal, it will be the first time the Irish have done it since 1966.

To get there, the Irish will have to race extrememly well in the upcoming District IV meet. Since Garrett is also cap-

Interhall flag football--it's not just for kids anymore

Football does not get nearly the attention it deserves at Notre Dame.

Sound ridiculous? Think again. I'm not talking about the 9-0 top-ranked Fighting Irish who are causing bowl speculation to be the campus pastime. I'm talking about a different level of pigskin tossing. I'm talking about women's interhall flag football.

But this isn't the same flag football that we had to play in elementary school so our parents wouldn't to play in elementary school so our parents wouldn't sue the principal if we were hurt. Flag football was what you played when you were wearing your best pants and you're mother said, "Now don't get dirty, Precious." Flag football was for people who didn't like to get all sweaty.

Well, not anymore.

Flag football gives girls the chance to do what their big brothers talked about throughout their childhood-shooting the gaps, run a down-and-out, kick to the sideline, master the option pitch, get dirty and even sweat.

Early in September I was asked to be one of the defensive coaches for Farley's flag football team. I said sure--it might be kind of fun. What I didn't realize was how it could become so addictive.

Daily practices at Stepan. Weekly games under the lights at Cartier. And example after example that this was really a sport that was played because it was fun.

Fun, but who says this isn't just as intense as real football?

In one game our inside linebacker jumped to deflect a pass and came down shaking her finger. "Did you break a finger nail?" joked one of the

No, she broke her finger.

But two weeks later she was back in the lineup and picked off a key pass. That's what toughness is all about. Well, she kind of ruined the moment when she skipped off the field and hugged the coach, but, hey, Stonebreaker probably does that too.

Not only did the defense not give up any points in the season's first four games, but it even scored two. A junior defensive end beat her man, er, woman, on the outside and caught the quarterback in the end zone for a safety. Forget the fact that she stands 5'3" and barely tips the scales in triple figures.

Opportunity also knocks for the football wanna-be coaches like me. All those hours watching "Wake Up The Echoes" paid off when it came time to deliver pre-game pep talks. I even tried a 'Win One For...' line.

And then there is the crouching down during key plays and pulling at the grass like Lou Holtz does. If really didn't seem to matter that we played all our games on turf and it is mighty difficult to pull up carnet

The flag football championship still has yet to be decided. Lewis will meet Breen-Phillips in the Stadium, probably on the Sunday after Penn State. If you have never seen a women's flag football game here, go. You may be surprised. They may still call each other Precious and still worry about their hair, but they can also run the option and drop a quarterback for a loss with the best of them.
