144 feared dead in Azores crash

Associated Press

LISBON, Portugal-- A U.S. charter jet carrying Italian vacationers to the Caribbean crashed into a mountain in the Azores while trying to land in fog on Wednesday. All 144 people on board were feared killed.

The Boeing 707, with a seven-member American crew, was approaching Santa Maria airport on the Atlantic island chain when it hit 1,794-foot Pico Alto and burst into flames, said Afonso Pimentel, a reporter in the Azores for Portugal's LUSA news agency.

"The plane was very low, everything seemed perfectly normal, then it turned and flew straight into the mountain," said witness Manuel Figueredo, the mayor of the fishing village of Santa Barbara near the airport.

"There was a tremendous explosion. The plane burst into flames and trees around it caught fire. Nobody could possibly have survived," Vairros Figueredo said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

LUSA reported more than 50 bodies had been recovered by nightfall. Heavy fog and difficult access to the crash site hampered rescue workers.

The jet belonged to the U.S. airline Independent Air Corp., based in Smyrna, Tenn., which said it was bound from Bergamo, Italy, to the Dominican Republic and then to Jamaica.

Vote on Tower delayed due to FBI investigation

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-- Senators said Wednesday a first vote on John Tower's nomination as defense secretary will be delayed nearly two weeks while the FBI reviews allegations about his finances and drinking.

President Bush stood by Tower and denounced "rumor and frenzied speculation."

"There are new allegations of a financial nature which are now being checked in the Tower nomination," said Sen.

Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the Armed Services Committee chairman. He told reporters he could not vote to confirm Tower until the latest charges were checked, and said he had informed Bush of that.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said new allegations linked Tower to the Pentagon procurement investigation, which has involved payments by defense contractors for classified information regarding lucrative military contracts.

"It has to do with this procurement scandal, the 'Ill Wind' thing," said McCain, using the Justice Department name for the investigation.

An administration official said the FBI background inquiry focused on contributions to one of Tower's senate campaigns by a contractor now under investigation in the Pentagon procurement fraud investigation.

But the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, emphasized that the FBI had found no evidence of illegal wrongdoing by Tower and noted that politicians can't control who gives money to their campaigns.

Tower has denied trading secrets for cash. But Nunn and other senators have voiced concern whether Tower could avoid conflicts of interests in view of the more than $1 million he received as a consultant for major defense contractors after ending a 24-year career in the Senate four years ago.

Bush told reporters at the White House he had seen no evidence causing him to lose confidence in his nominee.

"Have I seen anything, or has anything in the FBI report made me want to change my mind as one who would be concerned about insobriety or about failure to be ready for duty 24 hours a day? The answer is, 'No, I have not.'

"If somebody has something other than rumor and frenzied speculation, please get it to the FBI or get it to the White House staff, or certainly get it to the committee in the Senate. But let us be fair enough that we do

University crackdown results in confiscation of unlicensed goods

By MATT GALLAGHER
Senior Staff Reporter

A local T-shirt business received a harsh lesson in Notre Dame's trademark licensing policy as the University brought legal action against the firm in mid-January.

The subject of the University's action was Umbrella Graphics, a Mishawaka retail store.

On Jan. 13, University officials, accompanied by two police officers and an attorney, entered the store with a court order to seize unlicensed products bearing the Notre Dame trademark, said Todd Garrison, a partner in Umbrella Graphics.

The representatives of the University proceeded to seize Umbrella Graphic's stock of T-shirts bearing the ND logo, the words "Notre Dame," and other trademarks, Garrison said.

"They practically burst through the front door," Garrison said. "They were very rude. They didn't even allow us to take an inventory of the stuff (that was seized)."

Carol Kaesebier, assistant general counsel to the University, said that the action was taken to protect Notre Dame trademarks.

"Umbrella Graphics was selling and producing unlicensed products in fairly large quantities," Kaesebier said. "There was one instance in which we saw an invoice for $14,000 in unlicensed products."

Kaesebier said the University had previously contacted Umbrella Graphics and asked them to discontinue manufacturing unlicensed products. However, Garrison said that Umbrella Graphics "never received warning in any form that we (Umbrella Graphics) were in violation of any University policy."

Umbrella Graphics "never had anything but a good rapport with Notre Dame before this," Garrison said.

Garrison said that his firm had previously filled orders from various campus organizations, including Non-Varsity Athletics, the Bookstore, the Department of Communications and Theatre, and various other student organizations, University organizations, and individuals.

Garrison and his partner, Collette Ceuterick, formed Umbrella Graphics several years ago. "Our purpose is to take student designs and put them on quality T-shirts. . . We provide a creative outlet for students. The Bookstore

New faculty evaluation forms introduced

By REGIS COCCIA
Senior Staff Reporter

Students wishing to rate their professors' classroom performance will get that chance this week thanks to student government's Faculty Course Evaluation project, project commissioner Jennifer Salmon said Wednesday.

"This is a student service designed to supplement the course catalog to help them take the classes they're interested in," she said, adding this evaluation is separate from the Teacher Course Evaluations conducted by academic departments.

All on-campus sophomores, juniors and seniors should receive a computerized FCE form today, Salmon said. The deadline for submitting the completed forms is Friday, Feb. 16. Students may drop them in dorm collection boxes or campus mail, she said.

Student government, with the help of the Social Science Training and Research Lab, will publish the evaluation results in a book shortly before advance registration in April, said Salmon, a sophomore.

Freshmen were not given forms because they are unable to choose professors during their first year, Salmon said.

A similar project was launched about 10 years ago that evaluated specific courses, not faculty members, she said. The results of the FCE are professor-specific and can carry over

Speaker focuses on working women

By RON SEVERINO
News Staff

The issue of women in the workplace and its effects on men was discussed Wednesday in a gender studies lecture by Heidi Hartmann, director of the Institute for Women's Policy Research in Washington, D.C.

The lecture, part of a series sponsored by the economics and sociology departments, focused on women's rise in the workplace and the problems that must be solved to bring about a more equal status between men and women at home as well as in the workplace.

Hartmann began by citing reasons as to why women are becoming "more and more autonomous today than in years past."

The most obvious reason, she said, was because of economic necessity, as the average real income of men (inflation-adjusted) has fallen steadily over the last 10 to 20 years.

A second reason she gave was women's new self-sufficiency. "Women want more control of their economic destiny," said Hartmann.

More women now must support themselves and their families due to the rising divorce rate, and many young women live independently for some years, according to Hartmann.

Thirdly, Hartmann said, as a result of the American economy, more jobs have opened up for women, especially in white-collar fields.

Hartmann said the main problem still lies in the discrepancy of incomes between men and women.

The average income of all full-time working women is presently just 65 percent of the average income of all full-time male workers. The reason for this is not because men are paid more than women for the same occupation, but because women occupy more lower-salaried, non-managerial type jobs than men.

The solution that Hartmann strongly embraces is comparable worth, whereby salaries would be determined not by the basic principles of supply and demand, but by the skill and effort required by a given job gauged against other jobs.

Hartmann believes new legislation such as comparable worth and affirmative action/equal opportunity employment are necessary in achieving equality in the workplace. However, she said, "There was very little effort on the part of the Reagan Administration to assist women in the economy."

Hartmann then turned to the problem of child care and working mothers.

Fifty percent of all women return to the workforce within a year of giving birth to a child, according to Hartmann. Hartmann said the problem lies mainly in men's failure to pick up the slack of household duties as women take on more responsibilities in the workplace.

One statistic showed that married men work on average about seven hours a week at home, while married women work 25-45 hours a week at home.

A solution to the child care issue, according to Hartmann, would be to pass new legislation such as the Act for Better Child Care, which would appropriate $2.1 billion to public health care. Hartmann said she supports "the public education of men regarding household responsibilities," which brought a definite rise of laughter from the gentlemen in the auditorium.

The lecture was the second in a series of lectures entitled "New Directions in Gender Studies." "Gender studies takes the veil off of human consciousness and brings forward this issue that has been repressed, so that it can be discussed at universities like this," said Teresa Ghilarducci, assistant professor of economics and organizer of the lecture series.

To have a feminist such as this one come to Notre Dame was a difficult task, because of the patriarchal nature of the University, according to Ghilarducci. "The popularity, the stature, of Notre Dame male athletes makes the gap between men and women here even larger," said Ghilarducci, "and adds to its patriarchal nature."

Memorial scholarship established for alumnus killed in Pan Am crash

By LAURA DOWNS
News Staff

A scholarship fund for law and undergraduate students studying abroad has been established in memory of Harry Bainbridge, who received both his undergraduate and law degrees from Notre Dame.

Bainbridge died in the Pan Am 105 airline crash over Scotland on December 23, 1988.

The scholarship has been set up by the Bainbridge family, friends of the family, and PepsiCo Inc., where Bainbridge was employed as corporate attorney.

PepsiCo has matched the sums of donations made by family and friends. In addition, PepsiCo has donated a substantial gift in the name of Bainbridge.

"It would not be appropriate at this time to speak in terms of dollars and cents, as the sum is still fluid," said Assistant Dean William McLean of the Law School.

McLean explained that the money will be placed in an endowment, the interest from which will go to scholarship support for a graduate law student in the London Law program or an undergraduate in the Angers Program in France.

Bainbridge spent a year in each of these programs while at Notre Dame.

By placing the funds in an endowment, it will be possible to name a new Bainbridge scholar each year rather than exhaust the entire sum at once.

The particulars of this scholarship fund are not yet set and the eligibility requirements and application procedure have yet to be determined.

Bainbridge graduated from the University in 1976 with a B.A. in government. He received his law degree in 1980. Bainbridge is survived by his wife Dona.

not deal in rumor after rumor," Bush said.

Meanwhile, White House counsel and chief ethics adviser C. Boyden Gray presented the FBI report to Nunn and Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the Senate panel's ranking Republican. The White House said it was "standard practice" for the White House counsel's office to "carry such reports to the hill."

But it also appeared to be a move to appease Nunn, who on Tuesday had expressed irritation that the White House had briefed committee Republicans and not him.

The administration had been pushing for a vote this week, but dropped that after Nunn and Warner met with Bush Tuesday night.

"I told the president frankly that I have serious concerns, and I also stated that if a vote was held immediately as some have urged, I would vote no because of these concerns," Nunn told reporters. The second-ranking Democrat on the committee, Sen. James Exon of Nebraska, also said he could not vote in favor of Tower until the FBI completes its investigation.

At the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the main new allegation "relates to Senator Tower's activities while he was in the Senate."

It had been chartered by the Dominican firm Dominair by a consortium of six Italian travel agencies.

Portuguese TV said an anonymous caller to the newsroom claimed responsibility for the crash on behalf of an organization called the Brigada Terrorista Internacional (International Terrorist Brigade).

Police said they knew of no group by that name and suspected the claim was a hoax.

Witnesses said jetliner's wreckage still burned on Pico Alto five hours after the crash.

LUSA said the first alarm of the crash was given by a resident of Santa Barbara.

The pilot radioed Santa Maria Airport control tower three minutes before the crash but did not report anything wrong, LUSA quoted an unidentified civil aviation official as saying.

The agency said the control tower then tried repeatedly to contact the plane without success.

Earlier unconfirmed reports said the pilot had requested a runway be cleared for an emergency landing.

The jet was scheduled to make a refueling stop in the Azores, a chain of islands west of Portugal. Santa Maria is about 750 miles west of Portugal.

The U.S. federal Aviation Administration reported fog in the area with visibility of five miles below 500 feet and scattered clouds at 500 feet.

The passengers were "middle-income Italians flying to a sun resort with great beaches" on a package put together by Flamingo Tours of Bergamo, said A. Pittman, president of Independent Air in Smyrna, Ga.

Independent Air is 15 years old and flies 400-500 charters per year, mostly in the Caribbean and Europe.

The craft was one of two Boeing 707s owned by Independent Air, Pittman said. He said it had 12,500 cycles, or takeoffs and landings, and fewer than 50,000 hours in the air.

Jack Barker, a spokesman for the FAA, said that was not excessive.

"If properly maintained, there should not be a problem because of hours or number of cycles," he said. "Other aircraft involved in the news have had as much as 50,000 cycles, a great many more."

doesn't do that, nor does someone like Champion products," Garrison said.

Kaesebier said that the University filed suit against Umbrella Graphics several days before the Jan. 13 action, "seeking legal relief and damages." A temporary restraining order was obtained by the University to "stop (Umbrella Graphics) from selling (unlicensed products) until the suit is settled. It also allowed us to seize his inventory to be certain he complied (with the order)," Kaesebier said.

Garrison said he believed that the University was just making an example of his firm. He noted that "bootleggers" came to South Bend following Notre Dame's Jan. 2 Fiesta Bowl victory "attempting to sell inferior products, out for pure profit." These vendors set up on street corners around South Bend to peddle their products, Garrison said. "The University never attempted to do anything to these bootleggers."

Garrison said he believes this legal action was taken against his firm in part because he was easy to locate.

Kaesebier said the University welcomed the publicity. "We do intend for the publicity to let people know we're serious about protecting our trademarks," Kaesebier said. She added that she believed the majority of the publicity was intentionally generated by Garrison, not by the University.

"The only recourse we've had has been the press, because of the relative power of the two of us versus the University. We just don't have the resources or money to take on the University," Garrison said.

Kaesebier said the University was currently pursuing the legal suit against Umbrella Graphics, and she could not comment on the suit until it was settled. "What we do with Mr. Garrison's stock will be determined after the suit is settled."

Garrison said he did not like the way the entire matter was handled. "We never thought we were doing anything wrong," he said. "We never had anything but a good rapport with the University before this. . . I'm just bewildered by the whole thing."

The University's action has affected the way Umbrella Graphics operates, Garrison said. "This cost us a lot of face," he said. "We have to wonder if we can put an 'ND' on anything anyone brings in here any more."

"There's no way to assess the damage to our business," Garrison said. "It could very well cost us the business."

Trademarks held on words, symbols depicting University

By MATT GALLAGHER
Senior Staff Reporter

Notre Dame owns the trademark to many words and symbols related to the University, and it has developed a strict licensing policy to protect those trademarks.

Carol Kaesebier, assistant general counsel to the University, said Notre Dame owns the trademark to the following words and symbols:

- "University of Notre Dame"
- "Notre Dame"
- "Fighting Irish"
- The Leprechaun
- The University Seal
- The Official Class Ring
- The Golden Dome and others.

The University licenses the use of these trademarks to various manufacturers, Kaesebier said. "The majority of licenses go to manufacturers to license and sell products they produce," Kaesebier said. "The products must have that manufacturer's name on it. In other words, they can't just use a T-shirt made by Haynes, for example, and put a golden dome on it."

Kaesebier said the University attempts to regulate the quality of the products it allows to use the various trademarks. "There are no restrictions on the (licensed) products, so long as they have the qualities we're looking for," she said.

The University receives a royalty of 7 1/2 percent of total sales of the products it licenses, Kaesebier said.

Kaesebier said the University makes an active attempt to enforce its exclusive trademark rights, because the rights to these trademarks can be lost if the University does not enforce them.

In mid-January, the University took legal action against a Mishawaka retail store, Umbrella Graphics, for violating Notre Dame's trademark rights.

"We have also had other cases of taking legal action against retailers. Most just haven't been as publicized," Kaesebier said. She said that legal action had been taken against other local retailers, most recently about two years ago.

Such legal action takes the form of a legal suit filed by the University against the alleged violator. She declined to comment on specific penalties for trademark infringement.

Student organizations operate under separate licensing arrangements, Kaesebier said. "Students are allowed to use (Notre Dame) trademarks for student organizations, so long as they go through the proper procedures with (The Office of) Student Activities," Kaesebier said.

DuLac states a different policy, however. It states, in part, "All items (bearing a trademark) . . . must be ordered through the bookstore."

Kaesebier said that the regular trademark policies apply to individual students selling items bearing a trademark. "They must go through the regular licensing procedure."

Former Nazi soldier: young Germans should bear no guilt

Associated Press

CHAM, West Germany-- A former Nazi SS soldier who leads a growing extremist party told thousands of cheering supporters Wednesday that young Germans bear no guilt for Hitler's extermination of 6 million Jews.

Franz Schoenhuber, an SS soldier in World War II, also criticized the president of the nation's Jewish community, called for the reunification of Germany and said the European Economic Community was detrimental to German farmers.

In a speech to several thousand supporters of his Republican Party, which has surged in national polls, the 66-year-old politician denied being anti-Semitic.

There are Jewish authors, composers and painters "I like," he said, "but I don't like Mr. Galinski."

Heinz Galinski, who is 76 and survived the Auschwitz death camp, constantly reminds West Germans of the horrors of the Hitler era and criticizes anti-Jewish tendencies of the extreme right wing.

"Mr. Galinski sabotages German-Jewish reconciliation," Schoenhuber said.

Galinski told The Associated Press by telephone from his home in West Berlin: "There will be no comment from me because it is beneath my dignity to argue with Mr. Schoenhuber."

Schoenhuber fought in France and on the Eastern front in World War II, then spent 10 years as a prisoner of the British. The SS, or Schutzstaffel, was a military unit of the Nazi party and separate from the regular German army.

At the meeting in Cham, a town of 16,000 people 80 miles northeast of Munich, he pounded his fist on the rostrum and declared: "Today's young generation of Germans is no more guilty for Auschwitz than the sons and daughters of Americans who committed genocide at Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

More than 5,000 supporters, feasting on beer and sausages in the packed hall, interrupted Schoenhuber's two-hour speech frequently with applause and shouts of "Bravo!" A Bavarian brass band played before and after the speech.

Fewer apply to top colleges in 1989

Associated Press

NEW YORK-- A drop in the number of high school graduates and mounting concern over tuitions are driving down the volume of applications to some of the nation's most prestigious colleges for the first time in years.

Harvard University spokesman Peter Costa estimates a 5 to 10 percent drop in applications compared with a year ago, the first such decline in at least two decades. Nearly all other Ivy League schools are reporting declines in that range.

The application deadline for next fall's freshman class was Feb. 1 at many selective schools around the country.

Stanford University's fall applications have dropped about 6 percent, from 15,828 to 14,869, according to Lynne Madison, assistant dean of undergraduate admissions.

At the highly competitive University of California at Berkeley, applications are also down, from 21,944 to 20,835 for next fall's entering class.

"It's really got to be the decline in the number of high school graduates," said Linda Davis Taylor, dean of admissions at Amherst College, in Amherst, Mass., where fall applications have dropped about 4 percent.

"I've been calling around myself, and most of the colleges I've talked to are experiencing declines at least as great as ours," she said.

"I consider this a yellow light. We all kind of anticipated this," said Bradley Quin, admissions director of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., where applications are down about 5 percent.

Helping out eating disorder victims

Editor's note: The following is the last in a series of five articles dealing with eating disorders.

My first experience with eating disorders was five years ago when a good friend in high school opened her heart and shared with me her secret of being a bulimic. Christy wondered how I would react and it took courage on her part to share this problem with me. I am afraid that in this instance I failed.

Matt Beuter

Christy revealed her problem to me and I brushed it off as inconsequential. I could not understand how this could happen to a friend of mine. Christy was an all-American girl and she seemed to have everything going for her-- how could she have this problem with her self-esteem? Her attempt to open up to me and my failure to take her seriously left a hole in my life. At the time I knew Christy, I was too immature to realize the extent of her problem or her need for human understanding. When she told me how she felt bloated after every meal, and the only way for her to release this feeling was to purge or vomit, I was horrified. To me, throwing up was something you did when you had the flu and not what you forced yourself to endure in the name of weight control. I had no concept of the suffering she was going through and I had even less of a grasp on how to help her by being a good listener. Luckily, Christy found help and is today what can be loosely considered as recovered.

When I came to Notre Dame I left Christy behind and I thought I had left eating disorders behind also, but this was not the case. I found a friend here who was also afflicted by this disease and I was given another opportunity to make the difference in someone's life. I met Wendy at the beginning of the fall semester. I was instantly impressed by her bubbly personality and her ever-present smile. We grew as friends. One weekend during the semester we found ourselves at a tailgater. Everyone was drinking up the atmosphere and the joy was on all of our faces. Wendy was socializing when suddenly she remembered that she had to take some medicine, and I being ever-curious, inquired further. She informed me that it was medicine for a disease I could never understand so it was not worth discussing.

I pressed the subject. She explained it was both a physical and mental problem. Keeping Christy in mind, I said, "I bet you have an eating disorder." Little did I know that this was true. Although Wendy was recovering, she was still suffering. I was very surprised by the accuracy of my guess, and found myself eager to reach out to her since I had failed so miserably in my previous opportunity. Wendy had other ideas though, and she promptly changed the subject and we went on to discussing the upcoming football game.

We saw each other again but did not discuss her problem again until one night when she called me after dinner and asked if I had time to talk. Not knowing what to expect, I consented, hoping that I could be whatever Wendy needed. This was my first real experience talking to someone who wanted to confide in me and I listened. That night I learned many things about eating disorders and their ugly grip on women; but it was only the beginning. After that night, I felt much closer to Wendy and

"Today's society places a high demand on females to have a slim, trim body and men do nothing to derail this runaway freight train. This is hurting others we care about and it should not be allowed to continue."

we began to spend more time together. We took trips to the Huddle for ice cream a few times and it taught us both many things. For Wendy these trips were like a trial by jury in her mind and she had to put up the best defense she could muster. This was a new beginning. She was seeing life for the first time through new eyes, but my eyes were becoming more cloudy and teary.

I started to become more sensitive to people on campus who I thought might have eating disorders. I talked to my friends about it and tried to get their input. It pained me to be at dinner with a girl with just a small salad and water on her tray, or even worse to see someone with their tray piled high with dining hall delicacies only to purge themselves later. I struggled with myself and wanted to offer help to everyone but was still unsure how to go about it. Wendy and I talked more and more often and I began to see more of her inner feelings. She was torn apart by the comments that most of us pass off as insignificant. It made me realize how many women today are influenced by what we say and do when we don't even know about it.

This brings me to the final topic of my reflections: my feelings toward the insensitive comments made with little thought to their ramification. How far are people going to react to our style of joking? How far can we push these people without hearing them snap like a bowstring? Today's society places a high demand on females to have a slim, trim body and men do nothing to derail this runaway freight train. This is hurting others we care about and it should not be allowed to continue. My experiences have taught me that making a stinging remark at the wrong time can make the difference in another's life. As we all know, the converse is also true. We are all human and therefore need to interact to exist. If you know someone who is suffering from an eating disorder, talk to them about it or suggest that they get help. I have come a long way since my original rejection of Christy and I hope that my story helps someone else who is in need.

The advantages of water aerobics

Are you looking for an alternate aerobic activity to break the hum-drum of running, biking, etc? Well, the opportunity will be afforded you at the Rolfs Aquatic Center. Water aerobics classes are now under way. Two sessions are available: A one-hour evening class and a half-hour class during the lunch hour.

What if you can't swim? This is a program that does not require swimming skills and is excellent for those wanting to begin an exercise program. Just slip into a suit, come on down and expect to get a great workout.

Water aerobics has many advantages. To begin with, while in water the body's relative weight is reduced by 90 percent. Meaning, if there is a 330 lb. individual running in the water, the impact per step would be 33 lbs. However, if he is outdoors running, the body weight is increased three-fold to 990 lbs. Therefore, water aerobics lowers the chance of injury.

While exercising in the water, the water acts as a resistive force. The faster you move, the more resistance is created. Many of the exercises in the structure program are designed around motions involved with weight conditioning principles. In conjunction with that, exercises are implemented to concentrate on antagonistic muscles in order to aid the balance of the development of opposite muscle groups.

There are several other benefits to exercising in the water. It is automatic that one's body core temperature rises while engaging in vigorous activity. While exercising on dry land, various environmental conditions need to be taken into account to regulate exercise intensity and duration. As the body temperature increases, fatigue sets in, reducing the duration of the workout. Water, however, acts as a cooling agent, permitting the participant to exercise for a longer period of time. At the same time, the body is getting a natural massage from the moving water, aiding in limiting muscle soreness the following day. Of course, there is the improvement of cardiovascular fitness (increasing aerobic capacity) as well as conditioning and toning many muscles of the body.

All classes start at the beginning level, and progress is adjusted at the discretion of the instructor. Each workout, however, can be performed to maximum capacity whether it is a beginning or advanced routine, and vice versa. It is important to keep in mind that if you are new at the "sport," you must give time for the body to learn and to become familiar with the exercises (about 4 classes). Once the exercises are learned, staying with the designated pace should be focused on. As strength increases, proper techniques should be performed to give maximum involvement and cardiovascular stimulation.

Exercising in the water is great for all situations, weight loss, beginners, advanced athletes, rehabilitation, arthritics within various guidelines, cross trainers, stress reductions, and many others. Most of all, at the conclusion of each workout, you are guaranteed to feel refreshed. Contact Non-Varsity Athletics if you would like more information. I hope you come and try the newest and safest way to exercise while having fun.

McManus family thanks ND

Dear Editor:

My wife, Terry, and our sons, Mick and Dave, and I would like to thank all of the students, faculty, administrators, and alumni of Notre Dame who responded to the death of our son, Patrick, with so much kindness and compassion.

We have been overwhelmed by the number of people who attended his funeral and participated in the Masses said for him at Notre Dame and by the number of notes, sympathy cards, Mass cards and memorial fund contributions we have received. It is obvious that the Notre Dame family grieved at his loss along with us. Perhaps no one but those associated with Notre Dame can comprehend this feeling of family.

Because we have heard from so many people, it will be difficult to acknowledge individually each expression of sympathy. However, we want everyone associated with Notre Dame to know how much we appreciate their kindness and to know what a comfort it was to us to realize that we had such support from our extended family.

Student defends US foreign policy

Dear Editor:

I am really tired of the America-bashing I see in The Observer. When I read "USA gives world empty rhetoric" on Monday, the misrepresentations printed had to be exposed.

I read that "the destabilization of popular governments has become a way of life for a populace in the grip of anti-communist paranoia." The author complains about U.S. action in Nicaragua. First of all, what he fails to consider is that in Nicaragua, his views, if printed, might get The Observer shut down. As far as the "popular government" goes, many Nicaraguans oppose it, and I think it is in the interest of both the U.S. and Nicaragua to remove it, if that is reasonably possible. Are Americans paranoid about communism? There is no communist government on earth that gives its people the kind of freedom Americans enjoy. Why do you think thousands of Nicaraguans are now in this country seeking political asylum?

Sean Ellington asks if we have no confidence in capitalism. We do, but any doctrine that preaches violent overthrow, as communism does, cannot be handled by a "wait and see" method. America gets bashed for its involvement in El Salvador and other Central American countries. Well, I know the region is no bastion of civil liberties, Miranda warnings, and fair trials, but when leftist opposition in El Salvador threatens death to local officials unless they resign, drastic measures must be taken. (This was recently reported in Time Magazine. Most have resigned, and most of those who haven't are dead.)

I'm not saying that U.S. foreign policy is perfect, but realize that for every peasant terrorized by the right, another gets the same treatment from the left. Central America poses many challenges, and the proper course of action is not nearly as simple as Sean Ellington suggests.

Gong Show assists needy children

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the St. Hedwig Outreach Center and the class of 1990, we would like to cordially invite the Notre DameSaint Mary's community to attend the third annual Gong Show, Friday Feb. 10, 1989 at 7:30 p.m. in Washington Hall.

The money raised from ticket sales, ads, and donations will directly benefit the St. Hedwig Outreach Center. The Center provides a place for lesser privileged children to go after school to receive tutoring, guidance, and friendship. The Notre DameSaint Mary's students who participate in this program find it as rewarding as the children.

As representatives for the class of 1990 we would strongly encourage the Notre DameSaint Mary's community to donate two hours of their time to gain two smiles in return.

Sacred Heart lacks open attitude

Dear Editor:

We are concerned with the lack of openness exhibited in the main church of Sacred Heart during weekend Masses. At the start of Mass, the congregation is generally instructed to stand during the consecration; the reason offered is to allow everyone to see the altar. In the instructions at the beginning of the Roman Missal, which all priests use to celebrate Mass, a clear preference is given to the kneeling position during the consecration. In accordance with the Missal and in accordance with the longstanding tradition in the United States and in many parts of the world, we wish to worship God in a kneeling position during the consecration. We do not understand why the liturgist prohibits us from doing what the Catholic Church obviously allows us to do.

The consecration is the most sublime part of the Mass. During the consecration, Jesus Christ becomes physically present on the altar. As the Most Reverend John Keating, Bishop of Arlington, Virginia, wrote on Dec. 4, 1988, in his letter on the reverence of the Eucharist, "No bodily posture so clearly expresses the soul's interior reverence before God as the act of kneeling. Reciprocally, the posture of kneeling reinforces and deepens the soul's attitude of reverence" (p. 8).

Everyone would agree that if people can clearly see the altar while standing that people can just as easily see the altar while kneeling. As such, in the name of openness, why are we prohibited from worshipping God in such a manner?

Counseling service aids grad students

Dear Editor:

As an officer of the Graduate Student Union, I would like to alert graduate students to the efforts of the University Counseling Center to respond to graduate student needs. The Center, in cooperation with the GSU, will be offering a Graduate Student Support Group this semester on Mondays, noon-1:15 in the Foster Room of LaFortune Student Center. This weekly confidential therapy group is designed for students to explore strategies for coping with stresses unique to graduate school (i.e. dissertations, comprehensive examinations, competition vs. collaboration, balancing personal and professional priorities, and other topics). The leaders for the group are Willis E. Bartlett, PhD., and Andy Strowig, M.A.

The group will be open to 12 participants. Those graduate students interested in joining the group must be willing to attend all sessions during the semester and must call the Counseling Center to schedule an interview before the first meeting on Monday, Feb. 20. If you have any questions about the group, please call the UCC.

Student finds column foolish

Dear Editor:

I have never been more disgusted by anything I've read in The Observer over the past four years than I was by Kelley Tuthill's article entitled, "Seeing Football Players in Person is a Thrill." From the headline, I thought--hoped--that the piece would be a joke. As it turns out, the entire article is so queer that it would be funny if it were not so appalling.

Gary Trudeau

I do not need to point out the basic flaw in such an inane commentary. Football players may not be worse, but most certainly they are not any better than any other person on this campus. Regardless, most players whom I've known possess quite enough self-confidence that they do not need to hear that meeting them is "sort of like meeting movie stars in Hollywood," or that the most stimulating thing Notre Dame girls have to tell their parents about their educational environment is that they met three football players at a Campus View party.

In fact, most females I know do not find such activity the least bit stimulating. If someone told me I made "his liver quiver," I would consider myself more repelled than "lucky." I have made many arguments trying to convince Notre Dame guys that Notre Dame girls are not so shallow and mindless as to be more impressed by a football player than by any nice, funny, semi-intelligent guy. I find her attitude far more offensive to both sexes than anyone's reading of Sports Illustrated's swimsuit edition.

By referring to herself as a "typical freshman geek," the author of such a contemptible commentary gravely insults the entire freshman class, especially the women. If a football player thinks she is "pretty ridiculous," he is being generous.

Female athletes want support

Dear Editor:

We, as members of the Notre Dame women's basketball team, are proud to represent Notre Dame tradition in athletics as well as academics. Notre Dame's first women's team was formed in the early seventies. We feel that this began a bright tradition of women's sports here.

As in other sports at Notre Dame, the student body is a part of this tradition. The students are known for their great support of sports teams throughout the long history of Notre Dame athletics. We have felt the support of the student body in many tough games in the past. They have inspired us and made us feel proud to be part of the Irish spirit. We would like to ask the student body for continued support as we finish our last series of home games of the season. Our remaining home schedule includes Evansville today at 7:30 p.m., St. Louis on Feb. 11, Loyola on March 2, and Butler on March 5. We would greatly appreciate the support of our fellow students to cheer us on to VICTORY!

Gong Show for a good cause

accent writer

If you missed out on the Keenan Revue, you still have an opportunity to see your fellow students perform (and some make fools of themselves) at the Gong Show this Friday night at 730 p.m. in Washington Hall for a mere $2. As in the past, students from all over campus will perform in this charity event put on to benefit the St. Hedwig's Outreach Program.

"It's the new gong that I'm most excited about," joked Raul Gonzales, the director of the 1989 Gong Show. The show will go "on the air" Friday in the spirit of the television show, complete with staged commercials between acts.

"The whole show is going to be more spontaneous than before," said Gonzales. This year, the wide variety of acts will continue as long as the audience and the judges will allow. Tom Doyle, student body president, psychology professor, Daniel Lapsley, and Tony Rice will wield the gong with which the 17 acts, including everything from singing to swallowing live gold fish, will have to contend.

Many talented students will be performing seriously for the Gong Show Award. For example, Jane Riccardi will be doing a stand-up comic routine, and Tim Flood will perform a serious dramatic piece. However, there are a few acts which we can expect to be gonged, like the gold fish torture and some of the tackier songs and lip synch routines. It is this blend of serious talent and enthusiastic farces that promises to make the Gong Show an entertaining and successful event.

With Andrew Gordon returning from last year and singing an original reggae song, and with several of the actors from the successful production of "Ten Little Indians" appearing in the show, advance ticket sales are way ahead of those of the previous two years. The students, however, are not the only ones who will benefit from Friday night's show because all the money collected will go to St. Hedwig's Outreach Program.

"The class of 1990 picked St. Hedwig's for their class service project three years ago," said Eric Straub, one of the producers of the show and the junior class service commissioner. "St. Hedwig's is a poor downtown South Bend parish, and the money we raise this weekend will go to the Outreach Center which provides the kids in the neighborhood with a safe place to study and play after school."

Along with CILA and Morrissey Hall, the class of 1990 goes to the Outreach Center to tutor the children and play with them six days a week. Beyond the academic help which enabled each St. Hedwig's child to pass his or her grade level last year, it is the personal attention that each needs most. "These kids often come from single parent homes," Straub said, "and Notre Dame students provide an important role model for them."

The money raised is also used to bring some of the St. Hedwig's children to Notre Dame for picnics, basketball games, and entertainment events like the Gong Show.

So when you go to the Gong Show on Friday, you can actually see the people your donation is helping. That alone should be reason enough to fill Washington Hall.

Poet Mueller and her outlooks on life

GERRY SCIMECA
accent writer

If poets were accorded as equal an amount of appreciation in our society as quarterbacks or even fuzzy hand-puppets, the proportional amount of celebrity Lisel Mueller would have accrued would guarantee her not only pestering paparazzi

Calvin and Hobbes

from "Entertainment Tonight," but also her own line of salad dressings.

Mueller, tonight's featured guest of the Sophomore Literary Festival, has won continuous praise and just about every poetry award short of the Sport's Illustrated medal for outstanding women's prose. Her passionate and personal themes have won her praise for her gifted ability to touch on the seemingly mundane, habitual motions of each passing day, and highlight them through the common denominators in life we all share.

After spending the first 15 years of her life in Germany, Mueller came to the United States and mastered her craft as a teacher and critic. In a short span of time she distinguished herself through her poetry as well as through her bilingual translation of "Selected Love Poems" by gets the autonomy of the self with a depth and nourishing insight into the human condition which leave poets like Rod McKuen resembling a plate full of ho-ho's. The gnawing awareness felt in life is microscoped in much of her work, the "existential hum" so to speak, yet her prose leads us to a conclusion of satisfaction in each separate moment regardless of its joy or pain. This attitude allows almost anything, from getting a good haircut to stubbing a toe, both suitable subjects for her poetry.

"In Praise of Surface" bonds the idea of love simultaneously to the emotional and the sensorial. When I touch you with hands or mouth, I bless your skin, the sweet wind through which you breathe, the only part I can possess.

A hopeless romantic, Mueller delicately sways from personal to objective outlooks on her life, as shown by the middle ground she straddles while assessing her powers of perpetuating romance in "The Biographer."

God knows I've used what surgical skills I have to open you up through minor incisions larger ones might not have healed, left you a cripple or a corpse, and I love you too much for that.

Mueller's last book of poetry, "The Need to Hold Still," won the American Book Award, and her still rising reputation promises a worthy conclusion to the outstanding line-up of poets the Festival has offered through the week.

Men's IH basketball teams battle for playoff positions

By BARB MORAN
Sports Writer

In men's interhall action last night, Morrissey Hall defeated Dillon with a close score of 59-50 to maintain their undefeated status. Morrissey, now 6-0, fell behind early in the game, but put their fast break to work to put themselves up 25-21 at halftime. The strong running game and man-to-man defense of Morrissey, along with foul trouble on the Dillon side, combined to put the final score in Morrissey's favor.

Morrissey coach Steve Corr is optimistic about his team's chances in the upcoming playoffs:

"We'll do alright, we have a strong running and shooting game," said Corr, "and we've been playing together for a couple of years."

Corr also cited the strong play of guards Kevin Keyes, Rod Culver and Kevin Kade, and forwards Derek Johnson and Tom Veltz, as vital to the team's success.

Morrissey will attempt to retain their undefeated status when they play their final game of the regular season against the powerful off-campus Invincibles tonight at 8.

In the Big Sky division, Keenan captured first place with a win over Cavanaugh last Saturday, leaving second place to the 4-1 Stanford team.

Keenan captain Steve McCarthy cites a combination of rebounding strength and hard practice as the reasons for his team's top position in the conference. Keenan will head into the playoffs with a strong 5-1 record, depending on the combined rebounding power of Gary Anderson and Joe Hippler and the tough play of point guard Tony Dill.

In Big Ten action, the first place slot is still up for grabs. Previously undefeated Fisher, the current leader in the division, suffered a tough loss to the Alumni Dogs 2 last Saturday, putting their conference title in jeopardy.

Fisher will play second place Pangborn (4-2) tonight for the Big Ten title. Pangborn will rely on the play of high scorer Martin Somerville to move them into first place.

Observer classifieds will be accepted from 9am-3pm M-F at the Observer offices, 314 LaFortune.

Sophomore forward Krissi Davis has been hitting the boards and collecting steals for the Notre Dame women's basketball team all season and will have to provide more of the same tonight at 7 in the JACC against MCC rival Evansville.

ND ready for MCC rematch

Davis' offensive, defensive consistency sparks the Irish

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

When you are 5-foot-9 and playing among the trees in the low post, it is easy to lose respect for those who say basketball is not a contact sport.

But sophomore forward Krissi Davis has not shied away from contact under the basket this season.

In fact, she has grabbed a team-high 114 rebounds thus far for the Notre Dame women's basketball team—35 more than her nearest teammate.

It is a familiar role for Davis, who played inside during high school and in her first season, when the Irish were undermanned after a rash of injuries depleted the low post.

But this year was supposed to be different. Senior co-captain Heidi Bunek and a talented crew of freshmen post players were supposed to clean up on the boards.

Once again though, injury and illness have taken their toll on the Irish, and the indefatigable Davis has been called on again to resume her duties in the paint.

"I know there will be a time when I will need to move out to the perimeter," said Davis. "But I've spent a lot of time in the low post and I'm used to it. I've gotten used to the idea that when you're shorter you've got to use your quickness and outsmart your opponents."

Intimidation among bigger players has yet to be a factor for Davis, who has led the team in rebounding on six separate occasions, including a season-high 12 against one of the strongest teams the Irish have faced this season, Old Dominion.

But Davis has been using her foot speed and court savvy to do more than just rebound.

She has purloined more passes than any other Irish player—snatching a team-high 52 steals—and has helped convert these pilfered passes into points, dishing out 34 assists.

And though she does not con-

sider herself a scorer, Davis is third in scoring, averaging 8.2 points per game.

She has been a consistently strong shooter from the field, with a .519 percentage, and has gone to the charity stripe more than any other player and come away with a .767 free-throw percentage.

"My goal for the season was to shoot 75 percent from the free-throw line and relax more with my shooting," said Davis. "But I never want to be a flashy player."

"I'm not a big offensive threat. I get much more satisfaction making a good pass or setting a hard pick and seeing my teammates score because I know that's what it takes to win."

Davis' team-oriented attitude is reflected in her scrappy play not only in game situations, but in daily workouts.

"She's a real hard worker," said Irish head coach Muffet McGraw. "She plays as hard in practice as she does in games, and with that kind of work ethic, she's going to keep getting better and better."

As a freshman, Davis learned to accept a role as a sub and came off the bench to spark the team with several sterling performances.

And the one-year adjustment period has given Davis just enough time to mature as a player and get used to the faster-paced college game before she moved into a starting role this season.

Davis has worked in the off-season and is now under the tutelage of graduate assistant Sandy Botham, who is sharing her knowledge of the low post game with Davis.

"Sandy has already helped me a lot," said Davis. "And if I can keep gaining experience like that, I'm hoping within the next few years we can get closer to our goal of getting to the NCAAs and actually winning it."

Davis and the team will have a chance to get one step closer tonight at 7:30 as they take on visiting Evansville in the JACC.

The Irish won comfortably, 75-65, earlier this season, and will be looking to keep their unblemished 7-0 Midwestern Collegiate Conference record perfect with another win.

"Evansville has improved a lot since our first meeting," said McGraw, "and they have a lot of small players who are good shooters."

"We'll have to go after them man-on-man and try to get a rebound advantage on them. It's always harder to win the second time around, but we want to keep winning games, especially in the conference."

The final chapter?

Day four: Notre Dame and St. Mary's students satisfied and happy that they went to student night at the mall.

Act Four: We find our stars in the library study room once again and they are busily conversing about the excitement they finally received a student night.

Bob:

"I can't believe the fun that we had last night. I'm so excited that I got the new Erasure c.d. and a new Morrissey poster for my room."

Jessica:

"I'm really happy with the new clothes that I bought with the discounts that the mall merchants gave us just by showing our student id's. I'm glad that I got a free punch on my frequent shopper card by showing the Transpo stamp on my hand maybe my card will be chosen in the new drawing for prizes."

Colleen: "I really enjoyed the movie that we saw. It was so hard to decide between 'Working Girl', 'Naked Gun' and 'Three Fugitives', but I'm satisfied that we saw 'Three Fugitives' because it was so good. Oh, and that popcorn that we got for free because we rode the bus tasted so good. There's nothing that can beat a good movie and popcorn, except, maybe my studies."

Bob: "Oh no, here we go again!"

And so ends the saga of student night at the mall. Why don't you take the advice of our stars and travel to the mall tonight for an event designed for you exclusively. Don't forget to purchase your movie tickets for the West Theater at the Student Activities Office and your hostess on the bus will provide you with all the information about special promotions when you board the Transpo bus. Come, experience student night at the mall. This is Transpo signing off and saying, seniors both recorded technical falls Tuesday.

The 134-pound Durso's 15-point lead (17-2) over Marc Mattingly forced a stoppage in play 4:35 into the match. Boyd, a 142-pounder who missed much of the early-season matches with an injury, defeated Dave Fleming 20-5 in a match that did go the distance.

"Pat showed a lot of heart in getting the technical fall," said McCann. "He's not fully in shape yet, and he went out and got a lot of points late."

Chris Geneser and Chuck Weaver each pinned their opponents, and neither of needed much time in accomplishing that task. Geneser's pin of Doug Fee, his eighth of the season, came 3:24 into the 177-pound division match.

In the heavyweight division, Weaver needed just 63 seconds to finish off fellow freshman Joe Colistra. A former Oklahoma wrestling king, Weaver has had problems adjusting to the collegiate game. He has come on lately, however, winning a major decision at Oklahoma before Tuesday's pin.

"He's starting to get confidence," said McCann. "He's young, and he won a big one down at Oklahoma. Against Indiana, we'll need him because that one might come down to his match."

Sophomore Mark Gerardi also looked impressive, taking a 21-6 technical fall over Mike Honkomp in the matchup of 158-pounders.

"I think (Notre Dame) has some real superstars," said Miami coach Chuck Angello, whose team fell to 6-5. "It's like fighting a tiger. Every time we would hold back, they took another bite out of us."

Other Notre Dame winners included 118-pound Andy Radenbaugh (7-4 over Nick Canitano), 150-pound Todd Layton (9-6 over Paul Marshall) and 167-pound Todd Tomazic (16-3 over Mike Romp). Radenbaugh and Layton both were suffering minor illnesses while wrestling.

In Miami's two wins, 126-pound Craig Petti defeated Notre Dame's Marcus Gowens 3-2 and 190-pound Hamilton Munnell won a 16-8 major decision over Notre Dame's Curt Engler.

"Miami has some scrapers," said McCann. "They don't have the best talent, but they're hard to wrestle. They're a little unorthodox, and they can make you look bad. They think they have a chance of winning the MAC (Mid-American Conference), and I think they've got a shot too."

Angello had high praise for the Notre Dame program after the match.

"I was at John Carroll before I got here, and Notre Dame was not a top-notch program," he said. "Fran McCann's done a super job. McCann, (assistant coach) Ricky Stewart and the wrestlers deserve credit."

Junior Andy Radenbaugh won a tough 7-4 victory in the 118-pound class to help the 13th-ranked Notre Dame wrestling team bring its record up to 8-2 with a 37-7 win over Miami of Ohio.

and six from beyond the 47-yard range. He also averaged 47 yards a punt during his senior campaign.

"I think players always want to go where they can win," Holtz said. "I think they understand the national attention and the recognition. But I would hope they selected Notre Dame for the proper reasons and not because we won the national championship. I hope they selected Notre Dame because of the educational opportunities available here and the type of people they'll be associated with."

"Too many futures are ascertained and too many observations are developed simply based on what happens on national signing date," Holtz said. "That's not realistic. I think this group we've brought in is intelligent, has good character, has pretty good speed and pretty good skills. But nobody is going to win all by themselves out of high school."

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Dillon, Off-Campus dominate IH hockey

By ARTHUR GOLLWITZER
Sports Writer

As the 1988-89 Interhall hockey season approaches playoff time, close races can be found at the top of both the Gold and Blue divisions.

In action Tuesday night, Off-Campus Crime defeated Dillon 5-4 in a very close game. Dillon jumped out to an early 3-1 lead on goals by Jim Kilway, John Ravoli, and Mark Zoia, assisted by captain Tim O'Laughlin.

The game turned around when the Crime switched to John Krotzer in goal. For the remainder of the game, Dillon scored only once more. Scoring for Off-Campus were captain John Kirk, Craig Caraful and Steve Bishop, who had the game-winner.

Thursday night Dillon goes up against undefeated Grace in a game with major playoff implications. With Off-Campus at 4-0, Grace at 4-0 and Dillon at 3-1, a win over Grace would keep playoff hopes alive.

A Grace victory would clinch playoff spots for Off-Campus and Grace.

Grace is coming off a 9-0 win over Keenan on Monday. Offensively, Dave Gullot and Joe Levan are major contributors for Grace.

"We have gotten great play from our goalie Gary Davis," said Grace captain Erik Galis.

In the Blue division, Stanford, Alumni and Cavanaugh are battling for two playoff berths. Stanford, having just beaten Fisher 7-0, is looking forward to next week's big matchup with Alumni.

"We've had a lot of good playing," said Stanford captain Desmond Curran, "and goalie Hardie Tankersley has had two shutouts."

Tom Treachy and Chuck Soutsos scored two goals each. Stanford has a 4-1 record, but that one loss was by a 3-2 score to Cavanaugh, which sports a 3-1 record.

Goaltender Andy Fena starred in Cavanaugh's win over Stanford, a close battle that was decided by Chris Sullivan's goal in the final minutes.

In a physical game Monday night, Cavanaugh blasted Pangborn 6-1 behind Sullivan's two goals and another strong performance by Fena.

"Our goaltending is strong, and we're rolling toward the playoffs," said Sullivan.

Undefeated Alumni could take a big step toward wrapping up the division with a win over Stanford.

"We have played real well, especially Dave Brock and defenseman Paul Arends," said Alumni captain Pat Hogan.

"Defense is the key to winning for us."

Jackson

only Ram in double figures, with 19 points. Jean Prioleau was next with 10.

As usual, Notre Dame out-rebounded its opponent (36-24), but one surprising stat for the Irish came at the free throw line. Notre Dame shot 85 percent (11-for-13) from the charity stripe, up considerably from its season average of 65 percent.

Although he did not score a point in the game, Singleton dished out 12 assists, picked up two steals and led a potent Irish running attack during their 46-point second half.

"We know we have to press to win because we have a lot of fine athletes on this team, and they set us into our transition game," said Phelps. "The bottom line with our team is press and run. We have to try to do it against the best teams in every conference to get us ready for the NCAAs."

The Irish next take the court Saturday afternoon at 3 against USC in the Joyce ACC.

Arizona will not take any chances with No.1 ranking

Associated Press

TUCSON, ARIZ.--On Feb. 1, 1988, the Arizona Wildcats were No. 1 and purring to the NCAA piper's then-hit tune, "Goin' to Kansas City."

This week, back in first place in The Associated Press rankings, the Wildcats are not exactly whistling "Oklahoma" let alone humming the more obscure song "Seattle."

What they had, for Thursday, was Oregon on the mind.

A year ago, atop The AP poll for four straight weeks and six of seven, the Wildcats visited Stanford for a Pacific-10 game and were bounced from No. 1. They did go on to Kansas City and the NCAA final Four, where they got bounced again-by Oklahoma.

But what goes around comes around--thanks to some recent developments.

The No. 1-ranked team Jan. 30 was Oklahoma. Arizona was fourth.

But last weekend, Oklahoma, No. 2 Illinois and third-place North Carolina all lost, and the Wildcats, 17-2 and 11-1 in the Pac-10, leapfrogged into first place.

Arizona is sure to still be there Sunday for its nationally televised game at Oklahoma, which fell to fifth in the latest shakeup.

But much lies ahead before what Coach Lute Olson and his players hope will be a repeat trip to the Final Four in Seattle.

First order of business is Oregon, 3-7 and seventh in the Pac-10, and 8-12 overall, in Eugene.

"We know what it's like to play on the road ranked No. 1 against teams that really shouldn't beat you," said All American Sean Elliott. "We know how they come at you and and we know the circumstances and the consequences involved."

"It's going to be a tough game. Our main goal right now is to win the league championship, and that's what we're striving for, and it's not a situation where you can get carried away worrying about the Oklahoma game. Really, the Oklahoma game isn't nearly as important as the Oregon game is."

Said Olson: "give us one of the two games, and I'll take Oregon any day of the week," said Olson. "It'll be our job make sure that we keep our guys focused on what needs to be done."

Olson said Oregon coach Don Monson has made some lineup changes that have improved the Ducks' recent performances, and that they will have "even more incentive" because of Arizona's ranking.

G-town 70, UCon. 58

HARTFORD, CONN.--Jaren Jackson scored eight of his 18 points during the first 7:52 of the second half as second-ranked Georgetown went on a 20-10 run and pulled away from Connecticut for a 70-58 Big East victory Thursday night.

Jackson made a 3-point shot and a three-point play and Alonzo Mourning and Anthony Allen each had five points during the spurt as the Hoyas built a 30-26 halftime lead to 50-36 with 12:08 remaining.

Georgetown, 18-2 overall and 8-1 in the conference, widened the lead to 65-43 before Connecticut scored 13 straight to close within 65-56 with 48 seconds left. The Hoyas were able to withstand the charge as Mark Tillmon and Charles Smith combined for five quick points.

Connecticut fell to 12-7, 3-6.

U of L 69, Cincy 66

CINCINNATI--Pervis Ellison scored 17 points, grabbed seven rebounds and scored the go-ahead basket as fourth-ranked Louisville came from behind to defeat Cincinnati 69-66 Wednesday night.

Ellison, who missed two games with a knee injury and didn't start in Monday night's loss to Florida State, helped the Cardinals battle back from deficits of nine points.

First he hit a short jump shot to tie the game 66-66 with 2:12 remaining. Then, after two Cincinnati turnovers, he dunked a pass from Tony Kimbro to put the Cardinals ahead 68-66 with 1:11 left.

Louisville, 17-4 overall and 6-1 in the Metro Conference, remained one-half behind first-place Florida State. Cincinnati is 10-9 and 1-5.

Louisville's Keith Williams (3) seen here driving past a Virginia Tech opponent, helped the Cardinals sneak past Cincinnati Wednesday, 69-66. Louisville's Pervis Ellison returned to the lineup after suffering a knee injury to help the Cardinals rally from nine point deficits.

Holtz, ND lure 25 prep stars in recruiting battle

By MARTY STRASEN
Sports Editor

The Notre Dame football team continued its winning streak Wednesday.

It was another banner recruiting year, as 17 Super-Prep All-Americans were among the 25 high school football stars who signed national letters of intent to play for the Irish in 1989.

"We worked at it probably as hard as we ever have," said Head Coach Lou Holtz, who guided Notre Dame to a 12-0 record and the 1988 national championship in his third year at the helm. "I think we had a good recruiting year, but you can't evaluate recruiting just based on one year. You have to evaluate it over a two-year period."

Quarterbacks and linebackers were Holtz's top priorities this year, and the Irish attracted plenty of talent at both positions.

Notre Dame got the country's top-ranked quarterback in Rick Mirer, a 6-3, 205-pound Goshen native who was named Midwest Offensive Player of the Year. Mirer led Goshen High School to the state championship by completing 259 of 420 passes for 3,973 yards and 30 touchdowns while rushing for 480 yards and 22 touchdowns.

Jake Kelchner, a 6-3, 200-pound quarterback from Berwick, Pa., also signed with the Irish. Kelchner also led his school to a state title and was SuperPrep's fourth-ranked signal-caller.

"I don't like to recruit five or six quarterbacks and then move them and change them," Holtz said. "So we try to recruit one a year. Because we didn't recruit any last year, we felt it was an absolute necessity to bring in two this year."

Six linebackers signed with Notre Dame, including All-Americans Randy Scianna of meter dash in 10.6 seconds.

"We didn't sign many linebackers last year, and since we lose Wes Pritchett, Frank Stams and Flash Gordon, that was another necessity," Holtz said. "I think we answered that."

Notre Dame also received a commitment from 6-4, 230-pound tight end Irv Smith of Pemberton, N.J., SuperPrep's top-ranked tight end. Smith was limited to 18 receptions in a wishbone offense, and was an All-State selection at defensive back.

"Notre Dame right now is probably the most feared school in college football," said Chicago-based scout Tom Lemming, who rates Notre Dame's recruiting class tops in the nation. "They turned down at least six All-Americans who were being recruited by every school in the country."

Another talent scout, Max Emfinger of Houston, rates Notre Dame's class second to Florida State's.

Two other Regional Players of the Year signed with the Irish. Todd Norman of Ocean View, Calif., was named Far West Player of the Year, while running back Dorsey Levens of Syracuse, N.Y., was the Northeast Offensive Player of the Year.

Levens rushed for 1,300 yards and scored 22 touchdowns, including seven in one game.

Wide receiver William Pollard, a cousin of former Pittsburgh Steeler Frank Pollard, has run the 100 meters in 10.4 seconds.

Notre Dame also signed a top kicker in Craig Hentrich of Alton, Ill. Hentrich made four field goals of 50 yards or longer

Irish sink Fordham in road trip, 77-58

By PETE SKIKO
Assistant Sports Editor

NEW YORK-- Jamere Jackson had 17 of his 23 points in the second half as the Notre Dame men's basketball team came away with a 77-58 win over Fordham at Madison Square Garden last night.

But it took a 13-3 run over the first four minutes of the second half for the Irish to put the fiery Rams away.

"We started out in a press as always," said Irish coach Digger Phelps, "so we could get easy transition baskets. Our team is very young and has a lot of heart. Fordham was very pesky tonight."

Notre Dame (13-4) dominated a sloppy, low-scoring first half and assumed its largest lead of the half (31-21) on a LaPhonso Ellis jam with 49 seconds remaining. But Fordham (10-11) scored the final five points, including a 3-point play by Doug Bantum as the buzzer sounded, to cut the lead to five points.

Jackson opened the half by scoring nine of his team's next 13 points to put the Irish in the comfort zone. The junior co-captain hit on all four of Notre Dame's three-point attempts for the game.

"We know our offense is there," said Jackson, "but when our defense does the job we know we're in great shape. Tim Singleton did a great job of driving and then kicking it out to Joe (Fredrick) and myself for a lot of open shots."

Fordham could come no closer than eight points during the last 16 minutes of the game, due largely to very poor shooting. The Rams shot 19-for-52 for the game (36 percent) including 1-for-6 from three-point range.

"Notre Dame's pressure bothered us all game long," said Ram coach Nick Macar-chuk. "It made us tentative and caused a lot of turnovers. They also did a great job on the boards."

In the second half, the trio of Jackson, Fredrick and Keith Robinson combined for 40 of Notre Dame's 46 points. Fredrick and Robinson finished with 19 points each. Ellis added 10 for the Irish.

ND wrestlers cruise past Redskins

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

In last night's wrestling meet at the Joyce ACC, Miami (Ohio) showed it had made great strides since its 40-3 loss to Notre Dame last season.

But the Irish let Miami know they had improved as well, routing the Redskins 37-7. Although Notre Dame won by a big margin, Irish coach Fran McCann wasn't exactly satisfied with his team's performance.

"We looked a little sluggish," said Irish coach Fran McCann, whose 13th-ranked squad topped its record to 8-2. "We had a big match with Oklahoma last week and Indiana next week. This one was stuck in between. But we came up tough. The kids who won, won big."

Notre Dame lost 19-16 to eighth-ranked Oklahoma last Friday, and the Irish host the Hoosiers this Friday.

Jerry Durso and Pat Boyd both had lost their first dual meet matches of the season against Oklahoma. The two

Take it from a native: Louisville can win it all

I never have been too successful predicting winners of the NCAA basketball tournament, but I feel confident enough to pick this year's championship team.

The parity in college basketball team makes any forecast difficult. But after much consideration, I have come to believe that the University of Louisville has a very good chance of winning the national title. Like the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA, Louisville could be the college team of the 1980s.

Under the superb coaching of Denny Crum, Louisville already has captured NCAA championships in 1980 and 1986.

If tradition means anything, Louisville is filled with it. The two previous times the Cardinals won the tournament there was strong senior leadership on the court. In 1980 it was Darrell Griffith. In 1986, Jeff Hall, Billy Thompson and Milt Wagner led the team. Pervis Ellison, the man who won the Final Four MVP award as a freshman in '86, is the one who will provide the necessary leadership this year.

When Ellison was injured against Ohio State two weeks ago, Louisville lost its lead and the game. Without Ellison's on the court, the Cardinals lacked their usual championship style.

Louisville incurred two other losses on last-second shots by Vanderbilt and Xavier. In Monday's loss to Florida State, the Cardinals were coming back when the buzzer sounded.

Getting back to tradition, Coach Crum has it instilled in him. Before coming to Louisville, he played and coached under John Wooden-- one of the winningest coaches in college basketball.

Tournament play is notoriously different than regular season play. Coach Crum has proven his ability to overcome tournament pressure and bring home the championship when the potential existed.

Usually, the team favored to win before the tournament does not because other uncontrollable factors are involved. For example, the luck of the draw, the coaches' tournament experience and quality of the opponents all play major roles.

Louisville has mastered the three-point shot, which had caused the Cards trouble when the rule was first initiated. Louisville also has some good freshmen, which will add to the team's depth.

NBC's Al McGuire predicted Louisville to win it all early in the year. His past coaching experience gives him obvious insight.

The fact that I have lived in Louisville since the age of seven gives me insight on the team's winning tradition. Louisville's fan support extends beyond the campus. The entire city gives it tremendous support.

The Louisville football team had its first winning seasons in years last fall. Following in the winning tradition, the basketball team should bring it all home this spring.
