AIDS victim White dying of internal bleeding, infection

INDIANAPOLIS--(AP) Ryan White, whose battle with AIDS brought him scorn in his hometown but support from across the world, was hospitalized with internal bleeding Monday and was not expected to live, authorities said.

Doctors said Monday afternoon that White, 18, probably would not survive the day, said Carrie Van Dyke, director of health promotion for the State Board of Health.

It was later disclosed, however, that White was on a life-support system, a ventilator, that could prolong his life.

White's chief physician, Dr. Martin Kleiman, declined to speculate on White's prognosis.

White put a youthful face on the AIDS plight. He increased public awareness of the deadly disease and helped reinforce the message that AIDS cannot be spread through casual contact. His struggle was the subject of numerous accounts, including a People magazine cover story and a television movie.

"He is presently in the intensive care unit and he is in critical condition," Kleiman told an afternoon news conference. "He is heavily sedated and we feel that he is experiencing no discomfort."

Van Dyke said his mother, Jeanne, and his sister, Andrea, were among the relatives at his bedside at Riley Hospital for

Pasin, Tombar cite class size as priority for '90-91 year

By BETSY PUNSALAN

Increasing campus awareness of Student Government's functions is a top priority of new Student Body President and Vice President, Rob Pasin and Fred Tombar.

"There is a general lack of understanding and awareness about what Student Government does," Pasin said.

"We want to try to break down the apathy [towards Student Government]," Tombar added, noting that students generally concern themselves with only a few major issues.

"We want to galvanize the student body--get the student body involved in Student Government."

The second of a two-part series.

Pasin and Tombar said they intend to increase awareness through a monthly Student Government newsletter and a regular column in The Observer. Pasin also said he wanted to promote the fact that the weekly Student Senate meetings are open to everyone for their input.

Co-residential housing is another topic Pasin and Tombar plan to address. "People want co-ed housing," Pasin stated, referring to a referendum taken last month that showed 81 percent of students are in favor of it.

"We will continue looking into that," Pasin said, noting the possibility of another Board of Trustees Report on the subject. "People said Notre Dame would never go co-ed, but it did. I don't think we'll see [co-residential housing] this year, but it's possible."

"But next year's freshmen may see it [during their time here]," Tombar said. "There's support for it."

Smaller class size is also a concern on their agenda, especially in the College of Arts and Letters, according to Tombar. The introduction of new buildings and faculty members by the administration is supposed to alleviate the problem of overcrowded classes within five years, Tombar said.

"We're looking into speeding that up if at all possible," Tombar said. He mentioned the possibility of night classes if the idea receives student support.

Protecting students' rights is another concern, according to Tombar.

Pasin is chairing a task force that is discussing and evaluating the Bill of Student/University Relations, a measure designed to secure students' rights. The task force's goal is to have the bill passed by Campus Life Council and Student Affairs Director, Father David Tyson. The bill would then become University policy.

"It's going to take a lot of work and we are ready and willing to do it," Pasin said.

The new president and vice president intend to continue improving campus intellectual life. In addition to continuing the Iceberg Debates and the World Awareness Week series, Pasin and Tombar plan to begin a corporate-sponsored lec-

Students testify in case against council that guaranteed scholarships for a fee

By JANICE O'LEARY

Three Notre Dame students, Director of Financial Aid Joe Russo, and Detective Sergeant Dennis Navarre of Notre Dame Security went to Washington, D.C. to testify in a case involving the usage of postal services.

Bill Blanford, a sophomore and Brenda Buck and Jim Marks, both seniors, testified on Wednesday, March 28, at an administrative hearing in the Postal Services building against the Academic Council on Financial Assistance (ACFA).

According to Russo, the Council is being accused of the "use of postal services for advertising services which were misleading/less than accurate."

The hearing is still not over, though, said Russo. It could last "several weeks unless there is a negotiation out of court." Russo was not asked to testify.

"The Academic Council on Financial Assistance is a scholarship search firm that sent letters to students around the country saying they would guarantee receipt of scholarships for a $60 fee," according to a March 9 article in a National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA) newsletter.

Although the council is based in San Diego, Calif., its original letterhead had a Washington, D.C. address. This letterhead has since been changed to the San Diego address, said Russo.

There was a Temporary Restraining Order on the mail being sent to the council, but a judge revoked that order in relation to mail being directed to the San Diego address, on March 8, according to the NASFAA newsletter. This revocation did not include responses being sent to the Washington, D.C. mailing address.

Notre Dame students received the letter from the ACFA mostly in December, 1989. Marks and Buck both sent the original $50 fee before the deadline stated on their letters, Dec. 30. Bill received a different version and was asked to pay $60. Buck received some information, but neither Marks nor Blanford received any mail after they sent in their money.

Buck received her package in February and said that it wasn't what she had expected.

Marks said the experience of testifying at the hearing was "quite unusual." He stated that it was interesting that the investigation was being pursued administratively rather than criminally.

The students were questioned by Lisa Martin, an attorney for the Office of General Counsel at the U.S. Postal Service from the prosecution and Marks said the questioning was "fairly laid back."

Marks said the cross-examination by the defense was "not too intense."

Buck, the last of the three to testify, however, said that the cross-examiner "came down hard" on her. "He was staring at me the whole time," she said. She was on the stand for 45 minutes.

She also said she was not nervous because she was there to tell the truth.

Both Buck and Marks said they would like their money back, but realize that is highly unlikely since the case is not a criminal one.

"The best I can hope for is to see them [the Academic Council on Financial Assistance] put out of business," said Buck.

Marks agreed and Blanford was unavailable for comment.

The students' trip was paid for by the U.S. Post Office since the students were witnesses for the Office, said Buck.

The art of writing a good term paper

Learn about the assignment on the first day of class. Promptly forget about it (except for an occasional vague sense of foreboding that something is hanging over your head.)

Paige Smoron

Asst. Accent Editor

Enjoy your semester. Once, on a whim, wander into the library and make friends with the "UNLOC" system. Discover that every book relevant to your topic is in a foreign language. Decide that that's enough for one day. Return to your dorm and whine to your friends that you were "doing research" all day. Accept their sympathy, and their beer.

Three months later, realize that the deadline is a frightening and very near reality. Panic. Stay after class to ask your professor if you can have another week, if you can change your topic, if the paper really has to be 15 pages, if it's too late to drop the class...? Cry to the librarian. Latch onto classmates who "participate" and seem to know what they're doing.

Accumulate an impressive looking pile of sources. Xerox everything.

Take a day to meditate in silent prayer in preparation for a lengthy sojourn in the Mac lab.

Camp out in line for a computer. Pass up the first terminal that opens up because it's too close to the fan—you don't want to get a chill. Finally agree to Terminal #25 because your horoscope said that the numbers 25, 4, and 11 will bring you romance this month.

Get settled in, and type in the title. Admire your work. Ask the person next to you if they think you should put it in bold. Take a survey around the lab. Take a break.

Write a few pages. Announce every time you pass over the little dotted line to a new page (e.g., "I can't believe I'm on page 2 already!"). Wonder if you could make the paper longer by changing the font. Experiment by changing the print to "Chicago."

Become euphoric when it actually makes your paper a half page longer. Decide to scientifically determine which style will make your paper the longest.

Back up the laserwriter by printing out a page of each. Ask all your neighbors to compare with you. Decide "Monaco" stretches it out the most, but "Geneva" is less obvious. Take a break.

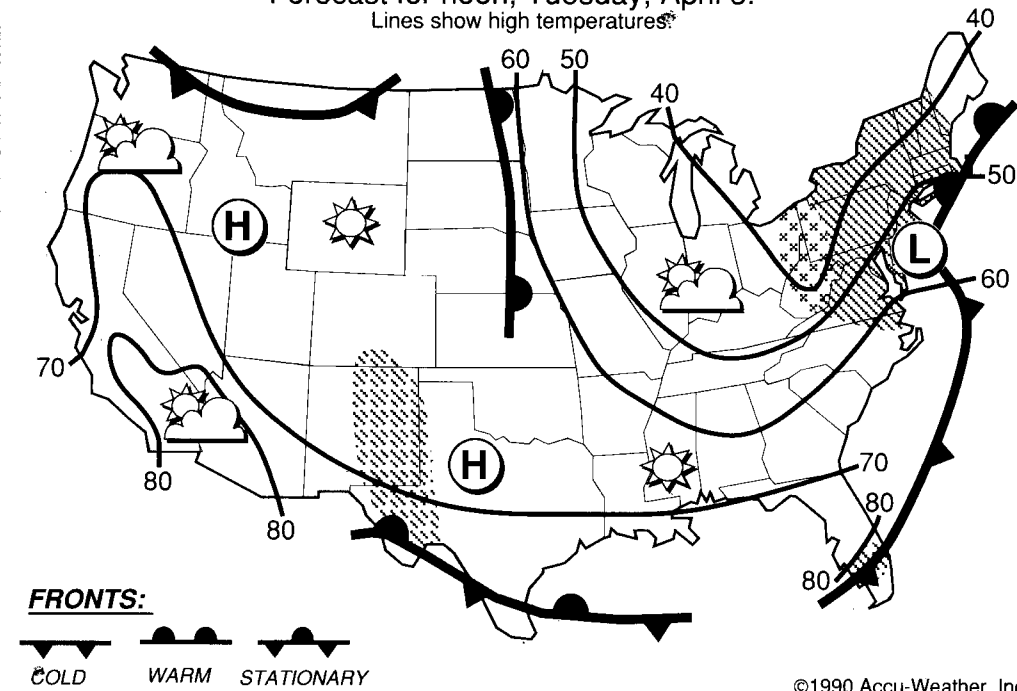

Be sure to work for at least 12 hours. Exclaim at intervals, "Gosh! I've been here since four!" Call your roommate at 5 a.m. to see if you got any phone messages.

Stumble to class bleary eyed, clutching your finished product in front of you. As you struggle against sleeping through the lecture, vaguely hear the professor saying something about a final exam in two weeks. Promptly forget about it.

Donald Trump put a zillion simoleons in play money on the line Monday, opening his $1 billion Taj Mahal Casino Resort in Atlantic City, N.J., for a dry run where the only real action fed the slot machines. Outside on the Boardwalk, the crowd gathered until security guards stepped aside at 10 a.m. and let visitors onto the 120,000 square-foot casino floor for the first time. "I'm amazed to see how many people are here at this time of the morning," Trump said, shaking employees' hands and autographing mock $10 bills.

Lava from Kilauea Volcano yesterday flowed toward a subdivision of 83 homes in the coastal town of Kalapana, Hawaii, and authorities ordered most of the residents to evacuate by nightfall. The slow-moving flow was half a mile from Kalapana Gardens Subdivision yesterday morning. A lava flow in 1986 destroyed dozens of homes in the same area. Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim ordered residents in 50 of the houses to evacuate and placed the town on alert, meaning residents in about 150 homes could be ordered to evacuate within 72 hours. Earlier, authorities evacuated four outlying homes as the flow crossed Kalapana Bypass Highway, which lies between the town and a lava vent.

Anthony Darden, the man accused of shooting a Notre Dame student last summer, pleaded guilty to the charge of criminal recklessness on March 23, according to a representative from the St. Joseph's County Clerk Office. Darden is scheduled to appear in court again on May 4, according to the County Clerk. Darden waived his right to be sentenced within thirty days.

The shooting took place on June 24, 1989 in front of Bridget McGuire's Filling Station, according to a Sept. 1989 statement by Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Security. According to Hurley, Michael Crounse, a Notre Dame junior, was shot three times. Hurley said, "This case is closed as far as we [Security] are concerned."

Media's role in business can be biased; professor names film, literature as culprits

By JESSICA ZIEMBROSKI
News Writer

Literature and films can present an unfavorable picture of the business world, according to Professor of Management John Houck.

Houck spoke Monday at a conference which brought together scholars from a variety of disciplines to consider recent trends in theology that are applicable to business ethics.

He discussed the ethical and religious values in business in relation to newspaper and film in his presentation, "A Virtuous Life in the Business Story."

In the lecture Houck spoke about the mediums of film and newspaper and their role in the business world. He also addressed specific cases of relating business interests to humane and religious thought.

Saying that "there are many biases against business and those involved in it," Houck said he feels some literature and films give business a bad image. He cited the film "The Graduate" and the book "What Makes Sammy Run" as two examples which show the lack of understanding about the business world.

Houck said he feels that business promotes "happiness, power, status, security, and money" but also "encourages competition to create pressure for better performance."

He said that it is the function of humans to serve one another and "know God's love and justice to serve and not be served," and that humans possess "the value and virtues to build corporations of the grandeur of early Rome."

Houck explained that he has his students read works of literature such as "To Kill A Mockingbird" and "A Man of All Seasons" to transmit traditional values within the realm of business. The center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business seeks to build bridges among business, business students, and the humanities according to Houck.

The conference continues today with speakers from DePaul University, the Georgia Supreme Court, and The University of Notre Dame and discussions following the lectures.

Houck and Father Oliver Williams, associate provost, are co-directors of the conference and of the Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business.

Sophomore John Merli prepared to Dart yesterday. A computer problem caused the Dart system to shut down briefly on March 21, but no major problems resulted and the system has worked since.

New feature of DART allows inquiry into dropping, adding

By PATRICK HEALY
News Writer

The Hewlett-Packard computer which runs DART "crashed" on March 21, the first day students were supposed to schedule, preventing use of the system for two hours, according to Lora Spaulding, associate registrar in the Office of Administration and Registrar.

The computers were down from 11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m., and students with appointments from noon until 2 p.m. had to bring their worksheets into the Registrar's office.

A new DART feature that has elicited positive feedback is the exchange feature, said Spaulding. This feature allows a student who already has a full courseload to inquire about another class using DART without losing a class they already have.

A student who is looking to drop a class for another puts the former on hold while the DART computer checks to see if the student meets the prerequisites for the new class.

If the student meets the requirements, and there is no time conflict with the student's existing schedule, the computer drops the first class and adds the new one.

The purpose of this feature is to prevent the student from losing the original class while inquiring about the new one.

Another new feature involves registration for Saint Mary's classes. Notre Dame students may register for religious and educational classes at Saint Mary's using DART, Spaulding said. Students must still use the yellow request form for other types of classes.

Spaulding said that no student was denied a class due to the computer problems. She also said that there have been no other significant problems with the DART system.

Compared to last semester, Spaulding said that the DART registration is proceeding "a lot smoother." She said a large measure of this is due to the fact that students are more familiar with the system in general and also better understand the prerequisite aspect of DART.

Gang rape trial delayed by evidence

NEW YORK (AP)—The trial of three teenagers accused in the gang rape and near-fatal beating of a Central Park jogger was postponed indefinitely Monday by an angry judge after prosecutors asked for time to analyze a semen stain.

"Obviously I'm very distressed by the fact that a year after the exhibit was in the possession of the Police Department, it has to be tested," state Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan told the prosecutors. "It's the eve of the trial and it's something that should have been done a long time ago."

Jury selection was to begin April 16 for three of the six teenagers accused in the April 19, 1989, gang rape and beating of the jogger. Prosecutors said it would take six to 10 weeks for the FBI to complete DNA testing on the stain, found on the victim's sock.

Galligan ordered the lawyers to return May 21 for an update.

Law enforcement sources speaking on condition of anonymity said the stain was discovered Wednesday when an independent expert examined all the clothing.

The police lab apparently missed it because it was inside the jogger's white cotton sock, which was wet when found, the sources said. The independent expert found the stain because it had discolored with age, they said.

Conoco offers to relocate 400 in tainted water lawsuit

PONCA CITY, OKLA. (AP)—Conoco Inc. said Monday it has proposed a $23 million settlement that would involve buying nearly 400 houses in Ponca City, Okla., where residents say the groundwater was tainted with hydrocarbons.

Conoco lawyer Mark Zehler said he believed the agreement is one of the largest relocation settlements ever in the country.

"Conoco agreed to the settlement because it is the right thing to do — for these residents, for Ponca City and for Conoco," said the oil refinery's manager, Dennis Parker.

Two comparable cases involved government money: the evacuation of homes built atop tons of chemical waste at Love Canal in Niagara Falls, N.Y., and the virtual abandonment of Times Beach, Mo., which was tainted by dioxin. The Love Canal buyout involved about $19 million to purchase 232 homes. In Times Beach, about $33 million was spent to buy 393 properties.

The Conoco proposal, which must be approved by a federal judge in Oklahoma City, calls for the company to buy almost 400 houses and residential lots and to establish a $5 million settlement fund. Conoco said the property acquisition could cost $18 million.

Anthony Roisman, a lawyer for the residents, says anyone involved in the lawsuit will be entitled to share in the fund. Conoco does not have the number of plaintiffs involved in the class-action suit, said Lynn Hohensee, a company spokesman.

Conoco said the settlement would resolve the lawsuit without either party admitting liability or responsibility for any claims, injuries or damages.

Homeowners in the Circle Drive residential area in southwest Ponca City had complained since 1987 that groundwater laced with hydrocarbons seeped into their basements and threatened their health. Some residents camped out at the state Capitol in Oklahoma City for weeks in 1988 to get the state to buy their houses.

"To Conoco and du Pont we say 'thank you' in coming forth with this settlement," said resident Anna Sue Rafferty. "I'd just like to say none of us is happy to be leaving our home. No one intended to get rich."

Conoco is a subsidiary of du Pont Inc.

Conoco had noted that other oil refinery operations have been based in the area over the years.

"There has been steady progress on the technical aspects of a groundwater remediation effort," Parker said. "There has not been corresponding resolution of the many difficulties experienced by the people, and those considerations also deserve our attention."

If approved, the settlement would allow owners and renters of property within a certain area of the northern Oklahoma city to receive financial payments and relocate. Residents of a larger area of the neighborhood could receive payments because of their proximity to the groundwater problems and the activities needed to fix it.

Fuel spill in Allegheny River could cut Pittsburgh's water

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Pittsburgh braced for a long-term water crisis Monday as a slow-moving fuel spill snaked down the Allegheny River, threatening supplies to as many as 1 million people.

"I think it's very possible the worst of this is yet to come," said the city's public safety director, Glenn Cannon. "There's no end to it."

A hospital served meals on paper plates, supermarkets sold out of bottled water, schools closed and a steel plant trucked in water to flush its toilets.

A landslide late Friday severed an underground 10-inch-wide pipeline near Freeport, 35 miles north of Pittsburgh. The pipe spilled between 75,000 and 300,000 gallons of gasoline, diesel fuel and kerosene into the river.

Like tumbling dominoes, water companies along the Allegheny were forced to close the intakes of their water treatment plants one by one as the 20-mile-long spill oozed toward Pittsburgh, reaching the city early Monday evening. Some were able to reopen Monday as the spill became more diluted and the water could be treated with filters.

The Pittsburgh Water Department, which serves 450,000 people, still was drawing water from the river and boosting its reservoirs Monday afternoon but was preparing to close its intakes at any moment.

If the spill "should move suddenly, we'll have to shut the plant," said Mayor Sophie Masloff.

Pittsburgh gets only part of its water from the Allegheny, and had enough reserves to last three to five days, said Cannon.

"The long-term impact could be devastating," he said.

Up to 20,000 residents served by the Harrison Township Water Authority have been without water since Saturday and depended on National Guard portable water tanks set up to provide drinking and cooking water.

Orders to conserve water were issued to at least 400,000 other people served by various other water authorities north-east of Pittsburgh.

At least nine school districts closed Monday, idling more than 21,000 students, and many businesses were affected by the spill.

Matheney trial opens with 9 males, 3 females on jury

CROWN POINT, IN (AP)— A jury of nine men and three women was chosen and sworn in Monday to hear the death penalty murder charge against Alan Matheney, accused in the slaying of his wife while he was on a prison furlough.

The jury and two alternate jurors were instructed to appear Tuesday in South Bend, where the trial will be conducted in a St. Joseph County courtroom.

Opening statements were slated for the morning session, with testimony from the first witness to follow.

Matheney, 39, of Granger, will offer an defense of insanity to the murder charge that could result in the death penalty if he is convicted.

Defense attorney Scott King questioned prospective jurors to eliminate those strongly opposed to an insanity defense.

"I need straight answers from you about your views of the defense of insanity," King told 52 prospective jurors early in the day.

Pow wow showcases native dance talents

By PATRICK HEALY
News Writer

The second annual University of Notre Dame Pow Wow, highlighting inter-tribal dancing, was held Sunday at the JACC by the Native American Students at Notre Dame (NASAND).

According to NASAND president Elizabeth Bird, the Pow Wow is a gathering of different tribes which demonstrates their traditional dances and songs. Twelve tribes participated, among them the Potawatomi, Navajo, Chippewa, and several Sioux tribes, all of which are from the Indiana/Michigan area.

The Pow Wow's two performances featured a Grand Entry and inter-tribal dancing.

Bird said that the Grand Entry's purpose is "to let everyone see the different tribes and dancers." The Indian feather staff and the American flag enter the arena first, according to custom, followed by the male and female dancers.

The Grand Entry formed seven traditional circles, including a drum, the singers, the dance area, spectators, the Great Spirit, and another circle of dancers.

The Grand Entry was followed by the Flag Song, which is considered the Indian national anthem. Inter-tribal dancing followed, with the tribe dancing in a large circular movement, around drummers and singers in the center.

A Give Away ceremony was held during the evening performance. Traditionally, this ceremony allows family, relatives, or friends to honor a person of whom they are proud for being chosen as Head Staff by giving away gifts on their behalf. However, at Sunday's Pow Wow, the committee honored the participants and the people who helped coordinate the event.

The event was sponsored by the NASAND, and other groups including Student Government, the NAACP, the Office of Minority Affairs, and the Multicultural Executive Council.

HOMELESSNESS? GET RID OF THE WALLS!

They arrived on Christmas, having come up from the South to the Northern Indiana chill in a car that could barely run. It took more oil than it took gas to make the trip. It took more courage than either, and almost more than either had.

Mike was 19; Sue was twenty. They weren't, frankly, well educated, nor did they understand much more about life than they did about each other. Two little kids - hers, but not his - accompanied them. One was 3. The other was a baby. A third was on the way.

"It's too contrived," one might think, looking at this scene. Christmas, cold, traveling and looking for a place to settle, at least until she had the baby. Too Christmassy, one might think. But it wasn't that way at all.

They had a place to stay and they had money. They could stay in the car. Mary and Joseph couldn't say that much about their mode of transportation! Besides, this was her third kid, not her first and everyone would accept who the father was.

Then the car broke down. When they looked in the back seat to get the money out to find out how much they could afford in repairs, the whole world collapsed about them. The suitcase with the money was gone. Did they forget to pack it? Was it stolen at a rest stop? Did they leave it on the roof of the car. It was his fault. No it was hers. The kids were too young to blame. It must be theirs.

But, bottom line, no money. No car. No home.

In South Bend, they learned about the Center for the Homeless, and became the first family to move in there. They had a small room for the 4 and 8/9ths of them, and were really quite happy. In early January, Sue gave birth to the new baby in a local hospital. A few days later Mike informed the director: "We're bringing the baby home today."

"Home," thought the director. "That doesn't sound right. This is a nice place; we've treated them well and like them a lot. But this should never have to be the only home for a new baby."

Yet it was. And until very serious problems in their lives could be worked out, it would remain home. Some of those problems could be said - by a removed outsider - to be of their own making. Others could not.

Yes, they were somewhat immature. They lacked educations. They didn't know how to take responsibility for the care of money, nor of themselves, nor their children, for that matter. And they were "victims" of economic hard times, too. Unemployment was a serious issue. Housing starts - especially low income housing starts - were reduced drastically during the past eight years. The rich had gotten richer and the poor even poorer.

Lots of causes. Lots of reasons. Few solutions.

Oh, many solutions do exist. In theory. But if more existed in practice, there would be fewer persons who were homeless - fewer persons without "sufficient food, clothing, shelter and those other resources that allow us to live in some modicum of dignity."

Those are the words of Mitch Snyder, one of the nation's leading advocates for the homeless. So are these: "I'm sure you've heard about the root causes of homelessness being unemployment, an inadequate minimum wage, deinstitutionalization and a massive cut in housing programs. But the truth is that those are not the real causes."

"Homelessness, and all the other evidence of violence and injustice in our society, is the consequence of our efforts to build a liveable community on a foundation of greed and individualism."

"If that is to change, there are some things that each of us must do. The first is to acknowledge that there is in fact a just and loving God. That leads to the understanding that all human beings are equal members of one family."

"We have to break down the walls that separate us from each other and from the truth. We have to act as though the homeless people out there are our sisters and brothers, our mothers and fathers, and our children. Because, in truth, they are. And in denying that relationship, we deny ourselves as human beings."

If you have an interest this lent in not denying but fulfilling yourself as a human being, you might want to consider breaking down the walls that separate you from the homeless. You can arrange to visit the Center for the Homeless, at 813 S. Michigan (282-8700). You can drop in to the CSC or the Campus Ministry Office to make a contribution for the Center, or put something in your hall collection. But do something. Break down the walls!

Bishops' proposal condemns sexism and urges role reforms in teaching, ministry

NEW YORK (AP)— A proposed U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' declaration says women have been slighted by "sexist patterns," and urges more equitable roles in "leadership, ministry, teaching and policy-making."

But the revised draft distributed to bishops on Monday reiterates the church's stand against admitting women to the priesthood, and instead calls for more dialogue.

Many women regard the ban as excluding them from church "governance and authoritative teaching," the draft said, but it defended the practice as that of Jesus and his apostles.

It "is not arbitrary, nor is it rooted in a view that women are inferior as persons," the draft said. "We pray that disagreement will not cause anyone to take leave of the church."

On a related matter, the draft urges the Vatican to speed up study of admitting women to the diaconate, historically a preliminary step to the priesthood for men, and to "the lay ministries" of lectors and readers of Scripture at worship services.

The Vatican should also examine further whether girls can be acolytes, or altar girls.

"The exclusion of women and girls from certain aspects of service at the altar ... seem to contradict our mandate that women be more visibly involved," the draft said.

"We encourage participation by women in all liturgical ministries that do not require ordination. Similarly we support the theological preparation of women to preach the gospel and to use their gifts as preachers in the church."

A bishops' committee, authorized by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, has been working on the proposed pastoral letter on women for about five years.

The 99-page second draft, 65 pages shorter than a 1988 draft, was sent to the church's approximately 350 bishops asking for their responses. The bishops hold their annual meeting in November.

The draft says numerous church practices have "depersonalized and depreciated women" and left them "objects of suspicion, condemnation, condescension or simply ignored."

"We intend, therefore, to ensure that women are empowered to assume positions of authority and leadership in church life in a wide range of situations and ministries," it said.

Prison riots spread, English inmates attempt 2nd break

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Inmates at Long Lartin Prison attempted a mass breakout Monday night and about 30 convicts barricaded themselves on a prison landing after guards foiled the escape bid, the Home Office reported.

At a second prison in central England, Strangeways Prison at Manchester, nearly 100 inmates ran loose Monday but guards regained control of much of the riot-damaged facility and officials were in contact with the remaining inmates still inside, authorities said.

The Home Office, which is responsible for prisons, said in a statement that guards at low-security Long Lartin grabbed a group of prisoners as they tried to scale the 15-foot wire mesh perimeter fence. The guards led them back into the building without violence, it said.

The statement did not say how many inmates tried to break out, but said other inmates immediately began demonstrating, forcing guards to retreat.

The Home Office said about 30 prisoners barricaded themselves on one of the landings of a prison wing and kept guards at bay early Tuesday.

At Strangeways, prisoners hung up a flag saying "No Dead," but the government said deaths could not be ruled out in one of Britain's worst prison riots.

Authorities said 37 inmates and 12 prison guards had been injured since riots began Sunday at Strangeways, one of the most crowded jails in Britain. News media reported unconfirmed accounts of up to 12 deaths.

Prison staff regained control of four cell blocks and the kitchen Monday after scores of inmates surrendered. Rioters still held five blocks, said the Home Office.

The Home Office said 99 prisoners were still loose, but Ivor Serle, chairman of the Strangeways Prison Officers' Association, put the number at 80 to 90 after more men surrendered in the evening.

Serle said he was in three wings of the prison and saw no bodies.

About a dozen masked inmates remained on the steep roofs in the night cold, waving and shouting.

"I think it will go on until tomorrow. ... They've got plenty of food, plenty of drugs and plenty of fresh air," Serle said, referring to looting of hospital storerooms.

Home Secretary David Waddington said some surrendering prisoners claimed a number of inmates were dead, but no bodies were found.

"But the possibility that fatalities have occurred cannot be ruled out," he added.

He said nine surrendering prisoners claimed to have been forcibly injected with drugs by other inmates.

Court denies execution in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday refused to allow California to carry out its first execution in 23 years, letting stand an order blocking Robert Alton Harris' trip to the state gas chamber.

Harris, 37, who in 1978 kidnapped and murdered two San Diego teenagers to use their car in a $3,000 bank robbery, had been scheduled to die in the gas chamber at 3 a.m. PDT Tuesday.

However, a federal appeals court judge imposed the stay Friday, and the nation's highest court voted 6-3 Monday to reject an emergency request from prosecutors who wanted to execute Harris on schedule.

Because of the Supreme Court's action, one of California's most notorious criminal cases could drag on for months.

"There is no legal or moral reason why the execution... should not proceed as scheduled," state Attorney General John Van de Kamp said in papers filed with the court. "There has never been a question Robert Alton Harris killed the two helpless victims in cold blood."

The request went to Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who referred it to the full court. Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy voted to set aside the stay of execution and let Harris die. Voting in the majority were Justices O'Connor, Thurgood Marshall, William Brennan, John Paul Stevens, Byron White and Harry Blackmun.

In Los Angeles, a group of six first and second cousins of victim John Mayesky held a news conference to protest the delay in Harris' execution.

"We feel that this action, initiated on Harris' behalf, is merely a sham, a stall tactic," Kenneth Condon, of Apple Valley, a first cousin who spoke for the group, said before the Supreme Court's decision.

ture series. This would bring big-name speakers like politicians, entertainers, and environmentalists to campus, they said.

Top speakers charge anywhere from $5,000 to $25,000 per engagement, according to Pasin. Campus organizations generally cannot afford to bring these kinds of speakers here. Student Government hopes to get a corporate grant to fund such a lecture series.

Pasin said he hopes to bring top female speakers to campus through the corporate-sponsored lectures since Notre Dame has dedicated next year as the Year of the Woman.

"The best way to promote awareness of significant [women's] issues today...is to bring in experts on the subjects."

Pasin and Tombar also intend to improve student relations with the administration. "Fred and I both strongly feel that the administration listens to us," Pasin said. But, he added, "We're powerless unless the students unite on certain issues. Everybody's in this together."

The new student leaders' first step will be a survey mailed to students this week asking general questions on student opinion. They urge students to take the time to complete and return these surveys so that they will be best able to serve student needs.

Children. Jeanne and Ryan White's father, Wayne, are divorced.

White's hemophilia, the disorder that initially exposed him to the deadly AIDS virus, prevented doctors from operating, said Van Dyke. She said she was told about White's condition by his mother at lunchtime. "This is it. He's not expected to come out of it," Van Dyke said. "He's not responding."

Van Dyke voiced a small hope White would recover, saying, "He's surprised us before."

Kleiman, White's physician since he was diagnosed as having AIDS in 1984, said White was admitted to the hospital Thursday suffering from a respiratory infection, which occurred as a complication of AIDS.

Kleiman said White's family had asked that no additional details of his condition be released.

White's battle with acquired immune deficiency syndrome sent him to Washington to testify before Congress and to California for star-studded fund-raisers. He had gained the support and close friendship of entertainers such as Michael Jackson and Elton John.

Last week, he appeared with former President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, at a pre-Oscar party in Los Angeles for sick and disadvantaged youths sponsored by Athletes and Entertainers for Kids. The organization has established the Ryan White National Education Program for Youth, an AIDS education forum.

News of White's condition Monday prompted a statement of concern from the Reagans. "We are praying for him and his family as we are praying for all people with AIDS and their families," the statement said.

Elton John also called White's family to express concern, Van Dyke said.

White's mingling with celebrities and entertainers was a cruel contrast to the days when AIDS hysteria made it impossible for him to mix even with his classmates. When White's case first made headlines, misinformation combined with a lack of knowledge of the incurable disease made White a pariah.

A protester faces police in riot gear in central London, Saturday after a protest march against a new tax called the Commur would be levied on each adult citizen to help finance local government. Protesters and police accuse each other of starting

Police hunt suspects in London anti-tax riot

LONDON (AP) — Authorities on Monday mobilized 100 policemen to track down suspects in a weekend anti-tax rally that erupted into a riot and one of the worst outbreaks of violence in modern-day London.

The courts took a hard line with some of the 339 people already arrested. At least 12 taken into custody during Saturday's six-hour melee at Trafalgar Square were refused bail at five London courts.

Most of the 68 people in court Monday were in their teens or 20s and gave addresses in London "squats" — illegal residences in abandoned houses or apartments. The charges ranged from arson to criminal damage and theft to threatening behavior.

Scotland Yard police headquarters said the riot over the imposition of a new tax by the Thatcher government on every adult caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage and injured 374 of the 2,198 police officers involved. Police said 86 civilians were injured.

Charges of blame for the violence meanwhile flew back and forth. Authorities accused anarchists, who in turn blamed police. The government partly blamed the opposition Labor Party, and a Labor member accused the government of playing politics.

Home Secretary David Waddington said 100 policemen were taking part in a large-scale search for suspects headed by chief Det. Roy Ramm.

The detective appealed to the news media and public to provide film and photographs of the riot to help police identify troublemakers.

Magistrates set bail for some suspects charged with public order offenses. However, as a condition of bail, some were forbidden to attend any more anti-tax demonstrations, while others were barred from coming within one mile of Trafalgar Square.

The violence broke out after a peaceful demonstration by about 40,000 people. Police were attacked, automobiles burned and overturned, shop windows smashed and shops looted.

Alternatives to toxic waste exist

By DAN O'GRADY
News Writer

The simple response to toxic wastes is that there are alternatives in order to avoid cancer. Other methods of energy, farming, and production that do not damage the fragile cycle of life are possible, according to Karl Grossman, an environmental journalist, at his lecture titled "Conspiracy Against America: Toxic Waste."

Solar power could be substituted for nuclear power, said Grossman. Dangerous pesticides could be omitted without great loss of productivity in agriculture. And, selective shopping could be employed to buy products without dangerous additives and preservatives, he said.

Grossman believes that corporations have influenced the government to allow greater cancer-causing agents to be released into the environment for the sake of corporate profits. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which was created to protect citizens, has lowered its standards for permissible hazards.

Also, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) now inspects only one percent of the food and vegetables that are imported into the US, according to Grossman. He claims that much of this food is contaminated with the cancerous pesticide DDT, which is outlawed in America, but is sold to foreign countries by the U.S. chemical corporation, Monsanto.

Grossman acquired much of his information through the Freedom of Information Act which allows citizens to receive government information as if it were public knowledge. All that is required to obtain such information, according to Grossman, is sending a letter asking about a specific government activity to the government office involved in this activity.

The greatest hurdle is the time factor, he said. Often, questions take years to be answered because of the complex bureaucracy of the U.S. government.

Cash concern clouds true intent of research

Dear Editor:

With last year's cold fusion hype finally coming to its proper demise, along with the associated hyperbole that has left a bad taste, one has to wonder what has led to this downward spiral of morality and ethical standards of U.S. scientists. Anyone remotely following the undertakings at this central U.S. university must have sensed the inconsistencies at the stealth approach that was tendered to Congress, almost luring a whopping $25 million out their (our) pockets. Has Hollywood achieved the ultimate by corrupting the sanctity of scientific research? For many, pecunia non olet.

Apparently, constantly having to raise money to support one's research, its alleged quantitative evaluation the sheer number of publications, coupled with a media hungry for breakthroughs has played an ominous role. A stroll through the journals of recent publications elevates one's awareness to the enormous increase in the volume of literature being spewed out, much as a direct result of the pressure-cooker situation of contemporary science.

There is an ever-growing urgency to do something, however insignificant, and publish it. In too many cases, single-mindedness for personal gain seems to override the very essence of what we set out to accomplish in the first place--to advance the functional knowledge base of mankind.

However unfortunate, it is a very real and lamentable reflection that research for the majority is predicated upon economic caveats, has been, and probably always will be.

Brothers discuss injustice in Chicago housing projects

Dear Editor:

Recently, two brothers from the Saint Malacky Parish in Chicago came to speak, along with five young men from the Cabrini-Green Housing Projects. They will return to campus on April 4 at 8 p.m. in the basement of Flanner Hall. I would strongly recommend anyone interested to attend this enlightening lecture.

These brothers enter the housing projects and befriend warring gang factions and residents. Their presence provides comfort and a spirit of non-violence amidst the gunfire. They have a fascinating story to tell.

The young men relate their struggle for life in a community so conducive to death. For most of us, it can be painful to hear how the other half lives, but I believe it is also our responsibility to be aware of injustice and pain. Please attend; you will come away with much more than you had.

Group promotes radical policies

Julie Scharfenberg
Ideas and Issues

"I'm proud to be facing harassment by the FBI. I was arrested because I've been effective at bringing attention to the crisis on this planet."

These are the words of Dave Foreman, the free-spirited founder of the unconventional environmental group, Earth First. Foreman will speak on campus Wednesday, April 4. He has been charged with conspiring to destroy government property and helping to fund operations of three people who tried to cut power lines of an Arizona power plant. The FBI alleges that the group ultimately planned to cut lines to several nuclear power plants as an environmental protest.

While many call Foreman a member of the "violent fringe," he believes radical action is the only way to truly save the environment because traditional environmentalists have either sold out or been duped by the industry-sponsored establishment. Mainstream environmental groups have concentrated on gaining legislative support for environmental goals, such as clean air and waste. Unfortunately, political action is painfully slow, as the watered-down bills eventually passed by Congress are poorly enforced. Regulatory agencies are heavily influenced by the financial power of chemical and energy industries, and the EPA relies primarily on voluntary compliance by firms to "control" pollution. Somehow, it is not surprising that leaky toxic waste dumps have proliferated, groundwater pollution has increased and chemical-related illnesses have risen.

Earth First has 15,000 members. Some of their activities include pouring sand in duel tanks of logging equipment, driving spikes into trees (which ruins lumber mill saws), tearing down power lines, sinking whaling ships and destroying oil exploration equipment. Recently, some of them blockaded the island of Hawaii to stall the establishment of a power plant.

Foreman and four other disillusioned environmentalists founded the group while saturating their mid-life crises with beer at a bar in a Mexican brothel. It was 1980, and Foreman was on leave from his Washington lobbying job. He was disgusted with his work and the willingness of the large conservation groups to play by Washington's rules. Without money, he and his friends used humor, passion and imagination to start their own group. Despite Foreman's many arrests (and the arrests of others in his group), Earth First has grown into a serious political movement. Some of its members are fanatical - advocating turning away illegal aliens at the border and arming them with machine guns, viewing AIDS as nature's way of solving overpopulation - but they also come up with workable proposals for sustainable development and wilderness restoration.

Is Foreman's approach to solving environmental problems effective? It definitely gets attention, though this attention is often expressed by flashing blue lights. While Foreman's exasperation with mainstream efforts to deal with problems is understandable, his methods are dangerous and disruptive. Lumberjacks can be seriously injured when they try to cut down spiked trees and the dangers of messing with power lines are obvious. Disruptive accidents also taint the public's perception of environmental groups. When environmental activists are perceived as radical, their credibility is harmed: the public tends to think they are overreacting and gives less credence to the issues at stake. The last thing the environmental cause needs is a poor image; the environment needs every ounce of support it can get.

So what's the story if neither traditional channels nor radical direct action can effectively solve the problem? No easy happy ending presently exists, but if ordinary citizens at the grass roots level get concerned enough about the way pollution harms the quality of life of each and every person, then maybe some real solutions will arise.

Homeless in South Bend: ND plays a crucial part in lessening the problem

accent writer

After six months of preparation, on December 18, 1988, the Center for the Homeless first opened its doors in South Bend. Previously, the United Religious Community operated an overnight shelter in South Bend. It was open from November to April and for specified hours of the evening. A greater need for a shelter became apparent, and Notre Dame, the United Religious Community and COPASH, an organization that aids the homeless, developed the Center for the Homeless.

The center provides more than just a roof and a meal for those who need it. It provides a medical health service, a legal clinic, job training and educational services. Father Steve Newton, C.S.C., a participant in the opening of the center said, "It's not an agency as much as an effort of the community."

Approximately 60% of the people who go to the shelter are men, 20% are single women and 20% are women with children. About one third are there because they are chronically mentally ill, another third are alcohol and/or drug dependent and the last third have fallen through the gaps of the economy. In fact, some homeless are working, but can not afford housing.

Each person who goes to the shelter is assigned a case manager who determines the level of aid each person needs. There is no time limit to the length of stay as long as the individual is making a positive effort towards progress. If, however, someone is not making an effort to deal with his or her situation, the limited amount of time one can spend at the center is 45 days. Nobody is turned away providing they do not violate the center rules. Inebriation, violence, disruption and illegal activities are not tolerated by the center.

Presently, the shelter is run at full capacity. This was a surprise, because it replaced something half of its size. About 90 people are accommodated per night. In South Bend alone, there is an estimated 1,000 homeless. Those who do not go to the shelter may be on the streets, in transitional housing, with other charitable organizations or staying with relatives.

Notre Dame has played and continues to play a large role in the running of the center. The school purchased and renovated the facility. Many of the students, staff and faculty provide voluntary hours on which the shelter heavily relies.

For the first year, Notre Dame Food Service provided all the food because there was no kitchen to prepare it in. Notre Dame now donates the unserved food from the dining halls through a program called Foodshare. Food is also provided by contributions from various volunteer groups. Collections from the Sunday masses at Notre Dame are also donated to the center. The shelter is run by a board of directors from Notre Dame, the United Religious Community and COPASH. The board establishes policies and general procedures of the center. The day to day operations are handled by the executive director, Dennis Duggan.

In the future, the center plans to expand by renovating the second floor. With more room, the center can offer more services. They will put in classrooms, a detoxication unit and more offices. The center is a crucial step in alleviating the plight of the homeless.

Keith Ramsey, a poet who uses his poetry to create awareness about various social problems, particularly homelessness.

accent writer

Keith Ramsey, a former diamond broker gave up his lucrative career so that he could pursue his real love--poetry. The twist is that his poems are socially conscious. Many of his poems are about the homeless and the despair they face.

Ramsey suffered a stroke and was told by the doctors that he would only have six weeks to live unless he had open-heart surgery. At the same time, he was going through a divorce and he realized how close to homeless he really was. "One domestic argument, one serious illness or one paycheck are just some of the ways people become homeless," said Ramsey. It is not always for a lack of resources that people find themselves without a home.

Ramsey has no regrets about leaving the jewelry industry. "I'm finding I'm worth more now than any ten carat diamond I sold," said Ramsey. He travels around the country reading his poetry. He performs at private clubs and small colleges. He just got back from a three and a half week tour of Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Kentucky. He covers his expenses by selling tapes of his poetry readings.

Ramsey has created a character called the "Homeless Lout," who observes the atrocities about which he writes. This character portrayed by Ramsey reads original poetry about the plight of the homeless. He wants to draw awareness to the problem. "Poetry brings the starkness of homelessness into verbal imagery, yet it also cushions at the same time because it is entertaining."

Many different groups of people make up the homeless, yet the public tends to stereotype them. As many as twenty-eight per cent of the homeless do, in fact, have jobs. People do not realize that there are approximately 600,000 children who are part of homeless families. Many of these people do not go to shelters because of the stigma associated with them.

Ramsey's personal love of poetry and his skill at poetry writing has enabled him to create awareness of the humaneness of the problem. "I put faces and feelings to people who are merely becoming statistics," said Ramsey. He realizes the tragedy, but also recognizes it is part of reality. The problem will not go away if it is ignored, and Ramsey's poetry forces the reader to face the tragedy.

Ramsey does not restrict himself to only one artistic medium. He has acted in a movie called, "The Sacred Symbol." It was sponsored by the Ormond Organization, a religious association, and it appeared in 40 countries. His talents extend to drawing as well as music writing.

Perhaps, the most distinctive aspect about Ramsey is his ability to incorporate several methods of art into his work. For instance, one of his poems, "Choctaw Lady" he has been made into a video. The poem is about a homeless man and woman who meet for the first

"Today"

I asked an older man

He sighed... and replied... "Not I"
I asked another man

He cried... "I don't want to be involved" time under a bridge and spend one day and one night together. The woman dies the next night. The tragedy of her having no kin is expressed, as well as the profound effect her death had on the man.

The way he reads his poetry brings it to life, because he acts it out. When he reads his poetry he often speaks with an accent that is appropriate to the piece he is reading.

The poetry of Keith Ramsey is not limited to topics about homeless people. Ramsey explained, "A poet's job is to catch the reflections of his time." His intent is to create images which express universal feelings. "I'm trying to get the listener to understand how the other person feels."

He has written a series of poems, "Lublianka," named after a Moscow prison. The poems were inspired by the execution in 1952 of twenty-two poets who were in prison. He has written a poem called "Songs My City Sang To Me" about his hometown, South Bend.

Another one of his poems is called "My Available Sea." It is his own study in madness. It is an odyssey of a symbolic sailor sailing through his available sea, life and his mental degeneration to insanity.

In the future, Ramsey hopes to break into the poetry reading circuit. This would give him a high degree of credibility, however, it may also take him away from writing. Ramsey's work is more than what is written on the page. Ramsey's poetry is Ramsey acting his words. He does not merely read his poetry, he performs it.

Major leagues announce 27-man roster for three weeks

Baseball's on-again, off-again 27-player limit was back on again Monday following agreement between the Player Relations Committee and Major League Players Association to temporarily expand rosters.

Teams can carry up to 27 players until April 30, giving managers a little more flexibility following the lockout-shortened spring training.

Paul Molitor won't be one of Milwaukee's 27. A broken right thumb, injured while sliding during an exhibition game Sunday, will sideline him for the first three or four weeks of the season. A year ago, Molitor suffered a dislocated finger in the final week of training camp and opened the season on the disabled list.

The Brewers also placed second baseman Jim Gantner, recovering from knee surgery, on the disabled list and will be without shortstop Gary Sheffield for up to a week because of a sprained ligament in his right wrist.

Atlanta manager Russ Nixon had to be pleased by the roster decision. He was perplexed about cutting the Braves below 25 players.

"As it stands, I'm planning on carrying 12 pitchers and five extra players into the season," Nixon said. "I need 12 pitchers. To take fewer than five extra men would be foolish. That means a 25-man roster."

Now Nixon can fill those quotas and add two other players—perhaps catchers John Russell and John Mizerock, who seemed to be on the roster bubble. On the day the regular season originally was scheduled to start, the clubs continued to shape rosters.

Kansas City and Detroit swapped pitchers, the Royals sending veteran Jerry Don Gleaton to the Tigers for minor leaguer Greg Everson. Then Kansas City cut two ex-New York Mets, pitcher Terry Leach and catcher Ed Hearn.

Reds 7-6 Red Sox 6-5

At Winter Haven, Fla., Kevin Lockhart's two-out pop fly single in the ninth inning scored Hal Morris and gave Cincinnati a split squad victory over Boston. The run was the first allowed in four appearances by reliever Jeff Reardon.

At Plant City, Fla., Cincinnati won the other split squad game as Chris Sabo and Eric Davis had three hits apiece. Tim Lincecum hit his second and third home runs of the spring for Boston.

Phillies 11, Pirates 9

Philadelphia built a 10-1 lead after seven innings and then held off a Pittsburgh rally. Darren Daulton, Ricky Jordan and David Hollins homered for the Phillies.

Expos 7, Mets 0

At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Howard Farmer, Bill Sampen and Steve Frey combined for a five-hitter. Marquis Grissom and Larry Walker had three hits apiece for the Expos.

Dodgers 2, Braves 1

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Juan Samuel singled and stole second, fueling a two-run eighth inning rally that moved Los Angeles past Atlanta. John Smoltz pitched five shutout innings and Ernie Whitt homered for Atlanta.

Tigers 10, Twins 2

At Orlando, Fla., Detroit used a 14-hit attack to wallop Minnesota. Jim Lindeman had three hits, two of them triples, mark with an off-balance 17-footer in the regional finals for a 71-70 win as time expired in the first overtime.

Big 10 coaches proved to be especially sore losers. Purdue coach Gene Keady blasted officials after losing a 73-72 second round decision to Texas close to home in the Hoosier Dome, while Michigan State's Jud Heathcote called for the institution of the use of the instant replay in officiating college games after getting burned by a Kenny Anderson buzzer-beater which really didn't beat the buzzer in a 81-80 overtime loss.

Most impressive of all, however, was the play of the UNLV Runnin' Rebels, who used tenacious defense, a fast-breaking attack and superstars named Larry Johnson and Stacey Augmon to battle through the field and win the championship.

The tournament truly was a credit to the much-maligned game of college basketball as it revived the ideal of the "old college try." Mum is the word for critics in the wake of this annual spring classic, and that's the way it should be.

The National Hockey League playoffs, which will begin Thursday, will feature a balanced field in which there is no clear favorite. With an even distribution of power among the league's leaders, any one of five teams has an excellent chance of winning the Stanley Cup.

Calgary and Boston have to be considered the favorites, but the Bruins will have to beat either Montreal or Buffalo in the second round just to get to the semis. The Flames, meanwhile, should run up against an Edmonton team which has finally recovered from the loss of Wayne Gretzky and rebuilt a powerhouse.

Although you can forget about teams from the Norris

Division and the Patrick Division, any one of the above squads could sip champagne out of the Cup in what will be the best display of professional sports not seen on network television.

You either love cheerleaders or you hate them. Chances are, however, that cheerleading enthusiasts will be appalled at tonight's CBS movie, The Laker Girls, which appears from the promotions to be nothing but a cheap sexploitation.

Belles softball sweeps Anderson, improves record to 5-1

By CHRIS BACON
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The Saint Mary's softball team extended its record to 5-1 in a two-game sweep of Anderson University on Saturday.

In the first game, the Belles trounced Anderson 9-2. Action began in the second inning as the Belles scored four runs. Junior Kim Benjamin picked up one RBI as sophomore Janet Libbing singled in two runs. In the third, senior co-captain Martha Judge and Benjamin both walked. Senior co-captain Missy Stapleton smashed a triple, scoring both runners.

The Belles added three more runs in the sixth inning as sophomore Carol Grobner's triple drove in Judge and Benjamin. Grobner scored on junior Michelle Pinter's single.

Stephanie Kissicorni, freshman, was the winning pitcher for the Belles and Libbing was the leading hitter with two hits in three at-bats.

"In the first game, we just went out and jumped ahead of them from the start. The team did a great job," said Belles coach Don "Popcorn" Cromer.

In the second game, the Belles rallied from behind in the seventh inning to defeat Anderson 8-7.

Judge singled in the first inning to pick up the three RBIs and to put the Belles ahead 3-0. In the second, Libbing walked and scored on Grobner's triple. Pinter knocked Grobner in on a single.

Errors plagued the Belles. In the second, the Belles gave up two runs and another four runs in the third, causing the Belles to fall behind 6-5. Anderson scored again in the fourth inning, making the score 7-5.

"The second game was close and more competitive due to some errors we had to iron out," coach "Popcorn" said.

Kissicorni came in to relieve an injured Shannon Blair, a sophomore, in the fourth inning.

The score remained unchanged until the bottom of the seventh. Judge, Benjamin and Stapleton were walked, loading the bases. With no outs and a two-two count, Maggie Killian, junior, smashed a double into right field, driving all three runners home.

"Maggie Killian was fantastic! The whole seventh inning of the second game was fantastic!" coach Cromer said.

Weather permitting, the Belles will be back in action at home today against IUPUI-Fort Wayne and will play a rescheduled game at Taylor.

Network TV sports will not vanish

ATLANTA (AP)—The future of sports on free television is probably secure for at least a while, partly because of the huge fees the sports leagues are getting for the games, a collection of experts told broadcasters Monday.

With the advent of sports on cable TV, some broadcasters—and fans—feared that soon all games would wind up on pay TV.

But "it's no longer economically feasible to think in those terms," said Ed Frazier, chief executive officer of Prime Network, at a National Association of Broadcasters seminar on television sports.

With pro sports packages such as NFL games selling for billions of dollars, the bill will be carried for some time by both broadcasters and cable networks, said Frazier, a pioneer in regional cable sports networking.

Professional baseball, the NFL and the NBA all are on both the major TV networks and cable services.

"We need the broadcaster bidding his side of the equation, as he needs us bidding our side," Frazier said.

"We seriously believe ... we are going to keep a substantial portion—perhaps as much or more—on broadcast, as opposed to cable," said Russell Granik, deputy commissioner of the NBA.

"You have to be ubiquitous," he added. "You have to get to the mass audience, to some degree. It would be a very big mistake in terms of the future growth of the sport for us to be totally on cable."

Frazier predicted it's also unlikely that pay TV will snag a major sports event such as the Super Bowl or the World Series any time soon. While such events might seem a natural for pay-per-view, the economics are not right, he said.

"I can't see the cable business being able to outbid the networks on an advertising basis for some time," he said, noting that the nation has only 10 million cable households set for pay-per-view—compared with a potential Super Bowl or World Series network audience of virtually every home in America.

"I don't know anybody who's prepared to take that leap and try to promote that," he said.

But ABC Sports President Dennis Swanson expressed concern over the future of network sports operations in general, in light of the "megabuck" deals the sports leagues are getting.

Swanson said ABC, whose five-year, $175 million deal with the College Football Association begins in 1991, shouldn't have to worry for a while about the impact of Notre Dame's sale of its home games to NBC.

"Will other schools do what Notre Dame has done? Not for five years," he said. "Those contracts have all been signed and ratified—and there's still some question about Notre Dame."

UNLV, led by Anderson Hunt and Larry Johnson (above), literally spanked the Duke Blue Devils into submission, winning 103-73.

The Runnin' Rebels also set a record for most points scored in a tournament with 571, just better than their regular-season average of 92.3.

Until Monday night, the largest margin of victory in a championship game was 23 points, when UCLA beat North Carolina 78-55 in 1968.

For Tarkanian, the man who sits on the bench looking as though it pains him to watch his team win, getting the trophy capped a long battle with the NCAA, which ordered the school to suspend him for violations. He went to court for an injunction and the case eventually reached the Supreme Court, which ruled in favor of the NCAA.

But no court could stop the

Hunt powers UNLV to NCAA title

DENVER (AP)—When Anderson Hunt caught fire, the NCAA final was still a game.

After he scored 12 points in an 18-0 UNLV run, the game had all but ended.

Hunt, the Runnin' Rebels' quiet sophomore, scored three straight baskets and two three-pointers during the spurt that sealed UNLV's first national championship Monday night, a 103-73 rout over Duke.

Named the tournament's outstanding player, Hunt remained characteristically reticent afterward, all but sweeping aside his 29-point performance on 12-for-16 shooting.

"I was really concentrating on Bobby Hurley (Duke point guard) and not on the offensive game," he said.

With UNLV ahead 57-47 with 16:24 to play, Hunt hit a 12-foot baseline jumper to open the run. After a bucket by Larry Johnson, Stacey Augmon's steal set up Hunt's 3-pointer from the right corner.

The next trip down the floor, Augmon again stole the ball and fed an outlet pass to a sprinting Hunt for a layup.

With the score 66-47, Duke called a timeout. At midcourt, Johnson ran to Hunt, meeting him with a high-five.

Hunt didn't let up after the break, getting another layup. And after Augmon scored on a fast break, Duke again called time.

This time, Hunt seemed to know it was over, raising his arms in triumph as the Blue Devils straggled to the bench.

Hunt's third 3-pointer of the game ended the spree and ended the hopes of the Blue Devils, who trailed 75-47 with 13:18 left.

Duke's Phil Henderson said he was run ragged trying to guard Hunt.

"He played like he never got tired," Henderson said. "He did a great job running the floor and that gets you tired. Catching the ball and going up quickly for the 3-pointer, he did a great job at that."

Henderson, who said he'd seen Hunt play many times, called the performance the best he'd seen. Hunt, however, wouldn't go that far.

"It's one of them," Hunt said.

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian countered: "This is the best big game he's ever played."

Hunt got comfortable in the right corner, hitting three of his four three-pointers from that spot.

"His three-point shots were such momentum shots," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "You'd think you might have a chance to get back (in the game) a little bit, and he'd hit a three-pointer."

Hunt set an NCAA semifinal record for three-point percentage against Georgia Tech, making five of nine (56 percent) from long range. He was four-for-seven on three-pointers against Duke.

Hunt's defense was even better. He held Hurley scoreless on 0-for-3 shooting, limited the Duke playmaker to just three assists and forced the freshman into five turnovers. Hunt did all of that without drawing a single foul.

"It was very frustrating being out on the floor at a time like that and knowing you couldn't do much about it," Hurley said. "It was like a tidal wave crashing down on your head."

Runnin' Rebels on Monday night.

UNLV managed a 10-point lead just 7:26 into the game as the Rebels forced Duke into turnover after turnover, mostly by simply stealing the ball.

They scored the first points of the game, and never trailed.

Duke, which averaged 17.2 turnovers per game this season, had 14 at halftime and 10 of those were on steals by the Rebels.

The first 10-point lead came on a sequence of four UNLV steals in four consecutive possessions—the last was by Stacey Augmon, who took the ball from Phil Henderson near midcourt and sailed in for a dunk. That made it 21-11.

The lead extended to 41-25 with 3:46 left in the half as UNLV contested every pass made by Duke. The Rebels had 16 points off turnovers in the first half as they took a 47-35 halftime lead.

Duke got within 10 points, 57-47, with 16:24 to play, but the larcenous crew from just off The Strip went to it again.

The Rebels went on an 18-0 run to put the game away and it was Augmon and Anderson Hunt who took turns putting the Blue Devils away.

Hunt started the run with a side jumper and Larry Johnson scored on a drive for a 61-47 lead.

Augmon stole the ball on three straight possessions and he found Hunt each time to end the break.

Augmon whipped a cross-court pass to Hunt for a three-pointer. He found Hunt again with a pass for a layup and then fed Hunt again after taking the ball from Henderson at his own foul line.

Hunt ended it with a 3-pointer to make it 75-47 with 13:18 to play.

Hunt led UNLV with 29 points on 12-of-16 shooting, while Johnson, their leading scorer and rebounder this season, finished with 22 and 11.

Henderson led Duke with 21 points.

It seemed there was little Duke could do against the pressure. Even when UNLV went into a 1-1-3 zone, the Blue Devils continued to have trouble getting the ball inside to Christian Laettner and Alaa Abdelnaby.

Joan Kroc sells Padres to investor group for $75 million

SAN DIEGO (AP)—An investment group headed by Hollywood producer Tom Werner signed a letter of intent Monday to purchase the San Diego Padres, club owner Joan Kroc said.

Terms of the transaction were not released, but the club's price tag was reported to be $75 million.

The deal is contingent on approval of major league baseball owners before it can be finalized. The purchase is expected to be completed within the next 45 to 60 days.

"I expect that my status with respect to the Padres will soon be that of many thousands of San Diego citizens," Kroc said. "While I will be relinquishing the ownership of the Padres, I will not be relinquishing my status as a loyal and enthusiastic supporter of this fine team."

"I trust that Mr. Werner and his group will do their utmost to represent the fans' interest in the decisions they will be making for this club," Kroc said.

Kroc's son-in-law, Jerry Kapstein, has been handling the sale negotiations since October and overseeing the club's day-to-day operations since Feb. 22, when he was named Kroc's personal representative to the club.

The original asking price for the Padres was $100 million, but industry sources said skyrocketing player salaries have pushed franchise values downward despite lucrative television contracts.

Joining Werner in the purchase are nine general partners, eight of whom are from San Diego.

Werner, 39, is a partner in Casey-Werner Co., which produces "The Cosby Show," "Roseanne," and other highly-rated television series.

His personal fortune has been estimated at $140 million. Under the deal, Werner would be the managing general partner of the franchise.

"Each one of us has a strong commitment to the San Diego Padres who are dedicated to sustaining and building the tradition of this great ball club in the years ahead," Werner said.

"The Padres, as opening day approaches next week, have an outstanding team. And our goal, when Mrs. Kroc gives us the reins, is to set a strong steady direction so that the organization she has operated will continue to be first class," said Werner, adding that he and his wife, Jill, will purchase a home in San Diego.

No immediate changes in the Padres' administrative and baseball operations were anticipated, Werner said. He said the group is committed to keeping the team in San Diego.

"It's a terrific place to live. It's a terrific place to watch a baseball game," Werner said.

Werner said the group first started coming together and approached Kapstein in November.

"There were really no bumps on the road," he said. "The more we found out about it, the more we were excited that this could happen."

Ferry denies validity of NBC report

ROME (AP)—Danny Ferry said Monday he will wait until the end of the Italian regular season before making up his mind on whether to play for the Cleveland Cavaliers of the NBA next season.

"I haven't made any decision yet," said Ferry, who plays for Il Messaggero Roma. "At this point a lot of things would have to be worked out."

The Italian regular season ends April 14, with the playoffs beginning April 22 and winding up June 2.

NBC reported Sunday that Ferry had decided to return to the United States after one season in Italy and join the Cavaliers for the 1990-91 season.

Ferry said he wants to play in the NBA at some time in the future.

"It's just a question of when," he said.

NBC reported that Ferry wants to play for the U.S. team in the world games this summer in Argentina, but he said no decision has been made on that, either.

"First I have to decide what I'm going to do next year," Ferry said. "Then I can go from there. It will be up to the team I'll be with next year."

Embry said the Cavaliers would have no objection to letting Ferry play in the world games.

The coach of the U.S. team will be Mike Krzyzewski, Ferry's coach at Duke.

"The opportunity to play for Coach 'K' has a great deal of incentive to it," he said.

Players and Someone Else got by Japanese Bombers 21-18 and the Screaming Uglys won 21-17 against 5 Regular Guys behind the 10 points of Kurt Washburn.

In other games, Rich Holtz Gets Chicks dominated Is That the Dome 21-9, but Holtz might want to stick with the name rather than the game as he shot just 1-of-6 from the field. Raul Gonzales, Raul Gonzales, oh Raul was just that. Gonzales shot 66 times and hit just 10 of those in a 21-10 defeat at the hands of Hawaii 5-0.

And finally, Winning Isn't Everything showed it really meant its name, failing to show up for its first round game.

ND softball team gets break, enters into 'meat' of season

Irish preparing for another match with MCC foe Detroit

By PETE CASTELLI
Sports Writer

After a week of competition, the Notre Dame softball team has returned to the university for a two-day break between games.

On Monday of last week, the Irish traveled to Valparaiso to meet the Crusaders in a doubleheader. Notre Dame won both games in nine innings by identical 4-3 scores. Freshman pitcher Staci Alford picked up the win in each game, pitching 14 out of 18 innings.

In the first game, Alford came in in the fifth inning with the Irish down 3-0 and shut out the Crusaders the rest of the way, allowing just one hit and three strikeouts. Notre Dame rallied behind the bat of sophomore catcher Amy Folsom, who collected two hits and two RBIs, including the game-winner in the ninth.

In the second game, Alford pitched the entire game, only allowing three hits while striking out six. The Crusaders rallied twice, but Folsom again led the attack with two hits and two RBIs, while freshmen Debbie Boulac added two hits and one of the team's six stolen bases to clinch the win.

The pair of victories gave the Irish a five-game winning streak, a string that extended to six with a 1-0, eight-inning victory at Bradley on Saturday. Sophomore Missy Linn went the distance, improving her record to 4-3 with an eight-hit, five-strikeout performance. The Irish, though limited to just two hits, took advantage of a single, two sacrifices, and an error to score the game-winner. Notre Dame's streak came to an end, though, as the Braves came away with a 5-4 win in the second game.

Stamina will be the key for the Irish the rest of the season. The next two weeks are the most demanding of Notre Dame's schedule. The Irish play a doubleheader every day April 3-7 before traveling to Joliet, Ill. for the five-team St. Francis invitational on April 8 and 9. Notre Dame will play two games each day, taking on Wisconsin-Parkside and St. Francis on Saturday and Mount Mercy and Valparaiso on Sunday. The Irish then will stay on the road for back-to-back doubleheaders at DePaul on April 11 and at Detroit on April 12. The Irish then will have two more doubleheaders and the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament before finally playing at home again on April 23.

"This is obviously the meat of our schedule right here," coach Brian Boulac says. "We're playing a lot of games in a short amount of time against some quality softball teams. I'm really pleased with the way we've played some quality teams already this year. Right now, our pitching is really coming around, and the girls are keeping themselves in good shape and really playing hard."

"We haven't been scoring a lot of runs, but I think that will come around, too. We've been hitting the ball well all year, just right at people. Plus, Megan Fay and Rachel Crossen have been hampered by injuries, but they are getting better and should be able to give our offense a boost. If we keep playing the way we've been playing, we should be very competitive over the next couple of weeks."

Notre Dame has played just two MCC games thus far, a pair of 1-0 wins over three-time defending champ Detroit, having had doubleheaders against

Notre Dame Sports Information

Sophomore pitcher Missy Linn picked up her fourth win with a complete game shutout against Bradley on Saturday.

Loyola and Dayton postponed by weather. But foul weather is the least of Notre Dame's worries as it prepares for DePaul and Detroit.

"DePaul is a fine softball team," Boulac says. "They handled us very well last year. I'm sure they'll be very strong again this year, but I'm looking forward to playing them to see how we do. The Detroit game will be a real grudge match for them."

McHugh had four goals in the game, while Mike Sullivan, who is leading the Irish in scoring this season, chipped in four goals and one assist.

"As a team, it is good that we cleared the first hurdle," noted senior attackman Brian McHugh. "We didn't play particularly well, but we did what we needed to do to win. Our level of intensity was good, and hopefully we will be able to build on it."

In the championship game of the tournament, Notre Dame defeated host San Diego State 18-10 behind the sticks of Chris Rowley, Rob Lynn, Mike Sullivan, and Bo Perriello. In the day's action, Rowley had two goals and two assists, Lynn had a hat trick, while Sullivan and Perriello tallied two goals apiece.

Additionally, Dave Carey, Mike Stevens, Mike Sullivan, and Brian McHugh were named to the All-Tournament team for their outstanding performances.

"We haven't reached our potential yet," said Brian McHugh, "but that might be a good thing. We haven't yet put everything together over the course of a whole game, and it would be good if we peak at the right time."

With the victories, the Irish improved their record to 5-3. Next up are critical games with Kenyon and Denison. Notre Dame travels to Kenyon, Ohio on Wednesday, and will close the week by playing host to Denison on Saturday afternoon.

Women's tennis notches 12th win

By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer

Despite the absence of top singles player Tracy Barton, the Notre Dame women's tennis team improved its record to 12-6 with weekend wins over Michigan State and Eastern Michigan.

The Irish sealed both wins in the singles competition, capturing six singles contests in each match. Notre Dame won both matches with a score of 8-1.

The Michigan State match proved to be the easier of the two wins. Notre Dame had pulled out a close 5-4 victory over the Spartans last year, and expected a competitive match against the squad this year, especially with Irish players Tracy Barton and Kristy Doran out with injuries.

"We played really well," said Irish coach Jay Louderback of the Michigan State contest. "Tracy Barton and Kristy Doran didn't play, so everybody else played higher than they had been. They (Michigan State) weren't real strong, not like they've been in the past three years."

Barton is suffering from an elbow injury and Doran has an injured wrist. Both players stayed home for the weekend and are questionable for upcoming matches.

Despite the injuries, the Irish continued their win streak by beating the slightly stronger Eastern Michigan. Due to the time change and an early morning match, the Notre Dame squad missed some sleep, but still performed admirably.

"We didn't get a whole lot of sleep before Eastern Michigan, but we played well," said Louderback. "The girls didn't mess around, they just went out there and played. We didn't let Eastern Michigan in any of the matches."

The Irish will attempt to ride their three-game win streak into victory next weekend. The team will take on Northern Illinois Friday at Eck Pavilion, and then travel east for the remainder of the weekend, facing Ball State on Saturday and Ohio State on Sunday.

Katie Clark and the Notre Dame women's tennis team won two matches in Michigan over the weekend, improving their record to 12-6.

Injured Gretzky in question for first round of NHL playoffs

CALGARY, Alberta (AP)—Wayne Gretzky might miss the opening game of the Kings' Smythe Division playoff with the Calgary Flames because of a back injury, Los Angeles coach Tom Webster said Monday.

"At this point we do not expect to have Gretzky back in the lineup on Wednesday," Webster said before the Kings left for Banff, Alberta, where they are preparing for the NHL first-round series.

"I've no idea when Wayne will return. We just have to take it day by day."

Later Monday, the Kings issued a statement, saying, "Wayne continues to be treated in Los Angeles, and remains on a day-to-day basis," according to team physician Dr. Steve Lombardo. "A decision on his availability to play on Wednesday will be made tomorrow."

Gretzky has not played since March 22, when he was checked by Alan Kerr in the opening minutes of a game against the New York Islanders.

He was slow to get up but finished the period. He didn't return that night and has been out of action since.

Gretzky has said the bone-crunching hit was like "getting rear-ended in a car."

"I really thought I broke my back."

Kings' officials say Gretzky has spasms and a hyperextension of the back. He is being treated with ice, heat and massage. Before suffering his latest injury, he had struggled because of a pulled groin.

"His back was very sore (Sunday) after being good, but that is the way it goes with a back; it's a day to day thing," said Webster.

Gretzky won his eighth league scoring title this season despite having a year that was below par. He had 142 points, including 40 goals—his lowest output since his rookie season in 1979-80, when he had 137 points.

Los Angeles finished fourth in the Smythe this season, 24 points behind the first-place Flames. Last year, Calgary swept the Kings in four games to win the Smythe championship.

Even unhealthy and out of shape, Gretzky would give the Kings a mental boost in the best-of-seven series against the defending Stanley Cup champion Flames.

"Gretzky is the best player in the world," said Los Angeles goaltender Mario Gosselin. "With him in the lineup it changes the way the other team plays against you."

The Kings' Marty McSorley, who played with Gretzky when they both were Edmonton Oilers, said it's difficult to gauge the inspiration value of No. 99.

"That's a tough question," he said thoughtfully. "You want to say you miss him but you don't want to say you miss him."

talented, so you can't go into a game not ready to play," says Danapilis. "It's more of a mindset and a maturity level. They play the key factor in the outcome of performances. I've just come in right now, and coach Murphy told me that I would get my chance, that I would be in the starting lineup. That gave me a chance to see what I could do with less pressure."

Murphy's approach to the 6-2, 220-pound freshman seems to have worked. Danapilis is doing many things well. His 13 runs scored, 29 hits, seven doubles, .500 on base percentage, and 68 at bats are all tops on the team. Why though, one might ask, is someone with his stature batting in the leadoff position?

"A lot of people question that," says Danapilis. "In our lineup we have a lot of people who can do a lot of things well, but we haven't found the ideal order yet. I've been the one who's been on base a lot, and that's why I'm there."

For someone of his size, his running ability is more than adequate. He has stolen nine bases in 13 attempts, second on the team in swipes after sophomore Dan Bautch's 17.

Besides, it doesn't hurt the Irish to have a rather imposing figure at the plate to be the first batter the opposing pitcher has to face.

"I'm trying to get better in as many areas as I can, and trust me, there are a lot of areas where I can improve," admits Danapilis. "I can get better in concentrating on the little things, like baserunning. I may not be a great one, but I can be a good one. And then there's defense, where I can always get better. I'm just trying to be an asset to this team in every way I can."

Danapilis has been working with assistant coach John Flanagan in the outfield, and his noticeable improvement there shows his coaches his commitment to enhancing his game.

"Defensively he's making great strides," says Murphy. "John Flanagan says he's worked hard with fielding and now he's coming out, becoming a better player. He's also got surprisingly good speed for a big man. I wouldn't be surprised if Danapilis plays in the major leagues someday."

The game with Illinois-Chicago today will be played at Coveleski Stadium at 6 p.m. if conditions permit. The games against Saint Louis on Sunday had to be cancelled because rain the previous night soaked the field. Free Notre Dame baseball poster schedules will be handed out to the first 500 fans in attendance.

After tonight, the Irish make the trip to Illinois-Chicago on Wednesday for another doubleheader. Illinois-Chicago went 33-29 last year, 1-3 against the Irish, with the win coming in the form of a 5-0 shutout.

Bookstore competition battles on

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Editor

The wrestlers had a big day on the courts Monday in Bookstore Basketball XIX.

Fran McCann's Fan Club and Five Other Wrestlers edged Welcome to the Jungle 21-17 as preliminary action continued on 10 courts.

The team is composed of five Irish wrestlers—Andy Radenbaugh, Steve King, Mark Gerardi, Pete Cahill and Jamie Boyd. Radenbaugh says wrestling and conditioning are big parts of their game plan.

"We wore them down with our superior conditioning," Radenbaugh said. "In the inside game and rebounding, the doubleleg takedown came in handy today. We're a definite underdog and a dark horse."

It was a day marked by routs, with only one game decided by two points. Clark and Company downed Team 497 22-20 in overtime.

Many teams found baskets hard to come by in the cold and rainy conditions.

Running Irish UM's fell 21-2 at the hands of Bush's Five Points of Light. You Gonna Beat the Heck Out of Us didn't lie, losing 21-2 to Notre Dame Yacht Club.

Doug Hipwell was 12-of-19 for Yacht Club, a group of five MBA students.

"Our tallest guy is 5-11 and we wanted to play a fast-break style," Hipwell said. "We pressured them and then played transition offense. We were really in sync."

There were several 21-3 routs—Madson, Gray and Three Other Guys Who Think They're Civil over Leviticus 18:22-23; Mary, Kathy, Wendy and Two Other Dogger Scams over Liver Damage; and Conscientious Revolvers over High Men and the Penny Traders.

UNLV dominated Duke for the national title in Denver, while another version advanced to the round of 512 on campus. UNLV (Untamed, Notoriously, Lude Vigilantes) routed 4 Really Big, Too Ugly Guys and the Guy With Long Hair 21-8.

"All of us on the team knew UNLV had the strength and the players to take it all," UNLV team member Mike Morelli said. "We liked their style of play and their defensive intensity. We just realized how good of a team they were, and we liked to use those consonants to form our own phrase and

UNLV destroys Duke Most lopsided NCAA final in history

DENVER (AP)—The NCAA's ultimate Rebel won its biggest prize.

UNLV ended the tournament of thrills and close finishes with the largest margin of victory in a championship game, a 103-73 win over Duke on Monday night.

Jerry Tarkanian, the coach who fought the NCAA in the courts for the past 15 years, guided UNLV to its first national title and Duke continued as the school with the most frustrating of postseason records.

The Runnin' Rebels became the first team to score more than 100 points in the championship game. They are also the first preseason No. 1 to win the title since North Carolina in 1982 and the first Western team since UCLA won in 1975.

They did it with the style they have made famous—tenacious man-to-man defense—as they rattled Duke, a team known for its savvy and poise.

The Rebels literally stole the title from Duke, which was making its eighth Final Four appearance. The Blue Devils went home again without a trophy, extending the longest streak of national semifinal futility.

UNLV broke the tournament record for steals in a game with 16, eclipsing the mark set by Duke in the 1986 championship game and matched by Oklahoma in the 1988 title game.

ND Lacrosse brightens NCAA hopes

The Notre Dame lacrosse team outgunned the Air Force Academy and San Diego State to win the San Diego State Tournament this past weekend, giving the Irish the inside track to an NCAA Western Regional bid for postseason competition.

In the first round of action in the San Diego State Tournament, Notre Dame came from behind to down the Falcons of Air Force 12-11. The Air Force led by as many as six goals, but the Irish battled back behind attackmen Brian McHugh and Mike Sullivan, narrowing the margin to 11-10 with only two minutes left in the game.

It was then that the Irish finished off the Falcons, as Sullivan and McHugh scored in rapid succession, giving Notre Dame a crucial victory. Brian

NCAA tournament provides excitement

In a time when college basketball is a frequent target of naysayers who endlessly criticize the game for being corrupt, it is refreshing to see that this year's NCAA tournament was one of the most exciting in recent memory.

Folks traditionally cheer for the underdog in this tournament, and although there were no Cinderellas in the Final Four, the little teams had their moments in the spotlight.

16th-seeded Murray State took Big 10 champion Michigan State into overtime in a bid to become the first 16th-seed ever to knock off a number one seed in the first round before falling 75-71. Northern Iowa buried third-seeded Missouri with a high-arcing three-pointer in the final seconds.

Ball State watched a last-second Louisville three-pointer miss the target in a 62-60 second round victory over the Cardinals, and Pete Gillen's Xavier team upset Georgetown, the Darth Vader of college basketball, when the Hoyas missed some key free throws at the end of the game.

The hearts of the nation went out to Loyola Marymount as the Lions made good on their promise to honor the memory of Hank Gathers by murdering Michigan 149-115 and upsetting Alabama 62-60. Marymount eventually had the misfortune of running into that runaway freight train from UNLV, which beat the Lions at their own game in a 131-101 drubbing.

Cardiac arrests and buzzer shots were at a premium as 28 of the 58 games in the first four rounds were decided by less than four points. Connecticut, in particular, lived and died by the buzzer shot. After winning a regional semifinal game on a last second jumper by Tate George, the Huskies could only shake their heads as Christian Laettner of Duke found the

Getting some help from a rookie Freshman Eric Danapilis assists baseball team with bat

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Assistant Sports Editor

As the Irish baseball team is scheduled for two games against Illinois-Chicago at Stanley Coveleski Stadium at 6 p.m. tonight, it bears certain resemblances with last year's squad.

The team's 13-5 record is identical to its counterpart one year ago at this time, and like last year, a hitter has broken through early to lead the team with dominating statistics.

Last year it was All-America choice Dan Peltier. This year it is a freshman named Eric Danapilis.

"Eric Danapilis was heavily recruited as an all-around athlete," says Irish baseball coach Pat Murphy. "He is a tremendous competitor and he never backs down from any challenge. He's a solid major league prospect, but I think his success is attributable to keeping his mouth shut and working hard."

Eric Danapilis

Danapilis has surprised everyone with the rapidity in which he has made the transition to college baseball. People knew he had the talent, but even Danapilis didn't think he would do so well so early.

"I didn't think I would be doing this well, this early," says Danapilis, whose .426 average is 150 percentage points higher than any other regular starter. "I knew I could hit collegiate pitching, but I didn't think I would handle it in the early going this well. But I knew that on a talent level I would be able to compete right off the bat."

His own awareness of his talent would have been hard to miss, based on his performance in high school. At St. Joseph High School in St. Joseph, Mich. his career average was .515, complete with 29 home runs and 167 RBI. Apparently drawing his confidence from his numbers, Danapilis has his own opinions on what his early success is attributable to.

"I feel really comfortable right now. The main thing is confidence. With a lot of freshmen, they jump into the situation so quick and they don't have the confidence to back them up; it's not that their ability isn't there. I feel I've made the transition to college pitching, picking up what I had to learn early."

And what is that?

"In college everybody is more see DANAPILIS / page 18
