ND students accuse police of brutality

By KELLEY TUTHILL
News Editor

Two Notre Dame students claim members of the South Bend Police Department used unnecessary force while making arrests during a police break-up of a party on August 31.

Seniors Antwon Lark, 20, and James Dillard, 21, said the police were unnecessarily brutal and continued to use force after they had handcuffed them during a gathering on Notre Dame Avenue. In addition, the students, who are black, claim the attack was a racial incident perpetuated by the all-white members of the police department.

South Bend Police Department's Internal Affairs office is familiar with the students' complaints, said Capt. Brent Hemmerlein. "At this point it is not under investigation." He said the students have yet to come to the station to fill out the necessary complaint forms.

Lt. Norval Williams of the South Bend Police Department said he had no knowledge of the incident. He said prior to commenting on this incident he would have to learn more about the incidents surrounding the arrest.

"Capt. Hemmerlein is the fairest man in the world and the Chief of Police doesn't tolerate racial incidents," he said. The students have the option of filing a complaint or a violation of civil rights suit. "Go for it. If it's the truth let someone pay the price. If the students are lying to save their skin, let them pay for the lie."

At approximately 11:30 p.m. there were several police cars on Notre Dame Avenue during parties at students' homes.

Dillard and Lark became in-involved in a dispute with another student after they allegedly dented his car accidentally.

The police approached the area where Lark and Dillard were standing shortly after the dispute. Witnesses describe the scene differently and it is unclear whether the police were aware of the students' fight.

While he was standing on the porch of a Notre Dame Avenue home, Lark said he was jumped by six or seven police officers. In the process of the arrest, Lark said the police kicked him and hit him with billy clubs.

The arresting officers could not be reached for comment because police reports concerning the accidents were not available. Williams could not be reached for further comment.

"They cuffed and started beating on him," said junior Patrick Kelly. "Initially he was resisting arrest, but later he was on the ground handcuffed and they were kicking him."

"They beat him past what was needed to calm him down," said junior Michael J. Miller. While Lark was lying on the ground handcuffed, Miller

A female Notre Dame student was assaulted Thursday morning while jogging beside St. Joseph's Lake, according to Security officials. She was uninjured.

The victim was jogging alone at 11 a.m. when she was grabbed from behind by an assailant she described as male, Caucasian, between 19-21 years old, medium build, between 5'9" and 5'10", medium length brown hair parted in the middle, dark eyes and freckles. He

Iraq threatens terrorist attacks against US troops

IRAQ (AP) - Iraq warned Thursday of possible terrorist attacks against U.S. forces, sounding the theme of Arab feelings wounded by the presence of non-Moslem soldiers massed in the holy lands of Saudi Arabia.

But a convocation of Moslem clergy in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, condemned the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait and said the U.S.-led multinational force's presence was justified by Iraq's invasion.

Meanwhile in Tokyo, the Japanese government announced Friday that it will provide an additional $3 billion in aid to more than $1 billion already promised to assist peacekeeping forces in the Persian Gulf region and nations suffering from the U.N.-sponsored embargo against Iraq.

Members of the U.S. Congress had complained Japan was not doing more in the crisis, and had not contributed enough in light of its high dependence on Middle East oil. Iraq and Kuwait possess 20 percent of the world's oil reserves, second only to Saudi Arabia.

In another development, the U.S. commander in Saudi Arabia said the flow of equipment for American forces into Saudi Arabia was eight days behind schedule. The commander, though, said the troops and military hardware already located there were sufficient enough to stop any Iraqi attack.

Iraq's warning came in a memorandum to the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad, according to the Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus. It said Iraq was responding to a U.S. claim that Iraq-based terrorists were preparing to attack U.S. targets.

The United States is creating a "pretext" for aggression, the memorandum was quoted as saying, and "Iraq reserves its legitimate right to self-defense, to reciprocate and to retaliate firmly against these parties if it becomes a target."

"President Bush should expect that the crimes the United States of America is committing against the Arab nation and the insult it is directing to the Islamic shrines by occupying holy lands will undoubtedly produce a natural reaction from the Arab and Islamic

New parking for home game days

By MEGAN JUNIUS
News Writer

Parking has been changed for the 1990 football season due to the construction of the new DeBartolo academic quad.

"The Red East and Orange lots along Edison and Juniper Roads have been newly paved this year in order for better utilization of space," said Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security.

The A and B lots have been moved to Red West, and White Field, north of Stepan Center, will also be used for parking, he said.

Transpo will provide bus service to and from the stadium.

As in recent years, three hours prior to kickoff, Indiana State Police, St. Joseph County Police, South Bend Police, Notre Dame Security, Indiana Toll Road Commission and local volunteers will change the two-way roads around campus into one-way, direct routes to football parking.

Throughout the game, volunteers and traffic workers will keep in constant communication in order to alert each other of changes in weather, traffic accidents and other factors that could affect the flow of traffic, Johnson said. For one hour after the game, the intersections are patrolled to maintain a one-way traffic flow away from campus.

"Students often unknowingly get involved with this one-way traffic," Johnson said. Students are also warned by campus security to remove vehicles parked in football parking areas.

According to Johnson, this will affect commuter students who currently park in C1. They will need to move their vehicles to the White Field.

"We will begin towing cars in the reserve lots at 6 a.m.," said Johnson.

Parking will cost $30 a day for recreational vehicles and $5 a day for cars.

"The quality service to football fans is tremendous," Johnson said. "Vehicles are moved quickly and safely by the traffic force."

INSIDE COLUMN

Freedom of speech is for everybody

"Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom of speech." - from an ancient legal code.

Have you heard what's being said these days? All this talk about promiscuity, aggression and rebellion of authority.

It's enough to shock anybody. I mean, in China you could go to jail for this.

Hey, wait a minute. In America, you can go to jail for this?

That's right, folks. It looks like these days, when a large part of the world is in a rush to embrace American ideals, the country that may be moving the furthest away from these ideals is America itself.

For example, this summer, my home state of Florida once again showed its level of tolerance and intelligence with its treatment of the rap group 2 Live Crew. A federal judge, under the mistaken assumption that they are the first musical group to use obscenities on a record, ruled that "As Nasty as They Wanna B" is obscene cannot be purchased at all, even by consenting adults.

I guess he thought that I, as well as all music listeners, get my views on love and the opposite sex not from my parents, church, or teachers, but from an album (though I am glad he no longer thinks that I get it from my friends).

To prove that this is not just a regional problem (and thus can be labeled a quirk of us "damn Southerners"), I'll give you another bizarre example. This summer, in Reno, Nevada, the rock group Judas Priest was accused of causing two depressed youths to commit suicide. How? By supposedly inserting a subliminal message of "Do it" on one of their albums which the two youths were listening to right before they shot themselves.

Of course, they also had been drinking lots of beer, smoking marijuana, dropped out of school, and were having problems with girlfriends, family and life in general. But, then again, we all know that these things don't lead to suicide. Backward messages on heavy metal albums do, right?

Fortunately, the judge in this case ruled that the music of Judas Priest had nothing to do with the suicides (perhaps foreseeing that I would write this column). However, the battle continues...

C'mon, people, let's brush up on our American history a bit. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights were not created to protect the popular, the conventional or the stable. They were designed specifically to make sure that the freedom to say things unpopular, different or shocking would not be squashed by the moral majority.

If America is not committed to protecting everything the Bill of Rights stands for, then we have no choice but to get rid of it.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Forum lets students speak

By ANN MARIE HARTMAN
News Writer

A new program allowing students to take the podium at the Fieldhouse Mall to speak their minds began Thursday.

The Open Forum is sponsored by Student Union Board (SUB) Ideas and Issues Committee, headed by sophomore Bill Keen. He said that the Ideas and Issues Committee firmly believes that such a forum is necessary on campus.

Opinions on subjects ranging from duLac to advice for freshmen to opposing views on religion were voiced. A suggestion was made that the time of the forum be moved to sometime during the lunch hour.

The turnout for this first meeting was less than SUB anticipated. It featured only four speakers, two ND graduates and two current undergraduates.

Every Thursday until October break, Open Forum will be conducted on a trial basis. There are no formal speakers scheduled as of yet, although major club heads and organization leaders dealing with controversial issues are being contacted.

Keen said SUB anticipates large crowds in the future and hopes to be able to expand its scheduled time for more than an hour per meeting. They are also considering the possibility of adding another microphone and conducting some meetings in a debate style.

If these first sessions from 4 to 5 p.m. on Thursdays are successful, Bill Keen says that Open Forum will definitely be continued through the winter months and into the spring. A location for those cold months or rainy days has not yet been determined.

Keen said forums like this have been extremely popular at other colleges and universities and given the chance, could flourish at Notre Dame. He was quick to stress that the success of this program depends completely upon the enthusiasm of students.

Ferraro to kick off lecture series

By MONICA YANT
Associate News Editor

Geraldine Ferraro, the democratic vice-presidential candidate during the 1984 election, will speak in the "Public Forum on Contemporary Issues" at noon on Wednesday at the Fieldhouse Mall.

Ferraro's appearance will kick off the lecture series promised by Student Body President Rob Pasin and Vice President Fred Tombar and sponsored by Student Government.

"When creating the series, Fred (Tombar) and I invited many prominent women to speak at Notre Dame in order to enhance the Year of Women theme," Pasin said. "Ferraro was one of the women who agreed to participate and we are very happy to have her kick off the series."

CBS White House correspondent Leslie Stahl will also speak as part of the Forum, as well as Loret Ruppe, the U.S. ambassador to Norway and former director of the Peace Corps.

Ferraro served as democratic congresswoman from 1979 to 1985, representing New York's 9th district for three terms. While in Congress, she served on the budget committee, among others.

She was twice elected to the House leadership as secretary of the Democratic caucus.

Ferraro remains active in politics through her participation on a political action committee, Americans Concerned for Tomorrow. In 1986, ACT-PAC was instrumental in helping regain Democratic control of the U.S. Senate, Scott said. In 1988, ACT-PAC helped elect two new senators and three congresswomen.

Pasin said that part of Ferraro's appeal to the Forum is her diverse political background. "I realize that Ferraro is a controversial figure in American politics," he said. "And that is exactly why we wanted her (to speak at the Forum)."

As a member of the executive board of the Congressional caucus for women's issues in the House, Ferraro led efforts to pass the Women's Economic Equity Act and the Equal Rights Amendment, according to Cynthia Scott, assistant director of Public Relations and Information. Sections of the Equity Act dealing with private pension reform, which were authored by Ferraro, are now law.

In 1984 Ferraro was named chair of the Democratic platform committee for its national party convention and was noted for her success in skillfully steering through a consensus platform document, Scott said.

She is a board member of the National Democratic Institute of International Affairs and a participant in foreign policy debate. Ferraro also participates on the Council on Foreign Relations.

She also served two years as the founding president of the International Institute for Women's Political Leadership.

The goal of the Forum is to "spark discussion and debate about controversial issues of the day," Pasin said.

"Hopefully Ferraro will spark some debate on campus." Her stance on abortion is just one area where Ferraro may differ from ND students, Pasin said.

Ferraro has also authored a book, "Ferraro: My Story," which was published in 1985. She is presently writing a book dealing with the tensions between the rights of the media under the First Amendment versus the rights of an individual to privacy under the Sixth Amendment, according to Scott.

A frequent lecturer at colleges and universities, Ferraro was a fellow at Harvard's Institute of Politics and Cornell University.

Ferraro was born in 1935 in Newburgh, N.Y., and was graduated from Marymont Manhattan in 1956. While putting herself through law school at night, Ferraro taught second and fourth grade in the New York public school system.

She obtained a law degree from Fordham University School of Law. She practiced law between 1961 and 1974 and went on to serve as an assistant district attorney in Queens county.

Pasin acknowledged William Sexton, vice president of Relations, without whose help "the series would not have been possible."

He added that Ferraro's lecture is being paid for by several members of the Arts and Letters Council and the Business College Council. The rain location for the lecture is Washington Hall, 12:15 p.m.

was wearing faded blue jeans and a light blue, striped long sleeved shirt.

She did not hear the assailant say anything because she was wearing headphones, according to Assistant Director of Security Chuck Hurley. She was able to break free from her assailant and yell for help. The assailant then fled toward Douglas Road.

The victim flagged down a motorist just west of the University's power plant on Lake Road and the two of them stopped a Security officer near the North Dining Hall.

Security officers were able to begin the investigation minutes after the assault occurred. Hurley estimated only three minutes elapsed from the time the victim broke free from the attacker to the time she found an officer.

Security officers were assisted by St. Joseph County police and a South Bend police canine unit in their search of the paths around and near the lake, by Moreau Seminary and around Douglas Road, but they found no suspect.

Hurley advised students not to be alone in remote areas at any time. "It doesn't matter what time of day or night it is," he warned, "just try not to get in isolated areas and always have a companion with you."

Security is investigating the incident and asks anyone seeing someone matching the description of the assailant to contact Security.

Hurley added that students who see "someone they feel is suspicious in nature" should call Security. "Even if someone isn't doing something criminal in nature at that time, give us a chance to check it out."

"We'll find out if they belong here or not," he said.

The assault is the first to be reported to Security this year. Last Spring, Security received a report of an assault of a Saint Mary's student on Easter Sunday and of a ND female student April 19 in the D-6 parking lot. The reports of those assaults came within a two-day period.

Reed: Africa faces post-independence crisis

By DAVID KINNEY
News Writer

Facing debt and underdevelopment, Africa has found itself in a post-independence crisis that will require restructuring and changes within the system and state.

As part of Africa Week, the issue of "The Crisis of Post-Independence Africa" was discussed last night in a fireside-chat led by Professor Cy Reed of Wabash College.

Only recently freed from hundreds of years of Western colonialism, Africa faces the challenges of demonstrating the ability to control itself and to assimilate its economy into the world economy. The continent faces "a crisis of accountability, a crisis of inappropriate domestic policy," Reed said. "Africa has not adjusted to the changes of the 70s."

Africa has found itself in its current predicament as a result of a reliance on a fragile system of supply and demand, according to Reed. Dependence on foreign aid and, in turn, foreign influence on domestic affairs has resulted in conflict between Western and African interests.

Western nations adhere to the theory that Africa must develop free markets and free elections if it to succeed in supporting itself. These staples of the Western world simply do not fit into a primarily agricultural continent, Reed said. "The

Kenneth Durgans, director of Minority Student Affairs, speaks to students after a discussion on "The Crisis of Post-Independence Africa," an event held in observance of Africa Week. The Observer/Dave Short international pressure for free markets and free elections does not address the issues of equity and accountability," he said.

Reed noted throughout the discussion that the state role must be changed from an entirely authoritarianistic one to one that can both monitor the market and leave some freedom.

Too much control might result in immigration and a reliance on subsistence farming. A completely free market, on the other hand, could amplify the division between the wealthy and the poor.

"Having a 'kinder and gentler' Africa is not a role the state will be able to have," said Reed.

The group also tried to determine who was to blame for this crisis. Some said the problem was a result of the colonialism of Africa by Europeans during the past few centuries, and on the "stranglehold" in which the West holds Africa. One South Bend resident, Abdul Nur, said that it is in the interest of the West to prevent Africa from developing both agriculturally and industrially.

Some placed blame specifically on the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank for failing to support African interests, while others took the stance that the crisis is a result of the misuse of foreign aid by and corruption within the African governments.

"The crisis is deeper than we intend to believe," said one participant. "We look like strangers to ourselves."

The Faculty Senate committee held its first meeting of the academic year last night and passed a resolution which addresses greater faculty involvement in areas ranging from athletics, tenure to discipline.

The resolution established a Faculty Committee on Governance. As stated directly on the agenda, the committee was set up in order to examine the current governance structure and "make recommendations for change that will enhance the governance of the university through increased faculty participation."

Specific issues which this committee will examine include:

- Mechanisms for greater faculty involvement in such matters as academic concerns, benefits, salary, classroom facilities, athletics, grievance procedures and faculty discipline;

- Increased participation of elected faculty representatives at different stages in tenure and promotion decisions;

- Evaluation of the composition and roles of Academic Council, Graduate Council and College Council.

The committee also discussed the formation of a faculty alcohol assistance program. In accordance with federal law, the University must have a written program in order to help faculty members cope with substance abuse problems. Because of this, University President Father Edward Malloy directly requested that the committee discuss specific courses of action in order to deal with this problem.

The Faculty Senate committee also chose to reemphasize the importance of a resolution passed last May, which urged the University of Notre Dame to sponsor "lectures, symposia and debates on the topic of women ordination," in support of the Year of Women.

Improved faculty benefits were also discussed. Specific suggestions included extended maternal leave options, medical and dental benefits and improved investment vehicles.

Within the student affairs committee, teachers also discussed their attempt to ensure that students, especially athletes, are adequately prepared for class.

Students encourage religious vocations

By JANICE O'LEARY
News Writer

A group of students at the University of Notre Dame have formed a new organization with the purpose of encouraging and supporting religious vocations.

SERV, Students Encouraging Religious Vocations, was organized and founded in large part by Herb Juliano, a layman who resides in Holy Cross parish.

Juliano met Charles McCarthy, president of SERV, and Paul Radich, vice-president, at 5:15 p.m. mass in Sacred Heart which he attends regularly. Together the three talked about the idea of establishing a group like SERV last semester and it came to fruition this term, said McCarthy.

According to Father Steve Newton, advisor to the group, the purpose of SERV is to "encourage, through prayer, religious vocations."

He said also that Campus Ministry is supportive of the organization.

The group is rather informal at the time, but they do have some goals in mind, said McCarthy.

Cards are distributed to the student body with prayers from Campus Ministry and SERV wants to have their prayer for religious vocations included on them, said McCarthy.

SERV also wants to increase the female membership, since out of the 29 members there is currently only one woman, he said.

Although they do not have any definite plans, McCarthy said they would like to sponsor some movies in the future and perhaps take a weekend to visit a religious shrine next semester.

For the moment however, he said, SERV is geared toward prayer.

Hoosier returns home

(AP) - Debra Hoffer and her 1-year-old son returned to Fort Wayne on a private plane Thursday night after being trapped more than a month in Kuwait.

She hugged family and friends who gathered to greet her about 10 p.m., then told reporters she fears for her husband's safety. Abdul Latees Hashem was forced to stay behind in his native Kuwait.

Hoffer said that when Westerners are married to Kuwaitis "it puts them in danger because they (Iraqis) say they'll kill them if you hide a Westerner and you know where they are. They say you'll get hung or they'll shoot you."

She added: "They're killing people. ... People that help people, they kill them. They bomb houses. They do a lot of things."

Hoffer and her young son Jason had been hiding in Kuwait since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion. After leaving Kuwait this week, they flew to Baghdad, London and Raleigh, N.C., en route to Fort Wayne.

Hoffer's mother, Doris Hoffer, said a Fort Wayne businessman flew her husband, Chris, to Raleigh-Durham International Airport in North Carolina on a private plane Thursday. The businessman did not want to be identified, but he was providing the family with a "banquet of pizzas" for the reunion, she said.

U.N. resolution allows food to Iraq

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council overwhelmingly voted late Thursday to allow food shipments to Iraq and occupied Kuwait only "to relieve human suffering" and said relief agencies must distribute the aid.

The wording of the resolution, which passed 13-2, sought to maintain the narrow restrictions under which aid could be sent, in line with a resolution passed after Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

The council rejected an alternative Cuban-sponsored resolution that would have opened the door to unlimited food shipments to the estimated 19 million people in Iraq and Kuwait, including hundreds of thousands of foreigners trapped by the invasion.

Cuba and Yemen voted against the resolution.

The United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France, Finland and Canada sponsored the resolution. Also voting in favor were China, Colombia, Ethiopia, Ivory Coast, Malaysia, Romania and Zaire.

Under Security Council Resolution 661, passed four days after Iraq's invasion, only medical supplies may be sent to Iraq or Kuwait, or, "in humanitarian circumstances, food-stuffs."

India and the Philippines, however, have appealed to the Security Council's sanctions committee for permission to send food to their people still stranded in Iraq and Kuwait.

Iraq has said it will not feed the 140,000 Indians, 93,000 Sri Lankans and 60,000 Filipinos it holds, but that they must rely on their governments.

The resolution passed Thursday said the International Committee of the Red Cross or "other appropriate humanitarian agencies" should distribute the food or supervise its distribution.

That left open the possibility that the Iraqi Red Crescent, one of the Moslem national charities that are members of the ICRC, might be allowed to handle food distribution.

Middle east week planned

By RENEE YOUNG
 News Writer

A mass dedicated to the family and friends of the Saint Mary's and South Bend community who are stationed or being held in Kuwait will begin Middle East Awareness Week, which runs from September 16-20 at Saint Mary's.

The collection from the mass will be donated to the Just Kuwaiting Group of South Bend. The group is designed to offer support to those in the community who have loved ones in Kuwait.

After the mass, Aurora Yaw of the Just Kuwaiting group will hold a discussion on the situation of those in Kuwait. Following the discussion, yellow ribbons will be distributed for tying on car antennas.

On Monday, students are invited to a panel discussion held by Professors Teresa Marcy and Jerome McElroy to discuss the political and economic sides of the Middle East crisis.

During the week there will be card signings in the dining hall and the tying of yellow ribbons on trees to show support for the Just Kuwaiting group. There will also be a donation can in the snack bar of Haggard College Center for donations to the group.

According to Maureen Lowry, vice president of Student Affairs at Saint Mary's, the purpose of the Middle East Awareness Week is to heighten the awareness of the conflict and to let the South Bend community show their concern for the welfare of their loved ones.

Wall St. raises questions of money, ethics

By ANNA MARIE TABOR
 News Writer

Earning $800,000 per day at the cost of your morals was one of the dilemmas posed to a group of business majors, teachers, and observers at Wednesday night's discussion in the Carroll Hall auditorium.

Saint Mary's student Coleen Ebner introduced the first in a film series that will take place to provide topics for discussion. The main attraction was "Wall Street," a film based on manipulation and greed.

According to main character Gordon Gekko (Michael Douglas), "Greed is good. Greed is right. Greed works. Greed clarifies, cuts through and captures the essence of the evolutionary spirit."

The conversation following the film showed that participating Saint Mary's students and teachers believe otherwise.

Professor William Shannon asked the audience, "Do you think that's what it's like if you want to be in business?" One student replied, "Being at Saint Mary's has helped us to develop our ethics. Money isn't that important."

Beyond the obvious theme of money-hungry brokers who go for the jugular, the movie exhibits a pattern of moral devaluations. Ann Plamondon, professor of communication, dance, and theater, cited devaluations of human relationships, hard work and creativity, in her program notes.

Taking these thoughts into consideration, the discussion shifted from a mini-debate about stocks to sexism. Parallels were drawn between "Wall Street" and "Pretty Woman" in which women are portrayed only as secretaries and subordinate and often promiscuous characters.

Shannon stated, "That movie (Wall Street) trivialized women. What kind of message is that sending to the women today? Is that what you're going to be after you graduate?"

Kelly Brantman, a Saint Mary's student, saw "a theme of the tendency to conform." A topic easily identified with, students recognized the dangers of emulating other people.

The discussion concluded with a penetrating evaluation of greed. One student expressed her amazement that "someone can sit and look at his food when there are starving people in the world." Speakers admitted to being greedy themselves, but not to the extent of Gekko.

The purpose of Saint Mary's College Popular Culture Group is to "build community among students and faculty," said Shannon. It is funded by the Department of Business Administration and Economics.

Students say police hold grudge

By KELLEY TUTHILL
News Editor

Antwon Lark and James Dillard were not the only students who believe they were mistreated by the South Bend Police on August 31.

Another student was also arrested for "no reason," while standing on the sidewalk on Notre Dame Avenue, said junior Patrick Kelly.

The student was treated roughly and suffered injuries to his wrist when he was handcuffed during the course of the arrest, said Kelly.

The arrested student, who asked to remain anonymous, said after the police tried to clear the area of the gatherings, he wandered back to the scene. He was "roughed up," handcuffed and arrested for interfering with the business of a police officer, he said.

"I am confident that the reason I was arrested was to show people that they (the police) meant business," he said.

In the squad car on the way to jail the student said a police officer was verbally abusive.

Another student, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said he was standing on Notre Dame Avenue with his friends when the police told them to go home.

As the student was walking away, an officer asked him if he lived there. Although he said he did not provoke the officers, the student said he was arrested because he was "one or two steps ahead of the others."

During the course of his arrest, the student said an officer threw him against a car and hit him twice in the face. "I didn't do a thing...I didn't say a word," he said.

The student claims he suffered from a cut to the forehead and a black eye.

Students suggest that the police, having been on Notre Dame Avenue all evening, were unable to react professionally to the situation.

"The police were pumped up," said Dillard. "They (the police) were looking for something to do," Lark agreed.

"If the police put limits on parties and were consistent (in enforcing them), they wouldn't get out of control," he added.

"The police were very unprofessional with the students," one student said. "As ratty as students can be, this was uncalled for."

Although junior Michael J. Miller, a witness, is not sure the events of August 31 could be called racial, he did describe the events as "anti-Notre Dame."

"While some [police officers] are professional, with some it is so obvious they hold a grudge against students," he added.

Although Kelly cannot say whether the events of August 31 were racially motivated, he did know "the cops used unnecessary force."

Police

claims police officers beat him and banged his head against the pavement.

Lark said that while he was somewhat under the influence of alcohol, Dillard was relatively sober.

When people are drinking alcohol they can get "out of hand," said Williams. "They don't know what they are doing...attitudes change."

The porch was lit by a light which a police officer allegedly wanted extinguished. According to Lark an officer told the students inside the house to turn off the light and broke the light with his billy club when they did not comply.

Lark said he believes the police officer wanted the light out so that the students who were loitering around the house could not see what was going on.

"They [the police] didn't want you to see what was happening," said Mike Baumer, a resident assistant from Carroll Hall, who witnessed the arrests. "They [the police] deliberately smashed out the light."

One witness who saw Lark's arrest through the window of the house described him as "struggling, really drunk and resisting arrest," however.

"They shouldn't have been there causing trouble in the first place," said another witness. "Race has nothing to do with it."

Dillard saw the police officers hitting Lark and wanted to assist his friend, but was restrained by Miller and Kelly who thought he should not get involved.

A female police officer came over to Dillard and said, "You're someone else who wants to go to jail," according to Kelly and other witnesses.

Three or four police officers allegedly threw Dillard against a house, he said. Although Dillard said he was "not resisting at all," he claims the officers continued to hit him after he was handcuffed.

Baumer said he saw two police officers hold Dillard, while two officers punched him.

"Nothing warrants that kind of abuse," Baumer said.

Dillard also claims that an officer grabbed his genitals while he was handcuffed.

"They slammed him against a wall," said Kelly. "Then they punched him in the side."

"We couldn't believe what was happening," he added.

Once an individual is handcuffed, "officers should only use enough force to effect the arrest," said Williams. They may do "whatever they have to to get the cuffs on." He said that many people continually resist arrest.

Regardless of Lark and Dillard actions, Baumer expressed dismay that they were beaten up after they were cuffed. He does not believe the abuse was racially-motivated because the police also were rough with white students.

Both Dillard and Lark said they, too, sustained injuries from the beatings from the officers.

Lark claims that the police officers pushed him down the porch steps causing him to land face-first on the sidewalk. When handcuffed, he sustained cuts to his wrists. He also said he had scrapes on his back, his ankle was injured, he had a cut on his face, his lip was bleeding, the back of his head was swollen and his fingers were numb from covering his head with his hands.

Dillard said as a result of the officer's beatings his back was sore, he had bruises on his arms, cuts on his legs and sore ribs.

The men called the police "overly aggressive." Although other Notre Dame students were arrested, Lark said that no one else was treated as roughly as they were.

Lark said he was charged with public intoxication and disorderly conduct, while Dillard was charged with resisting arrest, public intoxication and disorderly conduct. A court date is set for October 18.

A student who was in jail at the same time as Lark and Dillard said he was concerned that

I would've bought a Macintosh even without the student discount.

"The first time I saw a Macintosh, I was immediately hooked. It's a work of art.

I saw the student pricing and my next move was obvious: get one.

"Some other computers are cheaper, but they're a pain to learn, and working on them can be a grueling experience. Last year, a friend bought another kind of computer against my advice and has used it for maybe 15 hours. What a waste.

"Macintosh, on the other hand, is a logical extension of the mind. It lets you concentrate on what's in your paper, not on how to get it on paper. You can create professional-looking documents in minutes, and you lose the fear of learning new programs because they all work in the same way.

Massive search in Florida

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two hundred searchers Thursday poked through swamps and wooded areas around the apartment of a prime suspect in the killings of five college students.

Police ordered the search while defending themselves from charges that they had botched the case.

The search began about 8:30 a.m. and police expected to take two days to cover nine areas totaling about 10 square miles near the residence of University of Florida freshman Edward Lewis Humphrey.

"It's a long, slow process," said Alachua County Sheriff's Office spokesman Lt. Spencer Mann.

Searchers found some objects before the hunt ended for the day, but there was no immediate word on whether they were connected to the slayings, said Mann. He declined to describe the objects.

Searchers included Florida National Guardsmen carrying metal detectors and rods for probing the ground, sailors from the Orlando Naval Training Center, military reserve officers and police from state and local agencies. Two helicopters aided searchers in the 90-degree heat, and about 10 dog teams were called in.

The dogs were looking for body parts, but most searchers said police have been secretive with them about what evidence was sought.

"They really haven't told us what to look for," said Alan Gourlay, a gunnery sergeant with the Reserve Officers Training Corps at UF.

The searchers said they were glad to be involved, however.

"It's kind of a challenge," said Christie Van Cura, who just graduated from boot camp at the Navy training center. "We're helping find this crazy man. It makes you feel important."

Once again Thursday, police were secretive about their progress, and refused to comment directly on reports their case may have been badly compromised when investigators first interrogated Humphrey, 18, following his arrest on charges of assaulting his grandmother.

Newspaper reports have said Humphrey was questioned in the Brevard County Jail without an attorney present, and the public defenders who finally showed up were sent away when prosecutors dropped the charges, only to refile them when the lawyers left. Humphrey was not brought to court until 36 hours after he was taken into custody.

Humphrey reportedly implicated one of his multiple personalities in the slayings and told police where to look for some evidence.

But the mishandling of that interrogation may have forced police to abandon all clues obtained from it and start their probe all over, the Gainesville Sun said Thursday.

Members of the Gainesville task force who interviewed Humphrey two weeks ago are being isolated from the rest of the 175-member investigative team, the Sun said.

An unidentified law enforcement source told the newspaper the task force is attempting to find evidence linking Humphrey to the murders independent of any incriminating statements made during interviews in the jail. They fear a judge could find that the improper interrogation had contaminated the entire case, the Sun said.

Lt. Sadie Darnell called the report partially incorrect but refused to comment further. She defended the seemingly slow progress of the investigation.

"If you look at other serial killers, the cases took a long time to solve, after very laborious investigations," she said.

Humphrey, whom police insist is only one of eight suspects, remains jailed in the Aug. 30 beating of his grandmother. He also faces warrants in an October 1988 armed burglary and attempted rape in Indian River County and an Aug. 25 assault on two male UF students.

The mutilated bodies of Sonja Larson, 18, and Christina Powell, 17, were found Aug. 26 in their off-campus apartment. The next morning, Christa Hoyt, 18, was found decapitated in her nearby duplex. Manuel Taboada, and Tracy Paules, both 23, were found dead Aug. 28.

the two men were not allowed access to medical services. He said Lark "was a mess" with a cut on his head.

"We had no chance to seek medical help," said Lark.

While in jail Lark and Dillard said they were treated differently than other Notre Dame students. Although they claim other students were released earlier in the night, Dillard was released at 6 a.m. September 1 and Lark at 8 a.m., even though friends were waiting with bail money.

"It was strange that others were released earlier," said Kelly.

Several students, including Kelly, said they were at the police station to bail Lark and Dillard out at 2:30 a.m. September 1.

The two men have contacted several agencies to seek aid and advice.

Kenneth Durgans, director of Minority Student Affairs, said that he spoke to the men and referred them to the Office of Student Affairs.

"If it did occur," said Durgans, "I would hope that the University would support the students." He hopes that the events of August 31 will soon come to light. "I hope all parties responsible will come together to ensure a fair investigation."

Jeffrey Shoup, assistant director of residence life, also spoke to Lark and Dillard. He said that he served as a resource person to the students to let them know of their options if they chose to proceed with a case against the South Bend Police Department

At the present time Shoup said the Office of Student Affairs is investigating the incident.

The students also contacted Timothy Rouse of the local chapter of the National Association of Colored People (NAACP). He said the group's legal committee is looking into the issue.

Richard Blackmon of the NAACP's legal committee was unavailable for comment.

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Accent Editor, Photo Editor, and Saint Mary's Editor. Commentaries, letters and Inside Column present the views of the authors. Column space is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus through letters, is encouraged.

Ticket distribution creates problems

Just as football ticket distribution occurs annually, so too does speculation and controversy concerning Saint Mary's students and their place in the distribution process.

A problems with the current system involves the students who are members of the various clubs gaining access to the stadium without a ticket. Cheerleaders, trainers, students on athletic scholarships, and other stadium employees are all sent football ticket applications though they are not allowed to buy tickets. Presumably the tickets they buy either go unused or illegally sold for profit. The football ticket office recognizes this problem but has not effectively solved it. Staff must manually sort through over 10,000 ticket applications looking for the students who are prohibited from purchasing tickets.

Another problem involves married students. Since no computer system exists to cross-reference students names, students married to other students can purchase four tickets if each spouse presents an application and marriage license.

Although there is inefficiency in the distribution process, Saint Mary's is not the problem. Saint Mary's women are an integral part of the community. Having Saint Mary's students wait until the end to buy their tickets would not guarantee better tickets for Notre Dame students since all of Saint Mary's is smaller than a single Notre Dame class. It would, however, formalize the misconception that Saint Mary's women are less important than their Notre Dame counterparts.

When Notre Dame admitted women eighteen years ago, it did so with the intention of enriching the community, not replacing or isolating Saint Mary's. The ticket office has reserved more tickets than ever for students to prevent a shortage. All students will receive tickets. The community should focus on another national championship rather than on who should be sitting where in the student section.

LETTERS

Schools unite in football stands

Dear Editor:

I, as a Saint Mary's woman, felt compelled to respond to Nina Delorenzo's letter regarding Saint Mary's student access to football tickets (The Observer, Sept. 10).

Delorenzo states that Saint Mary's and Notre Dame are equal. This is definitely true. But it is only part of the truth. Saint Mary's and Notre Dame are, by Father Sorin's and the Holy Cross Sisters' intentions, a community, sharing the same academic and spiritual goals, as well as many traditions. One of these traditions is supporting our football team.

If we are to truly be a community, we cannot put one school ahead of the other. Saint Mary's women did have to pay roughly $20 more for our tickets. This, to my understanding, is because Notre Dame students have an extra fee included in their tuition for the athletic programs. If this is the case, I can see why the administration would feel obligated to charge Saint Mary's women more. Regardless of the price paid for the tickets, we are still part of the same student body. This ND/SMC student body has worked for years to improve relations within it. We learn from each other and grow through our relationships. And how better to meet each other than in a place where our common spirit and pride in our schools join—the football stands?

If Delorenzo's wish to separate our student body was accepted, this important aspect of student life would be abolished. That, I believe, would be a tragedy. More importantly, it would go against the wishes and traditions of both Fr. Sorin and the Holy Cross Sisters.

If Delorenzo wishes to have the administration "review the ticket distribution process and its obvious flaw," she should concentrate on the system's real problem. It is terribly inefficient. Ropes should be used to block out lines for the students to follow. The current practice of allowing a mob to converge on one open door is ridiculous. Crowd control devices do work. Finally, many headaches would be relieved if more than four windows were open.

Exclusion of Saint Mary's students is an example of hypocritical attitude

Dear Editor:

I became upset after reading the letter written by Nina Delorenzo regarding Saint Mary's students purchasing Notre Dame football tickets (The Observer, September 4). She is hypocritical in stating that these two schools are equal and yet feels that students of Saint Mary's should not be able to purchase football tickets at the same time as Notre Dame students.

This is not an "unfair process." Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students work together in all aspects of life here. Why should we be "pushed aside" from the excitement of football season simply because we are not sharing the same campus?

DeLorenzo also stated that we add to the competition for seats. This I have found to be untrue. In the past two years that I have been here to purchase tickets, it has been known that the ticket distributors pass out the tickets randomly. Camping out does not even ensure great seats (with the exception of seniors). So, ultimately, this "competition" doesn't exist.

In recent years, students and faculty have been trying to improve ND/SMC relations to make these two schools more unified. It is people like Delorenzo who hinder this process and create more problems than needed.

TAILGATING T

MICHELLE BERNINGER
accent writer

Anyone can cook. The essential ingredients include: persistence, desire to learn, practice, patient (and not too picky) eaters, and a dash of creativity. It's also easier when starvation is your only other option.

Yet cooking, especially with some friends, can be enjoyable—even enough to make you try again. The following are some rather quick and simple recipes which might make tasty additions to any tailgate party. Now, you can have even more fun before the games!

Traditional Chex Party Mix
This is the throw-in-everything-you-can-find version. The more the merrier.

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine or butter

1 1/4 tsp. seasoned salt

4 1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

2 2/3 cups Corn Chex brand cereal

2 2/3 cups Rice Chex brand cereal

2 2/3 cups Oat Chex brand cereal

1 cup salted mixed nuts

1 cup pretzel sticks

Preheat oven to 250 degrees.

In an open roasting pan, melt margarine in oven. Stir in seasoned salt and Worcestershire sauce. Gradually add cereals, nuts, and pretzels, stirring until all pieces are evenly coated.

Bake one hour stirring every 15 minutes. Spread on absorbent paper to cool. Store in airtight container.

Some additional possibilities

(one cup of each):

M&Ms (peanut or plain)

Nabisco Nips

Chocolate or peanut butter chips

Cheese Ritz Bits

Caramel Chocolate Chip Brownies

These take a little more work, but the result is definitely worth the effort.

14 oz. light caramels (about 40)

1/3 cup evaporated milk

1 cup chocolate cake mix

3/4 cup melted butter

1/3 cup evaporated milk

1 cup chopped nuts

1 bag chocolate chips

On a double boiler, stir

caramels and 1/3 cup evaporated milk until melted. Mix cake mix, butter, and 1/3 cup evaporated milk. Add nuts and stir until just mixed. Spread half of this mixture into greased and floured 13x9 inch pan.

Bake at 350 degrees for six minutes.

Sprinkle chocolate chips over baked batter, and then pour on caramel mixture. Crumble remaining batter on top. Bake an additional 15-18 minutes at 350 degrees. Refrigerate at least 30 minutes before cutting.

Buffalo Wings

This is my roommate's mom's best recipe—spicy and delicious.

6 to 7 lbs. chicken wings

4 tbsp. butter

1 small bottle hot sauce

1 tbsp. white vinegar

Bleu cheese dressing

Cut chicken wings in half lengthwise. Remove tip of wing and discard. Place in baking pan and bake at 375 degrees for about 45 minutes. Turn over once for even browning.

Drain any fat.

Combine butter, hot sauce, and vinegar, and blend. Pour over wings and continue baking for an additional 45 minutes until brown. Baste often. Serve with bleu cheese dressing.

Vegetable Pizza

It's low calorie, but just as good.

Assorted chopped vegetables

(carrots, broccoli, radishes, and

cauliflower work

well)

Cream cheese (soften later)

Pillsbury crescent roll dough

Spread out dough on flat

baking sheet, pinching pieces together to make a flat crust.

Bake as directed and then cool.

Mix chopped vegetables with cream cheese. Make sure cream cheese holds vegetables together. Spread mixture on crescent crusts and chill for 30-

60 minutes. Cut in pieces and serve cold.

Dips to liven up your chips and raw vegetables:

Guacamole Dip

2 ripe avocados

Juice of 1 lemon

Ryder truck: No, it's not a New Kids' concert, but merely thousands of screaming souls clamoring for beer at an undergraduate tailgater. Hint: Always ask a girl to get you fermented hops, as those Meister Brau-mongers don't take kindly to other males swiping their luke-warm elixir.

TIPS FOR IRISH FANS

1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
 2 tbsp. mayonnaise
 1 tbsp. taco seasoning
 1/8 tsp. garlic powder
 Salt and pepper
 4 cherry tomatoes, chopped
 Peel and mash avocado.
 Squeeze lemon juice over top.
 Add remaining ingredients.
 Blend well by hand. Serve immediately. To keep from turning brown, place seed from avocado in dip.

Vegetable Dip
 1 1/2 cups sour cream
 12 cup mayonnaise
 2 tsp. Dijon mustard
 1 tsp. dry dill
 1/4 cup scallions (thinly sliced green onions)
 2 tsp. lemon juice
 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/4 tsp. pepper
 Mix all ingredients together and serve.

Jello Cubes
 These would add a lot more than flavor to your tailgater. They make for great tossing and throwing fun. You can have different teams with different colors--whoever has the most jello stuck to them at the end loses. Just follow the directions on the jello box using water (or an ingredient of your choice), and add Knox Box gelatin accordingly. Cut into cubes after chilling.

All of these recipes will provide a tasty complement to the great amount of libations consumed during your hours of tailgating. Hope you enjoy it.

Parking: Those who evade the steaming chaos (known locally as the beloved Debartolo Quad) soon encounter ever-helpful law enforcement officers. These guardians of the eternal flame of justice cheerfully direct fans to secret, yet convenient parking spots such as Kokomo, Mishawaka, or Quebec.

Band: Of course that's your father who leaps in front of the Notre Dame Marching Band with handy camcorder buzzing furiously. Merely claim no relation to the madman and taunt the musicians with witty tales of debauchery.

Michigan fans: Although tempted to hurl implements of destruction at visiting marauders, stay your hand; mere ridicule pales before the mighty hand of God, which will surely smite all enemy teams into dust. Instead, lend the fools a comforting shoulder, as there will be much wailing and gnashing of teeth.

Alumni: Surely no finer use for Winnebagos was intended. Alumni of all girths hardily scarf down kielbasa while blitz-krieger the wet bar in front of mammoth entertainment systems. Just yell "Look there's Lou!" and see how many liquor bottles can be liberated behind turned heads.

Modern-day Christian flower child reflects on life

At two a.m., I was walking the cocker spaniel, Darby O'Gill on the North Quad, when a jogger, shirtless, his body wet with sweat, came up from behind.

"What's happening?" I said, uncertain who this great hulk of a lad was. I finally recognized him as Matthew, a recent N.D. grad now working in South Bend, whom I used to know when he wasn't so rugged.

When I lived in PW, Mathew used to drop in to visit me as Nicodemus visited Jesus at night. In those conversations with the Master, I presume that Nicodemus was the avid listener to whom truth was taught.

Last night, when Matthew joined me in following Darby O'Gill, barking at shadows, on a walk, he was the principal talker, and I was the avid listener; sometimes I interrupted him with questions, then listened some more.

I wasn't a good listener. Older people, asking questions, forget to listen because their minds are on other questions they want to remember to ask. Once they have heard the answers, they want to make comments to show how wise they are.

In the construction company he has started, Matthew is working as a jack-of-all-trades, turning unused space that people have in their homes into things of beauty that promise to be a joy forever. His friends tell him, "That's all right for now, but what will you do later?"

Even as a bachelor of arts who majored in philosophy, Matthew feels he could stay

Father Robert Griffin

Letters to a Lonely God

happy all his life being creative and clever, working at the great variety of projects he takes on. He makes his construction work sound poetic and romantic, as well as part of the American way. Wasn't there more of Willy Loman in the front stoop he added onto his house than there was in all the sales he ever made?

I said, "Are your parents endlessly supportive of you in all your endeavors?"

"Not endlessly supportive," he answered, "but we're very good friends. They respect me for not cleaning out their refrigerator more than once every two weeks to keep myself from starving to death."

I encouraged him to start making plans about going back to school. "You have an active mind," I said. "As a writer, thinker, guru, or mystic, you'd probably enjoy being a prophet; if so, you need professional accreditation. The world will not willingly listen to you unless you have the education that proves you have the right to call yourself a specialist."

"The greatest prophet of them all was a carpenter," he replied with a hoot of laughter. Listening to him talk about Jesus in conflict with the professionals of the establishment in His, day I could see that Matthew is a Christian believer.

When he finished making his act of faith, I said: "If you can prove to me you have the power to raise Lazarus from the dead, I'll agree that the example of Jesus proves that Matthew does not need graduate degrees to prove he's a prophet." I was afraid I'd disappointed him by a remark that showed how banal I am. Instead, he said something touchingly humble, to show how unworthy he is, in his own judgement, to call himself a child of God.

Recalling our conversation in the afterglow of hindsight, I wondered if Matthew and I were standing on different sides of the generation gap, offering each other membership in the dead poets' society. I was telling him, "Carpe diem!" and "Gather ye rosebuds while ye may/Old Time is still a-flying." He was telling me that the mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation, and that he wanted "to live deep and suck out all the marrow of life...to drive life into a corner..."

He reminded me of a flower child out of the 1960s. None of the flower children discerned shades of the prison house beginning to close on the growing boys and girls. Their message was, "Make love, not war," and "Give peace a chance." The age of Aquarius turned out to be brief. In the words of their greatest protest song: "Where have all the flowers gone?" The answer, my friend, is blowing in the wind. The answer is blowing in the wind.

Could Matthew be called a flower child of the 1990s? If so, he's a Christian flower child.

"I could jog for hours," he told me, "because as I jog, I pray." To help him pray better, I offered him an insight that was once offered me. "Because God is invisible to us, we pray in order to make ourselves visible to Him. When we pray, we should be mindful of God being mindful of us."

The miracle of the loaves and fishes, Matthew has decided, is a miracle in so far as it shows people being generous, since, in the presence of Jesus, each of them unselfishly shared the meal he was keeping hidden in his pocket.

"That miracle means more than that," I protested; but for Matthew, the miracle of sharing is divine enough. Then he explained the meaning of Jesus dying on the Cross. "He showed us forgiveness. The world is so bad off because people are unwilling to forgive one another."

"Let the sunshine in," we used to hear in the cast recording of "Hair." "To see Thee more clearly.. to love Thee more dearly, day by day," was one of the songs from "Godspell" endlessly played at Mass. "Jesus Christ Superstar" is the golden oldie that Matthew sometimes uses as a replacement for Mass.

In the generation when these three Broadway musicals were competing for our attention, who in the world ever figured out that before peace can begin, there must first be forgiveness? How can we conscientiously forgive ourselves, unless we have first asked for, and received, forgiveness?

I hope Matthew forgives me for publishing our private conversation. Why should I let the best preaching I have heard lately go down the drain like the flower that blushes unseen and wastes its sweetness on the desert air?

How can you tell a man, happy with what he's doing, "Don't waste your time on the small stuff." Should I have said, "Matthew, had we but world enough, and time, this hobby-lobby, lad, were no crime..."

From his side of the generation gap, would he be able to appreciate the words of Kazantzakis, approaching death: "I feel like doing what Bergson says—going to the street corner and holding out my hand to start begging from the passer-by: 'Alms, brothers. A quarter of an hour from each of you.' Oh, for a little time, just enough to let me finish my work."

Before saying good night to Matthew, I said, "The Synoptic Gospels all mention the love Jesus showed the children and the praise He gave them. Only Matthew tells us that the guardian angels of the children see the face of the Father in heaven." I hoped he understood that instead of giving him a hug, I was giving him a left-handed compliment by praising the insight of his patron saint. Who wants to hug a jogger on whom the sweat is drying?

Men's tennis travels to Navy

By DAVE MCMAHON
Sports Writer

Chuck Coleman

After a season in which the NCAA Tournament committee snubbed the Notre Dame men's tennis team from post-season play, the Irish open the 1990-91 fall season this weekend by traveling to the Navy National All-Conference Tournament at Annapolis, Maryland.

The first outing for the Irish will be a difficult test, as junior All-American David DiLucia will not make the trip for the Irish. Nor will sophomore Andy Zurcher, who is projected to play the season at number three or four. Because of an NCAA rule that allows each player to play in a maximum of thirty matches per season, DiLucia will instead play in the Texas All-American on Sept. 28-31.

Zurcher, who won the number five single flight at last year's Navy Tournament, is sidelined from the trip due to a bout with mononucleosis and is not expected to return until mid-October.

"Andy worked harder on his game over the summer than anyone else, so we really could have used him this weekend," said fourth-year coach Bob Bayliss. "But our primary concern is getting him healthy again."

Without DiLucia and Zurcher, Notre Dame will rely on three freshmen and two sophomores who have never traveled with the team. Sophomore Chuck Coleman will play at number one singles and will team with freshman Todd Wilson to form the top doubles combination. Coleman, who compiled a 33-13

NCAA tournament.

Bayliss learned that schedule strength was a determining factor, so he could not pass up the chance to add two prestigious tournaments to this season's schedule. The Blue-Grey Classic will feature the Top 16 teams in the nation, and the HEB Collegiate Classic will boast a powerful field as well. Bayliss often questions his decision to schedule these two tournaments, but feels that the team needed a schedule of such caliber in order to qualify for the NCAA's.

record last year, welcomes the opportunity to play in the top spot for the Irish.

"I played at number one a few times last season when Dave was hurt," said a relaxed Coleman. "I feel pretty confident going in to this tournament and we should be able to see how we match up against some pretty tough competition."

Along with the Irish, who finished last season ranked 19th in the Volvo Tennis poll, West Virginia is expected to put up a strong showing. Although Notre Dame will play without two of its top four singles players with DiLucia and Zurcher out, Bayliss thinks the competition will help his younger players.

"For the freshmen, it'll be good to see them play in a match situation. They're going to contribute a lot to this team, but it's just a matter of playing a few matches."

Early preparation will be a key for the team this season as it faces what Bayliss calls the toughest schedule in the nation. After compiling a 7-4 record last year against Top 25 teams, the Irish were shut out of the

"I couldn't pass up the opportunity to play some of the best schools in the South and in the West," said Bayliss. "We'll be able to play some strong teams on neutral courts, which should help during tournament time."

Sophomore Mark Schmidt will play at number two singles while classmate Ron Rosas will fill the number three slot. Freshman Tom North is expected to play number four singles, sophomore Ryan Lee should play five, and senior Ryan Wenger will start at six. With so many players who haven't had much experience, Bayliss doesn't want to put any added pressure on his troops.

"We're just looking for balance and someone to emerge and shore up the singles lineup," said Bayliss. "Without two of our top four players I don't expect us to be a dominant team this weekend. I have some trepidation, but I'm also excited to see how we do the first time out."

The Navy field includes Virginia, Indiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas A&M.

Martin's friend was drunk on night of fatal crash, according to doctor

PORT CRANE, N.Y. (AP) — A medical examiner testified Thursday that William Reedy's blood-alcohol level was well above the legal limit when the pickup truck he is accused of driving crashed near Billy Martin's home last Christmas killing the former New York Yankees manager.

Defense attorney Jon Blechman contends Reedy was not driving Martin's pickup truck and was not drunk. Reedy, a Detroit bar owner and Martin's longtime friend, is charged with driving while intoxicated in connection with the fatal wreck.

Later Thursday, Blechman began calling the defenses first witnesses. Reedy told a WBNG-TV reporter he will take the stand, possibly as early as Friday.

Onondaga County Medical Examiner Erik Mitchell told a Town of Fenton Court jury that Reedy's blood-alcohol level as measured by the hospital immediately after the accident was .16 percent. The legal limit in New York for driving while intoxicated is .10.

Mitchell testified about the hospital results over Blechman's objections.

On Wednesday, a state police expert testified their test showed Reedy had a blood-alcohol level of .10. The expert said the test had a margin of error which could put the blood-alcohol level at anywhere between .0975 percent and .13 percent.

Mitchell said he presumed the hospital test used blood serum rather than whole blood which the state police used, which could account for the higher reading.

Blechman argued that the only test that could be allowed by law was the one done by state police.

Mitchell also testified that he evaluated the injuries to Reedy and Martin four days after the accident. He said the injuries suggested to him that Reedy was driving and Martin was a passenger.

Blechman has said the 53-year-old Reedy only told investigators he was driving to protect Martin, whom he thought was still alive. The five-time former New York Yankees manager had a long history of alcohol-related problems, including public fights with his ballplayers.

Several witnesses who arrived on the scene minutes after the crash have testified that they found Reedy piled on top of Martin on the passenger side of the pickup truck, which was lying driver-side up in a ditch at the driveway entrance to Martin's farm.

If convicted, Reedy faces a mandatory fine of between $350 and $500, revocation of his driver's license for at least six months and a possible jail sentence of up to a year.

Martin, 61, died of head and neck injuries.

Martin's widow, Jilluann, who has been attending the trial, has filed a wrongful death lawsuit against the town and Reedy.

California will face an angry Hurricane team

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — A season-opening loss at Brigham Young has left the Miami Hurricanes with "bad feelings and bad vibrations" as they prepare for Saturday's game at California, quarterback Craig Erickson said.

"From the secretaries to the equipment managers, there's a bit more of a sense that you don't take things for granted," Erickson said.

The 28-21 loss at BYU gave Miami an 0-1 record for the first time since 1985, and it dropped the Hurricanes from first in The Associated Press poll to 10th, their lowest ranking in three years.

"When we lose, it's like talking about our mothers," defensive end Eric Miller said. "There'll be some mean people on that field against Cal."

The Hurricanes have lost only three of their past 55 regular-season games.

"It's something we're not used to doing down here, so it's very tough," Erickson said. "Any time it happens, it creates a lot of bad feelings and bad vibrations and shakes things up."

Ordinarily, complacency could be a problem against Cal. The Bears beat Wisconsin 28-12 in their opener but were drubbed at Miami last year, 31-3.

Now, however, listlessness is

AP Photo

Quarterback Craig Erickson (7) and the rest of the Miami Hurricanes will try to put last week's loss behind them when they play California.

not among Coach Dennis Erickson's concerns.

"It's like anything in life — you get slapped in the face, and you wake up a little bit," Erickson said. "Sometimes a loss sobers you up pretty fast."

The coach predicted that Miami will play well Saturday.

"I still think we're a good team, but we've got to go out and prove it," he said. "We haven't proven that we're anything yet."

Miami gave up 474 yards to the Cougars, managed only 2.6 yards per carry rushing and allowed three sacks. Erickson said he planned no lineup changes against Cal.

Miami won the national championship last year with one loss; Erickson said.

Spartans plan to confuse Orangemen with defense

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Michigan State's frenzied defense may look out of control, but it's a calculated chaos designed to confuse and conquer opponents.

For Syracuse, the key to defeating the 19th-ranked Spartans on Saturday will be not to succumb to their maddening defensive tactics, say the Orangemen.

"If you don't play assignment football, they've got you," said offensive guard Gary McCummings. "They'll have you so confused. You'll be chasing them all over the field and have no idea what you're doing."

Syracuse redshirt freshman quarterback Marvin Graves expects to be the primary target of Michigan State's disconcerting defense.

"If we worry about what we have to do and not what they're doing, we'll be all right," said Graves. "If we execute, they have to stop us."

That's easier said than done, Syracuse Coach Dick MacPherson said as his unranked Orangemen (1-1) prepared for the nationally-televised contest against Michigan State, which will be opening its 1990 season.

"Don't be surprised if we get disrupted. It's not us, it's them. They do it to everybody," said MacPherson.

"That's part of the game plan. They come flying in from all over the place. I'm not talking about crazy football. I'm talking about well designed schemes," he said.

The Spartans are coached by George Perles, who as defensive coordinator with the NFL's Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1970s designed the stunt 4-3 defense that became known as "The Steel Curtain."

Perles has duplicated the stunt 4-3 at Michigan State, which is 19-3-2 in Big Ten Conference games the past three seasons. Last year, the Spartans were the league's leading defensive team, limiting opponents to just 86 rushing yards per game. They were sixth nationally in scoring defense, giving up 12.6 points per game, while recording a league-leading 39 turnovers.

The Spartans will show an opponent dozens of different combinations of blocking schemes, blitzes and stunts using its four down linemen and three linebackers.

"They best way we can describe their defense is that they run plays," said MacPherson. "They don't come out and say, 'Here's the formation. We're going to play this front, this coverage and this linebacker adjustment. They'll call a play and whatever you got out, here country running last year.

Senior Jenny Ledrick, who will skip Saturday's meet due to injury, might be the team's best runner, but will have to overcome those injuries to succeed.

The Irish will once again face a very competitive schedule as they will host both the National Catholics Invitational and the Notre Dame Invitational. These meets will feature such top flight schools as Villanova (last year's NCAA champion), Providence, Boston College, and DePaul.

"The National Catholics meet will be a better indicator of where we're at because we'll be running against teams such as Loyola and Marquette, who are more toward our level," said Connelly.

"Our major goal is to win the MCC championships. Everything is focused toward running well on October 27," said Connelly of the meet to be held in Detroit.

ND volleyball faces crucial test

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

This weekend's Big Four Classic in Bloomington, In. is very important for the Notre Dame women's volleyball team.

What the Irish need to establish is consistency. They can't afford to get in a pattern of having a terrible weekend (as they did at the Washington State Invitational) and one great weekend, i.e. last weekend's championship of the Notre Dame Invitational.

Granted, playing only on weekends right now makes it a bit tougher to develop that consistency. Still, it's something the Irish must do if they are to reach their goal of being a Top 20 team.

"Last weekend was a big confidence builder for us," said head coach Art Lambert. "But, we're still not there as far as consistency."

The Irish will take on Kentucky at 6 p.m. on Friday and then will battle Louisville at the same time Saturday night. Kentucky was ranked number 29 in pre-season AVCA (American Volleyball Coaches Association) rankings.

The Wildcats beat the Irish in four games last year, 15-12, 13-15, 15-7 and 15-13. They return four starters from last year's 24-11 squad. The Irish haven't faced Louisville for three years. The Cardinals were 21-12 last season also return a good number of starters with five.

"Both these teams are beatable," said Lambert. "The key for us this weekend and for the rest of the season is the middle. The hitting and the blocking need to improve. The faster it improves, the better we'll be."

Sophomore Jessica Fiebelkorn anchors the middle for the Irish. In just six matches this year, she's already reached the halfway mark in solo blocks from last year. With 12 so far this season, she should have no trouble passing last year's mark of 25. Her 1.23 block average leads the team.

Fiebelkorn has also had a great deal of success hitting. Her 55 kills leads the team and her kill percentage of .255 is third. The Irish have to have a good performance from Fiebelkorn for success this weekend.

The Irish may also get a lift in the middle from freshman Molly Stark. Stark, who Lambert describes as, "a tremendous athlete" has played well when she has been in the line-up. Her three solo blocks and ten assists are second on the club. In the championship match against Western Michigan last weekend she registered one solo and four assists, as well as four kills.

On the outside, the Irish will continue to look primarily to seniors Tracey Shelton and Colleen Wagner (34 kills). Shelton, last weekend's tournament MVP, is second in kills with 48. Her high leap and powerful swing make for a potent weapon. Marilyn Cragin, who had a career match against Western Michigan (18 kills, .441 hitting percentage) is the type of dominating player that can frustrate the opposition when she's on. The anticipated return of Jennifer Slosar will give the Irish

Women's golf will compete in Illinois State Invitational

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's golf team will head to Normal, Illinois this weekend to compete in the Illinois State University Invitational. The seventeen team invite includes strong teams from Northern Illinois, Purdue, Michigan State, Illinois State, University of Illinois, and Southern Illinois.

Irish Coach Tom Hanlon is optimistic about the teams chances.

"If we play our best we could challenge for one of the top six spots," Hanlon says.

Expected to post low scores for the Irish are senior captain Roberta Bryer, senior Pandora Fecko, sophomore Kathy Phares, and freshman Crissy Klein.

Last weekend, the team finished third in the Lady Wolverines Invitational behind Michigan and Wisconsin. Roberta Bryer, low scorer for the Irish, finished third overall.

Junior Allison Wojnas finished thirteenth and sophomores Cappy Mack and Kathy Phares tied for fourteenth. In the last two years, the team's scores have dropped each tournament and Coach Hanlon believes this will continue through the weekend.

"We are a young team, but we are very tournament tough," he says.

Women's soccer squad prepares to rebound vs. Valpo

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team will try to rebound from its last weekend's southern-fried debacle as it takes on Valparaiso and Washington University at Alumni Field this weekend.

So far this season, the youthful Irish have compiled a 1-2 record. The one Notre Dame victory came in the first regular-season game, as the Irish trounced Division II power Northeast Missouri State 5-1 at Alumni Field.

However, the Irish were sent home from their recent road trip without a win by Top 20 hosts Duke and UNC-Greensboro. In addition to dropping the two decisions, the Irish were nearly shut out in both games, a fate averted by Marianne Giolitto's penalty shot against Greensboro.

Yet, in their nascent varsity history, the Irish women are nearly unbeatable at home.

"This weekend is a good chance to see how we react after having such a rough time last weekend," related Notre Dame head coach Chris Petrucelli. "This will be a good test of character. Hopefully, we'll be able to get some good touches and have more space to work on our offense. These two games are a real chance for us to get our confidence back after the shell-shock we went through last weekend."

"Last weekend, we were intimidated," related senior co-captain Mimi Suba. "But we looked back at our best efforts, and remembered what we accomplished in preseason. We know we can play."

Valparaiso, who will take on the Irish at 4:45 p.m. on Friday at Alumni Field, is a club team, and poses a tough challenge to

Chris Petrucelli

Notre Dame's drive for regional prominence.

"It's early in the season, and there is not much information available on Valparaiso," explained coach Petrucelli, "but I think that because we are Notre Dame, everybody gets up to play us."

"We need to remember to control our game," concurred

Suba. "If we play like we can, we can play with anybody. The team gets along well, and we support each other well. It's still the beginning of the season - we need some time, and then the rest of the season should be pretty good."

Washington University, which faces the Irish at 11:45 Sunday morning, is a varsity program in only its second year of existence. Still, the team is the product of a renowned winning soccer tradition. The Washington men's team has made more than one trip to the Division III NCAA championships.

"There is a very good soccer tradition in St. Louis, and also at Washington University," added coach Chris Petrucelli. "They are certainly motivated to play us, and it's going to be a good game. Both of these teams are definitely excited to play us."

Still, it would be premature to dismiss the Irish as reeling and unable to recover from their first two losses of the season. Quite to the contrary, Notre Dame has put in a good week of practice, and wants to quickly start winning again. Perhaps more importantly, the Irish are healthy.

"For the first time since the first day of preseason, we're all healthy. We don't have anybody on our team who could not play right now because of an injury," noted a pleased coach Petrucelli.

NOTES: The times of this weekend's games have each been moved fifteen minutes early. Thus, while schedules may read Valparaiso, Friday at 5 p.m. and Washington University, Sunday at 12 noon, the proper times are 4:45 p.m. and 11:45 a.m. respectively. Both contests will take place at Alumni Field.

Strawberry leads Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Darryl Strawberry's bat and arm dominated the dream matchup between Dwight Gooden and Doug Drabek, and the New York Mets moved back within 1 1/2 games of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East, beating the Pirates 6-3 Thursday night.

Strawberry hit a three-run homer for his 100th RBI and threw out Barry Bonds at the plate as the Mets completed a two-game sweep of the Pirates and tied a team record with their 11th straight victory at home. New York is 50-22 at Shea Stadium, the best home record in baseball.

The Mets and Pirates finish the season with three games at Pittsburgh.

Gooden (17-6) survived a shaky start and went on to win for the 14th time in his last 15 decisions, giving up 10 hits and three runs in 7 2-3 innings.

Drabek (19-6) lasted only four innings. He gave up four runs on six hits. John Franco set a Mets' record with his 32nd save in 36 chances, breaking Jesse Orosco's mark of 31 in 1984.

Strawberry and Bonds, candidates for the MVP award, put on a dazzling display of offense and defense before a season-high crowd of 51,079.

Bonds went 4-for-4, drove in two runs, stole two bases and robbed Gregg Jefferies of a home run with a leaping catch over the left-field fence in the sixth inning.

Strawberry gave the Mets a 3-2 lead with his 34th home run in the fourth inning after Tommy Herr singled and Dave Magadan walked with none out.

Bonds singled leading off the fourth and moved to second on a sacrifice. One out later, Mike Lavalliere singled to right but Strawberry nailed Bonds coming in standing up at the plate.

The experienced squad includes a solid top seven, including seniors Pat Kearns and Matt Ronzone, along with fifth year senior O'Connor.

Soccer squad will attempt to upset tough Billikens

By HUGH MUNDY
Sports Writer

Following a frustrating 2-2 tie with the Loyola Ramblers on Wednesday night, the Notre Dame men's soccer team returns home Saturday to face St. Louis University.

The nationally-ranked Billikens will bring a squad described by Irish coach Mike Berticelli as "one of the most dangerous in the country" into Krause Stadium.

Nevertheless, Berticelli remains optimistic. "Playing such an outstanding team can only serve as a positive opportunity," he remarked.

The Irish coach also believes facing the veteran St. Louis squad will help his relatively young team overcome the inexperience which has hindered its early season performances.

"Against Loyola, we made some mistakes because we are so young," Berticelli noted. "I was disappointed with the tie because we let them (Loyola) back into the game.

Despite their underdog role, the Irish remain focused on the prospects of an upset.

"If we play with consistency," Berticelli commented, "we're going to catch someone by surprise.

Berticelli cited the emergence of forward Steve LaVigne as well as the continued outstanding play of junior wingback Kenyon Meyer as keys to an Irish victory. "We also need the support of the student body," he said. "It's going to be an outstanding game to watch.

The Irish will continue their season on Monday against V a l p a r a i s o .

Irish host 12th-ranked Georgetown

By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer

In 1989, for the first time in two years, the Notre Dame men's cross country team failed to secure a bid for the NCAA tournament.

But this year, an experienced squad stacked with returning upperclassmen and starring senior captain and All-American Mike O'Connor will make a strong run for an NCAA qualification. The journey down the road to the tournament will begin tomorrow, when the Irish face the Georgetown Hoyas in the season opener on the Burke Memorial Golf Course at 10:30 AM.

Both O'Connor and Irish coach Joe Piante agree that Notre Dame faces a tougher Georgetown team than last year, when the Irish upset the Hoyas 22-33. Notre Dame is currently ranked 13th in the nation, while a Georgetown team highlighted by three All-Americans holds the number twelve spot.

"The rankings show that they must be a little better than us," said Coach Piante, concerning the Hoyas, "so to win would be an upset. It'll be a real close meet."

The meet may be even closer, according to Piante, because of the absence of sophomore J.T. Burke. Burke, who ran in the top seven last year, is recovering from illness and will sit out the first meet of the season.

O'Connor agreed with his coach about Georgetown's strength.

"They are one of the best teams in the country," said O'Connor, "and their people have improved a lot over last year. It will be real close, but we're not backing down. We'll try to race as well as we can on Saturday."

Although they are concerned about the Georgetown meet, the Irish are a team focused on post-season competition.

"Last year, we made some mistakes at the end of the year that hurt us," explained O'Connor. "We had a lot of in-

The Notre Dame women's cross country team will face a stern test in its opening meet against national power Georgetown Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Burke Memorial Golf Course. Georgetown finished fourth in the NCAA championships last year and is considered to be one of the top three teams in the nation this year.

Coach Tim Connelly is not optimistic about his team's chances.

"We have a good group this year and we'll be better than last year, but we can't compete with a team like Georgetown yet," Connelly says.

Despite a difficult schedule, the Irish will field a balanced team of upperclassman and newcomers. Leading the way for the Irish will be senior captain Terese Lemanski, who ran in every race last year and showed steady improvement throughout. She will be supported by a pair of promising junior runners Amy Blaising and Diana Bradley.

Blaising ran in every race last year also and finished in the top three on numerous occasions. Bradley will be counted on to bring stability to the team with her consistent middle distant running.

Newly added junior Sarah Esterline and freshman Patricia Villarreal show the most promise of the new runners. Villarreal finished eighth in the state of California in cross

Irish baseball alums to play in exhibition game

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame baseball team will wake up some of its own echoes tonight when it plays an all-star alumni squad, consisting mainly of past Irish baseball players who now are playing professionally.

The Alumni Challenge will be held at 9 p.m. under the lights at Stanley Coveleski Stadium in downtown South Bend. An alumni game for older former baseball players, many who have played in the major leagues, will start at 7 p.m.

Heading the list of participants in the alumni game will be 1989 First-Team All-America choice Dan Peltier, an outfielder who was drafted by the Texas Rangers after leading his team to the 1989 NCAA tournament.

Peltier spent the summer playing for Tulsa, the Rangers' double-A affiliate, at which he hit over .275. Peltier was drafted after his junior year at Notre Dame, and he is back on campus this year finishing up his degree.

Joining Peltier will be his former teammates Pat Pesavento, Erik Madsen, James Sass, Brian Piotrowicz, Ed Lund, Mike Coffey, Tim Hutson and Tom Shields.

Pesavento, who was drafted by the Detroit Tigers in 1989, became an all-star shortstop this summer in Fayetteville,

Ed Lund

N.C., in the class-A South Atlantic League.

Erik Madsen, who also was drafted in 1989, went to the Yakima Dodgers this summer in Washington to play in the class-A Northwest League. His teammate, outfielder James Sass, went in 1989 to the California League and played for Stockton, the Milwaukee Brewers' class-A affiliate.

Pitcher Brian Piotrowicz and catcher Ed Lund, two seniors on the 1990 squad, both were drafted by the Los Angeles Dodgers and played in the Great Falls rookie league. Piotrowicz was 2-1 with seven saves.

Mike Coffey, a reliever on last year's squad, spent the summer in Peoria, Az., pitching in a rookie league for Milwaukee.

Tim Hutson, the single-season home-run leader for Notre Dame who graduated in 1988, was released from the Brewers organization this year.

Tom Shields, who spent his last season at Notre Dame in 1986, is playing shortstop for the class-AAA Buffalo Pirates.

"We've got some of the best prospects," said Irish head coach Pat Murphy, entering into his fourth season at Notre Dame. "They (the alumni team) are going to be quite a challenge. Nobody can get out Peltier. Nobody ran on Lund for three years, so there's no reason they'll start now.

"Piotrowicz always rose to the occasion, and Pesavento has been a winner on every team he's played on. All these guys are in great shape and have played all summer, and this is going to be the first game of the 1990-1 season."

GAME NOTES

- This marks the 89th straight home sellout for Notre Dame and the 137th in the last 138 games dating to the middle of the 1964 season.
- The Irish have a 17-game winning streak in Notre Dame Stadium, and they have not lost in the past three seasons at home. The last home loss for Notre Dame was Nov. 15, 1986, when third-ranked Penn State downed the Irish 24-19. Irish coach Lou Holtz is 20-3 in Notre Dame Stadium.
- Notre Dame will be trying for its fourth straight victory over Michigan in as many years. The Wolverines never lost four straight years to a single opponent during the Bo Schembechler era.
- This will be the 14th time Notre Dame has played at home under portable lights provided by Musco Mobile Lighting in Oskaloosa, Iowa. The first game under lights was the 1982 season opener against Michigan. The Irish are 9-4 under lights at home.
- The quote: "Michigan is favored to win the Big Ten and go to the Rose Bowl for the third straight year, and I wouldn't argue with that." - Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz.

LAST MEETING

ANN ARBOR— "Thank God for Rocket Ismail".
"He may be the most dangerous player around, with the ball."
Irish tri-captain Ned Bolcar and Michigan head coach Bo Schembechler pretty much summed up the game as Notre Dame defeated the Wolverines 24-19 Saturday afternoon, riding the wings of the Rocket Man.
The game, played on a soggy, dark afternoon, lived up to its billing as the top-ranked Irish battled the No. 2 Wolverines to a close finish.
Ismail's two kickoff returns for touchdowns in the second half were the best offense for the Irish, who played an extremely conservative game on offense. For his efforts, Ismail was awarded the game ball by Irish head coach Lou Holtz.

Michigan looking for better luck

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Editor

The exact number on the sign in the Michigan lockerroom doesn't matter because four-digit figures are hard to remember when they change daily.

The important thing here is that the number is nearing 1500, signifying the days since the Wolverines last defeated Notre Dame. For the record, it was a 24-23 victory in 1986.

"I think of Notre Dame 365 days a year," said Michigan offensive lineman Greg Skrepenak.

Skrepenak and Michigan can end a three-game losing streak against the Irish at 8 p.m. Saturday in Notre Dame Stadium. The Irish dominance in the 1980s is unmatched by any Michigan opponent. They downed the Wolverines 26-7 in 1987, 19-17 in 1988 and 24-19 in 1989.

This is the beginning of a new era at Michigan, where Gary Moeller has succeeded Bo Schembechler. In 21 seasons, Schembechler compiled an amazing 194-48-5 record that included 13 Big Ten championships. Moeller, who had a short stint as head coach at Illinois, had been a Michigan assistant from 1969-76 and again from 1980-89.

"I'm sure the element of surprise is with the University of Michigan," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said. "I have no idea what they will do offensively. I hope we can make adjustments during the course of the game."

The biggest question Moeller has faced so far in his career is how he will deal with Notre Dame's Raghib Ismail. Moeller watched from the sidelines last season as Ismail returned two kickoffs for touchdowns in rain-soaked Michigan Stadium.

"We'll mix it up," Moeller said. "I'm not going to roll the ball on the ground. The guys that are going down there on the kickoff team have to do their job. You can squib it and they get it at the 25 and return it to the 35. There's a point where you can't keep it from him."

The big match-up could be the Michigan offensive line against the Notre Dame defensive line. Both units are ranked among the best in the country.

The Wolverine line has three All-American candidates with a combined 77 starting assignments - tackles Tom Dohring and Skrepenak and guard Dean Dingman. Rounding out the starters are sophomore center Steve Everitt and junior guard Matt Elliott.

But the Irish will counter with senior All-American candidate Chris Zorich and seniors George Williams and Bob Dahl. Williams is back after missing the entire 1989 season because of academic problems.

Moeller is most impressed with Zorich, one of the leading candidates for the Outland and Lombardi awards. He had 10 tackles last season against Michigan in a game where Notre Dame countered the Wolverines highly-touted offensive line.

"You can have a veteran, veteran, veteran. All-American offensive line and he's (Zorich) going to give you problems," Moeller said.

That Notre Dame line will try to put pressure on Michigan sophomore quarterback Elvis Grbac, who has yet to lose in four starts as a Wolverine.

Grbac debuted last season against Notre Dame when Michael Taylor left with an injury. He completed 17 of 21 passes for 134 yards and rallied Michigan from a 17-6 deficit in the third quarter before losing 24-19. Grbac completed 73 of 116 passes (63 percent) for 824 yards for the season.

Quarterback Elvis Grbac finished 13th nationally in passing efficiency with a 140.2 rating in 1989.

Senior fullback Jarrod Bunch (53 carries for 208 yards in 1989) returns at fullback. With senior Tony Boles (131 for 839 in '89) gone, as many as three players could see action at tailback. Jon Vaughn (10 for 11 in '89) and Allen Jefferson (65 for 380 in '89) will share the duties, while freshman Ricky Powers could see some action.

"Michigan's ability to run the football always scares you," Holtz said, "and then the passing game with Grbac does also. I'm concerned about our ability to play pass defense."

Holtz is concerned about the pass defense because three starters graduated last spring. Senior All-American Todd Lyght does provide a solid base for the inexperienced Irish secondary. He likely will be joined by Rod Smith, Greg Davis and George Poorman in the starting lineup.

Senior Michael Stonebreaker, who missed 1989 because of disciplinary problems, will return to anchor a strong linebacking corps that includes Andre Jones, Scott Kowalkowski and Demetrius DuBose.

The Irish offense will feature a new look with sophomore quarterback Rick Mirer. He inherits a strong legacy left behind by Tony Rice, the catalyst in Notre Dame's success the past two seasons. The backfield is stacked with fullbacks Rodney Culver and Ryan Milhalko and tailbacks Ricky Watters and Tony Brooks.

Holtz is anxious to see how the offensive line performs Saturday night. Senior quick tackle Winston Sandri is out with a partially torn knee ligament, and senior center Mike Heldt is just getting back to form after battling injuries during the spring and fall.

"We have not had our five starting offensive linemen in pads at any one time," Holtz said. "That has been the most frustrating thing."

Mirer could have trouble when he wants to pass because Michigan has one of the best defensive backfields in college football. All four starters return for the Wolverines in the secondary.

Tripp Welborne, who should compete with Lyght for the Thorpe Award, and Vada Murray combined for seven interceptions last fall. Cornerback David Key has started every Michigan game for the past two seasons, while Todd Plate and Lance Dottin alternate at the other cornerback spot.

J.D. Carlson silenced any questions about Michigan's placekicking game as a freshman last fall. Carlson earned second-team All-American honors from Football News while hitting 37 of 39 extra-point attempts and 13 of 14 field goals.

Notre Dame sophomore Craig Hentrich gives the Irish a solid kicking game. He should get the majority of the kicking duties after not missing a field goal in fall camp.

ND, Florida State plan series

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Florida State and Notre Dame will play a home-and-home football series in 1993-94, officials announced Thursday.

The first game will be Nov. 13, 1993, in South Bend, Ind. The teams will meet again on Nov. 12, 1994, at the Florida Citrus Bowl in Orlando.

The Seminoles won the only previous meeting between the two schools, 19-13, in 1981.

Florida Citrus Sports Events Inc. earlier secured three other regular-season games for the Citrus Bowl. Florida State will meet Memphis State this Nov. 17, the Seminoles will play Virginia Tech on Oct. 12, 1991, and Florida will play Mississippi on Sept. 12, 1992.

A tall order

At 6-6, 322 pounds, All-American offensive tackle Greg Skrepenak (75) is the biggest player to ever put on a Michigan uniform.

Hentrich's footwork helps erase Irish mistakes

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

When Jim Strong left Notre Dame to accept the head coaching position at UNLV in February, Lou Holtz assumed his offensive coordinator responsibilities. Since then, Holtz has spent much time impressing on the minds of his offensive starters the importance of putting the ball in the endzone.

But there are times when the system breaks down and potential scoring drives grind to a halt deep in enemy territory. It is at these times when Holtz returns to his drawing board and rubs out the offending offensive formation with his eraser, Craig Hentrich.

"I look at Craig as the eraser," Holtz said of his sophomore placekicker and punter. "He is trying to erase the mistakes everybody else makes."

Hentrich is coming off a season in which he averaged 44.6 yards on 26 punts, a Notre Dame single-season record. Yet his surprisingly consistent field-goal kicking this preseason has generated talk of his potential to be the best all-around kicker in Notre Dame history.

Hentrich has trouble believing he will even get the starting nod against Michigan on Saturday.

"No one really knows (who will start)," the Godfrey, Ill., resident said of both positions. "It's still up for grabs. I'll prepare for both, so if I should lose out to someone I could concentrate more seriously on the other position."

Hentrich handled all aspects of Notre Dame's kicking game throughout the mid-portion of last season, including punts, field goals, PATs and kickoffs. He converted 8 of 15 field-goal attempts (8 of 11 inside 40 yards) and 44 of 45 PATs before giving way to Billy Hackett (10 of 12 FGs, 8 of 11 PATs) for the last four games of the season.

Hackett kicked a 53-yard field goal with the wind at his back in the Blue-Gold Game but has been erratic of late. Senior Jim Sexton is the only punter besides Hentrich on the roster, but he will be used mainly as a holder on field goals and PATs.

"There's never any doubt he'll get the ball down," Hentrich says of Sexton. "He makes me a lot more confident."

A potential problem arose when the Irish lost guard and long-snap specialist Tim Grunhard to the Kansas City Chiefs after last season. But Lance Johnson and Joe Allen have proved capable replacements during preseason practice.

"Lance Johnson has been just as good as Gruny," Hentrich said. "He gives me a long time to set up."

Former professional football player and kicking expert Ray Pelfrey, who has worked with NFL punters Brian Hampton and Keith English, also has helped Hentrich set up. Hentrich first met Pelfrey during his freshman year in high school in Chattanooga, Tenn., and worked under his direction two years later in Reno, Nev. This summer, Hentrich joined Pelfrey at a summer camp in Illinois.

"Ray has been a big help in my placekicking," said Hentrich. "He teaches a whole different technique. If you can master it, you can really improve your accuracy."

Hentrich already possessed

one of the strongest legs in football (as evidenced by his 60-yard punt into the wind in the Blue-Gold Game), but his placekicking was not accurate enough to satisfy Holtz.

Pelfrey introduced Hentrich to a more downfield style of kicking which placed him straight over the ball. Hentrich, who likes to stand off to the side of the ball, assimilated Pelfrey's methods into his own technique.

Hentrich's newfound accuracy should all but guarantee him both the starting placekicking and punting duties for Saturday's Michigan opener. If history holds true, special teams play will have a significant impact on the outcome of the game.

"Special teams is one-third of the game," says Hentrich. "They play a part in any game, so we take them very seriously."

Pelfrey helped Hentrich eliminate his placekicking mistakes. On Saturday, Hentrich may be expected to erase everybody else's.

Call him Rick

Watters finding new challenges as maturation process continues

By KEN TYSIAC
Associate Sports Editor

Please don't call him Ricky any more. After all, he's not an underclassman, an uncut gem needing to be carefully molded before reaching his potential. He's a senior now. A captain. A leader. And call him Rick, please.

"I've always told people to call me Rick, but I guess I've been labelled Ricky, and it's sort of stuck. It doesn't bother me too much, though."

Irish tailback Rick Watters has grown quite a bit since he faced Michigan in Notre Dame Stadium two years ago as a sophomore. In that game, a 19-17 Irish victory, he showcased his athletic skill early, returning a punt 81 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter

'Hopefully I can make All-American or something like that, but like I said, first in my mind is the team and us winning. We just want to get back in the race and hopefully win the National Championship this year.'

In the third quarter, though, with Notre Dame clinging to a 13-7 lead, he fumbled Mike Gillette's punt and the Wolverines recovered on the Irish 14. As Michigan drove for the go-ahead touchdown, Watters lost his composure on the sideline as teammates tried to console him. He knew he had hurt the team, and it appeared as though he was holding back tears.

"From a player's standpoint, you get upset when you don't do the things you expect to do," Watters said. "Before the season you have these goals and things you want to do, and then when you don't achieve those goals and you're not going in that direction the right way, you start to get upset."

If a similar incident occurs this season, Watters would react differently.

"I'd be all right. I'd just come back and do the job the next time."

For Rick Watters, the long, winding road to maturity has forced him to use his talents in many different ways. He was recruited out Harrisburg, Penn., as a tailback and finished second on the team in rushing his freshman year with 373 yards on 69 carries. Irish Head Coach Lou Holtz thought Watters would be a good receiver, however, so as a sophomore he replaced graduating Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown at flanker.

Although he was Notre Dame's leading receiver in the 1988 championship season, Watters again switched positions as a junior. Holtz returned him to tailback, where he was more comfortable, and Watters carried 118 times for 791 yards and 10 touchdowns. He earned honorable mention All-America honors from The Sporting News and Football News. He had finally found his niche.

"(Switching positions) was kind of hard on me. It was just really tough to keep up mentally, and emotionally it was tough too, because I'd always thought of myself as a tailback. Coming out of high school and grade school I'd always been used as a tailback or a quarterback. I never, ever thought of being a wideout, especially on a running team, which is mainly what we are, a running team," Watters says.

The experience as a receiver has helped Watters improve, though.

"He always had a tremendous set of hands," says Assistant Coach Peter Vaas, who works with the running backs. "Only now he can find the hole coming out of the backfield and get open. He's become a great receiver coming out of the backfield."

Watters concedes that his experience at flanker helped him, but one gets the impression that he still would have preferred to play tailback his sophomore year.

"In a way switching positions helped me because it let people see all of my abilities and all the things I could do on kick returns, receiving, running, blocking, everything," admits Watters. "So that was pretty good, if I should go on to the next level, but it was also kind of hard on this level, because I was always switching positions."

In the past, Watters has returned punts as well. In fact, he holds the record for the longest punt return in Irish history (97 yards in 1989 vs. SMU). This year Watters will turn those duties over to junior Raghil Ismail, a pretty good return man in his own right.

Meanwhile, although he will start at tailback, Watters is slated to split time with fellow senior Tony Brooks. The Irish coaches hope that by alternating Watters and Brooks they will ensure that a there will never be a tired tailback lined up behind sophomore quarterback Rick Mirer.

"When you run out of the information as much as we do, you want to have keep your players healthy and fresh," Vaas says. "Tony and Ricky are both quality running backs, and we feel that if they both carry the ball about 15 times a game they will be much more productive than if one of them carried 30 times a game. We are trying to get maximum productivity out of the tailback position, not just maximum productivity out of the players."

The fact that Watters will only carry the ball 15 times per game is important. Watters is a Heisman-caliber athlete, but there are so many good Irish backs that he won't get enough carries to build up the statistics needed to impress Heisman voters.

"That bothered me a lot in the early part of my career," Watters says. "Sometimes it still sneaks up in my mind a little bit, but I gave up on that (the Heisman) a long time ago. I

Faust going forward, but enjoys looking back

It's been nine years now, but former Notre Dame football coach Gerry Faust remembers it like it was yesterday.

The Irish had defeated LSU 27-9 in Faust's debut. The former coach of Cincinnati Moeller High School couldn't have written a better script for his debut.

"I remember sitting in the lockerroom before practice the week of the Michigan game," Faust reflected earlier this week. "One of our assistants came in and said that AP and UPI had just voted us the top team in the country."

"I turned to Jim Higgins (one of Faust's assistants at both Moeller and Notre Dame) and said, 'You know Jim, we're in a unique situation. We ended up number one in high school football and now we're number one in college football. That has probably never happened before.'"

"I told him we should probably just hang it up then. How true those words might have been."

Faust, who had compiled an incredible 174-17-2 record in 18 years at Moeller, never returned to number one at Notre Dame. He finished his career with a 30-26-1 record, a .535 winning percentage.

He had moments of incredible highs and moments of devastating lows. His Irish teams lost 17 games by 7 or fewer points. He faced criticism from a variety of sources, from writers to students to alumni, yet he maintained a strong belief that he would someday make it, that it would work out in the end.

"When you're a football coach, you have to deal with criticism," Faust said. "I was able to deal with it because I wanted to be there. The pressure didn't bother me."

Faust resigned after the 1985 season, and Notre Dame hired former Minnesota coach Lou Holtz to replace him. In four seasons, Holtz has guided the Irish to one national championship and 24 victories in their last 25 games.

"I think that Lou Holtz took over the program when it was faltering, when the kids weren't believing," Faust said. "He got them winning, believing again."

Now, Faust is in the fifth year of a major building program at Akron, a team which just recently joined Division I.

At Notre Dame in the early 1980s, between 300-500 people attended the Friday luncheon before home games. Before his first home game at Akron in 1986, Faust was greeted by a throng of 23 people at the Friday luncheon.

He is 24-21-1 in those four years, but that's not the important thing. The important thing is that he's building, coaching football, interacting with people, doing the things that Gerry Faust must do to survive.

"I'm finally starting to have fun here," Faust said. "Things are starting to come together. We're still a fledgling program. I was feeling my way at Notre Dame. I feel a little more comfortable now because I've learned a lot more football."

He recently signed a new contract and it seems a safe bet that he will remain at Akron for awhile. He has changed jobs just three times in his football career.

"We're really happy here," Faust said. "I like the people and I like the community. I just love to work with people and help them become better people."

Faust may be happy as the coach at Akron, but the talk always returns to Notre Dame, his glory days. He still has the same excitement, the same enthusiasm that he came to Notre Dame with in November of 1980.

"It was a great opportunity," he said. "It was really a dream come true. I think anybody who has ever gone to Notre Dame or worked at Notre Dame, there's always something special there. A part of you always stays there. Time has really flown. I can't believe it's been that long."

The Zips are 2-0 in 1990, including a win last weekend over big rival Kent State. Faust knows he has a long way to go, especially with back-to-back games at Rutgers, Florida and Navy.

But someday he might get there, and there might even be a game with Notre Dame. But that might be a hard sell to Faust.

"I would never want to play Notre Dame because I could never run out of that tunnel onto the wrong side of the field," Faust said.

Cerrato reaches out and touches Mirer

A call from the 1988 Fiesta Bowl sidelines helped land latest Notre Dame quarterback

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

Rick Mirer will receive the call to start as the Irish quarterback this Saturday, but if it weren't for an earlier call made from the sidelines of the Fiesta Bowl two and a half years ago, the sophomore could be playing this season's opener on the maize and blue side of the field.

Notre Dame recruiting coordinator Vinnie Cerrato telephoned Mirer during the 1988 bowl game and asked Mirer if he'd like to attend school the next year with the soon-to-be national champions.

"I couldn't believe it," said Mirer, who had already spoken with Cerrato about playing at Notre Dame. "He was on the field and told me what play they were going to call next. When I looked at the TV I saw he was right."

Cerrato's persistence exemplifies one of the reasons why Mirer chose Notre Dame over the many other schools that were pursuing him his senior year of high school.

'People expect big things. You can't make mistakes. I'm sure I'll feel more of the pressure on Saturday, but it should go away after the first few plays. It's just a game like any other.'

"He knew it would mean a lot to me," says Mirer, who viewed it as typical of Notre Dame's interest in him as a person, not just a potential starting quarterback. He claims the people at Notre Dame, along with excellent academics and athletics, are what encouraged him to choose the school over the team he grew up loving, the Michigan Wolverines.

"You don't have the same caliber of people at other schools as you do here," says Mirer. "You have some, but not as many. The people here are so used to doing things right, whether it's studying or athletics."

Mirer adds that, even though he grew up just 25 miles from South Bend in Goshen, it wasn't until he attended Notre Dame that he felt the school's deep traditions and immense popularity.

"I never realized how important Notre Dame is to the whole country," Mirer said. "People from everywhere follow us. It's spooky."

And with the entire nation looking on, Mirer has become the focal point of the 1990 Irish football season. With only 36 minutes of playing time during his freshman year, Mirer's inexperience has been the subject of college football fans around the United States.

But the 6-3, 205-pounder says that while he feels the pressure, he refuses to let it affect his play.

"People expect big things," he said. "You can't make mistakes. I'm sure I'll feel more of the pressure on Saturday, but it should go away after the first few plays. It's just a game like any other."

That type of perspective should help ease tensions for the young quarterback who is already being compared to Joe Montana by some of his teammates.

"I think that's mostly because we're the same number (3)," said Mirer. "I would love to be able to do what he did, but I never claimed to be Joe Montana."

Montana even sent Mirer a picture and a letter this summer, telling the quarterback to "take care of my number."

Some of the comparisons may be due to Mirer's impressive showing in spring practice. Only one of his 140-plus passes was intercepted all spring, and he was named offensive co-MVP of the Blue-Gold game. In that outing, Mirer completed 23 of 41 passes for 303 yards, playing for both teams after Jake Kelchner broke his collarbone in the first period.

Kelchner's injury, and subsequent dismissal from the university for academic reasons, ensured that Mirer would be the starting quarterback for Notre Dame this year. And while Mirer could not be happier with the job, the lack of Irish quarterbacks adds another degree of pressure to Mirer's role. The only other quarterbacks on the team are freshmen.

"I really wish Jake was here to push me," said Mirer, adding that he realizes the Irish will be in a precarious position if he is injured now. Mirer still harbors fresh memories of what it was like to be a freshman back-up.

"I was definitely not ready right at first," said Mirer. "You've got to have a feel for what it's going to be like when you go out there. Now I know. Hopefully, I'll stay healthy."

The times he did get into the games last year are indicative of how the Irish offense should look this season. In eight games, Mirer completed 15 of 30 passes for 180 yards. Although he is quick by quarterback standards (he runs the 40 in 4.6), Mirer ran only 12 times for 32 yards. Everyone is looking for the Irish to pass the ball much more than they did the past three seasons under Tony Rice, but Mirer contends that Notre Dame will still rely heavily on the running attack.

"We're definitely going to throw more than we did last year," said Mirer, even if it's not right away. "We'll work into (passing) more each game, so there's more of a balance once we get going."

Head Coach Lou Holtz is more concerned with how Mirer conducts the offense than he is with the quarterback's passing stats. At his press conference on Tuesday, Holtz described Mirer's role in the first few games.

"I expect him to be a fine quarterback," Holtz said, "but by the same token, my realistic objective in the first couple ballgames is just to get him to calm down and be himself."

Mirer realizes what Holtz expects.

"My job is to keep the flow and the unity, to keep us moving downfield," said Mirer. "I have to be able to adjust when things go wrong and play it smart, safe. I'm not trying to do too much."

Until then Mirer will rely on an experienced backfield of speedy running backs.

"I'm confident having them back there," he said. "You know Rocket's going to run past people, Tony Brooks is going to run over people and Ricky Watters is going to run around people."

More suspect is the offensive line that will have to stop defenders from flying in Mirer's face. While Holtz has continually pointed out the squad's injuries and lack of experience, the Irish says he's confident their protection will be more than adequate.

"If there's a weakness in our offense, it's me, and I like to think I can take care of that," he says. "I can make sure there's no mistakes."

Holtz is also concerned about the leadership of the Irish offense, especially when both the quarterback and the offensive line are relatively young.

"When you have an offensive line that is veteran and experienced, they will provide the leadership, and this is what happened when Tony Rice was inserted into the starting lineup at Pittsburgh," he said. "This is the first time we've ever had a young quarterback and a young offensive line."

Mirer says that although he is only a sophomore, he feels comfortable as the leader on the field. As the offense has progressed, Mirer feels his teammates' confidence in him has increased.

"At every level of play, the quarterback has to be a leader, so I'm used to it," says Mirer. "I think I can handle it."

While Mirer feels the offense has ironed out many of their kinks and is improving, he thinks the defense has controlled fall practices. But he views their domination as good preparation for the talented squads he'll face in the upcoming weeks.

"I wish things had gone smoother," he says, "but I think we're coming around. We're timing it out just right."

'My job is to keep the flow and the unity, to keep us moving downfield. I have to be able to adjust when things go wrong and play it smart, safe. I'm not trying to do too much.'

Facing the Wolverines in his first start will be especially memorable for Mirer, who grew up knowing Bo Schembechler and rooting for his teams. Rated the best high school quarterback in the nation by Parade magazine, and named to the first squad of the USA Today All-American team, Mirer was heavily recruited in 1988, but eventually narrowed his choices to Notre Dame and Michigan. Both sought the superstar who passed for 3,973 yards and 30 touchdowns his senior year. But although Mirer's father, Ken, is from Ypsilanti, Mich., just outside Ann Arbor, and served as an usher in Michigan Stadium as a boy, Mirer chose the Irish.

"I'd be excited no matter who we were playing," said Mirer, "but since it's Michigan it will be that much more so. We've been working ever since January for this."

Although Mirer's nerves may act up a little on Saturday, he says nothing could be more intimidating than his first game last year, the Kick-Off Classic at the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

"That's the biggest stadium I've ever played in," said Mirer. "You go out there and suddenly see your face flashed up on the huge screen."

But Mirer was comfortable once he joined the action.

"It's real quiet on the field," he said. "Everyone is nervous. Everyone wants to make sure they don't screw up."

Once Mirer takes that first snap on Saturday, he'll have his chance to confront all the comparisons and questions. Although he'll escape the hype while he's on the field, he realizes interest in his play will continue and that it might not be a bad sign.

"I hope the attention gets worse," Mirer says, "because that means I'm doing something right."

is the team and us winning. We just want to get back in the race and hopefully win the National Championship this year."

A National Championship this year would put an exclamation mark on what has been a great career for Watters. A national title, and not a Heisman Trophy is at the top of Watters's list of goals.

"It has to be. As captain of the team, as a leader of a great bunch of guys like that, you can't think of yourself, you have to think of the team and what we can do here. We have a great chance of winning the National Championship, and perhaps we'll go down as legends."

realize that I'm just going to play my game and do the best I can, and if I get it, it will be because of hard work and determination, and just playing. It won't be something I'm thinking about.

"I just realize I'm in a position to win it or anything like that. Hopefully I can make All-American or something like that, but like I said, first in my mind

PEERLESS PROGNOSTICATORS

Each week, The Observer sports staff, Bill Bilinski of the South Bend Tribune and some well-known figure in the Notre Dame community predict the outcomes of the week's major college football games. Records are compiled as to how each person does against the spread. In other words, it isn't enough to pick the winner of a given game. The person must pick the winner and give the underdog points.

FSU takes over college poll

Observer Staff Report

The Florida State Seminoles took over the top spot vacated by Miami in the National College Sportswriters Football Poll.

The Seminoles leapfrogged the Hurricanes, who lost to Brigham Young 28-21 on Saturday, and Notre Dame to claim the number-one ranking. Florida State received 10 1/2 first place votes to Notre Dame's 8 1/2.

The poll, organized and founded by staff members of The Observer, will appear weekly in college newspapers across the country. More than 40 writers will eventually cast votes in the poll when classes begin at their respective schools.

Florida State finished just 10 points ahead of the Irish, who will play their first game of the season against Michigan on September 15. Auburn, which received three first-place votes after soundly defeating Fullerton State in its home opener, is third.

Michigan, which has yet to play a game this season, moved up one spot to number six in the poll, while the loss to Brigham Young dropped Miami into a tie for fifth with USC. Tennessee, which defeated Mississippi State Saturday to raise its record to 2-0-1, is seventh, and Brigham Young moved up ten spots from its number 18 position in last week's poll, to number eight.

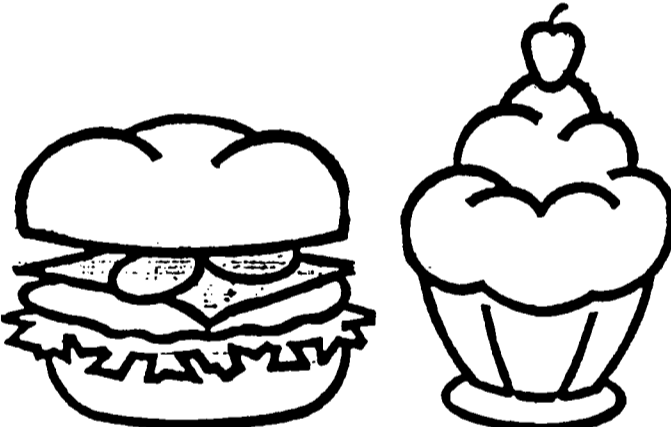

Colorado, which squeaked by Stanford by a score of 21-17 on Thursday, is ninth, and Virginia, coming off its first victory ever over Clemson in 30 tries, rounds out the top 10.

Nebraska leads off the second 10, followed by Texas A&M, Clemson, Pittsburgh, which defeated Boston College Saturday to raise its record to 2-0, and Arkansas. Oklahoma, which pummeled UCLA Saturday in the Bruins' home opener, Ohio State, Illinois, Washington and Arizona round out the top 20.

Moeller succeeds legend, looks to establish identity

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Assistant Sports Editor

Would you like to succeed a legend?

Gary Moeller, who makes his debut as head coach for Michigan Saturday against Notre Dame, has a tall order in front of him in succeeding Bo Schembechler, the winningest coach in Wolverine football history.

Schembechler, who departed from the Wolverines Jan. 2 to become President of the Detroit Tigers, compiled a 194-48-5 record, 143-24-3 in the Big Ten, in 21 seasons at Michigan.

His teams were ranked in the national top ten 16 times and appeared in 10 Rose Bowls. The only thing Schembechler seemed not to have done was win the national championship.

Inevitably, Moeller will have to deal with the comparisons to this Big Ten conquerer and Rose Bowl club member.

"I don't think it (the comparisons) will ever stop," said Moeller, who spent most of his coaching career as an assistant to Schembechler. "I think in a couple of years it will slow down. You get tired of it (but) when you're compared to Bo Schembechler, in many ways it can make you proud."

Moeller has cause to be proud. When Schembechler announced his resignation, he personally recommended Moeller for the job. Calling Moeller the "right man to lead this (Michigan) football program into the 1990's," Schembechler praised his right-hand man's coaching ability and personal attributes that made him the obvious choice for successor.

And Bo knows Moeller. He has had Moeller as an assistant coach for 21 seasons, and anytime an assistant works under a head coach that long, his philosophies have to be somewhat compatible.

"The philosophies I've had, I've just reinforced those (as head coach)," said Moeller. "It's the kind of program I grew up with. I believe in the philosophies of Bo Schembechler and Woody Hayes. I want to keep this program where it has a strong foundation."

After playing football for Woody Hayes at Ohio State as a center and linebacker, Moeller graduated from college in 1962 and coached high school teams until he joined Schembechler at Miami (Ohio) in 1967 to coach the freshman team.

When Bo moved on to Michigan in 1969, he took Moeller with him, placing him in charge of defensive ends. Moeller was promoted to defense coordinator in 1973, and his 1974 and '76 squads led the nation in scoring defense.

Following the 1976 season, Moeller was named head coach at Illinois, where he spent the 1977-1979 seasons and compiled a 6-24-3 record. In 1980, he was back to coaching under Schembechler at Michigan.

Named defensive coordinator and assistant head coach in 1982, Moeller brought back his defensive magic, and in 1985 his squad led the nation again in scoring defense. By 1987 he assumed offensive coordinator duties as well as assistant coach.

Now in 1990 Moeller's first game is against Notre Dame, a team that has lost only one game in two years. It's the beginning of another era for Michigan, the Moeller era, which could last anywhere from one game to 20 years.

"It's scary but exciting," said Moeller to The Sporting News. "I think you'll always feel the pressure. But how many guys get the opportunity to coach at Michigan? I've got a good situation here. I'm very fortunate."

Gary Moeller was appointed to the head coaching position at Michigan on January 2 when Bo Schembechler announced his retirement after 21 seasons with the Wolverines.
