Lecture promotes hemp for food, fuel, and fiber

Herer: marijuana legalization can 'save earth'

By JOE GODIN
News Writer

Jack Herer has been studying marijuana for over 17 years.

And last night he spoke in front of about 75 people at the Center for Social Concerns on what he has learned and what he believes the world must do to cure our energy problems, reverse the greenhouse effect, and help people to live longer.

Before he founded the national organization called Help End Marijuana Prohibition (HEMP), he had little contact with marijuana.

He first smoked marijuana in 1969 with some friends. At the time he was a California businessman. After finding startling facts about the true nature and various uses of marijuana, also known as hemp, he started a personal crusade for marijuana legalization.

"When I first smoked marijuana, music sounded good to me. I would see different colors in the air. I didn't even like music before," Herer said. It was at that point that he began studying marijuana.

In 1972 he petitioned in California for the legalization of marijuana. Thirty-four percent of the people responded in his favor. Herer thought, "Only 17 percent more and there would be a majority in favor of legalization."

Although he realized it would still take a long time to achieve legalization, he felt there was hope. He wrote a book called Grass which demonstrated both the positive and negative effects of marijuana.

According to the book, marijuana dilates the arteries, lowers body stress and temperature and also allows you to live longer. After Jack Herer started smoking marijuana, his ulcer went away.

Soon after publication, Herer started receiving calls from people who had researched the subject. He found out that marijuana is also called cannabis hemp, which, throughout history, has been used to make canvas and rope.

This material made up the sails that powered 16th and 17th century ships, including the Mayflower. Herer asked the crowd, "We have a product that is left out of our education. What do you think of your teachers for not telling you about this? Are you mad?" A barrage of arms shot into air.

In World War II, hempseed oil was used because it had a better viscosity. Furthermore, a visit to the Smithsonian revealed that over 80 percent of the Colonial and Maritime exhibits contained hemp. Herer called the Smithsonian and asked them why the public does not know this. He said they claimed that children should not know about that.

He has documented his latest discoveries in his newest book The Emperor Wears No Clothes. Among his most interesting discoveries are that marijuana may have been the first plant ever cultivated on earth.

Smoking marijuana can cure glaucoma, asthma, and anorexia. According to Herer, there are five people in the U. S. smoking marijuana solely for glaucoma, an eyesight disease.

"The problem with this is that they have to smoke about 11 joints a day because they smoke green leaf. The U.S. government will not let them smoke anything stronger," said Herer. Herer also said that in the 1930's it was widely believed that once machinery was complete hemp would become the biggest single industry in the United States.

Herer's lecture became more dramatic when he moved to the topic of the greenhouse effect.

He called the government officials in charge of reversing the greenhouse effect and global warming. Both officials

Jack Herer, founder of Help End Marijuana Prohibition (HEMP) attempted to demonstrate to students last night some of the global benefits that would come of utilizing the illegal plant and its derivatives.

Soviet Union makes steps toward free market economy

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet legislature voted Monday to reverse seven decades of Communist-style economics, giving preliminary approval to a rescue plan for switching the Soviet Union to a free market economy.

Members of the Supreme Soviet voted 323-11 to endorse a blueprint for making the economic conversion within 500 days. It was not immediately clear when the program would begin.

Fifty-six legislators abstained from the historic vote.

There was no applause or other display of emotion when the electronic vote result was announced, not even by President Mikhail Gorbachev sitting alone on a raised stage in the chamber.

The lawmakers then began debating the resolution clause by clause. They were to vote on possible amendments later Monday.

The program would reverse the basic aim of the Bolshevik Revolution and Stalin's brutal collectivism, whose legacy is an inefficient economy where food rots on its way to market and consumer shortages now include bread.

It would create a federation of republics with economies built on private businesses, individually owned farms and stock markets trading shares in competitive companies.

The program marked a significant change in Gorbachev's tactics. His perestroika program had been aimed at "restructuring" centralized socialism, but now is moving toward destroying it.

Lawmakers had been scheduled to vote on the program on Friday, but failed to muster a quorum and had to adjourn to Monday.

Gorbachev had expressed frustration on Friday, saying there was no more time to "talk, think, try and experiment."

The resolution endorses Gorbachev's compromise economic program, but also says the more conservative recipe drafted by Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov should be incorporated into it.

A third, more radical plan, has been adopted by the Russian Federation, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics with half the country's people and three-quarters of its territory.

Previous attempts to merge the conflicting proposals have failed because they are so fundamentally different.

Monday's resolution says a final detailed program should be presented to the Supreme Soviet by Oct. 15. It is to be developed by legislative committees and the authors of the various programs.

The Soviet public has become increasingly disappointed in Gorbachev's handling of the economic crisis, and dozens of protesters chanted at lawmakers as they arrived for the morning debate.

"The people don't trust Gorbachev," about a dozen demonstrators shouted outside the Kremlin's Spassky Gate. They held signs that read "a president — not an emperor" and "all decrees of the president are battles against democracy."

Judge refuses Keating's plea to have bail reduced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jailed savings and loan executive Charles H. Keating Jr. asked a state appeals court Monday to reduce or cancel his $5 million bail in a criminal fraud case stemming from the collapse of his Lincoln Savings.

Keating's multimillion-dollar income, lavish personal habits and risky investments made him a symbol of the savings and loan debacle. He contends he's being made a scapegoat, is broke, and cannot adequately defend himself against the host of lawsuits against him if he is locked up.

After a two-day hearing last week, Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner refused to lower the $5 million bail, saying the charges against him are so serious he might flee.

That amount is far too high for Keating to meet and 50 times higher than the bail imposed in identical cases, his lawyers said in papers filed with the appeals court.

They said he has shown he isn't a flight risk by never dodging any proceeding against him, even though he's known for a year he was under criminal as well as civil investigation.

They painted a picture of a man of exemplary ties to family and community, ready to surrender his passport, with no homes or bank accounts outside the country, wanting only a chance to vigorously defend his innocence.

Security reports three incidents of indecent exposure around ND

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame Security is currently investigating three reported incidents of indecent exposure.

The suspect's method of operation was to call a female to his car and ask where the Admissions Office was located, said Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Security.

The offenses occurred at: 4:15 p.m., Sept. 19 on Dorr Road, east of Juniper Road; 4:17 p.m., Sept. 19 in the D-2 parking lot; and 4:32 p.m., Sept. 19 in the C-1 parking lot.

The suspect is described as a male Caucasian, 18 to 20 years old, slight build and tall, medium length dark hair and pale complexion, Hurley said.

The suspect's vehicle is described as an older model, cream colored station wagon, with a ladder on top of it.

If anyone observes a vehicle on or around campus matching this description, they are asked to please contact Security immediately and attempt to obtain the license plate number.

Security can be reached at 239-5555.

INSIDE COLUMN

Notre Dame needs some 'play time'

Alison Cocks
Editor-in-Chief

With all the construction going on around campus I'm surprised Notre Dame has not yet found space for the one structure we truly need: a playground.

Sure, a $33 million classroom complex and an extra gold structure or two are probably helpful in achieving the University's newest goal: to become a REALLY GREAT research institution, but a playground would help to resolve a more important issue: morale. It's a rare individual who can take himself seriously while playing "Red Light, Green Light" in the sand pit.

After all, short of actually living together in the SAME DORM, what could possibly reduce tensions between the sexes more than an opportunity for girls and boys to throw sand at each other?

It works at age three when Susie Snowflake invites everyone to her birthday party except one or two people. Three-year-olds never invite fifty of their closest friends to analyze lost invitations in the Huddle. Instead they form an army, douse some pony-tails in some dirt and forget the whole thing.

I also have visions of 'King of the Hill' contests on the $10 million gold-plated jungle gym replacing the student body elections.

The candidate who pushes the opposition off the jungle gym the quickest, without the aid of table tents, skywriting, or hopelessly dry campaign slogans wins the FRED line, a corner suite in LaFortune and the right to be harassed on a daily basis by Observer reporters.

It could also do wonders for weekend stories. Instead of "Oh boy, I got really WASTED last night and puked in the glove compartment of the taxi and mashed with my Assistant Rector in our 24-hour lounge," we'd hear, "I sat in a swing and pumped so hard I could see the stars, and then I jumped off and I was so dizzy I couldn't stand up for two minutes."

It would be an excellent venue for the annual snowball fight too. Instead of breaking windows in the Administration Building, students could aim their missiles at a tree-house with a replica of the Dome on top.

Cynical readers are probably asking what use a playground could be in inclement weather (i.e. most of the year). No problem. Stepan Center is vacant once again, since Sacred Heart has re-opened. I can't picture the University holding serious functions in a building that looks like a golf ball, but with a little sand and some equipment, Stepan could actually earn its keep.

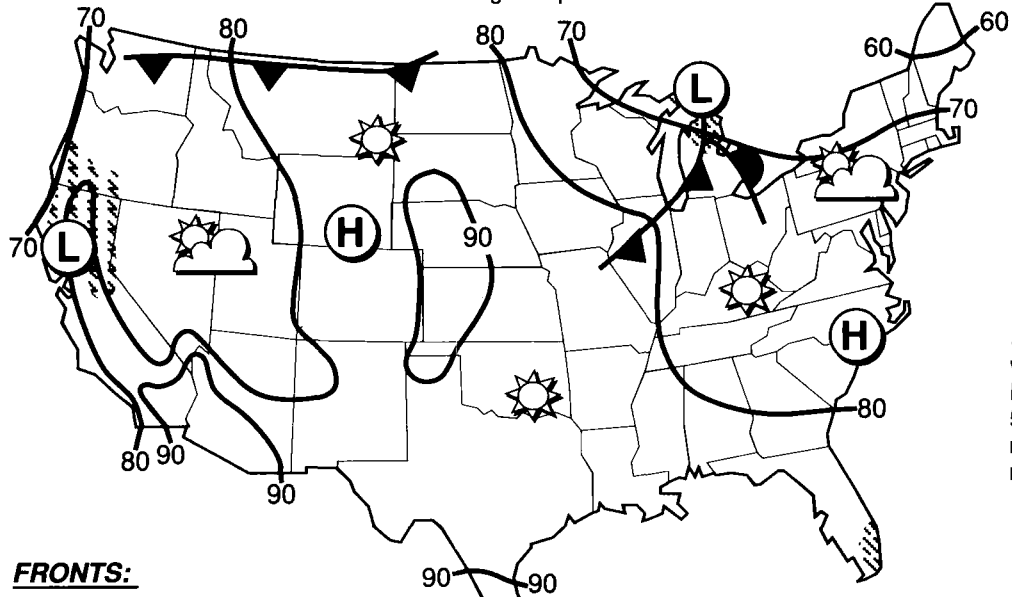

If nothing else, it could provide the most creative justification ever for raising tuition. I might even swallow it.

Israeli army bulldozers razed shops and houses on Monday to punish Palestinians suspected of killing a soldier in a Gaza Strip refugee camp. Arab reports and U.N. officials said. A dozen buildings were destroyed before a Supreme Court restraining order halted demolition, they said, including the gas station where the soldier was stoned to death. Reserve Sgt. Annon Pomeranz, 46, was stoned to death in the Bureij refugee camp Thursday after his car hit a donkey cart, injuring two Palestinian teenagers. The Palestinian mob set his car and body afire with gasoline-soaked rags. The army spokesman's office declined comment.

Winnie Mandela and seven former associates will stand trial in February on charges of kidnapping and assaulting four young men, a magistrate decided Monday. The charges against Mandela stem from a December 1988 incident in which 14-year-old Stompei Seipei as killed. The former head of Mandela's bodyguards, Jerry Richardson, has been convicted of murder and sentenced to death in the case. During Richardson's trial, the other three victims testified they were abducted by members of the Mandela United Football Club — Mandela's bodyguards — and taken to her Soweto home. They said Mandela beat them with a whip, and the others also assaulted them.

INDIANA

The Associated Press on Sept. 22 erroneously listed the number of confirmed AIDS victims in Indiana as 456. The State Board of Health says that as of Sept. 1 there had been 891 confirmed in Indiana. The lower figure was cited by Dr. Howard Hess of Indianapolis, head of a state task force on AIDS, in discussing the group's yearlong study of the disease.

A new survey shows Gov. Evan Bayh and Sen. Richard Lugar are neck-and-neck when it comes to their personal popularity among Hoosier voters. Lugar, a Republican, and Bayh, a Democrat, shared a favorability rating of 78 percent. The poll, which surveyed 802 registered voters on Sept. 10-12, and has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points, was commissioned by the Indianapolis Star. The survey said most voters are satisfied with Bayh's job performance.

Pandora's campaigns against book banning

By COLLEEN CONLEY
News Writer

Visitors this week to Pandora's Books will be greeted by a yield sign cautioning them to be aware of "books at work," as the store kicks off its campaign against censorship and banned books.

The display, at the store's 808 Howard St. location, is part of a nationwide promotion "Celebrating the Freedom to Read" and will contain a collection of historically controversial and challenged books. These books have been banned for reasons ranging from language that is considered offensive to content that is considered racist.

Store manager Mandy Arnold, a Notre Dame graduate student, said Pandora's hopes to make "people aware that censorship is alive and well in this country," and to encourage attitudes that will allow for wide accessibility to all types of books.

"We are not out to gross sales," Arnold said. Instead, the store's primary focus is to incite people to "enliven their minds" and "to get interested in more than what's going on in their lives."

Arnold pointed out that it is commonly school districts or public libraries who ban books and that "they have the best interests of the community at heart, trying to protect the community from perceived evils. But they do more harm than good by banning, [because] there's not much freedom when you can't print the things you want to ... censorship is the same kind of denial by not allowing [books] to be accessible ... read your First Amendment."

School children, in particular, are seriously disadvantaged by censorship because when they are denied access to delicate subjects, they miss the whole point of discussing and questioning a book's portrayal of sensitive material, said Arnold. "This is not very healthy ... and [leads to] a society of mindless idiots running around who don't question their existence."

By introducing children at a young age to issues such as racism and discussing and evaluating it with them, the chances are better that they won't grow up to be prejudiced or bigoted, she continued.

Arnold went on to say that children should be opened to topics that society traditionally wants to shield them from, such as the occult or witchcraft, because it is through exposure to these fantastical mediums that children learn to discern story from reality.

Additionally, there are "horrendous theories and philosophies" such as Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf that are worthy of reading because "in a tangential sort of way ... [it] is a means of ensuring that these things are not forgotten."

Saint Mary's assistant professor of political science Sean Savage affirmed Arnold's position favoring intellectual freedom. On a level of secondary education, he maintained that "as long as books are not sexually explicit, I really don't see any reason to have a censorship policy. The First Amendment protects virtually complete and absolute access to ideas in print."

'Gays and lesbians' make plea to be accepted and recognized by Notre Dame

By PETER AMEND
News Writer

Mike W. Miller and John Corvino, co-chairs of Gays and Lesbians of ND/SMC, ask that the Notre Dame community accept unconditionally their gay members by recognizing National Coming Out Day (NCOD).

Miller and Corvino spoke at the Student Senate meeting this week and offered the following written proposal:

•The Student Senate of the University of Notre Dame, recognizing and fully appreciating the Catholic nature of this University and all that it represents, wholeheartedly condemns discrimination, harassment, and violence against gay and lesbian people.

•Recognizing that gay and lesbian students on this campus often feel the oppression that comes from misinformation and misunderstanding about homosexuality, we call upon the student body of this University to open their minds and hearts to their gay brothers and sisters and to stand up against any form of violence, discrimination, or harassment.

•Also, recognizing how difficult it is for gay and lesbian people to live openly in an oppressive environment, we support the students in the Notre Dame community who have chosen to live openly and not to conceal or repress this basic aspect of their identities.

•Therefore, be it resolved that the Student Senate of the University of Notre Dame proclaims 11 October 1990 National Coming Out Day at Notre Dame in conjunction with the celebration across the country of NCOD in America.

The NCOD Senate will vote on the proposal next week.

Also addressing the Senate, Adworks President, Damian Shiner, explained how Adworks has been reorganized to prevent another loss. Shiner said he has cut the payroll staff by one third, and made the accounting and distribution systems more efficient. "We have had no problems this year, and do not foresee any losses," said Shiner.

Finally, the HPC report stated that the HPC will sponsor the first annual "Quarter Smorgasbord", held this Friday from 4-7 p.m. on Holy Cross Field. All proceeds will go to the Women's Care Center and Zhengde Wang, the ND student who was hit by a drunk driver and is still at St. Joseph's Hospital.

ALA kicks off national Banned Books Week

CHICAGO (AP) — What do Dr. Seuss, Stephen King and the editors of Webster's dictionary have in common? There are among the scores of books banned or challenged in the past year, the American Library Association said Monday in launching Banned Books Week.

"We need to bring to the attention of American public the fact that our First Amendment rights are under attack," said Judith Krug, director of the association's Office for Intellectual Freedom.

A Webster's Dictionary edition was challenged in the Upper Pittsgrove Township, N.J., school district because parents objected to the definition of sexual intercourse as "the sexual joining of two individuals," said Paul Whitman, secretary of the school board.

The 1986 dictionary — an edition edited especially for teenagers — was removed from fourth and fifth grade classrooms last fall, but continues to be used in upper levels, he said. Whitman said he didn't know what portion of the definition provoked the challenge.

"The Lorax" by Dr. Seuss' was challenged in a Laytonville, Calif., school district last September. Parents working for a local logging company said the book portrayed their industry negatively.

The book remained on the second-grade required reading list after the challenge, but teachers voluntarily moved it to an optional list the following spring, said Superintendent Brian Buckley.

Stephen King's "The Stand" was restricted to ninth-grade students with parental consent at Whitford Intermediate School in Beaverton, Ore. after some parents objected to violence and sexual language. Another King novel, "Christine," was pulled from the library at Washington Middle School in Meriden, Conn., after a parent complained about offensive passages.

Jurors asked if they read Playboy

CINCINNATI (AP) — Potential jurors in an obscenity trial involving Robert Mapplethorpe's sexually explicit photos were asked Monday whether they look at Playboy magazine or attend arts fund-raisers.

Many questioned during the first day of jury selection said they'd seen such adult magazines as Playboy, Penthouse and Hustler, but said they didn't subscribe. None acknowledged having taken an art class or attending a fund-raiser for the arts.

The Contemporary Arts Center and its director, Dennis Barrie, were charged in April with pandering obscenity and displaying nude photos of children. The photographs were from the exhibit "Robert Mapplethorpe: The Perfect Moment."

The seven-week exhibition of photographs by Mapplethorpe, who died of AIDS in March 1989, attracted a record crowd of more than 80,000 people to the gallery last spring.

About 150 gay-rights and anti-censorship demonstrators protested the trial outside the Hamilton County Courthouse from mid-morning through the noon hour Monday. They sometimes disrupted traffic, but there were no arrests.

The charges are both misdemeanors. If convicted, Barrie, 43, faces a possible fine of $1,000 and six months in jail on each count. The gallery could be fined $5,000 on each count.

A panel of eight jurors and two alternates will be chosen to hear the trial in Hamilton County Municipal Court. Jury selection was expected to continue through Tuesday, with testimony lasting into next week.

A pool of 50 prospective jurors was assembled Monday, but attorneys got less than halfway through questioning the first group of eight.

"Would you avoid a homosexual art display?" the gallery's attorney, Marc Mezibov, asked one prospective juror.

"I wouldn't put out money to see homosexual art," the man responded.

Mezibov also told prospective jurors that testimony will deal with Mapplethorpe's homosexuality.

Prosecutor Frank Prouty asked prospective jurors whether they had seen Playboy, Penthouse or Hustler magazines and whether they had taken art classes or attended an arts fund-raiser.

Judge David Albanese asked all 50 prospective jurors if they had any personal contact with the art community. One person said she was a member of the Contemporary Arts Center, and three said they had seen the exhibit.

Protesters outside denounced the trial as homophobic intimidation.

AIDS victim made sex a hobby

Sleeping with 15 girls regularly proves deadly

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — By the time Ronnie Mutimusekwa was 15, he was sleeping regularly with three different girls. A few years later, the number had grown to 15 and he was proud to think any woman he asked would go to bed with him.

"I guess I made sex a hobby," said the 34-year-old.

A deadly hobby.

Mutimusekwa, from Zimbabwe's southern city of Bulawayo, contracted AIDS. He does not know who gave it to him, nor does he know who may have caught it from him.

Behavior like his has contributed to the rapid spread of the disease in Africa, and has helped make the continent the AIDS center of the world.

Two-thirds of the world's estimated AIDS cases are in Africa, and most of those are concentrated in about 12 countries across the continent's central, eastern and southern regions.

The problem only threatens to get worse, according to medical experts. Infection rates, unlike those in most other areas of the world, are rising in Africa. If current trends continue, millions of African infants will be born with the deadly disease, and Africa's population growth rate — now the world's highest — will be cut as AIDS kills those in what should be the most productive time of their lives.

The Geneva-based World Health Organization estimates that in sub-Saharan Africa, one of every 40 adult men and women is infected with the HIV virus that causes AIDS. In the United States, which has recorded about half the world's known cases of AIDS, one of every 75 men and 700 women has HIV, WHO estimates.

Because of under-recognition, under-reporting and delays in reporting, WHO estimates only a fraction of the world's cases of AIDS and HIV have been recorded.

As of mid-1990, about 65,000 AIDS cases had been reported from Africa. But WHO estimates closer to 500,000 adult AIDS cases probably exist — more than half the estimated global total.

In what it calls a conservative estimate, the organization says 5 million Africans may be HIV carriers.

"AIDS and HIV are becoming more and more a disease of the developing world," said Michael Merson, WHO's anti-AIDS chief, in a telephone interview from Geneva. "By the year 2000, we expect 80 percent of the cases to be in the developing world."

The organization says about 20 million cases worldwide are expected by the end of the century.

Merson includes Latin America when he speaks of AIDS and the developing world, but WHO statistics show the severity of the disease in Africa far outstrips any other continent.

Today, AIDS is the leading cause of death among young adults in many African countries, said Merson.

The average African victim, however, differs from his American or European counterpart, who is usually a homosexual or an intravenous drug user. In Africa, most AIDS casualties are heterosexuals. Because of this, the number of women infected roughly equals the number of men.

And because many of the infected women are in their prime, HIV transmission from mother to child is an increasing problem.

Already this year, about 500,000 children carrying the HIV virus have been born in Africa, says WHO. The organization estimates an additional 2 million to 3 million infected infants will be born before the year 2000. Another 10 million children born to infected mothers but who will not contract the disease are expected to become AIDS-related orphans in the 1990s, says WHO.

Dambudzo, a 26-year-old unemployed Zimbabwean, lost a 2-year-old daughter to the disease. The divorcee said she learned she had AIDS while still in the hospital after delivering her baby.

"I was really hurt because the baby had also contracted the disease and whenever she was brought in for breastfeeding, I would look at her and cry," Dambudzo told Ziana, Zimbabwe's news agency.

Oil prices peak as world tightens sanctions on Saddam

(AP) — World leaders opened a U.N. General Assembly session Monday by condemning Iraq as a warlike state for its invasion of Kuwait, as Iraqi President Saddam Hussein vowed to fight for "a thousand years" to keep the oil-rich emirate.

While the world body prepared to tighten sanctions on Iraq, the economic repercussions of the Persian Gulf crisis spread and strengthened.

Oil prices peaked at $39.20 a barrel and settled at a record $38.25 on the New York Mercantile Exchange, where oil futures have been traded since 1983. Gasoline and home heating oil both topped $1 a gallon. The International Monetary fund, meanwhile, moved to help poor countries whose economies are being devastated by the conflict.

The stock market in New York fell to a 14-month low Monday, battered by rising oil prices and trouble in the banking industry. The Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 59.41 points to 2,452.97.

French President Francois Mitterrand delivered the first of a series of condemnations of Iraq, warning that Iraq's aggression could lead to global anarchy. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze speaks Tuesday, and President Bush is to address the 160-member assembly next Monday.

Bush said in Washington on Monday "I'm not going to be distracted" by Saddam's efforts to link the crisis with the Israeli-Palestinian dispute.

"First we've got to take care of the situation that exists right now, naked aggression of one country against the other. That cannot be permitted to stand," Bush told a group of Arab-American leaders in Washington.

Saddam has suggested one way to ease the crisis would be for Israel to leave the Arab territories it has occupied since 1967.

Iraq's foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, was to address the United Nations the same day as Bush, but he has insisted on traveling to New York aboard Iraq's flag carrier, Iraqi Airways.

Herer was incredulous, wondering how someone could sacrifice the safety of the world on the premise of legality. "When I was a kid, and believe me I'm not being facetious, I never dreamed that politicians would sell out the sky, the ozone layer, and our country," Herer said.

"Facts are our only clue to what the future holds for us," Herer said. He believes that hemp is the only way the world will be saved and he won't back down from anyone who tells him otherwise. # Deficit hits record high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit jumped $52.8 billion to a record $241.7 billion in August, but could be reduced before the fiscal year ends Sept. 30, the Treasury Department reported Monday.

The 67 percent surge over the comparable 11 months of 1989 boosted the spending imbalance well over the record of $221.1 billion posted in fiscal 1986. The August total, however, fell short of the one-month record of $53.3 billion set last March.

"We used to have years that were that bad," economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch said of the August deficit.

The department said about $25 billion of the August deficit reflected a shift of payments normally made in September such as military pay and Social Security checks to the previous month to avoid Labor Day weekend delays.

"This will affect September's results by $25 billion as compared to last year," it said in a statement.

Still, without the $25 billion early payment, the deficit so far this fiscal year would have totaled $216.9 billion. The deficit in September 1989 was $6.1 billion.

The Bush administration had forecast a $218.5 billion imbalance for all of fiscal 1990.

White House and congressional negotiators are trying to reach agreement on reducing the deficit by $50 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 and $500 billion over the next five years.

Without an agreement, the White House estimates the fiscal 1991 deficit will total $232.3 billion.

Revenues in August totaled $78.5 billion, up 3.1 percent from the comparable month in 1989. But the receipts were offset by $131.2 billion in outlays, a 33.5 percent gain over August 1989.

In addition to the early payments, the spending bill included $2.6 billion for the Resolution Trust Corp., the government agency charged with bailing out the savings and loan industry. The S&L bailout cost $3.2 billion in July and $37.8 billion so far this year.

The government hopes to regain much of the bailout cost by selling real estate, loans, securities and other assets from failed thrifts. That would help reduce the deficit in future years.

"It's just a continuation of the trends we've been seeing," Steinberg said. "Receipts are not that strong because the economy is weakening."

Revenues for the first 11 months totaled $928.6 billion, up 4.2 percent from the first 11 months of last year. Spending during the period totaled $1.2 trillion, 12.8 percent over the comparable period of 1989.

As usual, the biggest spending categories were the military, Social Security and other programs of the Department of Health and Human Services and interest on the national debt.

Military spending totaled $27.8 billion in August and $269.2 billion so far this year. It is projected to total $290.2 billion for the entire fiscal year.

Social Security payments amounted to $41.2 billion for the month and $244.2 billion for the year. They are projected to total $244.9 billion for the year.

Other HHS payments, including Medicare and Medicaid, totaled $18.3 billion in August and $179.7 billion for 1990 so far. They are projected to total $192.4 billion in fiscal 1990.

Interest on the national debt amounted to $18.9 billion for the month and $247.6 billion so far this year. Such interest is projected to total $261.1 billion for the entire year.

Bush's son faces judge for costing taxpayers $1 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's son Neil goes before a judge Tuesday in Denver for a rare public hearing that could lead to his being barred from working for a bank or savings and loan.

Federal regulators have accused Bush, 35, of conflict of interest in his former role as a director of Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association, a Denver thrift that failed in late 1988 at an estimated cost to taxpayers of $1 billion.

The hearing before an administrative law judge is the centerpiece of the government's complex proceeding against Bush, which has taken the form of a paperwork battle since the Office of Thrift Supervision filed the charges in February.

The OTS is seeking an order against Bush, an oil and gas developer, to effectively bar him from working for a bank or a savings and loan. The agency contends that Bush failed to adequately disclose to Silverado his business relationships with developers Kenneth Good and Bill Walters, two big borrowers from Silverado who defaulted on their loans.

Bush could have avoided a public hearing by agreeing not to dispute the conflict-of-interest charges, as other S&L officials have done in nearly all such previous cases. By fighting the government, he has taken the case out of attorneys' and regulators' offices into a public forum.

"The swords are drawn," Bush's attorney, James Nesland, said recently.

Bush plans to testify in his own defense at the hearing, which is expected to continue through most of the week.

Although such a public hearing is almost unprecedented, the participants don't expect any fireworks or courtroom drama. In fact, Nesland said, "This is going to be an extraordinarily boring hearing."

That's because it will mainly be a replay of written testimony already submitted to the administrative law judge, Daniel Davidson. Regulators and outside experts will be cross-examined on that testimony by attorneys for the two sides.

The judge won't issue an opinion for some time.

Today's complexities demand an aware citizenry

By Mike Byrne

I just turned 21 this past August 31 and one of the places where I was fêted and sated at was The Commons. It's a friendly bar which can be found, for those underage people cannot get in there and thus, do not know its location, directly across from Bridget McGuire's. It was a memorable evening, for those I was with. And at one point during the night, while I was pensively downing a Prairie Fire, I remembered something a man said to me in that very bar just two years ago.

He was an older man, all alone at a barstool, but by no means in a stupor. He did have a beer in hand, but he quaffed it at his leisure—"nursing it," as some might say. His task at hand was not getting drunk. In fact, he really didn't seem to have a task at hand. The gospel he preached, however, when one was forced to get near him to order something from the bartender, was, "It's just so complex, man."

Now here I am, waiting ever so patiently for a stout lady to serve up some stout, and this guy is just staring at me, shaking his head a little, and handing me some philosophy jive. Now, one usually expects such spewings at the PLS-infested Commons, but usually not from the mouth of someone with a grease-stained Seattle Mariners hat on his head. So I'm waiting, so I bite. "What do you mean?" I say out of curiosity, and, I am sorry to say, out of pity.

He said, "I don't know man. I feel bad for all you guys. I thought I had it tough understanding things when I was growing up. But nowadays, man, it just gets more complex everyday." Some pausing here—because I could do nothing but nod—and more head shaking. "So complex," I was pretty speechless, so I just patted the guy—who had just returned my pity—on the shoulder, and said, "You take it easy, man," and walked away.

That piece of his mind has remained with me since. It's nothing you have to reflect upon too deeply, and it provides no solutions. It just observes, and it's true. I'd like to think of myself as someone who keeps up with current events; I minimally read The Observer every weekday, and try to read The New York Times or Chicago Tribune at least three times a week.

I'm afraid I'll have to pause here a bit and pontificate about why one should keep up with the news, which I did not want to have to do. But I realize that those who don't really follow the news, who are simply reading this to pass the time at lunch, in order to have something to mutually rip on with the person across the table, will have no reason to continue reading unless they believe there's some reason to follow the news. Here goes. One should follow the news—in newspapers, magazines, on radio, and/or on television, for, at a minimum, utterly selfish, practical reasons. If one is aware of the events which daily affect and change the globe, the nation, the state and the locality in which one lives, he can shape his actions on a local level so as to secure the best future he can for himself, his family and his friends. Conversely, the uninformed individual unnecessarily gambles, to a greater degree, with his future.

I once again apologize for placing this primer in front of adult eyes, but I felt the need to do so after entering a dorm bathroom recently to find each of four empty stalls with a newspaper on it floor. Three were turned to the Sports section; the fourth section was unintelligible, as it was being used to soak up water from a toilet whose bowl overflowed. All four were "USA Today."

Now back to our show. Like I said, I like to stay relatively informed; I think it's a necessity. But reading straight through The New York Times these days is even more dizzying than it used to be. First of all, it would take hours to accomplish such a feat. We do have to live our lives, and not endlessly determine, through weighing new information, how to live them; hence, graduation. Secondly, even if one could somehow allocate enough time to read everything everyday, he could never have the necessary historical background to put these myriad news bites in context, to judge these editorials intelligently and objectively. As communications and economies expanded globally in recent years, we unpreparedly became inundated with new information. And the fact is that much of this new information is not extraneous; it is vital to be understood by our citizenry so they may make wise political choices for America and wise personal choices for themselves.

That guy in the bar, that wise man, knew this. He said it, too. He didn't simply pass off the instant it crossed his mind with a tired shoulder shrug. He acknowledged it, and it really disturbed him. It certainly is a disheartening task these days to try to keep informed when we have less "leisure time" to do so than ever before and when hundreds of events and business transactions—most beyond any deep understanding to the average guy—spiral outward each day, for the most part out of our control. I guess it's just a matter of gleaning the papers for those few articles with which we feel a connection, upon which we feel the possibility of acting locally to affect change for the better. It's what we really must do to act responsibly, for our own sake and for others. Because it's even more disheartening to think of living in this complex global village without a clue—informationally unarmed, and dangerous.

DIAL F-R-E-D!

New suggestion line attracts offbeat grievances

STEVE TANKOVICH
Accent Writer

In its first year of existence, the FRED line is bringing an interesting new aspect to the Notre Dame community. The FRED line, ND student government's latest method of gaining input from the student body, is bringing in important suggestions and comments for possible improvements by student government.

ND students who dial x3733 (F-R-E-D) are welcomed by a short, recorded message which requests that they leave their suggestions, along with their name, address and phone number so that they can be contacted later. The use of an answering machine in this process enables the service to be offered 24 hours a day.

At regular intervals, the messages are replayed by student body Vice-President, Fred Tombar. Fred takes down the messages on a suggestion form, which is designed to facilitate the referring of suggestions to the appropriate department for action. Then, student body Secretary, Nicole Farmer, makes sure that the suggestion forms are sorted and given to the proper department coordinator. Nicole also occasionally assists in the taking of messages.

The first weeks of the FRED line's existence brought a steady stream of calls into the student government office, which is located on the second floor of LaFortune. According to Fred, there were originally about 20 calls a day. Numbers have now begun to level out at about five calls daily. Of these five, three or so usually can be recognized as "helpful" or "very helpful."

Most of the useful suggestions thus far have been referred to the student life department. The department covers women's concerns, minority concerns, campus improvements, and student services, as well as campus security and the areas of alcohol, food, and health. Numerous students have responded in the areas of student service and campus improvement. There have also been significant ideas expressed about security. In fact, the new lighting being developed in the D2 parking lot can be linked with the FRED line.

Yet, along with the "helpful" calls, the line has also received a great number of calls which, although not necessarily discouraged by student government, have created a certain FRED line mystique. These calls, ranging from the abstract to the obscene, make up the more bizarre half of the FRED line.

The FRED line's bizarre calls have provided student government with entertainment and an abundance of ideas which would probably not arise at even the greatest of brainstorming sessions. They have also provided criticism of everyday elements of the university from interesting perspectives. And as a service to some students, the FRED line has managed to serve, from the viewpoint of student body President, Rob Pasin, as "almost a 976 number" or a "Dear Abby." People have mourned about football ticket sales, as well as problems occurring in relationships.

Some specific examples of bizarre calls may shed light on the mysterious side of the FRED line. They also will serve as testimony to the ingenuity of the student body. While some of these calls were possibly intended to be serious, it is highly unlikely that they all were.

Looking at the structure of the academic year, one student commented that classes should not be held on Mondays or Fridays. Another felt that classes should start later in the year so that students would have time to build their lofts.

The area of campus improvements brought yet another interesting request. Apparently nighttime waders through the Hesburgh reflecting pool were shocked to discover that, upon emergence from the water, their legs had turned blue. It was suggested that the dye presently used in the pool be removed to avoid further incidents.

Some socially conscious suggestions have been made. For example, a student requested that the gold in the dome be melted down and the proceeds used to feed the hungry people of the world.

The mention of bizarre calls to the FRED line would be incomplete without the mentioning of the line's regular caller. This caller claims to be, incredible as it may sound to political science majors, to be the high ranking official which leaked the Watergate scandal, "Deep Throat." This notable official, now a resident of Pangborn Hall, has observed various injustices occurring on the campus grounds.

One of "Deep Throat's" observations was made at the South Dining Hall. Note that this observation has been summarized to remove what seemed to be suspiciously off-color details. Much to a student's dismay, he was only allowed to remove two pieces of fruit from the cafeteria instead of three. The third piece of fruit was confiscated by a cafeteria employee. The official was also rudely kicked off South quad during a pickup baseball game.

"Deep Throat" has expressed great confidence in Fred. One of the official's messages closes with "Fred, I believe you, I trust you, and I know you can do something about this." There are rumors of a possible plot by "Deep Throat" to place Fred in power as President, although details are uncertain.

Among the really bizarre calls, Fred and Rob have received interesting propositions. Supposedly the line is helping them to gain dates, as well as hear from admirers. One female in the office uses the line to make comments about Rob's physique.

As a final note, the student government seems pleased with the response to the line. And what about the origin of the name? Well, apparently Fred never knew about the name until it was installed, and therefore he had no way of knowing what would hit him.

Saint Mary's Popular Culture Club prompts music, film, and chats

accent writer

Saint Mary's College has established the Popular Culture Club to analyze and critique America's popular culture. The basic purpose of the club is to bring faculty and students together on an informal basis in order to discuss how popular culture affects everyone.

Cutrofello, one of the founders of the club, will be playing at Club Tuesday on September 25 at 9:00 pm. His performance will feature Bob Dylan songs and afterwards, he will give a light critique of Dylan's music.

The Popular Culture Club is sponsoring a film series at Saint Mary's, with informal group discussions to follow each movie. The next movie in the film series, "Pretty Woman," will be presented on October 17 at 6:00 pm in Carroll Hall.

"Dick Tracy" will be presented on November 2 at 7:00 pm in the Little Theater, Moreau Hall.

Cutrofello stressed that the club is willing to take suggestions from anyone and is open to any member of the Notre Dame community, as well as the South Bend community. "The response from students has been good; they have been eager to see what the Popular Culture Club is all about," said Cutrofello. In the future, the club hopes to hold meetings in the dormitories in order to allow more students to become involved with the club. A lecture series is also in the planning stages.

"There is a difference between talking popular culture and actually doing popular culture criticism. Personally, I believe you have to have a little Marxist in you in order to really critique popular culture, because you have to understand the various relations of power among people. You must understand surface symbolism and then probe beneath that in order to understand the ideology behind the symbol," he said.

Cutrofello explained that the idea for the club started when he and Pat White, associate dean of faculty at Saint Mary's, went to the Popular Culture Association's convention in Toronto, Ontario, in March of 1990. Papers presented at the convention dealt with such topics as "Sexual Imagery in the Market Place," "Vietnam Image," and "The Value of Convenience in America: From Sex to Violence."

Cutrofello and White enjoyed themselves so much that they decided to hold a faculty meeting in order to determine how many would be interested in starting a popular culture club at Saint Mary's.

Here's your opportunity to clean up your act!

Isn't it time you considered doing away with the low resolution of the Laserwriter? No longer do you have to settle for printing materials in which the type is jagged and difficult to read at small point sizes. Using our Linotronic 200P your fonts and graphics are accurately spaced and registered, blacks are solid, whites are clean and tones are crisp.

What's more all jobs are guaranteed to be completed in twenty-four hours or less or we'll output it for free. And we offer pick-up and delivery to any administrative or academic office on the Notre Dame or Saint Mary's campus.

Best of all, we offer high quality outputting at extremely reasonable prices. In fact our prices are some of the lowest in the nation. Special discounts are also available for large jobs.

Our staff is familiar with most major desktop publishing and graphics programs for the Macintosh. And we have a large library of Adobe Typefaces.

Isn't it time you did away with the 300 dpi resolution of the Laserwriter and switched to the 1270 dpi resolution of our Linotronic Imagesetter?

Notre Dame stumbles in RI volleyball tourney

By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR
Sports Writer

Entering the Rhode Island Tournament last weekend, the Notre Dame women's volleyball team needed a boost in order to catapult itself into the toughest part of its schedule. Unfortunately for the Irish (5-5), the weekend did not prove to be the springboard coach Art Lambert had hoped it would be, as the team came away with only one win.

The weekend did not start off well for the Irish. Facing Sherbrooke, a team from Canada, the Irish found trouble. After losing the first game 15-9, Notre Dame staged a short-lived comeback, taking the second game 16-14. However, the Irish were put away quickly in the third and fourth games, 15-10, 15-13 by the Vert & Or. On a bittersweet note, the loss was not added to the Irish record due to the international standing of the match.

Notre Dame looked better in the second match of the day against Syracuse, which posted a 28-9 record in 1989. The Orangemen (9-7) went down easily in the first game, 15-10, but stormed back to take games two and three, 15-8, 15-9. Notre Dame rolled in the fourth game, 15-6, and fought for the fifth game, winning 16-14. The match was highlighted by 17 kills by sophomore hitter Jessica Fiebelkorn and the 50 assists set by freshman Janelle Karlan.

In the weekend's closer against the University of Rhode Island, Notre Dame came out strong, but fizzled. The Irish put URI away in the first game, 15-10. Rhode Island took the second game, 15-11. Notre Dame came back in the third, 15-13, but then the host Rams (6-4) took control, winning the fourth and fifth sets, 15-9, 15-10.

"We didn't do enough," said Coach Art Lambert, who was hardly pleased with the team's performance this weekend. "We have to improve our blocking, which did not exist."

Notre Dame will host Penn State and Miami (Ohio) on Friday and Saturday, respectively. During the weekend of October 5, the Irish host the Golden Dome Classic, which includes such strong teams as Hofstra, Oklahoma, and Louisiana State.

"We are beginning the teeth of our schedule," said Lambert. "The teams in our early season were only .500 teams. We've got some serious thinking to do, and some

"They (MSU) took advantage of a mistake and made it stand up," said Petrucelli. "It's tough to win when you don't score any goals."

Notre Dame's frustration became apparent when Head Coach Mike Berticelli and Petrucelli were both given red cards for arguing with the referee at the 85-minute mark, forcing them to leave the game. Assistant Coach John Stollmeyer was left to coach the remaining five minutes.

The Irish then traveled to Milwaukee, Wis., to face the Marquette Warriors Sunday afternoon, hoping to erase some of the bad luck that had plagued the team ever since it shelled Valparaiso over a week ago.

That good-luck leprechaun must have been exhausted after helping the Irish football team past Michigan State, because he certainly didn't follow the soccer team from East Lansing, Mich., to Milwaukee.

The Irish, starting freshman Matt Fitz in goal after he replaced Peter Gulli in the second half of the MSU game, played well in the first half against the Warriors.

Going into half time the game was a scoreless tie, but it didn't take long after the intermission for that to change. Just 25 seconds into the second stanza, a barrage that would last until the closing minutes of the game began.

At the 45:25 mark, the Warriors' Josh Norman took a pass from James Daneher at put it past Fitz to notch the first score for Marquette. Eight minutes later, Jay Spatzek got into the act, scoring the first of his two unassisted goals after 53:54 had passed in the game, to make the score 2-0.

Fitz and the Irish defense were able to buckle down for over 30 minutes, hoping in vain for the ND offense to get the game back within reach, but ultimately Marquette broke Notre Dame's lines and put the game away.

Spatzek again beat the Irish defense and scored at the 85:02 mark to seal the fate of Notre Dame. Then, to add insult to injury, Marquette's Matt Breines added an unassisted goal with just under three minutes to play to make the final score 4-0 in favor of the Warriors.

With those two losses, the Irish capped a week in which they played four games in seven days. Notre Dame now has until Friday to rest, regroup, and solve several problems before it faces last year's NCAA co-champions, the Indiana Hoosiers.

One of the most pressing of the problems for ND is the lack of offense. After scoring six times against Valparaiso, Notre Dame's offense has deserted it. The Irish have now gone three games and eight days without posting a score.

Another question mark for the Irish is at goalkeeper. Freshman Matt Fitz replaced junior Peter Gulli after the latter surrendered only one goal, on a penalty kick, in Friday's game. Fitz did not allow another goal against Michigan State, but was rocked for four goals in the Marquette game.

"It was a tough stretch of games, especially since we were losing," said senior co-captain Danny Stebbins. "It's been a hard season. We've kind of been unlucky, but you make your own luck. A couple days of rest and practice, and we'll come together."

With the way things have been going for the team, they'll take any kind of luck they can get, even if it isn't from the leprechaun.

Women

1:04 left in the game, as her shot deflected off a Spartan defender and into the opposite corner of the net, well beyond the reach of the Michigan State goalie who had fallen and could not get up.

"When Tasha scored her goal, we were really at that point where we'd had so many chances that everybody on the field felt like we were going to get one sooner or later," noted Petrucelli. "Michigan State is probably the best Division I team that a Notre Dame team has ever beaten. This was really a great victory for our program, and the kids are excited about it."

"If you look at the history of this program, Notre Dame lost to Michigan State 4-0 last year. But this year, we really played well and deserved to win that game."

Key to the Notre Dame win, aside from the entire defensive unit, were Strawbridge and Roemer. In her last three games, Strawbridge has scored five goals, including a crucial tally against Saint Joseph's and the game-winner against Michigan State. Roemer, meanwhile, has provided a tremendous spark off of the bench.

"I think we have to recognize that since her injury, Tasha Strawbridge has really come on," reflected Petrucelli. "It has been a big difference for us the way she has come off the bench and lifted the team."

The same is true of Marta Roemer, but without the goal production. Marta has changed games and covered up for us when we have made mistakes."

Also instrumental in the Irish win was forward Susie Zilvitis, who did not score, but provided a tremendous distraction for the Michigan State defense.

"I thought that Susie Zilvitis was dangerous all weekend," stated Petrucelli. "Sometimes people do not see her contribution unless she scores goals. She draws attention to herself because every time she gets the ball the other team goes into a panic. Just having Susie on the field creates scoring chances for us."

On Sunday morning against Marquette, Notre Dame again put on a first-class performance, but could not finish the pesky club team. The Lady Warriors drew first blood early in the matchup, but the Irish quickly proceeded to tie and dominate the game. Alison Lester had the lone goal for the Irish, while Zilvitis was awarded an assist.

"We played very well against Marquette," said Petrucelli. "I was concerned after the Michigan State game that we would come out flat. We started slow and gave up a goal early that we probably shouldn't have given up. From then on, we played very well."

"We totally dominated every aspect of the game. We had shots hit the post four times, went one-on-one with the goalie three times without scoring and Marianne Giolitto missed a penalty kick. Still, for most of the game, we totally dominated."

Once again, the Notre Dame defense saved the day, holding Marquette to less than three shots.

"Margaret Jarc, Marianne Giolitto and Stephanie Porter have totally dominated the midfield in the last three games," said Petrucelli. "Those three players dictate how we will play. If they play well or decide that they will work hard, then everybody does the same. Michelle Lodyga has also been very solid in goal."

Going into the weekend's action, Notre Dame was ranked tenth in the midwest region. Michigan State, on the other hand, had been ranked sixth. All things considered, recent performances by the Irish have significantly enhanced Notre Dame's push for regional prominence.

"I think that we're really starting to play well," exclaimed Petrucelli. "Our brand of soccer is an attractive style right now. We're playing together very well, and I think that we're exciting and fun to watch. Everybody who is playing is playing very well and the bench is doing a great job for us. We have made great strides from the first day of preseason to now."

"Looking at the past, I don't think that anybody can match what we've done so far. Marquette beat Notre Dame 3-0 last year. We believe that we can play with anybody and I think that we have shown that on the field."

Holtz

No matter if it's Purdue or Miami, the games get a little bit tougher when you're the hunted. Of course, Holtz might take issue with that.

"I never said we were the number-one team," he said.

Convincing people that Notre Dame does not deserve to be the top-ranked team in the country could be Holtz's toughest sell. The last two weeks have left him with little defense for such an argument.

A look at the Irish schedule - the toughest in the country - shows that the last two weekends could become the rule rather than the exception.

"I can't control the future," Holtz said. "I just take it." So far, he likes what he

Clemens given O.K. to pitch Friday against rival Blue Jays

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's Roger Clemens, sidelined with a sore right shoulder since Sept. 4, was given medical clearance to pitch on Friday against the Toronto Blue Jays.

"He plans to throw on Tuesday and he's looking forward to pitching on Friday," Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox' doctor, said Monday at a news conference at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

"Roger feels he has pitched through more than this in the past," Pappas said after examining the two-time Cy Young Award winner. "Roger wants to pitch and he feels he can pitch Friday night."

Pappas, an orthopedic specialist, emphasized that there is nothing seriously wrong with Clemens' right shoulder.

"There is no problem with his rotator cuff," Pappas said. "There is no structural damage within his shoulder."

Clemens, 20-6 with a 1.98 earned run average, was stricken with severe tendinitis on Sept. 4 when he lasted just 5 1-3 innings and had an eight-game winning streak snapped by Oakland.

After daily medication to reduce inflammation and fluid buildup in the front of the shoulder, he aired out his arm last Tuesday, throwing 80 pitches in the bullpen in Baltimore.

Detmer

his performance in big games and his ability to bring his team team from behind. On Sept. 8 Detmer completed 38 of 54 passes to lead Brigham Young to a 28-21 triumph over Miami, which was the top-ranked team in the country at the time. And on Sept. 15 he rallied the Cougars from a 29-7 deficit against Washington State, throwing three touchdown passes in the last 15 minutes of a 50-36 BYU victory.

Vaughn has not exactly been racking up the yards against a bunch of slouches, either. His 201-yard performance came against a top-ranked Notre Dame team which gave up only 117 yards rushing against the entire Michigan State team on Saturday. And UCLA, which is having an off-year, is still always a decent team.

Some of the credit for Vaughn's success will go to a Michigan offensive line which may be the biggest and best in the country. Likewise, a portion of Detmer's success will be credited to the sophisticated passing attack of Brigham Young coach LaVell Edwards, and a weak Cougar schedule.

Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore, who was a preseason favorite just like Detmer, might sneak into the race, too. Moore has completed 53 of 74 passes for 831 yards in four games this season, but he will play against an even weaker schedule with the Cavaliers than Detmer will this year, and he will almost certainly end up with inferior numbers.

So if Vaughn and Detmer continue to perform like they have in the first few weeks of the season, it will be difficult to give the Heisman to another candidate. It will also be difficult to choose between them.

Notre Dame both lucky and good in early going

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz sat alone in the lockerroom after the Irish had just rallied to defeat Michigan State 20-19 on Saturday afternoon.

Greg Guffey
Sports Editor

His eyes were fixed straight ahead, somewhat oblivious to the congratulatory words thrown his way. His expression looked like he couldn't believe what had happened the past two weeks. At times, he looked like he was waiting for the players to leave so he could clean the lockerroom, not like the coach who had just won his second consecutive close game.

When the talk turns to war at the next family reunion - his father was in the Pacific theatre and his uncle in the Battle of the Bulge - Holtz can say that he participated in two in September of 1990.

He looked battle-weary, but he was victorious. And in war, that counts for something.

"I don't think anybody has any idea what it's like to be the football coach at Notre Dame," Holtz said. "Every week, big games, big opponents."

In the past two weekends, Notre Dame has overcome fourth-quarter deficits to post big victories. The Irish were behind 24-14 to Michigan two weeks ago, but came back to win 28-24. They were down 19-7 to Michigan State and came out with a 20-19 triumph.

Those victories have led many to call this one of the luckiest teams ever. Sometimes, it is better to be lucky than good. But the Irish have been both.

"We've been lucky but we've had some bad luck too," Holtz said. "Good luck and good things happen to those who play hard."

As each week passes, the Irish solidify their position at number one. The target on their chest grows at a proportional rate.

"It's getting harder," said Irish linebacker Scott Kowalkowski. "Everybody is shooting for us."

Says tailback Ricky Watters, "How can we relax after two games like that? We haven't had a complete game yet."

Men's soccer team loses to Michigan State, Marquette

By RICH KURZ
Sports Writer

The leprechaun that has been following the Notre Dame football team, guiding it to last-minute victories the past two weekends, obviously hasn't had time to follow the men's soccer team.

The Irish (2-6-1) dropped two games over the weekend, losing to Michigan State 1-0 Friday night and getting battered 4-0 by Marquette Sunday afternoon.

The Michigan State game was played on a wet, muddy field that had been torn up by the women's game that immediately preceded the men's game. The playing conditions were definitely to the Spartans' advantage.

"It (the field) affected us," said Assistant Coach Chris Petrucelli. "They were bigger and faster, and we were smaller and quicker. It slowed us down."

Regardless of the field conditions, the final box-score on the game indicated the parity of the two teams. The Irish had only two shots on goal while the Spartans managed only four, leading to two saves by MSU goalkeeper Pat Trese and three saves for Notre Dame (two by Peter Gulli and one by Mike Fitz). Furthermore, Michigan State had only two corner kicks, while ND had just five.

In a game in which the two teams played as evenly as Notre Dame and Michigan State did Friday evening, a single break for one team determines the outcome of the game. And this was one such game.

Unfortunately for the Irish, the break went to the Spartans. A handball in the goalie's box by a ND player led to a penalty kick for Michigan State with just under 10 minutes left in the first half. Carl Hofinger hit the shot in the lower left corner of the goal, scoring what proved to be the deciding goal.

No matter how the Irish tried, an offense that has been anemic since the Valparaiso game simply could not put the ball in the net, making the Spartans' lone goal the deciding score.

Irish women defeat Spartans, tie Warriors

By DAVID DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team (5-2-1) trounced Michigan State and tied Marquette this weekend, helping itself to a good measure of success in midwestern regional action.

On Friday, Notre Dame capitalized on two deflected balls - one with 1:04 remaining in the contest - as it trounced the Spartans 2-1. Oddly enough, the Irish football team would pick up on the women's "deflected ball motif", as well as its "last-second victory motif" to sneak past the Spartan football team 20-19 barely 24 hours later.

"We played an excellent game," remarked Notre Dame head coach Chris Petrucelli. "We were playing on the road against one of the top teams in our region, and for the most part, we dominated them."

"It was a scoreless tie at the half, but we really felt like we were in control of the game at that point. It has been said that we were lucky because of the deflected balls, but lucky or not, we were the better team."

The Irish wasted little time converting their control into goals in the second half, as junior midfielder Marianne Giolitto scored at the 47:34 mark. The shot by Giolitto, which was the first of several important deflections for Notre Dame last weekend, ricocheted off a Michigan State defender toward the net, where Spartan goalkeeper Andrea Gerbi was unable to stop it, having slipped to the ground. Marta Roemer was credited with the assist.

Michigan State, who fell to 2-3 after the loss to the Irish, tied the game at the 57:56 mark. Tammy Anderson launched a high shot from the left side which just eluded leaping Irish goalie Michelle Lodyga for a 1-1 tie.

Detmer, Vaughn travel different roads to top

The two players who have emerged as the early-season frontrunners in the race for the Heisman Trophy have reached the spotlight from opposite directions.

Brigham Young quarterback Ty Detmer was one of the preseason favorites to win the Heisman. He has still managed to surpass the expectations of all but the most optimistic BYU fans in leading the Cougars to victories in their first four games.

Michigan tailback Jon Vaughn, on the other hand, was not even assured of a starting spot until the week of the Wolverines' first game against Notre Dame. The tailback position was supposed to be a question mark for Michigan this season with last year's star Tony Boles gone. But Vaughn, who won the job from senior Allen Jefferson, has instead turned the tailback position into an exclamation point under new coach Gary Moeller.

Vaughn, who gained only 11 yards on 10 carries last season as a freshman, opened the season with a 201-yard performance in a 28-24 loss to Notre Dame on Sept 15. He improved on that Saturday in his second game of the year, gaining 288 yards on 32 carries against UCLA. Both of those games were seen by a national television audience; Vaughn has achieved nationwide attention in a hurry.

Detmer, meanwhile, was expected to live up to the tradition that former Cougar quarterbacks Jim McMahon, Steve Young and Robbie Bosco had laid out for him. As a sophomore last season he broke or tied 13 NCAA records. In last year's Holiday Bowl, a 50-39 Cougar loss to Penn State, Detmer passed for more yards (576) than any other player ever has in any bowl game.

The San Antonio native has been sensational this season as well. Saturday he completed 26 of 38 passes for 514 yards and three touchdowns in a 62-34 win over San Diego State. That brought his season totals to 129 of 189 (68.3 percent), and 1,755 yards (439 yards per game).
