Pandora's cuts deal with city

BY DAVID KINNEY
Associate News Editor

Pandora's Books has tentatively struck a compromise deal with the city after its long battle to relocate the store.

Under the agreement, the city would to rezone a parcel of land along Howard Street to the corner of St. Peter's, allowing the bookstore, currently located in the Northeast Neighborhood just south of campus, to build a new facility on the property.

The deal is facing opposition from the members of the Northeast Neighborhood Association, who are worried that their residential area could become infested with commercial establishments, according to Art Quigley, director of the association.

This is the latest in a series of disputes between the Northeast Neighborhood and Pandora's over

Haitian soldiers reportedly killed at least 150 civilians

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Random attacks by soldiers have left at least 150 dead and 300 wounded in Haiti this week, according to reports Thursday. A radio station said 30 to 40 people were massacred in one teeming slum, apparently because its residents supported the deposed president.

Most of the attacks reportedly occurred from Monday, when President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was ousted by rebel soldiers, to Wednesday. Tension appeared to have eased somewhat Thursday, and more people were venturing into the streets.

Haitian politicians meanwhile said they welcome international pressure on the army to restore Aristide, Haiti's first freely elected president, to power. But most said they opposed any military intervention.

Aristide told reporters in Washington he believed pressure from the United States and its allies will save his country from "a small gang trying to kill democracy." White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said unequivocally that the coup "will not succeed."

Nations supporting the return of Aristide, a leftist priest inaugurated Feb. 7, have thus far relied on economic and diplomatic sanctions to pressure the Haitian army.

But in Caracas, Venezuela's defense minister said the army was on alert in preparation for a multinational military operation in case diplomatic efforts to restore democracy in Haiti fail.

The Pentagon says it has forces in place to send troops to evacuate Americans from Haiti, but spokesmen said Thursday there appeared to be little chance of this happening.

Radio Lumiere, a Protestant-run station, said an army-sponsored massacre occurred Wednesday afternoon in a shantytown in the western part of Port-au-Prince, the capital.

Security forces who picked up the body of a dead soldier in the slum returned later with reinforcements and went house-to-house shooting residents indiscriminately, the radio station said. Some residents were forced to dig holes to bury people on the spot, the report said.

There was no independent confirmation of the report, but hospital officials spoke of 150 dead and more than 300 wounded since the coup began. The military has long been an agent of repression in the impoverished Caribbean nation.

Fewer soldiers seemed to be on the streets of this capital city of 1 million Thursday, but an apparently nervous military issued an order banning street demonstrations.

Three days after the coup that exiled Aristide, there still appeared to be no government in place.

Brig. Gen. Raoul Cedras, the army's provisional commander-in-chief, said Wednesday that military leaders do not seek power. He appeared to be pushing for parliament to keep Aristide out of office and hold new elections.

Political leaders said they were concerned by a comment made Wednesday by President Bush that left open the possibility of intervention by "a multinational force of some sort" under the aegis of the Organization of American States.

At a meeting in Washington, the OAS agreed Thursday to impose sanctions on Haiti, one of the world's poorest nations, if democratic rule is not immediately restored. It said it would send a delegation to Haiti to demand Aristide's restoration.

"Before coming, the OAS delegation must make clear whether multinational armed force is envisioned. If it is, they will have trouble finding people to talk to," said Marc Bazin, a runner-up in last year's presidential elections.

Sen. Serge Gilles, a socialist, also said armed intervention should be ruled out. Both Gilles and Bazin, a conservative, said Aristide should be permitted to return, however.

Soldiers on Monday shot a 17-year-old youth to death outside Aristide's shelter for homeless children in Port-au-Prince, according to a supervisor, Milius Lubrun. He said five other youths from the home were shot and wounded Tuesday when they went to search for their friend.

Aristide, a 38-year-old Roman Catholic priest, founded the orphanage in 1986, and it was one of his most prized achievements. It was thought the attacks might have been intended to carry a symbolic message for Aristide.

On Thursday wounded continued to arrive at the capital's main hospital.

One woman, wounded in both legs, was being treated on the floor of the waiting room. Emergency room officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they were turning away all but the most serious cases because of overcrowding.

The emergency room officials said that since Sunday night, 324 wounded people had been treated. They said at least 150 were killed.

O'Brien discusses Native Americans

By KATHY MASSA
News Writer

In spite of losing their land and facing obstacles to their religion throughout the American history, Native Americans maintain their heritage and dignity, Professor Sharon O'Brien said at a fireside chat Thursday.

O'Brien spoke about Native Americans during a lecture on "The Rights of Indigenous Peoples."

President Andrew Jackson implemented a massive evacuation of Native Americans from their tribal lands, herding them into Oklahoma, O'Brien said. Over 4,000 Indians were buried on this infamous Trail of Tears. Today, two-hundred individual Indian cultures exist on over 500 poverty-stricken reservations throughout the United States.

The Europeans, according to O'Brien, brought to the new world the idea of the ownership of land, a concept foreign to the Native Americans. O'Brien said that, "the Spanish and the Portuguese believed the Pope to be God's representative on earth; thus, he had the power to divide God's earth."

According to O'Brien, religion is inextricably linked to the Native American way of life. She emphasized the importance the Native American's original homeland. Sacred ground, she said, is a critical component of worship practices.

When the settlers began to move west, they invaded the religious lands of the Native Americans. In spite of the First Amendment, it was not until 1924 that Indians could legally practice their religion.

In 1903, a certain tribe was told that their land would not be taken from them if three-quarters of the male Native Americans voted against a takeover. Of course, three-quarters did vote against such a measure. Regardless of the vote, the government "took it (the land) anyway and did not even pay for it," said O'Brien.

Even in the last decade, some entrepreneurs in California wanted to build a 5-mile road through sacred tribal grounds, O'Brien said. The tribes involved appealed to the Supreme Court on the grounds that the "Mac Attack" keeps students laughing ??

Question: What do the Notre Dame basketball program and any feminine hygiene manufacturer have in common?

Answer: Downright goofy advertising.

This week, the ND basketball program unleashed a massive, er...thunderous ad campaign designed to attract student ticket buyers. To say nothing more about the campaign is to say it is most definitely different.

Monica Yant
News Editor

And funny. And...uh...embarrassing. Dubbing the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center a "thunderdome" is a bit steep. Remember the movie, "Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome?" Remember the thunderdome? Remember the ACC?

Thought so. Granted, the ad is right when it says, "Two teams enter, one team leaves." That's obvious. But why are they leaving? It could be the winning team, heading off to another post-game victory soiree. Or it could be the loser, being mercilessly swept off the floor by a group of taller, faster and better looking players.

Which team is Notre Dame? Putting the arena and the team aside, there's the ad hyping up ND's new coach John MacLeod. To say nothing more about this ad would be to say that it takes a good man's name, thrashes it around in the mud, thrashes it around some more, then leaves it to die and be carried away by famished buzzards hovering over the greater Michiana area.

The ad is funny. Sports Information and the local advertising agency who worked on the campaign admit that they wanted to try a humorous approach. "It's a new era for us," said Sports Marketing Manager Bill Scholl, "we wanted to get attention."

Attention maybe. Humiliation more likely. Most students caught on to the "Saturday Night Live" theme of the MacLeod ad. Just as the Copy Machine character pokes fun of co-workers names, the ad takes jabs at MacLeod.

The Copy Machine guy is funny, however. This ad is just plain stupid. It should have stopped after calling the new Irish coach "Big John," or "The J. Man." It didn't.

Instead, it goes on to call MacLeod "Macky Wacky," "Mac the Knife," and "The Cloud Man." He's more than a coach, he's "Our Master."

And if you ever wondered about his sex life, the ad says he's "Hotter Than a Radiator."

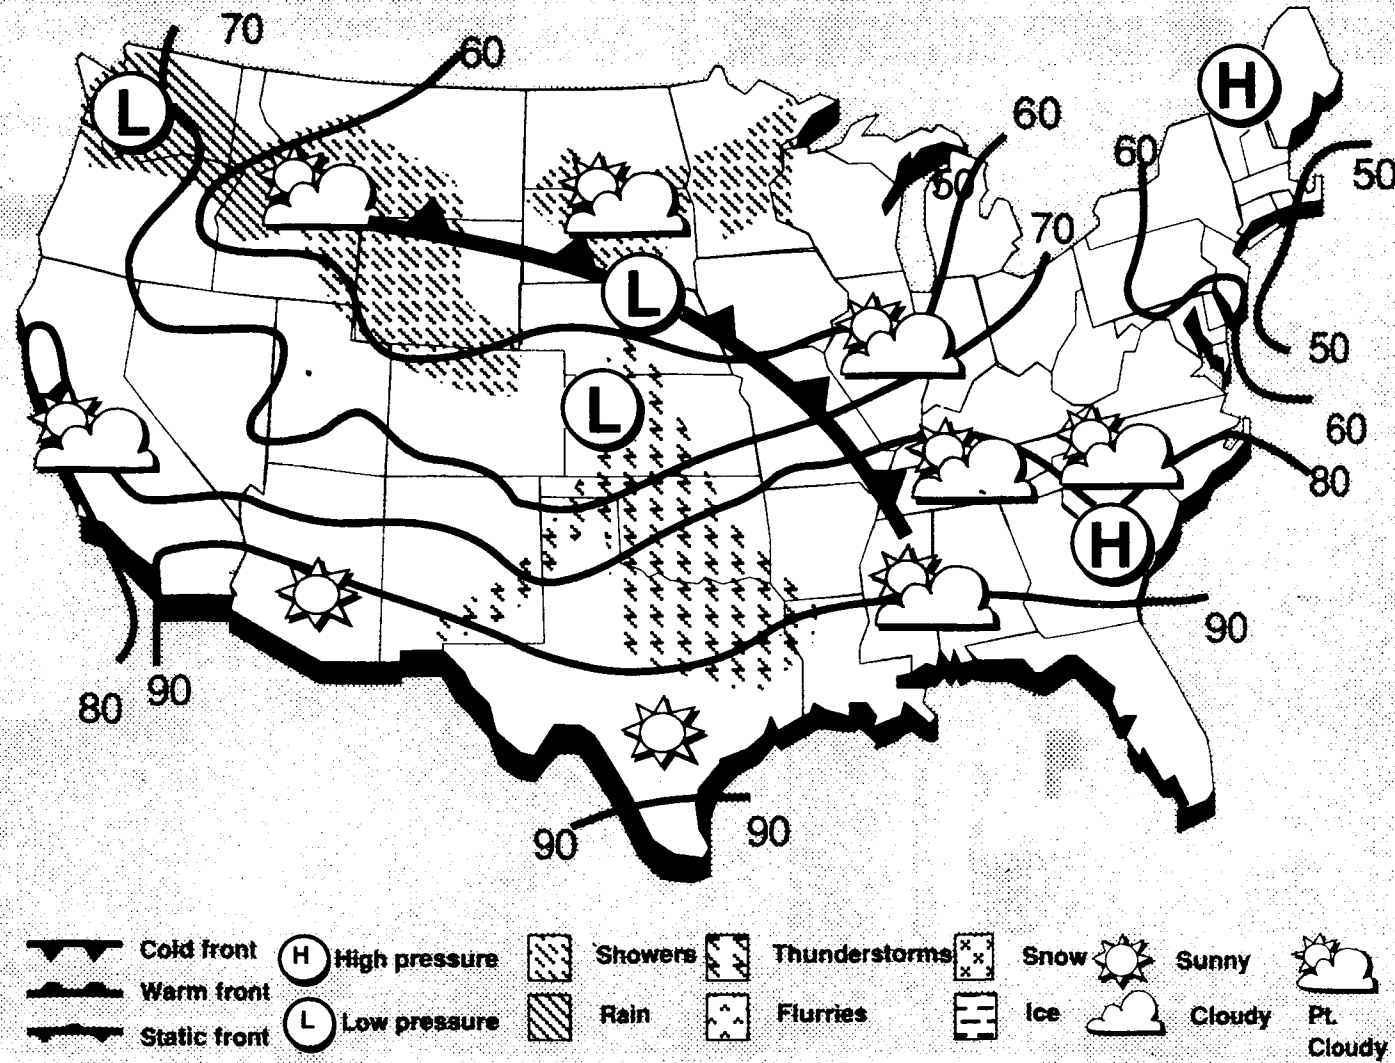

They may have gone overboard. Ticket sales have been slow as usual, according to the Ticket Office. In fact, the office doesn't anticipate a surge in sales at all.

Students will buy tickets if they want to regardless of the ads. All the campaign has done is further convince the student body that someone in the administration is smoking something pretty powerful...and give students a good laugh at the administration's expense.

The views expressed in the Inside Column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Nobel Prize for literature awarded

■ STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Nadine Gordimer, whose searing portrayals of human relationships in the racial maelstrom of South Africa were denounced as unpatriotic by her own government, won the 1991 Nobel Prize in literature on Thursday. She was the first woman in 25 years to win the award. The Swedish Academy, which awarded the prize, said Gordimer's novels and stories, combining literary artistry and a strong anti-apartheid message, have been "of very great benefit to humanity." The prize is worth about $1 million.

Gorbachev sells book on failed coup

■ NEW YORK — Mikhail Gorbachev has struck a lucrative deal with an American publisher to recall in his own words the events surrounding the recent ill-fated coup in the Soviet Union. HarperCollins made the deal with Gorbachev and plans to translate a 74-page manuscript, print it, bind it and ship it to bookstores by the end of October. Eddie Bell, the chief executive of HarperCollins in London, flew to Moscow Friday and returned with the manuscript of "The August Coup." Publishers are now competing with each other to strike a deal with Boris Yeltsin, whose resistance to the coup was credited with bringing about its downfall.

Breast-feeding myth dispelled

■ BOSTON — A study today contradicts the centuries-old folk wisdom that babies whose mothers take a drink just before breast-feeding consume more milk. Scientists found that alcohol had the exact opposite effect. For generations, mothers have been told that a drink before nursing makes their babies feed better. According to lore, this improves the flow and production of milk and relaxes mother and child. But when researchers tested that theory on 12 nursing mothers, they found babies consumed 23 percent less milk. The researchers also found that milk produced by women who had recently had a drink smelled and tasted of alcohol.

Women measured for new clothes

■ CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Experts around the country are sizing up the shape of things to come, measuring as many as 10,000 women with rulers and ribbons in an effort to develop better-fitting clothes for the 55-and-up set. "Just because they are older does not mean they are larger. Other things change, like muscle tone and bone structure," said Ellen Goldsberry of the University of Arizona. "But the clothing industry has absolutely no data about their figures." More than 17 million American women are 55 and up. Many would be willing to pay a little more for the perfect fit, Goldsberry said Wednesday.

States to deter AIDS spreading

■ WASHINGTON — The House and Senate approved a compromise Thursday that requires states to adopt federal guidelines for deterring the spread of the AIDS virus by doctors and other health professionals. The compromise rejects a plan passed earlier by the Senate that would have set prison sentences for any AIDS-infected doctor, dentist or nurse who performs surgery or other "invasive procedures" without disclosing the ailment.

Priest talks on El Salvador murders

By JOHN ROCK

The recent convictions of two Salvadoran army officers for the murders of six Jesuit priests in 1989 represent "a very meager start" towards accountability for the army, said Father Terry Coonan, a Holy Cross priest who has worked in El Salvador.

"The army has operated with complete impunity since 1977, in fact there was no accountability for the army up until this trial," said Coonan.

Coonan, who has twice visited El Salvador with various human rights groups, worked with the Jesuit community to which the slain priests belonged. There, he learned first-hand of many of the events surrounding the massacre.

The night before the murders, the army cordoned off the entire campus of the Central American University, according to Coonan.

"Only the army was allowed access to campus," he said.

The intended target of the massacre was Ignacio Ellacuria, who had become "sort of the intellectual voice for the rebels," according to Coonan. Ellacuria was one of the six priests slain.

The priests' housekeeper and her daughter were killed so as to eliminate any witnesses, Coonan said.

The army and right-wing of Salvadoran government later circulated rumors that the guerrillas had been responsible for the killing, but "it was very clear to anyone with eyes that that wasn't possible," he said.

The conviction of Colonel Guillermo Benavides, the man most believed to have ordered the killings, surprised many people, including Coonan.

"The general consensus among the Salvadoran people was that he would get off," he said.

Although five enlisted men were convicted for the December 2, 1980, murders of three Maryknoll nuns, it is the first time that an army officer was brought to trial, Coonan said.

"It is interesting that it (the unprecedented trial) happened only after much U.S. pressure," he added. In fact, Rep. Joseph Moakley (D-Mass.) spearheaded the movement to suspend monetary aid to El Salvador until a successful prosecution of the murderers was complete, Coonan said.

Despite the convictions, Coonan believes there is still some military cover-up.

"A crime of this dimension doesn't happen without someone higher up ordering it," he said.

Another inconsistency with the trial was the acquittal of seven enlisted men, some of whom had confessed to the killings.

"That is the dissatisfaction the Salvadoran Church has with it, that in fact only the mid-level officers have been convicted. The soldiers that actually did the firing have not been convicted," he explained.

While touring the war-torn country, Coonan met with Maria Julia Hernandez. Hernandez heads the human rights group Tutela Legal, which was originally sponsored by Archbishop Oscar Romero, himself murdered by right-wing extremists.

Coonan specifically asked her what message she would like to give to students at Notre Dame.

"The deaths caused by your country, the United States, by support of a brutal military is what you should know," said Hernandez. "U.S. policy there has been counter-productive and actually murderous.

"You should read the gospels and see that U.S. involvement in El Salvador is the antithesis of the message of Jesus. As students, you must change the minds and hearts of your country," Hernandez said.

Coonan said he was struck by the similarities between the campuses of the Central American University and Notre Dame.

The university is located in Santa Tecla, a suburb of San Salvador. It is an "upper-middle class, quiet area with lots of green grass and trees, very Notre Dame-like," he said.

The Jesuit's murders there were as much as a shocking, unexpected atrocity as if six Holy Cross priests were dragged out and shot out on the South Quad, he said.

The similarities stretched far beyond the physical aspects of the schools.

The focus of the two schools is similar, according to Coonan, because they believe in "educating them (their students) with some ideas of justice with the conscious idea that their faith is meant to impact the world in very concrete ways," he said.

Salvadorans have much to mourn. Not until recently did the government take a stand against military violence.

Court on the grounds that the road would destroy worship practices critical to their religion.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote that the road would indeed destroy Native American worship practices. She added that such a disruption of practice would not, however, hinder individual Native American thinking.

no limit on U.S. treatment of this ignorant, dependent race."

O'Brien related more cases demonstrating the attempts of the United States to strip the Native Americans of their culture and to assimilate them into the American melting pot.

For example, reservations were used as illegal dumping grounds for hazardous waste. Indian children were taken from their homes and sent to government-run schools without their parent's knowledge. One girl, she said, was "hung by her thumbs" because she spoke her native tongue at one school.

O'Brien has written a book titled "American Indian: Tribal Government."

Supremacist to face murder trial

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Avowed white supremacist Byron De La Beckwith was extradited to Mississippi on Thursday to stand trial a third time for the 1963 slaying of civil rights leader Medgar Evers.

you didn't kill him, can you prove you didn't kill him? I don't know who killed the nigger. And I don't care."

Beckwith paused, expressing chagrin. "I told my wife I wasn't going to say 'nigger' again."

Two Hinds County, Miss., deputies escorted the 70-year-old Beckwith from the Hamilton County Jail less than two hours after a federal judge refused to further delay extradition. He arrived in Mississippi several hours later.

Beckwith had been held without bond since Dec. 31, when he was arrested at his Signal Mountain home on a governor's warrant in Evers' death.

Evers, field secretary for the NAACP in Mississippi, was shot to death by a sniper on June 12, 1963, in front of his home in Jackson, Miss.

U.S. District Judge R. Allan Edgar rejected requests by Beckwith for both a temporary restraining order and a writ of habeas corpus that would have halted Beckwith's return. It ended his 10-month battle to avoid going back to Mississippi. Dressed in a suit and tie, Beckwith seemed in good spirits as he left the jail, stopping to engage in a brief but spirited exchange with several reporters.

A rifle with Beckwith's fingerprint was found a short distance from where Evers was slain, and he was tried twice in 1964 for the slaying. But in each case, an all-white jury was unable to reach a verdict, resulting in a mistrial. In 1969, Mississippi authorities dismissed the murder charge.

After serving five years in a Louisiana prison for illegal possession of dynamite, Beckwith married his second wife, Thelma Neff, in 1983 and moved to Signal Mountain. In 1989, new information surfaced indicating possible jury tampering in Beckwith's 1964 trials. The case was reopened, and on Dec. 14, 1990, a Hinds County grand jury returned a new murder indictment against Beckwith.

After his habeas corpus petition on the governor's warrant was turned down by Hamilton County Criminal Court Judge Joe DiRisio in January, Beckwith appealed the ruling to the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals.

But that court upheld the lower court ruling in June, and on Monday the Tennessee Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

His attorney, Charles Wright Jr., immediately filed a habeas corpus petition in federal court and sought a temporary restraining order to stop Beckwith's extradition, which were rejected.

Wright filed a notice of appeal in U.S. District Court 20 minutes after Beckwith was taken away.

Serbia will take over parliament

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Moving to consolidate its control over what remains of Yugoslavia, the republic of Serbia announced Thursday that it was taking over the federal parliament with three allies.

Although the parliament is virtually defunct, the move appeared to represent Serbia's effort to usurp what remains of federal power. A senior Western diplomat said the move effectively dissolved the eight-member federal presidency, which nominally controls the Yugoslav army.

The army, which launched a major assault against Croatia this week, bombarded areas around historic Dubrovnik, starting a raging forest fire, and closed in on the capital, Zagreb.

The Borba newspaper in Belgrade said 26 federal soldiers had died in three days of fighting for Dubrovnik.

The republic of Slovenia and what remained of Croatia would then be permitted to become independent.

Shannon elected vice president of association

By MICHELLE CLEMENTE
News Writer

William Shannon, associate professor of Business Administration at Saint Mary's, has been elected the national vice-president for entrepreneur education for the U.S. Association for Small Businesses and Entrepreneurship.

"It is to provide leadership and direction in the ongoing growth of entrepreneurial discipline of small colleges and universities in the U.S." Shannon said of his new position.

"The work involved includes sponsoring faculty conferences to discuss entrepreneurship locally and nationally," he added. "It combines the academic, political and real world aspects of entrepreneurship."

According to Shannon, who is active in women business owner issues, Saint Mary's also has the largest business administration department of any women's college in the U.S.

"Saint Mary's offers a course in entrepreneurship of women, the only such entrepreneurship for women in colleges and universities," he said.

Shannon served as the U.S. Government Women's Network for Entrepreneurial Training Advisory Council in Washington. He was also a White House guest in the President's recognition ceremony honoring women entrepreneurs and the Indiana Small Business Advocate of the Year for Women in Business.

Shannon's experience in small business includes a spot as an executive committee member in the U.S. Government National Advisory Council for Small Business. Other past positions include chairman of the Council Business and Economic Development Committee. Shannon was also elected delegate to the White House Conference on Small Business.

Sever receives $107K salamander grant

By MICHELLE CLEMENTE
News Writer

Professor David Sever of the Saint Mary's Biology Department received a $107,074 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF) for studying "sperm storage in female salamanders after mating."

According to Sever, female salamanders are able to store sperm in their bodies and can wait to fertilize their eggs.

Sever's research involved using electron microscopy to find out how sperm survived for long periods in the female reproductive tracts of some animals. The grant is for three and a half years of research.

"This summer and the last, two students will stay at Saint Mary's and work on various aspects of the study," said Sever. "The NSF encourages research and participation of students at small colleges."

Sever submitted his research proposal, "Comparative Cytology of Sperm Storage Organs in Salamanders," to the NSF Division of Morphology and Anatomy in December of 1990. By June the NSF notified Sever of his grant.

"It takes six months sometimes more before you hear anything and its very competitive," said Sever.

Sever's research was one of the 25 projects given the grant. This is his second grant in six years.

the relocation of the bookstore and the preservation of the neighborhood.

Pandora's existed before the area was zoned A-residential, so it is permitted to remain in the neighborhood under a grandfather's clause. However, the store cannot relocate within the neighborhood unless the city designates the new parcel a C commercial zone.

Pandora's first attempted to relocate in Spring 1990 by submitting a petition for the rezoning of a piece of land on the corner of Notre Dame Avenue and Howard Street. That corner was formerly the site of a popular student bar called "The Library."

The bookstore faced major opposition from the Northeast Neighborhood Association and the University of Notre Dame. Quigley said that area residents were opposed because of bad experiences with establishments in the neighborhood. He said that the neighborhood feared that the bookstore could fail and other commercial establishments could purchase the land.

Notre Dame stood beside the neighborhood, in a show of support for the large number of faculty and staff that live in the area. The University also offered to buy the land to avoid the rezoning of the parcel.

As a result of this opposition and lack of support in the city council, Pandora's withdrew its petition in August 1990. Early in 1991, they obtained a building permit for the same piece of property, this time with the intent to build a private library. The permit was revoked by the city shortly thereafter on the grounds that only a public or non-profit library can be built on commercially zoned land.

The Notre Dame-Howard Partnership, which owns the bookstore, filed suit in June, stating that the city zoning codes only say that libraries are allowed on land zoned A residential.

This tentative settlement between the city and the bookstore would call for the partnership to sell the property on the corner of Notre Dame and Howard, as well as drop the suit against the city. In return, a 66 by 120 foot parcel on the corner of Howard and St. Peter's would be rezoned C commercial.

Quigley said that this could lead to spot zoning in the residential neighborhoods of South Bend. "What right have they to turn you down for a spot change if they give me one?" he said.

He said that the neighborhood has few complaints against Pandora's. However, Quigley is quick to point out that this is not a personal matter, but an issue of principle. "We're not mad at the people," he said. "We are against spot zoning."

The University of Notre Dame is not taking a formal stand on the settlement. Mandy Arnold, manager of Pandora's Books, would not comment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Scheduling of Mass hindered Voices of Faith's contributions

Dear Editor:

As a vocal music teacher in the South Bend schools and faculty wife, I would like to join my voice with that of Sheri D. Barker in expressing my disappointment at the inappropriate scheduling of the Voices of Faith Gospel Ensemble during the Sesquicentennial Year Opening Mass.

One of the first things new teachers are taught in preparing concerts is not to present singing as the audience is assembling. Teachers and choir members practice and rehearse regularly to present a polished, professional performance. Choirs perform only when the audience is seated and quiet.

How much better it would have been to seat the Voices of Faith Gospel Ensemble with the other performing choirs. The chairs behind the other choirs could have been used to accommodate the large number of performers. The Voices of Faith should have been allowed to raise their voices in praise of the Lord during the whole celebration along with the Glee Club, Liturgical Choir, Chorale, Women's Choir and Folk Choir.

I thought it was totally insensitive to select a Black Spiritual as a communion hymn and not select the Voices of Faith to sing the spiritual. Who better than they to sing it? After all, their ancestors created those beautiful hymns. How many in the congregation have ever heard the rich harmonies and glorious tone color of Black Americans singing those powerful spirituals? Everyone in the congregation was denied a joyful, marvelous, musical experience.

As we sang "Notre Dame, Our Mother," at the end of Mass, I felt something important was missing from the picture of the Notre Dame Family, the presence of an important group who contribute so beautifully to the ethnic diversity of this family in this place.

To all the members of the Voices of Faith Gospel Ensemble I wish the best. Keep up the beautiful singing.

Unjust actions, miscommunication marred intramural football game

Dear Editor:

I am Steve Fortunato, coach of the Off-Campus Inter-Hall Football Team, writing on behalf of our team. Following here is a list of twelve facts that will lead the reader to one conclusion: the Off-Campus Team was treated unfairly.

Fact 1: On Monday, Sept. 9, Rec Sports approved the eligibility of Holy Cross students by specifically citing that the first year Holy Cross students were eligible. Insurance numbers of the players were taken, the players were placed upon our team's roster, and the players were issued equipment.

Fact 2: On Friday, Sept. 27, at 12 p.m. Rec Sports removed these seven players from our roster, stating that they were ineligible due to their non-Notre Dame student status.

Fact 3: At this point I informed Assistant Director of Rec Sports Rick O'Leary that this was his assistant who granted these players eligible and issued them equipment.

Fact 4: Rick O'Leary was unwilling to accept the responsibility of his office's miscommunication and insisted the game on Sunday, Sept. 29 against Flanner be played.

Fact 5: I proceeded to inform him that this action was unjust and we should be given adequate time to replace these players. He refused.

Fact 6: I issued a verbal plea of protest and stated that I would issue a formal written protest on Sunday the 29th before the game was to be played. He agreed to meet me prior to game time.

Fact 7: Rick O'Leary did not show up on Sunday or attempt to contact me.

Fact 8: On Sunday I requested O'Leary's assistant postpone the game until Tuesday, Oct. 1, to allow us one working day to reconstruct our team. They refused.

Fact 9: At this point I transferred my plea to the Rector/Coach of Flanner, Father Seetch. I informed him that the loss of these players was caused by miscommunication in the Rec Sports office and that playing the game under these conditions would be potentially dangerous to our players because they would be playing unfamiliar positions on both sides of the ball.

Fact 10: Father Seetch insisted the game be played.

Fact 11: We lost to an inferior team.

Fact 12: On Monday, September 30, I contacted Rick O'Leary to follow up our plea of protest and was deliberately given misleading information on the protest procedure to deter me from following up our protest. I was told that the plea goes to his boss and him and that his decision was already made. I have since found out that a protest is evaluated by an Intramural Board comprised of independent Athletic Directors besides Rick O'Leary and his boss.

Conclusion: Due to Rick O'Leary's refusal to accept the mistakes made within his office the Off-Campus Football Team was mistreated.

Life Chain gives students opportunity to support cause

Dear Editor:

On Sunday afternoon, October 6, people from all over America will take to the sidewalks for one hour to stand up and be counted in display of solidarity for life. The Life Chain will take place in South Bend from 2:00-3:00 p.m. on Route 31 (Michigan Street) right across the entrance to Saint Mary's.

Anyone who wants to do something for the pro-life cause, now is your chance. We encourage Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students to go out and participate—it's only one hour. Those interested can meet at the Grotto at 1:45 Sunday afternoon.

Remember, life is something everyone is entitled to, but not all are allowed. Please consider this injustice and show your support for all life.

Council displays diversity

By COURTNEY BANNISTER
Accent Writer

When asked their primary goal, members of the Multicultural Executive Council will immediately respond, "Increased awareness." The council, which heads the Multicultural Club here on the Notre Dame campus, is currently made up of ten members who help to plan events on campus that they feel will help to promote other cultures.

The council was started in 1986 when students began to see a need for more culturally diverse events on campus. In their fifth year of operation the council has grown considerably.

The council sponsors the annual Multicultural Fall Festival which is currently underway and which will run through Sunday. This is their largest event of the year, but by no means their only activity. Throughout the year the council sponsors various activities. They try to organize fireside chats when the campus has visitors whom they feel might help students see the world from a different perspective.

Last year, the council co-sponsored the bringing of Maya Angelou to campus, the author of many autobiographical best-sellers. With the recent visit of Ariel, the Russian pianist, the council organized a fireside chat, because they saw a need for a greater awareness of Russian culture. Christine Labaree, a member of the council, feels that far too often people's views of a society are based solely on the political aspects of the country with no regard for the culture.

The council also sponsored the "Christmas Around The World" exhibition in LaFortune last year during the holiday season. The exhibit included scenes of the traditions of other cultures. "We try to bring in a wide variety of events, and to promote culture in a variety of mediums," explains Christine. "We hope to attract a lot of students this way, for we understand that not everyone would, for example, be interested in lectures."

Richard Saldana, a member of the council, emphasizes the fact that the club's activities are not meant to appeal solely to the members of the culture represented. He points out SuperCombo PanAmericano, a Latin American band, as a perfect example of the council's goal when planning events. The band in past appearances has been enjoyed by a wide range of students and will be playing tonight at The Taste of Nations. The event will last from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. and will be located at Stepan Center. All are encouraged to attend this event and future events sponsored by the Multicultural Executive Council.

Taste a little culture

By TRAVIS SMITH
Accent Writer

The Multicultural Fall festival continues Friday night at Stepan Center with the Taste of Nations.

For the sixth year in a row, the festival will be highlighted by this event. Starting at 7:30 pm, free food and entertainment will be available up until 1:30 Saturday morning.

According to Adele Lanan, the Taste of Nations is "a celebration of multiculturalism where people can taste food from all over the world and enjoy entertainment." The agenda for this year's Taste of Nations includes samples of foods and desserts from 20 different countries, dance competitions, and live entertainment.

Booths will be set up surrounding Stepan's court area boasting samples of food from each country. On the court surface, competitions and exhibitions will be held. Forms of dance from different cultures will be shown. Some of these competitions include: the twist, jitterbug, and a limbo contest.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of these competitions, ranging from T-shirts to dinners for two at the Olive Garden, Malabar, Hacienda Mexican, and Great Wall restaurants in South Bend. The Heritage Dance Company will perform different types of dance, while the Super Combo Pan-American Band from Chicago will supply the music.

According to Lanan, the purpose of the Taste of Nations is to "present an ethnic festival where all people can come together and create a sense of unity. All members of the Notre Dame and South Bend communities are welcome. We are trying to gain a true sense of community."

Last year, the Taste of Nations was attended by 3,000 people and Lanan expects an even larger turnout this year. She stresses that "everyone who does come will have an enjoyable evening while also learning about other cultures."

Berky aims to entertain

By KATIE PHELAN
Accent Writer

Comic and mime artist, Bob Berky, brings his internationally acclaimed solo show to O'Laughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's on Friday, October 4, at 8:00 p.m.

"I always look forward to working with people, especially college students," said Berky. He has been extremely busy performing at various locations around the country, but he is still excited about his upcoming show at St. Mary's.

While at St. Mary's life Berky stated, "Recently, I have been performing at theater festivals and with symphonies and in my spare time, I also teach."

Berky tells his audience, "Be prepared to laugh, not just an artificial laugh, but a laugh that comes from deep within you." Berky has a sincere hope that all people will come and enjoy his show.

When asked how he feels about being compared to Robin Williams, Bob Berky replied, "I think you should ask Robin Williams how he feels. However, I am flattered and think the critics see a similar style although our techniques are different. Robin Williams tells jokes and I have understandable conversations with kazoods and ride around the stage on a unicycle while wearing a tutu." Whether or not Berky can be realistically compared to Robin Williams, his performance is truly entertaining. Including such American archetypes as the weekend athlete and the bird watcher, the act promises success. These performances, created by Berky, show a mastery of comedic timing.

Berky has been featured on two PBS specials as well as at international festivals in Scotland, France, Germany, and Hong Kong. Having starred in the Brooklyn Academy of Music's Next Wave Festival and off Broadway in "The Alchemists," Berky is also noted as the winner of a 1983 Obie award.

Tickets for Bob Berky's show can be purchased through the box office located in O'Laughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's. The box office will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Orders can also be taken by phone 219-284-4626. Visa and Mastercard are accepted. Charge of admission is $6 and $7. So come and see Berky. It will definitely make your day.

In the country of the young

Does God exist? Does He exist at Notre Dame in a conspicuous way? Is Notre Dame still Catholic? Is Notre Dame a Christian school, and does God "happen" to the people here? If you say no to all of the above, the Sesquicentennial will still be celebrated. The Dome won't tarnish; the Grotto will not go dark. There's no great harm in being an agnostic, unless agnosticism becomes a habit. The pity of that is, agnostics have no place to hide on Christmas and Easter; and they look embarrassed when everyone but them says "one Nation UNDER GOD," at the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Agnosticism is at least honest; anyone could have a bad day when he doubts there's a God greasing the racetrack for the painted ponies on the carousel. I suspect that atheists, without meaning to be, are phonies, even though they don't know they are. You can, with strong conviction, deny the existence of the Tooth Fairy; and most grownups do, as soon as that belief stops being profitable. If you lose teeth when you're seven, you get money; if you lose teeth when you're seventy, you get dentures. Once the baby teeth are gone, the quarters stop appearing under the pillow. The Tooth Fairy, unmasked, turns out to be your father.

But how could you prove the non-existence of the Supreme Being, even if He were non-existent? You'd have to be dead of soul, and blind to the mysteries that would induce a rock to be reverent, to even want to try. "The Great Bear is looking so geometrical, one would think that something or other could be proved."

"Thomas Hardy," said Chesterton, "became a sort of village atheist brooding and blaspheming over the village idiot." But Hardy wrote in a poem: "If someone said on Christmas eve, come; see the oxen kneel. . . I should go with him in the gloom, hoping it might be so." Atheism that leaves room for hope can't be any more serious than a venial sin. "Hope is the thing with feathers that perches in the soul," wrote Emily Dickinson. The thing with feathers in his family, says Woody Allen, is his nephew, One gathers that the nephew wasn't taken seriously, either.

Why am I reviewing the God-problem? The birthday week is coming up, and I want to be sure that all is well with the ground of my being. On October 7th, I will be 66; and as Dylan Thomas wrote to his father, "Do not go gentle. . ." Now that the sunset and evening star are visible to my generation, I'm anxious to find out if the gray train still runs. Sam the Gonoph, a Damon Runyon character says, "I long ago come to the conclusion that all life is 6 to 5 against. Maybe there are deals to be made that will give me better odds. Eliot's Sweeney says: "Birth, and copulation, and death./That's all the facts when you come to brass tacks:/Birth, and copulation, and death./I've been born, and once is enough." Two out of three seems so little to settle for, if birth, copulation, and death are what you have to settle for instead of the brass ring.

"An old man is but a paltry thing," wrote Yeats. He's "a tattered coat upon a stick, unless/Soul clap its hands and sing." And that, says Yeats, is why "I have sailed the seas and come/To the holy city of

Father Robert Griffin

Letters to a Lonely God

Byzantium," where sages standing in God's holy fire/ Come from the holy fire.../To be the singing masters of my soul."

But Byzantium, says Yeats is "no country for old men." Byzantium is the country for "the young in one another's arms, birds in their trees...at their song."

I am not a celtic poet, setting sail in search of singing masters; however Dulac is my Byzantium; and Dulac, like Byzantium, is the country of the young, where the born-again of all descriptions see icons and symbols representing myth and magic. Listening attentively to students, fresh from retreats, service projects, and hall Masses, who sound like prophets whose lips and souls have been cleansed by Byzantium's holy fire, I'm reminded of the more simple story of Sister Bridget, whom Father Leonard Feeney once wrote about.

In the story Feeney tells, a very young First Communicant named Marjorie asks the nun to listen to her heart beat after she has received the Host, Sister Bridget says: "I'll be glad to listen...It's beating away as happy as can be...Do I hear two hearts beating inside you?...No, darling...Oh, you mean Our Lord's Heart too? No darling..."

But, says Father Feeney, Sister Bridget had listened a second too long. Was she imagining something? But how could she be imagining it? As clear as the striking of two bells she heard inside that small bosom against which she pressed her ear, the beating of two hearts. Clearly unmistakably, the Sacred Heart had beat in her ear.

Later that day, Sister Bridget lying on her cot, becomes conscious of a strange noise in her ear. When she raises her head from the pillow it disappears. When she pressed her ear tightly it revives again. At that point, she discovers "the law of pectoral acoustics," formulated in this way: "If you press your ear very tightly against a slightly hollow object, you will hear your heartbeat. If it be the heart area of a living object, you will hear its heartbeat as well as your own." It happens that way with all of us. Discovering our own beauty, we imagine it is God's beauty.

Sometimes we have religious experiences in which God comes so close, His nearness seems physical, which in a Way it is, because we've become conscious of Him in the beauty of people. At liturgies and meals at Notre Dame which are like love-feasts, students, getting drunk on the company they're with, feel that their souls have been flooded with the glory of God. All this is holy and filled with Christ's presence. It is an experience of God; but not God direct and unmediated, or a mystical experience, "when the dove descending breaks the air with flame of incandescent terror."

Christianity is a religion that makes its main pitch to sinners and mercy seekers. We don't expect the golden girls and lads (whom we might have called flower children a generation ago) to be on the lookout for salvation and the sacraments. When you see them looking casually wholesome and innocent, you might imagine that death has no dominion over them; yet they are not immune to wars, accidents, drug and alcohol abuse, the diseases that are passed down in families, and the consequences of their own folly. When tragedies take hostages, and death takes prisoners, Notre Dame students comfort one another until love redeems their grief and loss. In a way they redeem one another in a human way by a mutual caring that tempers the wind to the shorn lamb. There is a peer ministry, not a ministry by professionals.

When outsiders ask, "How Catholic is Notre Dame?," they have holy Ireland in mind as the paradigm, because Byzantium, in the country of the young, is not on their maps.

At 66, I use Yeats, only half in fun, to explain what life is like on my side of the generation gap: "The years like great black oxen tread the world./And God the herdsman goads them on behind./And I am broken by their passing feet."

The reply, I swear, comes back; and it's from Oscar Wilde, written while he was in Reding Gaol: "How else but through a broken heart/May Lord Christ enter in?" Where did students learn this great insight so young? When did the shades of the prisonhouse begin to close on the growing children?

Forwards Winget, Dalsaso lead SMC soccer vs. UW-Milwaukee

By CHRIS BACON
Sports Writer

When it comes to talent on any given team, most coaches are happy to have one superstar. To have a duo is a blessing. Just ask Saint Mary's soccer coach Tom Van Meter. After making some changes in the squad, the Belles suddenly had a powerful front in junior forward Stacey Winget and sophomore forward Megan Dalsaso.

"Both are very talented young people. The remarkable thing about the two is that they've paralleled each other (in their playing)," said VanMeter. "The two approach the game from different angles and together they make an excellent striking force."

It is this striking force that many at Saint Mary's anticipate to lead the fourth ranked Belles, 5-0-2, to a home victory over Division I University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee this afternoon.

Both players come from top soccer schools. Winget was captain of her Nerinx High School soccer team in St. Louis, Mo., her senior year. She made first-team honors her junior and senior years and was her team's offensive most valuable player.

Her junior year the team won their state championship. If that wasn't enough, Winget was invited to play on the Budweiser Women's Premiere soccer club during her summers.

Dalsaso didn't start playing soccer until she was a freshman in high school. But the late start hasn't hindered her on the field. At Mitchell High School, in Colorado Springs, Co., she was a three sport captain her senior year. She received first-team recognition her senior year, as well as all-state her junior and senior years. Why did Dalsaso start playing so late?

"A good friend got me to play. It was good because my height didn't matter. But I wanted to be the goalie," said Dalsaso.

Although these two girls could have gone elsewhere, neither one regrets their decision to play for a Division III school.

"The neat thing about playing for a Division III school, like coach Van Meter says, is that you don't get paid to play. You do it because you want to," said Dalsaso.

An example of the impact these two forwards have had on the Belles offense is last weekend's game against Hope College (5-1). The Belles handed their undefeated Great Lakes conference rivals their first loss of the season, winning 2-0.

Dalsaso scored both Saint Mary's goals. The first came off of a cross from Winget, the second unassisted. This complimentary performance from these two forwards is typical of all their games.

"We've played so well together because we can be playing and I can run down the field and I know where she (Dalsaso) is without seeing her. The classic example was the cross to her at the Hope game," explains Winget. "We've clicked and I'm so excited we have this year and next year together."

But Dalsaso and Winget refuse to take all the glory. Both credit all the team's success to the entire team and their coaches. Both stress the importance of a strong defense to hold the opponents, as well as a good midfield.

Saint Mary's certainly is not lacking in talent in either of these areas. Senior co-captain Kelly Cook is a four-year returning All-American sweeper. She has led the defense to holding their opponents to just four points total this year. Senior co-captain Greer Gillilan was moved back into the midfield to control the wings.

"This year, as the coaches have put it, there are all soccer players on the team. Everyone has the skills applicable to the game," credits Winget. "Switching positions has made us click more (as a team)."

"This team is very unified. We are very compatible," said

Dalsaso. "We are such a tight knit team that everything we do is done as a team and it shows on the field."

As for Friday's matchup against Wisconsin, Winget and Dalsaso realize the importance of a big win. Passing the midway point of their season, the Belles are still struggling for recognition from not only their new division, but from the NCAA.

The duo hopes to break away from the pack and head to the top of their conference. Only the top three teams in the Great Lakes regional conference receive bids from the NCAA. Winning today's game and Sunday's game against Division I Butler should generate the recognition this young team has asked for.

"We go into this game very positive. We know we (as a team) have the skill to beat this team," explained Winget. "We're aiming for a NCAA bid. It would be the first ever in Saint Mary's history and we really want to earn it for the school. That would be great."

Wojnas, Irish women's golf face difficult final outing

By JASON KELLY
Sports Writer

An up and down fall season will culminate this weekend as the women's golf team travels to DeKalb, Illinois for Northern Illinois University's seventh annual Huskie Classic.

The high point of the fall season came two weeks ago at Michigan State, when the Irish set two school records, including a three-round record of 949, 22 strokes better than the previous mark. The Irish finished the tournament with their only top ten finish of the season.

The low point, however, came just one week later when they finished 15th in an 18-team field at the University of Illinois Invitational with a 996 total. That wasn't the highest total of the season, but after the performance at Michigan State, coach Tom Hanlon wanted more from his young team.

"I had high expectations for this tournament (at Illinois)," said Hanlon. "We played against some very strong competition, but we really didn't do as well as I expected."

Despite all the ups and downs, the Irish have shown a great deal of improvement this fall, but they still have to make some big strides in preparation for the spring campaign.

"We're improving, but we still have a long way to go," Hanlon commented.

Senior captain Allison Wojnas has been outstanding for the Irish this fall, as have sophomores Chrissy Klein, Alicia Murray and Denise Paulin. Freshmen Katie Cooper and Sara Ruzzo have also contributed and have shown a lot of potential for the future.

How the young Irish respond at Northern Illinois after last week's disappointment will be a good measure of the team's character.

"There are at least nine teams (out of 15) that we can beat," Hanlon noted.

The only question is, will the Irish display the brilliance they showed at Michigan State, or will they return to the mediocrity of last weekend? Hanlon expects a return to the excellence of two weeks ago.

"I'm looking forward to this weekend," Hanlon said. "There will be some strong competition, but I expect us to perform well."

Host Northern Illinois headlines a tough field that includes Iowa State, Kansas State, Nebraska, Purdue and Texas El Paso.

Schaefer pleased as hockey seeks membership in CCHA

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame hockey team has applied for membership in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, one of the foremost collegiate hockey conferences in the country.

The announcement was made last week by Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal and CCHA commissioner Bill Beagan.

Notre Dame is currently an independent on the collegiate hockey circuit, but was a member of the CCHA from 1981 until 1983.

New NCAA regulations which limit the number of games played in a season made scheduling difficult for independents.

"We now will have no problem fielding a competitive schedule that will be to the liking of our players and fans," said Rosenthal. "Plus, the geographics of the league make sense for us when it comes to traveling."

The Irish would begin play in the CCHA during the 1992-93 season.

The CCHA is home to two of the last six collegiate hockey champions, Lake Superior State (1988) and Michigan State (1986). Michigan, Western Michigan, Ferris State, Ohio State, University of Illinois at Chicago, Miami (Ohio) and Bowling Green round out the current conference members.

"This is an exciting day for Notre Dame hockey," said coach Ric Schaefer upon the announcement. "I'm aware of the attractiveness of a league situation from my days as a player and assistant coach at Notre Dame. I can't describe what an impact this decision has on the interest of the best hockey players in coming to Notre Dame."

Notre Dame was 16-15-2 last year, and returns 19 monogram-winners to this year's squad. The Irish open play October 25 at Air Force.

Injury plagued men's tennis headed for Kentucky Invitational

Observer Staff Report

Competing in its second invitational tournament in as many weeks, the Notre Dame men's tennis team travels to Lexington, Ky., this weekend for the Kentucky Invitational.

In Lexington, the Irish will face opponents several traditional opponents, including host Kentucky, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indiana, Northwestern and Xavier. The remainder of the field includes Appalachian State, Ball State, Bowling Green, Eastern Kentucky, Maryland, Miami of Ohio, Western Kentucky, Tennessee Tech and Middle Tennessee State.

Irish All-American David DiLucia lost a straight sets match to Tennessee Tech's Yasser Zatini in last week's ITCA clay-court championships. DiLucia reinjured a pulled hamstring in the 6-3, 6-1 defeat.

DiLucia made the trip to Lexington, but will play only doubles over the weekend. The senior will sit out of the singles tournament.

Last week, several injuries to Notre Dame players prevented matches in the fifth annual Tom Fallon Invitational, held at the Courtney Tennis Center.

Ron Rosas and Tad Eckert return to action this weekend after pulling out of matches Sunday.

Junior Mark Schmidt, however, will spend the weekend home. Injuries last weekend forced the cancellation of his B-flight final match with Rosas. Todd Wilson will also remain out of action for the Irish.

"I had blister injuries from last week, and they just didn't heal in time," said Schmidt. "My movement is limited, and my game really depends on movement."

Stanford

NBC showed the nation pictures of the Irish locker room, the tunnel between the locker room and the field, the field, the stadium, the famous gold dome, and the famous painting of "Touchdown Jesus."

I saw interviews with Notre Dame coaches, Notre Dame players, Notre Dame ex-players, Notre Dame band members, Notre Dame fans. I got a great look at the Friday night pep rally in the Notre Dame basketball arena, featuring a rousing speech by coach/god Lou Holtz.

I saw Ahmad Rashad speak reverently and affectionately of the Notre Dame band and fight song, which struck up on his cue.

In short, "Notre Dame Saturday" was well-named.

Oh, yes. They also mentioned that the Fighting Irish's opponent that day was Indiana. I guess it just slipped out somehow.

In case you haven't caught on yet, "Notre Dame Saturday" is purely biased hype, hype, HYPE for America's favorite football school.

Even though Notre Dame probably does have the largest national fan support base, it is questionable that even the Fighting Irish can give the network high enough ratings week in and week out to make the show a financial success in the long run, so there may be some comfort in that.

However, the ultimate evil of the whole affair will have already been done, most likely. All across America thousands of little aspiring football players are watching Notre Dame exalted on their tubes. Do you think they won't be impressed?

It's not as if the Irish are having any trouble with recruiting as it is. They already have a huge advantage over other schools, with their exclusive network, the charms of their school, and—the big one—their reputation.

Imagine a television executive telling a recruiter at any Division I school the following: "Look, we can give you guys all the exposure you need. We'll make you look good, guaranteed. Your school will look good. Your football team will look good. They'll be heroes. Every kid will want to grow up to be a player for your team."

Runners

Michigan, Central Michigan, Pitt, Iowa, Purdue, Edinborough, Malone, Houston and the defending Division III national champion, University of Wisconsin at Osh Kosh.

At the Invitational will be several runners with the ability to keep the elusive individual championship out of the hands of the Irish for yet another year.

They include John Murray of Malone, Kevin Herd of Iowa, Greg Parker of Central Michigan, and Mark Daly and Dominic Middleton of Eastern Michigan. In total, there will be about fifteen runners who could potentially win the event according to Piane.

But none will be as emotionally charged as the Irish, who hope to duplicate their times from the National Catholics seven of which were personal bests.

"Because we ran well, everyone knows we have a lot of potential," said Kearns. "They realize that if we put it together as a team we can be really good."

Last week's disappointing second-place finish to Providence taught the young Irish squad a valuable lesson.

"Everyone realized how much losing hurts and that we don't want to do it again," said Kearns.

Irish soccer on road for MCC contests

By JASON KELLY
Sports Writer

A busy weekend awaits the Notre Dame men's soccer team as it travels to Ohio to battle Midwestern Collegiate Conference rivals Xavier and Dayton.

Coach Mike Berticelli's Irish are coming off a 3-0 win over Detroit, which pushed their record to 3-3-1 overall and 1-1-1 in the MCC.

Berticelli knew his highly touted freshmen would have to perform well for the Irish to be successful on their current four-game road trip, and the rookies were up to the challenge against Detroit. Freshmen Tim Oates, Jean Joseph and Tont Richardson scored a goal apiece to power the Irish past the Titans. Oates' goal, his third of the season, made him Notre Dame's top scorer this season.

The most consistent part of the team this year, however, has been the defense and the Irish back line responded again at Detroit, allowing only two shots on goal on the way to the fourth shutout of the season. Senior captain Brett Hofmann and junior sweeper Mario Tricoci team up with freshman goalie Bert Bader to lead the Irish defense.

"In the beginning, it's important to establish a strong defense," commented Tricoci, "and now that we've done that we work on keeping possession of the ball and creating scoring opportunities this weekend."

Friday's opponent, Xavier, is coming off a runner-up finish at the Western Kentucky Tournament, where they defeated the hosts 2-1 but fell to Arkansas-Little Rock 3-2.

Goalie Dave Schureck earned tournament MVP honors for the Musketeers, who stand at 3-4-2 overall and 0-1-1 in the MCC. Xavier returns eight starters, including Jeff Jordahl, who finished 1990 with 17 total points and Tom Holten, who collected 11 points last year. Notre Dame has won six of seven games against Xavier in a series that dates back to 1977, including 2-1 win last season.

Dayton is another team the Irish have traditionally dominated and they will have a chance to continue that dominance Sunday afternoon. In 1990, the Irish thrashed the Flyers 5-1 in overtime. Eight returning starters from last season's 11-8-3 campaign, including senior forward Brian O'Toole, will attempt to earn the Flyers (2-5-1) their first victory over Notre Dame since 1979, and only their second win in ten meetings. O'Toole, who led Dayton with 27 points in 1990, is expected to return on Sunday after an injury forced him to sit out three games.

After next Wednesday's game at Valparaiso, the Irish will return home to face MCC rival Butler on Sunday, October 13th.

The Observer/ Andrew McCloskey
Kenyon Meyer uses his height advantage in Notre Dame's 0-0 tie against Evansville. The Irish play two weekend road games.

Women's tennis opens season with ND Invitational

By RICH SZABO
Sports Writer

If you happen to walk near the Eck Tennis Pavilion this weekend, stop inside and check out the barrage of tennis balls being mercilessly pounded by the women participating in the Notre Dame Invitational.

This tournament will see eight teams competing in an individual draw, in both singles and doubles. Besides the host Irish, for whom this is their first competition of the fall season, the tournament includes Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio State, Purdue, Drake, Miami (Ohio), and Northern Illinois.

The Irish will have nine players in the singles draw, with junior Melissa Harris leading the way. Harris is currently ranked 31st in the country after reaching the second round of the NCAA tournament in the spring.

Joining Harris will be seniors Ann Bradshaw and Kristy Doran, junior Eniko Bende, sophomores Christy Faustmann, Terri Vitale, Lisa Tholen, and Catherine McGinley, and freshman Laura Schwab.

In the doubles lineup, Faustmann-Tholen and Bende-Schwab will compete in the first flight, with Vitale-Doran in the second flight and Bradshaw-McGinley in flight three.

Irish coach Jay Louderback expects this to be a weekend for getting back into the groove.

"Most of the girls worked out a lot over the summer, practiced, and trained, but didn't play many matches," he said. "It will take them a week or two to get back in playing shape."

Absent from this weekend's tournament will be first-singles player Tracy Barton, who will be rested predominantly throughout the fall to prepare for the grueling spring season.

Barton played in last week's National Clay Courts in North Carolina, her first tournament action in four months. The tournament draw consisted of the top thirty-two players in the country. Barton, after a sluggish start, quickly got back into her game. She dropped her first match to Caryn Moss of Florida International 6-1, 6-1, and then fell to Kristen Bastian of South Florida 7-5, 6-4 in a much closer, stronger-played match.

Louderback said, "Tracy won't play much in the fall. She's done real well the last two years and doesn't have to prove herself," said Louderback. "For the team, we're better off having her in the spring. We don't want her to push it, overplaying in the fall."

Senior Katie Clark will also miss the competition, as she is recovering from a back problem. She began practicing last week and is listed as day-to-day.

The Irish Invitational, along with the rest of the fall schedule, will help determine the singles and doubles lineups that the Irish will compete with in the spring.

Regardless of how the individual performances go, the team is anxious to play some other people after having gone through three weeks of practice.

"This is our first test of the year," said Eniko Bende. "It will be interesting to see how we do. The competition will be very good, but the weekend will be long."

"There's a lot of good teams coming in, so there should be good competition. I'm excited about the weekend, and it will be good preparation for the rest of the season," said Vitale. "These tournaments will give us an idea of where everyone is and how everyone is playing."

The tournament will start Friday and continue through Sunday at the Courtney Tennis Center. In the event of rain, the matches will be held at the Eck Tennis Pavilion. The Irish will be starting a season that hopes to see them crack the top 20 and establish themselves as a force to be reckoned with.

"In practice, we've looked good," he said. "They're good kids and they want to be good players. I've been very happy with them. You just can't lose when you get players like that."

Cross country hosts Invitational

All-America duo of McWilliams, Coyle pace Irish

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

Enough is enough. The dry spell must end. On Friday afternoon, the seventh-ranked men's cross country team plays host to the Notre Dame Invitational, an event they have not had an individual winner in since 1964.

Last year, All-American Mike O'Connor was the highest finisher for the Irish at third, but O'Connor is gone. Not to worry though, the Irish have a strong cast of runners to fill his shoes.

Among them are junior All-American John Coyle and sophomore All-American Mike McWilliams. McWilliams finished third in last week's National Catholic Meet while Coyle crossed the finish line in ninth place. Both posted strong times in the event despite disappointing finishes.

Also looking to run well for Notre Dame are senior captain Pat Kearns, senior Kevin Keegan, junior Nick Radkewich who posted a personal best at the National Catholics, and freshmen John Cowan and Nate Ruder.

Running in the Gold division for the Irish will be seniors Mike Drake and Shawn Schneider, juniors J. T. Burke and Hugh Mundy, sophomores Tom Lillis and Jim Trautmann, and freshmen J. R. Meloro.

Last year, Notre Dame won the team crown and they are looking to repeat the feat this year, but it won't be easy.

"We need to tighten up the gap between the number one and number five runners," said Notre Dame coach Joe Piane. "Ideally, we'd like a 30 second gap. Our goal is to have someone in contention to win."

In the way of the Irish will be competitive teams from Eastern

ND women expected to challenge top Midwest teams

The Notre Dame women's cross-country team, coming off a strong third-place finish at the National Catholics meet last weekend, runs at the Notre Dame Invitational today at 3 p.m.

The meet showcases some of the top Midwestern teams, as well as excellent teams from throughout the country.

The Irish expect to challenge Eastern Michigan for the top spot this weekend, after finishing behind national powerhouses Providence and Boston College last week.

"Eastern Michigan is the team to look out for," said freshman

Stefanie Jensen. "I think we have a pretty good chance of winning it," said Emily Husted, also a freshmen.

Last week the Irish finished four runners in the top 16, and they hope to improve on that feat this weekend.

"We want to do that again this week," stated Husted. "But instead of having just four, we want five or six up there."

Jensen, who finished 14th last week, says the Irish have to work on running together in the race.

"We want our seven runners in a pack," said Jensen. "That could intimidate the other runners."

Husted says how well the Irish run in the second of the three miles is going to be important.

"Last week we got out good, but we spread apart during the second mile," said Husted. "It's going to be a key to winning."

The team is excited about the possibility of winning their first meet of the year, especially on their home turf of the Burke Memorial.

"I'm hoping we win the Invitational," said Jensen. "We have a good chance, but so does Eastern Michigan. We're going to have to work hard."

The Irish will accept nothing less than a first place finish this weekend.

"If everyone runs well," noted Husted, "we should be able to get top honors."

Women's soccer puts streak on line

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team puts its unbeaten streak on the line this weekend, hosting the Southern Illinois-Edwardsville Cougars at 4 p.m. today at Alumni Field.

Sunday Notre Dame (6-0-2) travels to Milwaukee to take on the Wisconsin-Milwaukee Panthers on Sunday.

The Irish are coming off Wednesday's rain-shortened 4-1 victory over Lewis University.

"I think the fact that we only played 60 minutes might be a benefit for us," Irish coach Chris Petrucelli said. "It enabled us to save our legs for this weekend."

The Cougars have ten returning starters from last season's 13-5-1 squad, and are currently ranked eighth nationally in the Division II poll. They are the type of team which is successful when they take advantage of the other teams mistakes. The Cougar attack is led by junior Melissa Emmenegger and freshman Jennifer Burton, who scored 110 goals in her prep career. Their experienced defense, which limited opponents to 0.93 goals per game in 1990, is anchored by senior goalkeeper Marilyn Kastner.

"They have done very well against Division I competition, and are going to be a difficult team to beat," Petrucelli said of USIE. "They are going to try to score off of free kick situations and are very solid in back. We are going to have to finish our chances, and we must score early."

On Sunday, the Irish will challenge Wisconsin-Milwaukee in an important Central Region contest. It will be Notre Dame's first road game since September 15 when they tied Vanderbilt, 3-3.

"We've been on the road before, but this time we are going into some hostile territory," Petrucelli commented. "Fortunately, we have spent a lot of time on the road the last few years, and the freshmen have played away from home in high school."

The Panthers will be looking to avenge last year's 3-0 loss to the Irish. Both Erin Lambo and Nicole Schmidt, their leading scorers in 1990, have returned. Meridith Ammons is currently leading the team in goals. One major change for Wisconsin-Milwaukee is their new head coach, Laura Moynihan, a Marquette graduate who has been coaching in the Milwaukee area for 14 years.

Petrucelli feels that this is an important game for two reasons. It is a Central Region game and a road game, both of which he feels are keys to becoming a top-notch team.

'ND Saturday' merely Irish hype-a-thon?

Our civilization faces the threat of total eradication.

America's most sacred, most glorious football school has joined with one of America's greediest, most powerful companies to beget a hideous abomination. This beast, allowed to run free, would destroy us all. Already it creeps into our living rooms, corrupting our children.

And on Oct. 5, Stanford's football team will take on this evil monstrosity. But even if the Cardinal wins their battle, the war may have already been lost.

I am talking about "Notre Dame Saturday," of course.

Tyson Vaughan
Stanford Daily

"Notre Dame Saturday" is the result of a deal between NBC and Notre Dame, whereby NBC gained exclusive rights to broadcast all of the Fighting Irish's home games (and syndicate most of the away games) for the next several years, having paid the university approximately $38 million.

Disgusted yet? It gets worse. One Saturday a couple of weeks ago I was back home in New Orleans (Who Dat—4-0!), car-less and bored. I wanted to see some college football, so I scanned the channels. I caught the debut of "Notre Dame Saturday." Oh, joy.

NBC brought in their heavy-hitters—all their big-name sports broadcasters—to cover every aspect of the game. Every aspect of the game as it related to Notre Dame, that is, and Notre Dame only.

Mighty Mirko

Jurkovic is reigning king of the trenches

By DAVE McMAHON
Associate Sports Editor

Mirko Jurkovic didn't know what position he would be playing when he came to Notre Dame three years ago.

Three years later, some Notre Dame football fans still don't know what position he plays, but that doesn't bother him. He's more concerned that the opposition recognizes him.

It's not the most difficult thing to do. A 6-4, 289 lb. senior from Calumet City, Ill., Jurkovic fills the role of offensive guard for an Irish offensive line that dominated Purdue's defensive front last week to the tune of 267 net yards rushing.

Attaining his current starting position came in a roundabout way for Jurkovic. He entered his freshman campaign as a defensive tackle, taking advantage of the chance to play when injuries to Tom Gorman and John Foley forced some defensive readjustments.

"I didn't know if I'd be playing offense or defense," Jurkovic said. "Even when I got here I switched back and fourth a couple of times."

Working behind Boo Williams at left tackle throughout the season, Jurkovic earned enough playing time (48:42 with six tackles in a backup role) to garner what few freshmen defenders could—a monogram. Arnold Ale, who transferred to UCLA following the National Championship season, also won a letter in his only season.

But the following spring, Jurkovic made his first move to offensive line. An experienced offensive line essentially had a "No Help Wanted" sign attached to it. No opportunities arose for a starting spot, so like many Notre Dame sophomores and freshman, Jurkovic had to play the waiting game—this time behind senior Tim Grunhard at right guard. While he waited, he learned from his predecessors.

"I really looked up to Timmy Ryan [now playing for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers]," commented Jurkovic. "He was a quite leader and a great player. I learned a lot from him—he's quite the Catholic guy and I'd just like to model myself after him, especially off the field."

While Jurkovic may be shooting par on his attempt to be like Tim off the field, his on-field performance has also reached All-America status. After logging over 69 minutes in 12 games during his sophomore year, he quickly established himself as the man to beat at one of the guard spots in his third year. During that season, the Irish offense ranked 12th in the nation in rushing (250.3 yards per game), including a 316 yard outburst against Tennessee.

Jurkovic, not the most svelte of lineman, thinks he could stand to improve in the weight room.

"I started out my freshman year running a 5.2 in the 40 and benching 290, which was relatively weaker than

The Observer/Sean Farnan

Mirko Jurkovic (74) takes on two defenders, leading an Irish offensive line surge against the Purdue defense.

the running backs," said Jurkovic. "Now I'm down to a five-second flat and a 385 bench. The speed is fine, but most lineman bench about 400, so I've still got some work to do there."

Don't go making any bets that he'll reach that 400 mark anytime soon, though, because work and Jurkovic just don't seem to be a compatible duo.

"I'm not one to go out and have a good time at practice," said Jurkovic. "I guess you could say I'm a Saturday-type of guy. If I could work one day a week I'd do it, but they just don't seem to allow that around here."

A first-team pre-season All-America pick by Street & Smith's, Jurkovic doesn't limit his exploits to opposing defensive linemen. He can also take his act to the hoop. Or at least could.

"I played shooting guard in high school, but my basketball career is pretty much all but over," said Jurkovic, who earned three basketball letters at Thornton Fractional North High School in Calumet City. "Anytime you have a chance to not use your legs, you don't use 'em."

Such a fitness philosophy seems to limit one's options for spending leisure time, but Jurkovic has found a sport that meets his standards—golf.

But that includes walking, you say. "We go golfing in a cart a lot," said Jurkovic.

If he gets his way, he'll have many opportunities to swing the clubs in the future.

"If everything works out and God gives me the chance, I'd like to end up in Tampa or somewhere else down south where I can just go out and play golf in my underwear," commented Jurkovic.

Even if everything doesn't work out, Jurkovic has a strong family to support him. It's the most important part of his life.

Jurkovic greatly respects his parents' Croatian identity. With the recent political turmoil involving Croatia's revolt against Yugoslavia, Mirko has even greater feelings towards his ancestry.

"A lot of people think there's really no difference," said Jurkovic. "But especially at this time with the problems they have over there, it's either one (Croatian) or the other (Yugoslavian)."

A loss at Michigan provided Jurkovic with some problems of his own, the least of which was an intense week of practice for the offensive line.

"We had a letdown against Michigan, which we'll never forget regardless of our accomplishments," commented Jurkovic. "No matter what good things we've done, we only remember the bad."

It's an attitude that he leaves on the field. Off the field, Jurkovic seems to lean toward relishing the good.

Where has the defense gone?

Notre Dame meets Stanford in battle of the offenses

By ROLANDO De AGUIAR
Sports Writer

In its first four games, Notre Dame has not found scoring to be a problem. With the exception of a 24-14 loss to Michigan, the Irish have averaged nearly 47 points per game.

Neither has the Stanford Cardinal's offense stumbled early. In beginning their season 1-2, the Cardinal has nonetheless averaged 384 yards per game, including 485 total yards against defending national champion Colorado.

This weekend's game promises to be another offensive showcase, as high-octane offenses face suspect defenses in Palo Alto.

Stanford quarterback Jason Palumbis victimized an inexperienced Irish secondary in last season's matchup, passing for 256 yards, including a 15-17 showing in the second half. The senior led the Cardinal back from a 24-7 second-quarter deficit to a 36-31 win.

"Palumbis has been at quarterback forever," said Holtz. "I swear to garsh he's been there a long time."

Actually, Palumbis started seven games for the Cardinal his freshman season, but did not take a snap from center as a sophomore. Last year, he returned to start all 11 Cardinal games, throwing for 2,579 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Protecting Palumbis is an offensive line whose workouts register on many California Richter scales.

"[Stanford has] the biggest offensive line I have ever, ever seen, I think," said Holtz. "That is no exaggeration."

The immense Cardinal line is led by 6-7, 300-pound All-American tackle Bob Whitfield. Whitfield, a junior, has been named as a first-team All-American in every preseason college football publication.

Whitfield is well-supported by senior Chris Dalman (6-4, 290) and juniors Brian Cassidy (6-5, 305), Steve Hoyem (6-8, 310) and Glen Cavanaugh (6-7, 295).

The last time the Irish faced a line the caliber of Stanford's, the Michigan Wolverines pounded Notre Dame for 233 yards rushing.

Running the ball through the holes created by the Cardinal offensive line will be fullback Tommy Vardell, who scored four touchdowns in last season's game, and Heisman Trophy candidate Glyn Milburn.

Milburn, a junior, rushed for 729 yards last season, but was stymied against the Irish, with seven carries for 23 yards.

"He's a big game-breaker," said Holtz of Milburn. "In the kicking game, running out of the backfield, pass receiving, he'll make a lot of things happen."

Though the Cardinal lost All-American receiver Ed McCaffrey to graduation, the Irish coaching staff is wary of his successor, Chris Walsh.

"He really is an exceptional, fine receiver," said Holtz. "He has 19 receptions thus far, and you can see why. Palumbis really finds him on a consistent basis."

Trying to stop the Cardinal attack will be an Irish defense which showed flashes of brilliance in last weekend's 45-20 defeat of Purdue.

"The biggest improvement we made was the ability to get some pressure on the passer," said Holtz. "You can't tell from one week to the next, but it was nice to see us get good pressure on him."

Glyn Milburn

Bryant Young and Eric Jones led a defensive line that forced two fumbles and made four sacks of Purdue quarterback Eric Hunter.

However, Holtz does not see the Irish getting to Palumbis often Saturday night.

"You are not going to sack him (Palumbis)," said Holtz. "You may rush him, but you're not going to sack him. He's going to dump the ball off, they're going to adjust the routes, and do a variety of other things."

The Irish secondary will need to continue to improve if it is to control the Stanford passing attack. Holtz remains patient about his defense.

"We have a lot of problems, and we've solved a lot of problems," said Holtz. "We start, I think, six sophomores on defense."

"And they (the Irish) are going to be a good defensive football team. They've come a long way, but we still have a ways to go."

The Irish offense entered last week's contest at Purdue with two big questions. "How is Rick Mirer?" and "Can the offense function without Rodney Culver?"

Mirer appeared as healthy as ever in leading the Irish, throwing for 139 yards and two touchdowns on 12-14 passing. Though the Irish rushed for 267 yards against the Boilermakers, Culver's leadership was missed, particularly on the opening coin toss.

And although Culver's condition (after suffering an ankle injury in practice) had significantly improved by last weekend, his recovery has since slowed.

"Right now, Rodney is a long way from being ready," said Holtz.

Tony Brooks ably filled the void left by Culver on Saturday, rushing for 141 yards.

The Irish offensive line, meanwhile, continues to perform well, protecting Mirer and making big holes for Brooks and fullback Jerome Bettis.

At West Lafayette, Lake Dawson had the best game of his blossoming career, catching six first-half passes for 81 yards. The rest of the Irish receiving corps continues to reap the benefits of Mirer's passing, which is more frequent than ever.

Stanford's defense, which has yielded 380 yards per game in 1991, will need a spectacular showing to stop the Irish offense.

"As far as their defense is concerned, they're a good defensive football team," said Holtz. "They're unorthodox as all get out."

The stunting, blitzing Cardinal defense is led by junior outside linebackers Ron George and Dave Garnett, both of whom were honorable mention all-Pac-10 in 1990.

The Stanford defensive line returns two starters, Aaron Rembisz and Estevan Avila, from last year's unit.

The Cardinal lost all-Pac-10 performer Kevin Scott to the NFL draft last June, and strong safety Jimmy Klein to a knee injury last spring.

When the Irish ran out of luck

Cardinal looks for third win of series, second in a row

By ANTHONY KING
Assistant Sports Editor

The pass fell through Derek Brown's outstretched hands and hit the turf as the clock expired. That is the way it ended in Notre Dame Stadium on October 6, 1990, as the number one ranked Irish ran out of luck and fell to the Stanford Cardinal.

It was a game that Irish fans would like to forget. The Irish were number one and headed toward another showdown with Miami. Everything looked golden under the dome. The Irish were at home and facing an unranked Stanford team and the 59,075 faithful that packed Rockne Stadium saw the Irish build a 24-7 lead in the second quarter. But as Irish fans dreamt about how not to run up the score, the Cardinal mounted a comeback that started with a personal foul penalty on Chris Zorich.

Zorich was assessed a controversial piling-on penalty when quarterback Jason Palumbis slipped down. The penalty gave Stanford their second first down of the game. Seven plays later Tommy Vardell scored the first of his four touchdowns on a one yard run. Stanford then went for two and converted, making it a much tighter 24-15 game just before halftime.

The Irish had scored on two Tony Smith catches, a one yard run by Rick Mirer, and a Craig Hentrich field goal. The Irish offense looked very effective in the first half, even though the Irish were lacking the services of Raghieb "Rocket" Ismail.

The momentum had swung in the direction of the Cardinal. Stanford scored first in the second half on another Vardell one yard scamper. This came off a failed fourth down conversion by the Irish. Notre Dame answered with an eighty yard scoring drive. The drive was capped by a one yard run by Rodney Culver, giving the Irish a 31-22 advantage.

Stanford, though, drive right back, as Palumbis hit Ed McCaffrey on a 43-yard pass. Vardell cashed in, deja vu, from one yard out and the gap was narrowed to 31-29 as the third quarter ended.

With six minutes left Stanford would mount what turned out to be the winning drive. Palumbis drove the Cardinal down the field, again finding McCaffrey for the big gainer. This time it was a 26-yard toss that McCaffrey brought down. Vardell, the one yard specialist, again crashed over from the one with 36 ticks left on the clock.

Mirer got the ball at the Irish 30, with 31 seconds to work his magic. Mirer promptly hit Shawn Davis along the sideline for 26 yards. He then missed on a pass intended for Ray Griggs leaving 19 seconds left. Tony Brooks came open over the middle, and Mirer found him for a 21 yard gain. The Irish quickly called time out.

But the Stanford defense rose to the occasion on the next play. Mirer found his receivers blanketed and had to heave the ball out of the end zone, leaving just six seconds to play.

The final play turned out to be a heartbreaker for the Irish. After incredible plays at Michigan and Michigan State, the Irish ran out of luck. Mirer rolled left and spotted tight end Derek Brown in the end zone. Derek stretched out to meet the ball.

The ball caromed off Brown's hands and came to rest in the end zone grass.

Vaughn Bryant, however, who was a flanker last season, has produced at his new cornerback position, while strong safety Albert Richardson has shown punch, recovering two fumbles and catching one interception on the young season. Despite these strengths, however, the Cardinal are largely young and inexperienced on the defensive side of the ball. With the strengths of the offensive squads, and the questions surrounding each defense, the fireworks will likely be blazing this weekend at Stanford Stadium.

Dame loss in the history of the series. The Irish lead the series 5-2. The series dates back to 1925 when Notre Dame met Stanford in the Rose Bowl. Rockne took his 9-0 team, including the famous Four Horseman, into Pasadena. The Stanford Indians outgained the Irish in virtually every offensive category, but the Irish capitalized on Indian turnovers. Horseman Elmer Layden led the Irish, scoring three times. Two of the scores came on interception returns (one for 78 yards and one for 70 yards). Layden also had a three yard run for a score. The other Notre Dame score came on a fumbled punt that the Irish returned 20 yards for the score. The Irish took the Rose Bowl 27-10 and won their first national championship.

Michigan slips, Washington climbs to third

By RENE FERRAN
 Associate Sports Editor

Florida State's convincing 51-31 victory over Michigan made the Seminoles the unanimous choice as the number one team in the country in this week's National Collegiate Sportswriters' Poll.

Florida State garnered all 30 first-place votes to beat out second-ranked Miami, 34-10 winners at Tulsa. The Wolverines, last week's number two, fell into a seventh-place tie with Notre Dame.

Washington moved up one spot to third with its 56-3 thrashing of Kansas State, while Tennessee vaulted from sixth to fourth with its 30-21 victory over 15th-ranked Auburn. Oklahoma nosed out Clemson for the fifth spot.

Iowa and Penn State flip-flopped positions to round out the top 10. The Hawkeyes trounced Northern Illinois 58-7, while the Nittany Lions struggled to defeat Boston College at home 28-21.

CARDINALS TO WATCH

Dennis Green

In his third season at Stanford, Green has led the Cardinal to a 9-16 record. The native of Harrisburg, Penn., also served four years as a Cardinal assistant coach. As a sophomore at the University of Iowa, Green rushed for 175 yards against Texas Christian, one of the top performances in Hawkeye history.

Jason Palumbis

Despite sitting out the 1989 season, he is already the most efficient passer in Stanford history. Palumbis hopes to join the ranks of ex-Stanford greats John Elway and Jim Plunkett. This year, Palumbis 60-108 for 629 yards, no touchdowns and three interceptions. Last year, Palumbis went 26-34 for 256 yards, no touchdowns and no interceptions against Notre Dame.

Tommy Vardell

In his career, the fifth-year senior has rushed for 705 yards and 17 touchdowns. The native of El Cajon, Cal., is not only a capable runner, but also a competent receiver and blocker. Vardell scored four touchdowns against Notre Dame last year, and has rushed 59 times for 273 yards this year. He has also scored six touchdowns, with his longest run a 48-yard scamper against Arizona.

PEERLESS PROGNOSTICATORS

Each week during football season, The Observer sports staff, Al Lesar of the South Bend Tribune and some well-known figure in the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's community predict the outcomes of the week's major college football games. Records are compiled as to how each person does against the spread. Home teams are in CAPS.
