THE INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER SERVING NOTRE DAME AND SAINT MARY'S

AIDS quilt section might come to ND

By KENYA JOHNSON
News Writer

For a mere 48 hours Notre Dame will become a significant part of AIDS awareness history.

Carol Seager, director of university health services, is seeking approval from The NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt(NAMES) to display a section of the AIDS quilt in the Stepan Center in the fall of 1993.

"AIDS is an issue that is unfortunately a real issue for the young generation," said Seager. "I would like to see the issue made more public and information presented more on this campus."

Frank Flynn, student body president-elect, agrees with this position and has tried to bring AIDS awareness events to campus many times.

"It's definitely an issue that students need to be more aware about," said Flynn "AIDS needs to be recognized by this campus."

To do this Seager hopes to have 'the quilt' presented at Notre Dame. The quilt is a collection of hand-made quilted panels, sewn by the family and loved ones of someone who has died of AIDS.

"The NAMES quilt is so large that, with all sections put together, it extends from the Washington Monument to the Capitol Building," she said. This makes the quilt approximately one mile in length. The quilt has become so large that it has been divided into many sections which are sent to different places to be displayed. If the quilt was to come to Notre Dame, it would be the first time for it to be displayed in the midwestern region, according to Seager.

Seager said all of the funding and "leg work" for the project is done. Flynn collected approximately $7,000 from alumni across the country in order to fund the project. But Seager admits that one thing stands between the way of the quilt and Notre Dame—student participation.

"Before we can even submit the application we need a student committee working on the NAMES project," she said.

The committee calls for students to fulfill the positions of co-chairpersons, finance and merchandise manager, fundraising commissioner, media and publicity commissioner, and AIDS education commissioner. Along with the executive positions, Seager is seeking a large number of volunteers to simply "help with the work."

"I would like to see the NAMES project be the kick-off to a successful and permanent AIDS awareness program on campus," explained Seager. "It is imperative that students get involved and help with this cause."

Clinton warns Americans of tax increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton issued an economic "call to arms" Monday night, asking Americans in a televised address to accept a painful package of tax increases and spending cuts as the price for rebuilding the nation's economy.

The president lambasted the 12 years of Republican economics and said that the stakes are high as he readies his own program. "Change this fundamental will not be easy nor will it be quick," he said. "But at stake is the control of our economic destiny."

"More Americans must contribute today so that all Americans can do better tomorrow," the president said in his first prime-time speech from the Oval Office.

Clinton's economic program — to be unveiled in a speech to a joint meeting of Congress on Wednesday night — will be a far cry from the middle-class tax cuts that he advocated during his campaign.

During his 11-minute preview, Clinton said he had hoped to improve education, reform health care and create jobs "without asking more of you." However, he said, "I cannot — because the deficit has in-

BP, Stanford, Sorin, Zahm advance to debate semi-finals

By JAMES WILLIAMS
News Writer

The number of teams remaining in the Iceberg Debates was cut from eight to four Monday as Breen-Phillips, Stanford, Sorin and Zahm each advanced to the semi-final round set for Wednesday.

The only upset of the quarter-final rounds came when fourth-rated Saint Ed's was knocked-off by fifth-seeded Stanford. Stanford is matched against top-rated B.P. while Sorin and Zahm will square off in the semi-finals. Murrisey, Alumni B and Badin were also eliminated after last night's competition.

"The semi-final round pairings are based on their rankings," said Amy Listerman, chair of the Iceberg Debates.

"All the teams were power ranked after the earlier three preliminary rounds."

Monday's debates considered the role of health care professionals assisting terminally ill patients in self-administered suicide. The remaining four teams now must shift gears as they challenge a new topic: Notre Dame is losing its

"The teams were given all the topics a week before the first round of debates—that was about three weeks ago—so the they have had plenty of time to prepare," Listerman said. "I like the semi-final round topic because it's something the students have experienced."

Wednesday night's semi-final round begins with Breen-

Phillips and Stanford at 7 p.m. in the Notre Dame Room in LaFortune. Zahm and Sorin will debate at 8 p.m. at the same location.

The championship round will take place Feb. 23 at 7 p.m. in Cushing Auditorium. A $500 prize will be awarded to the dorm of the winning team along with a trophy. The second place dorm will receive $250.

Reporters say their book made readers 'furious' about U.S. economic problems

By EMILY HAGE
News Writer

The American people have been ahead of the experts about America's economic strife, according to James Steele, co-author of "America: What Went Wrong?" with Donald Barlett, both of whom spoke last night at the auditorium at Hesburgh Library.

Barlett and Steele, who have been doing investigative and explanatory reporting together at the Philadelphia Inquirer for the past 22 years, spoke about American economic problems and the American people's reaction, discovered in letters from across the country responding to their book.

Referring to the 25-30 thousand letters they have received so far, ranging from thank you notes to five and six-page essays, he said, "We've never seen anything with that kind of passion."

"The reaction is part of the story," said Steele, "[The letters] are a wonderful snapshot of what's going on in America."

He added that he and Barlett were amazed by "the enthusiasm and excitement" that their book provoked in the American people. "For some reason, this tale stoked the liberal reserves of the people."

Steele said the letters have proven that Americans "want to do the right thing; they are willing to sacrifice, and they are willing to go along with long-term solutions."

Steele quoted one writer as saying that Steele and Barlett had "pinched the conscious of the silent majority."

Another said, "You have articulated what so many of us have had a gut feeling about."

Steele said the book offers the statistics to prove the economic hardship Americans have experienced. He said response to the book has cut across every social and economic class, regardless of race and sex. Steele said many writers became "furious" about America's economy as they read Steele and Barlett's book.

Barlett addressed what he and Steele consider the primary economic problems in America. Unemployment is America's number one problem, according to Barlett. "The number one priority is jobs."

He said that cuts caused by competition cause a decrease in pay for workers and an increase in the salary of company executives. He added that the drop in the number of jobs in manufacturing and the increase of government jobs is a bad sign, leading eventually to a situation in which there are not enough people to pay the taxes to pay the growing bureaucracy.

America's deficit, too, needs

WSND's the other radio alternative

Throughout the past couple of years students have complained about the state of campus radio.

With U-93 catering to the teeny-bopper generation and WAOR catering to not-too-classic rock fans, students are looking for a station that will play cater to their tastes.

Mike Scrudato
Sports Editor

WVFI, the official campus radio, plays this kind of music, but cannot be heard in half the dorms on campus, let alone the surrounding neighborhood.

Some people feel that 'VFI should be given the funds to move to the FM side of the dial, where it could be heard outside of LaFortune.

Last year, this option was unsuccessfully attempted.

There is, however, an alternative.

The campus fine arts station, WSND, which operates out of the O'Shaughnessy bell-tower, has a spot on the FM dial (88.9) and comes in clearly around campus.

I am not suggesting that everyone listen to classical music all day, not that there's anything wrong with that.

But, take a listen to 'SND Sunday through Friday between midnight and 2 a.m., and you might be pleasantly surprised.

During these hours, the fine arts station becomes "Nocturne," which is two hours of the type of things you would expect to hear from a college radio station in crystal clear FM stereo.

Not only that, but the DJs love to take requests. Usually, you can have your requests played almost instantaneously.

Some Tuesday nights, which tend to be the best nights to listen, 'SND features CD and cassette give aways.

Just last week a student named Matt Lamberti won a cassette just for saying he loved The Sexants.

These two hours are arguably the best Michiana radio has to offer.

Since WVFI-FM seems like an impossible possibility, why doesn't the University or 'SND increase the number of "Nocturne" hours?

It doesn't have to be anything drastic, but is ten through two too much to ask?

Despite the lack of publicity that these two hours have gotten, it is building a small, yet fanatic following. This includes the entire Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community. One Nocturne disc jockey disclosed that they usually receive an equal amount of calls from both schools.

This increase of air time would give students that want to hear alternative (or whatever other label you want to categorize it with) music four hours of what they want.

It still would be a lot, but it would be twice as much as is available.

It would be far less than adequate, but even the longest of journeys begins with a single step. Listen tonight and you might just win a something.

Rafsanjani to finish nuclear plant

■ NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani said a nuclear power plant abandoned after the 1979 revolution by a German firm will be completed, state-run Iranian radio reported Monday. Rafsanjani inspected the site of the Bushehr nuclear power plant, in southern Iran, on Sunday. He said Tehran remains determined to put the facility into operation with or without German help, according to the radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. Germany's Kraftwerke Union, a subsidiary of Siemens, began building the facility in 1975. The project was abandoned after the Islamic revolution. It was about 80 percent completed but was bombed by Iraqi warplanes during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war. Tehran radio reported last year that Iran had opened discussions with China on building nuclear power stations. Exiled Iranians claim the Bushehr facility is part of a program to develop nuclear weapons.

Navy readies for Tailhook report

■ WASHINGTON — As it braces for the release of the Pentagon inspector general's report on the Tailhook sex abuse scandal, the Navy and Marine Corps have quietly laid the groundwork for dealing with the report's complex legal fallout. The report is expected to be so explosive in nature — and detailed in its findings of sexual misbehavior and other misconduct — that scores of officers are likely to be referred to courts martial or recommended for a series of lesser disciplinary proceedings. The report, by Pentagon Inspector General Derek Vander Schaaf, will deal with the Tailhook convention in Las Vegas in 1991, where several dozen women complained they were groped and fondled by Navy and Marine Corps aviators. The report, expected to be released by the end of this month, is also supposed to take up any attempts to cover up misconduct that might have taken place.

Bill Mowle, managing editor of The Dome, presented Irish Impact, a poster going on sale this week to benefit the Center for the Homeless, to Student Senate in Monday's meeting.

"We have about 5,000 posters available," said Mowle. "At $10 each we should raise about $50,000 for the Center."

The Irish Impact poster is a close-up of Notre Dame and Penn State football players in action. Posters will be available at the LaFortune information desk and through dorm representatives for $10 each starting this Friday.

In other business, Teri Niederstadt, this year's student body treasurer, nominated Connor Murphy as next year's student body treasurer. The nomination was unanimously approved.

Stephanie Gallo, Lyons Hall co-president, and Kara Christopherson, student body secretary, reported that a student survey will be approved by student activities by the end of the week and hopefully distributed to random students before spring break.

Elections commissioner Pete Castelli informed Senate that a booklet containing all information relevant to student body, senate, class and any other campus elections will be completed and up for review before the new senate body takes over.

Joe Huston, senior class president, announced that the official Notre Dame St. Patrick's Day tee shirt will go on sale today at the LaFortune information desk and at the bookstore by the end of the week. The shirts will be $10.

Students advance in College Bowl

By JOHN LUCAS
News Writer

Answering trivia questions on diverse topics ranging from figure skating champions to the animals of the Chinese calendar, four Notre Dame seniors won the campus championship of the College Bowl, America's longest running general quiz competition.

The team of seniors Jim Shiely, Nate Citino, Mike Moreland, and Rob Horton earned a trip to Earlham College in southern Indiana to compete in a regional round Feb. 6 to 8, where the squad will face competition from schools across the Midwest.

"It was pretty tough, but we had a lot of fun," team captain Rob Horton said.

Extremely popular in the 1950's, College Bowl won several Emmy Awards as a weekly television show, pitting students from different campuses against each other as part of the national tournament.

Competing in a format similar to Jeopardy or Trivial Pursuit, College Bowl participants answer questions in a wide variety of areas, including science, literature, sports, geography and pop-culture.

According to tournament coordinator Peter Lombardo, the College Bowl is made up of two parts. While the first part of the game has individuals buzzing in on electronic buzzers to answer "toss-up questions," the second part has contestants answering "bonus questions" where teams can confer among themselves before answering for higher point values.

According to Lombardo, the College Bowl tournament has a long history at Notre Dame.

"Notre Dame has participated from the very beginning— as early as 1953," he said.

This year, 15 four-person teams from Notre Dame fought for the spot to compete at Earlham. After the regional tournament, the champions of the fifteen regionals and a sixteenth wild-card team will advance to the National Championship Tournament to be held April 23 to 25.

SMC panel discussion focuses on the problems with U.S. health care

By AMY K. BENNETT
News Writer

A panel discussion at Saint Mary's Monday focused on the current problems in the United States health care system.

Business administration and economics professor Richard Measell, philosophy professor Kevin McDonnell, and nursing professor Ella Harmeyer spoke on the difficulties facing American health care.

Measell said one problem is the increasing amount of the gross national product going towards health care. Measell also blamed the involvement of third party payment plans and a complicated system for the large amount of money being spent.

"You go to the grocery store knowing that you need oranges or milk, but you go to the doctor with pain and you really have no knowledge of the problem or what the cure will be," he said.

Harmeyer stressed the need for increased prenatal care for underprivileged patients unable to pay mounting hospital costs. She pointed out that although the United States government provides some health care programs, problems still exist.

"We look to Britain's and Canada's programs, but when we examine our own in the United States, we find that the majority of them don't work very well," she said.

Harmeyer said she sees Federally Funded Health Centers as one of the government care programs that actually works. FFHCs can exist only in areas with a large percentage of underprivileged people who are required to pay only a percentage of the cost of the care they receive.

McDonnell spoke on health care as a religious and social issue. He said that in the current system in the United States, not enough is done to promote healthy lifestyles that prevent illness.

"What we have in this country is a first-rate sick-care system. There's no better place to get sick than in the United States," McDonnell said. "Sick care has very little to do with how long or how well we live. What we have almost nothing of is a health care system."

McDonnell said that doctors, who are more involved with sick care than health care, are still revered.

"We are asking things of the medical care system that I don't think medical care can deliver. Health care has little to do with doctors. Why then have we made doctors gods?" he said. "Just as priests — cannot ensure the salvation of the members of their flocks, so doctors — even good doctors — cannot ensure the longevity of their patients."

Navajo and Hopi leaders continue a land dispute as agreement collapses

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Clarence Blackrock has lived all his 63 years in the Cactus Valley-Big Mountain community on the Hopi Indian Reservation. He considers it his home, his land, his heritage.

But Blackrock, like most of his neighbors, is a Navajo. And despite his strong religious and ancestral ties to the land, he will be forced off it unless Navajo and Hopi leaders settle their century-old dispute over use of the land.

More than three decades of legal battles among the tribes and the federal government appeared on the way to resolution in November when a federal mediator announced a settlement giving the Hopis $15 million and 500,000 acres of land off the present reservation.

But now the agreement appears to have collapsed under the weight of criticism from state and local government officials, white landowners, environmental and outdoor enthusiasts and the Navajo families.

At issue are several hundred thousand acres of high desert in northeastern Arizona. It is rugged, inhospitable land, scorched by the sun in the summer, bitterly cold in the winter.

Navajo Chairman Peterson Zah says it is a poverty-stricken region of dilapidated houses where cold, rain and snow find their way inside. There are few paved roads, no running water. Schools and social services are either inadequate or nonexistent.

But Blackrock and the 250 or so Navajo families who occupy the land are unwilling to leave.

creased so much, beyond my earlier estimates, beyond even the worst estimates from last year."

Promising to spread the pain among all, Clinton said 70 percent of the taxes he would propose "fall on the shoulders of those who make more than $100,000 a year." An administration official said Clinton meant that seven out of 10 of the higher taxes would affect the wealthy — not that they would pay 70 percent of the additional burden.

The payoff from his plan, Clinton promised, will be

"millions of long-term, good-paying jobs, including a program to jumpstart our economy with another 500,000 jobs in 1993 and 1994."

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole delivered a crisp response to Clinton's address, expressing skepticism that the administration was cutting spending far enough before asking for more taxes.

"We've both heard lots of speeches about 'sacrifice,' but we'll be working with you to make certain that sacrifice isn't just a presidential code word for more taxes, more spending and more mandates from Washington," Dole said. "That's the kind of sacrifice that will break the back of middle-class America, and lead us right into economic ruin."

Clinton's plan envisions roughly $500 billion in tax increases and spending reductions on many popular programs over four years to cut the deficit. Big corporations and wealthy Americans face significant boosts in their income tax rates.

One part that will affect all Americans is a broad-based energy tax, based on the heat content of fuels, including electricity, coal, oil, natural gas and gasoline. Clinton has said the heat-content approach would be more progressive than a tax based strictly on sales.

The Oval Office appearance was part of a public relations blitz to overcome resistance in Congress and among the public.

attention, said Barlett. He said that such government efforts as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollins legislation of 1987, which was supposed to destroy the deficit by 1991, have not been successful.

He also referred to the falseness of Bush's claim that because of the budget reforms, the deficit would be eliminated by 1995. "The numbers were

"This could take up a substantial amount of time, but wouldn't it be worth it?," she added.

Seager sees NAMES as a bridge between Notre Dame and the South Bend community.

"This would be the largest AIDS awareness project to hit the South Bend area," she said. "This is not only a Notre Dame project, but a community wide project. We need to collectively come together and make this as successful as possible."

Flynn and Seager hope to see a commemoration celebrated around the arrival of the quilt, complete with a mass, tables of materials, videos and speakers.

still going the wrong way," he said.

Reforms in health care, too, are needed, said Barlett. "What kind of civil society makes health care a lottery?" He criticized the present system, saying that a person who works for a company with health care "wins," whereas someone whose employer does not have insurance "loses."

Barlett and Steele have won two Pulitzer prizes and have won the George Orwell award from the National Council of Teachers of English two times.

Slovakia elects first president

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia (AP) — Parliament elected Michal Kovac, a former banker, as Slovakia's first president on Monday, breaking a deadlock that had threatened to destabilize the newly independent country.

Kovac was the last speaker of Czechoslovakia's federal parliament before the country split peacefully into Czech and Slovak states on Jan. 1.

Parliament had failed in two tries last month to choose a head of state when none of four candidates won the necessary three-fifths majority.

Kovac, the only candidate in Monday's vote, won 106 votes in the 150-member parliament, 16 more than the three-fifths needed.

Kovac, 62, said his election was an "an important signal" of Slovak unity. "We have to increase the credibility of Slovakia in the world," said the president-elect, who will be sworn in on March 3 for a five-year term.

Kovac was the nominee of Premier Vladimir Meciar's governing Movement for a Democratic Slovakia, a party Kovac helped found.

GOP leaders were sharpening their opposition in advance. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said that "when Democrats say 'sacrifice,' they really mean 'taxes.'"

Warning that special interests will try to kill his plan, Clinton said, "Those who have profited from the status quo will oppose changes we make, every step of the way. They've already lined the corridors of power with high-priced lobbyists. They are the defenders of decline, but we are the architects of the future."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said he hoped people wouldn't rush to judgment on Clinton's program.

"I emphasized that while it's not likely that any one of us will agree with every single point in his economic program, it has to be viewed as a whole," he told reporters at an AFL-CIO meeting in Florida.

SMC panel to celebrate liberal arts education

By KATIE CAPUTO
Saint Mary's News Editor

A panel presentation at Saint Mary's tonight will be the first in a series, "Celebrating the Liberal Arts," which is intended to introduce students to the value of a liberal arts education in the professional world, according to career counselor Karen Kyle.

"We want the main message to be that a liberal arts education is excellent preparation for the work world, and we are trying to back that up with concrete examples," said Kyle.

The first program will be presented at 7 p.m. in Stapleton Lounge in Le Mans Hall. It will include a panel discussion with three graduates of Saint Mary's entitled "Life After Saint Mary's: Putting Your Major to Work."

Other programs include a Career Resource Center Open House on Feb. 23 from 5 to 8 p.m. in 168 Le Mans Hall. On Feb. 26, at 2 p.m. at Dalloway's Coffeehouse, there will be an informal discussion with Kathryn Hank Collett, Saint Mary's Class of 1975, a philosophy major and career woman. During the week of Feb. 22, the hall directors will have displays in the residence halls.

The scheduled events are free to all members of the college community.

European Communism," according to Notre Dame philosophy professor Ralph McInerney.

Weigel is the president of the Ethics and Public Policy Center, a think tank in Washington, D.C. dedicated to voicing the public's ethical interests regarding public policy, McInerney said. Weigel, a Roman Catholic theologian, has written or edited several books, including "Freedom and Its Discontents", "Just War and the Gulf War", and "Catholicism and the Renewal of American Democracy".

Weigel recently completed a book on the Catholic Church's role in the political upheaval of Eastern Europe after extensively researching his topic in Europe.

"His lecture will focus on the Church's role in the political animosity leading to the crumbling of Eastern Europe, and his experience is hands-on," said McInerney.

Weigel's lecture will be Wednesday at 4:15 p.m. in room 125 at DeBartolo Hall and is sponsored by the Notre Dame Jacques Maritain Center as a part of the John M. Olin lecture series. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Kevorkian helps thirteenth person to commit suicide

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Jack Kevorkian helped a 70-year-old invalid kill himself Monday by inhaling carbon monoxide. He was Kevorkian's 13th assisted suicide.

Hugh Gale, a former security guard, had been disabled more than 10 years with emphysema and congestive heart disease.

"He was in terrible pain," said Michael Schwartz, one of Kevorkian's attorneys. "He was on oxygen 100 percent of the time — could not walk, could not go out of the house."

Gale's wife, Cheryl, and Kevorkian were at Gale's suburban Detroit home when he died, Schwartz said. Mrs. Gale did not speak to reporters.

Linda Vaughn Davis, an assistant county prosecutor at the scene, said she didn't know what legal action, if any, would be taken. There was no answer Monday at the prosecutor's office, which was closed for the Presidents Day holiday.

Gale was the fifth person Kevorkian has helped commit suicide since Dec. 15, when Gov. John Engler signed legislation that will ban assisted suicide in Michigan beginning March 30.

"The Legislature has made these people more panic-stricken and a lot of them feel that if they don't do something quickly they're going to be forced into some terrible agony and pain," Schwartz said.

Kevorkian, a retired pathologist, last assisted a suicide on Feb. 8, when he helped a 47-year-old woman with multiple sclerosis kill herself.

The new state law will make assisting a suicide a felony punishable by four years in prison.

Living wills invalid for pregnant

AP) — Plan all you want. The soul searching and sense that goes into a living will is all for naught in most states if a woman is pregnant when it is needed.

Only Arizona and New Jersey ask women to indicate in their living wills what medical treatment they would want should they become hopelessly comatose or be declared brain-dead while they are pregnant.

In 23 states, a woman's request not to be kept on life-support is not to be kept if she's pregnant, no matter the stage of her pregnancy.

Nancy Klein didn't have a living will when a car accident in 1988 left her comatose while she was pregnant. She agrees with her husband's decision to get her an abortion because doctors said it would improve her chances of recovering.

"I don't think a woman should be forced to be an incubator," she said over the weekend from her home in Florida.

All 50 states and the District of Columbia have laws allowing advance directives on medical care. They provide either for a living will, which indicates a choice for life-sustaining health care should a person become unable to make such decisions, or through medical proxy, which names someone else to make such a choice.

A survey by the Center for Women Policy Studies found 12 of those don't address pregnancy, making it likely courts would decide the matter.

Twenty-three states automatically invalidate a woman's living will at any stage of pregnancy, it said.

Four other states invalidate advance directives if the fetus is viable, generally considered sometime in the second trimester.

Car bombs kill 4, injure 120 in Columbia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Two car bombs shattered a busy downtown district Monday, killing four people and injuring more than 120 as glass rained from skyscrapers and survivors groped through thick smoke.

Twenty cars were destroyed and dozens of stores were severely damaged. Windows were broken in an area about a half-mile square, AP photographer Ricardo Mazalan said at the scene.

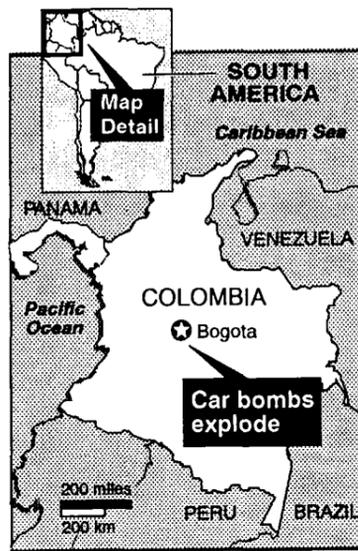

Smoke cut visibility to a few yards at both bomb sites, which were about eight blocks apart. The injured stumbled around blindly, crying out for help. Others ran about screaming as they searched for loved ones and friends, Mazalan said. No one immediately claimed responsibility for the bombings, but a government official charged they were planted by drug traffickers. President Cesar Gaviria blamed recent bombings on fugitive drug lord Pablo Escobar, who is fighting a government crackdown.

The police and army set up scores of roadblocks throughout this city of 6 million people, apparently to try to catch those responsible.

Both bombs, estimated by police at about 150 pounds each, exploded at mid-morning as hundreds of people jammed downtown sidewalks.

The first detonated a few yards from a municipal courthouse, killing two people.

Lithuanians elect an ex-Communist leader

VILNIUS, Lithuania (AP) — Fed up with economic hardships, Lithuanians overwhelmingly elected former Communist Party chief Algirdas Brazauskas in their first direct presidential vote, unofficial results showed Monday.

Brazauskas received 1,210,517 votes, or 60 percent of those cast Sunday. Anti-Communist intellectual Stasys Lozoraitis, who spent 50 years in exile in the West and now is Lithuania's ambassador in Washington, drew 767,345 votes, or 38 percent.

More than three-quarters of the 2.55 million eligible voters cast ballots.

Final results were expected Wednesday, but election officials in this Baltic nation said the outcome was assured.

The strapping, jovial Brazauskas has remained popular since the fall of Communism because — like Russian President Boris Yeltsin — he is a maverick who rose to the top of the ruling party and then broke away.

"Had the candidate for president been a real Communist, the people would not have voted for him. The people know better," Brazauskas told reporters after his victory.

He has promised to restore order to the crumbling economy and raise living standards, which have fallen since Lithuania won independence from the Soviet Union in 1991.

Brazauskas said Monday that he would continue to convert state businesses to private ownership and "clear away all obstacles" to foreign investment.

But Lozoraitis said in conceding defeat he feared Brazauskas would make cosmetic changes instead of a major economic restructuring.

Lozoraitis, 68, who ran as an independent, said Brazauskas and his advisers "don't have the slightest idea what the West is."

Two stabbed in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Arab stabbed to death a man and wounded a woman today in an attack on Jews waiting at a Jerusalem bus stop, police and hospital officials said.

The 64-year-old father of the slain man suffered a head injury when he fell while trying to help fend off the attacker, hospital officials and radio reports said.

Jerusalem police commander Rafi Peled told Israel radio that the attack occurred at about 6:00 a.m. in the Jewish neighborhood of Armon Hanaziv, which borders the city's Arab district.

Moshe Mizrachi, the slain man's father, said the attacker shouted something in Arabic that he could not understand.

The assailant, described as about 25 years old, was seen fleeing toward the adjacent Arab neighborhoods of Jebel Mukaber and Sur Baher by a bus driver who fired two shots in his direction, Peled added.

"We imposed a curfew on the two (Arab) neighborhoods in order to find the assailant," Peled said, adding that extra police and a helicopter were called in to help in the search.

Curfews, employed by the army in the occupied territories, are rarely used in Jerusalem. City spokesman Shmuel Ben-Ruby said 19 Arabs were rounded up for questioning.

On Sunday night, two Israelis were shot and wounded when fired on while driving home.

Jackson may organize a national hunger strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson threatened Monday to organize a hunger strike in the United States unless the Clinton administration allows HIV-infected Haitians into this country.

Jackson, who began a personal hunger strike Sunday, emerged from a meeting with White House Chief of Staff Mack McLarty saying he supported Clinton's Haitian policy, but he wants action within a week.

He also met with Hillary Rodham Clinton and discussed his views on the nation's health care system — the focus of Mrs. Clinton's work in the west wing of the White House. Jackson came away impressed.

"It was a very good meeting in my judgment. She is sensitive to a broad range of concerns."

The civil right leader recently returned from the Guantanamo Navy base in Cuba, where he joined HIV-infected Haitians on a hunger strike to pressure Clinton to lift the ban on their entry.

He also urged Clinton to move faster to restore deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide and end a naval blockade meant to discourage mass migration from the Caribbean nation.

"I'm going to continue (the hunger strike) for at least a week and if at end of the week there has been no shift of policy, I will have to consider expanding the number of people involved," Jackson said.

He said the expanded strike could involve "other leaders and other organizations that have been involved in the process."

Clinton said last week that he wants to reverse the immigration policy that bars HIV-infected people from entering the country.

Handling of Tyson case attacked by his lawyer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A judge who kept key witnesses from testifying and blocked the introduction of important evidence allowed Mike Tyson to be wrongly convicted of rape, his lawyer argued Monday in appealing for a new trial.

"We want a new trial in which all the evidence can be presented to a jury," attorney Alan Dershowitz told a group of law students after two hours of argument before a three-judge appeals panel.

The Indiana Court of Appeals panel is not expected to rule on the request for at least two months, court officials said.

Inside the state Supreme Court chamber, where the hearing was moved to accommodate scores of reporters and spectators, Dershowitz headed a defense team that attacked Superior Court Judge Patricia J. Gifford's handling of the case.

Gifford denied a jury the necessary tools of evidence by blocking testimony from three defense witnesses and refusing jurors a chance to consider whether his accuser had consented to sex, the former heavyweight boxing champion's lawyers said.

"It is obvious if they had these tools, they would have acquitted Mike Tyson," said Nathan Dershowitz, another defense attorney and the brother of Alan.

But prosecutor Lawrence M. Reuben said there wasn't a legal basis for an appeal.

"This appeal is not about reweighing evidence, as the defense would have you do," he said.

Neither Tyson, who is serving a six-year prison term, nor his accuser, Desiree Washington, attended the hearing.

Ledyard Casino: financial colossus

■LEDYARD— At a time when many businesses in the state are cutting back, a financial colossus is rising amid the pine woods of southeastern Connecticut. A 250-member Indian tribe, the Mashantucket Pequot, is the proud proprietor of this modern-day gold mine. The tribe was on the verge of disappearing just a decade ago. Now, one year after opening a $70 million gambling casino on its Ledyard reservation, its Foxwoods High Stakes Bingo & Casino complex has become Connecticut's top tourist attraction and already is one of the biggest employers in the Northeast. The 1988 federal Indian Regulatory Gaming Act allows tribes to run the same forms of gambling already allowed in their state.

Senator Pryor rips drug companies

■WASHINGTON— Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., an outspoken critic of prescription drug costs, said Monday he will seek to repeal a major tax break for drug companies and other industries with manufacturing operations in Puerto Rico. Pryor said Section 936 of the tax code has become "nothing but a gigantic tax windfall for the pharmaceutical industry" costing the Treasury $3 billion a year. He proposed replacing it with a far less generous credit based on the actual wages the manufacturers pay workers on the island rather than their profits. The drug industry defended the tax credit, claiming its incentives account for one-third of the 900,000 jobs in Puerto Rico.

Labor unions vow to support Clinton

■BAL HARBOUR— Organized labor's top official said today unions would support President Clinton's economic proposal, but he left open the possibility that some of the proposed tax increases would meet with objections. Asked specifically whether labor would support an energy tax as part of Clinton's prescription for reducing the deficit, Lane Kirkland, president of the AFL-CIO, said unions favored the general concept of raising taxes, but he avoided commenting on an energy tax. "We know that there has to be, as well as restraint on spending, there has to be revenue coming in," he said. "Our members are prepared to pay their fair share."

Poverty threatens illegal workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of people work for cash — washing dishes, harvesting vegetables, cleaning homes and office buildings. But when they retire from the nation's underground economy, there may be no monthly Social Security check to protect them from poverty.

It's not clear how many employers fail to pay Social Security taxes for their workers, although the issue is the subject of an Internal Revenue Service study. But there are signs it is a sizeable number.

The IRS estimated in 1991 that only one-fourth of an estimated 2 million household employers filed the required tax forms for their workers.

And a Social Security Administration official told congressional investigators that 1989 data showed farm employers were at least three times as likely to report or to under-report their workers' earnings.

Experts say thousands of workers wind up in poverty when they retire because their employers failed to report some — or any — of their earnings to the government. Social Security retirement benefits are based on a worker's lifetime, reported earnings.

"There is an awful lot of cheating going on," says Dan Schuller, legislative director for the National Council of Senior Citizens. "It's scandalous."

Commerce Secretary Ron Brown and Zoe Baird, President Clinton's first nominee for attorney general, called attention to the situation when they acknowledged they had not paid Social Security taxes for their domestic help.

But other occupations — farmworkers, day-laborers, janitors, restaurant and hotel help, some construction workers — are also affected by employers who fail to pay taxes on their workers' earnings. Many are immigrants, people of color, or people who don't speak English, experts say.

"It's a class issue as well as a racial issue," Schuller says. "It's one of the messy, dirty little secrets of our society."

Under the law, an employer who pays a worker more than $50 in any quarter of the year also owes Social Security and Medicare taxes. The employer and the employee each are required to pay 7.65 percent of wages, although some employers pay the full amount.

It takes roughly 10 years in the work force to qualify for a Social Security pension, and lesser time to qualify for disability or survivor's benefits. The maximum monthly retirement benefit for an individual is $1,128 and the average check is $653.

Social Security used to pay a minimum benefit of $122 a month, but the Reagan administration and Congress eliminated that in a cost-cutting move in the early 1980s.

The biggest checks go to middle- and upper-income workers. But the benefit formula actually is skewed to provide a more generous return to low-wage workers in comparison to taxes paid.

A full-time worker who retired this year at 65 after a lifetime of minimum wage work would qualify for a monthly Social Security check of $496.

Low-income retirees or disabled workers may also qualify for Supplemental Security Income (SSI), a welfare program. But the benefits, even when combined with food stamps, often are not enough to pull someone out of poverty.

"There's no doubt about the fact that people on SSI are the poorest of the poor," says Arthur Flemming, chairman of the Save our Security Coalition. "They have to decide each day whether to spend the small amount of cash that they have for food or housing or clothing."

"Irish Impact" poster to benefit homeless

By NANCY FENOCKETTI
Business Writer

"Irish Impact," a poster whose proceeds will benefit the South Bend Center for the Homeless, will be on sale beginning Junior Parents' Weekend.

The marketing of the 22"x34" horizontal full-color poster of this past season's Penn State football game upset was the work of Molly O'Neill, outgoing student body vice-president, and its photographer, Bill Mowle, managing editor of the Dome.

For the past three years, Mowle's hobby has been taking pictures of the games. This particular one struck him as something special.

He approached O'Neill and Lou Nanni, director of the Center for the Homeless, after break with an idea. "I just showed both of them the picture and they both became very excited about the potential for the poster," Mowle said.

"The neatest thing about it is that it's pure football," said O'Neill. Unlike most Notre Dame memorabilia that focuses on a standout player, the picture of at least five Irishmen and five Nittany lions "symbolizes team effort," she said.

Mowle chose the title Irish Impact. "When you look at the poster, it sums it up in two words: it's Notre Dame, and it's a collision," said Mowle.

O'Neill approved. They didn't want it to be "anything offensive to Penn State." The title conveys that the game is a "gentlemen's rivalry," O'Neill said.

Both Mowle and O'Neill wanted the poster to be a fundraiser for the Center for the Homeless. "It's a great way to support a project that empowers people to get out of the position they're in," said Mowle.

"The Center not only feeds and clothes the homeless, but also educates the guests," said Mowle. Because it's having financial problems and "can't guarantee the amounts of donations, this will help them meet their budget," said O'Neill. Altogether, they hope to raise $50,000 for the cause.

The poster, which will cost $10 (or $15 if ordered through Center for the Homeless,) will be on sale starting this Friday in the center, student dorms and at the information desk at LaFortune. Saturday, fans can purchase posters from 12pm to 4pm in the LaFortune O'Hara lounge or at the Alumni Legacy Reception in the concourse of the JACC from 4pm to 5pm.

With Hall Presidents' Council initially financing the project, 5,000 will be released for sale this weekend. O'Neill and Mowle expect there to be demand for even more than that. According to Mowle, "early response from class council has been really positive."

Fans eager to get a glimpse of the poster full-size before this weekend can view it either in the Student Government office on the second floor of LaFortune or at a press conference this Thursday. Lou Holtz will unveil the poster at 11am at the Center for the Homeless on 813 South Michigan Ave.

Kuwait resists OPEC cartel's restraints

VIENNA, Austria (AP)— OPEC's major producers floated ideas today for ending a stalemate with Kuwait over cuts in the cartel's surging production in the spring.

Saudi Arabia's influential oil minister, Hisham Nazer, met with OPEC president Alirio Parra of Venezuela over the gridlock.

Kuwait has so far refused to go along with an effort by the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to reduce output and keep crude prices from tumbling in the spring when demand for oil falls.

The cartel's failure to get a quick agreement over the weekend caused oil prices in Asia and Europe to fall some.

"The problem is OPEC over-promised, indicating they could wrap this up very quickly," said Paul Mlotok, an energy research analyst at Morgan Stanley in New York. "So now that they haven't, people are disappointed."

Kuwait refused late Sunday to give in to demands for production restraint in the coming months. It argued that it should be exempted from cutbacks because of the billions in damage oil industry suffered under Iraqi occupation.

But Saudi Arabia, Iran, Nigeria and others contend that Kuwait must make sacrifices as well to try to get prices higher.

Some delegates appeared angry at Kuwait's insistence on special treatment. Nigerian officials said they need oil revenues as much as any because of difficult economic problems.

Prices are running more than $3 a barrel under the group's target of $21 a 42-gallon barrel. They have strengthened some in recent weeks on expectations of cutbacks.

The producers fear they could tumble even more in the spring when demand for crude dries up with warmer weather.

At the urging of Saudi Arabia, the nations agreed to pare a million barrels a day off their winter supply cap of 24.6 million barrels a day. Actual output is running about 500,000 barrels a day above that.

One delegate, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said all nations favor a new production level of 23.5 million to 23.6 million barrels a day in coming months.

"Everybody thinks that's the right ceiling — everybody without exception," he said.

But the producers cannot agree on how to share out any cuts and the cartel is under pressure to come up with a credible arrangement.

The OPEC nations have ignored so many past pledges of cutbacks that the price-setting oil markets will be doubtful about any new promises.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

First Lady Hillary Clinton oversteps her powers

The president's face graces the cover of the latest issue of "Newsweek - Hillary whatever-her-last-name-is-this-month." The reason so many of us just refer to her as "Hillary" is that it's the only name she has that she has never changed for political gain. It's the only way we can be certain we're right.

Not only is she chairing the task force on health care, which the man who was theoretically elected President says is his top domestic priority, but she apparently was also in charge of the search for attorney general (Oops!), made sure only her buddy Donna Shalala was interviewed for Secretary of Health and Human Services, and has been up on Capitol Hill meeting with key senators like some cabinet officer who actually had to be confirmed.

Shortly after the Republican convention last year, a cartoon showed a mangled pile marked "Hillary" while walking away from it were three or four elephants in black leather jackets, one of which said "Buchanan." That elephant said "she asked for it," implication being that the unkind things said about Hillary were somehow out-of-bounds and tantamount to gang rape. The official candidate struck a similar chord wondering what was the relevance of his wife's opinions on anything, accusing the Republicans of wanting to run for first lady.

No one objects to a President's wife, or a President's husband being the closest and most trusted adviser. It could hardly be otherwise, and has often made the difference on substantive decisions.

But appearances do matter and giving the President's wife an official role creates unnecessary impressions. A first lady does not even need such a role to the powerful Lady Macbeth didn't have a cabinet position. Hiring one's wife simply looks like nepotism, and the official candidate said we can't even have the appearance of impropriety - witness Kirnba Wood who broke no law. Does anyone seriously believe that if some other cabinet member wants to tell Hillary at a meeting that she's full of it, that the other secretary will be completely honest? Involving one's spouse in a professional inner circle simply asks for an extraneous set of considerations

We don't have a first lady: we have a co-president or at least a cabinet member. If Hillary was going to pick cabinet members, directly lobby Congress, etc...

Victor Morton From the Hip

then her views are as relevant as any other potential adviser, especially since Hillary would be the one administration member we knew for certain beforehand and would also be the one cabinet member he couldn't fire if she screwed up or became a public embarrassment.

A bait-and-switch has been done. The statements to stir up the Democratic activists in the primary, "we're a blue-plate special" and "if you want him, you get me," were presumably to be put aside for the general election just like "Rodham" was for an earlier election. Now safely in power, Hillary can show her true colors and has changed her surname yet again.

A pattern emerges. 'X' to get the votes; 'not-X' to govern.

Hillary has made herself and thus her likening of marriage to slavery, her contempt for full-time home-makers and the traditional family and her desire to make family authority a subject for litigation (plus whatever Freudian slips come from her mouth during the next three years- all perfectly legitimate targets).

Nor do these objections have anything to do with sexism. The husbands of women heads of government should be just as circumspect. We conservatives worship at the shrine of Margaret Thatcher (who had some unkind words for Hillary last week). I couldn't tell you a single thing about what Denis Thatcher thought about anything, and I'm not even sure I'd recognize him if he passed me on the street.

Indeed if anything, not attacking Hillary in full fury would be terribly sexist. Can't she defend herself? These are the 90's and chivalry and honor are dead. The feminists and the post-structuralists on the faculty have spent their careers debunking such patriarchal myths I was old as an undergraduate by a radical feminist literature professor that chivalry "puts women on a pedestal in order to look up their dresses" Let them have their way. No more double standards.

Hillary has also betrayed feminism. Remember back when Barbara Bush was invited to give the commencement address at Wellesley College. We were all told by the Wellesley feminist collective et al how Bush was a bad role model since she is prominent merely by virtue of whom she is married to; that she piggy-backed on her husband's success. (That charge wasn't flung at Raisa Gorbachev; but that's another story.)

Do Hillary and her supporters really think she has not profited from her husband's election victory? No one denies Hillary's competence and general qualifications to hold a cabinet post in a liberal administration on her own merit. But if Paul Tsongas or Bob Kerry had won the nomination and the election, and even if she were chosen for the cabinet, she would still have nothing like the clout she will have in this administration. There is a word for those who profit from their mating habits.

Victor Morton is a Ph.D. candidate in the Government Department.

Saint Mary's sophomore Kristy Schinderle combines studies with a career in real estate

By CASEY HALL
Accent Writer

Every once in a while, someone with initiative and desire can accomplish something out of the ordinary. Saint Mary's sophomore Kristy Schinderle, an accredited real estate agent, is a person who possesses such qualities.

Schinderle, a Business Administration major, holds a real estate license in her home town of Newaygo, Michigan at the Lyda Real Estate, Inc. office.

Schinderle explained that she became involved in real estate as a result of a summer job at the Lyda Real Estate office. Hired as a personal assistant to the office broker, Schinderle spent a lot of time writing ads, helping with the office upkeep, and talking to many of the office's clients.

There were times, Schinderle explained, that her young age and inexperience in dealing with the public made her feel naive when talking with clients.

"At times I felt ignorant on the phone as people asked me about homes they had seen, prices, or the area," she said, "and I didn't have the knowledge to answer their questions."

Schinderle's determination to become a real estate agent helped her to overcome this initial lack of knowledge. With her own funds and the support of her parents, she decided to apply for her real estate license.

"I decided to get my license just to prove to myself that I could accomplish something on my own," she said.

She enrolled in a 40-hour real estate class that "focused on the financial part of the business - how to fill out finance forms, complete the figures, and various laws."

Following the completion of the course, Schinderle took a five-hour Michigan state Real Estate exam and passed. When told of her successful completion of the exam, her boss' first words to her were, "Get to work."

Working was tough in the beginning for Schinderle, due to her lack of experience in business dealings and public communication.

"It was hard being professional in something I had no personal experience in," she said. Yet with the support of her parents, the office broker at Lyda, and her fellow agents, Kristy has developed a wide range of skills and knowledge, she said.

Despite the distance between Saint Mary's and home, Schinderle maintains close contact with her office. She explained that while her broker manages her daily business, she checks in weekly with her clients to ensure they are doing well and that they are satisfied.

Most of Schinderle's business comes from middle-aged families. "I get a lot of my business from walk-ins, telemarketing, and word of mouth," she said.

Right now Schinderle is working toward a degree in Business Administration with a concentration in finance and marketing. Schinderle hopes real estate can serve as a foundation to sales and marketing as it has helped refine her communication skills. Following graduation, she hopes to "look into the financial end of real estate and expand on the knowledge I already have."

Schinderle would like to maintain her real estate license, regardless of what she decides to do after graduation. Even though this may require additional training and funds, Schinderle believes it is well worth the financial cost. "If I wanted to," she said, "I could make my life in real estate."

'Groundhog Day': Novel concept, but length makes laughs grow old

By PETER BEVACQUA
Film Critic

Ten minutes of hopeless previews had finally ended, my overly salted popcorn was reduced to recalcitrant kernels, and my Coke was flat—and then, and then IT began.

7:16 Bill Murray (I love Bill Murray) and Harold Ramis—this film cannot fail. Their collaborations have produced such classics as "Stripes" and "Ghostbusters."

7:20 First shot of Bill Murray playing Phil Connors, a weatherman who is dissatisfied with both his occupation and society. Murray is the reigning king of physical comedy and ludicrous facial expressions. He is a contemporary version of Art Carney. He has the most hilarious role in the funniest film of all time: "Caddyshack."

I wonder if he'll be as good this time around? Murray is required to travel to Punxsutawny, Pa., with his producer, portrayed by Andie MacDowell, and their cameraman, Chris Elliott. The relationship among the three is quite humorous, and it is evident that Murray's sly remarks and ironic jokes are not appreciated by his kinder cohorts.

(out of five)

7:30 Oh, I get it...every morning he wakes up to the same day, doing that which repulses him the most—covering Groundhog Day. Each morning, at precisely 6:00 a.m., he receives a wake-up call compliments of Sonny and Cher ("I Got You Babe").

Murray must relive his personal nightmare time and time again. He uses the knowledge obtained the previous day to better his status in the community, and to sweettalk MacDowell—with his hindsight he is able to say all the right things. Interesting premise, but isn't it going to get a bit...

8:12 REPETITIVE, BORING,

GET ME THE HELL OUTTA HERE!

8:20 I awake to the familiar sight of Bill Murray, once again covering the annual festivities of Punxsutawny's Groundhog Day. That groundhog reminds me of the gopher in "Caddyshack." I laugh aloud as I recite to myself: "licensed to kill varmints." The laugh echoes resoundingly throughout the otherwise silent theater.

8:45 If I sneak out of here maybe I can catch the end of "The Vanishing." I try to propose the idea to my friends, but "visions of sugarplums" are dancing through their heads. I must, therefore, watch the film to its end. Some sequences are humorous toward the conclusion of the film.

Murray's character becomes the talk of the town—his ability to correct the mistakes of the prior day allows him to transform himself into the model citizen.

9:00 There's no way Harold Ramis has the audacity to inflict this treachery upon an audience for more than an hour and a half. This novel concept may perhaps be funny in a sitcom format. I can picture Jerry Seinfeld pulling this off—it would only be for 30 minutes, and, more importantly, it's free.

9:04 FINE (no, not "fine"—Italian for THE END).

Halleluia, get me to my car. My "friends" look at me as if I were Judas. They wanted to see "Loaded Weapon I"—they just wanted to be entertained for a couple of hours.

I won't tell them I get reimbursed.

Bulls snap home losing streak

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 32 points and the Chicago Bulls beat the Sacramento Kings 119-101 Monday, ending their three-game home losing streak.

Scottie Pippen added 26 points for Chicago, including a three-point play that capped a 9-0 run at the start of the fourth quarter, putting the Bulls ahead 94-78.

The loss was the eighth in nine games for the Kings, who were led by Wayman Tisdale and Anthony Bonner with 18 points each.

Chicago played without starting forward Horace Grant, who has a bruised back.

Jordan scored 20 points in the second quarter in helping Chicago take a 61-46 halftime lead. Bonner had 12 points in the third quarter as the Kings closed to 81-78.

Cavaliers 110, Pacers 105

Mark Price celebrated his 29th birthday with 25 points and John Williams scored four of his 23 in a four-second span late in the game as Cleveland handed Indiana its seventh consecutive loss.

The win was the Cavs' third straight and eighth in nine games, while the Pacers are in their longest losing streak since Bob Hill became head coach in 1990. Miller and Pooh Richardson each scored 24 points for the Pacers.

Heat 130, Nuggets 129

The Miami Heat, after six consecutive overtime losses this season, finally got a victory for extra work, beating Denver in double overtime on Glen Rice's two free throws with 11 seconds left.

Steve Smith had 21 points, 12 assists and 10 rebounds for the Heat — the second triple-double in franchise history — before fouling out in the second overtime.

Brian Shaw scored 23 points and Grant Long 22 for the Heat, who have gone into overtime in six of 17 games since Jan. 12. Miami had a two-point lead and the ball with 1.8 seconds left in regulation, but a turnover and a buzzer shot by Dikembe Mutombo forced the overtime.

Bucks 128, Hornets 122

Frank Brickowski scored 20 points and Milwaukee's reserves, led by rookie Jon Barry, held off a late rally against Charlotte.

Barry, getting a chance to play because of an elbow injury to Todd Day, scored a career-high 18 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter when he hit a pair of 3-pointers.

Alonzo Mourning had 29 points, 12 rebounds and six blocked shots, while Dell Curry scored 24 points for the Hornets, who had their four-game road winning streak snapped.

Curry and Kendall Gill hit back-to-back 3-pointers to bring the Hornets within two with 1:47 remaining, but Barry scored five points and Fred Roberts, another backup, had four free throws the rest of the way to keep Milwaukee in front.

Jazz 112, Timberwolves 91

Karl Malone scored 16 of his 38 points in the third period on 7-for-7 shooting as Utah continued to dominate Minnesota.

The Jazz are 3-0 this season against the Timberwolves, with an average margin of victory of 20 points.

Malone, who made 16 of 20 field-goal tries in the game, also had 12 rebounds for Utah, while Jeff Malone scored 19 points and John Stockton had 12 assists.

Chuck Person had 26 points for the Wolves, who have lost six of seven home games. Christian Laettner scored 14 of his 20 points in the second half for Minnesota.

Despite turnovers, poor shooting Tulane wins 18th

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — If a coach can be embarrassed by a victory, Tulane's Perry Clark had plenty of reason to blush.

The Green Wave knocked off Canisius 63-41 Monday night despite turning the ball over 18 times and hitting only 28 of 66 field goal attempts, including 2 of 15 3-pointers.

"Boy it wasn't pretty," Clark said. "If fact I thought we might have to send the kids home. I was worried it would be R-rated it was so ugly."

"We were just flat coming off the Louisville game," Clark said. "The kids hung in there and did what they had to do, but I don't think I've ever seen them as flat as they were."

Tulane beat Metro Conference leader Louisville 62-60 on Thursday night.

Carlin Hartman was Tulane's high scorer with 15 points, and he did it against a school from his own hometown.

"I always want to come out and play hard," said Hartman, who is from Buffalo, N.Y. "I knew the home crowd would be listening to this and that helped me get up for it. We were all tired, though."

The Green Wave (18-4) fell behind 10-2 as they failed to score a basket in the opening 5:55, but they came back to take a 33-19 halftime lead and were comfortably ahead throughout the second half.

"The ball just wouldn't go through the hoop," said LeVedro Simmons. "It was like we couldn't find it all of a sudden."

Canisius (8-14) hit only 30 percent of its field goal attempts.

Each team turned the ball over 18 times.

The first three minutes of the game signaled the type of night Tulane would have. They turned the ball over three times, picked up two fouls, missed two baskets and two free throws, prompting Clark to send in his second team — dubbed "The Posse."

The backups couldn't come up with a sharpshooter, however, and finished the half shooting under 44 percent.

Canisius, meanwhile, went through a 5:39 dry spell in which its 12-2 lead became a 19-13 deficit.

Simmons had 11 points for Tulane and Hartman had 12 rebounds.

"I don't think we'll be this flat for another game," Simmons said. "It was really frustrating."

Craig Wise led Canisius with 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Two juniors take different routes to NFL

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Wide receivers Sean Dawkins of California and Southern Cal's Curtis Conway, two juniors who decided to skip their senior year of eligibility, took different paths to the NFL.

Both were at the NFL Scouting Combine that ended Monday, but only Dawkins worked out in the Hoosier Dome for representatives of the 28 teams.

"I'm glad to have the opportunity to come in and impress people with my skills and personality," said Dawkins, who set school records for catches, receiving yards and touchdowns this past season. "For the most part, scouts haven't gotten a real good look at me and most of them haven't even seen film of me playing."

Conway, however, decided to have the scouts do their evaluating at a later date in California.

"I feel this was a good opportunity for them to get a look at me. Each player here has to make their own decision on this," Dawkins said. "Mine was to work out. But, I don't disagree with someone who decided to wait. Either way, all the teams that are interested in you will be checking us again."

Dawkins has been planning for his trip since becoming one of 37 underclassmen to declare themselves eligible for the draft in January.

"I've been running with the track coaches, working on weights and technique, everything I could possibly do," he said.

Conway said he decided to skip the workout because of a strained knee sustained in his final collegiate game.

"It's fine now, but it's just not as strong as I want it to be," said Conway, a collegiate sprinter who left the Trojans with school records for most kickoff returns (73) and kickoff return yards (1,723) — marks that had been held by Anthony Davis. "I'm going to go back home and continue to run, get my strength back up."

Conway, who has run the 40 in 4.25, averaged 16.1 yards each time he touched the ball last season and scored touchdowns four different ways — receiving, rushing, kickoff return and punt return — and also threw two scoring passes.

"My versatility, I think, makes me a valuable player. I can help a team in many ways and my speed helps me a lot," said Conway, who led USC with 49 receptions for 764 yards and had 1,822 all-purpose yards in 1992. "Once I get the ball, my vision of the field helps me a lot."

Both are expected to be early picks in the April 25-26 draft, giving depth to a position that some scouts say was weak until the juniors entered the mix.

"I don't think we compare," Conway said of Dawkins. "He's one type of receiver and I'm another. ... He's a great receiver. When we were on defense, I'd sit back and watch him. He's a great athlete. A lot of people think that he's slow, but I think he can run with the ball. The big thing is I think I'm shiftier than him."

Both are certain they made the right decision in giving up Pac-10 play for the NFL. Both are resigned to not earning as much money as recent top picks due to limits on spending on this year's draftees as part of the new labor agreement.

"I kind of knew it was going to happen. I've been following up on the info. I know the next level," Dawkins said. "I accomplished everything I could at the college level and wanted to take a step up."

SMU fires, hires football coaches

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist coach Tom Rossley fired three assistant coaches and hired four more on Monday in an off-season shakeup of the Mustangs football team.

Rossley hired Tommy Adams, defensive line, who spent the last eight seasons as an assistant at Sam Houston State; David Knaus, linebackers, who was the defensive coordinator at Appalachian State the past four years; Bill Maskill, defensive assistant, who was an assistant at Wake Forest the past three seasons; and Vincent White, receivers, the offensive coordinator at the University of the Pacific.

Dismissed were Rusty Russell, Mike Washburn and Curtis Jones. A fourth coach, Tim Lewis, defensive backs coach for the last four years, resigned to take a similar position at Pittsburgh.

"This group brings exceptional talent and experience to SMU," Rossley said. "The fact that we were able to attract such high quality coaches is a credit to our program. I'm very optimistic about our future."

SMU was 5-6 last year, including its first two conference victories since it was given the death penalty by the NCAA in 1987.

Courier tries for third title

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jim Courier tries for his third consecutive title this week, but will have to face the likes of Pete Sampras, Michael Chang and Ivan Lendl to succeed.

Courier, the world's top-ranked player, comes into the $700,000 U.S. Indoor after victories at the Australian Open and at Memphis, Tenn. There on Sunday, Courier edged Todd Martin 5-7, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (7-4) to win the Kroger-St. Jude International.

In two previous appearances in Philadelphia, Courier has not advanced past the quarterfinals.

Sampras, the No. 2 player in the world and a friend of Courier, is a two-time champion here and lost in the 1991 final to Lendl. Chang defeated both Courier and Sampras during a career-high 15-match winning streak last March that included wins at Indian Wells, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

Courier won five tournaments in the first half of last year, including the Australian and the French, but failed to win a title the rest of the year.

"I think the way he played the first six months of last year was unbelievable," Sampras said in a telephone interview last week from Tampa, Fla. "During the summer and the fall, I think he was a little bit burned out. It was tough to maintain that level of tennis the whole year."

Sampras sees himself as a more casual and easygoing player than Courier. "You can see it in his eyes," he said. "He's much more intense, much more driven."

Courier's success has a lot to do with his hard work, Sampras said. "Obviously, I still work hard," he said. "But Jim's running after his matches, practicing. I think he feels like he needs to do that just to stay on top."

Kite wins 'Just like the Cowboys'

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite found a parallel for the unprecedented scoring binge that produced his victory in the Bob Hope Classic.

"Just like the Cowboys," Kite, an Austin, Texas native and longtime supporter of the Super Bowl champions, said Sunday. "We got on a roll, then, in the fourth quarter, it was a blowout."

Even the Cowboys, however, could not match Kite's five-day scoring binge in the California desert. No one ever has.

In the 90-hole tournament spread over four resort courses, the 43-year-old U.S. Open champion had a record-breaking winning total of 325, 35 under par and four shots better than the old PGA Tour record for 90 holes.

Kite, who averaged 65 strokes a round, cited "perfect weather, immaculate courses," as contributing factors to golf's greatest scoring spree.

And, too, there was his own ability, the golf game that just keeps getting better as he moves deeper into his 40's.

"If you've got a golf game, age doesn't matter," Masters champion Fred Couples said.

And Kite very definitely has a golf game. For the five days, he scored 37 birdies and two eagles; 43 percent of the holes he played were negotiated in numbers under par.

After rounds of 67, 67, 64 and 65, he bullied the rest of the field with a closing, 10-under-par 62 that included 22 putts, a 29 over the back side, a holed 30-yard sand shot for an eagle and a birdie-birdie-birdie-birdie finish on the Arnold Palmer course at PGA West.

"I think I'm a better player than I've ever been," Kite said. "My game is getting to be what I hoped it would be 15 years ago."

"I have a confidence in my game, a new maturity. There aren't too many guys I look at and say, 'this guy is better than I am.' There aren't many. It's a short list."

Perhaps the most rewarding thing about the 18th victory of his 22-year career, Kite said, was the manner in which it was achieved.

He has a deserved reputation as a grind-it-out player, one who is at his best on the game's more difficult courses, in more difficult conditions.

His U.S. Open triumph is a case in point. He won in dreadful weather at Pebble Beach, winning at only 3-under par with only one other man breaking par for the week.

"This was the other extreme," Kite said. "I'm playing well on these easier courses, too, because I'm not afraid to shoot these low scores."

"It's not that I've changed my game or my approach to the game. I've just taken it to a different level. I'm still a conservative player."

"But now, when I get to 4-under par, I want to get to 5. When I get to 5-under, I want to get to 6."

And this time he got to a number no one else has ever achieved: 35.

The victory, by a six-shot margin, was worth $198,000 from the total purse of $1.1 million. It moved him into the top spot on the year's money-winning list at $292,361.

It also put the game's all-time money-winning leader within reach of the $8 million plateau. He now has $7,905,279.

Jarrett wins one his father didn't

For Dale Earnhardt, it was another Daytona 500 to forget.

Jarrett battled in the lead pack of cars over the final 27 green-flag laps Sunday and outdueled Earnhardt, a five-time NASCAR champion and one of its fiercest competitors. Earnhardt did everything but win — again.

By denying Earnhardt, Jarrett put a big smile on the face of his father, two-time NASCAR champion and now CBS commentator Ned Jarrett.

Ned Jarrett called the final lap as his son took the checkered flag that he — like Earnhardt — never got in NASCAR's most prestigious event.

"Super job there, Dale. I tell you, I'm really proud of you," Ned Jarrett told his son over a network headset.

The son thanked his father and advised him that Ned's near-miss when he ran out of gas while leading the 1963 Daytona 500 with two laps remaining had been avenged.

"You came so close ..." Dale said. "I got this one for you and all the family."

Jarrett gave Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs his first victory as a NASCAR team owner to open the team's second year. Jarrett's only other Winston Cup victory came in 1991 with another team.

Jarrett was running third and Geoff Bodine fourth with two laps left when Jarrett took matters into his own hands. He passed rookie Jeff Gordon on lap 199 and went after Earnhardt.

Jarrett caught Earnhardt and the Chevrolet drivers battled side-by-side, touching briefly and reaching the start-finish line for the last lap in a dead heat.

"You race Dale Earnhardt like he races you," Jarrett said. "I felt like there'd be nothing less than a slight tap coming."

Jarrett edged in front and pulled away on the backstretch. Earnhardt couldn't catch him.

The difference was less than two car-lengths and a winner's purse of $238,200 for Jarrett to $181,825 for Earnhardt, now winless in 15 Daytona 500 starts despite eight top-five finishes.

Earnhardt led 11 times for 107 of the 200 laps while Jarrett led three times for eight laps. The official margin of victory was 0.19 seconds.

"We've lost this race about every way you can lose it," said Earnhardt, who has finished out of the top 10 only four times in this race. "We've been out-gassed, out-tired, outrun, out-everythinged."

"We've come close, but we've not won it about every way you can't win it. I guess all that's left to do now is to come back next year and try to win it any way we can."

He said Jarrett had the strongest engine.

"I was hoping he couldn't get past Bodine and Gordon and some of those other guys," Earnhardt said.

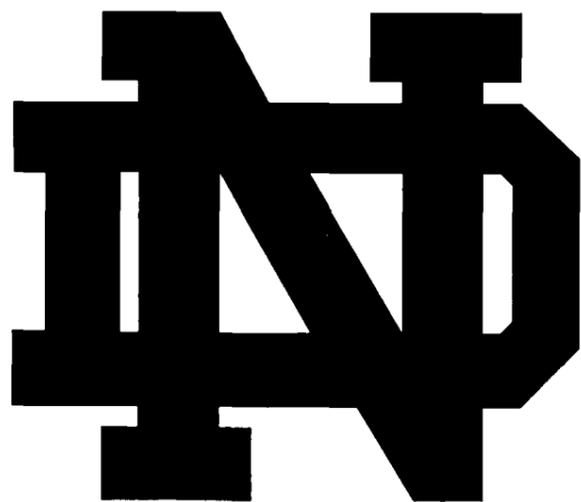

Geoff Bodine finished third and Hut Stricklin fourth in Fords, followed by Gordon in a Chevy.

Gordon, 21, on Thursday had become the youngest driver and second rookie ever to win a Daytona qualifying race. He tucked in behind Earnhardt as both passed Jarrett on lap 179 and stayed there until the winner's move.

Into the last lap Gordon chose to go behind Earnhardt.

"Nine out of 10 times, the right one would be to go with Dale (Earnhardt)," Gordon said. "It didn't work out."

Earnhardt's move for position on lap 157 effectively weeded out some of his toughest competition. Until then, any of about a dozen cars seemed in the thick of the race.

Signings and arbitration lead to spring training

Reds work through arbitrations

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds went to a salary arbitration hearing Monday with All-Star infielder Bip Roberts, hoping to limit the pay raise he receives this season.

At the hearing Monday in Chicago, Roberts asked the arbitrator for $3.9 million, up from his $1.55 million of last season. The Reds said they would pay him $2.7 million.

Under baseball's rules, the arbitrator chooses either the team's figure or the player's. It can take several days for the arbitrator's decision to be announced.

Starting pitcher Tim Belcher, the only other Reds player awaiting salary arbitration, is scheduled for his hearing Thursday in Chicago. That is the same day that Reds pitchers and catchers are scheduled to report to spring training in Plant City, Fla.

Belcher asks for $4 million, up from $2.1 million last season. The Reds offer $3.3 million. He had a 15-14 record and 3.91 earned run average last year with a career-high 34 starts.

Roberts, in his first season with Cincinnati last year, made the All-Star team for the first time in his career. He started games at four positions: left field, center field, second base and third base.

Roberts is expected to be the starting second baseman this season, since the Reds traded Bill Doran to Milwaukee and obtained outfielders Roberto Kelly and Kevin Mitchell during the offseason.

Jim Gantner (center) moved closer to retirement as Milwaukee named him a coach for Spring training.

Gantner listed as coach for spring

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran infielder Jim Gantner, who's been with the Milwaukee Brewers for 15 years, moved near retirement Monday when the team announced he would go to spring training as a coach.

Gantner, 39, had off-season surgery to repair a right rotator cuff injury, and will report to spring training in Chandler, Ariz., when he is able to throw.

The Brewers said Gantner will be a coach but could also be used as a player in an emergency, if the shoulder heals properly. The team's release did not say Gantner had retired.

Gantner is the American League's all-time leader in fielding percentage for a second baseman at .992.

"He will work with the club during the season and also be available for special assignments. At the same time, he will stay in shape and be available in case of an emergency," general manager Sal Bando said in a statement.

"I think it's a great opportunity to go to spring training with some options," Gantner said. "Not being able to currently play, I am appreciative of the option to coach. A lot of players who get out of the game have nothing to fall back on."

Royals resign Montgomery

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Relief pitcher Jeff Montgomery agreed Monday to a three-year contract worth $11 million with the Kansas City Royals.

Montgomery had 39 saves for the Royals last season. The contract also includes an option year.

Montgomery, 31, received $2.46 million last season. He had asked for $4.3 million a year and the Royals had offered $3.25 million. He was the last Kansas City player to settle with the club.

He recorded 39 saves in 46 opportunities with a 2.18 ERA last year. His 39 saves were the third highest in club history — trailing Dan Quisenberry's 45 saves in 1983 and 44 in 1984.

Penguins still successful without Lemieux

PITTSBURGH (AP) — OK, so the Pittsburgh Penguins won't go undefeated after the All-Star game, and they'll even allow some goals. No matter their 37-15-5 record and league-leading 79 points, they're not perfect after all.

But if the rest of the NHL hoped to capitalize on Mario Lemieux's illness to gain parity with the Penguins, they've received a thousand-volt jolt.

With Lemieux, the Penguins are the two-time defending Stanley Cup champions. Without Lemieux, the Penguins are a team that could contend for yet another cup, as their 8-3-1 record in their last 12 games would indicate.

"What they're doing says a lot for them — and doesn't bode well for the rest of us," Chicago Blackhawks defenseman Keith Brown said.

That fact hasn't been lost on general manager Craig Patrick, who's usually ready about this time of the season to pull off a trade. He did it two years ago by dealing for Ulf Samuelsson in early March; he did it last February by trading for Rick Tocchet.

If Patrick makes another pre-playoffs trade this season, don't look for it to include headline names. The Penguins' 9-6-1 record without Lemieux and recent club-record scoreless streak signify these Pens are a championship-caliber team even without the league's best player.

"This team has too much talent not to win," said goaltender Tom Barrasso, who may be having his best NHL season despite a month-long bout with chickenpox. "There are way too many perfectionists in this room to accept mediocrity."

Check the standings: the Penguins are 17 points ahead of second-place Washington in the Patrick Division. Check the defense: their goals-against average is down more than a goal per game from a year ago. Check the intangibles.

Last season, the Pens were barely above mediocre in the regular season before eliminating the NHL's two best-record teams — Washington and the New York Rangers — in the opening two rounds of the playoffs.

Even two years ago, when they won their first regular-season division championship, the Penguins didn't transform themselves into Stanley Cup contenders until late in the season.

College coaches meet, discuss protesting Campanelli firing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The board of directors of the National Association of Basketball Coaches met by phone for 1 1/2 hours Monday, talking about how and whether to protest the firing of California coach Lou Campanelli.

With a 10-7 record and a young, promising team, Campanelli was unexpectedly dismissed last week.

"Our hope at this time is to issue a statement Tuesday," Jim Haney, NABC executive director, said. "This firing of coaches at mid-season is an issue that we have to address. There have been four so far this year in Division I, and we understand two more have not been announced."

"In this particular case, there are a couple of bases left for us to touch before we say anything."

The NABC is powerless to stop the firing of coaches, who answer to the chief executive officer at each school. But the coaches' group, trying to take a more active, public role, could bring embarrassment with its command of widespread media attention.

"We're very sensitive to the fact that the presidents have the authority to make decisions, whether we like the decisions or not," Haney said. "We're trying to get a sense for what happened and how it happened and develop an appropriate response. The broader issue of coaches being fired in-season is a great concern."

Campanelli, who signed point guard Jason Kidd, one of the most highly sought prospects in the nation last year, won 19 or more games in four of his first five seasons.

"The biggest thing we're in total agreement on is that the guy wasn't given any hearing before they fired him," said Iowa State coach Johnny Orr, president of the NABC. "On the 24th of January he got a phone call from the chancellor congratulating him on the good job he was doing. He got a letter from the guy who fired him saying good job, keep it up. Then two weeks later they fire the guy."

Hrudey's 43 saves help snap King's 7 game losing streak

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Slumping goalie Kelly Hrudey was at his acrobatic best with 43 saves and Jari Kurri triggered a three-goal third period Monday as the Los Angeles Kings ended a seven-game winless streak with a 3-0 victory over Vancouver.

NHL capsules

The NHL's second-most productive offense was blanked for the first time since losing consecutive shutouts in December 1991 at Edmonton and Quebec. It was the second shutout by Hrudey this season and the 15th of his career, and it snapped a personal five-game winless streak.

The Kings had allowed 29 goals in their last three games.

After Vancouver's Kirk McLean stopped the Kings' first 27 shots, Los Angeles scored all three goals in less than five minutes for its first victory since Jan. 26 against San Jose.

Kurri snapped the scoreless tie at 4:42 with his 23rd goal, tying Bryan Trottier for 14th place on the career goal-scoring list at 520. Jimmy Carson and Tony Granato also scored.

Rangers 4, Blues 1

Ed Olczyk and Alexei Kovalev scored second-period break-away goals and John Vanbiesbrouck made 34 saves. The victory moved the Rangers, 1-5-2 in their previous eight games, a point ahead of the New Jersey Devils into third place in the Patrick Division. The Devils have played three fewer games.

The Blues, 6-2-2 in their previous 10 games, had won three straight road games and were 6-1-0 in their last seven away from home.

But St. Louis wasted valuable minutes on the power play during the third period. Only 59 seconds into the final period, Rangers defenseman James Patrick received a five-minute major penalty for high sticking Craig Janney.

The Blues managed just one shot during the first 4:01 of the advantage before Doug Crossman was called for elbowing, evening the sides.

Sabres 7, Penguins 4

Pat LaFontaine moved into a tie with Mario Lemieux for the NHL's scoring lead with a three-point game in Buffalo's victory over Pittsburgh.

LaFontaine scored a goal and added two assists to increase his point total to 104, the same as Lemieux, the Penguins' superstar currently undergoing treatment for Hodgkin's Disease.

Alexander Mogilny added to his league goal-scoring lead with his 55th and 56th (empty net) of the season, while the Sabres also got two goals from Wayne Presley and single scores from Grant Ledyard and Yuri Khmylev. Mogilny tied the club record for goals in a season set by Danny Gare in 1979-80.

Maple Leafs 6, North Stars 5

Todd Gill's second goal of the game broke a tie with 40 seconds left in the third period as Toronto rallied from a three-goal deficit to beat Minnesota.

Doug Gilmour, just off a six-assist performance against the North Stars Saturday night in a 6-1 Toronto victory, scored the tying goal and added two assists as the Maple Leafs swept a home-and-home series to move within four points of Minnesota for third place in the Norris Division.

Mike Modano had two goals and an assist for the North Stars, and Mark Osborne scored twice for Toronto.

The Maple Leafs trailed 5-3 entering the third period, but outshot Minnesota 13-3 and scored three times in the period.

Bruins 3, Lightning 3

Steve Leach scored at 14:22 of the third period to help Boston tie Tampa Bay. Adam Oates recorded his 100th assist for Boston.

Tampa Bay took its third lead of the game at 3-2 just before the end of the second period on Chris Kontos' 27th goal.

But Leach flipped a shot past Young, who had just knocked away a wrist shot from Gord Roberts to tie the score. It was Leach's 19th goal.

Red Wings 5, Blackhawks 3

Steve Yzerman scored three goals and added two assists Sunday night as the Detroit Red Wings beat Chicago 5-3 to move within three points of the first-place Blackhawks in the Norris Division.

It was Yzerman's third hat trick of the season and 18th of his career. He now has 44 goals.

Yzerman's 43rd goal, and second of the game, broke a 3-3 tie at 15:39 of the second period. Standing just outside the crease, the Blackhawks overloaded with four defenders along the right boards and Yves Racine was able to get a pass off to Yzerman, who poked the puck by Eddie Belfour Yzerman gave Detroit a two-goal margin at 15:07 of the final period on a breakaway, nailing a 22-footer from the top of the right faceoff circle.

Yzerman's five points enabled him to close within six of reaching the 1,000 point mark.

After Nicklas Lidstrom scored at 6:12 of the second period, the Blackhawks pulled even at 11:38 when Brian Noonan deflected in Chris Chelios' 50-foot slapshot from the right point.

Yzerman's first goal, his fifth shorthander of the season at 16:34 of the first period, made it 2-1 Detroit.

Detroit took a 3-1 lead on Racine's goal at :58 seconds of the second period, but the Blackhawks scored twice in the span of 33 seconds to tie the score on goals by Steve Larmer, his 32nd, and Stephane Matteau.

The Red Wings are 5-1-2 in their last eight games.

players put points on the board. And where the Belles' bench would have come to the rescue, they only contributed two points, eight rebounds and one assist.

"We weren't mentally into the game. Our bench was low on points," said Wood "and this was the first time we had trouble shooting."

Taubenheim had 18 points while Crowley had the same amount along with two three-pointers. Forward Holmes chipped in with 14 points.

"Carrol played a great game of basketball. They played like I wished we played," said Coach Wood.

Saint Mary's did have nine steals and 12 turnovers but Carrol's turnovers were also low and they had eight steals. But Carrol's balanced attack was most impressive. They had six players in double figures.

"We've got three games left. We have to step up a level to win those games, and it can be done," said Wood.

The Belles can still set a new record for winning the most games in a season by winning two of their last three games, according to Coach Wood.

Practice on Monday was short and intense. According to Wheeler, the team needs to talk to each other more on court.

"We need to acknowledge each other's contributions," she said.

Peterson is running her way into the record books

Notre Dame can boast a large number of stellar athletes, but the most impressive is not too well known. First of all, she is a female athlete and secondly, she is on the track team.

Erica Peterson is a new addition to the Irish track team and what an addition she has been. She has turned heads in every indoor meet and she is rewriting the record books. The freshman sprinter has four years to run at the collegiate level and then she will most definitely move into the international arena.

In her first three meets here, Peterson has been more than impressive. At the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Indoor Championships, Peterson ran in five events—four individual races and one relay. The speedy freshman took the title in four of those events, namely, the 55 meter hurdles, the 200 meter dash, 400 meter dash, and the 4 x 440 relay and set new conference records in the 200 and the 400.

In the three individual events, Peterson finished several meters ahead of her competition while in the relay Peterson ran the anchor leg and came from behind to finish well ahead of the next team.

Ironically, Peterson as her own team would have placed fourth in the meet. For her performance, she was named Newcomer of the Meet and Athlete of the Meet.

In her second collegiate competition, the Mevo Invitational, Peterson set a Notre Dame indoor record in the 400 meters en route to another first place finish. Versatile as well as quick, Peterson ran the 800 meter race and took second place last weekend at the Ball State Invitational.

A member of the Canadian National Track team, Peterson also has some experience running at the international level. At the Junior World Championships in Seoul, Korea in the fall, Peterson won the silver medal in the 400 meter hurdles and contributed to a seventh place 4 x 400 relay team making her first trip to the meet a successful one.

One of Canada's top young hurdlers, Peterson, tried out for the Barcelona Olympics. She finished first in her heat, but stumbled on a hurdle in the finals. This lady is fast.

The outdoor track season will be starting soon and Peterson will be a runner to watch. She will undoubtedly add to the accolades she has accumulated this winter.

But, Notre Dame track is just the beginning. After four years here, the runner will be headed to Atlanta. Barring any unforeseen circumstance, Peterson will be competing against the world's elite in the 1996 Summer Olympics.

Time off has not affected SMC's Northup

By BETH REGAN
Sports Writer

Katie Northup

Katie Northup is fired up and ready to roll. Northup, a Saint Mary's sophomore from Holy Cross Hall, returned to swimming after a three year hiatus last season and finally feels that she is at her best swimming distances. Katie swims the mile, the 1000 free, the 500 free and the 200 fly.

Following in her aunt Mary T. Maher's footsteps, Northup began swimming in a summer league at the early age of four. She went on to swim year round for Lakeside Swim Club of Louisville, Kentucky at the age of 10.

Northup continued swimming competitively for five years with Lakeside, but quit the sport after her freshman year of high school.

"Teams that I swam for in the past have been very individualistic and very competitive. Saint Mary's has never been that way. The people on the team have always supported me and made me feel like part of a family," commented Northup.

After quitting, Northup wanted nothing to do with swimming. Like many participants of demanding individualistic sports, Northup experienced burn out.

"I didn't want to have anything to do with it for a while," said Northup, "I didn't begin to miss it until the end of my senior year."

Northup decided to go out for Saint Mary's swim team her freshman year.

"I had no idea what to expect after leaving the sport for so long. I just wanted to have fun my first year back."

It was not until this season that Northup decided to get serious. After returning to Louisville last summer she saw many of her old team mates that had swimming scholarships to class A schools.

"They really inspired me to come back strong," said Northup.

Northup has been training hard all season. She continued practicing seriously with a club in Louisville over Thanksgiving and Christmas breaks.

"Katie has dropped significant time off every event she has swum since Christmas break," said Belle's coach Dennis Cooper.

Northup has come close to breaking the mile, 1000, and 500 freestyle record at Saint Mary's College. She'll have another opportunity to do this next weekend at the Liberal Arts Invitational.

Belles drop two games over weekend

By NICOLE MCGRATH
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The Saint Mary's basketball team lost heart, on the road, this past Valentine's weekend as they dropped two games to Beloit College and Carrol College.

These two losses were the Belles' last chance at qualifying for the NCAA tournament. What is usually a given for Saint Mary's remained out of reach all weekend for them.

"This was not the team I was used to seeing this season," said Coach Marv Wood.

Beloit's buccaneers 64-48 victory over the Belles on Saturday extended their winning streak to eight. Saint Mary's did much to help them retain that streak.

The Belles racked up a total of 28 turnovers while the Buccaneers had only 19, and Saint Mary's could not convert those turnovers.

"It was a matter of sharpness. We did not make good choices, forced some things and it went into their hands," said guard/forward Mollie Wheeler.

The Buccaneers capitalized off of the Belles' mistakes by having 13 steals. On top of that, Beloit monopolized the charity line by hitting 12 of 17 free throws. Saint Mary's was only five of six chances at the line.

"I'm not sure what it was. Our enthusiasm was down," said Wheeler.

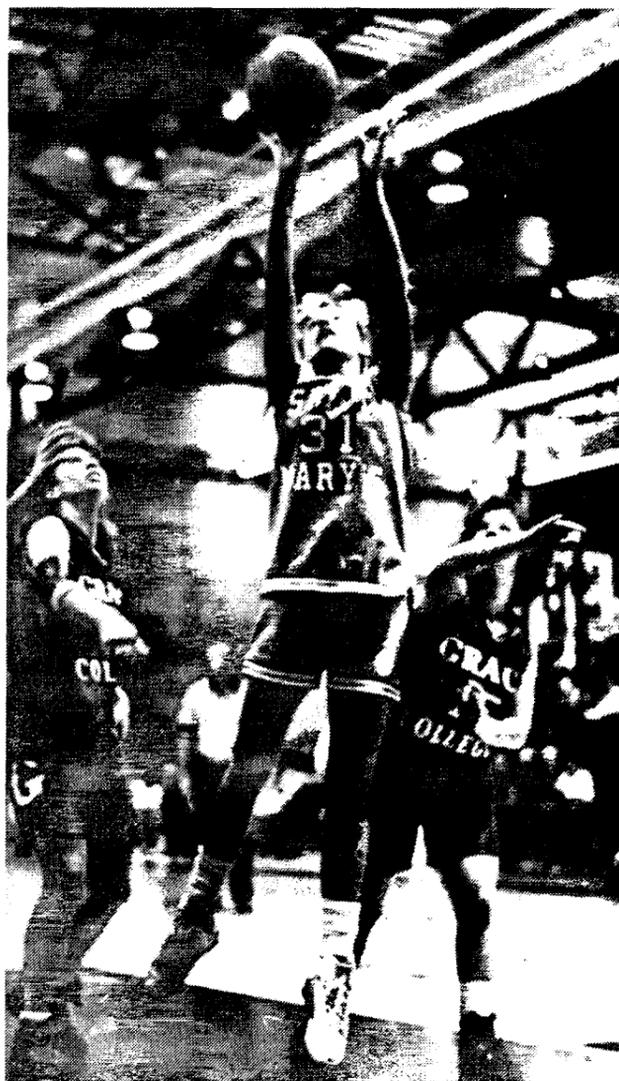

Usually Saint Mary's has a sure thing in Jennie Taubenheim or Kristen Crowley who nail their shots and keep the Belles' chances alive in the second half. The sure thing could not be found at Carroll College.

Forward Taubenheim made 8 of 20 field goals while guard Crowley found only 5 of 17 shots. Crowley make her signature mark by sinking three treys.

"Kim Holmes, Crowley and Taubenheim played well for us but most of us were sluggish," said Wood.

Sluggish ballplay extended to Sunday's game against Carrol, as well. Carrol slammed Saint Mary's, 81-56.

Except for Wheeler having two points, only three Saint Mary's see HOOPS/page 18

Men's volleyball sweeps Loyola for victory

By KEVIN DOLAN
Sports Writer

The Irish men's volleyball team rolled to a 3-0 victory over a decimated Loyola-Chicago team in The Pit last night. It was a match that outside hitter Pat Madden and coach Jen Slosar both agreed was easy because of Loyola mistakes and injuries.

"Losing your setter in the first game tends to screw up your offense," Madden said. "We knew we were pretty well set after that."

The Irish won 17-15, 15-7 and 15-5 over a thin, grumpy Loyola squad that often seemed more concerned about the officiating than running their plays. They had several service errors and lost two points to violations in their lineup, and the whole team just never seemed to start playing.

Still, the Irish had trouble putting Loyola away in game 1. The old problem of passing haunted the Irish once again, and was accentuated by the absence of setter Won Suh, who had a job interview.

Assistant coach Dan Kavanaugh, who retired as a player in the preseason due to outside commitments, donned a jersey to replace Suh, and the adjustment was difficult in the first game.

"Dan runs a different kind of offense than Won," said club captain Brian Ceponis. "Won spreads the offense around a little more, while Dan sets it up to the outside most of the time."

Tom Kovats and Matt Strotzman were solid in game 1, but Loyola took advantage of the adjustment problems to force it to 17-15. However, the dream of a Loyola victory ended with the injury to Loyola's setter early in that game.

Games 2 and 3 were both cakewalks for the Irish, with Kovats and Strotzman combining on spikes and aces in game 2 as the Irish ran up a 14-3 lead, winning 15-7 in the end.

Game 3 saw more liberal substitution by the Irish, as the stress of losing badly began to cost Loyola. Subs Miguel Ascencion and Tim Regan entered about midway through the game, and combined for 3 kills and an ace by Regan as the Irish won 15-5.

"Our passing could have been better in game 1, but after that we started mixing up the offense, which helped a lot," said Madden. Ceponis agreed, adding that "A quick, painless victory is nice to have."

"It was nice to get the subs in," added Slosar. Both Ascencion and Regan played well, debunking the myth that the Irish bench is weak.

Another factor in the Irish win was the vocal crowd. One spirited individual in particular seemed to rattle the Loyola squad. Loyola often looked disgustedly at the small but loud band of Irish supporters, who were into the match from start to finish.

"We really appreciated the crowd support," said Madden. "It gives The Pit more of a home-court atmosphere and fires us up. We always play better with a loud crowd."

The Irish take on the tough Sycamores at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday.
