Connolly wins '94 ticket; others to face run-off

By NANCY DUNN
News Writer

Class elections yesterday yielded a victory for the Dan Connolly ticket for the senior class and a run-off in the sophomore and junior class races.

Connolly, with Vice President Maura Cavanagh, Treasurer David Genel and Secretary Megan Junius, will continue to represent the class of 1994. The ticket won 63.7 percent of the vote and a majority of 20 of the 26 dorms.

A run-off will be held Wednesday between the junior class tickets of Bryan Corbett (37.1 percent of the vote) and Ira Wade (21.2 percent) and the sophomore tickets of Michaela Kendall (42.1 percent) and Tim Glenister (36.2 percent).

Students can vote in their dorms between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m. Off-campus students can vote at the LaFortune Information Desk at the same times.

"It is a great honor to have our classmates feel that we have served them well and that they have faith in us to continue in the same manner for the next year," said Connolly.

"We are pleased that our class had enough confidence in us to re-elect us and we are excited to have a great senior year," said Junius. "We are looking forward to continuing all the projects that we have already started," added Genel.

In the junior class race, the third-place Mike McEvilly ticket objected to the results, arguing that Grace Hall ran out of ballots at 6:15 p.m. and judicial board members turned voters away. The ticket took 20.9 percent of the votes, four votes behind the second place Wade ticket.

McEvilly said his ticket will not appeal the decision in order to allow the election to proceed.

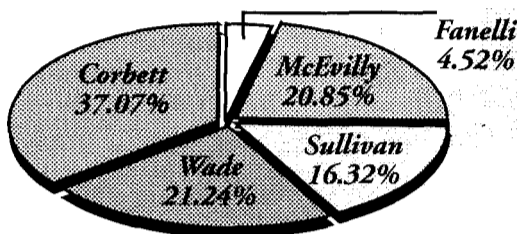

"The election process was run poorly," McEvilly said. "It's the responsibility of the j-council to let them (j-board members) know what they should do."

The dorm's j-board members were told through their judicial council presidents that they had the authority to create makeshift ballots, according to Judicial Council President Pete Castelli.

GSU revamps elections

By JASON WILLIAMS
News Writer

Major overhauls in the Graduate Student Union's (GSU) constitution last fall have resulted in major changes in election proceedings for GSU officers this spring.

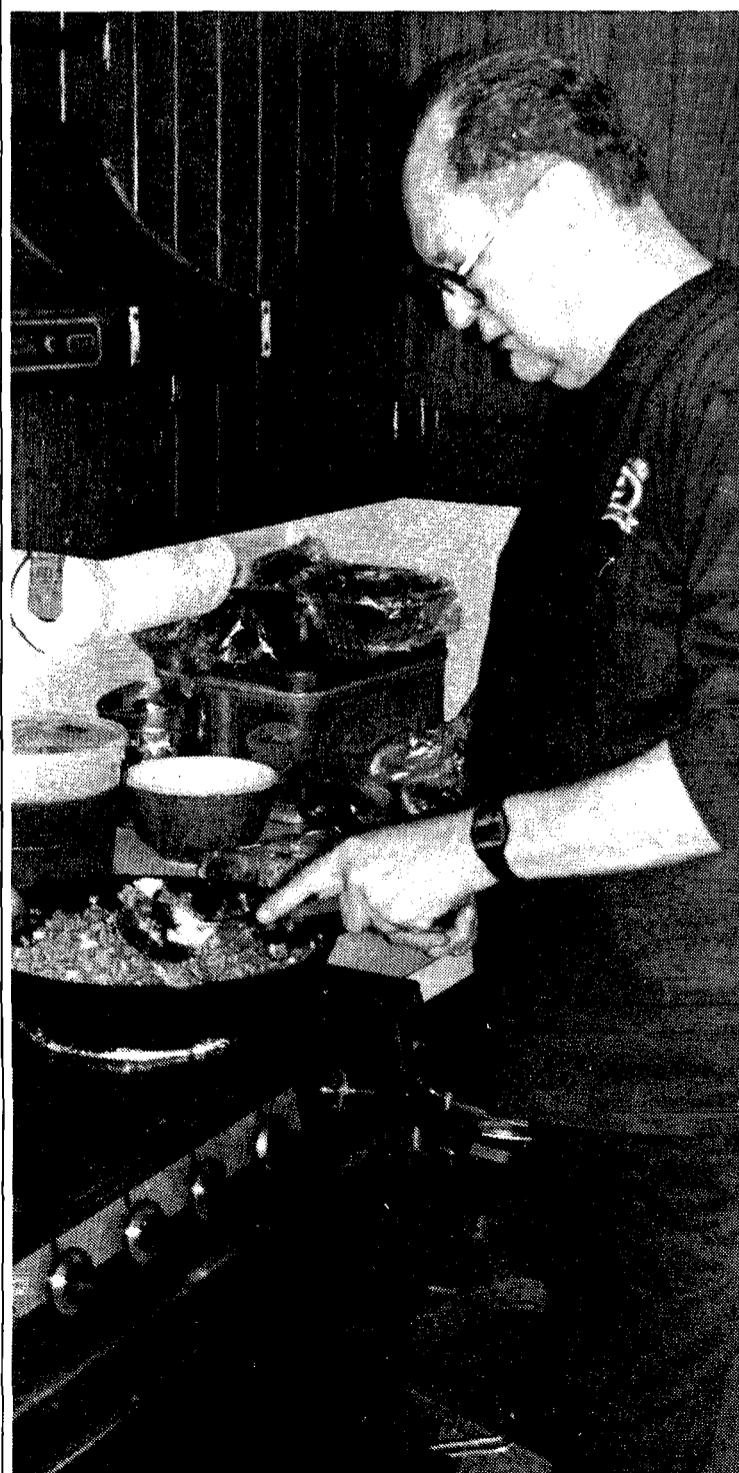

The most outstanding changes include mail-in voting ballots and split tickets for the positions of president and vice president. Prior to this year, students could only run on double tickets and a singular voting booth in Hesburgh Library was the only location available for students to cast their ballots.

The new election procedures were prompted by an attempt to increase graduate student involvement on campus, according to Ulick Stafford, Chairman of the GSU Elections, Credentials and Procedures (ECP) Committee.

"There were a lot of times when we had students interested in running for a position, but they could not find anyone to run with them," Stafford said. "The opinion of the committee was that we should have two tickets. This way we will hopefully have a more varied pool of candidates."

Although the voting booth in Hesburgh will still be available to graduate students on election day, mail-in ballots will be circulated in the Graduate Student Newsletter, a periodical sent to all graduate students.

"In the past, the elections have drawn only 15 to 20 percent of the students," Ulick said. "By sending ballots in the

'Carte Blanche' adds meal hours at SMC

By LAURA FERGUSON
News Writer

To better accommodate the needs of Saint Mary's students, Marriott Food Services recently announced plans to open the dining hall for 12 hours per day, beginning in the fall of 1993.

The new serving hours will run from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on weekdays. Weekend hours have not yet been determined but they plan to extend them also. This new program, called "Carte Blanche," will include unlimited service for students throughout the day. Students may come in more than once per meal, according to Liz Bohlke, Dining Hall Director. The new plan will avoid scheduling conflicts and the current need for the box lunch program for students who attend class during dining hall hours.

It was put into action by the Marriott corporation, the RHA food committee, and the administration. Suggestions from the student suggestion board, which asked for longer serving hours, were also used.

It is unsure if there will be a cost increase for food services as a result of this change. However, Bohlke feels that this plan will give students the best value for their money.

A change in the number of meal plans would have been too expensive for students, according to Bohlke. She said that the past system was a 19 meal per week plan. But the cost is based on a cost for less than 19 meals, accounting for the price of missed meals.

"We feel that the Carte Blanche program will improve the value and convenience for students.

campaign allotment during this period.

Elections Committee Co-chair Andrea Sullivan said the elections went smoothly and generated a lot of interest on campus.

We did consider changing the meal plan again but we felt that this was the best option for students and the school."

A general operations schedule of dining hall service includes the following:

- full breakfast from 7 to 9 a.m., breakfast items grilled to order;
- pastries and juices from 9 to 10:15 a.m.;
- beverages only from 10:15 to 10:45;
- 10:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. deli, traditional, specialty formats, grill, desserts, and salad bar;
- 1:15 to 3:45 grill, deli, and salad bar;
- beverages only from 3:45 to 4:15;
- 4:15 to 6:15 deli, self-serve traditional, one specialty format, grill, dessert, and salad bar;
- 6:15 to 7 p.m. grill, salad bar, and deli.

Another change is that a grill and fryers will be put on line three to enable students to have breakfast, grill sandwiches, and burgers to order.

According to Bohlke, this program was implemented by Marriott at other college campuses, including Denison University in Ohio, and they have been very successful.

Because the dining hall will be open additional hours, these changes will affect the student work-study program.

"The number of hours will increase but we won't know where to make the adjustments until we actually open up in the fall. We will most likely have to restructure schedules," said Scott Pearson, dining hall manager.

The mystery and meaning of the tanning salon

This last weekend I participated in a national phenomenon: I paid money to be exposed to radiation.

Since I will be exposed to the merciless South Padre Island sun for a few days of my Spring Break, a friend of mine convinced me that going to a tanning salon was in my best interests. Let me recount a little of my harrowing experience.

Mark Krejci
Business Copy
Editor

The radiation distributors first ask you how susceptible you are to burning. I stretched the truth a little, "Oh, I don't really burn that easily." From that answer and a little questionnaire the young woman who worked there determined what dose of radiation would be adequate for me—two minutes.

She gave me a pair of goggles that made me look like Spiderman with long hair, and then led me into a dimly lit dressing room. Here she instructed me how to correctly microwave myself: "Once in the booth, rotate to get even exposure, make sure to wear your goggles, and flip this switch when you're ready to enter the 'booth.'"

They don't flip the switch for you. The radiation exposure is completely self-induced.

The tanning booth is similar in size to a telephone booth with long cylindrical tubes on the walls which light up green or purple.

All I could think of was radioactive materials like those in Homer Simpson's workplace.

I undressed, flipped the switch, hesitatingly entered the radioactive telephone booth, and shut the door. I could hear the swizzling of the lamps as my heart raced.

As I rotated my body in a similar way as a microwave rotisserie, I tried to stay calm. The two minutes seemed an eternity. What if the lamps didn't shut off in two minutes? What if I were locked in? I would surely be a human chicken nugget.

The experience made me think of the price of trying to live up to societal image of what is desirable. Being tan is considered desirable, yet there is a general consensus in the medical community that there is no such thing as a safe tan, since exposure to UV rays (from the sun or lamps) can lead to premature aging of skin and skin cancer.

Have you ever seen middle-aged men and women whose skin now has the texture of worn leather from tanning every year?

Nevertheless, people will continue to tan as long as it is considered an ideal of beauty and desirability.

In fact, Time magazine estimates that tanning salons are a $300-million a year business. And all because tan is beautiful.

Why is tan beautiful? Why aren't people satisfied with their natural skin color? Is my wanting to be tan tantamount to Michael Jackson wanting to be white (barring the rare skin disease theory)?

It is ironic that being tan is desirable when people who have naturally darker skin face discrimination.

My friend's probably right that I'm going to burn in South Padre. Maybe I'll wear long sleeves and jeans at the beach. I'm sure I'll meet lots of people that way.

Gas tank explodes; eight injured

■ ACAPULCO, Mexico — An apparently leaking gas tank exploded Monday, blasting debris more than 1,600 feet and injuring at least eight people, officials said. The blast also damaged cars and homes. Firemen in this Pacific coast resort city had gone to investigate a reported leak when the 130-gallon tank exploded, said Fire Department Cmdr. Jaime Espinosa Flores. Eight people were treated for burns, most of them not serious, a Red Cross spokeswoman said. At least seven homes were damaged. About 500 families were evacuated. The accident occurred in a poor neighborhood overlooking Acapulco Bay, far from the city's main beach-side tourist area, Espinosa said.

Jury chosen in Sudafed tampering

■ SEATTLE — A jury was selected Monday for the trial of a man charged in the drug-tampering deaths of two people and the near-fatal poisoning of his wife. Opening statements were set for Tuesday in the trial of Joseph Meling, 31, of Tumwater. He allegedly put a cyanide-filled capsule into a Sudafed package in February 1991 in a scheme to kill his 29-year-old wife, Jennifer, for $700,000 in life insurance money. He also is charged with poisoning packages of the decongestant in stores to make it appear a random killer was at work. Two people died after taking tainted Sudafed capsules, leading to a nationwide recall.

Hostage team among FBI's elite

■ WASHINGTON — Members of the FBI's Hostage Rescue Team, thought to have been sent to Texas to help in the standoff between cult members and law officers, belong to an elite group of agents trained for crisis situations. "They perform traditional special weapons and tactics, raid planning and execution and they work things like aircraft hijackings" FBI spokesman Nestor Michnyak said. They were sent to John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York on Feb. 11 when a man hijacked a plane from Germany to the United States. A federal law-enforcement official who spoke on condition of anonymity said the FBI had dispatched a team Monday to Waco, Texas, where four federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents and two members of a religious cult were killed. Michnyak declined to confirm that, saying, "I'm not sure whether they're down there. They may have been alerted."

HPC prepares 'buy' and 'bail'

By COLLEEN KNIGHT
News Writer

Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will be able to "buy" the services of famous Notre Dame personalities and other students will be "arrested" or held for bail to raise money for the Beeler-Hipp Memorial Scholarship Fund, according to Lewis Hall co-president Heather Arnold.

Arnold and other members of the Hall Presidents' Council (HPC) are now finalizing plans and administering sign-ups for the upcoming events, Buy a Domer and Bail a Domer.

"Buy a Domer" is the name for the annual HPC auction that has featured such famous Domers as Rocket Ismail, University President Father Edward Malloy, and Lou Holtz, while "Bail a Domer" is a new event that has been created to increase awareness of the auction, Arnold said.

Last year, the auction had an overwhelming response, raising over $30,000 for the scholarship fund. Although HPC does not expect to raise quite that much money this year, Arnold said she has high expectations for the events.

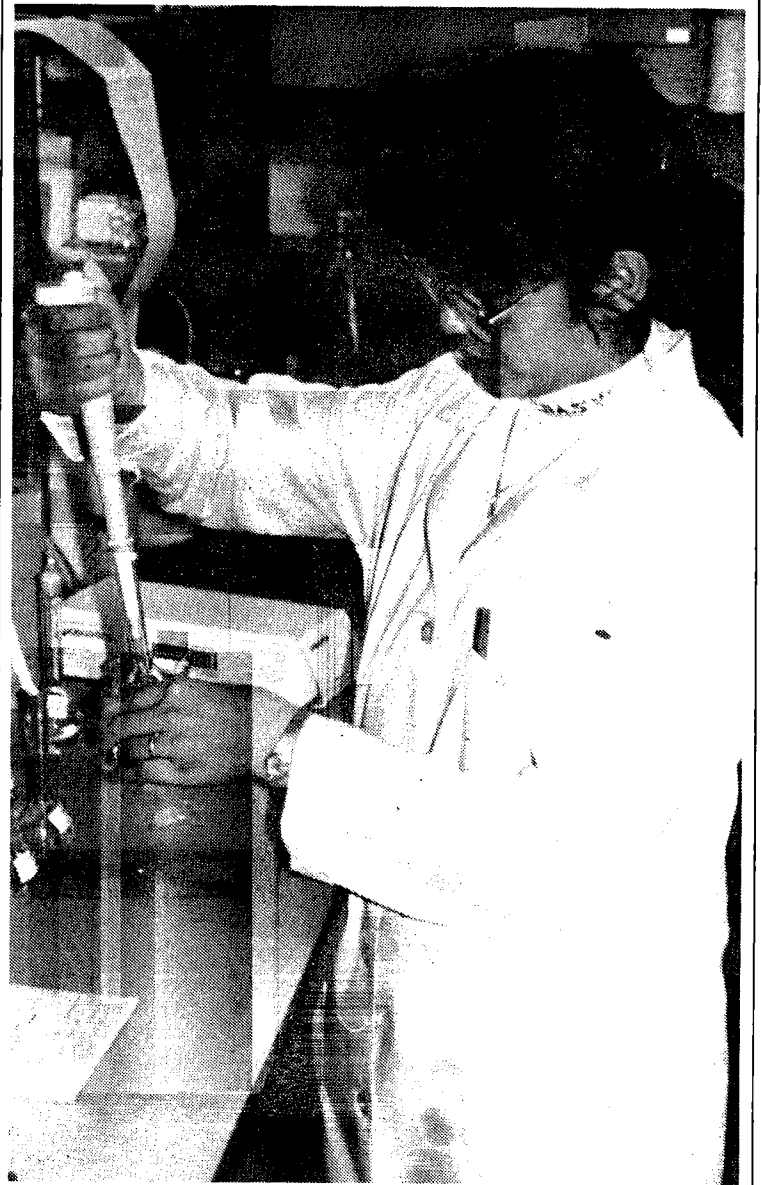

"Members of HPC are very excited," she said, "especially for the Bail a Domer event."

From now until Thursday, students can sign up in their dorms to have one of their friends or roommates "arrested" on March 18. The prisoners will be brought to a holding area in LaFortune Student Center and will not be freed until their friends bring enough bail money, Arnold explained.

Bail will be set at a $10 minimum, and telephones will be at holding areas so prisoners can call their friends, Arnold added. "HPC volunteers dressed as wardens will hold 20 or 25 students prisoner at time. It should be a lot of fun, and hopefully it will raise awareness of the auction that night," she said.

All proceeds from the bail money and from the auction will go toward the scholarship fund. Local businesses have donated prizes to be raffled off at the auction, and raffle tickets will be available in the dining halls the week after spring break.

The auction will be held the evening of March 18 in the LaFortune Ballroom. "Last year the event was a huge success," Arnold said. "We hope this year can be just as rewarding."

BOG plans woman's day

By CHRISTINA CANNON
News Writer

Members of the Saint Mary's Board of Governance (BOG) last night discussed the agenda for the upcoming Woman's Appreciation Day to be held Saturday, March 20.

Speakers and activities will be featured throughout the day, said Saint Mary's senior Martha Marzolf of Student Alliance for Women's Colleges at Saint Mary's. Activities include a performance by Sister Chain and a skit about the stereotypes of women's colleges, which will be followed by a discussion, said Marzolf.

Members also discussed the possibility of changing the smoking policy on campus, said Saint Mary's junior Melissa Whelan, Spiritual Life Commissioner. Faculty and administration are currently being asked for their input.

A decision will be made by the end of the semester as to whether Saint Mary's becomes a smoke-free campus or will reserve certain buildings off-limits to smokers.

On Tuesday, March 16, a proposal for an increased student activities fee will be presented before senior officers for consideration.

"If we increase the fee by 20 dollars our student activity fee will be at the lowest college average for a school our size," said student body president Tina Carrara.

A Spring Break to Remember

You've worked hard and now it's time to relax and have fun!
Keep these things in mind during your vacation:

- You don't have to be drunk to be impaired - even one or two drinks affect your driving skills.
- Drinking, drugs, and driving don't mix.
- Take your turn - be a designated driver and get everyone where they are going safely.
- Respect other people's right, and your own - to choose not to drink. There's plenty of fun to be had without alcohol.
- Respect state laws and campus policies.
- Don't let your friends drive impaired - it's one of the fastest ways to end a friendship.
- Wear your seat belts - it's your best protection against an impaired driver.

Play it safe. Because memories are only fond if you have them.

Students choosing to use the mail-in ballots must submit a photocopy of their student identification card along with their signature. Stafford said this will be a "reasonable check" to verify the legitimacy of the ballots.

Stafford said changes in election procedures are only a small portion of the revamping the GSU constitution underwent earlier in the school year. He went on to say that the constitution's focus shifted from several detailed amendments to a more general, less-specific document.

"The constitution had been amended so many times that it was becoming contradictory in some places," Stafford said. "Nobody had really sat down and gone through it."

The ECP Committee trimmed out excessive administrative costs and "modernized" the constitution to make it more applicable to graduate student interests, Stafford said.

Any graduate student interested in running for either president or vice president should write a letter declaring candidacy to the ECP Committee, GSU, LaFortune Student Center. Included in the letter must be the candidate's name, position for which they are running, student identification number, department name and the signatures of five registered graduate students supporting the nomination.

The deadline for submitting a nominating petition is March 3 at 7:10 p.m. at the Graduate Student Council Meeting in the Foster Room of LaFortune. A complete list of candidates will be submitted to the public at this meeting.

Six hostage children released

WACO, Texas (AP) — A heavily armed religious cult released six more children Monday and authorities negotiated nonstop trying to resolve a standoff at a fortified compound where six people died.

The leader of the cult, who believes he's Jesus, told his mother "I'm dying, all right?" after Sunday's gun battle with an army of police and federal agents.

In all, the cult Branch Davidians allowed at least 10 children to leave. More children were believed to be inside the bullet-scarred compound.

An army of police and federal agents ringed the group's fortified compound, and kept up negotiations a day after a rain of gunfire killed four federal agents and two members of the sect, one reportedly cult leader David Koresh's daughter.

"We negotiated through the night and they are negotiating again this morning," said Sharon Wheeler, a spokeswoman for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. She declined to say who was negotiating for the cult.

At least 75 people remained in the compound about 10 miles east of Waco, about one third of them children, authorities said. Koresh said many of the children were his.

Three people arrested after the shootout were charged Monday with attempted murder of a federal law enforcement officer and use of a firearm during commission of a violent crime, said Jim Deatley, a spokesman in the U.S. Attorney's office.

The FBI sent its elite Hostage Rescue Team to the scene Monday, said a federal law enforcement official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The standoff began Sunday after a 45-minute gun battle with about 100 ATF agents, who were trying to serve arrest and search warrants on Koresh for federal firearms charges.

Student Senate approves survey

By KENYA JOHNSON

Student Senate finalized a year-long goal by approving the 1993 Student Body Survey in last night's meeting.

"Everything's in the final stages," said Breen Phillips Hall co-president Stephanie Gallo. "We hope to have the entire approval process complete and the surveys distributed by March 19."

In other business, Pat McCarthy, Student Union Board (SUB) manager, presented the following nominations for next terms SUB executive board:

- Ellen Zahren as board manager;
- Jamie Morris as controller;

- Chris Liang as director of programming;
- Betsy Harkins as director of relations; and
- Kate Keckler as director of marketing.

All nominations were unanimously approved by senate.

McCarthy also sought approval from senate on funding events for Antostal totally over $5000. Bringing the Bungee Run, Ladder Climb, Gyro (Orbitron), Radar Speedpitch and Hi-Stricker will cost approximately $6400, but "will be something the students enjoy," according to McCarthy.

Greg Butrus, student body president, asked the senate members to think of nominations of students and administrators for the Irish Clover award.

"Two awards will be presented," explained Butrus. "One administrator will be awarded for their outstanding service to the student body, as will a student."

Senate will take considerations for the award at the next meeting after spring break, according to Butrus.

Considerations for the Frank A. O'Malley award, acknowledging a professors dedication to spectacular undergraduate teaching will also be accepted after break, according to Megan Sullivan, executive coordinator of intellectual life.

Students will nominate the professor they feel most deserves an award for their teaching, according to Sullivan.

Faculty Senate debates 'Catholic character' of ND

By JESSE BARRETT
News Writer

Miscamble

The Catholic character of Notre Dame and the extent to which it should affect academic life was the major issue debated last night at the Faculty Senate meeting.

Discussion focused on the Report of the Committee on Academic Life to the Colloquy for the Year 2000.

Members of the Senate disagreed about the amount of importance placed on the University's Catholic character.

A number of faculty members supported the report's emphasis on catholic character. "The Faculty Senate needs to support the report if they want to establish Notre Dame as the greatest Catholic University in the United States," said Professor Bill Miscamble, who is not a member of the Senate but was invited to the meeting.

"Notre Dame is not some secular university. We are a unique institution. We shouldn't be defensive about it but be creative and forthright in pursuing and creating a first-rate Catholic institution," added Miscamble.

"Notre Dame is supposed to be the place where the Catholic Church of America does its thinking," said Professor George Lopez. "This is where the Catholic Church of America does its bickering. We need to ask how we contribute to the thinking of the Church as a whole," he added.

Others were concerned that the report might compromise Notre Dame's academic quality. "There is a great deal of emphasis placed on what will preserve our religious enterprise," said Professor Jean Porter. "We need to do more to protect our intellectual enterprise. There needs to be more discussion about preserving and enhancing the academic character of the community," Porter said.

Professor Ed Vasta added, "We need a culture which will lead to greatness, and this is not mentioned in the Colloquy."

The degree to which Notre Dame should promote a Catholic faculty was included in the discussion.

Senate members agreed that the recruitment of Catholic faculty members is not easy.

"The experience of our department is that we don't get competitive Catholic applicants. If we stress the hiring of Catholic faculty, we will appoint faculty members who are not the most qualified," said Professor Michael Detlefsen.

Notre Dame's prestige as a national university and the importance of the graduate school in establishing it was also discussed. "We need intellectual intensity, and the small graduate school at Notre Dame greatly limits this. We don't understand the level of true intellectual greatness," Vasta said.

The Colloquy details every aspect of university life and procedure. It is broken into four areas which will be synthesized into a finished report. Last night's discussion will be considered in the formulation of the final document.

Investigators search for cause of explosion

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigation of the bombing that rattled New York City's psyche is being hampered by the instability of the twisted rubble beneath the World Trade Center.

Bomb sleuths examined tiny specks collected from the perimeter of the 100-foot-wide crater punched out by the explosion in a parking garage below the center's signature twin towers. Five were killed and more than 1,000 injured in the Friday noon blast.

One person was still missing Sunday. Another missing person was safely accounted for Sunday night, far from the blast site.

The towers, the world's second-largest buildings, will be closed for at least a week until safety and security are restored. Contractors welded steel beams and other supports into the trade center's underground area to make it more secure.

The smoke-damaged New York Commodities Exchange Center, housed in one of the center's smaller buildings, got permission to open today as the financial center limped back to work.

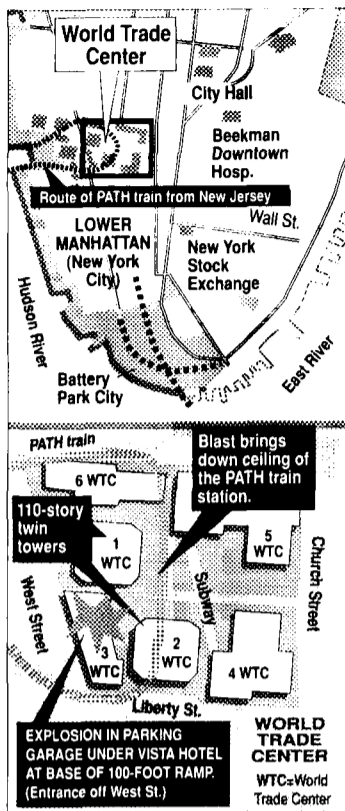

Law enforcement officials have said they found traces of nitrate, an ingredient in dynamite, at the blast site. Some, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The New York Times that investigators have found no traces of chemicals associated with plastic explosives.

Determining what type of explosive was used and how it was triggered will help investigators trace its source. If it was a car bomb, authorities will attempt to reconstruct the vehicle, just as they do when jetliners are bombed.

"The work could take months," said James Fox, head of the FBI's New York City office. "(But) we never give up. Whoever did this, we will catch them, even if it takes 20 years."

He could only speculate about who planted the powerful device and why, but said the magnitude of the blast indicated it was the work of a group rather than a crazed loner.

"This was a bomb," Fox said.

AP: Bill Castello, Karl Gude

"It was probably unlikely it was a lone individual."

More than 50 telephone calls — from people claiming to represent everything from nationalists in the former Yugoslav republics to Colombian drug lords — have been received since the blast. Tapes from the calls will be analyzed for accents and other clues that might lead to those responsible.

The explosion two floors underground was in a strategic location that knocked out power, communications and security systems.

Port Authority executive director Stanley Brezenoff told reporters Sunday that a study done in 1985-86 had recommended that parking lots underneath the World Trade Center be closed to the public because they were vulnerable to a bomb attack.

Brezenoff said the recommendation was rejected because it was felt parking was needed for the huge complex. But he said restrictions on parking would be reconsidered now.

A shaken city, meanwhile, beefed up security at airports and at buildings public and private.

Clinton vows to boost college aid

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — President Clinton pledged Monday to revolutionize college aid by allowing students to repay loans through community work. He cast his ambitious national service plan as a 1990s GI Bill to "change America forever and for the better."

Starting with a modest 1,000 slots this summer and growing to 100,000 or more within four years, the program will make college affordable to all while setting off a wave of involvement in education, health, safety and environmental projects, Clinton predicted.

"All across America we have problems that demand our common attention," Clinton said. "National service is nothing less than the American way to change America."

The program was a centerpiece of Clinton's campaign, and he chose the 32nd anniversary of President Kennedy's creation of the Peace Corps to formally propose it as president. Congressional approval would be required.

The event was as much symbolism as substance. Clinton's lofty rhetoric aside, aides say many details are still unclear, from how much a student would be able to borrow to how big a stipend to pay young people while they work off their loans.

Clinton's plan is designed to dramatically reshape federal student aid programs and offer young Americans opportunities — and incentive — to perform such community service as working in inner-city children's health and drug clinics, tutoring in literacy programs and walking streets in neighborhood police corps.

The president himself set high expectations for the initiative, framing the announcement as "one I hope will be a truly historic moment in our nation's history." He compared it to the GI Bill's offer of education to servicemen returning from World War II, a program that expanded the nation's middle class.

"We may need more workers next year because all those hours are just too much to ask of a few workers. I am hoping that the freshmen this year will stay on the staff for next fall." Students have had a positive response to the changes.

"I think that is a great idea but I do wish that they had done this sooner," said senior Bridget McCourt. "Hopefully it will help the work study student workers. Plus people will spend much more time in the dining hall relaxing and socializing after and between meals."

Freshmen Melissa Novock, also a dining hall worker said, "It is good that the administrators look at what the students need. This new plan will make it much more convenient for students different schedules."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Study reveals modest growth in income

■WASHINGTON— A raft of statistics reported Monday, including a modest 0.5 percent increase in Americans' personal income in January, pointed to a moderate and sustained economic expansion this year. Incomes increased to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $5.22 trillion, building on a strong 1 percent advance in December, the Commerce Department said. Consumer spending rose 0.3 percent to an annual rate of $4.23 trillion, the fifth increase in a row. "Even though this report isn't a barn-burner, I'm taking heart from it. After a huge surge in December, I'm happy that (income and spending) didn't fall," said economist Robert Wescott of the WEFA Group, a Philadelphia-based forecasting service.

Macy's to eliminate 11 more stores

■NEW YORK— R.H. Macy & Co. Inc. said today it would eliminate 11 more stores, shrinking further in an effort to successfully reorganize after a more than a year under bankruptcy court protection. The world-famous retailer said it would shutter Macy's branches in Conn., N.J., and in downtown Los Angeles. Approximately 1,450 employees work at the stores, which are expected to close in several months. Macy will "see what it can do to place as many employees as possible" in other locations, said Michael Freitag, a spokesman. The retailer has said for some time it expected to shut several underperforming stores. Asked about any further closings, Freitag said, "based on our current view," there are no plans for further cuts. But stores' performance would continue to be reviewed, he said.

Cisneros criticizes 'Gotcha' mentality at HUD

■WASHINGTON— More than $11 billion for low-income housing programs is trapped in a bureaucratic logjam so tight that even the Clinton administration is struggling to set the money free. Now members of Congress are asking, loudly, what's taking so long to put the money to use in cities that needed it yesterday. "Just what, exactly, is the delay?" Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, asked Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros during a recent House appropriations hearing. In an interview, Cisneros said he found "a 'Gotcha!' mentality" when he took over HUD — that employees would "tell people why they hadn't complied with guidelines, instead of helping them fix what they need to fix." In the pipeline is $11.5 billion for building more homes for low-income families and for long-term repair and renovation of public housing projects.

Regional banks replacing local institutions

■INDIANAPOLIS— Changes in the ownership of the state's largest banks does not mean the quality of service is dropping, said one bank officer. "We will still be an Indiana bank with a thrust from Indianapolis to service the credit needs of our customer base here," said Otto Frenzel, chairman of the former Merchants National bank and now chairman of National City in Indianapolis. Mergers that have left the state's leading financial institutions under the ownership of regional superbanks also mean more credit is available to customers, Frenzel said. However, while mergers may create more lending ability and services, but they also chip away at a bank's local presence, said Owen Melton Jr., president of First Indiana Savings Bank, which remains independent.

Reich: Clinton would spend more

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is prepared to spend more money stimulating the economy if the proposed $30 billion does not create sufficient jobs quickly, Labor Secretary Robert Reich said Monday.

"The economy is bouncing back," Reich told the National Association of Counties. "But there's one thing that is not bouncing back and that is jobs. Jobs lag economic growth."

Reich said many businesses are not expanding their payrolls because of uncertainty about the recovery.

"There's been two false starts," he said.

As a result, businesses are working their employees longer hours, finding it more profitable to pay overtime than to add to their payrolls.

"The only way out of this jobs gridlock is a little bit of pump-priming," Reich said. "If it takes more than $30 billion, it'll be more than $30 billion."

President Clinton's stimulus package is designed to create

Bill Clinton

500,000 new jobs by spending on such projects as public works, highways and waste water treatment plants and on an expanded summer jobs programs for teen-agers.

Reich did not indicate the amount by which the administration might increase the $30 billion proposal, of which $15 billion represents tax breaks for businesses.

Already, Clinton's proposal has come under heavy criticism from Republicans, who questioned why the deficit should be enlarged for a short-term stimulus package given the fact that the economy appears to be recovering from the recession.

But, Reich told the county officials, "There's been no jobs recovery. We can't have a recovery without jobs. That's why confidence is dropping."

After rising much of the last 18 months, consumer confidence leveled off in January and tumbled in February as Americans grew increasingly edgy about their financial security, according to a survey by the Conference Board, a New York business research group.

Reich said the 7.1 percent unemployment rate in January was the same that existed a year ago.

"Twenty-two months after the bottom of the recession, we would have expected 3.5 million jobs would have been created," he said. "But only half a million have been created."

US supports China's entrance to GATT

BEIJING (AP) — The United States expressed support Monday for admitting China to the world trading system and resumed talks on the matter that were suspended when Beijing crushed the democracy movement in 1989.

Admission of China to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which regulates much of the world's trade, would boost Beijing's campaign to increase its role and acceptance in the international community. It already ranks as the 11th largest trading nation.

The reopening of the GATT talks could indicate that President Clinton is backing off his campaign pledge to penalize China for human rights abuses. He frequently criticized President Bush for blocking congressional efforts to tie Chinese trade to human rights.

In an apparent effort to put a better face on their regime, China's Communist leaders have released several prominent dissidents from prison this year. China also is campaigning to be host of the Summer Olympics in 2000.

Lorraine Toly, spokeswoman for the U.S. Embassy, said Doug Newkirk, assistant U.S. trade representative for GATT affairs, would hold two days of talks with Chinese officials about China joining the trade system.

"The United States has agreed to staunchly support China's application subject to agreement of an acceptable protocol," she said.

Newkirk's meetings with Tong Zhiguang, vice minister for the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade, were the first in nearly four years on GATT. His delegation also is the first high-level U.S. trade delegation from the Clinton administration.

China applied to join GATT in 1987. A GATT committee was about to start work on the issue when Chinese troops crushed the widespread democracy demonstrations in June 1989 and the talks were suspended.

Western nations were concerned that Beijing would tighten both political and economic controls after the crackdown. GATT, whose free-market principles clash with Marxism's central planning, promotes the lowering of barriers to international trade.

WTC businesses scramble to keep up after explosion

NEW YORK (AP) — From the big bond broker that couldn't trade to the commodity exchanges that reopened with human fire alarms, the order of business Monday at the bombed scarred World Trade Center was disorder and confusion.

The exchanges reopened on an abbreviated schedule after winning a special exemption to occupy their trading floors, despite insufficient air conditioning. Smoke-sniffing fire wardens with walkie-talkies patrolled because the exchange alarms weren't functioning.

Traders said the day went without much obvious disruptions, although volume was a bit lighter than usual.

"The floor is full, everybody is trading and it looks like a normal day," said David Halperin, president of the New York Commodity Exchange Inc., the world's leading market for gold and silver.

Elsewhere, it was a day of long lines and considerable confusion as other tenants of the trade center tried to stitch together a plan to get up and running once more.

About 200 people shivered in the morning cold as they lined up to enter a packed command center for an escort up to their offices, where many retrieved computer disks and files.

"We're in a very bad situation," said Ali Kamber, executive vice president for Ferromin International, a metals and minerals trading company with four employees.

Kamber, whose company lacks insurance for business interruptions, estimated he faced $100,000 this week in losses.

"We're going to lose a lot of money for a company our size," he said.

The twin towers' operator, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, announced a $5 million emergency loan program to some of the 250 small and medium sized business tenants.

"We will be writing checks to them tomorrow based on their applications," said Vincent Tese, vice chairman of the Port Authority.

The bomb blast Friday demolished the vital air conditioning, electrical and other support systems for World Trade Center Towers 1 and 2. The disaster killed five people, injured at least 1,000 and sent dense black smoke into neighboring buildings. The towers will remain shut at least a week.

Damage to the business community and New York City's economy remained impossible to assess Monday as the focus of many firms remained on getting telephones running and computers booted-up. Phone companies, financial market data services, landlords and bankers all helped in providing extra space for victimized businesses.

"People begin to operate in innovative ways to move on," said Samuel Ehrenhalt, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in New York City, who expressed amazement at the resiliency and ingenuity of some of the businesses.

For some, the improvisation was a bit confusing at first.

Joe Hart, a 30-year-old broker for Cantor Fitzgerald Inc., took a ferry ride across the Hudson River and hopped a special shuttle bus — decorated with computer paper that read "Cantor" — to report to work.

Explosion's Fallout

While companies whose offices were damaged by Friday's explosion at the World Trade Center were scrambling to avoid a loss of business, others were benefiting.

"I have a strange feeling this is going to turn into a fiasco," Hart said as he stepped off the bus.

Some large firms like Cantor, a major player in the Treasury bond and government securities markets, couldn't trade government bonds Monday. The company said it hoped to resume trading at makeshift locations Tuesday.

For some companies, the transition was smooth.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sacrifice may lead to political 'failure'

Dear Editor:

By now, most of us have heard about President Clinton's proposed economic package and taken part in the accompanying debate. This controversy is fundamentally not a discussion of financial matters.

Rather, the argument centers around what sort of leader our new President will be. The keyword of candidate Clinton's campaign was change: change from Republican government, change from economic apathy, and change which would ease the burden on working Americans.

Above all, Mr. Clinton portrayed himself as a change from the "traditional" Democrat. Throughout the campaign, he sought to distance himself from the liberal, "tax and spend" image of his party, from the failures of Carter, Mondale, and Dukakis. Here was a moderate, centrist version of the new Democratic organization.

Unfortunately, based on his economic package, it appears that Mr. Clinton is not the new personification of a new party as we were led to believe. Instead, he has returned to the policies which have doomed the Democrats to past failure and has faced the American nation with the frightening prospect of a government which, if he has his way, will greatly increase in scope and spending.

The President's proposed economic package cuts government spending in one area—defense. However, in the other major areas of government spending, he plans to significantly raise expenditures. This "new" Democrat plans to increase the government budget by $300 billion over five years.

Central to the proposed plan is the claim that this package will cut the deficit. The fact is, however, that it is spending which brought about the deficit. Indeed, according to Martin Feldstein, former chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers and professor of economics at Harvard, the proposed package "provides virtually no reduction of the relative deficit over the next four years."

How does President Clinton plan to come up with the money to facilitate these increased expenditures? The answer is the old Democratic formula, taxes. For every dollar of increased spending there will be a $4 tax increase. The promise of a middle class tax cut is a mirage.

Marginal tax rates will jump by 37%. Taxes will increase on couples earning over $30,000 a year. The energy tax will raise taxes for 55% of Americans, increasing the annual energy bill of a family of four earning $25,000 by $105. In short, the American public is asked to shoulder the burden of an ever-expanding federal government.

President Clinton has stressed that, in these changing times, Americans need to sacrifice in order to reduce the deficit and spur on the already-recovering economy. Sacrifice.

The concept doesn't make sense unless the suffering will produce tangible benefits. The American people are willing to do with less if it will benefit the economy and the nation. However, the President is being hypocritical if he expects the voting public to take a reduction in income while the government increases its expenditures.

The sacrifice of the people will help the country only if it is accompanied by a sacrifice in the government. Unfortunately, President Clinton's economic package reveals that he has failed to grasp this concept, and this deficiency threatens to irrevocably link his administration with the failures of past Democrats.

'No new taxes' means no real solutions

Dear Editor:

Associate Professional Specialist Barry Baumbaugh (Observer, Feb. 24) and his wife, Carole Havens, are talented activists in a local "no new taxes" movement. They overlook two factors, one abstract and one quite concrete.

(1) Ridding county government of every semblance of nepotism and inefficiency is a long term process and the best facilitating strategy is for talented and virtuous people to run for County Commissioner or County Council.

The implicit job description of those offices, however, deters altruistic office seekers. If Baumbaugh and Havens have a solution for that general political problem they should share it.

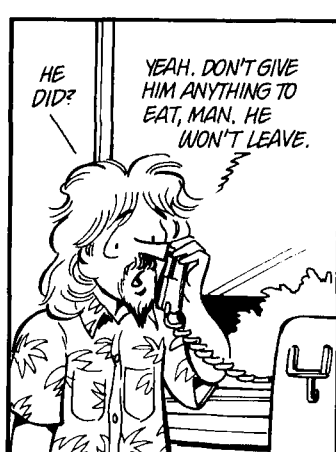

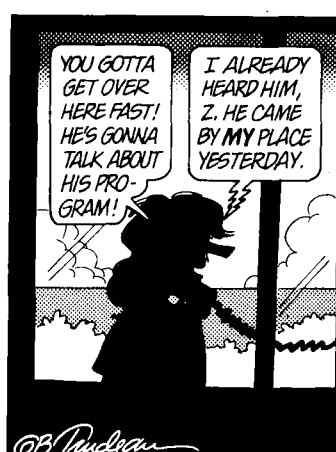

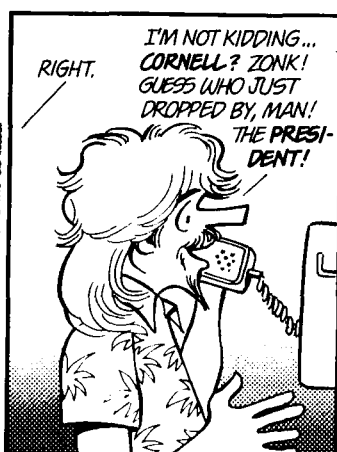

(2) If we don't have a county option tax, we won't be able to build a much needed new county jail or relocate and expand our desperately overcrowded and unsafe juvenile detention center.

Baumbaugh and Havens may not have to worry about crime in the community, but it's not in the interest of Notre Dame students to share their indifference.

E-lectrifying E-mail

Electronic mail provides students with a fun, easy way to communicate

By MEREDITH MCCULLOUGH

Accent Writer

X-Organization: University of Notre Dame
To: nd/smc.student.5@nd.edu
From: Meredith.McCullough.3@nd.edu
Subject: E-mail: the Communication Wave of the Future

It used to be only for a select few. It used to be that unless you were an engineer or a computer hacker or a twelve-year-old whiz kid, you had to be an all-out genius to understand it (or even get access to it).

But times are changing.

Electronic mail (e-mail) is quickly becoming the new craze in communication—thanks to a new and simplified user-friendly system, a highly skilled (and very patient) team of Office of University Computing (OUC) staff, and an effective mass marketing campaign.

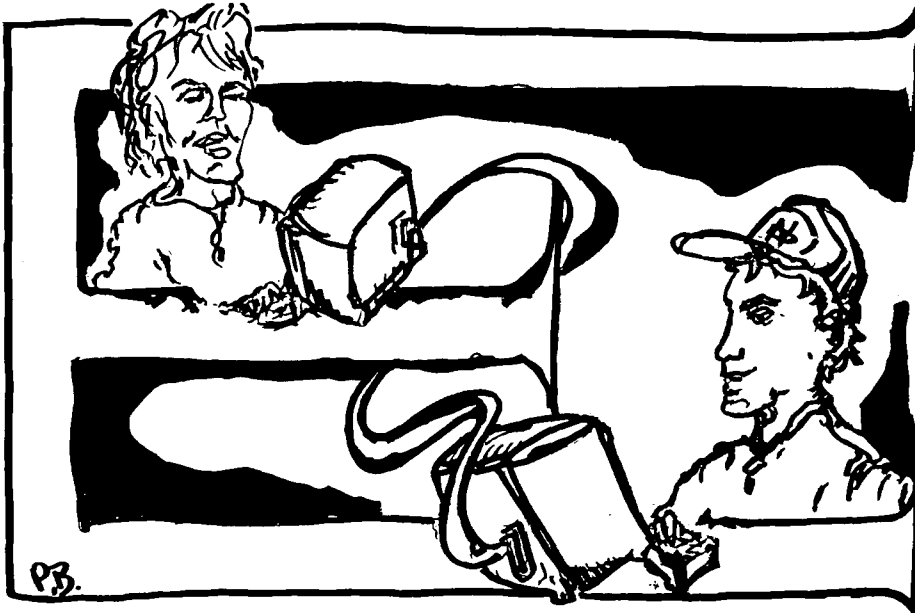

E-mail is not a new concept, according to John Doppke, manager of the DeBartolo Cluster, but it was not until second semester last year that Eudora (the nd.edu system) became available to students.

Since then, the number of student users has increased "exponentially," said DeBartolo consultant Mark Falcione.

"It used to be pretty rare that you'd see someone coming into a cluster to do e-mail; now it's quite common," added Doppke. "People are realizing that all this technology is at their disposal, and that they have the ability to use it now that it's become more user-friendly."

And some people are realizing this seven or eight times a day.

Stanford Hall freshman John Keating is one of them. "I am really addicted," he said. "It eliminates the need for an answering machine, is cheaper than the post office, and is received on the other end within seconds," he said.

Junior Phil Eddy was not so sure he needed e-mail. He was not so sure he wanted it—that is, until his first experience.

"I was forced to set up this e-mail stuff by my friend...who's in Australia for the semester," he explained. "I figured, hey, it's just e-mail. Boy was I wrong. Since that first day I have been in love with e-mail—and for a while it took over my life."

"I lived for the moment that I could check my mail," Eddy said.

Whereas e-mail was limited to only a few computers years ago, today you can e-mail from any OUS computer lab on campus.

"Thanks to the magic of ND's network backbone, there is pretty much no difference in e-mail functionality from one cluster to the next," said Doppke.

"Only DeBartolo and Hesburgh consultants can give out e-mail passwords...but once you have your password, you can go to just about any machine in any cluster (of the right platform) and mail away."

The DeBartolo lab is one of the more popular labs. It is the most advanced, computers in DeBartolo are five times as fast as any other lab with the exception of CCMB, the primary Next?Sun lab, he said.

But DeBartolo has its share of drawbacks.

"DeBartolo's computers are very fast, but very cold," said Eddy. "They don't even tell you that they are looking for mail, and when there is none, it is excruciatingly painful."

Carroll Hall junior Christopher Alvarado has his own favorite.

"I frequent the Sun Sparc stations in Fitzpatrick because of the cool and sterile environment," said Alvarado. "And also because I like to laugh at the poor engineers who have to do real work on these things."

But there is more to e-mail than just sending messages—much more.

One of the more popular functions is "talk." The "talk" function cannot be used from Eudora, but is a part of Telnet of the Andrew File System (AFS). Anybody who has an Eudora password can use Telnet, but there are no easy-to-use icons, which makes the program a bit more complicated, and a bit harder to use.

But it just might be worth learning to use. The "talk" function allows two-way conversation between individuals logged into the same system.

"The screen...changes so that there's a dashed line in the middle of the screen and anything I type appears on the top half of my screen, and anything that you type appears on the bottom," explained Doppke.

Since this usually works across universities, many students have found yet another way for e-mail to reduce long-distance phone bills.

"I write to mostly other colleges: University of Michigan, Ohio University, American University, Yale, Dartmouth, Cornell, Emory University, Bradley, Kenyon, Columbia, University of Virginia and just recently to my sister in Australia at Wollagong University," said Pangborn freshman Kathy Daley. "Yes, I'm addicted."

Eventually everything on campus will have a network connection available, according to Doppke.

"I also know that 'eventually' means at least five years, so don't hold your breath. :-)" [the e-mail user's smiley face], Doppke said.

By the way, all interviews for this piece were conducted via e-mail. No vocal talking took place.

To open an e-mail account, take a blank disk to either the DeBartolo or Hesburgh computer labs and ask a consultant for assistance.

'Lorenzo's Oil' is a disturbing story of courage and faith

By PETER BEVACQUA

Film Critic

"Lorenzo's Oil" is the true story of Augusto and Michaela Odone, who in a remarkable tale of faith and courage, successfully battled against time and the medical establishment to save their son's life.

Augusto Odone (Nick Nolte), a native of Italy, is an economist with the World Bank, and his wife, Michaela (Susan Sarandon), is an Irish-American linguist.

Their son, Lorenzo (Zack O'Malley Greenburg), is diagnosed as having Adrenoleukodystrophy (ALD)—a relatively unknown affliction for which no treatment exists, and which reduces average life expectancy to no more than two years.

The first hour of the film is very enjoyable. The audience is introduced to the Odone family while they are living in East Africa. We follow their travels back to America, and witness the inexplicable transformation of Lorenzo from a twentieth-century version of Tom Sawyer to a lifeless shadow of his former self.

In the initial stages of the film, Miller combines fast-paced editing with stirring non-diegetic music (Verdi, Mahler and Barber) to lend an intriguing atmosphere to a narrative which grows tiresome at future points.

Nick Nolte, the quintessential Anglo-American male, plays the role of the concerned Italian father quite well. After thirty minutes of bawdy gestures and insatiable gastronomy have finally concluded, Nolte's portrayal of Augusto Odone approaches something close to reality.

Susan Sarandon is superb, magnificently portraying the pain and grief Michaela feels upon learning that she is the carrier of her son's bizarre sickness.

"Lorenzo's Oil" drags a bit during the Odone's seemingly endless quest for an understanding of ALD. One leaves the theater with an involuntary expertise concerning both the disease and various carbohydrates. In addition, the viewer is introduced to an array of minor characters who are both insignificant and boring.

At times the film resembles the cinematic dog chasing its filmic tail about the screen at the expense of the audience.

The strengths of the film are its startling visual imagery, the performances of the main characters, and its true-to-life account of a couple's relentless struggle to save the life of their only son.

Miller's work is not as "uplifting" as one might expect. Indeed, Lorenzo is alive at the conclusion of the film (and don't worry, I am not giving anything away), but he is no vision of loveliness.

As he lies in bed toward the final moments of the film, the viewer cannot help feeling depressed. One is not astonished by his miraculous recovery, but instead left wondering if this family can ever recover from such a melodramatic fluff...and that, like all tales of human suffering, is what makes this boy's story so wonderfully disturbing.

Nick Nolte and Susan Sarandon star as Augusto and Michaela Odone, who fight time and the medical establishment to save the life of their son Lorenzo, played by Zack O'Malley Greenburg.

North Carolina becomes sixth No. 1 team

(AP) North Carolina regained the No. 1 ranking Monday, a place no more special than any of nine others to coach Dean Smith.

The Tar Heels (24-3) moved from third to first by beating Florida State after Indiana and Kentucky, last week's 1-2, each lost a road game. It is the first time North Carolina has been No. 1 since early in the 1987-88 season.

"Polls don't really mean anything until the final poll at the end of the year," Smith said. "Then, if you finish in the Top Ten, that means you had an excellent season."

Smith's teams have been no strangers to the Top Ten at season's end. Last year's No. 18 finish ended a string of 10 of 11 years with a Top Ten final ranking. Twice, in 1982 and 1984, the Tar Heels were No. 1 in the final poll.

"Our sport's champion is determined by the NCAA tournament, but still it is nice to be in the Top Ten at the end of the season," he said.

North Carolina received 49 first-place votes and 1,600 points from the nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters to easily outdistance Indiana (25-3), which had eight first-place votes and 1,517 points. The Hoosiers, who have played three games without injured forward Alan Henderson, had been No. 1 for four weeks until losing at Ohio State in overtime to snap a 13-game winning streak.

Arizona (21-2), which has the nation's longest current winning streak at 19 games, and Michigan (22-4) each moved up one spot to third and fourth. The Wildcats, working on a perfect Pac-10 season, were No.

Eric Montross and North Carolina became the sixth No. 1 team of the season in Monday's poll.

1 on five ballots, while the Wolverines, who have lost half their games this season to Indiana, received three first-place votes. Kentucky (21-3), which lost at Tennessee the day after Indiana lost, dropped three places to fifth.

Duke jumped from ninth to sixth and was followed by Vanderbilt, Kansas, Utah and Seton Hall.

North Carolina becomes the sixth team to hold the No. 1 ranking this season, joining Michigan, Duke, Kentucky, Kansas and Indiana, matching the number that did it in 1989-90. Since 1980, the most teams to hold the top spot in one season were the seven that did it in 1982-83.

The Boss is back, pledging to be patient

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Boss is back.

With an airplane overhead heralding his return and fans in the stands early for his arrival, George Steinbrenner walked back into baseball today.

Steinbrenner's 2 1/2-year suspension ended at midnight and at 10:30 a.m. EST he strode through the front gate at the New York Yankees' spring training camp, surrounded by a several hundred reporters and two-dozen camera crews.

"It makes me feel good. I'd rather get shoved around a little bit than have no one here," the New York Yankees owner said.

The Yankees, meanwhile, braced for his return. Players and staff have spent the last week saying all the right things, saying — whether they meant it or not — they thought Steinbrenner's presence would help them return to winning ways.

While Steinbrenner's return certainly creates excitement, it may not be the kind of commotion the Yankees — or baseball — wants.

"There will be some differences," Steinbrenner said. "In many ways, it will be different and I'll be different."

Steinbrenner has pledged to be more patient with his players and be more understanding of their failures. That, though, remains to be seen.

"I've been waiting 2 1/2 years for this opportunity," Steinbrenner said shortly after midnight.

Steinbrenner and longtime friend Tom McEwen, a sports columnist for The Tampa Tribune, flew in Steinbrenner's private jet to an airfield about a quarter-mile from the Yankees' camp at Fort Lauderdale Stadium. The two walked alone without fanfare for 10 minutes and got within 20 yards of the gate before being spotted.

Instantly, many reporters — wearing special credentials reading "The Boss is Back" — stampeded toward him. In the next 45 minutes, Steinbrenner moved less than 25 yards as he answered questions.

"I never really thought about the day I'd come back, but I'm just glad to come back," he said.

A half-hour before Steinbrenner's arrival, a small plane circled trailing a sign reading "Welcome Home George." Inside the stadium where fans were admitted free for the workout, there were more signs cheering his return.

A loud mixture of applause and boos greeted Steinbrenner when he finally made his way onto the field.

Steinbrenner's return comes 17 years to the day that he came back from his first suspension, a 15-month penalty imposed by Bowie Kuhn for making illegal campaign contributions to Richard Nixon and other politicians. Steinbrenner's return this time comes on the same day that Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott begins serving her one-year suspension for making racist and ethnic slurs.

Seattle signs Kemp through 2002

SEATTLE (AP) — Shawn Kemp, the Seattle SuperSonics All-Star forward-center, has signed a seven-year contact extension that will keep him under contract through the 2001-2002 season, the club announced Monday.

Financial terms were not disclosed.

"Shawn has worked very hard and made tremendous strides in the past 3 1/2 years," Sonics president Bob Whitsitt said.

"We recognized that Shawn was underpaid and this gives us the opportunity to correct the situation, and at the same time make a long-term commitment to each other. We're looking forward to many more All-Star seasons from Shawn," Whitsitt said.

"I'm glad the Sonics appreciate what I've done this season, and they understand that I can contribute to the team for a long time," Kemp said.

Kemp, 23, who joined the NBA at 19, is in the fourth year of a six-year contract. The extension means he is signed for the remainder of this season, plus nine more.

This season he is racking up career highs in points (18.6), rebounds (10.6), steals (1.65), assists (1.9) and minutes (34.7).

Western Conference coaches recently voted him to his first NBA All-Star game. Earlier this season, he became the first Sonic since 1989 named Player of the Week.

Bulls facing toughest foe: injuries

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls are fighting an enemy relatively unfamiliar to them — injuries.

The two-time NBA champions find themselves with starters Bill Cartwright and John Paxson out. A number of other players are sporting bumps, bruises or swellings, most notably Michael Jordan's sprained ankle.

"We've never been in this situation before, where we had two or three guys that have been down who are starters and we had to bring people in," coach Phil Jackson said Monday. "We just go with what we have to go with and patch our team up as well as we can."

Most recently, they acquired Ed Nealy in a trade with Golden State last Wednesday.

"I know I'm not going to come in here and take anybody's time away from them," said Nealy. "I'm going to have to earn it, but hopefully that will make them work that much harder to keep their time."

Trent Tucker, who shot 9 for 9 in the Bulls' 112-92 win over Atlanta on Saturday, seems secure.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don't take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax-bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don't send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity—all backed by the nation's number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016.

Doubtful Dunston gives Sanchez hope

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Doubts about how healthy Chicago Cubs shortstop Shawon Dunston will be this season are providing an opportunity for newcomer Rey Sanchez.

Sanchez sparked in the field for the Cubs last summer, playing 74 games and giving Chicago some solid defense.

But he says he isn't taking anything for granted and still isn't counting Dunston out.

"I can't worry about that kind of stuff," Sanchez said. "Whatever happens, happens. I only know I'm healthy and I'm ready to play. That's all that matters to me right now. Those other things I can't control."

"I'm not competing with Shawon. If they want him and he's healthy, then he will play. I don't feel like they owe me anything. I will take whatever they give me. Whatever they tell me to do, I will do."

Sanchez suffered from a bulging disc last summer, but did not have to undergo surgery. Dunston did have surgery for a herniated disc, and is still hurting.

"I respect Shawon a lot," Sanchez said. "Give the man credit. He's played a long time and he's an all-star. He's not looking over his shoulder. I admire Shawon."

He's a great player.

"You have to make a name for yourself in this game and you don't do that until you've played for a while. Until then, you just play ball and wait your turn. I don't feel like I've accomplished anything yet."

"Shawon is experiencing pain and we are concerned about his morale. He's never been hurt before and he's frustrated," Cubs manager Jim Lefebvre said. "We just have to let nature take its course."

"He's just frustrated. But I want to see him smile. When he smiles, the whole team lights up."

This weekend's boost came at an excellent time for the Irish, for after they face Indiana on Wednesday they will travel to Tempe, Arizona on spring break to continue their murderous slate.

They will face #4 Pepperdine on March 6 and #17 Tennessee on March 7, before meeting #25 Arizona State on March 8.

"We know that's the way it's going to be," said Bayliss. "It's going to stay that way, but we're pretty upbeat and working hard."

Can Quinn Buckner make the Mavericks winners?

DALLAS (AP) — Quinn Buckner was a winner as a player at Indiana University and with the Milwaukee Bucks and Boston Celtics.

Winning will be an imposing task if he takes on another challenge — coach of the Dallas Mavericks.

Team sources have told The Dallas Morning News that the Mavericks will offer a coaching job to Buckner, who has no coaching experience. Club officials have said they are confident he'll accept.

The Mavericks want to hire Buckner before the end of the season so he can be on board for the June 30 draft, the newspaper reported Sunday.

But the 38-year-old Buckner, now an NBA analyst for NBC, would not take over as coach until next season, the sources said. That would leave interim coach Gar Heard in charge for the rest of this season.

The Mavericks were 4-48 after Sunday's 110-96 loss to Indiana, and are on pace to finish with the worst record in NBA history. Dallas won one game in November, one in December, one in January and one in February.

Buckner emphasized Saturday that he has not yet been offered the job.

"I don't know if I will be offered the job this week. We'll see what happens. I don't speculate on anything that hasn't happened," Buckner said. "But I am interested, and I'm still listening."

A source, insisting on anonymity, said Mavericks owner Don Carter "is definitely leading toward hiring Buckner." He added, "This week we're going to work out the details of the contract."

Another team source told The Morning News: "We want to get Quinn named this week. We're planning on offering him the job, announcing it and getting this all taken care of. That's how far along this is."

Mavericks vice president Rick Sund said, "I'm hoping to get our coach named this week."

Buckner is one of a handful of players who have won an NCAA championship, NBA title and Olympic gold medal. He was captain of Indiana's 1976 NCAA championship team, played on the U.S. gold medal team at the 1976 Olympics, and was with the Celtics when they won the 1984 NBA title.

He has been Sund's No. 1 choice since Richie Adubato was fired on Jan. 13.

Buckner and Sund have a relationship dating back 17 years, to when Buckner was a rookie in Milwaukee and Sund was a member of the Bucks' front office.

Buckner reportedly is insisting on a four-year deal to take over the Mavericks.

Postseason begins on a high note for Notre Dame's fencers

By KEVIN JANICKI
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame fencing squad roared into the postseason with a first place finish at the Midwest Intercollegiate Championships at Michigan State Saturday.

The Irish finished in the top two spots in all four weapons, collecting 500 points while their closest competitor, Ohio State finished with 425 points.

"This was a team effort all the way," remarked men's head coach Mike DeCicco. "We took giant steps towards our goal in all four weapons."

As expected, the foil squad performed well, tying Illinois for first place by collecting 120 points. Senior captain Jeff Piper, who was undefeated against midwestern opponents during the dual-meet season, won the individual foil competition. Foilists Jordan Maggio, Stan Brunner, and Rian Girard finished fifth, ninth, and eleventh, respectively.

The sabremen scored 112 points, just three short of Ohio State, as they were led by fifth place-finisher senior Bernie Baez. Sophomore Chris McQuade turned in a strong performance taking seventh, and fellow sophomore Chris Hajnick took ninth.

The epee squad followed the lead of the foilists by tying Illinois for first place with 116 points. Senior Geoff Pechinsky led all Notre Dame epeeists. Grzegorz Wozniak, who led the Irish all season, placed fifth.

The women's team contributed 152 points, edging Ohio State by two. The victory over Ohio State avenged a 12-4 loss suffered earlier this season. Freshman Claudette deBruin took a third place finish as the Irish's top individual. Senior Kathleen Vogt placed fifth, junior Kimberly Arndt finished eighth, and freshman Mindi Kalogera took eleventh for the Irish women.

"The team is peaking at the right time," said DeCicco. "Next week is another hurdle, and we need to concentrate on qualifying for the NCAA Championships."

Next weekend, the team travels to Cleveland State for the NCAA Midwest Regional Qualifier. Both the men and women will have to place in the top two spots or receive one at-large bid in order to qualify for the NCAA Championships.

The Notre Dame fencing team got off to a good start in postseason play with a first-place finish at the Midwest Intercollegiate Championships.

St. John's bombs Syracuse

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's, picked for next-to-last in the Big East before the season started, guaranteed itself no worse than a second-place finish with a 90-70 victory over Syracuse on Monday night.

Shawnelle Scott, who had been hampered by an ankle injury, led No. 25 St. John's (17-8, 12-5) with 20 points and 10 rebounds, eight on the offensive boards. Lawrence Moten led Syracuse (17-8, 9-8), which had won three straight, with 20 points.

St. John's finished in a three-way tie for first with Seton Hall and Georgetown last season. But the graduation of four starters and the retirement of Hall of Fame coach Lou Carnesecca didn't bode well for the Redmen this season, and the league's coaches picked them ninth in a preseason poll.

The Redmen will play first-place Seton Hall (12-4) on Saturday.

The victory over Syracuse came easy for the Redmen, who took a 28-13 lead thanks to a 20-0 run. The Orangemen never were closer than nine points in the second half, sustaining their worst loss this season.

This was the first time in seven meetings between the teams that the final margin was more than seven points, and it was St. John's biggest win over Syracuse since a 100-78 victory in 1976.

Lamont Middleton added 18 points and Sergio Luyk 14 for St. John's. David Cain had seven points and 10 assists.

Conrad McRae and Mike Hopkins added 14 points apiece for Syracuse.

Question: How can baseball clean up its mess?

It's March, and it's time for madness. Spring training is about to begin.

While many sports fans dream of the pairings and brackets of the NCAA basketball tournament, others travel to Arizona and Florida with the excitement and intensity of Christian pilgrims travelling to Canterbury.

For those twelve people, I have compiled a few tidbits they might find interesting and some questions they can debate on the trip down.

George Steinbrenner has completed his lifetime suspension from baseball in only 30 months. In a baseball think-tank somewhere, mathematicians are working with the intensity of...well, they are working to determine exactly how long a lifetime is for Pete Rose.

Question: Would Major League Baseball consider diminishing its integrity (the integrity that gave Steve Howe a five year lifetime suspension for drug use and multiple failed second tries) and let "Charlie Hustle", a man who played the game with the intensity of...well, represented dedication to the sport that any athlete should envy, back in baseball a few years before his lifetime is over?

While we are discussing suspensions, Marge Schott gets her year to try to convince anyone who cares that she is not a racist and really does care about her players. Those pictures of her hugging some of Cincinnati's African-American players only proves to me that she still knows how to exploit them.

Question: With baseball's wonderful formula, how short will Schott's suspension really turn out to be? (Hint: It will be a year or less.)

Paul Molitor is beginning spring training in a Toronto Blue Jays' uniform. After enough seasons with the Milwaukee Brewers to earn the nickname "Mr. Loyalty", he decided to take his dedication to a better (paying) organization.

There are very few players left in the majors that have played for only one team, but not for long. Kirby Puckett is always threatening to leave the Twins when his contract expires, and George Brett has maybe two years left.

Question: Are there any other players left in the majors with enough respect for the game to resist the temptation of some extra pocket cash with which they can carpet their dog house and stay with the team and fans where they started?

Somewhere amidst all the unserved and beginning suspensions, the racism, and the greed, Major League Baseball is about to kick off its preseason, which brings me to my final and possibly most important question.

Question: When does the NCAA tournament begin?

Doubles play sparks men's tennis team

By JONATHAN JENSEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team got a reprieve of sorts last weekend, as they took a break from the nation's toughest schedule to face two Big Ten teams in Northwestern and Illinois at the Eck Tennis Pavillion.

Saturday's change of pace was appreciated, as the Irish got some home-cooked meals for a change and picked up two easy wins, enjoying the success and gaining some confidence with a 6-1 win over the Wildcats and a 7-0 shutout of the Illini.

"First of all it was great to be home, and second of all it's good to get some wins under your belt," said senior Mark Schmidt, who won twice at #3 singles and once at #2 doubles.

A focal point for this weekend has been the doubles teams, as they all turned in outstanding performances. At one-doubles, Will Forsyth and Chuck Coleman picked up two more impressive victories, and after starting off the year at 2-3 the two have rattled off four wins in their last five matches.

"We've had surprisingly strong play at one-doubles," noted Bayliss, "It's been a big boost of confidence lately."

With the easy win against the Wildcats, the Irish were able to experiment with the Illini, and they got solid wins from senior Chris Wojtalik and freshman Mike Sprouse at two-doubles and from junior Allan Lopez and sophomore Horst Dzuira at the third slot.

"It really helps to beat someone decisively," stated Bayliss, "It's been a shot in the arm. I felt we were playing at a level that pleased me, but when you play a match and you lose, you still feel empty. We played #1 and #3 on consecutive days and lost both matches, but a loss is a loss."

The Observer/John Rock

Chuck Coleman and the rest of the Notre Dame men's tennis team rolled over Northwestern and Illinois last weekend.

The wins raise the Irish's record to 6-4, with the four losses coming to perennial powerhouses #1 USC, #3 Georgia, #8 North Carolina, and #11 Kentucky. Even though the Irish are satisfied with their play this season against such a tough schedule, it does help to win a couple of easy matches, as Bayliss and Schmidt

Women's swim team dominates to win third straight MCC title

By HALEY SCOTT
Sports Writer

The Irish swam well enough to win, but not as fast as they had hoped.

The women's swim team continued their reign as the Midwestern Collegiate Conference champions by capturing their sixth straight title this past weekend. The Irish scored 1183 points, ahead of second place Evansville who totaled 891 points. La Salle (770), Butler (518), Duquesne (493), and Xavier (405) rounded out the conference.

Senior co-captain Susan Bohdan swam one of the best meets of her four-year career with the Irish, and was encouraged by the team's performance. "I was pleased with how we swam and how we finished. We won a good amount of events."

Notre Dame did not only win events. Head coach Tim Welsh was named MCC women's coach of the year, and freshman Jesslyn Peterson won newcomer-of-the-year.

The Irish started their domination with four victories and a second place on the first day of the meet. Kay Broderick, a senior from Wayne, Ill, won the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:11.41, to break her own MCC record. Notre Dame's Rachel Thurston, Cara Garvey, and Kelly Walsh placed first, second, and third respectively, in the 50-yard freestyle. Freshman Mary Wendell joined the winning trio to comprise the 4x50-yard winning freestyle relay.

The 400-yard medley relay of Broderick, Peterson, Lisa Mancuso, and Bohdan also placed first. Finish out the first of three days of competition was Peterson, who placed the highest for the Irish in the 500-yard freestyle taking second with a time of 5:05.18.

Notre Dame continued to prove themselves the dominant team throughout the second day of competition. In the 200-yard medley relay, the team of Garvey, and freshmen Alisa Springman, Walsh, and Thurston placed first with a MCC meet record time of 1:50.99, two seconds faster than the record set by Notre Dame last year. Bohdan won the first of two events with a time of 1:55.50, in the 200-yard freestyle. She later went on to win the 100-yard freestyle, followed by Thurston at second and Peterson in third.

Junior Kristin Heath was also a double winner, placing first in the 400-yard individual medley and the mile freestyle.

"Kristin had an awesome meet. She looked really strong," said Bohdan.

The mile and the 100-yard freestyle were the only events Notre Dame won on the third day, but the lead they built on the previous days was enough to win.

noticed the "team's legs (kicking) looked tired throughout the weekend."

The Irish's focus now is the Eastern Collegiate championship meet this weekend at Cleveland State. "Hopefully with a few more days of rest our taper will kick in a little stronger, and we will swim faster," Bohdan said.

Most members of the swim team competed in the MCC meet and will compete at Easterns, but some ended their season over the weekend.

"It will be exciting to swim at Easterns with the people who didn't go to MCC's. They will bring a renewed spirit to the team," Bohdan said. Joining the team in Cleveland will be senior co-captain Tanya Williams, and sophomores Amy Betham, Lorrei Horenkamp, and Angie Roby.

Easterns will be the last meet of the season for most of the team. Williams will go on to compete at the NCAA championships after spring break, along with any other swimmers who may qualify this weekend. If the Irish are able to win the Eastern Conference championship title it will be the first time in three years, and only the second time a Notre Dame women's team has achieved such an accomplishment.
