Standoff over: fire destroys Waco cult compound

Fate of Koresh and followers unknown

WACO, Texas (AP) — The compound where cult leader David Koresh and 95 followers holed up for 51 days burned to the ground today after FBI agents in an armored vehicle smashed the buildings and pumped in tear gas. The Justice Department said cult members set the fire.

Eight members of the Branch Davidian cult came out, federal officials said. The fate of the group's leader and the other 87 wasn't immediately known. Twenty-five children were believed to have been inside.

Koresh had warned the FBI in a letter last week that agents would be "devoured by fire" if they tried to harm him.

The group had built some underground spaces beneath the complex but didn't have a tunnel system that would have allowed people to survive the fire, said Jack Killorin, a spokesman in Washington for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"It's a bad end and one of the ends we feared from the beginning," Killorin said. "Obviously suicide was a concern all along but the method was different, unexpected.'

In a briefing shortly before the fire started, FBI spokesman Bob Ricks had said authorities believed the tear-gassing was the best way to avert a possible mass suicide, because it would "cause confusion inside the compound."

Nearly 40 people left the compound before today, and Ricks said: "We have continually guizzed those coming out. And they, as a general rule, (said) that suicide — they believe — is not a possibility."

The fire began moments after an armored vehicle rammed one of the buildings as part of an assault that began six hours earlier.

At dawn, FBI agents in an armored vehicle, flying an American flag and with a battering ram attached, had begun ripping holes in the walls of the compound and pumping in tear gas. Agents were met by heavy gunfire but no injuries were reported.

The ramming stopped for a time. The armored vehicle resumed the assault shortly after 9 a.m. and again at about noon.

Then smoke began pouring out of several secondfloor windows. Within minutes, the wooden compound was engulfed in flames, fed by high winds. Huge clouds of smoke rose from the complex of interlocking buildings, and a four-story watchtower collapsed.

Eight people were in custody, two injured critically, one seriously and three with minor injuries, said Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern.

One of the eight told authorities that people inside the compound had set the blazes, Stern said. The see WACO / page 4

Only a few survived the devastating fire Monday that ended a 51-day standoff at the Branch Davidian compound outside Waco, Texas. There were believed to be at least 17 children under age 10 among the 95 followers holed up with David Koresh, who claimed to be Jesus Christ.

Tear gas barrage reflected sudden change of tactics

(AP)- The FBI said its patience hadn't run thin. But the bureau's decision to assault a Texas religious cult with tear gas and a battering ram — an assault that ended in fiery catastrophe - reflected at least an admission that 51 days of negotiations had failed.

It had been a long and frustrating road for the federal government from a botched firearms raid on Feb. 28 to Monday's horrifying blaze at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco.

In the intervening weeks, the FBI tried every negotiating tactic in its quiver. It struck deals that were broken; it pleaded and argued and threatened; it shined bright lights and played loud music.

All for nought.

Among the many questions facing the government now is why the tactics were suddenly changed from negotiation and psychological warfare to aggressive, physical confrontation.

"Today's action is not an indication that our patience has run out," FBI spokesman Bob Ricks insisted at a briefing Monday morning. "The action taken today, was, we believe, the next logical step in a series of actions to bring this episode to a conclusion."

Ricks said that after the FBI had sent an armored combat vehicle to ram holes and blow tear gas into the cluster of buildings where David Koresh was hunkered down with nearly 100 followers.

Not long after he spoke, fire engulfed and destroyed the compound. The FBI accused cultists of starting the blaze.

Robert Louden, a veteran hostage negotiator who teaches at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York, said the decision to use physical force against the Branch Davidians seemed logical.

"The overall strategy in these African American women share created the need for womanism, according to panelists at a discussion presented by the Feminist Forum and Women United for Justice and Peace entitled, "A Different Agenda: Feminism and Womanism.'

Womanism comes from the black women's experience, said Karen Harris, a Notre Dame junior.

"One critique of feminism from a womanist perspective is that feminism tends to just address white middle class women's concerns...Feminism assumes a 'universal feminism' which just doesn't exist," she said.

"Womanism begins as a conversation among women within the African American community...it is a celebration of who we are," said visiting professor of theology Rev. Joy Browne.

In answer to the need for representation of other ethnic groups within the feminist movement. Browne said that women of all ethnic groups, including Hispanics, Asians, and Native Americans, should articulate their own unique experiences.

Womanism addresses black women's experience, but it also encourages all groups of women to discuss their experience, according to Browne.

Tonya Callahan, president of Feminist Forum and a sophomore at Notre Dame, said there is a great need to address feminism at Notre Dame. She said that she sensed a great contrast when she came to Notre Dame.

"I grew up with feminism in my hometown in Massachussetts... and I felt there was a need for this meeting," Callahan said.

within culture and in time. Feminism is an analysis of women's experience within culture working for progressive change," said Gloria Jean Masciarotte, professor of English at Notre Dame.

"Feminism is a position which always struggles to analyze women's position. It is not a set label or identity, said Masciarotte.

Ava Collins, Director of Gender Studies at Notre Dame, said, "Defining feminism is like asking what the state of philosophy is. It is almost impossible to characterize it in one or two sentences because it is so diverse."

The problem with feminism for womanism is that it is often prescriptive, said Browne. "Feminism prescribes instead of consults," she said.

She added that feminism

I know this because I have been to Heartland l have seen them in their jeans that fit so snugly across their rears while flaring gently to drape over their designer stitched boots. I have seen the couple in the matching black and white cowprint skirt and shirt. And I have noticed that they take themselves seriously—very seriously.

I tried to keep an open mind. I attempted their ritual dances, but I was the one stepping on their feet when they shuffled forward as  ${f I}$ shuffled back. While I learned the intricacies of the cross step, they trampled me with their 180degree turn and three stomps. It was pretty easy to see which one of these kids didn't belong here.

And I was scared. My rugby had no western embroidery, and my Doc Martens did not pass as cowboy boots. I couldn't tell the difference between the Achy-Breaky Heart dance and the Cotton-Eyed Joe (should have taken up that video offer). I did not look like these people, I did not dance like these people and I did not like these people.

They didn't like me either. When a couple returned from the dance floor, the woman glared at me demanding "that's my chair." Never mind that four seats stood empty beside me; I should have realized these chairs were occupied because her husband's custom darts lay on the table. Twirling couples shoved me out of their way as they two-stepped past me. Bartenders ignored me. Would they have been so rude if it was not so obvious I didn't belong there?

Is it any less wrong (or more stupid) to hate someone because of the music they listen to than to hate them for the color of their skin, their sexual preference, their gender, their class and everything else we find to criticize?

Am I making this into a bigger issue than it really is? Probably. Western dancing doesn't have quite the impact as ethnic cleansing in Bosnia, riots in Los Angeles and the question of homosexuals in the military. But for one of the first times in my life I felt like a minority, and I felt threatened.

And it's an amazing thing what fear can do. do not like these people. I don't want to like these people. I don't care what they do for a living or whether they prefer Burger King or McDonald's. I've always considered myself unprejudiced and was proud of it. And what can I say for myself today?

Why did Rosa Parks ever sit down on that bus? Why did James Meredith even want to attend the University of Mississippi? What soldier would want to admit he is gay, what sailor that she is a lesbian? Because I don't want to go back to Heartland.

I have seen the enemy, and I fear it is me

Rally hopes to end ban on whaling

TOKYO — About 1,000 demonstrators carrying whaleshaped balloons marched Monday in Tokyo to press for an end to a ban on commercial whaling, as the International Whaling Commission began its annual meeting. Whale researchers from six nations gathered in Japan's ancient capital of Kyoto to discuss formulas for calculating possible catches in the Antarctic, commission officials said. In Tokyo, whalers, whale-meat restaurant owners and fishing industry workers staged a march to call for an end to the IWC's moratorium on commercial whaling. The IWC's scientific committee has previously estimated that the number of minke whales, a smaller variety, has risen to 760,000, prompting Japanese whalers to demand an end to the ban.

NATIONAL State officials shut down blood bank

SPOKANE, Wash. — A blood bank serving 25 hospitals in eastern Washington and northern Idaho was shut down by state officials after federal authorities uncovered alleged shortcomings in AIDS protection procedures. No tainted blood went to hospitals and there was plenty available Monday, officials said. Last week, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration halted its deliveries to hospitals in northern Idaho, alleged violations involving reinstatement of four donors who initially tested positive for the AIDS virus. A second screening showed the first test results were false. Based on the federal findings, the state Department of Health on Friday ordered the Inland Northwest Blood Center to stop collecting and distributing blood, said Mimi Nickerson-Johns, a department spokeswoman.

Couple pleads guilty to child neglect

EGENEVA, III. — The couple accused of leaving their two young children alone at home while they went on a vacation to Mexico agreed to plead guilty Monday to contributing to the neglect of a child. It wasn't immediately clear if David and Sharon Schoo would regain custody of their daughters, Nicole, 10, and Diana, 4, who have been in foster care. Under the plea agreement, the Schoos will each be sentenced to two years of probation and will perform 200 hours of community service, Assistant State's Attorney John Barsanti said in Kane County Circuit Court. The couple thus avoided being tried on 64 counts, including neglect of children, endangering the life of a child, aggravated battery, abandonment, cruelty to children and unlawful possession of marijuana.

Special to The Observer

The Board of Governance (BOG) discussed future events at the last meeting yesterday, according to Saint Mary's Student Body President, MaryBeth Wilkinson.

BOG discussed one upcoming event, Celebrating Community, which will take place April 25-April 26, Wilkinson said. This will include a workshop with alumnae and seniors, she said.

The highlight of the program will be the Commissioning Ceremony at the Church of Loretto at 7 p.m.,"said Wilkinson.

At the ceremony, new members of BOG, Student Activities Board (SAB), Student Academic Council (SAC) and Resident Hall Association (RHA) members will be commissioned by their past officers.

BOG created the new position of NASCCU representative, according to Wilkinson.

Melissa Whelan will serve as the new representative for next year's board, Wilkinson said.

'Before, we had Martha Marzolf acting in a dual position but with Martha graduating, we created this position and Whelan will keep Saint Mary's right in the group," said Wilkinson. In other business, there was a small amount of spending set aside for a future purchase, Wilkinson said.

With the organization's funding BOG plans to match the purchase of two stairmasters for Saint Mary's.

Polls show Italian vote to change system

off a political system that produced corruption and political gridlock, Italians voted by a landslide for electoral reform, results showed Monday.

The Observer

The landslide referendum vote paves the way for sweeping electoral reforms and the fall of yet another government, Italy's 51st since World War II.

It climaxed 14 months of revelations that have shaken the country since prosecutors began uncovering systematic corruption reaching the highest levels of politics and finance.

"It's not only a great victory, it is almost a cry of liberation,"

ROME (AP) — Seeking to cast said Willer Bordon, an official of the reformist movement Democratic Alliance, which battled for the referendum to be held.

Italians voted for a measure that would require three-quarters of the 315-seat Senate to be elected directly, rather than apportioned according to the percentage of votes received by each party.

Elections for the country's 630-seat Chamber of Deputies are also expected to be reformed, but will be tricky, since that will involve rewriting laws. Direct elections are expected to allow one party or an alliance of parties to gain a majority in the legislature and thereby eliminate the need for so many weak coalition governments, formed without voters' consent.

The Observer/ Brian McDonough

While the electoral change in itself will not eliminate corruption, it is expected that allowing Italians to vote for individuals will also reduce the influence of the money-hungry party barons who control the political system.

The power of the parties has been blamed in part for the corruption scandal, which centers on kickbacks for lucrative public service contracts.

Due to a sharp increase in the number of students who brought cars back to campus following Easter break, the D-2 student parking lot is overcrowded and students are being told to park in the C-1 lot, south of the football stadium.

"But, I don't want to see everybody shifting to the C-1 lot," said Phil Johnson, assistant director of Notre Dame Security and director of campus parking affairs. "C-1 is only for use when D-2 is full."

Students assigned to D-2 will be ticketed for parking in lots other than C-1, he said, including parking in the other student lot, D-6.

We have to maintain some order in the rest of the parking," said Johnson.

Johnson said Security is unsure of how many students are affected by the overflow of the lot, which has a capacity of 1,257 vehicles.

person said that as he left the building "he could hear above him people saying: 'The fire's been lit, the fire's been lit,'" Stern said.

Killorin said one of the people came out shooting, but Stern said it wasn't clear if that person had been in the compound.

FBI spokesman Nestor Michnyak said the tear gas used in the compound was nonflammable.

The assault was by far the most aggressive action taken by the federal government since agents raided the compound on Feb. 28. Four federal agents died and 16 were injured in shootouts that day, and cult leaders have said six of their members were killed.

At the briefing before the fire, Ricks had said: "At this point we're not negotiating. We're saying come out. Come out with your hands up. This matter is over."

Asked why the agents moved against the compound today, Ricks said, "Today's action was not a sign that our patience has run out. ... This was, we believe, the next logical step in a series of actions to bring this to a conclusion."

The FBI had previously said it was reluctant to use tear gas because of the danger it might pose to children.

There were believed to be at least 17 children under age 10 among the 95 followers holed up with Koresh, who has claimed to be Jesus Christ. Thirty-seven people, mostly children, have left the compound since the standoff began. Agents had hoped "the motherly instinct would take place" and the children would be allowed to go free, Ricks said. "Apparently they don't care about their children, and

Ricks said, federal agents telephoned the cult compound and warned one of its leaders that the cultists would be gassed if they didn't surrender. In response, he said, the person on the other end threw the telephone out the door.

At midmorning, cultists had hung a banner from one of the second-floor windows saying: "We want our phones fixed."

The siege began Feb. 28, when more than 100 Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents tried to arrest Koresh and search for illegal weapons at the fortresslike cluster of light peach-colored buildings east of Waco.

After reneging on earlier pledges to end the siege, Koresh had recently said he would give up after completing a manuscript that attempts to solve the Bible's Seven Seals, which hint at an end to the world.

The FBI spent the last several weeks removing debris and cars from around the building, eliminating possible cover for cultists and clearing the way for tanks to reach the walls.

kinds of situations are to try the best you can to negotiate it out ... and at the same time you're negotiating you're planning the 'what ifs' in case the negotiations don't work out," he said.

Louden said he couldn't speculate about what prompted the FBI to give up on negotiating, "but obviously something ... changed the mind of the incident commander."

The FBI — which inherited control over the Branch Davidian siege from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms — didn't say what that something was. But the negotiations were replete with frustrations and disappointments, any of which may have prompted a reassessment of tactics.

As it was, the tactics were changed several times.

For instance, on March 3, just four days after the siege began, Ricks was asked if the FBI was considering bright lights and loud music as a form of psychological warfare.

"We will not discuss tactics of

Within several weeks, the FBI had begun shining blazing stadium lights on the cult's compound and blaring tapes of loud music, dentists drills and snippets of the negotiations with Koresh himself.

Serb guns silent in Srebrenica; Muslims, Croats clash in Bosnia

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serb guns trained on Srebrenica kept silent Monday as U.N. troops worked to cement a truce for the east Bosnian town. But heavy Muslim-Croat fighting again convulsed central Bosnia.

U.N. officials said up to 200 people died in four days of combat in the central region. Both Serbs and Croats had "ethnically cleansed" villages in the area, said Shannon Boyd, a spokeswoman in Zagreb, Croatia, for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

In Tuzla, British military spokesman Maj. Martin Waters said the U.N. command confirmed fighting in the central towns of Zenica, Vitez and Kiseljak.

In the worst bloodshed, 13 people were killed Monday when seven artillery shells struck Zenica, 30 miles northwest of Sarajevo, Capt. Lee Smart, a British U.N. peacekeeper, said by telephone from Vitez.

Bosnia's BH news agency said a total of 16 died and 30 were wounded by Croat shelling of Zenica.

A two-day airlift from mostly Muslim Srebrenica ended Monday after French and British helicopters brought out 469 sick and wounded, emptying the town hospital. Patients had suffered for months without adequate medicine and care.

They were brought to Tuzla, a Muslim city 45 miles to the northwest. U.N. officials planned to start truck evacuations of all wanting to leave this week. Peacekeepers arrived Sunday after defenders signed a truce that amounted to a virtual surrender of Srebrenica — one of only three remaining Muslim enclaves in eastern Bosnia. A food convoy also arrived Monday.

Gen. Philippe Morillon, commander of U.N. peacekeepers in Bosnia, said his soldiers "can assure the survival and protection of the inhabitants. It's not a question of the U.N. forces administering the city."

He told France-Info radio the city was "spared from destruction ... This ... would have thrown the whole peace process into guestion."

Bosnia seceded from Yugoslavia in February 1992. Serbs fighting secession have seized about 70 percent of the country, seeking to create a "Greater Serbia." More than 134,000 people have been killed or are missing.

Under the cease-fire at Srebrenica, the area is to be completely demilitarized within 72 hours, said Cmdr. Barry Frewer of Canada, a U.N. peacekeeper spokesman.

Serb militamen were expected to move out of the Srebrenica zone. Muslim fighters, with nowhere to go, seemed to have no choice but to hand over their arms. After that, U.N. troops would be responsible for the town's security.

Many of Srebrenica's defenders resented the agreement, and it was unclear if the cease-fire would last. Scores of truces have failed to hold.

"If the Serbs give up their weapons, we will give up weapons," said Jakub Salihovic, 35, speaking from a hospital bed in Tuzla. "Our commander told us the last man will die fighting."

His wounded comrades, seated on nearby hospital beds, nodded in agreement.

Sarajevo, Bosnia's capital, was quiet Monday except for sporadic sniper fire.

But Croat-Muslim fighting further eroded the two groups' anti-Serb alliance. Muslims and Croat have fought together against Serbs in some areas, but clashed in districts containing few Serbs.

The fighting also threatened to choke the U.N. aid lifeline into central and eastern Bosnia by closing roads normally used to deliver the bulk of supplies.

Col. Bob Stewart, with British U.N. peacekeepers, said his men drew occasional fire as they tried for a truce and evacuation of civilians.

Russia, a traditional ally of Serbia, said Monday it might support tougher U.N. economic sanctions to pressure Yugoslavia to stop supporting the Bosnian Serb war effort.

Russia and China abstained when the U.N. Security Council passed a resolution Saturday to tighten sanctions on Yu-Serbia and Montenegro.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev ruled out outside military intervention apparently in an indirect warning to Western leaders now prepared to consider military action.

Jewish heroes remembered after 50 years

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - The heroism of the ragged Jewish fighters who rose to the doomed defense of the Warsaw ghetto 50 years ago was recalled with sirens, gunfire, smoke and flame on Monday.

"They had no chance, but they have won because in the history of mankind they will remain as defenders of the flame of honor," Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told thousands gathered to mark the 50th anniversary of the uprising.

Sirens, gunfire and the sound of trains screeching to a halt symbolizing the uprising alert, the fighting and the final deportations to death camps --filled the night air.

Billowing smoke recalled the inferno the Germans set to drive out the fighters.

Focus on ordinary, not outrageous, for gay march

WASHINGTON (AP) Organizers of what gay rights activists expect will be their largest event ever hope the public will look beyond the outlandish to the ordinary — the thousands of homosexual doctors, pilots and soldiers demanding to be treated equally.

Events that begin Tuesday in advance of Sunday's march on the nation's capital range from lobbying Congress and presenting solemn reminders of the toll of AIDS to a leather-fetish party, mass gay wedding and dragqueen show.

"For every one person who is somehow outrageous, there will be 100 just like the neighbors next door," said Scout, a cochair of the March on Washington for Lesbian, Gay and Bi Equal Rights and Liberation.

"What people will see is nothing more than hundreds of thousands of American citizens who have been denied their civil rights," said Scout, who has only one legal name.

Organizers predict as many as 1 million people will march on Washington to demand a national civil rights law for homosexuals, an end to the military's ban on gays and increased spending on AIDS research.

The march has been planned for two years. It took on new life, however, when President Clinton made the first moves toward abolishing the decadesold ban on gays in the military.

"If you don't march now, when would you?" Scout asked. The event should eclipse previous gay marches in 1979 and 1987, she said. Police said 200,000 attended the October 1987 march.

Organizers of some opposition groups, including the Christian Action Network and Concerned Women for America, said no major counter-protests were planned. One evangelical group, Transformation Ex-Gay Christian Ministry, plans to hand out religious tracts telling homosexuals they are in 'spiritual jeopardy.'

Washington's 22,000 hotel rooms have been booked for weeks because of the march, according to the local hotel association, and hundreds of inquiries are being referred to outlying hotels.

Participants were arriving Monday to begin a week of almost 300 events planned around the march.

There are meetings for gay men and lesbians who fall into dozens of subgroups: blacks, Latinos, pilots, Russian speakers; librarians, journalists, police, urban planners; Catholics, Lutherans, Jews.

There will be get-togethers for lesbian Republicans and a camp-out for gay military veterans.

begun for cystic fibrosis Gene therapy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have begun transferring normal genes into cystic fibrosis patients in an experiment they hope will lead to a cure for the most common fatal genetic disease in the United States.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute announced Monday that a pioneering effort using a modified cold virus to treat cystic fibrosis with a type of gene therapy started last Saturday, the day after the experimental procedure was approved.

A version of an adenovirus, a common cold virus, modified to carry a normal human gene was dripped into the nose and airways of a 23-year-old man who has cystic fibrosis.

"The patient is fine. There were no adverse effects. No fever," said Dr. Ronald Crystal, a Cornell University researcher who developed the gene therapy technique while working at the National Institutes of Health. "He had a big pizza for dinner last night."

Crystal said identification of the patient was being withheld. A second patient is in isolation awaiting a second try of the technique in about a week, he said.

The NIH and the Food and Drug Administration on Friday approved Crystal's application to treat 10 cystic fibrosis patients with the experimental technique. The experiment is being conducted at the NIH clinical center.

"This pioneering research marks the first use of gene therapy for a common genetic disorder," said Dr. Claude Lenfant, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. "If this approach works, we may finally see a cure for a defect in what is called the cystic transmemberane conductance regulator gene. This flawed gene interferes with production of a protein that controls the flow of salt through cells lining the airways. As a result, heavy mucous builds up in the lungs, leading to inflammation, progressive lung deterioration and eventually death.

The therapy is designed to correct the work of the flawed gene by using the modified cold virus to insert a normal gene into cells of the airways. The cold virus will infect the lung cells, but will not reproduce itself to cause a spreading infection.

"We hope the virus will transfer the normal gene into the center of the cells to compensate for the abnormal gene that these people have," said Crystal.

He said the transferred gene will be in the nucleus of the target cells, but will not become incorporated permanently into the chromosomes. Crystal said this means that the therapy may have to be repeated periodically.

Crystal said that the same dose will be used on a second patient within a week. Eight other patients will receive the therapy, at increasing doses, later in the year.

For the experiment, a cold virus was disabled so it could not cause infection and then was modified to contain a normal of the human gene which is defective in cystic fibrosis patients. ### BUSINESS BRIEFS

Chinese officials optimistic despite inflation

BBEIJING— Chinese officials announced sharply higher inflation figures Monday but continued to paint a rosy economic picture. Zhang Zhongji, spokesman for the State Statistical Bureau, released first-quarter figures that showed retail prices in China's 35 biggest cities rose an average of 16 percent from the first quarter of 1992. In rural areas the figure was 9 percent. The inflation figures were the highest in five years. Zhang said the economy's growth rate -14 percent in the first quarter - outpaced the government's declared goal of 8 to 9 percent, but said the actual rate "may be higher or lower than the target." He said per capita incomes are increasing on average faster than inflation -27 percent before inflation in cities and 15 percent in rural areas.

EEC moves to pump-prime economies ■LUXEMBOURG— European Community finance ministers approved proposals Monday to revive the depressed economy of the 12-nation trade bloc and create 450,000 new jobs over the next two years. They said in a statement: "The community has ... decided to change and renew the design of economic policies. The aim is to promote economic growth and employment in a balanced and sustainable way." The plan aims to boost economic growth by 0.6 percent in 1994. It forecasts that $42 billion will be injected into the economy as a result of the recovery package. The program stresses public spending for infrastructure projects and research. Priority will be given to trans-European transportation, telecommunications and energy networks. Europe's economy is in its deepest slump in decades. Unemployment is expected to hit a post-World War II high of 11 percent next year.

FDA opens up new markets for NutraSweet CHICAGO— Cake mixes, candy and low-alcohol beer could be the next products to display the NutraSweet swirl after the government approved new uses for the low-calorie sweetener aspartame. Monday's approval of aspartame in commercial baked goods and low-alchohol beer by the Food and Drug Administration opens up a broad new potential market for NutraSweet Co. and Holland Sweetener Co., another aspartame manufacturer.

Stock offering causes Chase stock to plummet

ENEW YORK— Chase Manhattan Corp. stock fell as investors worried that a new $750 million stock offering will dilute the value of their shares. The bank announced 8.5 percent higher earnings in the first quarter after several one-time gains and charges. Also on Monday, Charlotte, N.C.-based NationsBank Corp., the nation's fourth-largest bank, said its profits advanced 55 percent to $481 million, or $1.89 a share. NationsBank reported a substantial increase in outstanding loans.

Time Warner posts first-quarter loss

INEW YORK— Time Warner Inc. posted a loss for the firstquarter despite improved performances by each of the huge media-entertainment conglomerates's five divisions. The loss, announced Monday, broke a series of five consecutive quarterly profits but was due to changes in how the company must account for payments on the heavy debt load incurred in the merger that created Time Warner in 1990.

Group urges caution on Medicaid changes

INDIANAPOLIS— A group of human services organizations urged lawmakers Monday to reject some of the proposals to reduce the Medicaid deficit, saying the changes would add to the burden on Indiana's poor. The group specifically attacked a legislative proposal that would reduce the number of pregnant women eligible for prenatal and postnatal Medicaid assistance and one that would require patients to pay for a portion of certain services — so-called "co-payments." The group said prenatal care was an effective means to insure healthier babies and keep health care costs down in the long run.Since expansion of Medicaid eligibility for pregnant women and children began, the infant mortality rate in Indiana has declined from 11 percent in 1988 to 9.6 percent in 1990, the group said.

Biomet CEO speaks to club

By DAVID CLAIRMONT Business Writer

Most important to the establishment of a successful business is a timely entrance into the marketplace and the proper implementation of capital to meet the expected market demands, said Dane Miller, Chief Executive Officer of Biomet Inc.

In his Monday afternoon lecture, part of the Entrepreneur Club's lecture series, Miller discussed the establishment of Biomet, its work as a supplier of equipment to orthopedic medicine, and the relation of entrepreneurs to to the management and marketing portions of business.

Miller founded Biomet in 1978 with three other partners using $250,000 of their own capital and a $500,000 grant from the Federal Small Business Administration.

The company's sales have expanded from $17,000 in its pilot year to sales in 1992 of close to $3 million.

With half of its current production realized in the 'hardware" needed in joint reconstructions, Biomet's current expansion trends are toward the production of instruments used in orthroscopic surgery: surgeons' tools, electrical stimulation devices, and equipment used in repairing facial bones.

Materials Science/Biomedical Engineering from the University of Cincinnati, and his work before the establishment of Biomet gained him experience in the research and development of products for the biomedical industry.

His gradual shift from production to management responsibilities illustrated his belief in the importance of employing knowledgeable people at each level of a company's hierarchy and has earned him national recognition as one of this country's top CEOs.

A significant portion of Miller's lecture was devoted to the analysis of his experience in managing Biomet, attempting to explain his success in the industry.

Recalling the position of the his new company entering a well established industry in the late 70's, he pinpointed the gap which open in the marketplace when the United States Food and Drug Administration expanded its influence to cover the influx of new products available for use in the medical profession.

Miller explained that when regulatory adjustments, such as the USFDA's new policy, confront an industry, the larger companies are unlikely to respond to the varied competition introduced by new businesses.

This search for a market ncial bones. Miller received his PhD in promptly as the industry exhibits demand for new products. One should not necessarily expand as much as capital allows. One must avoid, he said, the "analysis-paralysis" problem, when companies spend so long in planning that the new market opportunities fill up.

The "people aspect" of business management prompted Miller to keep a watchful eye on the productivity of Biomet's employees. He emphasized that CEOs should place the highest value on their employees, their happiness in the workplace, and their productivity, and promote a creative work environment in which to nurture the spirit of the entrepreneur.

A company's important business decisions should be made, not by those at the top as is common, but by those Miller characterized as "in the trenches," working on the products and finding markets for those products.

He offered few formulas for quick success, but Miller said that, in making the transition to a managing partner, he found it necessary 'make to concessions" to those with more knowledge in particular areas and to use intuition only after substantially researching one's options.

As this sucessful man said, "I did a lot of looking and listening before I opened my mouth."

Financial mismanagement plagues Defense Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $81 billion Defense Business Operations Fund, which buys supplies from toilet paper to spare parts for the military services, is beset by widespread financial management problems. congressional investigators say.

"The Defense Department has not been able to achieve effective financial management and control with its present mix of knowledge, expertise and skills," the General Accounting Office said in a March 1 letter.

The letter was sent to the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., and the panel's ranking Republican, Rep. Floyd Spence of South Carolina.

Created in October 1991, the Fund consolidated nine existing industrial and stock funds operated by the military services and the Defense Department. Monday.

The Fund fixes the prices of items sold depending on how much excess cash is needed. The money generated is merged into one account.

For the current fiscal year, the Defense Department estimates that the Fund will have sales of goods and services of about $81 billion and assets valued at $126 billion. It will employ 360,000 civilian and military personnel.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a critic of the Fund, said last month that it is "a bookkeeping scheme devised by clever Pentagon bureaucrats to generate excess cash.'

The GAO found that the Fund's financial reports were unreliable. Specifically, there was a difference of $2.5 billion in the Fund's fiscal year 1992 financial and budget reports quarter operating profits surged to $530 million, a healthy performance ob-scured by a $4.7 billion onetime cost to account for future retiree health benefits.

The profitable quarter was the fourth straight for the No. 3 automaker, though the noncash accounting charge resulted in a loss of $4.15 billion, or $12.81 a share. Before the accounting change, Chrysler's per share earnings were $1.57.

Before-tax profits of $880 million were a company record. Adding an estimated million for the ong cost of future retiree health benefits, Chrysler's pre-tax income was just shy of $1 billion. In the first quarter of 1992, Chrysler lost $13 million, or 7 cents a share, including onetime gains for income tax accounting changes and the sale of $88 million in Mitsubishi Motors Corp. stock.

Senate debate stalls Clinton's jobs bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton expressed hope Monday that a compromise with Republicans will rescue his stalled jobs bill, but Senate leaders of both parties offered no hints that they were near a deal. the As

Senate ended 11-day an recess and resumed debating the measure, the White House said it might agree to alter the bill again. On Friday, Clinton whittled $4 billion from a bill that initially carried a $16.3 billion price tag.

Bill Clinton

"I think we have a chance to work it out and I'm hopeful,' Clinton told reporters.

At the same time, however, the president sounded a more combative note as he tried to rescue one of the prime pieces of his economic program from a GOP filibuster that has bogged it down since last month. Republicans have complained that the bill, which would be financed by federal borrowing, would needlessly inflate the budget deficit.

"Folks, this is the crowd that had the government for 12 years. They took the deficit from $1 trillion to $4 trillion. Have they no shame?" Clinton said in a speech to the Building and Construction Trades of the AFL-CIO.

At least some Republicans seemed ready to end what has become their fiercest clash to date with Clinton.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.. offered anew a compromise he proposed two weeks ago. trimming the package to about $9 billion and paying for many of its components by cutting existing programs. Only the $4 billion in unemployment benefits in the measure would be financed by federal borrowing.

"I do believe the time has come for both sides to move," he said.

Yet after Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-

Maine, discussed the measure privately with Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., neither man reported any progress in crafting a compromise.

With many senators not expected back at the Capitol until Tuesday, both leaders were eager to learn if any votes had shifted during their break and if there was anything they could do to win additional support.

Thus, Mitchell and Dole postponed from Tuesday until Wednesday a vote on whether to force an end to the GOP filibuster. Democrats, who have a 57-43 edge in the Senate, have fallen short three times of the 60 votes needed to end the Republican delays.

Chrysler's first-quarter sales were $10.9 billion, up 33 percent over $8.19 billion in the first quarter last year.

"We're pretty pleased with the results and looking forward to the spring market,' said Corporate Controller Jim Donlon. "This was done with winter weather and a blizzard. We're hopeful we can move on from here.'

Lehman Brothers analyst Joseph Phillippi said first-quarter Chrysler's earnings may be its highest of the year.

Coed dorms 'facilitate socialization'

Kurt Mills "On the Other Hand"

It was just over a year ago that the administration announced that Pangborn Hall would be converted to a women's dorm to accommodate the increasing number of women being admitted to the University. In response, a proposal was put forward by a group of students to convert it, instead, into a coed dorm. Even though the proposal was fairly moderate, it was turned down.

Why was the anachronistic policy of single sex dorms upheld? The answer must be considered along with another, very much related policy---parietals. Parietals, I have been told, have nothing to do with sex.

In other words, the motivation behind parietals is not to prevent people from having sex. Rather, it is intended to help regulate relations between roommates. In other words, parietals are intended to prevent one roommate from imposing on another roommate by having a member of the opposite sex in the room too late, and disrupting their ability to work or sleep or whatever.

There are several things wrong with this rationale. First, it seems to me that the administration should consider undergraduates as responsible, intelligent individuals who will be able to work out their ommate relatio nships for themselves, and if for some reason they cannot, that is what RAs and rectors are for. Second, having members of the same sex in the room after parietals can be just as disruptive; yet, this is not addressed within the policy. Presumably, roommates are able to work out these disruptions for themselves.

So, one might conclude that the policy does have something to do with sex. This administration, in keeping with its Catholic character, seems obsessed with sex, even going so far as having a provision for kicking people out for having sex outside of marriage. Yet, even the administration has recognized that a significant percentage of the student population is sexually active.

So, parietals could be part of a crusade to keep that number from increasing. And, of course, coed housing could only be seen as undermining their crusade to keep 8,000 undergraduates sexually frustrated by reducing the possibilities of any kind of contact between members of the opposite sex. As someone who went to a college where parietals are a foreign concept and where everybody lives in coed housing, I can assure the administration that coed housing does not reduce undergraduates to a bunch of sex maniacs. The housing situation was simple and direct: almost all dorm halls were coed.

In other words, there were men and women living on the same hall, and they shared the same bathrooms. The same was true in the on-campus apartments. Men and women shared all the same living and bathroom facilities. Of course, this was sort of disconcerting to some parents. But, as they saw their children living normally in such an environment they adjusted.

The living situation did not induce people to have more sex than they would have otherwise. Of course, people did have sex, just like here and everywhere else, but I doubt that the numbers increased because men and women had access to each other's rooms for an extra eight hours a day. And, the sex that did occur was probably more open and consensual than what occurs on a campus where men and women are held at arms length most of the time.

Which brings me to my next point. Part of the college experience is supposed to facilitate socialization into wider society. Outside of Notre Dame, people are, believe it or not, able to stop by and say hi to somebody outside of narrowly prescribed hours during the day. And, they do interact with each other in numerous (and non-sexual) ways which parietals and single-sex dorms inhibit.

At my college, relations between the sexes were much better than they are here. Part of this was due to the fact that those who attended (most importantly the men) were more open-minded and more predisposed to seeing members of opposite sex as real people with whom one could have a wide range of friendships and relationships. But part of it was the fact that the living arrangements allowed normal interaction and thus facilitated such perceptions. Notre Dame, by restricting such interaction, actually fosters the belief that men and women can only have relations which are sexual, and unhealthy sexual relations at that.

Two other points about the different ways in which undergraduates and graduate students are treated at Notre Dame will further point to the irrationality of current policy. First, there are no parietals in the graduate housing of Fischer/O'Hara-Grace (FOG).

Apparently, the administration trusts graduate students to be able to handle such freedom better than undergraduates. Second, one coed housing unit does exist on campus. It is called Peace House, and it is where 14 graduate students in the International Scholars Program of the Peace Institute live with each other for a year. There are two floors, and while they are usually divided between men and women, depending on the gender makeup of the program in a particular year, there may be one or two people living on the other floor.

I have known a number of people who have lived there over the years and none of them have indicated that the coed housing arrangements present major problems. It is proof, not only (like FOG) that parietals are not necessary, but that coed housing works at Notre Dame.

A lot of people are concerned about relations between the sexes on campus. Perhaps the administration should reexamine some of its outdated policies which actually hurt such relations, and consider new approaches, including coed housing.

Tuesday, April 20, 1993 Accent The future is Sky Blues

ND student Greg de Sousa, second from right, is a member of the up and coming band Sky Blues. The other members are Marc Ian Keslow, Jon Rubin and Cliff Rubin.

ND student's band holds great promise in the music world

By ROB ADAMS Accent Writer

Rocking the music world as well as the Notre Dame community, Notre Dame sophomore, Greg de Sousa, is member of the up and coming band, Sky Blues.

De Sousa is drummer of the rock band and is an art studio major who lives in St. Ed's Hall. Unfortunately, his band mates are from his hometown and are now spread out along the East Coast. De Sousa was attracted to Notre Dame not because of alumni connections, rather he realized the school had a good reputation.

"Well, I don't have any family alumni or anything, but Notre Dame was a big name school that I had always thought about going to," de Sousa said.

Besides his art and his love of sports, de Sousa owns a compact disc collection which has a wide range of music from Billy Joel to Lynrd Skynrd to Pearl Jam.

Since his fellow band members are on the east coast and he is not comfortable working with musicians outside of his band, de Sousa does not spend much time working on his music while at Notre Dame.

Sky Blues consists of three friends who grew up together: Marc Ian Keslow, the lead singer who also plays some piano and guitar and attends the University of Rhode Island, and brothers Jon Rubin (American University) and Cliff Rubin (NYU graduate) who alternate between guitar and bass duties.

Jon Rubin, Keslow, and de Sousa began the band in 1989, while attending Scarsdale High School to play covers and have some fun, but once Cliff joined the band, they became very serious about their music.

Summer is the only season these days when Sky Blues can be together for months at a time. The results are intense. Usually working in the studio for over 18 hours a day, the members of Sky Blues are workaholics. They have also spent vast amounts of time touring all over the East Coast, said de Sousa.

"We fly home a lot," said de Sousa, describing how he and his band mates manage to stay fresh even though they live in four different states. The four have been good friends since their childhood days in Scarsdale, New York. "We're very tight. It doesn't take us long to get back in the swing of things," said de Sousa. "We constantly write."

Dreamtown 1931, their first professional album, came out in 1991. The members of Sky Blues sold the album in front of Tower Records and began to get some industry names which helped boost their late 1992 effort, Temptation and Persuasion.

Since its release, Temptation and Persuasion has received nothing but positive feedback from fans and critics alike. Musician Magazine named Sky Blues one of the best unsigned bands of 1992 and they were recently chosen to be the subject of an up-and-coming bands profile on MTV.

Temptation and Persuasion is an album of rock-n-roll mixed with personal experiences and issues. One of the songs, "Strangled Heart," was written by de Sousa after he heard about the women's swim team bus accident. "I wrote it right after the crash," de Sousa said. "I was under a lot of pressure." Another song with interesting lyrics is "Company Man," which describes "our frustrations as a band," de Sousa explained. "We've been struggling with industry. They see us as kids and are out to rip us off."

With twenty-two new songs already written and ready to play, Sky Blues looks toward the future with the same positive attitude they've always had. "This summer we'll be touring the East Coast and the Midwest. Depending on how things go, we might take next year off to tour. Right now I'm just taking one semester at a time."

"In this business, if you're not cocky, you're doomed," de Sousa explained. "The music business is the hardest to get into. Whether it's this summer, next summer, or in three years, I think we're going to do something. All comments about our music have been positive."

Intense acoustics highlight Temptation and Persuasion

Sky Blues' newest release, Temptation and Persuasion, is a combination of hard rock and bluesy funk.

Amid candid samples and clever hooks, Sky Blues has created a fresh and inviting rock record with their second independent effort, Temptation and Persuasion.

"The Older I Get" opens the album with palpable bass licks, crunchy guitars, and a comfortable blues flavor about it. The lyrics are introspective and deal with becoming less wise with age.

Rock-n-roll veteran Sarah Dash lends some guest vocals on "Greener," which begins with intense folksy acoustics and then quickly breaks into an atmosphere of harmonious grunge. Dash, who has sung with Keith Richards' X-Pensive Winos, meshes nicely with Keslow as they cope with coming closer together.

"Fever in the Funkhouse" is painfully juicy as layers of funk are left to barbecue the song's playful lyrics. This is the kind of song one would listen to before going out.

Eerie lyrics brood throughout 'Strangled Heart,"

"Strangled Heart," which is told from the point of view of a______ struggling individual, as low valleys of mood collide with high points of explosive guitars. "Oh please can you help me Lord/From all the things I'm going through/Only if you can step inside of this/Young and lonely strangled heart of mine," read the lyrics.

The heartfelt tale concerning the trials and tribulations of a childhood television star is told through a ballad in "Child Star." The tone of mockery throughout the lyrics seems like an Americanized version of Morrissey's 1988 song, "Little Man, What Now?"

"The Warden" is a dark song from which flow emotions of isolation and hatred. As Keslow locks himself into the power-

Music Review

by Rob Adams

hungry character, guitars rumble and the drums burst into a powerhouse guitar solo, practically climaxing the entire album. "I'm in command/I am the boss/Don't you know who I am," read the outbursts of the troubled warden.

Through mixing traditional rock-n-roll music, socially-conscious lyrics, and unpredictable tidbits of funk and folk in between, Sky Blues has created an album to be listened to and enjoyed.

Dennis Cooper has made an impact that won't soon be forgotten on both the Saint Mary's swim program and his athletes.

The Saint Mary's tennis team, 8-3, lost their first chance at entering National competition last weekend at the Midwest Invitational in Madison, Wisconsin.

The Belles first lost to numberone seeded Carlton College, 8-1, on Friday. Later that day, however, they went on to defeat Washington University, 5-4.

Earlier this season, the Belles downed Washington at Hilton Head, 6-3.

Unfortunately, this one win was not enough to put them in the quarter finals.

'Carlton is a really strong team," explained senior Chris Smiggen.

"We haven't had much match experience since Hilton Head. We're not as match ready and we were real unlucky.'

After having their three previous matches either cancelled or postponed to a later date, the Belles were lacking in match experience last weekend.

Number-one singles player, junior Mary Cosgrove, however, rose to the occasion and stopped ranked Carlton player, Mona Shah, 1-6, 6-5, 6-4.

Number-two singles player, junior Thayma Darby, was forced to retire her match against Rachel Awery because of an injury, after winning her first set and leading the second 6-2, 6-5.

This injury onlt hurt the Belles more since they were already lacking in match-play experience.

singles play In against Washington University, Cosgrove downed Tara Salamore at numberone, 6-0, 6-2, Darby lost a hard fought battle against Kim Villena at number-two, 6-4, 7-6 (7-1), 7-6 (8-6) and Ayres beat her opponent, Ivy Brown, in a three set match at number-three, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

The Belles begin a long week of matches, beginning today as they travel to Albion College and continuing tomorrow at Valparaiso University. Saint Mary's can then be seen playing at home against Hillsdale College on Thursday.

Baseball sweeps past Duquense

By JENNY MARTEN Associate Sports Editor

The grueling schedule continues.

The 24th-ranked Notre Dame baseball team (21-8) disposed of Duquesne in a doubleheader yesterday and looks towards a doubleheader against Toledo at Jake Kline Field at 1 p.m. today.

The schedule is starting to wear on the players as the injured list grows. Eddie Hartwell didn't play yesterday after suffering a groin pull on Sunday while pitcher Marty DeGraff went down yesterday with an elbow injury which could be serious.

Greg Layson is still recovering from a foot injury and Paul Failla is banged up from doubletiming football and baseball. Pitcher Craig Allen is out for the season.

'I'm concerned about the injuries and I hope we can bounce back," said Notre Dame coach Pat Murphy.

'I don't know how we're going to do it. All we can do is go day by day and try out best to win each one.

One thing helping the Irish is that the hitters are hot. Notre Dame has ten batters with averages over .300 including eight who who have started 23 or more games.

Irish hitters had a field day yesterday as Notre Dame won the first game 12-8 in eight innings and the second 11-0 in five innings by the mercy rule.

Senior Eric Danapilis, who is hitting a whopping .500 on the season and has an 11-game hitting streak, went 4 for 5 on the day with two stolen bases, three runs scored and a tworun homer.

In the first game, the Dukes tied the game up at 7-7 with six runs in the seventh sending the game into extra innings, but the Irish brought five runs across the plate in the eighth for the 12-8 win.

Matt Haas went 3 for 5 with four runs batted in, a triple and two stolen bases while Craig DeSensi hit 2 for 4 with three RBIs and a double as the Irish amassed 13 hits and eight stolen bases in the game.

Haas who raised his average to .304 felt he is hitting better.

"I have a bad habit of jumping at the ball and I've been working with (Irish assistant coach Gary Tuck) at calming down," said Haas.

DeGraff (4-1) took the win with no hits and one earned run in 1.2 innings on the mound in relief of starter Tim Kraus (5.1 innings, 5 ER, 5 K). A.J. Jones and Eric Danapilis also saw time on the hill in the first game retired the next 14 while walking none and striking out four.

'I was really happy today with the way I pitched especially because I've been struggling this year. I finally pitched the way I'm capable of pitching," said Walania. Layson (3 RBI, 3 runs, 2 SB) went 3 for 3 with a double and Haas knocked in two runs while Topham notched a double.

League-leading Notre Dame upped it's Midwestern Collegiate Conference record to 15-

Today, the Irish face Toledo

(13-15) in a doubleheader which starts at 1 p.m. at Jake Kline Field.

Toledo is led by outfielder Trent Clark (.315), infielder Brian Smith (.289, 10 RBI) and outfielder John Torok (.287, 12 RBI). As a team, the Rockets are hitting .251.

The pitching staff is strong with a team earned run average of 4.02 and nine pitchers with more than five wins.

Toledo most recently split a four-game series with Ohio after defeating Harvard 10-0 earlier in the season.

Irish sneak back into Top 25

By JENNY MARTEN Associate Sports Editor

The Irish baseball team jumped back into Baseball America's Top-25 with a ranking of 24 after going undefeated last week.

Notre Dame fell out of the poll after losing three of four to Kentucky back in mid-March, but rejoined the top-25 after winning doubleheaders against Cleveland State and Duquense last week.

Joining the Irish in the ascent into the top-25 were Fresno State (17), Tennessee (19), Pepperdine (20) and South Florida (25) while Georgia, Arkansas, San Diego, Old Dominion and Miami dropped out.

The Hurricanes had been ranked in 63 consecutive polls. Notre Dame coach Pat Murphy is happy his team is ranked again.

"I'm glad we're back, but that (the rankings) is something we can't concern ourselves about," said Murphy's whose Irish have won 11 straight.

The Texas A & M Aggies are at the top of the poll with a 40-6 record for the second consecutive week.

Topham unofficially tied the Notre Dame record for walks in a game with five in the 12-8 win.

The second game was all Al Walania as the Irish won another 11-0 contest by the mercy rule.

Bookstore down to 64

By BRYAN CONNOLLY Sports Writer

The twenty-second annual Bookstore Basketball tournament concluded its two days of play in the Round of 128 yesterday with high intensity and excitement but few actual upsets.

Two Second 16 teams, All the President's Men and Turkish Prisoners, were ousted from the tourney Sunday, inflating the number of defeated seeds to seven.

All the President's Men, captained by University president Monk Malloy, fell 21-19 to Woody and Four Other Stiffs, a second year team which lasted to the Round of 64 last year.

Facing a deficit of 17-14, Woody and Four Other Stiffs refused to give in by pulling off a 7-2 run and scoring the final four points of the game.

"I thought we had a chance," said team member Jason Woodward, "but I was a little surprised we pulled it out. We played together as a team."

Led by captain Chris Bartoli's nine points, Hot Fudge: As Sticky As They Wanna Be strongly surpassed Turkish Prisoners, 21-13.

"We shot the ball really well and our defense set the tone for the game," said Bartoli, whose team was eliminated in the Round of 64 last year.

There wasn't that much disparity between the teams," he added. "It was a lot tougher than the score indicates."

'They're definitely a good team," said Turkish Prisoners captain Doug Descalzi. "I feel they should have been seeded as well.'

Although the Round of 64 doesn't officially commence until this afternoon, one rescheduled contest took place at Stepan last night.

Powerful Top 16 squad Corby's II outlasted the resilient Yo Mama's Cookies, 21-15. Opening the second half down 11-3, the physically overmatched Yo Mama's Cookies took advantage of its superior speed and quickness to outscore Corby's II 12-10 in the second half.

Corby's II, however, relied on football player Mark Zataveski's strong inside play to maintain its lead and hold on for victory.

"They're definitely a good team and their height gave us some problems," said Yo Mama's Cookies player Chris said Yo Hammond.

Women's golf finishes season strong

By TIMOTHY SEYMOUR Sports Writer

The Irish women's golf team had its highest finish of the year this past weekend, ending its season with a strong fourth place showing at the Purdue Invitational. The Irish were led by junior Crissy Klein, whose two day total of 158 earned her seventh place individually.

Coach Tom Hanlon had expected a good showing at Purdue this weekend, and his predictions proved to be accurate, as the team's 36-hole total of 663 placed them behind Wisconsin (621), Illinois State (638), and Illinois (640), all of which are respected regional powers.

Klein's tournament of two consecutive 79s marked it as her best of the season. "I was really encouraged by Crissy's performance. We are definitely going to rely on her next year," noted Hanlon.

Senior Kathy Phares ended her college career on a high note, using a two day total of 161 to earn a ninth place finish.

"She's been my most consistent golfer for four years, and is really an outstanding person. I hate to see her go next year,' said Hanlon of this year's captain.

Unfortunately for the Irish, the rest of the team was unable to come through with good enough rounds to place the squad higher in the standings.

After Klein and Phares, Katy Cooper was the next highest finisher, carding a 171.

The team was rounded out by Denise Paulin (177), Katie Shannon (178), and Sara Ruzzo (191).

The lack of consistency after

Senior captain Kathy Phares led the Irish in her last tournament.

the first two spots has been a problem for the Irish all year long.

We threw away a lot of shots, and the puts just weren't dropping. Our short game was a problem," explained Hanlon.

Reflecting on the season as a whole, Hanlon was frustrated by the inconsistency, but encouraged on the whole as to how the team fared against tougher competition.

victories over Big Ten bv powers such as Iowa, Michigan and Michigan State, and regional powers such as Southern Illinois, Nebraska, and Kansas.

The fact that the Irish can now compete with these programs, and that they are closer to knocking off traditional powers Indiana and Ohio State are tributes to how far the program has come in its short existence.

Belles run, jump and throw to 5th

By CHERYL GILLILAND Sports Writer

After struggling to score earlier in the season, the Saint Mary's track team proved to be a strong competitor on Saturday at the Carthage Invitational.

The Belles placed fifth out of eleven teams by scoring 55 points. University of Wisconsin-Parkside won the meet with 201 points.

"This was a very competitive meet because most of the teams there were Division III," said head coach Larry Szczechowski. were happy with We everyone's performances. A lot of people set personal records and season's best.'

An outstanding performance came from freshman Michelle Wenner, who placed third in the 1500 meter run with a PR of 5:02.59.

"It was a really great day. Everyone ran hard and did Wenner said. She also well." placed fourth in the 800 meter run and helped the 1600 meter relay team to a fourth place finish. She contributed a team high of 11 points for the day.

Senior Jennifer Kaniecki, a first year track member, placed third in the 10,000 meter run and set a PR of 48:36.00.

Softball making a strong pitch

By TEDS PETERSON Sports Writer

The Notre Dame softball team's two victories on Sunday featured the same basic storyline: Team gets early lead. Pitching takes over. Roll the credits.

While this might not make the cut as Hollywood movie material, it's a perfectly acceptable way to win games.

The Irish geared up for a series of MCC games with a doubleheader sweep of LaSalle at Ivy Field, winning two very similar games, 4-0 and 3-1.

Strong pitching was the key for the Irish (21-11) in both games, with freshman Terri Kobata starting and picking up both wins, and senior Staci Alford relieving each time to record her third and fourth saves of the year.

"I wouldn't usually start Terri in both games like I did Sunday," explained coach Liz Miller.

The Observer/David Hungeling Terri Kobata (center) won both games for the Irish.

"She had never done that before and was a little apprehensive. But the weather conditions were warm enough, and we thought that it would work against LaSalle, so it was no problem.'

With the sweep, the Irish (3-1 in MCC) continue to show improvement at a key point in the season, as they prepare to face three league foes this week. The team has now won 3 games in a row and 11 of their last 14.

In the first game, Notre Dame jumped out with a run in the first inning, as shortstop Christy Connoyer (3 for 3, 2 runs scored, stolen base) scored on Andrea Keys' (2 for 3) single. The Irish scored three times in the third, taking advantage of an error to score the first two, then adding their final run on second baseman Michelle Cline's RBI single.

The pitching took it from there, as Kobata allowed no runs and only one hit over the first four innings while striking out eight and walking none. Alford was just as effective relieving over the last three innings, giving up merely two hits to complete the three-hit shutout.

Game two began in much the same fashion, with the Irish taking a first inning lead once again. Notre Dame scored single runs in the first, second, and sixth innings, as Connoyer and senior Casey McMurray (2 for 3) each drove in one run. Sophomore catcher Sara Hayes went two for four with a run scored and two stolen bases.

Kobata (9-3) started again, pitching five scoreless, one-hit innings and striking out eleven hitters. This outing extended her scoreless inning streak to 23 and lowered her alreadyminute season ERA to 0.86. Alford again picked up the save, closing out the final two innings of the 3-1 victory.

The Irish are headed for three important MCC road match-ups this week, as they visit Loyola (IL) today, then take on defending league champ Detroit Mercy on Saturday and Evansville on Sunday.

Notre Dame has won 11 of its last 14 games to iimprove to 21-11.

Saint Mary's swim coach throws in the towel

By BETH REGAN

Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Dennis Cooper, the Saint Mary's swim coach of the past five years, threw in the towel, so to speak, and will not be returning to coach at Saint Mary's next fall.

The combination of early morning practices, regular evening practices, weekend meets, and a full time job did not allow Coach Cooper Cooper to spend time with his wife and four children, forcing him to announce his resignation Wednesday. "It was a very difficult decithe Belles.

"It will be difficult to hire the most qualified person because the athletic department at Saint Mary's is unable to offer any coaches full time positions due to lack of funds," commented Nestor.

"It will be extremely difficult for me to give up coaching all together," said Cooper. "A full time coaching job would have eliminated the juggling of the two schedules which could have allowed me to continue.'

Prior to coming to Saint Mary's in the fall of 1988, Cooper coached a private competitive team in Indianapolis. He swam for Indiana State University where he set three school records and went on to be the assistant coach of that team after graduation.

Although saddened by Cooper's decision to resign, the staff and swimmers at Saint Mary's understood his need to do it.

"I think that we knew that it was coming," said sophomore Katie Northup. "Everyone just hoped it would be at the end of their own senior year."

"We didn't think he was going to be here forever, but we didn't think that we'd lose him next year," freshman Jennifer Mitchell added.

Cooper's efforts were appreciated by Saint Mary's Athletic Department, however they knew that he could not keep going at such an incredible pace, according Nestor.

"I can't even begin to describe the amount of dedication he's put into this program," said Nestor. "Not only does he put in an incredible number of hours, but he also supports the mission of the college to the maximum."

Dennis Cooper will leave one family at the swimming pool

The Saint Mary's swim received team some disappointment at a team party this weekend when head coach, Dennis Cooper announced that he will not be returning next season.

Dennis was not perfect. Like most coaches, he sometimes had difficulty controlling his temper. He was known by the Belles, other teams and even the lifeguards at Rolfs for his red-faced, spit flying, vein popping yelling fits.

Fortunately for the team, however, the good times with Dennis far outweighed the bad.

As a Division III coach Dennis didn't earn a lot of money, nor did he receive much recognition for his efforts. Instead, he coached because he loved the sport and he instilled this love in each of his swimmers. After being out of the sport for four years, he inspired me to love it again,' said freshman Jen Dyjak. "He gave me the motivation to want to be good.'

While there were some who were not surprised by announcement, the everyone was saddened by it. Somewhere in the middle of all of the practices, meets and traveling, Dennis earned not only the respect of the team as a coach, but also as a friend.

"He is a unique coach in that he sees more than the aspect," competitive explained sophomore Tara Krull. "Often the central

"Perhaps if they were older it would be different."

The director of the Saint Mary's athletic department Jo-Ann Nestor, Cooper, and two Saint Mary's swimmers will form a committee responsible for hiring the future coach of

After marrying, Cooper decided to reduce his coaching to part time and took a job as a publishing consultant at Computerland, where he presently works.

The Belles thrived under Cooper. He took the team to nationals two times out of his five seasons at Saint Mary's. Cooper also coached four academic All-Americans and one NAIA All-American during
