

Burtchaell releases co-ed proposal

University Provost Rev. James Burtchaell presented a comprehensive proposal for coeducation to the ND-SMC Co-education Coordinating Committee at its meeting last Saturday at Laughlin Lodge, Michigan. The group had called the meeting to discuss problems, ideas and plans surrounding the co-education issue at Notre Dame.

Burtchaell's proposal was the highlight of the three-session, twelve hour meeting. Although he chose to withhold comment on the plan, preferring to wait until he receives written reaction from the committee members, informed sources revealed the substance of the plan in broad outline.

The sources claimed that the Burtchaell plan, which was presented by the Provost at the end of the meeting, cited five points which he believed to be essential to coeducation: social, academic, financial, personnel, and buildings.

Of these five points, sources claimed Burtchaell

James T. Burtchaell C.S.C., University Provost, released his proposal for a co-ed ND-SMC. The plan includes co-ed social, academic, financial, personnel and building plans.

considered three critical: academic, personnel and buildings.

In considering academic questions, the majority reportedly believed that there was no reason to initiate an experimental college such as the one described in the Runde plan, which would concentrate on a humanistic approach to education as opposed to a graduate school orientation. Many of those in attendance felt that it would be more beneficial to incorporate the two academic programs into one.

Maintenance of the experimental college is not feasible since it would probably not accommodate more than 300 students and these students would have to have the same basic education as all of the other students before they could enroll in the special college's courses, sources said.

In presenting the plan, Fr. Burtchaell reportedly stressed the need to reorganize the two campuses to profitable use all of the space. It is reported that he suggested consolidating the departments of education, economics, sociology and psychology into one social studies department quartered in one building. Burtchaell allegedly advocated moving Notre Dame's fine arts departments over to Moreau Hall at St. Mary's and re-allocating space in the Notre Dame library so that the St. Mary's library building could be used for another purpose

by Ed Ellis

Jim Riebandt, Flanner Hall junior and WSND sports announcer, announced his candidacy for Notre Dame Student Body President last night. His running mate will be Vince Connelly, a Walsh hall resident.

Jim Riebrant

Riebandt said that the theme of his campaign would be the need for a change from the policies and personnel that have run Student Government for the past few years. He stated, "The average student is unhappy, bored, and this is due to inadequate leadership over the past year. It's time for a change."

Criticizing the Krashna Administration specifically Riebandt said that it "didn't catch the tempo of student life." He cited excessive bureaucracy for part of the problem, and said that the students at Notre Dame are "overrepresented."

Decentralization proposal planned

The newly formed Student Senate Constitutional Committee last night in informal session debated four departures from the current Student Government Constitution. Included was a proposal to abolish Student Government for a year.

The proposal, raised by Sorin Hall Senator and former Executive Coordinator Chuck Ryan, would have all branches of student Government, including

It elected, he said he would push for the elimination of the Student Life Council, because the SLC and other such bodies at ND have ignored the real cares of the students.

"We have to give the students a chance to find themselves. This is what a University is for."

As specific platform points, Riebandt said that he would work for the elimination of all student government bodies as they now exist, and the formation of a Council to be based on the Hall Presidents Council. Included in the new body will be the officers of the four classes and an elected representative from each residence hall on campus. This, he said, would be a "catch-all body," to be responsive to all segments of the student population, as opposed to the myriad of groups that now exist.

On coeducation, Riebandt says that the situation demands "quick and positive action." He wants coed dorms and eating facilities as soon as is feasible, and a complete merger of Notre Dame and St. Mary's in the very near future. He also said he favors none of the particular programs now under consideration.

Also suggested is the return of the Honor Code, although Riebandt would revise the Honor Council as existed in the old Honor Code. He said that the return of the Honor Code was "necessary for Community Development."

Another platform point is Greater Notre Dame-South Bend cooperation in self-help and volunteer programs, and the establishment of a student mall similar to the one proposed by the Student Government Committee for Social Understanding. According to Riebandt, the CSU "got bogged down in bureaucracy," and "just fell upon itself."

The Riebandt-Connelly duo will go door-to-door seeing as many people as possible during the four-day campaign.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Krashna.. Students must attend

by Fred Schaefer

"If there is not a sizeable student representation at the General Assembly tonight, I won't even convene it. There will be no need for it," said SBP Dave Krashna last night.

He continued, "It won't work if only 1000 students attend. That many people can't speak for the whole community. If the students don't come, it's their own hard luck.

"This assembly is giving students a chance to voice a strong opinion on where the University

SLC starts report on hall life; shelves Appeals change

by John Abowd

The Student Life Council decided yesterday to send an interim report on Hall Life to the Board of Trustees and to initiate a "major investigation" of student residency which would be completed by the end of the semester. In its meeting Monday afternoon the board also discussed a proposal to amend the appeals process of the Judicial Code.

SBP Dave Krashna's motion calling for "The University and the SLC to make a major investigation with special emphasis on the relationship between off-campus and hall life" passed the council by a vote of 23 to 1. The proposal also called for submission of a report by the SLC subcommittee on Hall Life to the trustees.

The trustees have requested a report on the "Parietal experiment and hall life" in time for their March meeting.

Fr. James Shilts' discussion of the Hall Life Subcommittee's problems in assembling the trustees' report triggered the move for an expanded investigation. Shilts noted that his three man committee "didn't have the manpower" to assemble the report called for at the last SLC meeting.

Krashna suggested the expansion of the Hall Life report calling it, "An excellent opportunity to work up a major study of the whole question of hall life."

Mr. Philip Facenda expanded this suggestion to include submission of the Hall Life report as an interim report with the understanding that a major study was being undertaken.

He called for a "professional study possibly including the Sociology department and graduate students."

Hall Presidents finish budget

by Bob Higgins

The Hall President's Council last night allocated to individual halls $1300 of the $3000 it received from Student Government last fall. The remaining $1700 will be used to finance An Tostal Weekend.

Executive Coordinator, Fritz

Hoefer, announced that five halls were awarded money based on their financial statements and proposals submitted last month. The halls receiving money and their proposals were: St. Edward's $250 for chapel renovation, Pangborn $300 for the remodeling of a television room, Howard $180 to construct a ceiling in the hall's basement, Sorin $370 for the Extension of the Food Sales Room and the construction of a new residence room in the basement and Stanford $200 for a series of renovations, including a television room, lounges and a study room.

Stanford hopes to use its money as a bargaining factor in obtaining a substantially larger sum from the University for its extensive improvement plans.

St. Edward's was the only hall to have its proposal cut. Part of the earlier proposal of $450 called for the continuance of wine and cheese nights with faculty members. Hoefer explained that the HPC did not feel that it would be just to finance individual hall social gatherings.

In other business, the HPC's letter concerning coeducation which was unanimously approved in last week's meeting was withdrawn as a proposal to be aired before the General Assembly.

It was the general consensus of the Presidents that the letter did not read like a proposal, nor was it ever intended to be a proposal, thus the presidents felt it was in the best interests of all concerned to withdraw the letter.

Student Body President Dave Krashna addressed the Presidents and urged them to represent and encourage their constituencies' participation in the upcoming General Assembly. Stating that "I will not call the assembly to order if there are only 500 in attendance"

Krashna stressed the role of the Hall President in not only encouraging involvement on the hall level, but also in coordinating the individual delegations.

When questioned as to the expense of the General Assembly, the Student Body President replied that the cost was over $400 and "would come from the Student Government Administrative Budget."

Krashna announced that the Student Life Council has decided to do a study on hall life sometime in May. Details have not yet been made public.

Also, a Police Conference will be held at Notre Dame from March fourth through sixth with city, state, local, and our own security force participating.

Judicial Code alterations tabled at SLC meeting

"Every major group I have been associated with has wanted to conduct a major study of hall life," Facenda noted.

SBVP Mark Winings proposed an amendment to the Judicial Code which would have allowed students disciplined by the Dean of Students under the "imminent danger" clause of the code to have their first hearing in front of the all student "University Board."

Presently the action of the Dean of Students when operating under this clause is reviewable by the "Tripartite Appeals Board" which consists of students, Faculty and administration.

Winings noted that his proposal was necessitated by the controversy surrounding the suspension of a student arrested during last semester's drug raid. He also noted that he and other students realized that the outcome of this amendment couldn't affect past action.

In a printed statement, Facenda, Vice-President and General Counsel, called the amendment an alteration of "the agreement upon which the present Code is founded."

"It is assumed that they (the students) agreed to this provision in order to obtain all student hearing panels on the majority of cases," he said, in referring to the original wording of the Code.

Winings withdrew the proposal because he thought that the consideration of this amendment was being construed as an attempt to interrupt the procedure in the current controversy.

The SLC also discussed the nature of the interim report on Hall Life that it had agreed to submit to the Trustees. Shilts said that he had polled twenty hall rectors and twenty hall presidents for their opinions on parietyals and alcoholic beverages.

He noted that only half of the replies have been submitted and that no attempt was made to contact any representatives from St. Mary's. The preliminary replies indicate that extension of parietyals is favored by most of the respondents.

HLC asks for B-ball tickets

The Hall Life Commission of the Notre Dame Student Government and the Neighborhood Study Help Organization are running a campaign to bring 80 children from South Bend to the campus for the Notre Dame-NYU basketball game on February 23. Both tickets and cars are needed.

According to Channing Brackey, one of the organizers of the drive, 80 student tickets are needed for the game. They can be turned in at the Convocation Center Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week. The operation will be similar to that used for the Georgia Tech football game this year, when over 700 students turned their tickets in.

Also needed are 20 drivers willing to pick the children up at Lincoln and Harrison High Schools at about 7 pm, and return the children to their homes at about ten-thirty.

Anyone wishing to volunteer to drive or who wants further information on the project should contact Bruce Bower, at 807 Flanner (1488).

Valpo falls to Austin Carr-rooom

by Joe Passiatore
Observer Sportswriter

Prolific Austin Carr came out smoking and with the help of crowd-pleasing Sid Catlett and sturdy Collis Jones, Notre Dame rolled to a lopsided 100-75 win over inferior Valparaiso. Carr, who left the game with 3:49 remaining, poured 46 points through the hoop. Austin hit a remarkable 17 of 24 from the field and a sterling 12 of 15 from the free throw line.

Notre Dame coach Johnny Dee reacted in complacent fashion to the win. Coach Dee commented, "It was a good win. We're in the midst of a long stretch and trying to play them one at a time." When asked if it was tough for the Irish to get up for an unheralded Valparaiso team, Dee admitted, "Yes, I supposed, but then maybe if we played 20 easy games like Marquette does, then everyone would be happy."

Notre Dame led 45-35 at the half mainly on the basis of lightning quick fast break triggered by either Catlett or Jones. Carr accounted for Notre Dame's first six points while Valpo retaliated with some outside baskets by John Wolfenberg and the clutch inside shooting of center Lynn Seyfert. Despite Notre Dame's 53% shooting from the field in the first half, the Crusaders kept it close and were down only 33-39 with 5:58 left in the half. At that point, Valpo coach Bill Purden expressed his displeasure with an out of bounds call by flinging a towel onto the court. Carr made good on the technical and by intermission the pressing tactics of Notre Dame and Johnny Egart, in particular, had stretched the lead to ten.

Valparaiso could find no respite in the second stanza, either, as Carr continued to pound away, aided by an occasional bank shot by Collis Jones. Driving down the lane or hitting from outside, Carr was relentless and with 10 minutes gone in the second half the Irish had boosted their lead to 76-56. Valparaiso, meanwhile, was only able to generate an offense with the aid of goaltending calls on Sid Catlett. Before Sid sat down with 7:17 left he had been tagged with three goal tending calls.

Coach Dee emptied the bench with about three minutes remaining, and Austin Carr, who must have been arm weary after all that shooting, retired to a standing ovation. Statistics bore out the aggressiveness of Jones and Catlett on the boards as they totaled fourteen and ten rebounds, respectively.

When questioned about Notre Dame's impending battle with Fordham at Madison Square Garden, coach Dee replied, "I'm sure it will be a tough game, they're another team in the top ten. This is the seventh time this season we've played a team in the top ten." Dee clarified the status of John Pleick by saying, "I wanted to give him five straight days off, so he'd be ready to play against Fordham. Whether or not he starts depends on the individual match-ups."

Finally, when asked if Austin Carr had turned in one of his better performances, Dee answered, "I don't know, it's hard to say." Which gives you some idea of the kind of year Austin is having. 30

Doug Gemmell hustled for five rebounds in the first half to help the Irish break away from Valpo. He scored on his only field goal attempt.

Leprechauns win again

by Terry Shields
Observer Sports Editor

The Notre Dame freshmen rolled on to their ninth victory of the season last night in the preliminary match before the varsity game. The Leprechauns outclassed a smaller Valparaiso team 81-58. It was the losers seventh loss without a win. ND is 9-4. John Shumate and Gary Novak combined for 45 points in leading the frosh in the rout. Shumate had 23 markers and nine rebounds playing sparingly in the second half when frosh coach Tom O'Conner substituted freely. Novak was the leading rebounder in the game. The 6'6" leaper had 12 caroms to his credit to go along with 22 points.

The frosh coasted through most of the game. They built a ten point halftime lead over the winless Crusader frosh and took it from their in the second stanza to clinch the gamewith nearly ten minutes remaining.

Bob Valibus had only three points in this contest but the potential varsity star moved the Leprechauns offense well and he threaded the ball home to his teammates eight times for scoring plays.

Neither team shot exceptionally well from the field. ND hit 41.9% of its shots but also hit a good 76% from the charity stripe. Valpo was inept whether the shot was from the field or the foul line. The Crusaders shot a dismal 34.7% from the floor and only 42.1% from the free throw mark.

The halftime score of 32-22 was increased methodically throughout the second half. Shumate, Novak and Tom O'Mara all hit well after intermission. It was particularly brilliant to see O'Mara, the slender Californian, come back from his ankle injury to connect on three of four shots, all of the spectacular variety.

The big difference in the game can be seen by looking at the rebounding stats. ND pulled down 69 rebounds, nearly double the Crusaders' 38.

The Leprechauns floor game was a bit shoddy as they committed 26 turnovers. Valpo made only 17 errors, one of the few statistics that the rivals from down the toll road bettered Notre Dame.

Rich List was the only Valparaiso player to reach the double figures. The young Crusader hit eight field goals and one charity toss for 17 points. The remainder of the Valpo scoring punch was non-existent.

The Irish frosh must now travel to Champaign, Illinois for a match-up with the Illini frosh. Illinois had a good recruiting year last season and its freshmen are one of the more promising crews in the Big Ten.

The ND frosh have been hot and cold during the season showing signs of brilliance (e.g. versus Marquette) but also having a few bad evenings (versus Ball State). If the Leprechauns can get a bit more consistent they can finish up their season with an impressive win streak and some good promise for next year.

Voices from the Crowd

Sports Editor:

This is about a coach. A coach here at Notre Dame. He's come in for a fair amount of criticism in his time, and maybe we should look at the record, and then decide if this criticism is warranted.

He came to Notre Dame with a pretty good reputation, and he took over a team that had a proud tradition, but not much else. In fact, they were having a hard time winning as many games as they were losing. So he went to work.

You have to give him credit for one thing, he did a tremendous recruiting job. He got players to come to Notre Dame that you might have guessed were going out to the west coast to play their college ball. But he convinced them that Notre Dame was on its way to being a national power, and pretty soon, it looked like Notre Dame was.

The Irish began to move up in the ratings. Our games were in demands by the television people; and tickets became a real status symbol, particularly for the big games. And the reason: all of a sudden, Notre Dame was going into every game knowing it could win. So everything was fine? Right?

Well, not quite. A lot of people, in fact, were kind of unhappy with the coach. They would grant you that he had brought some great players here, but with all those players, why couldn't the team ever have that one great season. Why were there always those games when somebody who had no business even staying close to us would beat us. Like Michigan State, or that team from Indiana.

And then there came this year. This was the team that nobody was going to beat. This team had the best ballplayer in the country, or so it was said. He wasn't real big, as players in this sport go, but he could do it all. Well, even with him, somebody still found a way to beat us, and make it look easy. So it's got to be the coach's fault, right?

And look at post-season play. How many years had it been since Notre Dame was involved in that. But this coach put together a team that's been invited twice in a row. But do you remember that first year. When it was over, Notre Dame had come out of things a loser. And with that team. How could it be anything but the coach's fault. I mean, it just has to be.

So here is this coach, and this team. A good team, sure. Better than most? Well, you might ask that coach from the west coast, or the one down south, who've both lost to Notre Dame teams coached by the guy I'm talking about. But what of it? Shouldn't we expect more than an occasional victory over a big team from this guy. Hasn't he failed to get the most out of his players? Don't you think he should be fired?

Well, if you do, you've been pretty quiet about it. Because the guy I'm talking about is Ara Parseghian; and as for the things I've said about his record, well, as Casey Stengel used to say, "you can look it up."

ESP; or Extra-Sensory Pollution

Physicists tell us there are three basic forces at work in the universe: matter, energy and chopped liver.

But I, for one, am no longer satisfied with this narrow definition. How do physicists classify ESP? Certainly it falls into none of these categories, but just as certainly it exists. And not as a mere theory; ESP is a proven, demonstrated fact.

For example, how many times have you walked into a place you never saw before and yet recognized everything? How many times have you known the exact words someone was going to say before he ever said them? How many times have you been absolutely certain something was going to happen hundreds or even thousands of miles away and, sure enough, it did?

Let me tell you about a case I am fortunately able to document. Some years ago I went fishing with my dear friend Donald L. Fromkiss at a virgin lake deep in the Canadian wilds. It was hellishly difficult to get there, but we did not mind, for the moment we dropped our lines we each caught a splendid crappie. Mine weighed just over 300 pounds. Donald's was somewhat smaller, but by far the friendlier.

Imagine my surprise then when, before we could throw our lines back for another try, Donald suddenly leaped up and cried he'd had a premonition that he must go home immediately. He could not tell me why. He only knew that some one or some thing was calling him back and he had to go at once. Apologizing profusely, he left me alone on the lake and portaged to the nearest town (Moose Jaw, well over a thousand miles, and poison sumac every inch), and there he chartered a Ford Tri-Motor and flew home.

Well sir, at first he felt like an utter dolt. Everything was perfectly normal at home. His wife Edith was quietly reading The Sensuous Woman. His son Herschel was taking his daily glassblowing lesson. His dog Trey was eating his leash.

And yet the premonition would not leave Donald. Carefully, he went through the house, inch by inch, room by room. Sure enough, when he got to the back hall he suddenly heard a faint whimpering noise outside. He flung open the door. And there, by George, he saw where the whimpering was coming from: someone had left a basket on the back stoop!

Well sir, who can blame Donald for crying a cry of joy and triumph? What a find! A whimpering basket! That's something you don't see every day, let me tell you!

And so today, as you know of course, Donald L. Fromkiss and His Whimpering Basket is one of the highest paid acts in show business. Next Sunday, in fact, he completes his 84th consecutive year on Ed Sullivan.

As for me, I too was a beneficiary of Donald's ESP, for when he left me alone on the lake I figured I would get to drink all—not just half—of the goodly supply of Miller High Life Beer we had brought along, and as you know of course, Miller High Life is never so welcome as it is on a tranquil sylvan lake while a flock of Canada geese darkens the sky above. Of course, Miller isn't bad in a noisy bar either while a flock of American coeds darkens the jukebox. For that matter, it's even great in the dorm while your cruddy roommate darkens the tub.

But as it happened, I never did get to drink all our Miller High Life because I forgot how well sound travels across a sylvan lake. No sooner did I pop my first can of Miller when—lo and behold!—ten Mounties galloped out of the forest singing selections from Rose Marie! Of course, I shared my Miller with them, and gladly, because I know it's hard being a Mountie, especially if you're an alto. And so by the time they polished off my Miller and said adieu, we were all fast friends. One of them, in fact, let me slide down his hat.

* * *

We, the brewers of Miller High Life Beer and the sponsors of this column, are like the Mounties in one respect: we too always get our man—that is, if our man wants a beer that always makes it right—Miller High Life, the Champagne of Beers!

According to those at the Michigan meeting, Burtchell termed his most important point the relinquishing of control of the college by the Sisters of the Holy Cross, just as the priests of the Holy Cross did at Notre Dame a few years ago. Although conceding that they have spent a lot of time developing their investment, the vice-president was said to believe that it would be best for them to surrender control of the college.

In the closing minutes of the meeting, the proposal was said to have received a majority of votes from not only a united Notre Dame student-administration faction but also from St. Mary's administration. Sources said however the majority of SMC students attending voted against the proposal.

At the morning session, heads of different departments such as admissions, counselling, and academics discussed the possibilities of merger. Discussion also centered on the uniqueness and identity of St. Mary's. Most participants claimed surprise when a majority of representatives indicated their belief that St. Mary's no longer has a uniqueness to maintain.

Student Union, shut down for a year.

In addition to the Student Union, the proposal would effect the Student Senate, the Cabinet, and the Student Body Presidency. Only the Hall President's Council would remain unaffected.

The Committee was evenly divided in an informal vote count on the proposal taken shortly before the Committee adjourned. The vote was 7-6 in favor of the motion on the eighteen-member committee. Five members were absent.

"After a year without student government, we may all have a better perspective with which to work," Ryan said in introducing the proposal.

The move met with the opposition of off-campus Senator Steve Flavin. He contended that a move to abolish Student Government might result in the termination of the University's accreditation. Flavin also suggested that the continuity he believed necessary in Student Union would be abrogated by such a bill.

Ryan's proposal also met questions from Senators Sauer of Stanford, Clarke of Grace, and Treanor of Badin. Clarke feared that there might be "unknown consequences" while Treanor suggested that "there are too many things Student Government has yet to do for the students for the body to abolish itself."

Dillon Senator L. Franklin Devine proposed that negotiations for a new constitution be delayed until a joint Notre Dame-SMC committee is able to negotiate one Constitution for both Colleges. Devine also proposed that student Government be scrapped in favor of what the Dillon Hall Sophomore termed a "town-meeting type of Government."

Devine contended that "Notre Dame is small enough to support such a method. This would bring power back to the halls. There's no need for this size of bureaucracy in this small of a place."

Committee Chairmann Tom Thrasher, a stay Senator from Grace Hall, introduced a proposal to replace Senate election with what he described as a "selection-by-petition process."

More busses go on shuttle run

Jerry Johnson, Notre Dame Shuttle Bus Coordinator, said yesterday that an extra shuttle bus would be added to the Notre Dame-St. Mary's route on an experimental basis from now until Easter. The extra bus will run from 10 am to 2 pm only.

The new bus would increase the frequency of the buses from every 15 minutes during the day, to every ten minutes. Buses will leave SMC at ten after the hour and every ten minutes afterwards. They will leave the Notre Dame Library at five after the hour and every ten minutes afterwards.

Students are asked to cooperate by using the bus at the least crowded times.
