Last night's meeting of the SLC

HLC resolution wins will go to Hesburgh

by Fred Schaefer

The Student Life Council last night voted 16-8 to adopt two parts of its Hall Life Committee report, setting up sanctions for assault, larceny, and the sale or distribution of drugs, and suggesting that the halls be allowed to determine their own parietal hours.

The proposal will now go to University President Father Theodore Hesburgh for action. If he takes no action, it will go before the Board of Trustees October 22. The existing rules on parietals will be in effect until the SLC's proposal is approved.

The minimum sanctions for assault and larceny will be disciplinary probation for at least one full semester, if the proposal passed.

The proposed section on drugs reads: "The selling and or distribution of drugs-the penalty must be no less than suspension from the university for at least one full semester. We recommend that the Dean of Student or the University Board in meting out more than the minimal penalties, should consider a difference in the intrinsic hazard potential between marijuana and other narcotics."

The committee had considered disciplinary guidelines for the use and possession of drugs, but agreed that rather than disciplinary action, attempts should be made to rehabilitate the individual before any other steps are considered.

The committee also reported, "Where drinking and parietal hours are concerned, we believe that no minimum guidelines can be recommended because of the very broad spectrum of possible violations of the present rules. Moreover, we believe that there are properly matters to be handled by the hall."

They then reminded the halls to "construct rules that are in accordance with Indiana State Laws." The SLC adopted the committee-sponsored move to drop that rule number five, concerning parietals, in the Student Manual, despite the objections of Dean of Students Rev. James Riehle. C.S.C. Riehle contended "The recommended changes are beyond the scope of the committee. They exceeded their responsibility, and are completely out of order. The changes suggested are too broad for us to consider in one and a half hours." Instead of Rule Number Five, the SLC adopted a resolution contending that, each hall should be allowed to set the policies it feels are most appropriate to develop and maintain the good order of that hall. These would be subject to approval by a supervisory board (e.g. the Student Life Council, the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees) which would give approval contingent on that individual hall showing maturity, responsibility, and the ability to use this freedom wisely."

Resolutions of the SLC

Recommended Disciplinary Guidelines Under Existing Rules and Judicial Procedures

The Notre Dame Community feels that the following offenses seriously harm it and its members:

- 1) Assault
- 2) Larceny
- 3) Selling or distributing drugs.

Assault and larceny merit no less than disciplinary probation for at least one full semester.

The selling and-or distribution of drugs merit no less than suspension from the University for at least one full semester.

We recommend that the Dean of Students or the University Board in meting out more than the minimal penalties, should consider a difference in the intrinsic hazard potential between marijuana and other narcotics.

The Committee considered disciplinary guidelines for the use and possession of drugs, but agreed that disciplinary actions would not be the proper procedure in this area. Rather, every attempt should be made to rehabilitate the individual before any punitive steps are considered. Where drinking and parietal hours are concerned, we believe that no minimum guidelines can be recommended because of the very broad spectrum of possible violations of the present rules. Moreover, we believe that these are properly matters to be handled by the hall. However, we recognize that certain actions that take place within a particular hall may effect the university community as a whole, and we wish to remind the halls of their duty to construct rules that are in accord with Indiana state law.

Recommended Changes in the Rules

No specific recommendation is made at this time to change any Rule other than Rule Number Five. However, the Committee suggests that the Student Life Council, as a body at large, consider as soon as possible the implications of Rule Number Seven, page 24.

It is the view of this Committee that University Rule Number Five, stated in pages 23-24 of the Student Manual, as presently constituted, deals with matters which concern the good order of the individual hall and therefore University-wide rules are not appropriate. We recommend that this rule be deleted.

Instead, in regards to visitation, each hall should be allowed to set the policies it feels are most appropriate to develop and maintain the good order of that hall. These would be subject to approval by a supervisory board (e.g. the Student Life Council, the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees) which would give approval contingent on that individual hall showing maturity, responsibility, and the ability to use this freedom wisely.

Upon reasonable evidence of general noncompliance with the hall's stated policies, the supervisory boards shall have the authority to impose restrictions or restrict hall privileges.

This is a general principle which would apply to all matters of good order in the hall and the same procedures outlined above should be followed.

Rubin decries schools, Nixon, Attica, hard drugs

by W. Dennis Duggan

A stoned Jerry Rubin last night denounced the American school system, calling it a "fraud" before well over a thousand people in Stephan Center.

Rubin described the high schools and colleges of America as babysitting agencies where our parents send us to keep us out of trouble. He said they operate on the Pavovian response principle where everyone is conditioned to salivate on command. He also described the testing methods of our educational system as something similar to the excretion processes of the body. To steel ourselves against the corrupting influences of the system, Rubin suggested that, "People should smoke dope all the time they are in school."

Rubin related his recent experiences in Attica, New York where he posed as a criminology student from N.Y.U. He termed the Attica deaths as "pure murder" and said he had evidence that three prisoners were removed from their cells after the uprising and executed.

Rubin described the village of Attica as the closest thing to Nazi Germany that he has seen but it is still a pretty normal town except that Blacks aren't human beings there. He suggested that Governor Rockefeller be indicted for the murders that took place at Attica.

Rubin was especially critical of President Nixon, accusing him of packing the Supreme Court, and suggesting that all mental hospitals be opened up, setting the patients free, and putting Nixon in. He said that our political goal should be to simply defeat Nixon. His plans for 72 call for, "Doing to the Republicans what we did to the Democrats ...Just like Chicago."

SLC passes hall autonomy bill

It continued, "Upon reasonable evidence of general non compliance with the hall's stated policies, the supervisory boards shall have the authority to impose restriction or restrict hall privileges."

The one part of the Hall Life Committee's report that was not immediately accepted was sent back to the rules committee. It concerned changes in the existing judicial procedure.

That section suggested that a case would go to the hall judicial board, in consultation with the Assistant Dean of Students and the rector, instead of going to the Dean of Students, as it presently would according to the section, the board would then determine if the case warranted a trial, and who the trial should be handled by, either the hall board or the dean of Student of the University Board.

Professor Edward Cronin objected to the report, contending "The students of several years ago weren't responsible enough in regards to the Honor System. They really blew the Honor Code. I don't feel that the students are any more mature now." He also expressed the fear that with the individual hall determining parietals, "There will be 20 rules for 20 separate halls, and Notre Dame will no longer be a community."

Floyd Kezele defended the report, saying "We want to bring it back in to the halls, and make it more of a hall matter."

SMC representative Missy Underman also spoke in defense of the 3-page document saying, "The administration feels that parietals are a gift to be given to good students, I feel they are the right of a student."

University Vice-President and Board of Trustee Phillip J. Faccenda said, "I question if the committee has thought through the position. Our present (judicial) system is ridiculous, but this is beyond ridiculous. It leaves me speechless." He questioned if hall boards would turn violators over to the St. Joseph County Sheriff.

SBP John Barkett commented, "I'm satisfied with the way it went. I hope the proposal will be accepted. The logistical details it implies can be worked out. Some people's fears will be disproven if the halls are given a chance."

WSND FM presents hour of international culture

Lyn Leone

James O. Sullivan from London, England, has announced that, beginning this Sunday, WSND will devote one hour each Sunday to International Culture. This program will be broadcast from 4:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

The purpose of this show, according to producer Sullivan, is twofold: first, to provide an entertainment voice on the Notre Dame campus for the students, international as well as American, and, second, to give the international students an opportunity to share what they have to offer to the Americans in the way of culture.

There are 351 foreign students who represent 51 countries from all 6 continents who have come to Notre Dame, not only to benefit from American education, but also to give something of their customs and traditions to the Americans.

Sullivan feels that the foreign students are rarely given a chance to express themselves socially, politically, or culturally, and hopes that this weekly radio program will provide a means for them to do so.

"After all", contends Sullivan, "we must preserve the international flavor which has so long been the hallmark of the university system."

Army to drop 65,000 officers and men

(C) 1971 New York Times News Service

Washington, Oct. 14—The army announced Thursday that it would release approximately 65,000 officers and enlisted men from active duty by June 30 to comply with a congressional order to cut its manpower to 92,000 for fiscal year 1972.

A Pentagon announcement by Secretary of the Army Robert R.

Froehke said that most of those to be released would be persons operating in categories in which the army is or will be over-strength or who would have been leaving the military shortly because of expiration of their terms of service.

Pentagon officials said the reduction plans call for the release of approximately 36,000 draftees, 24,000 volunteers, 4,000 reserve officers and approximately 400 senior grade officers, mostly majors and lieutenants.

The army announced the following release procedures:

--Continuation of the early release program initiated last month in which servicemen in the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands (including Vietnam returnees) with five months or less service remaining are eligible for discharge from the service.

--A similar release program covering first-term enlistees with 60 days or less service remaining.

--Involuntary dismissal of enlisted personnel eligible for retirement who have passed the mandatory attrition point for the next higher grade.

--Release of officers who score in the lower 10 percentile on efficiency tests.

--More difficult reinlistment examinations for non-commissioned officers.

--Separation of first-term enlistees and retirement-age officers who have been reassigned to jobs at military posts close to their homes because of pressing family needs.

The army's manpower strength was 1.12 million July 1,

The beginning of fiscal 1972. This was 150,000 more than the average strength in fiscal 1971 and 56,000 fewer than requested by President Nixon for 1972, according to Pentagon officials.

But cutting 65,000 personnel will not automatically bring the army in line with congressional mandate.

In approving the army's fiscal 1972 manpower budget, Congress stipulated that the department's average 12-month strength not exceed 92,000.

The department's strength July 1 was 1.12 million and its personnel in August totaled 1,074,431.

This means that manpower levels in subsequent months would have to dip well below 92,000.

Barkett contends:

Hesburgh letter untimely

Bill Sohn

Student leaders seemed to be generally in doubt as to the meaning and purpose of Fr. Theodore Hesburgh's letter to the student body.

Student Body President Hohn Barkett said that he was not sure what Father Hesburgh was attempting in his letter. He added, "I kept reading, expecting something new, but it didn't come." Also he felt that while the letter might be necessary in two weeks, it wasn't yesterday.

Orlando Rodriguez, Student Body Vice-President, said he considered the letter a good one but it contained nothing new. He also felt, "I don't quite understand what the letter was intended to accomplish." However, he suggested that it would have been better if the letter had been sent to the Alumni and Trustees.

Ed Motto, H.P.C. Chairman, said that he didn't see any necessity for the letter. He felt that the letter was open and did have a good point in that parietals shouldn't be the only topic. However, he also felt that, "it only summed up where we are, not where we are going." He added that the letter should have been written a month later, after the Trustees had met.

Ombudsman investigates Indian Lake coupons

The Ombudsman staff has initiated an investigation into the Indian Lake Company of Madison, Wisconsin, which sold discount coupon booklets to Notre Dame students last fall.

The investigation, being conducted by Tony Catino, has turned up the possibility that enterprising students fabricated the Indian Lake Company, selling the coupons and promising a refund if unused, without ever intending to make themselves available to unsatisfied customers.

Contacts with stores who placed the coupons in the discount booklet and with Madison's Consumer Relations Board have failed to identify either the company or the coupon salesmen.

Students who didn't use any of the coupons are eligible for a refund but will not be able to collect unless the sponsors are pinned down.

Anyone with constructive information can contact the Ombudsman's office in the Student Government Offices at 7638.

The Triumph

Hallelujah. Or as the ad hoc committee might say, halleluhia. The SLC in a session remarkable for its courage, its judgement, and its decisiveness, spoke up for the right of students to determine their own private lives, and for the right of the SLC to determine the rules of the University. Because the SLC acted with courage last night, everybody won -- the students who want to live unmolested by remote potentates, the responsible members of this administration, who want the school to be free from useless Trustee interference, and levelheaded sober discussion.

In short, it was a triumph for the University as a whole. For this University will never function if a board of alien businessmen find it necessary to ride herd on the SLC. We hope the Trustees will keep this in mind October 22.

It wasn't easy for the SLC to be as strong as it was. It would have been a far more simple thing for the Committee to abdicate to the Board of Trustees. All they would have had to do was to produce some abysmal stupidity like the ad hoc report, bow, and sit down. But the Board showed that it valued honesty and good faith more than it valued ease and security.

Special credit goes to two men who used their experience on the Hall Life Committee to reorganize their thought on this whole issue -- Rev. Thomas Chambers and Professor Peter Thornton. Although both men signed their names to the ad hoc committee absurdity, both men voted for the resolution the SLC finally accepted. Professor Thornton was particularly eloquent in arguing for its passage.

It wasn't easy, either, for student opinion to render itself as organized, as dignified, and as disciplined as it did this time around. There are student politicians, past and present, who would have used this incident as a launching - place for empty rhetoric and meaningless gestures. Let it be noted that this year's student government used it as a launching - place for constructive action.

So, what have we learned from this session?

That the SLC is never going to be blustered out of its usefulness.

That rational discussion and openness is invariably more effective than lung calisthenics and verbal napalm.

That the University is serious about making this place a good place in which to live.

We can only hope that the Trustees have learned something from this, too. We can only hope - and wait - and play it as it lays.

Editor:

This letter is a desperate attempt to convince you of the danger involved in passing girls up the stadium stands. I am speaking from experience. I've never had a fear before of going to a football game until just this year.

My plight is shared by at least 15 other Saint Mary's girls who have "been around". We sit in a row near the field, or should I say, "the passing zone". We are sandwiched in by two rows of ND "men".

Towards the end of the fourth quarter, we find that these "men" are not watching the game anymore, but us. The look in their eyes isn't that of friendliness either, more like that of a dog that hasn't eaten for a month. A shout from above comes, "Send 'em up! So I yelled back, "Send who up?" Before I knew it I was on my way up.

Everyone started yelling "Over the wall, over the wall!" in sheer madness. I have no fear of going over the wall-rather in getting there. I do NOT consider myself a human football to be passed around. As I found out, many "men" didn't think of me as a football either. So listen, ND "men", if you want it, that is NO WAY to get it. I realize that the ratio is not exactly perfect. But please don't take your frustrations out on me or by BODY. We are not objects, but people like you, too.!! I am not a women's libber either, just a normal Saint Mary's chic- (yes, one of those). So please, just leave me ALONE- and watch the game and keep your hands to yourself.

Gratefully yours,
Prudence Purebody

you can't kill Beerslayer's spirit

Beerslayer's Last Hurrah

With much sorrow I report the following:

BORN: Northwestern Weekend 1970 season

DIED: Time of death unknown -- approximate time: in between Michigan State and Oct. 14

CAUSE OF DEATH: Martyrdom resulting from the misunderstandings and misconceptions of his purpose by fellow students

NAME: To some -- "flaming fairy," "a-----," or "flaming gaper"

But to the people who knew and loved him: "THE GENTLE AND LOVING BEERSLAYER"

To whom it may concern:

Upon reappraisal of my position in life, I have come to some of the following conclusions. The present standard that many members of the student body have assigned to my person is, in my opinion, far from the actual purpose that I assign to myself. Beerslayer was created at a time when spirit at Notre Dame was at a low ebb. He was born to encourage more than cheering at a football game or pep rally -- he was to represent the meaning behind those cheers. My feeling at the time was that many students sang the Fight Song and cheered only because the person next to them was doing the same. Beerslayer sought to put meaning to those cheers. He was not created for an ego trip; he was created with a goal and a purpose. No matter what your feelings about that purpose are, it is more than can be said for some people or some activities around here.

While some may have considered me an a----- motivated strictly by exhibitionist egotistical tendencies, I have always believed myself to be a clown. Surprisingly as that may be, clowns are human and do have, contrary to popular belief, emotions.

Though some of the descriptions of my character may possibly be true -- it's essential to recognize the differences between an "a-----" and a clown. An a----- is one who is a self-centered exhibitionist whose purpose is to raise himself to a level of noticeability at the expense of the people around him. A clown is a people-centered person whose only purpose is to make people laugh, smile; in short, feel joy towards themselves and especially the people around them at the expense of himself.

In an attempt to hold true to this definition, I often find my own emotional makeup overcome by the ultimate desire to express humor. Unfortunately, this seems to be not only my strength but also my weakness. Humor did, indeed, control my actions during halftime of the Michigan State game. I realize now that instead of bringing humor to many, in fact, I defeated my own purpose by disrupting the band. At this time, I'd like to apologize for this unfortunate incident. But more importantly, I wish to apologize for the detriment to the one thing that brought me here to ND, and that I have existed for, namely: the Notre Dame Spirit. I now realize that when one begins to destroy the one thing he loves -- it's time to quit.

On my deathbed I make only two small appeals:

First: that those who knew and loved me will at times look back on the happier moments and think about the laughter and smiles I brought to them.

Second: to those who I may have insulted by my questionable activities, I ask only one thing: forgiveness

At this time, I'd like to will my relics to those people that have created and destroyed me: I will my

1. Red, white and blue rally sneakers to my roommate to whom they always belonged.
2. Red leotards to G-Man -- may he put them on and break his own "God damn legs."
3. Mask to those people who hide behind themselves and can't respect those who are willing to be themselves.

4. Finally my cape -- I will this most cherished remains to all those who can always love a clown.
Special thanks to Beerslayeress who stayed by my side in my hour of need.

Good-bye Notre Dame!
I'm off to join the circus,

poco & 'liv' - versatile innovation & confusion

During the past decade, pop music has experienced temporary aches, then outgrown numerous fads and passing fantasies. America's ears have been bombarded by a multitude of fusions of various idioms with rock: folk-rock, psychedelic-rock, blues-rock, soul-rock, jazz-rock, classical-rock, and country-rock.

Poco was one of the innovators of the country-rock movement. But their versatility and creativity prohibit them from being branded country-rock and fading with the trend. They are a highly competent quintet, too diversified to adhere to the limitations adopted by the multitude of artists who jump on the bandwagon and ride with it outside the boundaries of what's fashionable.

Poco music has expanded to incorporate intricate Latin rhythms, plaintive blues renditions, experimental techniques, sophisticated and contrapuntal harmonies, and sophisticated phrasings and lyrics.

New York music critic, Al Rudis, on Poco: "Poco's music, no matter what they may think, isn't country. Poco is too original to fit into the country bag. It has the country flavor, of course, but seasonings don't make a meal."

Another critic confirms this opinion: "Poco seemed to have been a trend setter in adopting country rock, but they and it were only passing through a phase. "What Poco is doing now, just as what C.S.N.Y. etc. is doing, what John Sebastian and Laura Nyro and a dozen others are doing now, isn't really rock. It isn't folk or showtunes either. "Poco and lots of others are headed off in a new direction that we can call good music, for lack of a better word."

Poco music is created by Richie Furay on twelve-string guitar, Paul Cotton on electric guitar, Rusty Young on pedal steel guitar, George Grantham on drums and Tim Schmit on bass. They all double as vocalists and composers.

Pete Johnson, L.A. Times reviewer, says: "All are capable musicians, and the singing combinations are terrific."

The high, flexible voices melt together in delightful harmonies and separate for strong solos

"Poco is also one of the tightest groups I have seen; coordination which obviously stems from endless practice and good feelings within the combo.

"The band seems to be the natural heir to the originality, diversity, and togetherness which marked the beginnings of the Byrds and the Buffalo Springfield, Southern California's two best folk-rooted rock groups so far."

Livingston Taylor is like sunshine trying to intrude into a permanently rainy day. He doesn't really belong, but he persuades his environment to accept him with his persistent warmth and effervescence. He possesses a naive child-like quality with which he builds mythical castles in the air and then devours them with logic.

'Liv' Taylor is balatantly honest and honestly confused. He is super, second, Scorpio, extremely talented. And, at 19, the youngest member in a family of three brothers and one sister. All the family are into music and brother James Taylor has already established the family name within the popular music field. Father Taylor is Dean of the Medical School of the University of North Carolina. A simple observation, typical of Liv, reflects his family in the lyrics of an early composition entitled 'Carolina Day' following here:

Alex and Brent are loving their child
 James is becoming a star
 Kate's laughing all the time
 And my brother Hugh's out wrecking the car
 My mother smiles thinking isn't it fine
 That her children love again
 Louis my best friend
 Falls on by
 We're all together again

As an artist 'Liv' will succeed because he has all the finer qualities that build understanding. He's hungry for knowledge, he works to communicate, he has ambition, humor, energy and exceptional talent. His songs reflect all these qualities with a simple awareness.

we're on time if you are

The concert-goer at Notre Dame is infamously late. To those of you who do not fit under this stereotype, a big "Thank You" is extended from those who run the concerts. But to those of you who do comprise this stereotype, please read on.

When a starting time of 8:30 is announced for a concert, all preparations are geared towards being ready at that moment. Rarely is a group not ready to go on at the proper time and rarely is there an equipment failure that necessitates delaying the show. The holdups are almost always caused by the rows of empty seats which designate the latecomers. No act wants to perform while a large segment of the audience is still enroute to the concert, or while people are trying to locate their seats in the dark. Some performers (Livingston Taylor, for example) put a special clause in their contract the "protects" them from playing until the audience is seated. Most acts ask the Concert Chairman on the night of the show to postpone the starting time until the majority are seated. Often this results in long delays.

It is easy to see where the solution lies. Don't come twenty minutes late to a concert because "They never start on time." If you come on time, the show will start on time.

Nixon sends out warning

by Bernard Gwertzman
(CI 1971 New York Times News Service)

Washington, Oct. 14 -- The Nixon administration, seeking to head off a congressional limit on American assistance to Cambodia, warned Thursday that the ceiling approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday could weaken Cambodian resolve and lead to an increase in North Vietnamese "aggressive action."

The State Department, reacting to the committee's actions, released to newsmen the full text of a letter by Undersecretary of State John N. Irwin 2nd to committee chairman J. William Fulbright. The letter said that those limits could "seriously threaten the capacity of the government of the Khmer Republic to defend itself."

The letter was sent to the committee Wednesday before it voted to put an absolute limit of $250 million on all United States military and economic assistance in the current fiscal year and to allow no more than 200 Americans to serve in Cambodia. In addition, the committee voted to limit to 50 the number of Third-Country Nationals who could be paid from American funds.

The Cambodian limitations were attached as amendments to the Foreign Aid Bill, which still must go before the full Senate.

The administration had originally asked some $341 million in aid appropriations for Cambodia -- about $200 million of it in military assistance.

Rubin: hard dope no good

Rubin then turned to drugs saying, "The most serious threat to the "revolution" is heroin. The Pigs are pumping as much heroin as possible into our communities. The people who peddle heroin are policemen. Richard Nixon is the biggest dope pusher in the World."

He also intimated that the production of heroin was inexorably involved in our Asian foreign policy. "Communism or heroin, that is the issue. We're over there to protect heroin. I'd choose Communism any day."

In some concluding remarks

Rubin said that America is one big downer and that one must remember that the country is based on Genocide. He reminded us that Cardinal Spellman designed the war in Vietnam.

He finished saying that if we want to defeat Nixon we have to get back into the streets. "The important thing is political action."

Briles blanks O's; Bucs lead 3-2

by Joe Durso
(C) 1971 New York Times
News Service

Pittsburgh, Oct. 14; Nelson Briles pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to their third straight victory over the Baltimore Orioles Thursday with a stunning two-hitter that put the Pirates one game away from winning the 68th World Series.

The score was 4-0, and in any language it was a personal triumph for Briles. A 28-year old linguist from Santa Clara University. He faced only 29 batters—two more than the minimum—and allowed only two singles and two walks, and no Oriole got past first base.

The action now switches to Baltimore, where the sixth game will be played Saturday with Pittsburgh one step from baseball history. If the Pirates take it then, they will become the first team ever to lose the first two games of a series and then score a sweep in the next four.

They moved into this commanding position with the one ingredient they supposedly lacked as they won two consecutive National League East pennants: pitching. And they did it Thursday at the expense of Dave McNally, one of the four 20-game winners on a Baltimore staff that supposedly had pitching to spare.

But in the three games in Three Rivers Stadium, it was Pittsburgh pitching that tumbled the Orioles, the three-time American League champions who were 2-to-1 favorites to repeat in the series.

On Tuesday, the Orioles made only three hits off Steve Blass;

Wednesday, they made only four, with Bruce Kison and Dave Giusti overpowering them in eight innings of relief; and Thursday afternoon, they netted two singles. For three games, the O's totaled eight singles and one home run.

In fact, for three games in Pittsburgh, the Orioles were powerless and they were the only three games they have lost in almost a month. They were checked by Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers on Sept. 8, then won 16 straight before encountering the Pirates' pitching staff, whose demise apparently had been exaggerated.

"I'm sitting here," said Earl Weaver, the manager of the Orioles, "and I'm watching Pittsburgh play the kind of ball we played all year."

"I'm not surprised," said Danny Murtaugh, the manager of the Pirates, trying to keep a straight face. "After all, it's the same pitching that we had while winning the National League pennant."

"It's been a long two years for me," said Briles, who was traded to Pittsburgh by St. Louis after he had won only six games for the Cardinals in 1970. "This one meant the most to me, and the key to it was my ability to throw most of my pitches over the plate consistently."

Briles, who won only eight games for Pittsburgh this season and who pitched only four completed games, had plenty of help today before 51,377 cheering fans.

Bob Robertson hit a home run over the center-field fence in the second inning, his sixth in post-season play and his second of the Series.

Roberto Clemente drove in a run in the fifth with his ninth hit of the series, and Briles singled home a run for himself in the second, when the Pirates took a two-run lead that was never shaken.

It was the first time in two weeks that Briles had pitched in a game, and he lasted only three innings then because of a knee injury.

He also was supposed to start the third playoff game against San Francisco Giants last Tuesday, but strained a leg muscle while warming up and was scratched, so when he went to work Thursday afternoon, he was ranked the fifth or sixth starter on a team with five or starters, none eminent.

But two hours and 16 minutes later, the right-hander was pre-eminent in a town that has been thirsting for a world Series title since the Pirates defeated the New York Yankees in 1960.

He retired five batters at the start, then gave up a single to Brooks Robinson. He retired seven more, then walked Elrod Hendricks, who immediately was wiped out in a double play. He got the next five, then Boog Powell singled and was knocked off in a double play. He retired five more, walked Don Buford in the ninth and then got Paul Blair on a grounder to end the game.

The Pirates, meanwhile, went to work early on McNally, who had four full days of rest since beating then in the opener Saturday.

Robertson, who hit 26 home runs before Aug. 25 and then none until the playoff, bombed the first pitch of the second inning 400 feet to center field and it was 1-0, Pittsburgh.

Manny Sanguillen followed with a single to center, then stole second base while Jose Pagan was striking out. He waited there while Jack Hernandez was striking out, and scored on a single to center by Briles, who hit .256 this season with one home run.

In the third inning, Gene Clines opened with a walk, took second while Mark Belanger was throwing out Clemente, took third on an error by Brooks Robinson and scored on a wild pitch by McNally. The error was the ninth in five games by the Orioles.

In the fifth, Clines led with a triple over Blair's head in center field and, on the next pitch, Clemente ripped a single through the mound for a 4-0 lead.

It was the ninth hit for the 37-year-old Puerto Rican, who batted .341 in his 17th season with the Pirates this summer, and it was the 12th consecutive World Series game in which he had hit, going back to 1960. The Series record for hits is 13 by Bobby Richardson of the and Lou Brock of the Cardinals, and for hits in consecutive games it's 17 by Hank Bauer of the Yankees.

Clemente's single also knocked McNally out of the game in favor of Dave Leonard.

Things were going so poorly for the Orioles that they even lost the only argument of the game. Hernandez took a pitch to the hand from Tom Dukes in the sixth and Weaver argued that the ball had struck the bat. But even that contest went against the Birds on an afternoon when everything also went against them, too. By the end of the ninth, the Orioles had gone 17 innings without scoring. They rushed to a 3-0 lead in the first inning Wednesday night but after that fell silent. Worse, their pitchers stopped pitching and their fielders often stopped fielding.

They were left with the strange consolation that the series was returning to Baltimore, and so far the home team has won every game. But even their own manager, Weaver, discounted that factor, saying:

"There's nothing about either home field that I know would give an advantage to anybody."

"I don't know of any advantages," Murtaugh remarked, "but it sure turned the Series around for us here. Still, it shouldn't make any difference for professionals."

Harriers top Valpo

Led by Jeff Eichner's first-place finish, the Notre Dame cross country team defeated Valparaiso, 22-39, in a dual meet yesterday afternoon on the Burke Memorial course.

The Irish placed five runners in the top seven finishers to defeat the Crusaders with ease.

Eichner covered the 2.5 mile course in 25:09.9, just over three seconds faster than runner-up, Gary Schroeder, of Valparaiso. Notre Dame's Pat Holleran captured third place with a time of 25:15 while the Crusader's Robert Fronczak place fourth.

The Crusader's Robert Fronczak place fourth.

The Irish harriers decided the meet by annexing the fifth, sixth and seventh spots. Gene Mercer, Marty Hill and Mike Gahagan finished in that order behind Fronczak to give Notre Dame the victory.

Irish runners also took the eighth and ninth spots, as Dave Bell and Rick Caron beat Valpo's third scorer to the finish. The Crusaders had to settle for the 10th, 11th, and 12th positions, raising their score to 39.

The victory left the Irish cross country team, coached by Alex Wilson, with a 4-2 record this fall. They will be in action again next Friday, taking on powerful In-

Joe Kuharich, who was head coach at Notre Dame from 1959 through 1962, is the only coach to have a losing record while directing the Irish football fortunes. His teams won 17 and lost 23.

John L. Marks has the best winning percentage of any Notre Dame football coach. The Fighting Irish rolled to a 13-0-2 record under Marks' tutelage in the 1911 and 1912 seasons.

Unbeaten Irish face Tar Heels

by Jim Donaldson
Sports Editor

Sophomore Cliff Brown will get his first chance at the starting quarterback job and the Notre Dame defense will be trying to extend their string of ten consecutive scoreless quarters when the undefeated Fighting Irish take on the once-beaten North Carolina Tar Heels Saturday afternoon in Notre Dame Stadium.

Both the Irish and the Tarheel possess similar strengths. Each boasts a tough defense and a strong running game.

Coach Bill Dooley brings his North Carolina squad to South Bend with a 4-1 record. The Tar Heels won their first four games, beating Richmond, Illinois, Maryland, and North Carolina State, before being upset by Tulane, 37-29 last weekend.

Notre Dame is 4-0 at present, owning victories over Northwestern, Purdue, Michigan State, and Miami (Fla.).

Brown, who came off the bench to replace the injured Bill Elter in the second quarter of a scoreless game with Miami last weekend, directed Notre Dame on second half touchdown drives of 66 and 68 yards as the Irish beat the Hurricanes, 17-0. His performance in the Orange Bowl established him as the number one quarterback for tomorrow's game.

And, while Brown and the offense were putting points on the scoreboard, last Saturday, the Irish defense was making sure that the Hurricanes didn't do likewise. Notre Dame recorded its first shutout of the season at the expense of the 'Canes, who had come into the game averaging over 400 yards in total offense and 26 points per game. The last opponent to cross the Irish goal line was Purdue's Otis Armstrong, who went in for a touchdown in the second quarter of the Boilermaker's 8-7 loss to Notre Dame three weeks ago.

North Carolina will try and crack the Irish defense with a powerful running attack, led by junior halfback Ike Oglesby. Although Don McCauley, who gained 1720 yards to set an NCAA rushing record last season, is gone, the Tar Heels can still grind it out on the ground.

Oglesby did a fine job last year while acting as McCauley's understudy, gaining 562 yards and scoring six touchdowns, and this year he's looking even better.

Although he sat out the Tulane game last Saturday with leg cramps, Oglesby has carried 1124 yards this fall for 491 yards, a 4.3 average, and six touchdowns.

His running mates, fullback Geoff Hamlin and wingback Lewis Jolley, can also lug the pigskin. Hamlin has gained 300 yards in five games and sports a 4.6 average per rush while Jolley has an 8.3 rushing mark, picking up 187 yards in 22 carries.

Left-handed quarterback Paul Miller runs the Tar Heel attack. He has thrown for five touchdowns in the '71 campaign, although his completion percentage is .471. His favorite targets are Jolley, who has 15 receptions and three touchdowns, and tight end, John Cowell, who's caught 12 passes.

The Tar Heel backfield is as good as any the Irish have faced this season, but the front line is not so solid. Coach Dooley lost all seven starters from his '70 squad, and had to perform a massive rebuilding job.

By contrast, the Tar Heels have a veteran defensive unit. Eight of the starters on last season's Atlantic Coast Conference leading defensive team are in action again this fall. John Bunting, a senior linebacker, leads the Carolina defensive crew which, until the Tulane game last Saturday, had yielded just 21 points in its first four games. The Tar Heels secondary fell apart against the Green Wave, however, giving up four touchdown passes in the first half of play.

Dooley and his Tar Heels have a healthy respect for the Irish, and well they should, because, in the previous 14 meetings between the two schools, Notre Dame has won 13 times, the last Irish victory coming in their most recent meeting with the Tars, by a 32-0 score in 1966.

"Notre Dame is the most physical college team I have ever seen," Dooley commented. "They have awesome strength, both offensively and defensively."

"This is a great challenge for our men," Dooley continued. "We are looking forward to the opportunity of playing a team with as much personnel and as well coached as Notre Dame."

ND cagers begin practice

Notre Dame's new basketball coach, Dick (Digger) Phelps, will greet one of the youngest Irish teams in history when pre-season practice opens today.

The Irish, 20-9 a year ago while participating in their third straight NCAA tournament, will have no seniors and just one letterman returning.

Phelps, who guided Fordham to a brilliant 26-3 record a year ago in his first campaign as a head coach, will send his team

The Irish certainly aren't taking the Tar Heels for granted. Head coach Ara Parseghian remarked earlier this week that, "North Carolina is a fine team. They move the ball well and play good sound football."

Commenting on the strengths of the Tar Heels, Parseghian said, "They're a good running team and, defensively, they're tough against what we do well-run. Tulane was able to penetrate their pass defense with four touchdown passes but our passing game hasn't been as good as we'd like."

Elter had connected on 16 of 26 passes for 131 yards but is now lost to the Irish for the remainder of the season after undergoing knee surgery Monday. His replacement, Brown, showed potential as a passer during his freshman year, completing 42 of 98 attempts for 471 yards, but he has thrown just 10 times this season, completing four, for 38 yards, although he has had three passes intercepted.

Parseghian said that he was "rather pleased" with Brown's performance against Miami.

"Overall, as a sophomore in a crucial game for the first time, I thought he did a great job," the Irish coach related.

"I went with him against Miami because he had a good week prior to the game," Parseghian explained. "He performed admirably, as far as I'm concerned."

Brown's backup, junior Pat Steenberge, has completed just 13 of 43 attempts but has thrown the only Irish TD toss of the campaign.

Football Picks

Every weekend provides its share of excitement on the college football scene and the upcoming one is no exception. This Saturday's collegiate slate lists a goodly number of important games, bearing on both conference standings and national rankings.

Big Eight powers Colorado and Oklahoma meet in Norman, Southern Cal and Stanford clash in a key Pacific Eight encounter, Syracuse challenges Penn State for Eastern supremacy, the Air Force Academy and the Army fight an inter-service battle, traditional rivals Auburn and Georgia Tech play in Atlanta, arch-rivals Texas and Arkansas collide in a game that will probably decide the Southwest Conference championship and, one on the home front, the undefeated Fighting Irish host once-beaten North Carolina.

Here's the way the Irish Eye sees this weekend's games:

Notre Dame over North Carolina --- None of the Tar Heels have ever played in Notre Dame Stadium. If the Notre Dame mystique doesn't awe them, the Irish defense surely will.

Air Force Academy over Army --- The Falcons ought to claw the Cadets.

Michigan over Illinois --- It looks like another romp for the Wolverines.

Alabama over Tennessee --- Bear Bryant has the Tide primed for this one.

Penn State over Syracuse --- The Nittany Lions are the class of the East but they'll have to prove it to the Orangemen.

L.S.U. over Kentucky --- The Tigers should record their fifth straight win.

Oklahoma over Colorado --- This is going to be a real battle but, since the clubs meet in Norman, the edge will have to go to the Sooners.

Northwestern over Purdue --- The Boilermakers won't be able to compensate for the loss of injured quarterback Gary Danielson.

Auburn over Georgia Tech --- Pat Sullivan, Terry Beasley and company can handle the Yellowjackets.

Nebraska over Kansas --- Despite what the folks in Oklahoma say, as of now the Cornhuskers are number one.

Tulane over Pittsburgh --- The Green Wave has been both a breaker and a ripple this fall and it'd be swell if they could beat the Panthers.

Ohio State over Indiana --- The Buckeyes are hampered by injuries but they can limp past the hapless Hoosiers.

Miami over Navy --- The Hurricanes ought to make the Middies seasick.

Southern Cal over Stanford --- It's hard to bet against John McKay and the Trojans, despite their 2-3 record.

Upset of the Week:

Arkansas over Texas --- I may be pushing my luck after three straight Upset of the Week picks but it looks like the Razorbacks are ripe for revenge. Sooy Hogs!
