Logan funding completely reinstated

by Frank Laurino

The Indiana State Budget Committee voted 5-0 last Friday to reinstate all funding to the state's 62 Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities (MRDD) centers. According to Aloysius Soenneker, executive director of the Council for the Retarded of St. Joseph County, an $18 million budget has been approved, including a $700,000 allotment to the Logan Center.

"I'm glad this issue is now out of politics," said Soenneker. "Now we can give good quality care to the handicapped."

The Indiana General Assembly had originally approved the MRDD budget request for $21 million. That request was denied in September by the Budget Committee, who instead proposed allocating $11.3 million to the MRDD, a $1.7 million decrease from the 1976 fiscal year.

Jack Greeley, Logan Center administrative assistant, announced Sept. 22 that the proposed cutback would force Logan to lay off 30 to 35 staff members and curtail services to 100 clients.

Soenneker stated yesterday that the Budget Committee's unanimous reversal of its controversial decision would provide Logan Center with sufficient funds to retain its entire staff. He also reported that no services would be discontinued.

"In fact, we now hope to serve clients we formerly could not assist," the executive director said.

"Not only will the existing programs be continued, but we can proceed with our program expansions as well."

According to Soenneker, those expansions include an addition of 24 patients to the Residential Services Program, an increase of 20 patients in the Adult Rehabilitation Program, and the introduction of physical therapy services at Logan Industries.

Logan Industries, a workshop serving 190 adults, is a subsidiary of the Council for the Retarded of St. Joseph County, Inc., as is Logan Center.

Of the $700,000 allocated to Logan Center, $500,000 will come from the state, while the remainder will be appropriated from Title XX funds. Title XX funds are federal and state assistance of MRDD services for lower income citizens and welfare recipients.

According to Soenneker, the new statewide budget will be sponsored by both the state and federal governments. He explained that the state will provide about $7.5 million--equal to last fiscal year--while the federal government will increase its assistance from last year's $6 million to $10.5 million.

Soenneker explained that all available state funds have been used in the MRDD's supplemental appropriations, posing a problem for the next fiscal year.

"We'll probably have to go through the same problems next year," he said. "However, this issue will be brought before the State Assembly as soon as it meets next January."

Soenneker said he shared his fellow MRDD directors' reactions to the Friday decision. "I'm very pleased," he said. "I hope that State Budget Committee has learned not to play politics with the handicapped."

Demonstrators present petition

A grounds crewmember led a demonstration on the Administration steps on Friday afternoon in which petitions supporting the stand of the workers were presented to Father Hesburgh. Approximately 200 members of the Notre Dame community listened to the remarks of the groundskeeper and then marched into the Administration building. Faculty members, university employees, and students comprised the sympathetic crowd. [Photo by John Calcutt]

Victims of Morrissey fire move back in

by Lou Severino

Two Morrissey residents whose room was completely destroyed in a Sept. 10 fire have returned to Morrissey after an absence of five weeks.

The students, Bob Onda and Jeff Phinnes, stayed at Moreau Seminary until workmen finished remodeling their room last week. Both students' losses were covered under their parents' homeowners insurance policies.

According to Phinnes, he and his roommate lost their entire wardrobe, a stereo, television, refrigerator, golf clubs and some furniture, including a sofa and two lamps.

After making estimates of their losses and having the room checked by an insurance investigator, both Onda and Phinnes received settlements from their respective insurance companies. "I was pretty satisfied, although a lot of things I lost couldn't be replaced," Phinnes said.

After staying in a friend's room for the remainder of the weekend, the two students moved to Moreau where they each received single rooms.

Onda said Moreau had its good and bad points. "The good points were the friendly, helpful people there, while the bad side was being taken out of the student scene," he explained. But both Onda and Phinnes emphasized that the people at Moreau made them feel comfortable during their stay at the seminary.

United Way Drive termed major success

by Peggy McGuire
Staff Reporter

Close to 70 percent of the Notre Dame students living on campus gave approximately $4,000 to the United Way in last week's fund drive. Organizers of the campaign, Bro. Joseph McTaggart, associate director of Volunteer Services and J.P. Russell, senior, said that they will release the official figures tomorrow after completing all tabulations.

Both Russell and McTaggart termed the drive "a tremendous success." McTaggart said, "It is obvious that we have achieved a major success in obligation to the city. We are residents of South Bend, and we have responded extremely well."

McTaggart and Russell organized this year's United Way drive. Early this fall, both were asked by Charles Wilber, professor of economics, to organize the student campaign. Wilber was appointed Notre Dame director of United Way by the Provost last spring.

Both McTaggart and Russell met seven weeks ago to form a new structure for the drive. According to Russell, the framework for the campaign in previous years was "haphazard."

"Halls would set up a box by the front hall or stage some sort of event to collect the money," he explained. "The goal was always the amount collected rather than individual participation."

The goal of this year's campaign was "to contact every student on campus in a personal, one-to-one basis, and ask him or her to give at least one dollar to the United Way," Russell said.

Russell stated that another change in this year's format was that the campaign went "for one concentrated week with daily updates in The Observer," rather than the previous month-long drive where "all of the halls were collecting at different times."

Two weeks ago, Russell and McTaggart addressed the Hall Presidents' Council and advised each hall's president and community service commissioner to organize a door-to-door campaign. Barometers indicating student participation in the individual dormitories were posted in The Observer throughout the week.

Russell said that the idea was "to tap each residence halls' sense of community spirit and see if a hall was able to rally behind a very worthwhile cause."

"Many halls saw the campaign as a matter of hall pride and image and really gave it all they had to give," he commented.

McTaggart said that the new framework for the drive worked very well. "This year's response was excellent," he stated. "There were a few wrinkles in the process, but they can be easily corrected next year."

McTaggart cited the appointment of a full-time student coordinator as one necessary improvement. "J.P. Russell worked exceedingly hard on this drive, and he is to be commended," he said. "However, we both hope and will recommend that a full-time student director be appointed next year."

"We've set the basic framework in this year's drive," McTaggart stated, adding that improvements for next year's campaign will lie in underlining the hall's responsibilities. "The key now is in the individual halls," he said.

Participation varied from 100 percent in Carroll to 34 percent in Dillon. Peter Visceglia, a section leader in Dillon who collected money for the drive, said, "The drive in Dillon was definitely well-organized. At a Hall Council meeting, section leaders were

Trip chairman urges seniors to buy travelers checks

by Lou Severino

Senior trip Chairman Tom O'Neill strongly urged all seniors making the trip to obtain travelers checks for the Oct. 23 excursion to San Francisco.

O'Neill called San Francisco "a tourist town where many people try to take advantage of unsuspecting visitors." He added, "By using travelers checks, students will eliminate the possibility of losing cash, thereby making the trip more enjoyable."

Travelers checks may be purchased at several South Bend banks for a nominal fee. According to a spokesman for the St. Joseph Bank, the fee is one dollar for every $100 of checks.

The spokesman also added that the St. Joseph Bank would accept student's out of town checks for amounts ranging up to $400, as payment for travelers checks.

However, a spokesman for the Notre Dame Cashiers Office recommended that students cash their checks on campus, before going to a bank for travelers checks, to avoid any problems which might arise.

O'Neill also asked all students going on the trip to attend a meeting tonight at 7 in the Engineering Auditorium. Everyone must sign a waiver sheet at this meeting in order to make the trip.

Observer deadline set

Thursday's issue of The Observer will be the last before October break. No advertisements will be accepted for this issue after 5 p.m. tomorrow. The next issue after Thursday will be Nov. 1.

Nelson to read poetry at IUSB

Paul Nelson, poet and visiting member of the IUSB English faculty, will read some of his poems tonight at IUSB. Nelson is on a year's leave from Goddard, where he has taught for the past nine years.

He has published three books of poetry; Cargo, Ice, and Average Nights. A fourth book is now near completion. He has had poems published in The Iowa Review, Tri-Quarterly, Poetry Northwest and Esquire.

The reading tonight will begin at 7:30 and will take place in the lounge opposite the cafeteria in IUSB's Administration Building (formerly Associates). Admission is free. All are welcome to attend.

Cash prize offered for best article

A $500 cash prize will be awarded by the American Health Foundation's quarterly journal to the student author of the best original paper on the subject of preventive medicine. A runner-up prize of $200 is also being awarded. Winning papers will be published in the Journal.

The deadline for the receipt of the paper is January 31, 1978, and the contest is open to any student (except post doctoral students) currently enrolled in undergraduate course in medicine, public health, epidemiology, life sciences, the social sciences, the behavioral sciences, economics, law or business.

Elkan is professor of microbiology and assistant dean for research at North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

Fire victims return

Work on the students' room began the Monday after the fire and entailed "almost total repairs," according to Fr. Raymond Holtz, Morrissey rector. The University workmen had to rebuild the walls, build new door and window frames, put in new tiles, and repaint the room.

Phinnes said he and his roommate were very pleased with the finished product and praised the speed and efficiency of the University workmen.

Both Onda and Phinnes described the fire and its aftermath as "a learning experience." "We would like to thank all those who helped us, especially the residents of Lyons who took up a collection for us, and the guys from Morrissey who helped us in many ways," added the roommates.

Shuttle service future still uncertain

by Anne Bachle

The future of the shuttle service between Notre Dame and St. Mary's on evenings and weekends is still uncertain, according to St. Mary's Co-exchange Commissioner Mary Ann Fuchs. She hopes, however, that results of a ridership survey taken during the past two weeks will help provide some answers.

The shuttle service, which is financed equally by Notre Dame and St. Mary's, has incurred mounting losses recently because students have not been paying the 15 cent fare required on evenings after 6 p.m., and on weekends.

One possible solution is curtailment of service during the hours when the shuttle is little used. In an effort to determine these times, the co-ex commissioners from both schools arranged to have a student on the bus at all times during one week to record the number of passengers, where they got on and off, whether they paid, and how punctual the bus was.

This was accomplished through cooperation of St. Mary's Board of Governance and the Ombudsman. Results from the study will be used to decide where to limit service and to decide whether smaller busses would help.

Other alternatives being considered are a limousine service, which is still being looked into, and an increase in fares, which Fuchs feels would defeat the purpose of the shuttle since fewer students would ride.

Signs have been posted on both campuses reminding students to pay the fare. Fuchs also said the busdrivers have been reminded not to let anyone ride who refuses to pay.

Since she noted that students who have to wait a while for the bus are sometimes less inclined to pay, she has also distributed complete shuttle schedules to all St. Mary's students, and posted the schedules in the lobbies of all the halls at Notre Dame.

"If students don't pay the fare, it will demonstrate to both schools that they really don't care about having the shuttle," Fuch commented, adding that withdrawal of financial support for evening and weekend shuttle service is a very real possibility.

"We don't want to see evening and weekend shuttle service discontinued," said St. Mary's Controller Jason Lindower. "But we have to eliminate these losses and make the system more self-supporting."

Student Government was given till Nov. 26 to get all students to pay and to come up with some ideas for making the system more financially stable.

In the meantime, Fuchs urged students to call her, Notre Dame Co-ex Commissioner Harold Jara, or the Ombudsman office if they have any complaints at all about shuttle service.

Adrian Bryttan and the Notre Dame orchestra will present "Evil in Music" tomorrow [for children] at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in Washington Hall.

Junior Parents Weekend planned

by Al Leverone

Notre Dame's 26th annual Junior Parents' Weekend will take place on the weekend of Feb. 24-26. The organizational committee, headed by John Simari, has planned several events highlighted by a special Mass and dinner on Saturday evening.

The weekend will open with a cocktail party Friday night at the ACC. On Saturday, each college of the University will sponsor workshops, giving parents the chance to meet with professors and deans on an informal basis.

After the workshops, a Mass and liturgy for juniors, parents, and University officials will take place at Sacred Heart church. The service will be followed by a Presidential Dinner, at which Fr. Theodore Hesburgh, University president, will speak.

According to Simari, no times have been set for the Mass and dinner, due to NBC's decision to move the nationally televised ND-Marquette basketball game to 4:00 that afternoon.

The dinner itself will probably be held either at Stepan Center or Century Center in South Bend. Both locations are capable of serving the nearly 2,000 expected guests.

The events will come to a close Sunday morning with a private breakfast for parents and students, probably at the North Dining Hall.

Simari stressed that there is no need for students to make hotel reservations for their parents. The committee will send out reservation forms by Thanksgiving. Any parents wishing to stay at the Morris Inn will be asked to add a second choice of hotels. A lottery will be held later for rooms at the Inn, as they are limited.

Simari also stated that, at the present moment, the ACC has no tickets available for parents who might wish to attend Saturday's basketball game against Marquette.

Any juniors with questions are asked to call either John Simari at 8595, or Andy McKenna at 7181.

Bugliosi to speak

Vincent Bugliosi, chief prosecutor in the Manson trial, will speak tonight at 7:30 in Washington Hall. The lecture is sponsored by the Student Union Academic Commission and admission is free.

Student orchestra to perform concert for Halloween season

The Notre Dame Orchestra will present a program entitled "Evil in Music" at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Washington Hall. The program will be played at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, also in Washington Hall, in an informal version for children. There is no admission charge for either program.

The Notre Dame Orchestra, directed by Adrian Bryttan, is a full sixty piece orchestra made up almost entirely of students from Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It includes graduate and undergraduate music majors at Notre Dame, musicians whose primary emphasis is in another field, and students from the Notre Dame Music Department's Preparatory Program.

In keeping with the Halloween season each piece on Wednesday's concert refers to a legend or evil character. Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre" describes a night of revelry by dead souls, who disperse at dawn with the cock's crow. Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel Overture" is taken from the opera based on the well known tale.

Sibelius' "Swan of Tuonela" is from a set of four works inspired by the Kalevala, the Finnish national epic. The work evokes the image of the sacred bird floating serenely on the great river of Tuonela, the Underworld of the Dead. The

art buchwald

Washington--The Timkens sent their child Laura off to college with a check for $7,000 in tuition and thought that was the end of it. But soon after they received a letter from the Dean of Studies.

"We are happy to announce that we have instituted a remedial reading class for college freshman and strongly advise that your daughter Laura participate in it. If she doesn't, it is our opinion that Laura will not be able to keep up with her studies. The cost will be $250."

Timken read the letter. "I thought Laura could read," he said to his wife.

"So did I. I think the problem is she can read, but she has no comprehension of what she reads."

"What did they teach her in public school and high school?"

"I have no idea, but if the college says she needs remedial reading we better see that she gets it or $7,000 will go down the drain."

A few days later they got another letter from the dean.

"The English Department has brought to our attention the fact that your daughter Laura cannot write. They have recommended that she enroll in the remedial writing class which we started two years ago when we discovered this was a common problem for most college students. If you agree that Laura should get this special help, please send a check for $250."

Timken was now very angry. "How did she get in college if she can't write?"

Mrs. Timken was much more sanguine about it. "Laura can write. She just can't write complete sentences."

"She went to school for 12 years and she can't write a sentence?"

"Don't you remember? They were much more interested in Laura's thoughts than they were in how she put them down. The teacher's main concern was with expanding her consciousness."

"That's hogwash," Timken said. "They made an illiterate out of my daughter."

"I believe that's a bit strong. Laura graduated with honors in analytical consciousness-raising."

"But she can't write."

"I'm sure the college can help her learn to write. After all, it is an institution of higher learning."

"So now we have to pay $250 for something they should have taught her in grammar school?"

"Don't you remember when we went to the PTA meeting years ago, and the principal said it was the school's responsibility to make good citizens out of the students, and the parents' responsibility to teach the children how to read and write? Carlton, we're the ones who failed."

Timken sent in the check, and was not surprised to find another letter waiting for him a week later.

It read: "It has come to our attention that no one in the freshman class can add, multiply, subtract or divide simple sums. We feel it is urgent that this deficiency be corrected early in a student's college career. Therefore, we are setting up a special remedial arithmetic course. The fee will be $250. If you do not want your daughter to take this course we cannot guarantee she will graduate."

Once again Timken went through the ceiling. "I thought Laura got A's in math in high school."

Mrs. Timken said, "That was conceptual math. Her courses had to do with the advanced integration of numbers. She never could add or subtract them. Don't you recall when you complained once about it and Laura's teacher told you, 'She can always learn to add and subtract when she gets to college.'?"

P.O. BOX Q

Grounds-keepers: econ. decision

Dear Editor:

The recent announcement of Notre Dame's intent to fire 21 employees has stirred up many emotions in the ND community. A great number of students have jumped on the bandwagon to help those poor unfortunate workers who represent another incident of absurdity and hypocrisy in the administration. None have, however, given our administration a chance to explain their situation (besides using the testimony of an anonymous official). What ever happened to our theory of innocent until proven guilty?

I must admit to an overabundance of peculiarities in the administration's actions which should be answered by a competent University official. However, trying to make the issue an example of human injustice is absurd. The decision is a simple business decision, the likes of which happens every day (i.e. converting from manual labor to automation).

Some feel that in cases such as these, manual labor should be chosen since the workers have a right to work. If choosing manual labor over automation is anti-human rights (as recent letters to the editor contend) then Notre Dame, along with the rest of the United States is grossly inhumane. The crane being used to construct the engineering addition takes the place of an untold number of jobs as does the use of the adding machine, computer, and the bulldozer. If the ND student was truly concerned about human rights he would not even eat the food served to him since it was produced on farms which have decreased manpower by using machines such as combines, planters and milking machines.

Economics tells us that when these 21 are laid off here, other unemployed workers will be hired elsewhere. (Cromwell Management needs workers to build these machines.) We may be losing part of the ND family by firing these workers but just think--we'll get new members of the family!

This issue is not one of human rights. It is one in which the employees are a victim of circumstance. If the administration is indeed using restructuring claims as a way to avoid unionization, then let's make judgements accordingly.

But let's get the facts before judgement day arrives.

Calendar not covert

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regard to the recent ban on the Girls of ND-SMC calendar. As business manager of the Technical Review I feel obligated to divulge the effects of the moratorium placed on the calendar.

First of all, the magazine is supported by the College of Engineering. Any deficit of the magazine is thus defrayed by the University. In an effort to balance the budget of the magazine (for the first time in many years) several money-making ideas were originated. The calendar was considered to be one of the best ideas and expected to be a main source of revenue. By forbidding further editions of the calendar, Student Activities has stifled a source of revenue for the University. Effectively, the dog is biting its own tail.

* Observer Editorials

It also seems that Student Activities does not trust the judgement of the College of Engineering. Approval by the College was given before and after assemblage of the calendar. The project was never a covert operation. Had it occurred to either the College or the staff that such a project had to have the approval of Student Activities, the Office would certainly have been approached. Unfortunately the dulac handbook was never officially consulted. This grandiose oversight is no reason to impose a ban, however. No attempt was made to overlook the Office.

But Mr. Reid has implied that such was the case by imposing stringent, yea, foolish restrictions on the sale of the remaining calendars. No printed advertising is to be allowed nor can they be sold at home sports events (what would our alumni think?). A simple phone call by Mr. Reid would have clarified the integrity of the project had he bothered to make it. Or Mr. Reid could have told us that we should have asked his approval. Instead he is shoving our hands into the fire to show us its power.

Thus the calendar has been forced into word of mouth sales as if it is in some way sinister or unsuitable for the public eye. Certainly this is not the style of the calendar. There are no lewd poses or "what a body!" pictures. The girls were never treated as objects. We thought it might be nice to see some familiar faces on a calendar instead of a wintry scene and at the same time make the calendar something that both campuses would look forward to seeing. Mr. Reid has assisted us in this venture to excite the campuses. But now people are asking "why the ban?" instead of "where can I get a calendar?"

Layoff timing problem

Dear Editor:

The decision of the University to lay off 21 groundskeepers does not surprise me in the least. If the groundskeepers are allowed to unionize, the University may be forced to pay them a decent living wage. This could set a dangerous precedent. The long term effect could be decent wages for all University employees.

What surprises me is the timing of this decision and its announcement. The University has made numerous decisions in the past which were unchristian, unjust and downright unconscionable. But the implementation of these decisions is usually much smoother. Controversial decisions have always been carried out while the students were away. Terry Brennan was fired just before Christmas, back in the 50's. Fred Pechek was fired, by telegram in 1975, while at Penn State with the westling team, just before spring break. (After The Observer had stopped publication). An entire issue of The Observer was confiscated (stolen from LaFortune) by the University during the summer of 76. Last summer the University violated its own due process in the Hunter fiasco. The University policy seems to be "If you're going to do anything controversial, do it when there are no students around to interfere."

The University really blew this one. They probably intended to announce the layoffs over the October break. But the Oct. 12 hearing date screwed things up. If they'd had enough foresight to see this unionization move coming, they could have laid the groundskeepers off during the summer. The students would've wondered what happened to the groundskeepers, but it would have been too late to do anything about it.

Hesburg became famous in the sixties for his seldom used "10 minute" policy for dealing with student protest. The University's "Do it when the students are gone" policy for avoiding student protest is much less publicized. But it seems to be more effective, and it's used with rare exception.

Bryant opposition

Dear Editor:

On Oct. 27, 1977, Anita Bryant is scheduled to give a concert in the Notre Dame Athletic and Convocation Center. This event is not sponsored by the University, and the purpose of Ms. Bryant's appearance is entertainment, not a political rally. It would, however, be impossible to deny that this woman has made herself the representative of a very definite political cause and naive to think that her concert appearances do not further the objectives of this political movement.

Anita Bryant has led a group of reactionary people who would like to deny civil and human rights to gay men and lesbians in the United States. She and her supporters base their denunciation of homosexuality on religious fundamentalism and they appeal to ignorance and fear. There is no real evidence for their claim that gay men and lesbians are determined to "convert" young people to their life styles. There is no legal justification for their efforts to deny civil rights to homosexuals. There is nothing humane in their campaign of hatred, intolerance, and bigotry.

Whenever self-righteousness and ignorance form the basis for political activity, innocent people are made to suffer. While I do not question Anita Bryant's right to present a concert in the ACC, and while I do not believe the University has done anything wrong in renting her the facilities, I would like to voice my strongest opposition to what this woman and her followers stand for.

Hijacked jet, hostages land safely

ADEN, South Yemen [AP] - A hijacked West German jet with 87 hostages aboard landed safely at Aden airport yesterday after a deadline for death passed with the West German government refusing to meet the demands of four terrorists who had threatened to blow up the plane.

There was no word on the fate of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, whose kidnappers had threatened to kill him unless the Bonn government met the hijackers' demands by the deadline.

South Yemen's civil aviation agency said authorities unsuccessfully tried to prevent the Lufthansa Boeing 737 from landing in the capital of Aden. A spokesman said the government agreed to refuel the craft as long as the hijackers agreed to leave "as soon as possible."

In recent years, this country at the tip of the Arabian peninsula has granted refuge to hijackers and other terrorists.

The 82 passengers, including an American woman with a heart condition, and five crewmen were reported safe when the plane made a forced landing on a dirt strip at the airport, the spokesman said.

The Lufthansa jet had left Dubai 40 minutes before the 7 a.m. (EST) deadline set by the four hijackers for release of eleven anarchists imprisoned in West German jails. West Germany took no action to free them as the deadline passed.

South Yemen was the fifth stop for the hijacked plane which was ordered to Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain and Dubai after the hijackers commandeered the Majorca-to-Frankfurt flight over France on Thursday.

Frosh class shows academic qualifications

This year's freshman class of 1,611 was culled from the largest applicant's pool in the University history--and it shows academically.

Twenty-seven percent of the Class of 1981 ranked one through five in scholastic standing in their high school graduating classes, and the class includes 153 validictorians and 94 salutatorians, about double the number coming to Notre Dame 10 years ago.

A total of 6,458 persons applied for admission for this year's freshman class, and the 1,219 men and 392 women selected came from 47 states and the District of Columbia.

About one-fourth are sons or daughters of Notre Dame alumni.

SMC to elect Frosh Council

by Molly Woulfe

St. Mary's freshmen will elect representatives for the Freshman Class Council today between 10 and 6 p.m. in the LeMans lobby.

Thirty-two freshmen are running for the 20 positions on the Council. One representative will be elected for every 25 students.

"They're going to more or less represent the class, run activities, and elect a person to sit on the Board of Governance," stated Election Commissioner Maria Mignanelli. "And some will attend the Notre Dame Freshman Class Council meetings."

Candidates began campaigning last Monday. "Meet the Candidates" night was held on Thursday in the coffee shop, but was poorly attended.

This is the first year St. Mary's has instituted class councils in student government. In previous years, four officers were elected by each class. The reason for the change is "To provide better representation" according to Mignanelli.

ND Center for Pastoral Liturgy sponsors preaching workshop

The Center for Pastoral Liturgy of Notre Dame will sponsor a three-day workshop on liturgical preaching to be held today, tomorrow, and Wednesday at the Brothers Center, Holy Cross Junior College.

Dr. John Barry Ryan, coordinator, said the workshop is designed for the parish priest who wished to develop his preaching skills and get more satisfaction from his proclamation of the Word of God.

The core of the workshop will be conducted by Fr. Gerald Lardner, S.S., professor of homiletics, communication theory, and liturgical celebration at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore.

Other speakers and topics include Fr. John Gallen, S.J., director of the Center for Pastoral Liturgy, on the preacher and the faith of the Church; Rev. John Grabner on the Protestant experience with preaching, and Fr. Eugene LaVerdiere, S.S.S., on using the lectionary to prepare homilies.

An orientation session will be held Sunday evening at Andre Hall, Holy Cross Brothers Center. Reservations for the workshop, which will be limited to 30 participants, may be made through the Center for Pastoral Liturgy, (219) 283-8801.

ND Debate Council stages return

by Tony Pace
Staff Reporter

After a 13-year absence from national debating prominence, the Notre Dame Debate Council staged an impressive return at the Kentucky Invitational Debate.

Notre Dame's entry was not among the more prestigious of the 92 teams involved, but the tandem of senior Jim Maniace and freshman Ken Kristl performed well and reached the octafinals, a playoff of the top eight teams.

For their outstanding performance the Council received an award, their first for any competition in over ten years, and recognition which should bring invitations to other debating events.

The 92 teams at the Kentucky debate represented schools such as UCLA, USC, Texas, Northwestern, Harvard and Dartmouth. Although Notre Dame had only one two-man team entered, many of the other schools had several such teams representing them.

During the early stages of the meet, Maniace and Kristl held their own against all competition including several teams from the University of Kansas. The Kansas debating program is highly regarded as they have 20 students on debating scholarships. It was the Notre Dame performance against the Kansas teams which attracted much attention.

Although Notre Dame was eliminated by Harvard in the octafinals, Maniace, who is the president of the Debate Council, was very pleased with his team's showing.

"If we were to do nothing else this season, this performance would still make it all worthwhile. But we want to continue to perform well and receive awards so that we become more recognized in debating circles," he said.

Because of the long Notre Dame absence from national debates, the Council must continually debate well to become more easily accepted. "We have to work hard just to get credibility. Last year we were invited to a debate at Xavier University in Cincinnati because another school dropped out. We were a last minute fill-in. But we did well so we were invited to return this year. That's good for our Council because only those schools who place high are invited to return," Maniace explained.

Improving a debating program is no easy task. By receiving arguments and constantly staging internal debates, the members of the Council have refined their debating skills. New coach Bill Wians, a philosophy graduate student, has helped the Council to improve.

"We are 16 people who form eight different debate teams," Maniace noted. "Of those 16, 12 are novices and only four are at the varsity level. Coach Wians has done an awful lot of work with us and we have improved greatly. He's the first real coach we have had," he added.

This work is beginning to reap dividends. The Maniace-Kristl tandem drew attention at Kentucky and they have been invited to participate in the "UCLA-USC-Cal St. at Fullerton swing meet." A solid showing there would add tremendous prestige to the Council. Maniace said, "This is the first time in a long time that we have been noticed by some of the top debating schools."

SMC center to aid students in making career decisions

The Career Development Center (CDC) of the Student Affairs Department at St. Mary's is sponsoring a complete program designed to aid students in all career decision-making.

A series of workshops will cover basic elements of decision-making as well as technical aspects of career search. The workshops are open to all St. Mary's and Notre Dame students, who can sign up by visiting the CDC for an intake session.

A schedule for the workshops is listed below:

--Today, from 3 to 5 p.m., "Resume Clinic," in the Student Affairs Conference Room.

--Tuesday, from 3 to 5 p.m., "Assertive Training," in the Student Affairs Conference Room.

--Wednesday, from 3 to 5 p.m., "Job Search," in the Stapleton Conference Room.

--Thursday, from 3 to 5 p.m., "Information," in the Career Development Center.

In addition, a number of job interviews will be held at the CDC this week:

--Tomorrow, for all majors, with MONY (Mutual of New York).

--Wednesday, for business, accounting, chemistry and math majors, with PPG industries.

--Wednesday, for accounting majors, with St. Regis Paper Co.

encouraged to collect money. They also assigned people to collect money at the front door a few nights."

"If there was any reason for the low percentage of participants, it was the apathetic attitude of the students," he continued. "I would like to emphasize, however, that we collected over $185 this year, compared to only $26 last year. We more than quadrupled last year's amount, and that's a real improvement."

Response in Alumni Hall, 40.1 percent, was also among the lowest on campus. Mark Reiling, coordinator of the drive in Alumni, said,

"The response in Alumni was disappointing. All of the students were contacted, but there was a tremendous lack of spirit of giving on the part of those who were asked to contribute."

Holy Cross Hall, on the other hand, was the second most active hall with 98.3 percent of the residents contributing a dollar or more to the United Way. Joe Tatman, community service commissioner for Holy Cross, said, "Almost everyone we contacted gave. The only problem was with finding them at home."

Quentin Moore organized the drive in Fisher Hall. He described the resulting 97.9 percent participation as "outstanding."

"There were basically two types of people who didn't give," he said. "There were those who claimed they didn't have the money and those who saw problems with the drive itself. Some disagreed with the charities represented by United Way, and some didn't like the way our campaign was run. They felt we were subjecting them to peer pressure."

The United Way is a local, volunteer-run organization serving the people of St. Joseph County. Labor, management, and community leaders organized it in 1914 to eliminate multiple funding drives.

United Way now covers community planning, budgeting, communications, and labor programs on a year round basis. It represents 34 different service agencies, nearly 90 percent of the voluntary health and welfare programs in the area.

Russell said that the project benefited the students. "Many times students at Notre Dame become isolated from what is going on in the outside world and surrounding community. For a least one week the student body had a chance to think about its surrounding community and make a charitable contribution to it," he commented.

McTaggart agreed that the drive was worthwhile. "This is the only activity, short of athletic event, that the entire student body acts on. The student response was tremendous. It is obvious we can be first in more than athletics," he said.

Dillon sponsors Waldman talk

Army out-maneuvered by Irish, 24-0

East Rutherford, NJ - The site was the Meadowlands, the teams were Notre Dame and Army, and the result was a 24-0 victory for the Irish before the largest crowd ever to witness a collegiate game at Giants Stadium.

Although slow at the start, leading only 7-0 at halftime, Notre Dame compiled 17 points after intermission to down the underdog Cadets.

The Irish, running out of an I backfield in addition to their usual wing-T, used a barrage of running plays by Jerome Heavens, who was operating in the halfback slot for Saturday's clash.

For Army, it was a usual finish, losing their thirty-first game against only eight wins and four ties versus the powerful Irish.

Notre Dame received the opening kickoff and drove the ball from their own 20 yard line to the Army 21. Then, faced with second and seven, Irish quarterback Joe Montana handed off to Heavens who fumbled the ball upon contact with defensive back Bruce Elliott. Cadet Kirk Thomas recovered the ball for Army to halt the Irish threat and terminate Notre Dame's momentum.

The Cadets were unable to take advantage of the Irish turnover as the remainder of the quarter was scoreless.

Notre Dame tallied their first points in the second period on a three yard burst off right tackle by Heavens. The scoring drive started at the Army 47 yard line. Using four runs by Heavens, including one of 21 yards, and one rush by Dave Mitchell, the Irish offense reached paydirt. The touchdown came with 12:20 remaining in the first half.

Later in the second period, Army advanced the ball to the Notre Dame 15 yard line. With a fourth and six situation, the Cadet elected to go for the first down. Army signal caller Leamon Hall faded back to pass, but due to pressure by Ross Browner, Hall's pass which was intended for Clennie Brundidge was intercepted by Luther Bradley.

Notre Dame regained possession of the football, but was unable to advance. Then, Joe Restic's punt, which covered 46 yards, was fumbled by Jim Merriken back to the Army one yard line. The Irish scrambled for the ball, but Jon Dwyer recovered for the Cadets. The time ran out in the half as Notre Dame took their mere 7-0 lead to the locker room.

In the first half, the Irish had 12 first downs compared to nine for Army. The Notre Dame offense had compiled 160 yards rushing, 121 of those by Heavens. Montana had connected on only three of ten aerial attempts.

Opening the second half, Head Coach Homer Smith opted to kickoff hoping to pin the Irish deep native responded with a 29 yard field goal, giving him 207 career points and giving the Irish a 10-0 advantage with 6:47 left in the third act.

At the 3:51 mark of the third quarter, the Irish began another scoring drive. Following a holding penalty against the Irish, Notre Dame began the drive at their own 25 yard line.

This time Tri-Captain Terry Eurick shot up the middle for the six points. The highlights of the drive were a 20 yard pass from Montana to tight end Ken MacAfee and a 15 yard gallop by Heavens. Reeve's conversion brought the score to 17-0.

The Irish scored their final points midway through the final period, a drive which covered 60 yards in 16 plays. The tally came on Eurick's Montana completed eight of 17 passes for 109 yards, while suffering one interception.

Notre Dame had 27 first downs in the battle, while Army registered 15. In total offense, the Irish had 464 yards, 342 rushing. The Cadets managed to accumulate 227 yards total offense, only 67 via the in their own territory and have the wind in Army's favor in the fourth quarter.

But, Notre Dame had no desire to remain near their own endzone as they advanced the ball to the Army 49 and then blockaded Army back inside their own five yard line.

On the Irish's next possession, the Notre Dame offense marched to the Army 12, whereupon Irish mentor Dan Devine called for Dave Reeve. The Bloomington, Indiana straight ahead run from the three. The point after by Reeve capped the scoring for the Irish with Notre Dame maintaining a 24-0 edge.

In the contest, Heavens compiled 202 yards in 34 carries, a new Notre Dame record for the single game rushing total. Heavens surpassed the mark of 186 yards established by Emil Sitko against Michigan State in 1948. The junior speedster now has racked up 528 yards thus far during the 1977 campaign.

running attack.

Defensively, Bob Golic played another outstanding game. The Notre Dame junior accounted for 14 tackles in the war.

Cadet's ledger falls to 3-3. The Irish now prepare to host the University of Southern California this Saturday in Notre Dame Stadium.

The Irish Eye

Anticipation

Notre Dame's war with Army was a surprise. It was no shock that the Irish emerged victorious, however, it was surprising to witness the Irish operating out of a new offense.

Yes, the wing-T attack that Notre Dame has used over the past few years was present Saturday, but that did not represent the only offense used. The I formation, a set which utilized the potential of the Irish running backs, was a sight to see. There were also glimpses of the veer. Both formations were completely new to the rushing arsenal.

But why reveal a new offense the week before a very crucial game, the biggest game of the year? Well, being completely new to the Irish football team, it does take some experience to master the skills and actually understand how it will operate under game situations.

The use of the I formation in Saturday's ballgame will allow the coaches to evaluate its effectiveness. However, the working of the offense were surely noted in this weekend's clash against the Cadets.

What will be interesting this coming Saturday will be the method the Trojans use to defense their own offense. With one game of experience chalked up, hopefully, the Irish offense will be a little more polished Saturday when USC invades Notre Dame Stadium.

Many were concerned how the Irish would fare after a week off. Notre Dame looked impressive offensively and defensively against Michigan State, however, their turnovers prevented them from blowing the game wide open.

Would Notre Dame be looking ahead to Southern Cal? In the Meadowlands, the Irish were sluggish in the first half, but came on strong with a 17 point rally in the final two periods. In their first three games, the Irish did not take command of the football contest. However, in their last two battles, the Irish have controlled the game to the extent that the outcome seemed assured. Notre Dame may have been planning for the future when they instituted new offensive sets, but their performance Saturday showed they were prepared for Army.

The defense has looked very strong the past two games. After a shaky showing against Purdue, the symbol of Notre Dame excellence has glowed. Giving up six points against Michigan State and being only the second team to shut-out Army this year was an accomplishment. Army quarterback Leamon Hall has broken all Cadet records. Knowing the Irish did not relinquish a point when considering how fast this signal caller could strike is very impressive.

Yes, the Irish have looked good in their last two games, something which really did not show in their opening three games, with the exception of the poise they illustrated in their comeback victory over Purdue. But now the test is really approaching.

Southern Cal comes to Notre Dame with a 5-1 ledger, suffering only a 21-20 loss to Alabama a week ago at the Coliseum. The clash this weekend is essential to both clubs. Both teams already have one loss, and any chances either team has for a National Championship fall on the outcome of this game.

If the sneak preview from East Rutherford was any indication of what's to come, then Irish fans may have a lot to look forward to. Many have said that Head Coach Dan Devine's wing-T offense is very dull. Well, whatever opinion Notre Dame enthusiasts have about the Notre Dame offense, those impressions may change. If the Irish attack continues to use this type of variation, things may be better in South Bend.

This weekend will tell if all this ingenuity paid off. On Saturday, it will also be revealed if the Irish can perform against a national power. Notre Dame has only been able to defeat the Trojans once in the last ten years. Notre Dame's edge in the series, which now stands at 26-18-4, has been diminishing every season.

The Irish have been improving and have displayed signs of hope for a climb back to the top. Notre Dame must avoid costly turnovers and take advantage of their opponent's errors.

After Saturday, the Irish will know if their pre-season publicity was legitimate. No one expects the contest to be easy, but, with imagination in the new offensive sets and dedication to its perfection, the Irish can continue to rise to the top.

Defense Never Rests

Instant Replay

Notre Dame's defense played a large part in winning the preseason number one spot in the polls, and although the Irish haven't lived up to August's expectations, the defense maintains a firm grip on its claim to being one of the best in college football.

First, the facts. No opponent has scored against the Irish on the ground this year. That piece of information in and of itself conveys the key to the defense: the immovable line. While it is true that linebackers lead the team in tackles this season, it is the front four that has been setting up runners like clay pigeons or bruising them as they stagger towards the linebackers for the final kill. Mike Calhoun and Ken Dike have been solid all season long, while Scott Zetek looks more and more comfortable standing in the shoes of Willie Fry.

What of Ross Browner? If he's supposed to be a Heisman candidate, shouldn't we hear his name more often? Well, not really. As a matter of fact, Browner is having another great season at end, quite possibly his best. He's been fighting double-teams and triple-teams all year, and, more importantly, he's been winning. He's also getting to the quarterback in his familiar excuse-me-forearm-in-the-face style, only now, bright quarterbacks like Mark Herrmann and Leamon Hall are getting rid of the ball much more quickly.

As for the linebackers, Leroy Leopold and Mike Whittington played superbly for the injured Doub Becker and Steve Heimkreiter, respectively. Each had an interception, giving Leopold at least one interception in every game he's played for the Irish, including his first, a touchdown return against Northwestern last year.

Bob Golic led the team (again) in tackles with 14. Golic's performance this year has been practically flawless, as good as any on the entire team, and his presence in the middle makes any sizeable gains up the middle or off tackle very difficult.

The secondary has improved in the past two weeks. They had bad games in Purdue and Mississippi, but they looked more together against Michigan State, and turned in their best performance against the Black Knights of the Hudson. Army's 202 yards in passing are insignificant in light of the fact that Hall-to-anyone-who-was-open was pretty much the name of Army's offense Saturday. But this time, no one was open when it counted.

Army is by no means a weak offensive team. Clennie Brundidge is a fine wide receiver, but he could do little against the secondary. Tailback Jim Merriken tied the record for most passes caught against Notre Dame (11), but was held to eight yards on the ground, one-fourth of the team total. Army did not even try a field goal. And so it goes.

This week, USC. If the Irish are going to beat the Trojans, the defense is going to have to maintain the same stubborn pride that has won them a national reputation, a few tidy victories, and maybe, just maybe, a National Championship. We'll have a better idea about the possibilities of that next week.

Dodgers triumph

LoS ANGELES [AP] - "Too many mistakes."

That was the way losing pitcher Don Gullett described the shelling he took Sunday as the Los Angeles Dodgers battered the New York Yankees 10-4 and sent the World Series back to New York with the Yankees holding a 3-2 lead.

"I felt great physically," said Gullett, who pitched 8 1/3 innings in the Series opener but was clobbered for seven runs and eight hits - including Steve Yeager's three-run homer - in just 4 1/3 innings Sunday.

"I just pitched a terrible game. It was my control - nothing more and nothing less."

"Yeager hit a hanging forkball. Every pitch they hit today was a mistake pitch. I just made too many mistakes. I have no excuses because I probably felt better physically than in the opening game. I just made too many mistakes with my fastball and my forkball."

The Yankees had hoped to end the World Series here and were a subdued bunch over having their season extended until Tuesday night.

"There'll be a sixth game, that's about it," said Manager Billy Martin. "But I've got to be happy winning two out of three here. Maybe it's right that we should win it in our home park for our fans. But I would've taken a win today." "If we play well, we'll win. If we don't, we won't. It's that simple."
