Financial need dropped as R.A. requirement

by Marian Ulicny
Senior Staff Reporter

Financial need will not be a primary criterion for selecting resident assistants (RA's) for the 1978-79 academic year, according to Fr. Gregory Green, assistant vice-president for student affairs.

Last year, the financial requirement for RA selection met with opposition from hall rectors. "It's always been a practice of rectors to remain sensitive to the students' needs, and they felt that the people's qualities to fill them are not demonstrated on a financial form," Green stated.

However, University officers preferred the new policy because "they wanted to be sensitive to the large number of students here who display some sort of need," Green explained. Consequently, he organized a task force during the summer to study "the feasibility of implementing a financial need basis into the selection of RA's." The group consisted of Green; Mary Clare McCabe, director of staff and student development; Sr. Jean Lenz, Farley rectress; Sr. Vivian Whitehead, Breen-Phillips rectress; Fr. Matthew Miceli, Cavanaugh rector; Fr. Mario Pedi, St. Ed's rector; and Fr. George Wiskirchen, Holy Cross rector.

"The University policy on student jobs was our principal concern," Green noted. This policy states that "all University student employment shall be based on financial need," with graduate and research assistants being the only exceptions.

Green explained the time lag as the main reason for rejecting the financial need requirement. To show officially documented financial need, an RA applicant would receive a Parents' Confidential Statement (PCS). PCS forms, available in early December, would be forwarded to the applicants' homes, usually being completed by the applicants' parents in six to eight weeks. They would then be sent to Princeton where official review would take three to four weeks. "When the results would finally be sent back to our office for additional review, it would be April," Green estimated, adding "Usually 300 persons apply, and there's simply not enough time left to interview them all."

"We could start to interview before getting the final PCS results, but why should a student have to go through the application process, be interviewed, and then find out he's not qualified?" Green continued.

University officers reviewed the task force's findings and decided early this month that financial need for RA's was not a workable method for selection. "We felt very strongly that the caliber of student needed for an RA was the same caliber needed for a teaching assistant or a grad assistant," Pedi, a task force member, stated, adding, "In some ways, personal qualifications are even more important for an RA because there's a lot of counselling going on."

Rectors agreed with the process of selecting RA's on the basis of personal qualifications. According to Sr. Verene Girmscheid, Badin rectress, "Residential life for students is important, and a qualified staff is vital in developing the right atmosphere. It's very important to have top-notch students for the RA jobs."

Fr. Raymond Holtz, Morrissey rector, agreed that personal qualifications should be given primary consideration in choosing RA's. "I think financial need should be taken into consideration only if other things are equal," he commented.

RA applications will be available in the Student Affairs Office, 312 Administration Building, from Dec. 1 to Jan. 20. The deadline for filing an application is Jan. 30.

The applicant must be a senior or graduate student next year. In addition, he/she must have at least a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) at the end of this semester and must not have any other job responsibilities for the time served as an RA.

The application requires general personal and academic information, with separate sections on job experience and extra-curricular activities. A personal statement on the applicant's motivation for applying and three letters of recommendation from hall staff personnel and a former employer are required. Applicants will also be asked to list three halls in order of preference in which they would like to serve. A brief section on

Hesburgh gets ambassador rank

Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., president of the University of Notre Dame, has been confirmed by the Senate for the rank of ambassador for the tenure of his service as chairman of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development in 1979.

In a transcript of the confirmation hearing released this week, Hesburgh is quoted as describing the conference as one "that will look at the whole field of science and technology to see how it might be used to help the developing countries, especially the poorest of them."

Asked by Sen. Charles Percy (R., Ill.) whether the conference would deal also with human rights, Hesburgh replied: "I am sure it will, at least in an indirect sense. One of the basic human rights, of course, is the economic and social right to make a living, to be employed, to have a decent home, to have an opportunity to develop oneself." He added, "All of these rights, in the economic and the social orders, are certainly within the focus of this conference. Science and technology can promote many of them a great deal."

Percy also asked whether consideration would be given to the transfer of "appropriate technology" to developing countries, lest they repeat some of the problems of industrially advanced nations, such as "conspicuous consumption of energy." Hesburgh replied: "I have often thought that we try to establish a Cadillac civilization around the world when many people would be satisfied with a bicycle. In fact, that might be all the happier because they would not be able to buy fuel for the Cadillac or have roads for it. The important thing is that each country make its own plans on the kind of development it needs," he explained. "In China, for example, the people are satisfied with barefoot doctors, because they meet their particular needs. We may have to have a big clinic ourselves because that is what we are used to, but there is a whole spectrum of needs that can

In accordance with the policy recommendations of the OSHA Central Committee of the University, the use of natural evergreen trees and/or branches of same is prohibited in campus buildings since they dry easily and are very flammable. The committee suggests the use of fireproof artificial trees and trimmings where such Christmas decorations are desired.

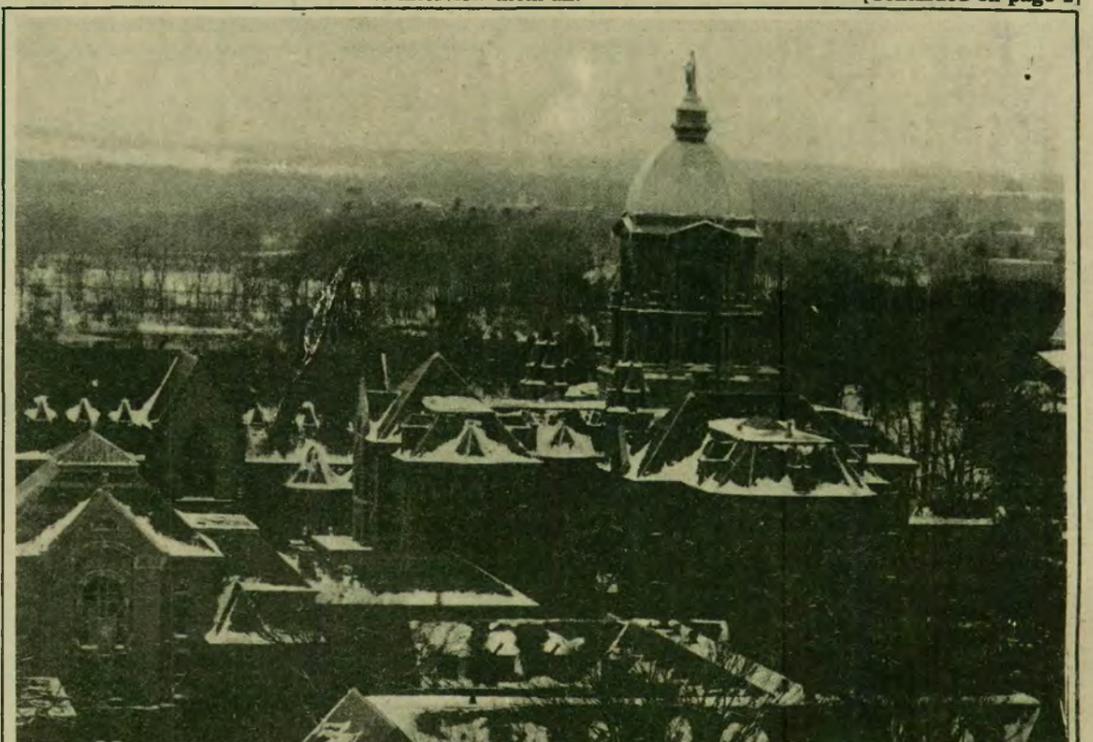

This policy remains in effect from previous years when it was approved by the Student Life Council.

There are other traditional decorations at Christmas time which constitute increased fire hazards, such as candles and Christmas lights. Care and discretion must be used by all members of the University community as to how and where such decorations are used.

These are important safety measures that need to be respected in order to avoid a tragic loss of life or personal injuries. Thank you.

Urchins' celebration features Christmas tree-lighting, party

"If you are a child, or you know a child, or you feel like being a child yourself on this saint's day heralding Christmas--and you would like Kris Kringle to be a part of the child's holiday innocence and your own--please be a joiner of the urchins' celebration," invites Fr. Robert Griffin.

On the feast of St. Nicholas, Dec. 6, the University Christmas tree will be blessed and lighted on the quad in front of the Main Building at 7 p.m. The tree-lighting will be followed by a party in LaFortune Ballroom for the St. Mary's and Notre Dame children (that is, the children of staff, faculty, students and workers), on the name-day of their patron saint. This celebration is open to all members of the Notre Dame-St. Mary's community.

So that this event can be planned with appropriate insight, parents and children planning to attend are asked to send a card to Fr. Robert Griffin, the University Chaplain, to say they are coming.

"We are excited about gathering together as many of our children as possible for this saint's day celebration. We have a number of surprises planned, and, of course, financial aid must be completed. "This is to help the rectors make their choices. If they interview two equally qualified people, they'll want to go with the one with greater financial need," Green explained.

Green and McCabe will briefly screen the applications, checking for the minimum GPA and completion of all sections on the form. They will notify those who qualify initially and send their names to the rectors of the halls listed in their applications. Within a week, the students must contact the rector to plan an interview time. "If they fail to call the rector, he or she won't call them. That much responsibility, at least, is needed," Green stressed.

After completing the personal interviews, rectors will submit their choices to the Student Affairs Office. "These will be considered the final candidates if no outlandish or undesirable information about them has reached us," Green stated. He will send out letters of appointment on April 5.

Green stated that students interested in applying may contact him or their rectors if they have questions or wish additional information.

Griffin celebrates daily Advent mass

Daily Mass during Advent will be offered in LaFortune ballroom from Monday through Friday at 12:15. Fr. Robert Griffin will celebrate the masses.

there will be a visit from Santa Claus," said Griffin. "We would be helped by being told the number of guests we can expect, so that we can do some careful planning. Students who love children and are interested in helping out are also asked to get in touch with me. I live in 101 Keenan; phone: 283-7066," he added.

The University Christmas tree was lighted for the first time last year. "Since we cannot have live trees in the halls," Griffin said, "it seems like a good idea to have a Christmas tree that belongs to everybody, in a place where the whole campus can see and enjoy it. We want to see and enjoy the children, too, at this holy season. The best way to do it seems to be a party."

The expenses and costs of the evening are being paid for by the Notre Dame Student Government and the Notre Dame-St. Mary's chapter of Right-to-Life.

John Marshall on Diamonds

Chapter 4:
Welcome to My Laboratory

I'm certain that many among you know your way around the laboratory. The chemical viles, beakers and cloud chambers are probably old hat to you, especially if you major in the sciences.

But have you ever been inside a gemological laboratory? If not, please consider this your invitation.

To be honest, my lab is quite modest by university standards. In fact, it consists of only one counter, filled with the latest in gemological instrumentation. With these microscopes, Metler Balances, Proportion Scopes and other pieces of apparatus, I can tell you just about everything there is to know about your engagement diamond. And to let you know that I'm not just "blowing smoke", I encourage you to examine your stone personally.

For example, the law demands that diamond quality be determined by an "expert", who views the diamond "in normal lighting through tenpower magnification". Therefore, I will place your selection under a tenpower microscope for your inspection. Then (and this is not a legal requirement), I will transfer your stone to a 280-power trinocular research microscope, through which you can easily see any flaws within its structure.

After you have seen the "degree of imperfection" of your diamond (as I mentioned in an earlier column, there are no "perfect" diamonds), we will place it on the Metler Balance. With this precise instrument, you will be able to exactly determine its weight in milligrams. To calculate carat weight, simply remember the formula: 2 mg. equals 1 point; 100 points equal 1 carat.

If you so desire, we can also check the symmetry of your intended purchase on a GIA Proportion Scope, which is accurate within fractions of a degree.

Finally, we can check the internal refraction pattern of your diamond with Gemprint apparatus. Only a handful of these sophisticated laser beam instruments are to be found in the Midwest, and they are now considered the only court-admissible form of evidence recognized by legal authorities in cases concerning lost or stolen gemstones. Gemprint literally shoots a laser beam into your diamond or other transparent gemstone, refracts its internal pattern into thousands of tiny dots, and photographs the pattern for permanent identification.

Now, technology aside, time for one of my pet gripes concerning jewelers in general. Far too many of them (there are exceptions, of course), expect you to take their word for the quality of their merchandise. They offer you no testing equipment, no legally-binding appraisal, no validation that your stone justifies its price. Many of these people, in fact, are nothing more than salesmen who couldn't tell a $100 Mexican fire opal from a $2,000 Burma ruby if their jobs depended on it. A point for you to ponder: just because a man stands behind a jewelry case, does that necessarily make him an expert on the contents of that case?

At Diamond Import Company, I expect you to demand proof of quality before you pay for your engagement diamond. That's why I make the tools of the Gemologists' trade available to you.

If you are interested in knowing more about what goes on inside your diamond, or if you would like a personal introduction to our laboratory facilities, please feel free to contact me at Diamond Import Company. Our establishment is located in the lobby of the St. Joseph Bank Building in downtown South Bend, and our telephone number is 287-1427.

Next week, my last column of the semester deals with the six rules of buying an engagement ring.

McClellan dies at 81; Senate loses a leader

Washington [AP]- With the death yesterday of John L. McClellan of Arkansas, the Senate lost the chairman of its powerful Appropriations Committee and the chief sponsor of most of the major anti-crime legislation of recent years.

The 81 year old senator, who announced a week ago he would not run next year for a seventh six-year term, died in his sleep in his apartment in Little Rock. His body was found by his wife about 6:30 a.m.

McClellan was a conservative pillar of the Senate establishment and was renowned for his investigations of corruption in and out of government.

Only recently a project on which he had labored for more than a decade- the consolidation and updating of all the federal criminal laws - won the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, (D. Mass) who worked closely with McClellan on the present compromise draft of the proposed new criminal code, issued a statement saying he "stood as an example of the finest American tradition of service to the public."

McClellan, who was first elected to the Senate in 1942 after two terms in the House, also was active on many other legislative fronts. He was the driving force behind the passage last year of the first complete revision of U.S. copyright law since 1909. He also won Senate passage last year of what was regarded as the most significant overhaul of patent law since 1836. The House, however, did not act on the bill.

And in earlier years, as chairman of the Government Operations Committee and as a member of the first and second Hoover Commissions he had been a leader in bringing about passage of measures to reorganize the executive branch of the government.

But he probably became best known as chairman of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, a unit of the Government Operations panel. He directed "headline-making probes of labor racketeering, organized crime, the TFX aircraft contract, illicit operations in overseas military clubs, the rash of riots that erupted in big cities and on college campuses in the late 1960's and of many other areas.

McClellan took over the chairmanship of the subcommittee in 1955 from the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R. Wis.) after the Republicans lost control of the Senate in the previous year's elections.

He had led a Democratic walkout from the investigating unit in protest against what he called McCarthy's one-man rule, staying out for nearly six months until he won concessions.

McClellan brought in as the subcommittee's counsel Robert F. Kennedy, who later was to become attorney general when his brother, John, became president. John Kennedy was then a senator and as a member of the subcommittee took part in its investigation of the Teamsters Union.

Sociology forum set for spring

by Lou Severino

Plans are underway for the Notre Dame Sociological Research Convention which will provide a forum for the presentation of graduate and undergraduate sociological research for students in midwestern universities and colleges.

The convention, sponsored by the Sociology Club and the Epsilon Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Delta Society is scheduled for April 7-8 in Stepan Center.

"The main goal of the convention is to get people together to read each other's research," said publicity director Paul Callahan.

"Through this forum we hope to spark new ideas and also correct flaws in student research," he added.

This year's convention has been expanded and will include students from many midwestern schools. Last year, over 200 persons from 24 school participated, and over 40 research papers were presented. Landry plans to expand the convention by issuing invitations to schools outside the Michigan-Indiana-Illinois area.

The Sociology Club, which has 45 members, also has plans for a mini-convention to be held in mid-February.

Callahan said, "We are asking for papers from Notre Dame students on sociological topics to be read at this convention. The sinning papers as selected by the sociology faculty will be presented at the April convention and will be submitted to the North Central Sociological Association Paper Contest.

"Callahan stressed the fact that any student's paper is eligible for this contest provided that it deals with a topic of a sociological nature.

The Club has also conducted a survey of Notre Dame graduates who majored in sociology. The results showed that 96 percent earn over $12,000 and 40.2 percent over $30,000. According to Callahan, 75 percent of these sociology graduates went on to earn a higher degree. Among the positions held by these graduates are Vice President of RCA, New York State Supreme Court Justice, Special U.S. Attorney. A significant number of the graduates went on to careers in law, social work, criminal justice and business.

Callahan also reported that the club was planning a careers night program to be held in late January or February.

"Representatives who are sociology grads will talk to students about careers in fields such as law, social work, management and business," said Callahan.

Hesburgh appt. confirmed be met much more modestly in many parts of the world and which would be much more satisfactory of the people there," he concluded.

Hesburgh said a Washington-based steering committee, headed by Ambassador Jean Wilkowski, who formerly headed the U.S. delegation to Ghana, is already at work coordinating the formation of American policy on matters to be covered by the meeting.

CIA On Campus

Dear Editor:

We the undersigned would like to express our profound dismay to learn that the Central Intelligence Agency has been welcomed to the Notre Dame campus for recruiting purposes. The illegal and unjust activities of this government organization have been so well-documented through governmental testimony and inside reports that they can no longer be ignored or denied. The CIA's indiscriminate spying on U.S. and foreign citizens, its plots to assassinate foreign leaders, and its collusion with oppressive secret police forces in other countries are now public knowledge. Former CIA Director Richard Helm's recent fine for perjury and his jubilant reception by CIA agents immediately afterwards only underline the "Company's" history of chronic lying and deception.

We do not at this time question the University's right to allow any organization it pleases to recruit Notre Dame graduates. We do, however, feel a certain responsibility to keep ourselves and others informed about the agency's activities in hopes that this knowledge can perhaps assist in curtailing further abuses of power under the rallying cry of "national security". By publicly expressing our concern about and disagreement with the CIA's presence on the Notre Dame campus, we add our names to the long list of people in all parts of the globe who have engaged in similar protests.

Never Alone in South Bend

Dear Editor:

This is an open letter to the Notre Dame Community:

Many thanks to all of you who prayed for, and visited my son,

Andrew, during his recent hospital stay.

Your kindness to me was overwhelming. Although I came as a stranger to you and South Bend, I never felt alone. Everyone I met went out of their way to be thoughtful and comforting.

Please forgive me for using the news media to thank you. It seems so impersonal after your kindness, but I did not know any other way to reach each of you.

I am certain that it was the power of your prayers which has made Andrew's progress so rapid.

With God's continued help, he will be back at school soon.

More Thanks To Students

Dear Editor:

As a follow up to the collection of tickets for the Air Force game, Notre Dame Big Brothers would like to extend thanks to all who contributed to the cause. The student response was so good that our demand was met after only three days of ticket collection at the dining halls.

We also thank Art Koebel and the council for the retarded for their cooperation. Altogether, it was a good effort by everyone who participated. It is a good thing to make a kid happy.

Security: Get With It

Dear Editor:

The instances of the past few weeks have alarmed and terrified the women of the ND-SMC community. Yet they are similar to many instances which occurred last year and the year before. A few weeks of furor always seem to follow, but then what? People forget and "well, it could never happen to me" runs through many heads. We have a responsibility to each other to face the problem of rape and hall intruders, to deal with it and, in turn to solve it.

In speaking with a security man in my hall a week ago he readily agreed more protection, more men, and more training are necessary. One can walk from the architecture building to the north quad any night and see at least three burned out lights and numerous places needing illumination. I love the Golden Dome and its nighttime beauty, but I also love my security. How about a few more lights in a few places that are a little "less inspiring"?

Notre Dame is a growing community; the population of women is growing along with everything else. Why can't Notre Dame security be allowed to grow along with the rest of the school? The incident which took place in Farley Hall that Friday night is just another example of the frightening need for more up-dated, increased protection. The demand is here, and increasing; why not be supplied with more security? The time has come to face the fact that Notre Dame has ugly problems as well as finer points. Notre Dame is a modern, expanding community. I think it is time the Notre Dame security force also reflected a 1977 image.

P.J. Kane

More Grief For Security

Dear Editor:

With all the recent controversy over how the women at Notre Dame should protect themselves from rapists, why doesn't security cooperate? For example, just this past week a lone 23-year-old male was allowed to drive his car on campus, after hours, without leaving his driver's license. Granted, I was glad this friend of mine was able to drive right up to my dorm to come visit me, but what if he wasn't anyone's friend? He explained to me that he looked so distraught, trying to find the campus in the first place, but I say that's all the more reason not to let him on campus. Yet if he had had a D-1 sticker, or any other student parking sticker, he would not have been allowed on campus after 6p.m. or before 6a.m. without giving his license to the guard.

I'm not saying don't let fathers and alumni on campus, but a lone male whether pizza man, taxi cab driver, or whoever-- should have to at least give some form of identification. They're so worried about students parking overnight on campus, they forget they can trace us and give us a ticket. Any out-of-state driver can just rip up the ticket and laugh. Why is security protecting us from fellow students instead of from strangers?

Work For Today and Tomorrow

Dear Editor:

I would like to respond to Marily Reed Holscher, whose letter appeared concerning admonitions regarding rape. I do not consider myself a sexist, and certainly do not regard rape as a tolerable social function. However, I must object to Ms. Holscher's comment that "the solution is not within changing the actions of women...it is within changing the fabric of an entire society which still regards women as weak creatures fitting to be victimized."

I sympathize with any woman who is fighting mad that there are berserk men who find some sick pleasure in terrorizing women. It is abhorrent and a disgrace to human society. Nevertheless, no matter how disgustingly evil we make rape sound (I shiver when I think what has taken place) and no matter how many times the public is made aware of its ugly circumstances, society changes slowly--sometimes too slowly--and so the problem still exists. We cannot simply "wish" it away, but must take positive action to safeguard--yes, safeguard--our women. For every woman like yourself who "reject(s) this type of admonition (that) women must play it safe and be cautious", I'd bet a dime on a dollar there are hundreds against you who are playing it as safe as they can.

We are all caught, both men and women, between finding a lasting solution and dealing with the immediate danger today. There are definite precautions which must be taken by any alert woman. Those who walk about at night may not be "asking for it", but they certainly might "get it" just the same. Let's face it, rape exists. Wake up, women! Work to change sexist attitudes, but don't put down your guard until the enemy is beaten.

Bounded Justice

jose a. bracamonte

Amid the apologies of Mary T. Ryan's letter (11-18-77) she touched upon important aspects of the current unionization efforts by Notre Dame employees. I feel that some of her premises and conclusions need to be further discussed and more closely scrutinized. So at the risk of having my comments deemed "fanatic", I will comment on some of the more salient points of her letter.

Notre Dame was superficially dichotomized into a 1) Catholic and 2) Financial institution. Thus, the argument goes, "money is what keeps the University open" and we must function within the constraints of "bounded capital". Consequently, the University cannot be as "benevolent and generous" as would wish, with the inevitable dilemma of "either your tuition goes up, (or) we lose some of the distinguished faculty..."

This argument not only totally dismisses the responsibilities imposed by the "Catholic dimension of this institution, it also erroneously extrapolates the results of paying this University's workers a livable wage. The suggestion that the payment of a decent wage would result in a choice between a tuition increase or losing members of our faculty is ridiculous. Obviously, the administration must financially function within the limits of the capital it possesses, but that is not to say it cannot pay a responsible wage within those limits, let alone having to dismiss faculty. A study of this issue, involving unionized faculty, shows that tuition does not go up any more at unionized universities than at non-unionized universities (see: Higher Education and National Affairs, Jan. 30, 1976). This argument, based on suspect financial reasons, would have us subordinate established Catholic doctrine on social justice to the exegesis of the balance sheet.

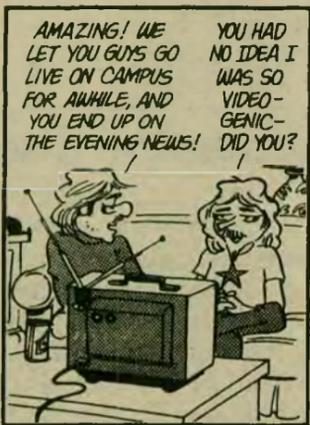

We are implored to accept "stone cold reality" as justification for injustice. Perhaps it would be salutary to look at "stone cold reality". The groundskeepers at Notre Dame, working forty or more hours a week, barely manage to eke out an existence. Some are actually below the poverty line as established by the Federal Government Department of Labor Poverty Guidelines, April 1, 1977. The rest of these workers hover right around these guidelines that reflect so dismal an existence. There is a certain coldness to reality when one of these workers is quoted in the media as saying, "Many times we don't eat".

A statement was made in the letter that the Teamsters were "so easily let in" by "the good intentions of some conscientious student group". First, the administration's use of the typical anti-union tactics, such as: urging that a group of 21 be swallowed up by a group 20 times that size; announcing a wage increase in the middle of a unionization campaign; hiring a nationally known anti-union law firm; and subcontracting out a whole unit of its employees, has hardly made the representation of the workers "easy". Secondly, the Teamsters are not even "in" due to the administration's failure to keep its Oct. 14 promise of an election for the groundskeepers. Finally, it should be made clear that the Groundskeepers Rights Coalition had no input as to the selection of a representative by the workers. However, the Groundskeepers Rights Coalition does respect the workers' rights to choose the representative of their choice, and we urge the administration to do likewise by calling for an election for the 21 groundskeepers.

We should not allow an ill-conceived notion of "bounded capital" to justify a "bounded justice".

Bicycle storage at stadium this week

The Lost and Found office will accept bicycles for winter storage tomorrow through Friday. Those wishing to store their bicycles for the winter should bring them to Gate 14 of the stadium from 1:30 to 4 on these three days.

There will be no charge for bicycles which have been registered with the Lost and Found office; unregistered bicycles will be charged $1 for storage.

Bicycles should be registered at the Lost and Found office between the hours of 8am and 8pm any day this week. The office is located in Room 121 of the Administration Building.

Madrigal dinners open Yule season

From the entrance of the Lord of Misrule, to the bearing aloft of the boar's head; from the first sip from the wassail bowl, to the last bite of the puddying of plommes; from the first trumpeted plommes, to the final note of the comic opera, gaiety, feasting, warmth and color reign at the annual Christmas Madrigal Dinners of Saint Mary's College.

The dinners will be presented from Thursday through Monday for all who are looking for an early lift to their Christmas spirits with a reminder of the ancient lineage of so many of our Yuletide traditions.

The Madrigal Singers, resplendent in Renaissance costume, regale the guests throughout the dinner in procession and from the head table where they enjoy the feast themselves. For the delectation of those present there is instrumental music, dance and the annual comic production which crowns the evening. This year's opera will be "The Victorious Bridegroom" by Charles Lecocq. It has been adapted by Susan Stevens, music department chairman, and edited into a 35 minute version which captures all the musical and comic highlights of the original opera.

Arthur Lawrence of the music department reigns over the evening as the Lord of Misrule. Students of the St. Mary's Collegiate Choir and the Women's Chorus act as servers. The menu for the Madrigal Dinner includes baron of beef au jus, pommes de terre y-rosted, carottes endored, winter sallet of pommys morles, smallage and nottes, wastylbrede, puddying of plommes and wassail.

Some seats are still available for Friday and Saturday nights; more are available for Thursday, Sunday and Monday. Tickets are $10 for the entire evening, including dinner and may be reserved by calling the Saint Mary's ticket office at 284-4176, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-noon and 1-4 p.m. The Madrigal Dinners begin at 7:00 p.m. in Regina Hall on the campus.

ND trustee to present report

Dr. Thomas P. Carney, a trustee of the University of Notre Dame, will make the public presentation of a report on "Chemistry in Medicine--The Legacy and the Responsibility," in Washington, D.C. tomorrow.

Carney served as chairman of the American Chemical Society task force that produced the 138-page book. Some 1,100 individuals have been invited to attend the presentation, including representatives from government, industry, educational institutions and medicine and health-related organizations as well as news media.

Carney, a former executive vice president of G.D. Searle & Co., a Chicago medical research and prescription drug manufacturing organization, is now president and chief executive officer of Metatech Corporation. He is past national chairman of the American Chemical Society's medicinal division and has served as a member of the executive committee of both the organic and medicinal divisions.

Prior to his association with Searle, he was with Eli Lilly and Company, Indianapolis, for 20 years. Carney holds the bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Notre Dame and the master's degree and doctorate in organic chemistry from Pennsylvania State University. He also attended the University of Wisconsin for post-doctorate studies in medicinal chemistry.

Semi-formal tix still available

Tickets for the Senior Class Semi-Formal are still available in the LaFortune Lobby from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. today through Friday.

The dance is scheduled for this Friday from 10 p.m.-3 a.m. at the Library. Tickets are $12 per couple and include a bottle of champagne, open bar, hors d'oeuvres, and a visit from Santa Claus.

SU to sponsor record exchange

The Student Union Services commission will sponsor a Used Record Exchange similar to the Used Book Exchange.

They give it to you straight.

"No vague promises, no snow jobs. You'll know exactly what positions are open, what's expected of you, what the bank will do for you—and what they won't. It's 30 minutes of give and take. And while you're learning about us, the recruiter is sizing you up. If he decides you're for us, one trip to one of our Bank of America units will produce a final decision in most cases. When the interview is over, you'll have a very good idea what you'll be doing over the next few months—and in the years to come."

The Bank offers a variety of career opportunities.

"In California, you'll start as a loan officer and head towards managing a community branch. You could be running your own profit center, and dealing directly with principals of business. Or you could enter the administrative area as a controller, or cashier. There are opportunities, as well, in our Leasing Department and other specialized areas. As a global banker, your first assignment in most cases will be in your home country; but after a time, you'll be involved in multinational transactions throughout the world."

They don't fill every nook and cranny with MBA's.

"Bank of America management knows that MBA's are valuable. That's why they choose us with care—and put us to work where we can do the most good."

It's a young, aggressive company!

"Although founded in 1906, we've only been doing business as Bank of America since 1931. That's an awfully short time to have become the world's leading bank!"

Look at our annual report!

"Don't just look at the $77 billion in assets. Look at the quality of our resources. More than 50% of the profit comes out of international business. And domestically, we have a solid base of over one thousand branches throughout California."

Some of the best people in banking work here.

"When I see the quality of the people who work at Bank of America, it makes me proud to be a member of the team. The professionalism and competence here are simply outstanding. They're looking for people who can meet these high standards. If you want to work with some of the best people in banking, you owe it to yourself to talk to us."

Bank of America is actively seeking top-quality MBA's to fill a number of specific openings in California and around the world. To arrange for your interview, contact us.

Rhodesian raids cripple Mozambique bases

SALISBURY* Rhodesia [AP]. Rhodesian forces smashed two black nationalist bases in Mozambique, killed at least 1,200 guerrillas and destroyed large quantities of war material, the government said yesterday.

The most devastating raids Rhodesia has conducted across the border came as Prime Minister Ian Smith was making plans to meet with moderate black leaders inside the country to discuss eventual majority rule.

The military command said ground and air forces launched the five-day operation Wednesday against the guerrillas' main base camp at Chimoio, 54 miles across the border, and a second camp in Mozambique's northwestern province of Tete, 132 miles inside the Marxist country.

One Rhodesian soldier was killed and eight were wounded, the government said. The raids, the fourth operation into Mozambique officially acknowledged by Rhodesia, were conducted "in the interests of self defense," the military command's communique said.

"Large quantities of war material including weapons, vehicles, ammunities, fuel, buildings and documents were destroyed," it said.

Intelligence sources said both of the camps were strategic bases for guerrillas of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, largest of the two guerrilla armies fighting to topple Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority government.

Officials believe Mugabe has about 9,000 men, more than 3,500 in Rhodesia and the rest in Mozambique. If 1,200 guerrillas were killed in the raid, it would mean he has lost nearly one fifth of his forces.

The second guerrilla army, the Zimbabwe African Peoples' Union headed by Joshua Nkomo, is estimated to have about 3,000 men, several hundred inside Rhodesia and others in neighboring Zambia.

Mozambique closed its 800 mile border with Rhodesia in March 1976 and since that time hostilities between the countries have increased steadily as the Maputo government stepped up its support of the guerrillas.

Smith said last week he agreed to the principle of one-man, one-vote elections, a major demand of the nationalists, in return for guaranteed safeguards for the country's 268,000 whites.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, the three non-militant Rhodesia based nationalist leaders, have given qualified acceptance to the prime minister's proposed talks. Initial discussions were expected sometime next week to lay the groundwork for a formal constitutional conference leading to elections.

The white population, which has held political power since the country became a self governing colony of Britain in 1923, is outnumbered more than 20 to 1 by the largely disenfranchised blacks. In 1965, Rhodesia broke away from Britain on the issue of black majority rule.

Panel discussion centers on Irish poetry

by Jana Schutt

Three Irish poets conducted an informal panel discussion yesterday afternoon on the Irish poet and his origins. Thomas Kinsella of Temple University, Richard Murphy of the University of Syracuse, and Seamus Deane, a visiting professor at Notre Dame, centered much of their discussion on Irish poetry as influenced by the political situation of Ireland.

Moderator Sean Golden, assistant professor of English at Notre Dame, asked, "What constitutes an Irish poet?" Kinsella answered by noting that poetry operates through particulars. "Obviously an Irishman has his own set of particulars from his environment," he said.

"There is a certain sense of history in Irish poems which is lacking in many other cultures," explained Murphy. "The poet takes a particular interest in the time and place setting. He deals with concrete reality rather than abstract ideas. This is an essential part of Irish literature," added Murphy.

Deane pointed out that Irish culture is both very traditional and rootless. The three poets agreed that the Irish people have a feeling of dislocation, almost a double identity.

In the course of the discussion, the poets outlined the course of Irish history. Because of long periods of colonization, the Irish have assimilated many English ways. They have lost their native language, making Irish culture an assumption at best, they said. There is perhaps an ancient root to the race, yet it is buried beneath other cultures, according to the poets.

"No one in the English-speaking world is investigating his identity in the same way that the Irishman is," said Kinsella. The Irishman uses poetry to restate the problem of individuality. It does not lead to a direct solution, but it is a groping toward understanding.

The poets spoke of modern trends and their influences on Irish poetry. They pointed to television as changing Irish dialect and outlooks. The real unchanging language of the Irishman rests in music, the universal tongue, they concluded.

Irish make Ole Miss 'whistle Dixie'

by Frank LaGrotta
Sports Writer

Notre Dame thrashed Ole Miss, 111-62 in their season-opener.

Now, are there any questions?

What's that...depth? Apparently that's something Digger does not lack. Who was it that said Notre Dame may have had the best recruiting year in the country? Well, give that perceptive fellow an "A+" for insight.

Yes, Kelly Tripucka did hit seven of his nine attempts from the field. That's right, two of three from the foul line, too. No, sixteen points isn't bad for a freshman making his college debut. Tracy Jackson's six of seven from the field was pretty impressive, too. Right, both Tripucka and Jackson hauled in seven rebounds apiece. Nope, they sure don't play like rookies.

What's that? WHO was hurt by a year layoff? Bill Laimbeer? Well, if he was he certainly does hide it well.

After shooting a fine 62 percent from the floor and outrebounding the Rebels 53-28, one might be tempted to say that Notre Dame scored a moral victory over Mississippi at the ACC this Saturday past. (Wouldn't it be nice if that victory cancelled out the 20-13 blemish in Notre Dame's gridiron ledger.) Nevertheless, for a coach looking to end his season right, starting it out right is always nice, and just about everything went right for Phelps and his crew on Saturday.

"I really like our scoring and playing balance today," a smiling Irish cage coach pointed out. "That kind of balance will help us all year. We had consistent offensive production out of eight or nine players and that's the kind of depth we have to establish."

The Irish registered five players in the twin-figure category. Besides Tripucka's 16, the squad was paced by Don "Duck" Williams who sunk four of five from the field and made good on eight of ten from the gift line in route to a 16-point performance. Bruce Flowers notched 13 points while the Irish point guards, sophomore Rich Branning and freshman Stan Wilcox were each worth 12 points. Sophomore center Bill Laimbeer led Notre Dame's vicious attack on the backboards by pulling down eight rebounds. Flowers, Tripucka, Jackson and freshman Gilbert Salinas collected seven caroms apiece.

For Ole Miss John Stroud was the hero of a disheartening afternoon. The 6-7 sophomore forward made good on 8 of 14 from the field and finished the day with a game-high 18 points. Freshman Elston Turner added 11 points to a Rebel attack that could do no better than 40 percent from the field. However, Mississippi coach Bob Weltlich laid most of the blame for his club's poor showing on their defensive play.

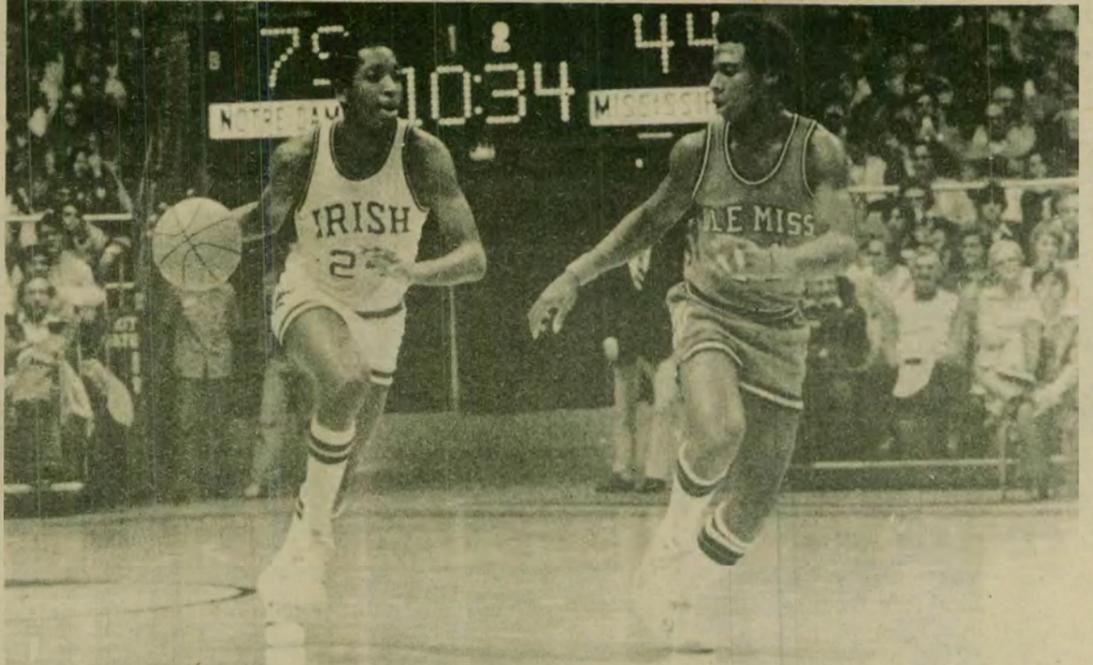

"Anytime you let your opponent score 111 points you have to consider your defensive effort poor. Of course Notre Dame shot over 60 percent from the floor and that's got to hurt any defensive effort."

From the opening tipoff to the final buzzer there was really no doubt in the minds of the 10,825 spectators who watched Notre Dame's methodical butchering of Ole Miss as to the eventual outcome of the game.

The score was close until the half-way point of the first half when Dave Batton connected on a 20-foot jumper to initiate a 5-minute spurt which saw the Irish outscore their opponents 20-4.

"I was pleased to see this," commented Phelps, "because when we did jump ahead like that we established the flow of the game."

Phelps substituted liberally in the first half allowing 11 players to see action. "I felt very comfortable no matter who was in the game," related Phelps. "We've got to get our players into the game so they can get experience. A major factor in our playoff loss to North Carolina last year was lack of depth but we've got the personnel this year and all they need is actual game experience. Of course we've also got to prepare for a situation like we faced last year when we lost Dice Martin and Rich (Branning) came off the bench to do the job for us."

Carrying a 58-35 lead into the second half, Notre Dame continued their 11-man rotation as they put on a fine exhibition of defensive basketball. Out-rebounding their southern opponents 26-17, committing only five turnovers and swiping the ball five times, Notre Dame only conceded 12 field goals on 31 attempts and held the already-paralyzed Rebels to 27 points. Meanwhile the entire Irish contingent had a field day hitting on 22 of 39 shots to add 53 points to their first half total.

"They really wore us out," admitted Weltlich. Notre Dame is experienced, they played at home and they have great depth. They really pounded us."

Are the Irish worthy of the #3 pre-season rank Sports Illustrated awarded them?

"Definitely," points out Weltlich. "They have everything--size, speed coaching--everything. They'll be up there at the end of the season."

The Irish face three home contests as well as Northwestern at Evanston, ILL before travelling to Pauley Pavillion for their annual battle with the Bruins of UCLA. The Bears of Baylor invade the ACC this Wednesday with the tipoff slated for 8p.m. and Phelps is anxious for the students to return to campus. "We need their support if we're going to accomplish anything. It will sure be great to have them back on Wednesday."

Game notes: Freshman Orlando Woolridge did not dress for Saturday's game due to a strained knee. He is expected to be out for seven days. Saturday's win marked Notre Dame's 105th victory at the ACC coupled with only 23 losses on home ground. The victory also gave the Irish a 65-8 record in home openers, a winning percentage of .888.

Notre Dame icers sweep MSU in weekend series; 4-3, 10-2

by Paul Stevenson
Sports Editor

The Fighting Irish hockey team earned their first two victories of the 1977 season by sweeping Michigan State, 4-3, 10-2. The double triumph marked the first time the Spartans have dropped both games of a series.

State had split their eight previous conference battles, having logged a 4-4 mark entering the weekend competition. The Spartans had skated against North Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan and Michigan Tech in preceding weeks.

Led by some excellent defensive play, Notre Dame was able to edge the Spartans, 4-3 in the series opener.

Michigan State reached the scoreboard first on an unassisted shot by right wing Jim Johnson. However, with only three minutes remaining in the opening stanza, Greg Meredith knotted the score at one, assisted by Geoff Collier and Terry Fairholm.

But, less than one minute later, State regained the lead on a tally by Marty McLaughlin that just escaped the reach of Irish goalie Len Moher with only 19 seconds left before intermission. Kevin Nugent brought the Irish pucksters even off the assist by Jeff Brownchidle and Don Fairholm. The first period ended at 2-2.

The second stanza had but one lone score with only 56 seconds left as Dick Howe eluded Dave Versical to give the Notre Dame icers their first lead of the contest, 3-2.

The Irish tallied once more in the third period at the 12:56 mark by Terry Fairholm, being assisted by Meredith and Collier. Michigan State narrowed the final margin to only one goal with 16 seconds remaining in the battle on a score by Russ Welch the Spartans leading scorer. But, that was the way the game was to end as the Irish registered their first victory of the 1977 campaign, 4-3.

Moher compiled 20 saves, including 11 in the final period to preserve the Irish conquest. Spartan goalie, Versical, was ranked fifth in the WCHA, yielding only an average of 34 goals per game.

The Notre Dame icers realized that Saturday night would be a supreme test, since the Spartans had yet to be swept on a weekend series. But, the Irish continues their fine defensive play and allowed their offense to erupt for ten goals.

Meredith gave the Irish a lead they would never relinquish only 54 seconds into the competition. Tom Weltzin padded the Notre Dame lead midway through the opening period with an assist from Don Fairholm and Don Jackson.

Notre Dame opened the second period with three unanswered goals. One score by Howe, a Terry Fairholm power play goal and an unbelievable short-handed score by Baumgartner gave the Irish a 5-0 bulge. State finally reached the scoreboard at the 8:14 mark of the second stanza on a power play goal by Welch.

But, Brownschidles second goal of the season gave the Irish a five goal lead again two minutes later on an unassisted tally. Then, Notre Dame and Michigan State exchanged power play scores by Tony Jelacie and Dan Byers to give the Irish a commanding 7-2 margin after two frames.

Notre Dame added three goals in the final period by Michalek, Terry Fairholm and a phenomenal score by Kevin Humphreys past Mark Mazzoleni.

registered 34 saves, compiles 39 on

In the contest, John Peterson registered 34 saves, while Mazzoleni compiled 39 on an offensive night for the Irish.

"Last night was a very important win for us," Head Hockey Coach Lefty Smith commented. "Michigan State has split with everyone they've played and this convincing victory tonight is great for our confidence."

"We had a good balance from all three lines," Smith continued. "Defensively, we played quite well."

"We had excellent goaltending both nights from John and Len. Both played their strongest games of the year. Our penalty killing and power play were also very good."

The Irish seemed to enjoy the return of both Don Fairholm and Kevin Nugent to their lineup. Fairholm had missed last week's game against Denver due to knee surgery while Nugent had been absent from action the past two weekends with an injury to the rotator cuff in his shoulder.

The Irish, who have scored only 22 goals in their first eight games were able to register 14 tallies of the weekend series. The sudden burst of offense and the defensive play, holding the Spartans to five scores in two nights while the Notre Dame icers have been yielding an average of six goals per contest, was a welcome sight.

The Spartans record now falls to 4-6 in conference, while Notre Dame's season standing rises to 2-8. The Irish now prepare for their series against Michigan Tech this weekend. "Michigan Tech is always tough at home," Smith acknowledged. "They will give us a helluva challenge, but with the confidence we've gained, we should be able to give them a good game."

Bowl tickets on sale

Tickets for Notre Dame and St. Mary's students for the January 2 Cotton Bowl will go on sale at the second floor ticket window of the ACC according to the following schedule:

Seniors: Tuesday, December 6
Juniors, Graduate and Law Students: Wednesday, December 7
Sophomores: Thursday, December 8

Freshmen: Friday, December 9
Fifteen hundred tickets will be held for students and issued according to the above priorities or until the supply is exhausted. You must present your ID card at the time of the purchase.

Students may purchase one reserved seat at $5.00. This represents a discount of 50 percent from the regular price. Reduced prices based upon personal use of the ticket. You must present your ticket and your Notre Dame or St. Mary's identification card at a special gate for admission to the Cotton Bowl. Our inadequate ticket supply will not permit more than one ticket per student.

Box office hours are from 9a.m. to 5p.m. including the noon hour. Notre Dame has only been allotted slightly over 12,000 tickets for the Cotton Bowl. The 1500 student tickets is more than the amount purchased by the students the last two times Notre Dame played in the Dallas affair.

In the 1971 Cotton Bowl, only

1355 students purchased tickets, while for the 1970 game, only 858 student tickets were sold. In the six bowl games the Irish have attended, an average of 1475 tickets have been purchased by the students. This figure includes a high of 2500 tickets sold for the 1975 Orange bowl, a game in which Notre Dame was given 15,500 tickets.

If 1500 tickets is not enough to cover student demand, then, if the contributing alumni do not exhaust sales, these students who did not receive a ticket will be taken care of.

Remember, these tickets are for personal use only. You have to have an ID to get in the gate. These 12,000 tickets are less than Notre Dame has received in the past. Since the student demand for this game has never exceeded 1500, that amount was considered enough to cover student demand.
