University announces new security chief

The appointment of Glenn L. Terry as Director of Security was announced at a press conference in the CCE yesterday afternoon. Terry stated that he will approach his job from the perspective that security is really a service. "My future at Notre Dame depends on how well I'm accepted," he said.

Terry, chief of the Services Division of the South Bend Police Department since 1976, assumed the position of Notre Dame Security Director September 18. In the Service Division Terry's primary responsibilities entailed data processing, crime prevention, records, budget planning, and research, and the armory.

From 1972 to 1976 Terry functioned in the capacity of detective sergeant in burglary and robbery investigation. He served 28 years with the South Bend police force.

According to Dean of Students James A. Roemer, Terry would be given ample time to conclude his remaining duties with the Police Department.

Terry replaces former director Joseph Wall who will assume a position as director of security, safety, and transportation at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago.

Wall informed reporters that he will work closely with Terry for the next two weeks and assist him during the hectic MSU football weekend. Terry congratulated Wall on the "good organizational work" accomplished in the security department under Wall's direction this past year.

Student Body President Bill Roche, a participant in the evaluation procedure for the new director, expressed "appreciation for the work Wall has done--he has initiated a very positive process and we are sorry to see him leave. Yet we are equally pleased with Mr. Terry and the emphasis of security as a service to the Notre Dame community."

Terry explained that his immediate plans are to familiarize himself with the security operations on campus, and "listen to what Dean Roemer has to say." The objective to continue and improve "the utilization of students in the security process," was also one of the new director's aims. In an effort to confirm the notion of security as a service Terry commented, "there will be problems if I am not responsive to what the students' needs are. I hope to make the students' stay at Notre Dame enjoyable and secure."

The selection of Terry set a precedent in that it was the first time that student participation had been actively sought in the selection of a security director.

Student Government president Bill Roche and vice president Bill Vita took part in the process of selecting Terry, although they did not assist in making the final decision. Roche considered this participation as an important, pioneering step in student government at Notre Dame. In addition, Vita emphasized that "student government has been pushing the positive aspects of security," and noted that Notre Dame security made 2,600 hospital runs last year, an indication of security's positive, vital service to the Notre Dame community.

The proposed "Inn of the Four Horsemen" is running into zoning troubles. See story on page 3.

Congress reaches compromise on Carter gas-rationing plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - House-Senate negotiators reached agreement yesterday night on a compromise formula to give the president authority to ration gasoline during a severe shortage.

Under the agreement, Congress would have two shots at rejecting a rationing plan - first when the president proposes it and then again when he attempts to invoke it.

The compromise came on the sixth day of negotiations and broke a stalemate over the degree of congressional involvement in the rationing process.

House and Senate leaders of the conference committee said they thought they could win final approval in their respective chambers of the measure.

An administration official attending the session said the White House could accept the compromise.

House conferees abandoned their earlier insistence that the president be given a free hand in drafting details of the rationing program.

The conference committee, named to resolve House and Senate differences, voted to give Congress the power to reject a rationing plan once it is submitted by the president.

However, such a rejection could be vetoed by the president, requiring both houses of Congress to override the veto by a two-thirds vote in order to block a rationing plan.

Once the president actually attempts to impose rationing, Congress would get a second crack at the proposal and then could block it with a veto by either house.

Before rationing could be imposed, the nation's gasoline or diesel fuel supply would have to drop 20 percent. Under the compromise, the president could ask Congress to waive this 20-percent limit.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, who led the House GOP team, immediately denounced the compromise as "the worst of both" House and Senate bills. But a majority of conferees said they would agree to support the compromise as the best that could be negotiated.

The president has said he does not intend to invoke rationing, but wants the power to do so in an emergency and has made standby rationing legislation a key part of his overall energy program.

HPC condemns ticket policy

by Aileen Lavin
Staff Reporter

A letter condemning present distribution of away football tickets was sent to both Mike Busick, Ticket Manager, and the Observer in a united action of the HPC at last night's meeting. In other action the HPC met with outgoing director of Security Joe Wall as well as incoming director Glenn Terry to discuss relationships between security and students.

The letter stated: "We, the student body of Notre Dame, are dissatisfied with the present policy of ticket distribution for away football games. This policy makes all tickets available to contributing alumni first with leftovers going to students. With 25,000 contributing alumni this policy reduces our chances as students to little or nothing, as seen in the case of Michigan."

This ticket policy is an outrageous injustice to the Notre Dame student body. By depriving students of student tickets the administration is denying us an important student privilege. In light of this the Hall Presidents Council, representative of the whole student body, is calling for a new ticket policy. We propose that 10 percent of all away tickets be sold to the student body, when tickets are first allocated. This 10 percent will increase our chances immensely, while it will barely alter the alumni's chances.

We hope that the administration will sympathize with our cause and give us the same chance for away tickets as alumni."

All members of the HPC signed the letter that was written in response to student displeasure with the amount of tickets allotted to them for the Michigan game. Only sixty tickets, or one percent of the total, were made available to students.

The HPC met for most of the night with outgoing Security director Joe Wall and new director Glenn Terry.

Wall expressed his desire to establish a better relationship between Security and students by attending Hall Council meetings to clear up misconceptions students have about Security.

"We are a service-oriented agency rather than an enforcement agency which is more negative," Wall said. He continued by citing the services which are offered to students and staff of ND. An escort service is provided for any student who is leery of walking alone on campus at night. Wall encouraged students to take advantage of this service.

NRC reports loss of weapon-grade uranium

ERWIN, Tenn. (AP) - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission ordered an immediate shutdown yesterday of an atomic fuel fabrication plant after the plant reported the apparent loss of weapons-grade uranium.

Frank Gillespie of the NRC's regional office in Atlanta said the material missing from Nuclear Fuel Services Inc.'s plant at Erwin "could possibly be turned into a weapon with appropriate knowledge."

Frank Ingram, a spokesman for the NRC in Washington, said the firm reported losing at least 19.8 pounds of "high-enriched" uranium. He confirmed, however, that officials have not ruled out theft of the material and are studying the possibility of an accounting error at the plant, located in this remote mountain town near the Tennessee-North Carolina border.

William Dircks, director of the NRC's nuclear materials safeguards office, said the plant will likely be shut down for at least 45 days while an inventory is taken under the NRC's supervision.

In general, only a few kilograms of high-enriched uranium is sufficient to make a nuclear weapon, but the actual amount necessary depends on the degree of enrichment.

Steven Sass, spokesman for Nuclear Fuel Services at the company's Rockville, Md., headquarters, said only that the firm is investigating the cause of the apparent uranium loss.

Tornado roars through Houston, causes damage

HOUSTON (AP) - A destructive tornado roared through a plush, heavily populated section of west Houston yesterday afternoon causing heavy damage to at least 20 homes but no serious injuries. Day-long rains and heavy rush-hour traffic complicated relief efforts in the area where the tornado touched shortly before 5 p.m. Houston police reported street flooding in the surrounding areas and power lines down in the water. There are no reports of serious injuries, only minor cuts and bruises, a Red Cross spokesman said. However, three ambulances were standing by, and two disaster vans were sent to the area, where Red Cross workers were setting up shelters for the homeless.

Gold soars to record high of $376 an ounce

NEW YORK (AP) - The price of gold in Europe soared by a record $20 an ounce yesterday to a new world high of $373 - a mark that quickly fell when it closed at $376 an ounce hours later in New York. The latest gold rush has seen the price of an ounce soar more than $50 in the past 12 months. Twelve years ago, gold sold for $35 an ounce.

Experts attribute the boom to worries over inflation. Gold is a traditional refuge for investors worried that the currency they are holding will shrink in value or that their other investors will suffer because of adverse economic conditions.

Miami votes today on mistaken tax proposal

MIAMI (AP) - A proposal for a drastic tax cut that would reduce the taxes on a typical home to the price of a cup of coffee goes to voters for resolution today in Dade County. Voters in Miami, 26 other cities and large unincorporated areas will decide whether to slash county property tax bills 99.5 percent, or from several hundred dollars on a typical home to a few cents. The proposal has touched off a political furor and "scare" ads in newspapers. And it is all the result of a mistake. Harry Wilson, the man who started the furor, collected 15,000 signatures last fall on a petition he thought would trim county property taxes 50 percent. But the petition said "four mills" where Wilson meant "four dollars." The result was a potential cut of 99.5 percent instead of 50 percent in countywide taxes.

Many seniors cancel trip plans

by Laura Vasquez

Many Seniors who signed up for the senior class trip to Acapulco, Mexico during October break have cancelled their reservations this past Monday and Tuesday, said representatives from both schools.

As of last night, 95 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students have cancelled. The maximum number of students able to go on the trip is 580, according to Andy Barfuss, one of the four seniors selected to organize the trip.

Barfuss cites two reasons why students have cancelled out on a $316 trip to Acapulco which included the round-trip air fare, and six days and 5 nights in a condominium complex overlooking Acapulco Bay.

"A lot of people have to take graduate school admissions tests the day after we come back. They were afraid they would be too exhausted to do well if they went on the trip. Other people thought they could afford it when they made their reservations last spring, then realized they couldn't after all."

Julie Essig, Saint Mary's representative, in giving additional reasons explained, "On the first night for cancellations, 20 people of approximately 200 reservations, cancelled out. Money was one of the main reasons. Many students just didn't earn as much during the summer as they had expected to. Also, many of the seniors wanted to visit grad schools during their break."

Last spring, juniors wishing to go on the trip paid a $50 deposit. This deposit is returned to those people who have cancelled.

On Wednesday and Thursday, students wishing to make reservations may sign up, and everyone else must pay their balance.

The six flights will leave from O'Hare airport in Chicago on October 21, the Sunday after the Southern Cal football game, and arrive in Acapulco that afternoon, according to Barfuss. The six flights will leave from O'Hare airport in Chicago on October 21, the Sunday after the Southern Cal football game, and arrive in Acapulco that afternoon, according to Barfuss. The students will be housed in a condominium complex in four person apartments, each of which has a living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms, and a balcony overlooking Acapulco Bay.

The trip is not structured. All activities will be left to the individuals' discretion. The only planned activity will be a beach party.

On Friday afternoon, October

26, flights will depart from Acapulco and students will be back on campus before midnight, in time for the South Carolina game that Saturday.

Barfuss also emphasized that the senior class was not making any profit on this trip. "The senior class is sponsoring the trip and it is purely a break even operation. A firm price wasn't quoted until last week when all prices were definite. Our price is based on a price quote from a travel agency in Chicago," Barfuss said. This same company handled the senior class trips for the past two years.

The last day for students to make reservations and pay their balance is Thursday, September 20. Barfuss suggested that students also write down the people with whom they wish to room and hand their requests in at this time.

and from St. Joseph's Hospital. However, Wall said he hoped the Infirmary would be able to take over this responsibility in the future because "this leaves us vulnerable with our car being off campus." Last year Security made approximately 2,600 runs to and from St. Joseph's.

Patrolling student parking lots, jump-starting cars in the winter, and providing shovels to dig cars out of the snow are also responsibilities assumed by Security. Security patrols will turn out lights left on in cars, lock doors, and take any keys left inside the cars to help students and staff. Security will leave notes inside the cars which they have entered to inform the owner of the service performed.

Wall cited some of Security's plans to aid in establishing a better rapport with students. He plans to have students working the gates instead of limiting this to Security officials and have students acting as escorts for other students. Security would like to extend student involvement further by having students trained to give first-aid assistance here on campus.

Finally, Wall sees the need for better lighting on campus and increased student involvement in reporting incidents which concern Security.

Jim Jones, InPIRG representative, also met with the HPC to propose a joint project between InPIRG and the Council for campus recycling. A committee is being formed to work out details.

Four Horsemen Hilton

Planning Commission tables hotel plans

by John McGrath
Senior Staff Reporter

The St. Joseph County Area Plan Commission tabled action last night on plans to build a Hilton Hotel on a tract of land near the Notre Dame campus.

The proposal, submitted by a development group headed by Ray Miller of Columbus, Ohio, calls for the construction of a 10-story Hilton Hotel on a 4.4 acre site along the west side of South Bend Avenue near the intersection with Edison Road.

According to presented specifications last night, the hotel will have 200 rooms on the second through ninth floors. The first floor will house a coffee shop, reception area, lounges and meeting rooms, while the tenth floor of the structure will be occupied by a rooftop restaurant. The plans also called for an indoor swimming pool.

The proposed hotel has tentatively been named The Inn of The Four Horsemen, in reference to Notre Dame's famous football backfield. The site is near the outer perimeter of the Notre Dame campus, and plans call for the structure to face and overlook the main part of the campus. All ten stories of the building will be sheathed in bronze reflector glass.

The developers are seeking to have the tract rezoned from business and residential use to commercial zoning. The commission, which had earlier failed to come to a decision on the rezoning of the former Bendix Mansion for use as a retirement apartment complex, balked on the issue after learning that some of the original specifications of the hotel had been altered.

Richard Johnson, commission executive director, recommended that the group table the motion to accept the plans after Charles Sweeney, attorney for the Miller group, announced that the structure's height had been changed from nine to ten floors, and its capacity from 175 to 200 rooms.

"I am not going to be put in the position of making a professional recommendation with changes (in the specifications) being made on the floor (of the meeting)," explained Johnson.

"With the addition of another floor and more rooms, the provisions the developer has made for parking may no longer conform to St. Joseph County standards, and until my staff has an opportunity to further study the proposal, I recommend that it be tabled."

The original plans call for 320 parking spaces. Miller stated his reaction to the commission's action as, "I'm not really disappointed; we really couldn't start moving until next month anyway."

During the course of the hearing, Sweeney elaborated on the scope of the project, explaining, "We envision a full and complete hotel complex that South Bend has yet to see. We need to keep up with the convention facilities that we now have, and this new hotel will compliment the city and the county in the drive to care for those people we intend to lure into the area."

SMC appoints three new department chairmen

by Mary Leavitt

Saint Mary's has announced the appointments of three new academic departmental chairmen, Elisabeth Noel as English chairman, Claude Renshaw as chairman of the business administration and economics department, and Isis Quinteros as new modern languages head.

Noel replaces Sister Eva Hooker in the English department. Sister Hooker has taken an administrative fellowship at Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts. Noel says, "I hope we'll have a good year, working happily together as teachers and students of literature and dedicated to the humanities and to liberal education."

As new chairman of the business administration department, Renshaw's main objectives are to maintain the high quality of the business program and to recruit new professors into the department so that business courses can be made available to those who are not majoring in business. He adds, "I feel that I have an obligation not only to business students but also to all students who are interested in business."

Quinteros, the new modern languages chairman, has been a faculty member of Saint Mary's for 13 years. She feels this experience and her fellow faculty members will help her in resolving conflicts this year, and she enjoys the combination of administrative duties and teaching.

InPIRG announces plans

by Tricia Beaujean

The Notre Dame chapter of the Indiana Public Interest Research Group (InPIRG) has announced their plans for the upcoming year.

The organization's objective is to involve students in issues of general public interest. Two projects were discussed: the advent of an aluminum and paper recycling program here on campus and a bookstore survey.

The bookstore survey, according to InPIRG Student

Director Jim Jones, is to compare textbook prices at the Hammes Bookstore with those in both university and non-university bookstores.

InPIRG will be working with Student Government personnel on this research project. Their goal will be to collect sufficient data before next semester to allow them to make objective recommendations to the students and the bookstore on the purchase of textbooks.

Seven years ago, Public Interest Research Groups were inspired by consumer advocate

Ralph Nader in universities in Oregon and Minnesota, Jones said.

An attempt to reorganize the group formed at Notre Dame in 1976 was a "direct result of a speech that Ralph Nader gave last semester," said Dan Smith, a former organizer of InPIRG.

"InPIRG had a group on campus three years ago, but the University cut the program because of funding and organizational problems."

Jim Jones commented that last year the group was mainly involved in organization. Because funding had been a problem in the past, a petition was begun last year to attain a mandatory refundable two dollars from each student to support InPIRG. The attempt failed even though it contained a refundable option.

Instead, an alternative was proposed to place a card in each student's registration packet requesting a two dollar donation to InPIRG.

Due to administrative error, the cards were never printed, Jones remarked.

The student advocacy group on campus is composed of approximately 20 core members Jones said. "Hopefully, we are establishing a base on which we and others will later build."

He cited Nader's philosophy that students do not use research skills that they learn in the classroom in practical situations. Organizations like InPIRG allow students to use their skills and apply their efforts toward community service, Jones added.

Other projects will be decided upon by the members at future meetings, Jones said.

Writer speaks tonight

Michael Harrington, Chair of the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee will speak on "Justice and the American Economy," today at 8:15 p.m. in the library auditorium. The talk, sponsored by the Department of Economics, is part of the New Directions Series.

Harrington has authored several books including The Other America, Socialism, The Twilight of Capitalism, and The Vast Majority: A Journey to the World's Poor. He has long been an advocate of liberal and trade union causes, serving as a member of Martin Luther King's advisory council, and as a member of Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty.

A native of New York, Harrington is regarded as one of the country's leading socialists. He is a major backer of the Democratic Agenda, a socialist movement that demands equal economic opportunity for all citizens and increasing social priorities in government policy.

Blown out of proportion

'H'-bomb plans raise controversy

by Louis Breaux

The failure of the federal government to halt the publication of a letter containing secrets to the hydrogen bomb has unleashed a wave of concern over who now has the capability to make such a bomb.

"The letter does not cause any troubles as far as increasing a country's nuclear capabilities, but I am concerned with the letter as a precedent for further challenges to government security. It is, no doubt, a technical violation of government regulations," says Professor Paul Kenney of the Notre Dame Physics Department.

Kenney believes that the article does not contain enough technical information for the construction of an H-bomb. "The technology is easier said than done. The letter contains many important facts, but I don't think it will lead to Israel bombing the Arabs or something of that nature."

Kenney further stated that those countries who have the capability to build the H-bomb already have this information, and in those countries for whom this is new information, it does not provide a new threat simply because they do not have the ability to produce the bomb. "It is basic information to anyone with knowledge on the subject," Kenney said.

The information should not pose a threat even if it were available to terrorists. "The bomb is too complicated to be made by an individual. With a group, you are assuming that they already have an A-bomb -- which they must produce an H-bomb. We would be in grave danger if a terrorist group possessed an A-bomb," Kenney remarked.

"I am more concerned about the direction the article will take. It has the potential to lead to a breakdown in government security," Kenney said. "It is information which the public previously considered 'let's not talk about it' information. It is not the kind of direction society needs to be heading in these troubled times. It is also not the kind of publicity that society needs."

Kenney also feels that the effect on the number of weapons pons in the world could be worsened. "There are already too many weapons of this type in the world. Personally, I would like to see the number reduced to zero. The article will definitely not have the effect of decreasing the number of arms in the world. The article may even have the effect of increasing the number of weapons stored in arsenals," he observed.

"There is no great threat of anyone building an H-bomb from the information in the article. The information should probably have been declassified earlier, since it obviously was available to the writers from some public source," Kenney said.

Two publications, The Progressive and The Daily Californian, were stopped last week in an effort to publish the H-bomb information. The Daily Californian is a student-run newspaper for the University of California at Berkeley. The article was entitled "The H-bomb Secret -- How We Got It, Why We're Telling It," and was written by Howard Morland. The government feared that the publication of the article would violate the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 revealing H-bomb secrets. The Act prescribes penalties for those who communicate or possess "restricted data." The data is defined as anything of the "design, manufacture, or utilization of atomic weapons." The government's efforts to stop the publication of the article failed when a newspaper, The Madison Free Connection, published a letter, releasing the information. The Chicago Tribune published the same letter -- written by Charles Hanson -- yesterday.

The mechanism of the H-bomb is very complex and requires precise timing. The system can be divided into a number of steps which trigger further steps.

The first step is the detonation of high explosives. The explosive forces are aligned so that they are directed inwardly towards a fission core. The core contains materials such as Uranium-235 and plutonium-239. The fission core is reduced to one-third of its original size. This step is known as "implosion."

During the implosion an initial burst of neutrons is fired to begin the fission of the uranium-235 and plutonium-239. A uranium-238 shell surrounds the assembly.

The temperature and pressure increase to incredible proportions as the released neutrons collide with lithium nuclei, also in the core. The lithium breaks down into helium and tritium. The helium and tritium undergo fusion -- the union of atomic nuclei -- creating lithium-6 deuteride and, most importantly, more neutrons.

Following this the heat and pressure increase even more and neutrons begin to strike the shell of uranium-238. Fission of the shell occurs and this yields 60 percent of the explosive force.

The whole procedure described occurs within a few millionths of a second. Each stage leads to the other and each increases the intensity of the other. The timing of the device must also be precise or else the bomb would fizzle out. The dimensions of the bomb are 18 inches in diameter by 4 feet in length.

The availability of plutonium-239 and uranium-235 is very restricted. Plutonium does not naturally occur and must be produced. Uranium-235 is found in 1 part to 140 parts of ordinary uranium. It takes sophisticated equipment and a large-scale operation to produce large amounts of it.

The uranium used in a nuclear plant is in large enough amounts to run the plant, but not in quantities large enough for use as weaponry. The largest portion of usable materials from a plant is in the nuclear wastes and by-products. These are virtually non-recoverable. "We could give the Arabs, Israelis, and anyone all the nuclear waste they want to fool around with and all they would get would be radiation sickness. Even if they could recover something it is a long way from the H-bomb," Kenney said.

Kenney teaches a course -- Energy and Society -- that is open to all non-science and some science majors. The course will study this problem and many other problems in energy that face today's society. The course is held in the spring semester.

'Harpsichord Weekend' at Saint Mary's

by Paula Tironi

In eighteenth century Europe harpsichords were as popular and as common as guitars are today. The twentieth century revival of the instrument and its music has provided the impetus for a "Harpsichord Weekend" at Saint Mary's College, to be held on September 21-23. Dr. Bruce Gustafson, director of the three day festival, explained in an interview with WSND/FM that the weekend will be of interest to performers and students of the harpsichord, as well as to classical music lovers who enjoy music of the eighteenth century.

The craft of one dozen harpsichord makers will be on display throughout the weekend at Moreau Hall, to be seen, touched and played by visitors to the festival. Over forty instruments will be on display, including clavichords and one forte-piano besides a wide variety of elaborately decorated harpsichords. As these are hand-crafted instruments, each the work of an individual, special care must be taken by those who own and play them. Unlike the piano, the harpsichord is an "unstable" instrument which must be tuned and adjusted frequently. The craftsmen and builders attending the Harpsichord Weekend will discuss harpsichord maintenance, as well as construction and decoration.

Featured artists and performers will include Laurette Goldberg, a native of South Bend. Goldberg is currently a member of the faculties of the University of California, Berkeley, and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. On Friday evening at 8, Ms. Goldberg will present a solo recital, "Francois Couperin and His Influences in the Bach Family," an exploration of the impact of French harpsichord music by Francois Couperin on Johann Sebastian Bach and his sons.

The youthful but celebrated Tom Pixton who is currently teaching at the South Shore Conservatory of Music in Boston will be featured in a Friday afternoon concert at 2. The program will consist of music composed by Vivaldi. Performing with Piston will be Edward Parmentier, a faculty member of the University of Michigan School of Music, and Alexander Silber, musicologist from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Also appearing at the festival will be Willard Martin, harpsichord builder whose instruments are in great demand world-wide.

Three faculty members will be featured from the Music Department of Saint Mary's College: Dr. Bruce Gustafson, Director of the Harpsichord Weekend, is a specialist in seventeenth century French harpsichord music. Arthur Lawrence, editor of The Diapason, an international monthly publication for keyboard musicians, will also be present at the festival, as well as Carol Knell, lyric mezzo-soprano, who will perform in a solo voice recital on Sunday at 3 p.m.

Afternoon and evening concerts are open to the public, and will feature guest artists, Saint Mary's faculty members, and students. The student recital on Saturday afternoon at 3 will include students from Case Western Reserve, the University of Michigan, Saint Mary's College, and several other schools. On Saturday evening at 8, Edward Parmentier will perform works from the renaissance and baroque periods, including the music of Byrd, Cabanilles, J.S. Bach, and Scarlatti.

A solo voice recital by Carol Knell at 3 on Sunday afternoon will be divided into music from the baroque period and twentieth century music. Included in the latter half will be two songs by Maurice Ravel which, although written for piano, come from texts which refer to the harpsichord. The composer allegedly said that "using the harpsichord rather than the piano would be a good idea."

Also on Sunday, at 11:15, a Medieval Mass will be celebrated in the Church of Loretto on the Saint Mary's campus. The Mass will be said in Latin, following a fourteenth century liturgy accompanied by Gregorian Chant.

The most important guests at the Harpsichord Weekend will be a group of thirteen outstanding musicians who specialize in music and instruments of the eighteenth century. Ars Musica, the only baroque orchestra in the United States, will perform on Sunday at 8. The Ann Arbor-based orchestra will feature the music of Bach; the Concerto in D-minor for Harpsichord and Orchestra, and the Concerto for Four Harpsichords, which will feature soloists Penelope Crawford, of Ars Musica, Laurette Goldberg, Edward Parmentier and Arthur Lawrence.

The 1979 Harpsichord Weekend is the second such festival to be held at Saint Mary's College. The first, held in 1977, was the first harpsichord festival to be held in the area, and one of the first in the United States.

Since the 1977 weekend, at least five festivals have sprung up in imitation of the Saint Mary's Harpsichord Weekend. The 1979 series will be an important contribution to the revival of eighteenth century music in the United States, as well as a fascinating, instructive and enjoyable weekend for anyone interested in harpsichord music.

New Semester Abroad Program

Three Months in Mexico - Words are Inadequate

by Peggy Osberger

"How was your semester in Mexico?" For the seemingly hundredth time an unsuspecting friend poses me this question and for the hundredth time, while countless memories of my months in Mexico pass through my thoughts, I swallow hard and merely reply "Great, thanks." Period.

Of course, if given an inch more I take the mile and begin to recount some of those dear, dear memories: Oh - the - people-are-so-beautiful-I-love-the-weather-it's-so-warm-and-I-can-speak-el-espanol-and-I-learned-about-politics-and-Latin-culture-and-the-United-States-and-about-myself-and...and so on.

The fact of the matter is that there is no adequate way to describe my time living and studying in the city of Cuernavaca in Mexico, about one hour south of the nation's capital, Mexico City. I participated in the "Program in Global Community," sponsored by Augsburg College in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The program is being offered to Notre Dame students of the present school year. The "Program in Global Community" is an opportunity to live and learn in a community for 3 months. The program's primary focus is the study of issues related to global justice and liberation.

The academic component of the program was worthwhile and challenging in a way that has given a fresh direction to my life. I took four courses and received a full semester's credits (16) for my academic studies. My courses were:

Intensive Individualized Spanish - five hours a day for four weeks. Taught by Mexican instructors, in small groups of four people or less and geared to the individual's competency level.

Cultural Issues Seminar - a series of eight "mini-courses" out of which the student chooses four to carry for credit. The widely-varied themes of the "mini-courses" include: Women and Change in Latin America, Pre-Colonial History and Culture of Mexico and Chile: Three Case Studies.

Communication in Global Perspective - a seminar which focuses on issues in intercultural communication and global justice.

The Church and Social Change in Latin America - focuses on the relationship of the Church to poverty, political oppression and social injustice in Latin America. Central to the course is an examination of the emerging "Theology of Liberation."

I chose to take the theology course but other options are also possible, such as a second intensive Spanish course or a directed study course. The academic portion of the program was challenging and essential, because what I learned in the classroom I later saw on the streets. I have never been so involved in my own education before.

Nor have I ever lived with 17 people before but I am glad that I did. The 17 student participants in the program shared a large house and formed a community in which we shared many cooking and cleaning responsibilities while exploring what it means to live in community. It was dorm life on a small scale, only more fun and much more meaningful. Often we traveled on weekends to see more of lindo Mexico. Other times we'd stay close to home and go camping near the snow-capped volcano Popocatepetl or just relax in the sun of the "City of Eternal Springtime." It beats the pants off South Bend weather!

On a more serious note, however, whether traveling or at home in Cuernavaca, one is part of everyday life in Mexico, a life of poverty for the large majority of the people, but a poverty buoyed-up by hope and a love for life. One also becomes aware of the United States presence in both the economy and society.

For three weeks we lived with Mexican families. This was a highlight of everyone's experiences, by which we came to know the Mexican people as our brothers and sisters; indeed "our families" remained our companeros throughout the rest of the semester. For 2 weeks in late April we travelled through and studied in Guatemala, a country distinct from Mexico, yet no less lovely a place nor less inspiring in its people. I have a clearer conception and enhanced appreciation of what Latin America is after having lived in such varied Latin countries.

The "Program in Global Community's" director, Joel Mugge, is a communications professor at Augsburg College in Minneapolis, who has extensive experience in developing and leading study programs in Mexico. He will be at Notre Dame within the next few weeks to discuss the program, if enough students indicate an interest. The cost of the program is $2,250 equivalent to the cost of room, board, and tuition for one term at Augsburg, and costs less than a semester at Notre Dame! This amount includes transportation to and from Mexico from Minneapolis, tuition, room, board, as well as the trip to Guatemala.

The most convincing proof of my enthusiasm about the experience is that I stayed for three months in Cuernavaca. I moved back in with my Mexican family, and combined working in a school with volunteering in a hospital with a lot of fun and learning all the time. All interested students are asked to please contact Peggy Osberger by September 26 at home (282-2241) in the evenings or at the Center for Experiential Learning (283-2788), 1110 Memorial Library.

textbook style of teamwork they performed against St. Josephs.

Soccer notes--Lovejoy's first goal came on a spectacular blast to the upper left-hand corner of the net from twenty-five yards out on the right side. two minutes into the extra period. The kick was awarded to Dayton because of an Irish handball within the penalty area...Weekend casualties for Notre Dame were Tom Luetkehans with ligament damage in his hip and halfback Bill Murphy who suffered a recurrence of chronic back spasms... Saturday's game at Purdue is scheduled for an 11:00 a.m. start. The Loyola game will be played at Cartier Field at 12 noon Sunday.

Case played briefly in Saturday's game at Michigan, but was on crutches immediately following the contest.

Sailors place first in Midwest

The Notre Dame sailing club placed first in the Midwest and second over-all at the Notre Dame regatta held last weekend at Eagle Lake, MI. The Naval Academy took first, followed by the Irish, Miami (Ohio), Michigan State, and Michigan. Taking low A awards for the Irish were skippers Phil Reynolds and Greg Fisher, and D skippers Don Condit and Jay Kyle also took first. Notre Dame will be sending teams to Western Michigan and Kent State.

Among those who will miss the clash against the 17th-ranked Boilermakers is split end Dave Condeni. A fractured elbow will keep the junior wideout from action for six to eight weeks, and opens up a spot for freshman Tony Hunter.

Offensive guard Tim Huffman reinjured his back only three plays into Saturday's game against the Wolverines, and is also expected not to see action. "I don't even think we can think about him this week," said Devine.

"We've got 19 kids on full scholarship who are out for the year," Devine added. "And we've got another five on full scholarship that will miss the Purdue game."

Defensive right cornerback John Krimm remains questionable this weekend after suffering a wrist injury. Freshman Dave Duerson is ready to step in if he is called upon.

Portland gains three for Walton

NEW YORK (AP) - In the largest compensation award in National Basketball Association history, Commissioner Larry O'Brien awarded three players and a No. 1 draft choice to the Portland Trail Blazers Tuesday as payment for the signing of veteran free agent center Bill Walton by the San Diego Clippers.

In his monumental decision, the Commissioner awarded forward Kermit Washington, center Kevin Kunnert, guard Randy Smith and a 1980 first-round draft pick to Portland as compensation for the 6-foot-11 Walton, who signed a five-year, $1 million per year contract with the Clippers last May 12.

However, O'Brien gave the Clippers an option to retain the high-scoring Smith, the Most Valuable Player in the 1978 NBA All-Star game. He ruled that if the Clippers paid $350,000 and assigned their 1982 first-round draft selection to the Blazers, they could keep Smith.

O'Brien gave San Diego until

5 p.m. EDT Thursday to decide on Smith.

The outspoken, 26-year-old Walton said he did not agree with the Commissioner's decision.

"I don't think it was fair," he said after a workout with the Clippers. "It wasn't what I had in mind. We were very close to a championship team until this morning (Tuesday), when the Commissioner took three of our better players away. Indirectly, I'm somewhat responsible for that."

ball in range for Male's kicking. Besides, after being banged around 35 times by Ron Simpkins and Co., maybe he deserved the award just for making it back to the locker room in one piece.

And besides again--who really cares what Keith Jackson and Frank Broyles think, anyway?

You see, once you get into a discussion of who was the game's most valuable player, you get into all sorts of trouble. I mean, what about Scott Zettek? He came back from two knee injuries to play one of the strongest games I've ever seen a lineman play. Or Mark Czaja who hasn't played a down of football for two years but played brilliantly last Saturday? And don't forget who blocked the field goal... Where would we have been without Bob Crable?

So you see, it doesn't pay to worry about who was MVP or whatever. The numbers on the scoreboard are what counts. The football team feels that way; I think the fan should as well. One other thing that bothered me about Saturday's game was the way people found cause to criticize ND's offensive performance. The biggest complaint dealt with the conservation play-calling that came from the Irish sidelines.

Now, I admit, 80-yard bombs are nice--but no team completes too many of them against Michigan. In a game where his team was a decided underdog, where his starting fullback was out for the season and where his starting quarterback was out for the game--maybe Dan Devine and his staff were smart not to take chances. Maybe they knew that getting inside the 40-yard line meant a sure three points?

In last year's Missouri game, Devine was criticized for not kicking field goals--for not playing it conservative enough. This year, he did just the opposite and people jumped on the warpath again. "We want excitement!!" they yelled.

Look, if a 12-10 win over Michigan at Michigan isn't exciting enough, maybe you're watching the wrong game.

Mai, Lovejoy pace Irish in 9-0 drubbing of St. Joe's

by Gary Grassey
Sports Writer

With memories of a dismal weekend weighing heavily on their minds, the Notre Dame soccer team gathered on Cartier Field last night to do what they do best—play winning soccer. The Irish mauled a hopelessly outmanned St. Joseph's College squad 9-0 in an important tune-up before upcoming confrontations with Purdue and Loyola-Baltimore, the #8 ranked team in the nation, later this week. The Irish record is now 2-3.

Notre Dame broke out of the shock inflicted by back-to-back weekend losses to Dayton, 3-2 in overtime, and Xavier, 2-0, by assaulting St. Joseph's with a first half display of passing and shooting that netted seven goals. An inspired Irish ballclub registered an astounding 65 shots at St. Joseph's goalie Mike Burnett (27 saves) on the evening. A delighted coach Rich Hunter stated, "If you play like this against any team, you'll do well."

Sami Kahale began the scoring barrage with a header at the 3:33 mark. He was followed by scoring input from Kevin Lovejoy (3 goals, 2 assists) and Mike Mai (3 goals, 1 assist) and solo tallies from Tom Crotty and Dannie McCurrie. Kahale also contributed two assists.

A pleasant surprise for Hunter was the play of three freshmen. In particular, Mark Luetkehans, who started the game, notched two assists. Younger brother of senior full-back Tom Luetkehans, Mark has begun to show Hunter that his all-state honors in Illinois high school play were no fluke. Another frosh, winger Matt Stolwyk, saw considerable playing time during the rout and managed to get off six shots, in addition to an assist. Winger Jay Schwartz also spent the evening causing considerable havoc amongst the St. Joseph's defenders.

Hunter felt that, "We needed a game like this after Friday and Sunday. We showed the kind of consistency we need to compete with anyone." He told his players, "We've got to forget about the first four games and start our season here."

Assistant coach Tom VanMeter believed that the weekend experience "was just a team thing" and that "we have a good team, a solid team and in the long run, it'll show up." Hunter acknowledged that the Ohio fiasco did cause the coaching staff to "contemplate changing the system" but they decided that "it was the way the players were performing" and not the tactics that was the deciding factor in the losses. "We have to move the ball quickly across the field," Hunter reasoned, "because when we do, we can play with anyone."

Consistency and team play is of paramount importance now because Hunter's Irish must face two of the top ten teams—Loyola-Baltimore on Sunday and Indiana next Friday—in the nation during the next ten days. Sunday's game with Loyola could be a turning point. Hunter feels that, "This is the most important home game we've ever played." It will be up to the Notre Dame soccer team to put the feelings of disappointment and embarrassment in the back of their minds and just continue to display the

Case ends career

Devine doubts Lisch will play

by Paul Mullaney
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame Football Coach Dan Devine announced Tuesday that senior quarterback Rusty Lisch does not figure in his immediate plans for this Saturday's contest against Purdue in West Lafayette.

Lisch sprained his left ankle in last Saturday's 12-10 win over Michigan and will most likely not be ready this weekend.

"I'm about 99 percent sure that he will not suit up," Devine told a statewide telephone connection of writers and broadcasters yesterday afternoon.

"I don't think it's a serious sprain that will hold him out the rest of the year. If he doesn't suit up, we probably won't take him on the trip so he can stay at home and get treatment on the ankle."

Devine added that a replacement will not be named, at least at this early point, if Lisch is indeed unable to compete.

"In the event that Rusty doesn't play -- and I've ruled him out in my own mind -- then we'd go with either Tim Koegel, Mike Courey or Greg Knafelc," noted the Irish coach. "I couldn't honestly tell you though, which one of those three it would be."

Devine also announced that defensive tackle Jay Case has finished his college football career. In combined decision between team physicians, the coaching staff and Case himself, it was ruled that further complications to his current lower back problems could cause life-long problems for the senior from Cincinnati.

"That's a little bit like losing a part of yourself, because I've been very close to Jay," said Devine, who first came to Notre Dame at the same time as Case. "We had expected him to be the cornerstone on which we'd build our defensive unit this

Sports Briefs

Irish cancel JV season

Notre Dame has cancelled the remainder of its junior varsity football schedule for the '79 campaign.

The Irish dropped their junior varsity opener 10-6 Sunday to Wisconsin but a lack of manpower has forced Dan Devine and his staff to cancel the remaining five games on the agenda.

"With the number of injuries we've had this fall, we simply don't have the numbers to complete the schedule," Devine says.

The Notre Dame schedule had included a rematch against the Badgers plus a pair of games against both Michigan and Purdue.

Football accepts walk-ons

Notre Dame football coach Dan Devine has asked that any students interested in becoming a walk-on member of the Irish football squad contact coach Gene Smith as soon as possible, either in person or by calling 283-7606.

"We're looking for big kids that want to be part of Notre Dame football," said Devine. "For some kids who are on the smaller side, we will be looking for speed."

"The only thing we can promise them is that they will get the same treatment that Chuck Male had for a year-and-a-half and that Lou Pagley has had for three. They will be treated as another member of the team."

Interball X-country forms

Today is the last day you can sign up for this year's interhall Cross Country meet. Entries must be submitted to the interhall office (Room C-2 in the ACC), and teams of seven runners from the same hall are required.

Fencers to meet tonight

The Notre Dame varsity fencing team will be holding a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the Fencing Gym of the ACC. All current and prospective team members must attend.

Irish MVPs abound

Second half eliminates Bo's smile

Did you all see Bo Schembechler on TV at halftime of last Saturday's game? Well, I didn't but I heard ABC's Bill Flemming stuck a microphone in his face and asked him the usual stuff about how he thought the game was going and who he thought would win. I don't know exactly how Bo answered, but I guess he was smiling and he didn't sound at all worried. Funny he wasn't around to be interviewed after the game.

But, in all fairness to Bo (and to this column, which I don't want to sound too nasty), I guess you can't blame him --for hiding after the game, that is. All summer people were mentioning his Michigan team in the same breath as the national championship. Some even thought it was the best team Bo ever coached. Definitely the best defense in the nation.

But then out of the blue (or green) comes Dan Devine and Notre Dame, and Bo's best team ever has a .500 record after only two games.

No wonder he was cranky afterwards. Still, that was a poor excuse for not allowing reporters to talk to his players after the game. Darn, Bo! Those poor scribes needed something to write about. And your short press conference didn't help them--it was as boring as your play selection.

So, when quote-hungry sports writers tried to get in to see the Michigan players, assistant sports information director, Bruce Madej met them at the door of the room and apologized: "Sorry, fellows. You'll have to excuse our players today. They don't feel much like talking."

That's funny, they sure had plenty to say after last year's game.

In the meantime, while Bo was keeping his team locked up like a jury in a murder trial, Dan left his door wide open. And one of the players everybody wanted to talk to was Vagas Ferguson. He carried the football 35 times that afternoon, which is pretty impressive when you consider that Notre Dame ran 55 offensive plays. His stats showed 118 yards gained and ABC named him Notre Dame's Most Valuable Player for his efforts. It could be the first of many trophies that Ferguson will take home before December. But, then again...it's much too early to be thinking about (sh-h-h!!) the Heisman. (Keep running, Vagas. Christmas may come early this year.)

Frank

Now there were those who thought Chuck Male should have been given the ABC award and there is plenty of credence to their arguments. About three weeks ago, at a Saturday scrimmage, Jeff Jeffers of WNDU told me that he thought chuck Male could prove to be Notre Dame's most potent offensive weapon this season.

I agree then and I still do. Male just might be the best placekicker around--certainly one of the best to ever wear a Notre Dame uniform-- and his distance on kickoffs and his accuracy on field goals probably were the deciding factor in Saturday's game. But, lest we forget, football is a team game and Ferguson's running moved the
