FBI discloses bribery scandal in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government lodged its first criminal charges yesterday in the FBI's 14-month political corruption investigation as a source close to the case said there is a possibility that a ninth member of Congress might be involved.

This source, asking anonymity, said yesterday that seven House members and one senator, whose names became public over the weekend, remain subject to potential grand jury action.

The source said the ninth member of Congress who may be involved in the case does not appear to be the subject of further scrutiny at this time. The source declined to identify the ninth member and would not give any details of the possible involvement.

However, the source denied that the ninth member was Rep. James Howard, D-N.J. Howard volunteered to reporters yesterday that he refused an offer of campaign contributions for helping Arab sheiks invest money in his home state. It was not clear whether the incident Howard reported had anything to do with the FBI undercover operation.

The source emphasized that only one member of Congress who met with FBI undercover agents, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has been completely cleared by the government. Sources have reported that Pressler angrily stormed out of a meeting with undercover FBI agents when it was indicated they represented a client willing to pay for political favors.

The first formal charges arising from the FBI investigation were filed against an Immigration and Naturalization Service investigator in Brooklyn, N.Y., was arraigned before a U.S. magistrate and was formally charged with one count of bribery and one count of conspiracy.

Officials said the government might begin presenting evidence against other public officials to several grand juries later this week.

All the subjects in the probe, some 20 public officials and 10 businessmen and lawyers, were visited by the FBI over the weekend and notified that they were under investigation, one source said.

In addition to state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, sources said those who became subjects of the FBI investigation included Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., and Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

Most of the eight members of Congress have issued statements denying any wrongdoing.

On Capital Hill, congressional leaders expressed shock at reports linking the eight lawmakers to the FBI investigation, and ethics committees in both the House and Senate announced they would conduct their own inquiries.

The House ethics committee quickly called a meeting to begin its probe after disclosure that FBI agents posed as aides to a wealthy Arab sheik who was willing to pay bribes to congressmen and other officials in exchange for political favors. Sources say some officials were photographed with video-tape equipment in the act of taking money.

The chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., promised a "thorough investigation" and said he had met earlier in the Fire damages two floors of Augusta Hall

by Mary Kay Leydon

A fire which broke out last night in Augusta Hall caused slight damage to two floors of the hall before being extinguished by the automatic sprinkler system, residents said. No injuries were reported.

Martha Hausmann, a member of the second-floor section in which the fire started, reported smelling smoke to Saint Mary's Security at approximately 6:05 p.m. She called again moments later to add that flames could be seen above her transom, she said. Security arrived soon thereafter, she reported.

After security was alerted, another section member, Julie De Rose, called the South Bend Fire Department at approximately 6:08 p.m. However, the woman failed to pull the fire alarm to vacate the building, sources said.

A member of the section added that the security guard did little to enforce fire procedure. "He left the keys to the room in the car and made us all the more frightened because he didn't seem to know what to do. But no one really panicked," she said.

The Notre Dame Fire Department arrived with one engine at approximately 6:14 p.m. They were aided by the South Bend Fire Department, which sent two trucks, a ladder truck, and a rescue squad.

Residents said an insurance investigation believed the probable cause of the fire to be a faulty wire in a lamp in a second floor room. They reported that

Trouble in Santa Fe

Rioters torture cellmates

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - An execution squad armed with blowtorches and axes tortured and murdered fellow inmates during the 36 hours of hell behind the walls of the New Mexico State Penitentiary, inmates said yesterday. Officials said 35 and perhaps 39 died and 15 others were missing.

"I saw some people cutting a dude's eye out with a cutting torch," one prisoner told reporters allowed inside the smoldering prison that was recaptured by National Guardsmen and police Sunday afternoon after a day and a half of rioting.

The horror encountered during yesterday's search for more bodies caused some Guardsmen to vomit.

Warden Jerry Griffin said late yesterday afternoon that all fires were out.

He told families of inmates and reporters that a list of the dead and injured was being prepared and said relatives of the dead were being notified.

Griffin said he could confirm only 35 deaths, conflicting with reports of 39 dead from Gov. Bruce King.

Officials said earlier that 200 maximum security prisoners already were back in one cellblock and Griffin said officers prepared to move additional prisoners into another cellblock.

He said corrections officers were classifying the prisoners carefully before moving them back inside.

"We don't want to get men in with others that could hurt them," he said. "We're trying to preserve their safety."

About 250 Guardsmen stood watch over hundreds of displaced inmates who huddled in tents on the prison grounds to ward off freezing temperatures. State officials hunting a place to put them said they had offers of help from Arizona and Colorado.

King said 32 bodies had been found in the compound and seven other prisoners were dead on arrival at local hospitals suffering overdoses of drugs. Fifteen inmates were still unaccounted for in the nation's worst prison riot since the Attica uprising in 1971 left 43 people dead in New York state.

New Mexico inmates said that after the riot broke out early Saturday, executioners snatched some prisoners from their cells and tortured them with blowtorches, axes and metal rods. Some were beheaded they said.

Prison officials said the rioters ransacked prison offices and found confidential files. That is when the bloodbath began, as the inmates rounded up informers.

"There was an execution squad of seven prisoners," a hooded inmate told The Associated Press yesterday.

Chief Warrant Officer Alfred Ortiz, a member of the National Guard body detail, helped take 22 bodies to Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque on Sunday night. He said one of the dead prisoners had a rod stuck through his head.

Prison areas shown reporters yesterday were nearly destroyed. Windows were smashed and water covered the floor. The only area virtually untouched was the library.

Ortiz said many of the dead had been tortured.

"One of them still had a rope around his neck and then they smashed his head in," Ortiz said. "It was horrible."

Margaret Babcock, a prison secretary, said she was looking through binoculars from a prison fence when she saw one inmate being tortured with a blowtorch near a cellblock.

"Four or five men were holding one man down and burning his head and face with a torch," she said. "He was screaming. I couldn't believe it. It was like a nightmare."

Heil sponsors lectures on the impending threat of draft

by Mary Fran Callahan
Staff Reporter

Spurred by the impending threat of draft registration, Junior Tom Heil is sponsoring a series of lectures which will offer students a variety of perspectives on the draft and the issues surrounding the draft.

Though still unclear as to his personal position on the draft, Heil explained his motivation for the lecture series as a search for answers to questions regarding the draft. "There's been a lot of song and dance on television with people burning draft cards. I think we all need to start on some solid ground I hope the talks will inspire a little more thought around here," Heil explained.

Though the speakers will be announced at a later date, the lecture series will take place on four consecutive evenings beginning Feb. 18 - nine days after President Carter delivers his draft message to Congress. The first lecture will present the concrete legal options a student has as well as the Christian ethical perspective on the draft.

Dealing specifically with the Roman Catholic position on conscientious objection, a member of the theology department will speak the second night. The third presentation will be a panel discussion format concerning the pros and cons of a volunteer army versus a conscripted militia.

Disco dudes sent to slammer, pull 3½ years for tax scam

NEW YORK (AP) - Steve Rubell and Ian Schrager, owners of Studio 54 disco, surrender to federal authorities Monday to begin serving 3½ year prison sentences for tax evasion. On Saturday night, about 3,000 people attended a goingaway party at the disco for Rubell and Schrager. Hours later, the owners showed up at Metropolitan Correctional Center. Rubell and Schrager were sentenced Jan. 17 to 3½ years in prison and fined $20,000 each on their pleas of guilty to corporate and personal tax evasion. Both agreed with the Internal Revenue Service to repay all taxes due and a 50 percent penalty.

Pinto burns, mother of two dies; damage suit results

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) - A $10 million damage suit was filed in federal court Monday against Ford Motor Co. by the guardian of two children whose mother was killed in a fiery rear-end crash of a Ford Pinto. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court by Philip Goosey, guardian of the late Mary Scheidt's minor children, Mathew and Kristina. It alleges that the 1978 Pinto in which Mrs. Scheidt, 25, was killed Aug. 10 was deficient in design and that Ford failed to correct known deficiencies. It seeks $5 million for her two children, whose ages were not disclosed.

Poor patrons stifle hopes of would-be hood; keep change

BESSENER, Ala. (AP) - A man walked into a tavern Saturday night, pulled a gun, announced a holdup and passed his hat around, ordering the handful of patrons to fill it up. When he got the hat back, he emptied the money on the floor and said, "If that's all you have in here, you people should be robbing me." With that he pocketed his gun, put on his hat and walked out.

Trueman explains 'in vitro'

by Michael Mader
Staff Reporter

Patrick Trueman, executive director and general counsel of Americans United for Life, spoke before a group of 70 last night in the Library auditorium on the subject of "in vitro" fertilization, more commonly referred to as test-tube fertilization.

Trueman spoke about the morality of in vitro fertilization, and possible outcomes of this phenomenon. He questioned the morality of removing a human embryo from its natural environment, and the rights of an individual to do research on the subject with federal funding.

Trueman suggested that women may eventually decide to "sell" their ovary and offered an idea held by Dr. James Bonner of the California Institute of Technology. Bonner suggested that genetic material may be taken from specimen human beings and then a record of the individuals be kept. If at death it is decided an individual exerted a positive effect on the world, he could be procreated.

According to Trueman, the in vitro process involves securing several ova through the navel in an operation, and then fertilizing with the sperm of a donor. One egg is then usually allowed to develop three or four days and then reinserted in the female. Trueman said it is not known how long an embryo can survive, but there is concern about letting it grow for more than 14 days outside the mother because the egg attaches itself naturally to the ovary in 14 days.

A lawyer who currently has an abortion case pending before the Supreme Court, Trueman has spoken around the country to both pro-life and pro-abortion groups on the subject of in vitro fertilization.

Trueman spoke before the attentive group with conviction but did not force his ideas on the listeners. Trueman presented his facts in order to teach the group. "I think many Americans know so little about in vitro fertilization," Trueman said. "Americans seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of in vitro because the public has no decent idea of what in vitro is about," Trueman added.

A major concern of Trueman's was the request of doctors for money to research in vitro fertilization. In particular, Dr. Pierre Soupart of Vanderbilt University would like $400,000 from HEW in order to create, and then destroy 450 fertilized eggs. Trueman pointed out that before the birth of the first test-tube baby, Louise Joy Brown, the government had placed a moratorium on money for such funding. After Brown was born, Soupart had originally intended to ask for $30,000 until he found out the government was interested in funding such an effort, Trueman said.

Trueman mentioned that an in vitro clinic has already been given permission to be built. It will be established in Norfolk, VA, in the next few months. The doctors wishing to build the clinic went through public hearings to get accepted, Trueman noted. "They said they would create an embryo one at a time and implant each in a woman," said Trueman. "I frankly don't believe that only one life will be created for each woman seeking to have a baby." Reasons he gave included possibilities of defective embryos, creating fear of a lawsuit if implanted and allowed to come to term and that it is, "far more expedient and less expensive to take out and fertilize several ova and discard the unused ones."

According to Trueman, the moratorium placed on federal funding was lifted by the Ethical Advisory Board, a section of HEW. The members decided unanimously that in vitro fertilization is ethical. "No one was willing to say that because it

One guard and nine inmates were listed in critical condition in area hospitals. Seven guards and 55 inmates were admitted to hospitals, and 14 inmates were treated for drug overdoses.

State officials said it might cost as much as $50 million to replace the state's only maximum-security prison, which was built to house 850 inmates and was holding 1,136 when the riot erupted.

"There was a rod stuck into one of the prisoner's ears... He still had it in when we took the body out," Ortiz said.

Fire was still burning in the prison gymnasium Monday when fireman George Carrion Jr. of Santa Fe said he saw three charred bodies lying on the gym floor.

"Nobody's gone in because they're afraid the roof might come down," he said.

"There was a rod stuck into one of the prisoner's ears, forced through his head and through the other side. He still had it in when we took the body out," Ortiz said.

King said yesterday that at least seven of the prisoners died of drug overdoses, after the rioters broke into the prison pharmacy. Others died of smoke inhalation and some were murdered, the governor said.

"It's one hell of a bloody mess in there," said Corrections Commission chairman Bud Richards. "There are a hell of a lot of bodies in there.

"National Guardsmen are throwing up all over."

"There was blood all over against the wall, smeared around," said Lt. Richard Montoya, who headed the special weapons team that led the move to regain control of the prison.

All the 15 guards and other employees taken hostage escaped death. Only 18 guards were on duty when the riot erupted.

Guard Fred Herrera said, "Some of those guys' (inmates') faces are totally gone." State Sen. Ben Altamirano said he saw the body of a black inmate who had been decapitated and his head stuffed between his legs. Guards said another inmate had his arm cut off before he was hurled from an upper window.

"From what we understand there was no racial tension involved," said state police Maj. Charlie Anaya. "It was getting all the snitchers"

"The violence was incredible," said Adolph Saenz, nearly appointed secretary of the state's Criminal Justice Department. He said at least 80 percent of the prison's structure was destroyed.

State Rep. Fred Mondragon estimated it would cost $40 million to $50 million to replace the 23-year-old prison.

The siege ended quietly about 2 p.m. Sunday after state officials promised inmates they would not use violence in retaking the institution. With or without violence, King said, "We told them we were coming in."

No shots were fired. "We caught them by surprise," King said. "They didn't even put up a fight."

day with FBI Director William Webster and Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti.

Heflin said he discussed having the FBI turn the results of its investigation over to the ethics panel, but the Justice Department officials did not immediately offer to do so.

"The problem is that all the evidence, all the tapes, all the videotapes are in the hands of the Department of Justice," Heflin said. "We are dependent upon them."

The House committee took no action on a proposal to subpoena the videotapes before they become wrapped up in grand jury proceedings.

At the Brooklyn arraignment for Alexandro, the government charged that on May 31, 1979, an undercover FBI agent was introduced to the immigration inspector as a person who would pay to secure permanent U.S. residence status for an individual outside the country.

The government complaint said Alexandro agreed to provide that service and that on Aug. 23, at the International Hotel at New York's Kennedy Airport, he accepted a $2,000 down payment on a total of $15,000 promised to him for his efforts.

Alexandro's attorney, Joel Winograd, told reporters that Alexandro, whose job is to investigate illegal aliens and corruption, was arrested Saturday by the FBI. He said Alexandro was held in a Manhattan jail over the weekend as part of a government effort to try to get figures in the probe to cooperate.

A Justice Department source who declined to be named said investigators would be interviewing employees of the department, the FBI and various U.S. attorneys' offices as part of this probe. The source said, "The department does not plan to subpoena reporters, nor to ask them for cooperation, because there have been no violations by members of the media."

SMC girls seek trial parietals

by Mary Leavitt
Staff Reporter

A group of 5 girls has initiated a petition for weekday parietals to be granted on a trial basis to all dorms on the SMC campus.

At this point, 798 students have signed the petition. This is 55 percent of the approximately 1,430 students that live on campus.

"We got the idea from a comment that Dr. Duggan made on a radio program which was printed in The Observer," said Maria Pasquinelli, a member of the group circulating the petition.

The comment made by Duggan, as printed in The Observer stated that Duggan "... was not against 'well thought out and clearly defined' proposals and encouraged students to process their suggestions through the appropriate channels of student government."

The group has tried to adhere to these guidelines, Pasquinelli said. Before the petition was circulated, the group determined exactly what they would be asking for in the way of parietals.

The petition states that weekday parietals are being requested on a trial basis. The petition also specifies that the exact time span of parietals would be determined by the administration. The group suggested visiting hours be established between 1 and 10 p.m.

In addition, the group collaborated on a list which stated the pros and cons of the situation.

There are a number of points which favor weekday parietals according to Pasquinelli. She said weekday parietals would eliminate the need for Saint Mary's girls to leave the safety of their own campus in order to visit their male friends at Notre Dame. Weekday parietals would also eliminate a lot of the sneaking and subterfuge that goes on in dormitories.

"Many people equate weekday parietals with sex and parties," said Teresa Raphael, another member of the group. "This hasn't happened at Notre Dame, so I see no reason why it would happen here."

Naturally, if the proposal were to be carried out, it would present a few problems. Pasquinelli feels that the two main problems are the security of the students and the question of who would be responsible for collecting I.D.'s from male visitors.

"I'll be the first to admit that there are problems," said Pasquinelli, "but I feel that they can be overcome. For instance, all male visitors would be escorted by girls. No males without escorts would be allowed upstairs. This in itself is a good security method."

The question of I.D. collection has remained unsolved up to this point.

"I thought the R.A. on desk duty at the time would be the logical person to collect I.D.'s, but a few of them have shown resentment towards this idea," commented Pasquinelli. "A lot of people want the benefits of weekday parietals but none of the sacrifices which might have to be made."

Nevertheless, an estimated 55 percent of on campus students at SMC have signed the petition.

"We stood in front of the dining hall during two meals," said Meg Macias, one of the members of the group. "Almost everyone expressed positive feelings about what we were doing and signed. I'd estimate that only about 50 people refused to sign. Most of the ones that wouldn't sign were either seniors who said they really didn't care at this point or students who told us it would never work."

Right now, the group feels that the only thing holding them back is a lack of funds.

"We are really serious about this and want to do it right," said Pasquinelli. "We would like to circulate a survey among students regarding parietals. We would also like to contact other small, Catholic, women's colleges to see how they handle the situation. But those kinds of things take money."

The group is planning to talk to College President Dr. Duggan, Dean of Students Kathleen Rice, Campus Ministry and various other people and groups about their proposal.

"We really want this to work out in a way that will benefit everyone - at least, we want people to start thinking about it," said Pasquinelli. "The situation at LeMans can be seen as a result of the rules which this college is enforcing at this time. People will just go wild at any opportunity."

"College is a time for maturity and growth," said Raphael. "We should be able to graduate from this college as well rounded women. Are we actually achieving this goal by sheltering ourselves from the male contact each of us will be forced to face when we get out of here?"

Whether or not the proposal goes through, the group feels that they have done a good job.

"We have really tried to conduct this in a reasonable manner," said Pasquinelli.

"That is the main reason that we are asking for weekday parietals on a trial basis only and are willing to let administration choose the hours. I hope that Dr. Duggan and the rest of Saint Mary's sees this and will take it into consideration."

Heil said he has received contact from Tom Hesburgh, Student Government, Campus Ministry, and others. Though Hesburgh will be out of town, he gave Heil a book entitled Youth and the Needs of the Nation, which is prefaced with a list of authorities on social justice. Heil said Hesburgh suggested a list of authors as potential speakers, however, Heil has since learned that they will all be unavailable the week of the 18th.

Campus ministry is producing posters to publicize the series while Student Government has promised financial support for publicity.

Heil said he was spurred to initiate the series when he realized how misinformed he was after talking to a law student who was vitally interested in social justice. Heil said he will announce definite times and locations this week.

... Keenan

Conyers said he is proud of what his students have accomplished and expresses his belief that any hall could do the same. Keenan has already made contact with Sorin Hall, which hopes to sponsor a Cambodian family that is presently living in Fort Wayne.

Conyers said he sees Renew Inc. as the means through which Notre Dame could actively become involved in neighborhood reclamation and renewal, thereby reducing the crime in these neighborhoods where off-campus housing exists.

"Fr. Hesburgh continually states, when you bring up the question of high crime rates, 'that's the real world. We can't do anything about that.'" Conyers said. "Quite the contrary! We can and must do something about it," emphasized Conyers with conviction.

The primary motivators behind the students' desire to help Michael and Sharon to such an unprecedented degree, were the Neighborhood Roots and Urban Plunge programs which are both sponsored by the University; and a weekend retreat for Keenan Hall residents. These experiences were, as Conyers stated, "profitable in terms of coming to consciousness of values that we ought to be living by." From repairs to dealing with various agencies, the students "have turned their involvement into an educational experience," said Conyers.

Although Michael and Sharon now have a steady income and a home of their own, they have one more obstacle between them and a bright future - the courts. On March 19 a court hearing will be held and a decision made whether to return the children to their parents or terminate Michael and Sharon's parental rights. It is Keenan's goal to have the house ready to receive the entire family on a long term basis, and at the same time, Renew Inc. will have completed the couple's home ownership education.

The future looks bright for Michael and Sharon, and Conyers claims that it shows in their sparkling eyes and smiling faces. "They are becoming people, which is the most beautiful thing of all," Conyers said.

Class helps handicapped

by Tricia Beaujean
Staff Reporter

A unique opportunity has been presented to engineering students in Professor Raymond Brach's "Theory of Design" class. The class is a requirement for Mechanical Engineering and every year students are required to work on a semester-long project dealing with contemporary engineering problems.

This semester's class will be working on a project for the Northern Indiana State Hospital (NISH). The Director of NISH approached the engineering department with the idea of having Notre Dame students design a new playground facility for handicapped children at the Developmental Disabilities Center located behind Logan Center in South Bend, Brach said.

"The center already has a playground but it is a basic, standard playground and it is useless to the handicapped," he said. "It requires dexterity and strength that those children often don't have."

The semester project involves a class of 85 students divided into groups of three or four. The students have visited the site and met the residents in an effort to evaluate the variables with which they will have to work.

The constraints under which their projects must be designed include a $4,000 budget, safety precautions with the handicapped in mind, and the problem of modifying a playground to suit the handicapped.

Student Tom Wygle also pointed out that "most of the patients at the hospital are ambulatory but future prospects of more ambulatory patients must be considered. It involves ingenuity with safety as a large factor to consider."

Brach indicated that students will be briefed further by faculty and hospital speakers on cost evaluation, present available equipment and the capabilities and restrictions of the patients.

"Each team in the class must submit a written and an oral presentation of their projects. Faculty and hospital personnel will grade and judge the final products," Brach said.

The top three or four models will be selected and presented to the hospital. The project is due by the end of the semester but it is not certain when the playground will be completed.

"The students seem enthusiastic about the project," Brach said. "I'm kind of excited and anxious to see what the students come up with."

and the desk which it stood the fire is still under investigation.

According to firefighters, the sprinkler system smothered the fire.

"Damage was basically centralized in the area of the lamp on," Hausmann said. The majority of other damage was caused by water and smoke.

The sprinkler system also triggered in the room directly below the fire, which also suffered minimal water damage.

Saint Mary's Security refused to comment on the fire.

Keenan aids needy family

by Laura Vasquez
Staff Reporter

Last fall a couple approached Corby Hall seeking shelter for the night. Jobless, homeless, and unable to receive aid from charitable organizations because of their reputation as "agency hoppers," Michael and Sharon had just been separated from their children by the courts. That night they asked for and received a place to sleep.

Today, Michael and Sharon have a steady income and a nine-room house to call their own, thanks to the time, money and conviction of Fr. Richard Conyers and Keenan Hall residents.

With the help of Renew Inc., a nonprofit agency founded in South Bend several years ago, a home for the couple was found.

Renew Inc. buys old homes and receives rehabilitation grants from the government in order to renovate the buildings according to guidelines set down by building inspectors. These homes are then offered to needy and deserving families at a price they can afford, with low mortgage and a low down-payment.

The nine-room house chosen from among the 59 owned by Renew Inc. received a $10,000 grant. Keenan residents have since been painting, fixing windows, laying tile floors, and rewiring the entire house, among other improvements, since returning from Christmas break. This is all voluntary labor which is supervised by Conyers' father, "a lifelong craftsman," said Conyers.

Renew Inc. is not, however, a charity organization. The families are required to take courses in home ownership and budgeting so that they could manage their money and property in a responsible manner, "no matter how meager the sum," explained Conyers. The final intent is for Michael and Sharon to buy their home from Renew Inc. These funds would, in turn, help to finance more homes and to help more families.

Conyers recalls the desperation of the couple whose eight year marriage consisted of "extreme poverty, bad breaks and terrible luck." Caught in the "hellish circle of poverty," they were unable to properly care for their children. Their trailer home burned down. They were evicted from their low-rent apartment by a landlord who could get higher rent. Their car, according to Conyers, was a heap of junk, sold by a dealer who takes advantage of desperate people in desperate situations.

"You can see that being reduced to living from minute to minute is a hopeless situation," Conyers said.

When faced with Michael and Sharon's request for help, Conyers said he saw three options: "Slam the door in their face; give them a few dollars and temporary aid, or help them to stabilize their lives and break out of poverty with their dignity and family intact."

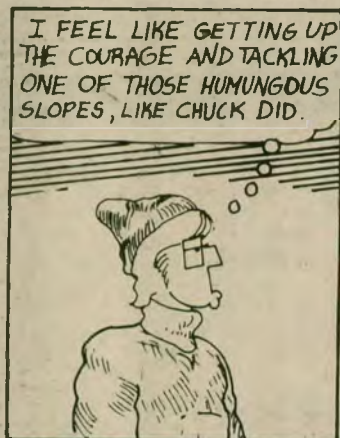

Conyers and the Keenan Hall council and staff decided to help Michael and Sharon start a whole new life regardless of the amount of time, money, or resources necessary. "We decided to make a very strong ultimate commitment. We figured that we could, in fact, break them out of the circle of poverty," recalls Conyers. Michael is currently working in Keenan in maintenance services.

Keenan residents have become committed to the many aspects of the project. Many students returned from break with household items, clothing, dishes, toys, and anything else a family of eight would need in a nine-room house. According to Conyers, the first question on everybody's lips is "How is the house doing?"

was a destruction of life it was unethical," Trueman said.

Throughout his talk, Trueman emphasized that since Brown was born in July 1978, only three other test-tube babies have been claimed around the world. Two were born in Calcutta, the other claimed by Drs. Steptoe and Edwards, the doctors responsible for Brown. "Since July, 1978," Trueman said, "two more cures for infertility have been perfected - laser beam surgery to unblock the fallopian tubes, and fallopian tube transplants." Trueman mentioned that the scientific evidence is not available for inspection for any of the patients and in vitro may not really be successful at all. "Because only four couples have been successful at in vitro fertilization, in vitro may be only a cruel hoax, a manipulation by desperate couples," Trueman said.

teams. Then we got a trampoline in our back yard and I started thinking about diving."

Her interest prompted her to attend a summer diving camp when she was 12. The camp was run by 1972 Olympic diving coach Ron O'Brien.

"He really helped me out a lot" explained Shadley "I worked on diving eight hours a day."

The hard work paid off for Shadley who went on to win the city diving championship for three consecutive years.

Shadley encountered a tough decision when it came time to choose a college.

"I wanted to continue playing sports, but my family pointed out that if I went to Notre Dame I might have to give up athletics because there was virtually no women's program here at that time," offered the Farley resident.

Shadley finally choose Notre Dame for academic reasons and put diving out of her mind. Her desire for athletic competition compelled her to consider joining the men's team.

"I had a brother who was a senior diver at Notre Dame. My family thought it would be nice to have us on the same team, so I decided to try out for the men's team as a freshman and I made it."

How did Shadley react to being the only girl on the team?

"It was embarrassing in the beginning. Coach Stark was kind of nervous about the whole thing—he didn't know what kind of suit to get me. But the guys were really nice, and having a brother on the team helped a lot," reflected the All-America winner.

Shadley emerged as a solid competitor her sophomore year and attributes her improvement to a good deal of coaching by her brother and a different psychological approach on her part.

"Freshman year I never thought I was physically able to compete against male divers—I just didn't have the strength to do the difficult dives. So I realized my best chance was to do the simpler dives better. Female divers tend to be more graceful—I tried to put that to my advantage."

Shadley needed every advantage she could get. At times Shadley encountered a male/female ratio of 250/1.

"It's nerve wracking to compete in a big meet against seven or eight schools and be the only girl there."

Shadley is no longer the only woman on the Irish swim team. This year there are a total of four. However, the biggest difference for Shadley has not been the increased number of women on the team, but the role the women now play in the team's success.

"At first I was thought of as the only woman on the team. Now I feel that the guys consider me more of a teammate since I can contribute in the meets."

Shadley has accumulated two firsts, three seconds and a third place in Notre Dame's first six meets this season.

Shadley has set her sights on reaching the small college national again this season and plans to continue diving her senior year.

"It's been a whole new experience for me," explained Shadley, "one that has definitely enhanced my education at Notre Dame."

Irish recover to sink Midshipmen with Woolridge at the helm

by Paul Mullaney
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame came back from an early Navy lead and did just enough to hold on to a 67-53 victory in a sluggish ball-control game last night at the ACC.

The lead changed hands six times before Notre Dame finally pulled ahead for good 11 minutes into the first half of action. With Navy leading, 14-13, Notre Dame ran off eight straight points and ended up taking a 34-27 margin into the locker room.

Another eight-point spurt at the outset of the second half, and Navy's tendency for fouling allowed Notre Dame to pull ahead by as many as 18 points before the buzzer sounded.

"The first seven possessions in the second half were very critical to us," said fourth-year Navy coach Bob Hamilton. "We had too many turnovers right there. If we could have gotten a few quick buckets, we could have been right in there."

While Navy committed seven more turnovers than the Irish, the Midshipmen outrebounded and outshot Notre Dame. However, Notre Dame took advantage of 30 Navy personal fouls and had 29 of 38 free throw attempts. Navy, seven of 10 from the free-throw line did not get one foul shot opportunity in the second half.

"I thought we really played aggressive defense," offered Hamilton. "But the team that is ahead has the advantage when the refs are calling a tight game."

"We were behind so we had to play an aggressive defense, and we got caught on a lot of fouls. Also, you have to shoot really well when you're outmanned like we were. We didn't shoot well enough."

Navy shot 44 percent from the floor—still good enough to top Notre Dame's 42 percent performance. The Midshipmen scored 23 field goals, compared to Notre Dame's 19.

Notre Dame was without the services of juniors Kelly Tripucka and Gil Salinas, and sophomore Marc Kelly. Tripucka was still resting his injured back, Salinas was nursing a sprained ankle, and Kelly was keeping off an injured calf muscle.

"Tripucka and Salinas will both be back at practice tomorrow," said Irish coach Digger Phelps after last night's game. "You'll see them Wednesday night against Manhattan."

Center Orlando Woolridge led the Irish in scoring for the second straight time. He had 18 points (10-11 from the foul line), and was aided by 14 points apiece from Tracy Jackson and Rich Branning.

Freshman guard Dave Brooks, Navy's leading scorer, also scored 18 points on the evening. Forward Chuck Greene contributed 13 points for the losers.

Navy's 53-point total was the lowest output of any Notre Dame opponent this season.

"I told the team before the game that the service academy teams play with a lot of discipline," said Phelps. "We expected them to play a controlled game, and they did."

Notre Dame, 15-3 and ranked eighth in the nation, will host Manhattan tomorrow night and North Carolina State on Saturday evening.

Navy evened its record at 9-9 with the loss.

At Notre Dame

Shadley...pioneer in diving

by Kelly Sullivan
Sports Writer

Ask any athlete—most will admit the transition from high school senior to college freshman is a difficult one. Standouts and stars face the uneasy prospect of sitting the bench. Some athletes find it discouraging to compete amidst a roster of returning lettermen, and throw in the towel right there, content to rest on the laurels of their high school career.

One of Notre Dame's varsity divers encountered just such a situation as a college freshman. After accumulating some pretty impressive statistics in high school Shadley tried out and made Notre Dame's swim team.

Finding it difficult to dislodge two returning senior divers from their positions Shadley's freshman year was anything but impressive. Shadley failed to make the traveling squad to any away meets and rarely placed in the home meets. But the determined diver wasn't ready to throw in the towel.

"I didn't do very well, but I really enjoyed being on a team," offered Shadley.

So, Shadley dove again sophomore year. Same determination, but far different results. The Cincinnati, Ohio native became the number two diver on the team, earned a monogram, achieved All-America honors and, appropriately, was named most improved member of the Irish swimmers.

A remarkable turnaround for any athlete, but even more remarkable when you learn that Shadley's first name is Betsy.

A junior diver on Coach Dick Stark's squad Shadley apparently found competition an incentive, one which enabled her to make history in the waters of the Rockne Memorial. Shadley became the first woman to ever compete on Notre Dame's traditionally all-male swim team and also holds the distinction of being the first woman to win a monogram in that sport.

"I always loved competition" stated Shadley. "As a child I played on all kinds of sports

Belle fencers continue to surprise opponents

by Deirdre Grant
Sports Writer

Though inexperienced would best describe the Saint Mary's Fencing team, it has by no means deterred the squad on its way to what could be a surprisingly successful season. Crippled with the unfortunate loss of experienced fencers, coaches Greg Mueller and Michael De Cicco were faced with the challenge of rebuilding the team.

Coach Mueller reported that the present team is comprised of a group who, with the exception of sophomore Susan Moore, have never fenced competitively. Mueller stated that all the girls were learning quite fast and he was pleased with the overall sense of competition among the team members.

In their first meet of the year the team of Louise Enyedy, Michele Strohman, Ann Hendrick, Eileen Mender and Tess Weber battled the tough Clemson Tigers and were defeated 14-2, for their only loss this season.

On Jan. 26, they defeated a strong Case Western team, and compiled another win on Feb. 2 against Tri-State University.

Mueller, who coached fencing at Indiana University, is pleased with what he has found in his first year of coaching the Saint Mary's team.

"Fencing is a good sport for small schools, as well as large" said Mueller. "It doesn't require an enormous budget, and allows teams to fence against schools of all sizes."

Mueller has had the opportunity to work with the women and sees a great deal of individual as well as team potential. After each match he is careful to examine the performance of each girl, particularly concentrating on how much improvement she has shown.

Mueller hopes all of the girls participating in the program will return next year. Together with a pair of sophomores abroad this year he feels the team has unending possibilities for the future.

Runners perform below par in weekend competition

The Irish track team demonstrated a fine showing of mediocrity this past weekend which will luckily not affect the record books. After traveling to California and New Mexico, the two-mile relay team could post no better than third and fourth place finishes respectively. In the meantime, their teammates could manage only one first place finish in Kalamazoo, Mich. at the Western Michigan Invitational.

That one first place came in the triple jump competition, where senior Ahmad Kazimi leaped 47-feet nine-and-a-half-inches.

Assistant coach Ed Kelly, who accompanied the team to Western Michigan, was pleased with Kazimi's performance, if not a little surprised.

"I went to the meet expecting two, no, actually only one win. I thought Perry (Stow) would win the pole vault. I also expected a good performance by Ahmad," stated Kelly, "but in Perry's second attempt at 15 feet he was gimping and looked terrible. When I asked him if he was injured he said, 'yes', so I immediately pulled him out of the competition."

When asked about the senior co-captain's condition yesterday Kelly said, "he is still not good, but I hope he will be better by Friday." Friday is the Big State Meet in West Lafayette, Ind.

Third place performances were turned in by Jim Christian and Steve Dziabis. Christian ran the 300 meter dash in :35.8, while Dziabis finished at 1:04.5 in the 500 meters.

The Irish sprint medley relay team consisting of Jacques Eady, Bill Ribera, Jim Christain and Rick Rogers took second place with a time of 3:29.1. Kelly was disappointed in the performance of the sophomore Eady.

"I expected a better leg out of Jacques; he ran slower than I anticipated he would. He has to learn just how talented he could be. I'll have to talk to him and work with him to convince him that he can be great," offered the Irish mentor.

The 1600 meter relay and the distance medley teams both finished in the fifth position. The Irish were a close third after two legs of the 1600 but fell behind in the third leg when Diabis had trouble with a spike in his shoe.

John Kuzan put the shot 49 feet, a personal best, but failed in his attempt to place among the top five finishers in the shot-put competition.

Meanwhile, the Notre Dame two-mile relay team traveled with Head Coach Joe Piane to the West Coast for a pair of weekend meets. On Friday, the quartet was attempting to retain the title that they captured at last year's Los Angeles Times' Indoor meet. They only turned in an average time of 7:48.

"I felt that they could have won the meet," said a disappointed Piane.

Their luck on the following day was no better as they could manage only fourth place in the Albuquerque Jaycees Meet in Albuquerque, NM. They finished with a 7:45 time.

A bright spot that Piane did see in the competition was the performance of Chuck Aragon in Saturday's contest. "Chuck ran a 1:52.6 leg which isn't bad; in fact, it is pretty good."
