Burke, Yonchak lead but runoffs planned

By TIM NEELY
News Staff

Runoffs in the Student Body President-Vice President and two Student Senate districts, in addition to decisions in the three other Senate districts, resulted from yesterday's student elections.

★★ SBP CAMPAIGN '82 ★★

Lloyd Burke and Bob Yonchak garnered 47.8 percent of the vote, more than any other SBP-SBVP ticket but not enough for an outright win, as 50 percent plus one vote is necessary. Patrick Borchers and Maureen Burns finished with 31.5 percent, including victories in Pangborn, Dillon, Lewis, Zahm, Holy Cross, and Stanford, and a tie with Burke in Fisher. Earl Rix and Tad Nacheff, the Observer-endorsed ticket, managed only 20.7 percent, with victories in Morrissey and Keenan, the candidates' home dorms.

The results from Student Senate Districts 1 and 2 also came out inconclusively. In District 1, Cathy Krause (36.1 percent of the vote) and Chris Tayback (28.8 percent) emerged from a field of four with runoff berths. Paul Daiber won 24.1 percent, and Robert Grunewald had 11.1 percent of the District 1 vote. In District 2, Greg Miller and Al Hank earned berths in tomorrow's elections with 40.2 and 39.6 percent of the vote, respectively. Doug O'Brien finished with 20.3 percent.

Districts 3, 4, and 5 elected new senators yesterday. In District 3, Thomas Yu ran unopposed. District 4 featured a two-man race, with Timothy Farrell defeating Joseph Rodriguez, 65.7-34.3 percent. In the off-campus District 5, Sheryl Simoneau also ran unopposed.

The turnout was, in the words of Ombudsman Election Chairman Andy Tucker, "below average." Less than 49 percent of the total undergraduate population cast ballots.

Tucker also reminds J-Board chairmen to pick up their hall's ballot box tonight at 6:30 in the Ombudsman office on the second floor of LaFortune.

Toronto students arrive Thursday

Approximately 45 students from St. Michael's University in Toronto will arrive Thursday for the cultural exchange program. Student Body Vice President Tara Kenney announced at the Student Senate meeting last night.

The Toronto students will stay in various dorms at Notre Dame until Monday and will participate in various activities including a trip to Chicago, tubing at Bendix woods, and Mardi Gras.

Two buses of Notre Dame students will travel to St. Michael's in Toronto for the same program, departing on March 4. There are still spaces available. "We've communicated with the Toronto students, and they're really excited. We anticipate a great success," Kenney said.

In other Senate business, the Office of Student Affairs was unanimously approved at the Student Senate meeting.

According to Paul Callahan, Keenan Hall president and chairperson of the committee, this group will "talk not only to Fr. Van Wolvelaar, vice-president of Student Affairs, but also to Fr. Heppen, director of Housing, Dean Roemer and rectors and students who deal with the administration."

Other members of the committee are Brian Callaghan, student senator, and Michael McAuliffe, Carroll Hall

Neighborhood project

Keenan fixes houses for needy

Cindy Coldiron
Staff Reporter

When a fire in 1879 destroyed Notre Dame, Fr. Sorin reportedly announced that "this was a sign from God that we have dreamed our dreams too small and it is time to dream even bigger dreams while we are rebuilding."

Fr. Richard Conyers and the students of Keenan Hall now remember those words with much inspiration. The group from Keenan presently has four homes in the Northwest One neighborhood (Holy Cross Parish area) in South Bend which they have rebuilt and rehoused with needy families.

Fr. Conyers remarked that "our goal is to have as many as ten houses and we would like to expand into the northeast area near Notre Dame. The key to the project is that we will buy and acquire houses (abandoned property) for as low a price as we can. We don't want to be involved in a give-away program which doesn't allow for the dignity of the person involved.

"We sell these homes to people on a land contract basis," Fr. Conyers continued, "and charge them what they can afford. If these homes were of no cost to the people, then they would be of little value psychologically or socially to them."

Fr. Conyers said that "if after an extended period of time of paying rent, for example twelve years, we give them a quit-claim deed and they can do whatever they want with the property. Hopefully, after this period of time, the family will be stable in their lives and can realize a profit on their investment or move into a better home."

When asked who determines what families will live in these homes, Fr. Conyers stated that these families don't usually come to the Keenan group but rather they go out and look for needy families. They find people that they feel are qualified to live in the homes. For example, people who would have no chance at home ownership, people who are down on their luck and couldn't qualify for a mortgage. "Ownership of real estate is almost essential for life with dignity," Fr. Conyers said.

Fr. Conyers added that these people are needy and will take great pride in their new homes. "We strongly encourage these people to have the best house on the block, plant gardens, etc. It is important to rescue neighborhoods by responding to conditions already existing. If a house is torn down and boarded up, then a signal is given to the neighborhood that it is going downhill. Property values plummet and the idea of a decaying neighborhood becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy."

But if these people see the opposite signal, pride in the neighborhood, then other people will commit themselves to the neighborhood. "For example, as we cleaned up one of the homes, people in the neighborhood started doing the same thing," Fr. Conyers said. "We want to influence neighborhoods in the city of South Bend."

Fr. Conyers remarked that he did not feel that his resignation would affect the future of the project at all. "The board of directors will carry out the plans. I do plan to get involved again when my nine month leave is over. Keenan Hall is committed to this type of project without my presence being necessary to help keep it going."

Several residents of Keenan Hall were asked how they thought Fr. Conyers resignation would affect the future of the neighborhood project. One mentioned that "the spirit of the whole project would be lacking without the presence of Fr. Conyers." Another stated that he thought the "project would suffer because Fr. Conyers was deeply committed to it" and always brought it up in their hall meetings.

The money for the project comes from the Keenan Hall Treasury, private donations, and one grant from the Justice and Peace Committee of Holy Cross in South Bend. "We want to break the hellish circle of poverty which is the slogan of the Campaign for Human Development," stated Fr. Conyers.

"We have the advantage of the low cost use of student volunteer labor," he said. "One time we had ninety guys working on one of the homes on a football Saturday. The 312 Keenanites have many skills available to us and they realize that the essential value in life is responding to people's needs."

Japanese airliner crashes, 147 survive

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 with 174 people aboard crashed yesterday into the shallows of Tokyo Bay just short of a runway at Haneda Airport. Police said at least 12 people were killed and 147 were rescued — 81 of them injured.

The aircraft smacked into the bay in two feet of water 8:47 a.m. Officials said the nose broke off and the jetliner was resting on the bottom. It was on a domestic flight to Haneda from the southwestern city of Fukuoka.

Helicopters rushed to the scene, and fishing boats were mobilized to rescue passengers and crew members.

JAL spokesman Jim Weatherly said the reservations list contained no non-Japanese names.

Officials said JAL flight 350 was carrying 166 passengers and eight crew members.

The jetliner hit the water about 1,000 feet short of the runway at Haneda, which is built on reclaimed land in Tokyo Bay, nine miles from the center of Tokyo. Kyodo News Service said there were indications the plane struck runway approach lights that extend into the bay.

Haneda once was Tokyo's main international airport, but has been used almost exclusively for domestic flights since the New Tokyo International Airport opened in 1978 at Narita, 45 miles to the northeast.

There have been several previous crashes at Haneda, including an unusual series in 1966.

On Feb. 4, 1966, a Boeing 727 of the domestic All Nippon Airways crashed into the bay while trying to land, killing all 133 people aboard. A month later, on March 4, a Canadian Pacific DC-8 crashed on landing, killing 64 of the 72 people aboard.

The following day a helicopter searching for bodies also crashed into the bay, killing its two crewmen, and that same afternoon a British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 broke up in the air over Mt. Fuji just after taking off from Haneda, with 124 dead.

The world's worst air crash claimed 582 lives in March 1977 when two Boeing 747 jetliners operated by Pan American and KLM collided on the airport runway at Tenerife in Spain's Canary Islands.

The worst single-plane accident killed 346 people when a Turkish DC-10 crashed 26 miles northeast of Paris in March 1974.

The detention of Professor Kosimierz Braun in Poland has caused the cancellation of a Shakespeare comedy originally planned as this year's final production of the ND-SMC Theatre. An alternate presentation is being planned. Braun was scheduled to join the ND-SMC Communications and Theatre Department at the beginning of the semester. Department officials have had no communication with Braun since martial law was declared in Poland on Dec. 13. Braun was scheduled as guest director for the Shakespeare comedy. He was also scheduled to teach several classes, which have since been cancelled. Frederick Sybur, an associate professor of the department says "an alternate presentation is in the planning stages. What it will include has not been determined. We would like to do something, such as a Polish play, that presents our feeling for what has happened in Poland." — The Observer

China plans an extensive governmental retrenchment that includes cutting the number of vice premiers from 18 to two or three and scrapping a system that allows most bureaucrats to keep their jobs for life, an authoritative leftist Hong Kong newspaper reported yesterday. It was the most detailed report yet on the Communist leadership's plan to cut down China's monumental bureaucracy, which many senior Chinese officials blame for stalling the country's drive to modernize by the year 2000. The Hong Kong Chinese-language daily newspaper Ta Kung Pao, which reflects the official Communist Party line in Peking, said the program was "revolutionary" and of paramount importance to the "fate of the country and the party." — AP

Leftist guerrillas in El Salvador, wearing handkerchief masks forced passengers off buses in three cities yesterday and firebombed the vehicles or shot up their tires, police and witnesses said. No one was hurt in the attacks, but at least a dozen people were taken to hospital in hysterics, police said. There were no arrests. Passengers said the guerrillas, all apparently in their teens, wore handkerchiefs across their faces to avoid identification. Police said the guerrillas attacked at least 22 buses between 6.30 a.m. and noon in the capital, and staged similar raids in Santa Ana and San Vicente. — AP

A Swiss executive jet was hit by Palestinian anti-aircraft fire aimed at Israeli warplanes over Beirut yesterday and made an emergency landing, the state radio reported. Pilot Paul Keller, his co-pilot and four passengers were unharmed after the twin-engine 36-A Learjet, operated by the Geneva firm Aero Leasing, flew into the range of anti-aircraft cannons while approaching the airport. The left wing and fuselage were hit, Keller said. He estimated damage at $1 million. Keller said he had come to Beirut to pick up another passenger for a trip to Turkey, then Geneva. Palestinian gunners often fire at Israeli jets that routinely fly reconnaissance missions over the Lebanese capital. Airport officials usually order incoming commercial planes to circle over the Mediterranean Sea until the shooting stops. — AP

John Hay "Jock" Whitney, of Manhasset, N.Y., a newspaper publisher, movie producer, diplomat and one of the nation's wealthiest men, died yesterday at the age of 77. Whitney, who excelled at virtually everything he tried, died at North Shore Hospital here. He had been in fragile health for a year. Born to a family that established itself in the New World in 1635, Whitney was worth an estimated $100 million. His life centered around his palatial 500-acre Long Island estate, Greentree, which he inherited from his parents. He conducted his business and philanthropic activities from his estate after 1979, when he suffered a setback from a heart ailment that first struck in 1975. Whitney was born Aug. 17, 1904, in Ellsworth, Maine, where his parents were summering. A maternal grandson of former Secretary of State John Hay and a paternal grandson of a former Navy Secretary William C. Whitney, he attended Groton, Yale and Oxford. — AP

It's snow use

A week ago Sunday, Saint Mary's college went into an uproar. It started on the first floor of Lemans Hall and "like a roar of thunder" swiftly moved up to the fourth floor. Within minutes, the chant of "There are no classes tomorrow!" echoed throughout the campus.

Apparently, some hopeful (and lucky) SMC students tried to fool other students, security, and even the administration into believing there were no classes on the following Monday due to poor weather conditions. The SMC prankster, who disguised her voice as Kathleen Rice, Dean of Student Affairs, telephoned all resident hall desks, security, and even local radio stations informing them of the supposed school closing.

With that news, the entire SMC community went wild with excitement. Finally, after weeks of treacherous South Bend weather, a day off from school!

The dream of an extended weekend, and legally sleeping through Monday morning classes was shattered quickly after the administration realized that students had no intention of attending classes the following morning. Mary Helen (Nu) Nugent, resident life director, felt a bit suspicious that Dean Rice did not phone her directly with the school closure information. She later called the Dean who denied cancelling Monday's classes. Through the work of the Hall Directors and the Resident Advisors, students were told that they should be in attendance for classes the following day.

In another humorous attempt to out-smart the administration, the administration won. It was a darned good try, though.

When students go to such lengths to get one snow day off from school, it makes me question the Administration's decisions that warrant a school closing. A recent Observer article stated that much careful thought and consideration went into the decision of closing a school or keeping it opened for the day.

Exactly how much ice and snow must accumulate on the streets to close a major university or college? This semester, South Bend has been hit with weather conditions that make it dangerous to drive. Almost every weekend thus far, the South Bend police department has declared driving hazardous. In some instances, tickets were issued to people who drove their cars on city streets.

Cathy Domanico
SMC News Editor

Inside Tuesday

Why, then, are classes being held on the following day?

In the unincorporated area of South Bend where many off-campus students live, the streets and driveways have not been cleared. Ice and an unreasonable amount of snow accumulation make it virtually impossible to travel. One Campus View resident stated that it took him nearly an hour and 15 minutes to drive from his apartment to Memorial Library. The administration obviously does not consider off-campus students when deciding on a school closing.

If, by some stretch of the imagination, the Administration found weather conditions so bad that classes were indeed closed, what would the students do? According to one off-campus senior, she "definitely would not study. It would be too cliché to have the time off and actually do something productive. I'd take the time to have some fun." Another junior added, "I'd stock up with plenty of junk food and beverages." A Notre Dame student was much more definite about his plans. He would just plain "get drunk."

There is a bit of irony to this whole situation. Students get too excited about the thought of getting one day off from school. If students wanted a day off from classes so badly, all they'd have to do is stay in bed and sleep in. But this is college, remember? You're supposed to want to go to classes. Besides isn't that what you're here for?

Signs budget

Reagan challenges Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan formally sent Congress his 1983 spending plan yesterday, challenging Democratic critics to substantiate charges that his is a budget for the rich. "It is not true," he insisted.

The $757.6 billion proposal signed by the president projects record deficits of $98.6 billion this year and $91.5 billion for the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Reagan said he hasn't given up his now-distant goal of bringing the budget into balance, but this plan, more than his last, encountered bitter rhetoric from Democrats and open acknowledgement by Republican leaders that it won't get through Congress unscathed.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Reagan's chief Democratic antagonist, charged after a short courtesy briefing at the White House that the budget shows the president "has forgotten his roots (and) associated with that country club style of people."

"Well," Reagan countered during a signing ceremony in the Oval Office, "I've only played golf once since I've been president, and he's an inveterate golfer, and I'm sure he must have to go to a country club to play golf."

As he signed the first of two green-bound copies of the budget book with a ceremonial pen, Reagan quipped, "That will be weekend reading for Tip O'Neill."

"I'll send the pen with it," Reagan added, "because he may want to make some further cuts in it."

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called the deficit projections "shocking" but said the true figures are much higher.

"This is really a campaign budget," Byrd charged, saying that last year the administration "fed phony numbers into the computer, and they're doing it again."

Byrd boycotted the White House session for the bipartisan leadership because "a 15-minute briefing is no briefing at all...on a budget of this size. I get my briefing from sources I have confidence in that don't admit they feed phony numbers into a computer."

He was referring to Budget Director David Stockman, who was quoted in Atlantic Monthly as acknowledging that he used untested figures to produce the erroneous budget projections on which Reagan's first round of spending and tax cuts were based.

Reagan called his latest budget with its new round of proposed cuts in domestic programs the second step toward economic recovery.

"It is not true that it is balanced on the backs of the needy," Reagan said, defending himself against the Democrats' charges. "We are still continuing to increase sizably our spending on social programs."

He added that he and others have been guilty of referring to the budget figures as cuts, whereas they actually are reductions in the rate of increase from the previous year's spending.

But with program costs rising with inflation, the new spending still results in a reduction of services.

Reagan insisted, "Our programs are intended to direct the help toward the truly needy, to tighten up administrative procedures wherein people who do not have real need have enjoyed the benefits of these programs."

"Do we honestly believe that someone whose parents earn in six figures ($100,000 or more) is entitled to have food stamps because they're going to college?" Reagan asked. "That's what's been going on."

Democratic leader Jim Wright, second to the speaker in the House leadership, described a confrontation between Reagan and O'Neill during the private meeting before the signing ceremony.

Wright quoted the speaker as reacting to Reagan's presentation by saying, "Mr. President, I just have to say to you that I disagree with about 80 percent of what you said."

"The president didn't yield at all," Wright said.

But the two politicians didn't let their policy dispute interfere with their social friendship. At a luncheon Reagan hosted for the National Hockey League less than an hour after the signing ceremony, O'Neill was back at the White House, sitting on the president's right, and the two men were seen laughing at something one of them said.

Reagan's key allies on Capitol Hill, Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. and House Republican leader Robert Michel predicted Reagan would get some — if not all — of what he requested.

"I think the president's budget, perhaps with some modifications, is going to be passed," Baker told reporters outside the White House. "The essence of it is you can't keep going the way we are."

"That doesn't mean the president will get every last bit that he's asked for but a good proportion of it," Michel added.

'Schedule change' affects Shapiro

By TOM SHAUGHNESSY
News Staff

On Jan. 26, 1982, Prof. Edward Klein, head of the Freshman Writing Program, informed one Humanities Seminar class that their instructor, Prof. Samuel Shapiro would no longer be teaching their class, due to a "change of scheduling."

Two of Prof. Shapiro's former students who wish to remain anonymous view this "change of scheduling" as the "culmination of a lot of things." According to these students, Prof. Shapiro often used colorful language and expressed religious views which were not in line with Catholic doctrine. "His class was never comfortable," said one student. In addition, Shapiro gave additional reading and movie assignments.

One of these students revealed that Prof. Shapiro missed the first class of the semester and had called students that evening to "give" the class assignment. One student went to her advisor the next day, Friday, Jan. 15 and Emil Hofman, Dean of Freshman Year, the following Monday to state complaints. Dean Hofman had heard "the stories" and knew "how he was as a teacher."

Another of Prof. Shapiro's Humanities Seminar students,

Richard Green, defended the professor. "Many of the things we did in class were good within the context of the class, but, out of context, it may have sounded bad to the administration."

"We did things outside class. He took the class canoeing, and we went over to his house a couple of times. He also arranged things in South Bend for us. He had us go to plays and the Snite Museum," the student added. Professor Shapiro also arranged a meeting between Green, who is contemplating majoring in pre-med, and a South Bend surgeon.

"He used to challenge us on our belief in God, and I had to think, in order to defend my viewpoint. I had to really think and reason out my views," said Green.

"Prof. Shapiro's class was my lowest grade, but I think I got more out of that class than my others. I think a good percentage of the class feels like I do," Green said.

When reached for comment, Prof. Shapiro, a veteran of eighteen years in the Notre Dame classroom, said, "I am very sorry not to be teaching that class anymore. It was one of the best and liveliest I ever had. I thought I was doing a very good and conscientious job."

Dean Hofman declined to comment on the matter. "I think people don't comment on administrative matters. It's not the right thing to do."

Bread rationing likely under martial law

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The military government announced plans yesterday to move Poland deeper into the Soviet economic sphere and said a critical grain shortage may require bread rationing.

The martial law regime imposed Dec. 13 also said tight controls would be applied to any revival of the Solidarity union, which it again accused of having been manipulated by anti-communists.

The plans were published in newspapers today in the form of a communiqué by the Council of Ministers to Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski. Also carried was a Polish news agency report from Rome on Polish Roman Catholic Primate Archbishop Jozef Glemp's statement Sunday that there would be a place for Solidarity in Poland.

The Council of Ministers communiqué said the martial law regime is pledged to improve wages, housing, food supply and opportunities for youth. Details were not spelled out.

The communique stressed Poland must rely less on the West for imports and change its factory output to reflect that, must increase trade with socialist allies, and become self-sufficient in food production.

The announcement appeared to be a clear turn away from the West, which already holds an estimated $26.5 billion in Polish debt.

mer jobs and where and when to apply.

According to Shook, there will be approximately 200 positions on campus this summer. The majority of the interviewing and job offers will take place between April 15 and the end of the semester.

"There is usually a demand for summer jobs but because of the economy and low availability of jobs in other areas, the demand is even higher," Shook said. "Many students know that if they go back home, chances for jobs will be slim."

Summer jobs will be given on a priority basis with Notre Dame students at the top of the list. Offerings include jobs in labs, offices, dining halls, and groundskeeping.

president.

Another unanimous approval was that of the appointment of John Eichenlaub, Stanford resident, as Student Body treasurer. He will assume his position in the Senate on April 1.

Finally, Senate member Claire Padgett announced that Rex Rakow, assistant director of Security, will be presenting a slide and tape show on dorm security in all womens' halls from February 15 through 18.

ND campus to vote on boycott

The University of Notre Dame's Student Affairs Boycott Committee has announced that a student vote will be taken on Mar. 2, 1982 to determine whether or not to continue the University-wide boycott of the Nestle Company.

Following a student vote in 1979, the University has boycotted the Nestle Company and its subsidiaries over the marketing practices of infant formula manufacturers and distributors in the Third World. The Nestle Company holds the largest share of the market in the Third World.

The boycott on campus was initiated by the World Hunger Coalition, a student organization. Prior to vote on March 2, educational sessions and literature will be made available to all students, highlighted by an on-campus presentation and a debate between Infact and the Nestle Company on Thursday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 pm at the center for Continuing Education.

never been put in that kind of situation. But I came out of it all right."
Luzinski's post-game eulogy was short, sweet and to the point, and the Irish have not been humiliated since. "I've been on teams that have lost — dead last place," he told the dejected troops. "And I've been on championship teams. And it's a lot easier for the freshmen and sophomores to accept this than it would be for a guy like (John) Paxson who has been on winning teams, and has had a taste of it. But through playing together and through hard work, they'll come out of it. And the adversity they're experiencing now will make them a better team down the road."
Spoken like a true Notre Dame man.

"American Foreign Policy in the 1980s: Defense"

Over DePauw

Schirz paces SMC victory

By DAVE WILSON
Sports Writer

After last night's 63-44 thrashing of DePauw University, one would think that the Saint Mary's basketball team is more than ready for the post-season tournaments coming up at the end of this month.

The Belles are looking no further than the upcoming weekend, however, when they will travel north to compete in the power-packed Wisconsin-Green Bay Tournament.

"We're going to face a couple of tough teams this weekend," said SMC basketball coach Jerry Dallesio. "We'll think about post-season when the time comes, but for now we've got to worry about some of those Division II teams in the Wisconsin tournament.

"We'll have a couple of good practices Tuesday and Wednesday, and a practice game on Thursday, so the team ought to be ready by the weekend."

As for last night's contest, the Belles seemingly could do no wrong as they boosted their record to 8-10 for the year. SMC spotted the Tigers an immediate four-point edge before reeling off five straight field goals to take a 10-4 lead. The Belles then scored 15 of the next 17 points to take a 25-6 lead through ten minutes of action.

DePauw, who was committing no less than 15 turnovers in the meantime, pulled no closer than 15 points the remainder of the game.

"I was very pleased with our first-half performance," commented Dallesio. "The defense was absolutely terrific all the way, and I think that in turn inspired our offensive performance."

At halftime the Belles were sitting on a remarkable 39-16 margin, prompting Dallesio to ease off on an effective half-court trap defense. Although DePauw matched baskets with Saint Mary's through the second half, Dallesio thought the change of pace was inevitable and, in fact, necessary.

"We like to win, of course," he said, "but when you get to the point of really blowing the opposition out, I think you should ease up and play a relaxed game."

"We bothered them with our defense, and the key to our offense was in getting the ball to Lisa Schirz for the short shot. Things just really worked well for us tonight."

Schirz led the Belles' scoring drive with a game-high 15 points, followed by an impressive 14-point effort from frosh Elaine Seuss. Junior center Mary Pat Sitlington threw in nine points, while Mary Bayless and Trish Nolan added eight points apiece to the effort.

The Wisconsin-Green Bay competition will be the third tournament in as many weekends for the Belles, who will attempt to boost their record back up to the .500 mark. The team then will return next week for a couple of home contests before gearing up for the District Tournament at Goshen College on February 26.

At Landover

NHL All-Stars go head-to-head

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Campbell Conference, led by record-breaking scorer Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers, seeks a second straight victory over the Wales Conference in tonight's National Hockey League All-Star game.

First and foremost will be Gretzky, the 21-year-old millionaire who scored 164 points last season and appears headed for a 100-goal, 200-point campaign.

But the crowd favorite should be center Dennis Maruk of the Capitals, who celebrated his second All-Star selection by registering his 11th career three-goal performance against Quebec Sunday night. He has 41 goals and is third in the NHL scoring race.

A crowd of 18,130 is expected to fill the Capital Centre, where only one sellout has been attracted during the current season as the Washington Capitals struggle through their eighth campaign.

The Wales Conference had won five straight All-Star games under the format adopted for the 1974-75 season, with no game in 1979 because of the Challenge Series with the Soviet Union. The Campbells notched their first decision last year.

Coach Al Arbour of the two-time Stanley Cup-champion New York Islanders directed the Campbells in their breakthrough. But, under a realignment of the conferences, he will be coaching the Wales this time around.

Sox star

Luzinski has Domer ties

By MICHAEL ORTMAN
Sports Writer

When Irish trivia buffs think about Notre Dame baseball players in the big leagues, usually one and maybe two names come to mind — Carl Yastrzemski and perhaps Ron Reed. One more former ND star returned to this campus last week — Chicago White Sox slugger Greg Luzinski.

No, "The Bull" never played on Jake Kline Field, or any other diamond as a collegian. His Notre Dame experience took place at Notre Dame High School in Niles, Ill. But his ties to South Bend's Notre Dame are numerous, and the 31-year-old Medford, N.J., resident lists them with great pride.

"I've always been a die-hard Notre Dame fan," the nine-year veteran admitted last week when he, catcher Carlton Fisk, outfielder-first baseman Tom Paciorek and Manager Tony La Russa stopped in South Bend as part of the team's promotional caravan through northern Indiana. "I spent the day on campus visiting with some old friends."

Luzinski lists among his Notre Dame contacts people from varied walks of campus life — football administrative assistant Joe Yonto, basketball Coach Digger Phelps and Vice-President of Student Affairs Fr. John Van Wolvlear.

When Luzinski arrived at Notre Dame High as a freshman in 1964, it was Van Wolvlear, then that school's principal, who saw to it that the young football/baseball star would be able to stay at Notre Dame. "I got him a job in the school cafeteria to help him pay his way through," Van Wolvlear recalls. "That was when he needed to work," he adds with a chuckle, considering the half-million dollar-plus salary Luzinski now receives annually.

Throughout his high school career, "The Bull" was a two-sport standout. As a linebacker and fullback in football, he received offers from 150 colleges, including Notre Dame. Yonto, who had left Notre Dame high school after the 1963 season to take the defensive line job here, was among the many in the hunt for the most-sought-after fullback in the Midwest in 1968.

So was another member of the current Notre Dame staff. "When I visited campus today (Wednesday) I met (linebacker coach) George Kelly," Luzinski related. "He remembered recruiting me when he was on the staff at Nebraska."

Add to all of this the fact that two of Luzinski's high school coaches, Denny Conway and Alan Laboy, played halfback and linebacker, respectively, for Ara Parseghian during his first two years here. It's little wonder that Gregory Michael Luzinski had "Golden Dome" written all over him.

As it was, the multi-talented youngster said "thanks but no thanks" to his football suitors. "I told them there was no sense in me signing a letter of intent," he recalls, "because I felt that I would be a number-one draft choice (of the Philadelphia Phillies) and that would probably be the route I'd pursue."

He was, and he did. Luzinski moved quickly through the minor leagues, and was called up by the Phillies late in the 1970 season. And it was during his early years in the City of Brotherly Love that he met another Notre Dame person — Digger Phelps. ("I got to know him through a sports writer friend of mine.") Phelps, who spent four years as an assistant coach at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia before a year as head man at Fordham and then on to Notre Dame, has been a close friend of Luzinski's ever since.

During this past football season, Luzinski appeared with Phelps at the Southern Cal pep rally, and stayed in town for the game. Over Christmas break, Luzinski had the opportunity to make a different sort of pep talk to a Notre Dame group, and he calls that "one of the funniest experiences I've had to deal with."

Luzinski had driven down to Landover, Md., from his suburban Philadelphia home to watch the Irish get humiliated by Ralph Sampson and the Virginia Cavaliers. "Virginia had just blown them out of the gym," he recalls of Notre Dame's 33-point defeat. "I saw Digger after the game, and he said, 'You gotta do me a favor. I'd like you to go in and give the guys a pep talk. They're really down.'"

"So I walked in there and saw a lot of hanging heads, one kid (Dan Duff) who'd broken his ankle during the game, a trainer and a priest. It was a weird experience for me because I'd

Pangborn captures first hockey victory

HOCKEY — Pangborn won its first game in four outings by defeating Fisher, 4-3. Mark Corcoran had two goals and Mike Barri got the winning tally in the close match. The highlight of the game, however, was the eight saves by goalie Bill Keenan in the last four minutes. The feat had added significance due to the fact that Pangborn was playing a man short and Keenan had only one contact lense (borrowed from a friend yet!).

Dillon kept its record perfect by beating Sorin last week, 13-1. Larry Drabot had a hat-trick and both captain Mike Duggan and Joe Longo had two goals apiece. Duggan had this to say about the season's progress, "We played well tonite, but more importantly we're improving with each game." The Big Red will need to continue its improvement as the team heads into the toughest part of its schedule with Morrissey, and unbeaten Holy Cross and Alumni.

MEN'S BASKETBALL — Perennial power Howard picked up its sixth and seventh victories of the season last week over Holy Cross, 42-34, and Alumni, 62-42.

Even though their playing without its most valuable player, Bill Keenehan, Howard prides its team on an abundance of talent in point guard John "South Philly" Leonard. Keenehan has missed the last two games because of a pulled hamstring, but hopes to return before tournament time this week. Leonard is the play-marker for the squad that is small but quick. The undefeated team from Howard should be watched closely going into playoffs as a prime candidate for the championship that they have captured the past two years.

DEADLINES — The NVA will be sponsoring a mixed-doubles racquetball tournament for all students. Entries for the elimination tournament must be in to the NVA office (C-2 ACC) or x6100 by Wednesday, Feb. 10.
