Williams apologizes to Senate colleagues

WASHINGTON (AP) — While virtually conceding failed judgment, Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. told his colleagues yesterday he was framed by the FBI in its Abscam investigation and pleaded to retain his office despite "this turmoil, this torture and this ordeal."

Williams, opening a last and lengthy appeal, offered "almost an apology that the places I went and the things I did could bring you members of the Senate this problem."

The New Jersey Democrat, who addressed the Senate for four hours last Thursday, returned to the floor against expectations that his expulsion hearing was near a climax. But he made it clear he was in no rush to conclude his latest defense for the conspiracy and bribery crimes over which a federal jury pronounced him guilty last year.

Williams, 62, declared repeatedly he was the victim of investigative abuse, suggesting his case has fearsome implications for the legislative branch. "Never before," he said, "had employees of the executive branch tried to frame a senator of the United States."

Still, Williams conceded he had ample chances to extricate himself from the undercover scam by which he was convicted of trying to sell his influence to advance a private mining venture.

He said "the most logical question" is why he kept going back for a total of seven meetings with the FBI's Abscam operatives over a period of about a year.

"If there is anything I kick myself about, it is that," he said. But he said he did it because two close friends were involved in the would-be mining venture with him.

Williams' defenders hope to reduce the Senate's sanction to censure, rather than expulsion. A vote on that move could come as early as tomorrow.

"I am sorry indeed that it came to this," Williams said in his final appeal. "I regret that I had to give you this turmoil, this torture and this ordeal."

"There has never been one moment in my service that I have thought in terms of personal economic advantage or advance — not even once," he told his colleagues.

Williams, who has served in the Senate for 23 years, said if there had ever been a situation in which he could have made money from public office, it was when he served as chairman of Senate subcommittees on securities, housing and urban affairs. He said those positions put him in touch with "the highest pinnacles of finance," but he did nothing wrong.

He said the Abscam investigators were "grand masters of deceit" who "took every character trait that I consider a personal and political virtue and attempted to twist it and torture it, making it appear as a vice on hidden camera."

He said he was "deeply saddened" that he went into situations that "would be used that way" and said he had a feeling of "sorrow, sadness, almost an apology that the places I went and the things I did could bring you members of the Senate this problem."

He said he feared that the same tactics could be used on other lawmakers, however, and that he was fighting expulsion by exposing the government's tactics to make sure that would not happen again.

Williams was accused of agreeing to use his influence as a senator to get financial backing for the purported mining venture, in which he

Guatemala votes

Military candidate leads election

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The military-backed candidate in Guatemala's presidential election held an early lead yesterday, but it appeared that none of the four contenders would win the absolute majority required for election.

Two candidates trailing in the early vote count claimed there were irregularities in the voting and demanded a recount.

Gen. Angel Anibal Guevara, former defense minister in the military-dominated government, was getting 37 percent of the votes to put him far ahead of the three civilian candidates, according to the latest official returns.

The outgoing congress will name the president from the top two vote-getters if no candidate captures 51 percent of the vote. That would mean Guevara would be the likely victor.

With 296,336 votes counted, Guevara had 110,765 votes, or 37 percent. Second with 80,193 votes, or 27 percent, was Mario Sandoval Alarcon, of the far-right National Liberation Movement. Idonado Aguirre, the most moderate of the four right-of-center presidential hopefuls, had 74,677, or 25 percent while Gustavo Anzueto Vielman had just over 10 percent with 30,701.

Election officials did not report how many of the 2.3 million people eligible cast ballots Sunday, although the turn-out was reported heavier than normal. Officials did not say what percentage of the total had been counted. Voters also chose a vice president, 66 members of congress to take office July 1 and municipal officials.

The general dismissed protests as traditional complaints of losers. He stopped short of claiming victory before final results.

Runner-up Sandoval summoned reporters to his home yesterday and asserted "there was fraud" in the counting. He said results reported from some polls differed with the count by his observers.

Third-place Maldonado Aguirre claimed the government delayed results from areas where he has strong support to make it look like Guevara had the lead from the start. He did not use the word "fraud" in his complaints. He was backed by an alliance of Christian Democrats and the National Renovator Party.

President Gen. Romeo Lucas Garcia, who was not running, vowed the elections would be "clean and pure." He ordered extra security. There were reports of scattered violence at some polling places and elsewhere, but no more than the usual weekend bloodshed in this Central American country of 7 million.

Guatemala has been governed by military-dominated governments since leftist president Jacobo Arbenz was ousted in a CIA-supported coup in 1954. Most elections since have been marked by fraud.

Leftists, who are waging a guerrilla war against rightist rule, refused to participate in the presidential race, saying their candidates would be assassinated.

The United States has said fair elections and a reduction in political bloodshed would go far toward restoring the American military aid Guatemala seeks. Aid was cut in 1977 because of the country's human rights record.

Phony profits

Scandal rocks advertising agency

NEW YORK (AP) — The ad world is buzzing with a new TV story line that has everything: questionable deals, phony profits, corporate infighting, and a powerful female executive toppled from her position.

It all really happened — without a commercial break — at one Madison Avenue ad agency. The intrigue continues in what analysts say may be the biggest scandal ever in the advertising industry.

J. Walter Thompson Co., the world's second largest ad agency, says $24.5 million in "fictitious revenue" was chalked up by its TV program syndication department over the last four years.

The announcement spurred investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission and by the U.S. Attorney's office.

There was no evidence that any of the money was misappropriated — or, indeed, ever existed. But the phantom revenue did make the unit appear to be performing much better than it actually was.

"It caused a great deal of stir because people in the industry were thinking, 'There but for the grace of God go I,'" said Fred Anshel, an analyst who follows the publicly held company for the Wall Street investment firm of Dean Witter Reynolds.

JWT group, parent of the agency, said two weeks ago that it was adjusting old earnings reports to allow for the overstated revenue, and writing off $9.5 million, or about two-thirds, of 1981 profits, according to analysts.

JWT Chairman Don Johnston blamed no one publicly, saying the company's investigation was continuing. But an internal investigation has been going on for several months, and the head of the unit, Marie Luisi, was suspended without pay on Jan. 31.

Luisi, 46, a $100,000-plus-a-year executive, has declined to talk to reporters. But through her attorney, Ivan S. Fisher, she denies having anything to do with the inflated revenue figures. Fisher says she's not "a numbers person. She knows none of this."

Fisher says the problems "have very little to do with Marie Luisi and a lot to do with the management at JWT."

"She was with them 18 years. She was a hit," he said. "Now she earns herself the enmity of lots of people in the industry and yet she doesn't even get the benefit of a direct accusation."

Luisi is, by most accounts, a vivacious and energetic woman who was able to pull off money-making deals in the intensely competitive world of advertising.

She got her start at J. Walter Thompson at age 17, later took a few years off for her own ventures and returned 18 years ago. She had risen to become one of the more powerful women on Madison Avenue — senior vice president at JWT, a member of the board of directors of the U.S. division and head of the syndication and TV spot sales departments.

JWT's syndication department buys television programs, like "Tales of the Unknown" and "World of Survival," and offers them to TV stations in exchange for Student Body President Don Murday, in yesterday's Student Senate meeting, presented plans for his five-day trip over break to several universities comparable to Notre Dame. Murday intends to make comparisons with Notre Dame's quality of student life by examining dorms, cafeterias, student centers, and various student facilities on other campuses. The study is part of a survey Murday is making for the Board of Trustees. The key objective of this study is to convince the Board of the need and desire for more student social space. Murday noted that the normal university of 6000 has a student center with floor space of 91,000 square feet. The LaFortune Student Center has 37,000 square feet. — The Observer

The Supreme Court said yesterday it will decide whether police can demand identification if they think you're suspicious — and whether it can be a crime not to comply. The court will judge such a California law, struck down as unconstitutional by a federal appeals court. The scope of police authority and extent of an individual's rights in such confrontations remain hazy at best. In 1979, the Supreme Court ruled that you cannot be required to tell your name if the police officer who asks does not reasonably suspect you of any wrongdoing. But the justices left unanswered whether such, identification could be made mandatory if the officer had reason to suspect some wrongdoing. The court's decision in the California case is expected sometime next year. — AP

Jamet Hajek of Texas can tell friends that the van he purchased was a lemon but he can't advertise the fact that he has soured on the dealership where he bought the vehicle, a state district judge has ruled. "It's one thing to say those things to your friends and people who will listen, but it's another to advertise," State District Judge Harry Lewis said Friday. Lewis told Hajek to remove the slogans and painted lemons from the 1981 van he purchased from Bill Mowbray Motors Inc. "Help. Bill Mowbray Motors Inc. sold this lemon," read one sign. "Jerry Roberts sold this Dodge disaster at Bill Mowbray Motors. Help. It's a Dodge," read the other. Mowbray went to court over the slogans and got a temporary restraining order to force Hajek to repaint the van. Hajek said the ruling infringed on constitutional rights. "I feel that it is going against my right to free speech. I don't feel there was anything derogatory in what I said," he said. — AP

Wild Horses horses roped on the ranges of Oregon and burros captured in the deserts of California are being trucked to the Southeastern cowboy capital of Arcadia, Florida next month to be put up for adoption. Some 250 of these orphans of the wild will be hauled cross country as part of a federal program designed to thin the herds that crowd the wide open spaces. Double-decker semi-trailer trucks will carry the beasts of burden and the mustang hybrids. They'll be brought to the old rodeo grounds in this tiny central Florida community of 6,000 where cattle outnumber people. During two weekends in April, the federal Bureau Of Land Management will turn the animals over to people who applied in advance to adopt a burro for $145 or a horse for $350. "We have to find homes for them," Steve Altman of the bureau's Washington D.C. office, said recently. "Sometimes you have to take them to where the people are so they can be adopted." — AP

The government yesterday approved the first drug pump that can be implanted inside the body, saying the device can add more than two years to the life expectancy of liver cancer patients and prevent blood clots in victims of phlebitis and other ailments. The Food and Drug Administration said it also is studying the drug pump as a way to dispense drugs to treat brain tumors or insulin for diabetics. The pump holds promise as an improved treatment method for the 9,400 people who might otherwise die of liver cancer each year, the 745,000 who suffer from phlebitis and the 50,000 whose deaths are linked with pulmonary embolisms, FDA commissioner Arthur Hull Hayes Jr. said. The drug pump can be inserted in the chest or stomach and is the first one which need not be worn outside the body. It resembles a hockey puck in size and shape and provides continuous drug therapy. — AP

Ugly Building On Campus

John McGrath
Editor in Chief

Inside Tuesday

Although snow still covers the ground in South Bend, there are some early cases of that springtime affliction known as (Ugly Man On Campus) fever, and invariably there are the annual mutations of the acronym. Last year, I noticed the season's best deviation so far — a sign attached high atop the statue of Fr. Sorin that read "USOC" (Ugly Statue on Campus). I have a mutation of my own which doesn't match the ingenuity of the Sorin example, but nevertheless, it is one that is relevant to the Notre Dame campus.

UBOC — that's right, The Ugly Building On Campus. There have always been some isolated grumblings about the state of architecture at Notre Dame, but new structures rising on campus this year have caused that grumbling to rise a notch.

Last spring, Scholastic dedicated the theme of an entire issue to architecture at Notre Dame. One article took a very discriminating look at several structures on campus, including the Memorial Library, and the new Pasquerilla dormitories. The article was written by an architecture major and included many interesting observations about the apparent direction — or lack of it — in the work of Ellerbe and Ellerbe, the architects who have designed most of the recently constructed buildings on campus.

I'm no architecture major, but I do know what a graceful — or an unsightly — structure looks like when I see one. Notre Dame on the whole presents a pleasing and at some times surprising potpourri of architectural styles to the wandering eye, but the campus does have its share of candidates for UBOC. The one serious notion to come out of this column, however, is the rather alarming number of new, supposedly enlightened-designed buildings that have been the subject of controversy.

Here's my top seven candidates for UBOC:

- 1) The Old Chemical Engineering Building — as ugly and decrepit looking on the inside as it appears to be on the outside. The building was slated to be faced with the same limestone as the architecture Building, but budget cuts back in 1917 made the difference between mediocrity and disaster.
- 2) The Aerospace Engineering Building — "Neo-shed revivalism" at its best.
- 3) (and rising with a bullet) The Stepan Chemical Building — that massive multi-million dollar wedge at the rear of Nieuwland Science Hall. The rows of tiny windows on such a tall structure conjure up images of portholes on a World War II Liberty Ship. Described in a letter to the editor as "another monster from the labs of Ellerbe and Ellerbe."
- 4) ROTC Building — Standard military style — but why paint it pink?
- 5) Computer Center and Math Building — isn't it cute the way the whole building looks like one big computer keypunch card?

6) The Old Band Building — this is simply one of those buildings which started out ugly, and will only mature in its lack of beauty over the years until it becomes a historical site.

7) The LaFortune Student Center — a building which originally served as science hall for the campus. Many experiments have been conducted over the years in this structure, including Albert Zahm's fabled glider flights around the ballroom and the current experiment in that same room, Chataqua. The building itself, however, looks more like an experiment that failed.

Although these are the top seven selections, there are a slew of others I have heard students nominate, including the Old Fieldhouse as well as the new Pasquerilla dorms and the Memorial Library. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, however, and the elusive idea of gracefulness is no doubt present in at least most of the aforementioned list.

My point, nevertheless, is this: A careful balance between grace and utility can be achieved — without disrupting the historical or aesthetic values of the campus. Simply witness the Fitzpatrick Engineering addition or the Snite Museum of Art. Neither wins an award for outstanding design, but Snite's progressive design meshes well with its O'Shaughnessy attachment and the Fitzpatrick structure makes an attractive partner for its older engineering building counterpart.

An institution of higher learning of Notre Dame's caliber deserves not only high quality, but imaginative and progressive architecture in its campus structures. What has been started and finished in a less than idealistic manner can still be helped by a little piece of advice Frank Lloyd Wright once offered about O'Shaughnessy Hall: "plant lots of ivy and hope for rain," but to proceed on a haphazard course of construction that gives us bland structures like the Computer Center, is certainly less than what Notre Dame deserves.

Passive resistance

Solidarity meets in secret

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders who have eluded the martial law regime's dragnet met in secret outside Warsaw last week and issued a call for talks between authorities and the union leadership, sources said yesterday.

The sources, whose previous reports have proved accurate, would not disclose the site of the meeting or a roster of participants, beyond saying those members of the independent union's 107-member national commission who are still at large attended.

Most Solidarity activists have been interned since the Warsaw regime imposed martial law and suspended the union on Dec. 13.

Justice Minister Sylwester Zawadzki said yesterday at a news conference 3,953 people are being held at 25 martial law detention centers. He also said 245 Poles have drawn prison sentences for organizing or leading strikes since the military crackdown.

Zawadzki refused to confirm that Solidarity leader Lech Walesa would be allowed to attend his daughter's baptism in Gdansk this month.

Walesa's wife Danuta said last week that the interned union leader would be allowed to attend the ceremony March 21.

At the underground meeting last week, Solidarity leaders called for talks with authorities, on the condition that Walesa and other interned leaders and advisers be allowed to attend, the sources said.

The leaders also recommended "passive resistance" to martial law, saying open conflict should be avoided, the sources said, speaking on condition that they not be identified.

commercial air time. Under that system, called barter syndication, the agency recoups its investment when it sells that air time to clients through the spot sales department, whose $301 million sales last year made it the industry leader.

At JWT, the bank of commercial air time acquired by these syndication deals but not sold to advertisers was growing. Phony revenue figures made it look like the air time had been sold, but no advertisers were billed for time they hadn't bought, the company says.

The error was discovered when the company sent its accountants to look for ways to avoid borrowing money in the face of cash-flow problems.

"What happened was that we spent millions of dollars on program properties in which we didn't recover our investment," says Stephen M. Salorio, JWT's general counsel. "But the bogus entries made it appear we weren't doing badly."

Last Friday, the company announced it was withdrawing from the business of barter syndication. "Once we saw the figures behind the inflated figures, we saw how bad a business it was," said JWT spokesman Don Deaton.

Why were the figures fudged? Salorio wasn't willing to speculate on a motive or a perpetrator. Luisi's attorney thinks her underlings were trying to cover up a poor selling job.

All the departments at JWT have profit and revenue projections. Promotions and bonuses are given to executives based on each unit's performance. Asked if there was too much pressure on department heads to deliver on projected profits, Johnston said that 99 out of 100 "run at a profit and do it right."

Meanwhile, JWT hasn't made a final decision on Luisi. She has begun doing consulting work and Fisher says he expects her "to land on her feet." But not, he adds, at J. Walter Thompson.

The Warsaw newspaper Zycie Warszawy published a commentary yesterday castigating three Solidarity leaders as "political illiterates, wrongdoers and madmen," but acknowledging that the movement had "no shortage of young enthusiasts and top-flight specialists."

Criticized were Jan Rulewski, Stefan Jurczyk and Andrzej Slowik, all of whom have been detained or imprisoned under martial law.

About 100 Warsaw university students laid flowers yesterday at a plaque commemorating the student disturbances of March 1968. The disorders were incited by the closing of a play by Adam Mickiewicz, a 19th-century poet, because students had cheered anti-Russian scenes. The brief ceremony provoked no incidents.

was handed a part interest. The "Arab businessmen" he met with was an undercover FBI agent, and the meetings were videotaped.

The senator said he considered the stock he was given in the mining companies "worthless" and that the Abscam operatives had "to chase me down" to give it to him.

Asked if he would resign if it appeared his legislative peers seemed certain to banish him with their votes, Williams replied:

"I just can't conceive of it coming to that point if I am successful in making the senators know what was on my mind, what I did and what I didn't do."

The senator was sentenced last year to three years in prison and fined $50,000.

Williams' acusers say that his conduct, and not that of the FBI are at issue in the expulsion debate. But the senator says he can demonstrate that the FBI overstepped its bounds, particularly by allowing its chief operative, con man Mel Weinberg, virtually free rein in the attempt to draw him into the case.

No senator has been expelled since 1862, and Williams' supporters say the government's zeal must be considered as a mitigating factor against the severest penalty.

The Student Senate held its weekly meeting last night in Hayes-Healy. The major topic of discussion was a series of trips to several college campuses planned by a group of officers in order to compare several aspects of life at Notre Dame to conditions on other campuses. (Photo by Rachel Blount)

'Defects or disorders'

Prof offers genetic counseling

By ROGER WILKE
News Staff

Dr. Harvey A. Bender, professor of biology at Notre Dame, is currently the director of the Genetics Counseling Center at Memorial Hospital in South Bend. This clinic which serves North Central Indiana, is intended to provide "individuals and families with information about actual or potential inherited defects or disorders."

At present, there are approximately 3000 genetic disorders which have been identified. Some are rare, others, like Down Syndrome, are fairly common. These disorders may cause physical or mental impairment in the individual and may be mild or severe.

The South Bend area had no Genetics Counseling Center until the current one was established in January, 1980. The clinic was established with some primary objectives in mind.

First, the clinic would provide the family or individual with the necessary medical facts about the genetic disorder. The staff uses family medical history information and diagnostic test results to evaluate the actual or potential disorders.

Second, the clinic helps the individual or family understand the nature of the disorder and help to inform them with the options for dealing with the risk of recurrence.

Dr. Bender explained, "There are three aspects to our counseling center. There's the diagnostic component, where we try to find out what disorders a child has or what the chances are for the parents to conceive a child with a disorder. Then there is the educative element. This is where we try to explain to the family why the disorders occurred and what might be done to manage the situation. Finally, we relate to the potential parents their chances of conceiving a child with a disorder and give them an objective view of their options. In this way, they are informed of their situation, but can still make an informed decision as to what to do."

Dr. Bender also stated that there are certain situations in which genetic counseling is particularly recommended. A family with a child with a birth defect of unknown or genetic origin is one example. Others recommended to seek counseling are couples identified, through tests, as carriers of a disorder, women over 35 years of age considering pregnancy, or families with relatives with a known genetic disorder. Certain ethnic groups are especially susceptible to particular disorders.

Dr. Bender acknowledges that there is still much to learn in the field of genetics, but says that research, such as that done in Notre Dame's Human Genetics Program, and clinics, such as the one at Memorial Hospital are improving our understanding of genetic disorders. As Dr. Bender says, "You must understand what is wrong before you can correct it."

The clinic emphasizes its availability--no one is denied needed services for financial reasons. The clinic tries to provide the family with an objective view of its situation and allows them to make an informed decision. "We try not to influence the family's decisions," says Dr. Bender, "It's best to let them see all aspects of the situation."

GM, Toyota discuss joint venture

General Motors Corp. and Toyota of Japan are considering a joint effort to build small cars in the United States, company officials said yesterday.

The idea of a cooperative production venture was raised at a March 1 meeting in New York between GM chairman Roger B. Smith and Toyota President Eiji Toyoda, statements released by both companies said.

Japan's leading business newspaper, Nihon Keizai, said plans under consideration call for a joint-venture company in the United States to produce about 500,000 Toyota cars a year at idle GM plants.

RCA reports videodisc losses

NEW YORK (AP) - RCA Corp. said in its 1981 annual report to stockholders Monday that it lost $106.8 million last year on its SelectaVision videodisc system.

The company said it lost $55.5 million on the system in 1980 and $21.4 million in 1979, for a three-year total of $183.7 million.

In its report, RCA said the increased losses in 1980 and 1981 reflected costs for preparation and introduction of the system which became available last March, but whose sales fell far short of RCA's original forecast.

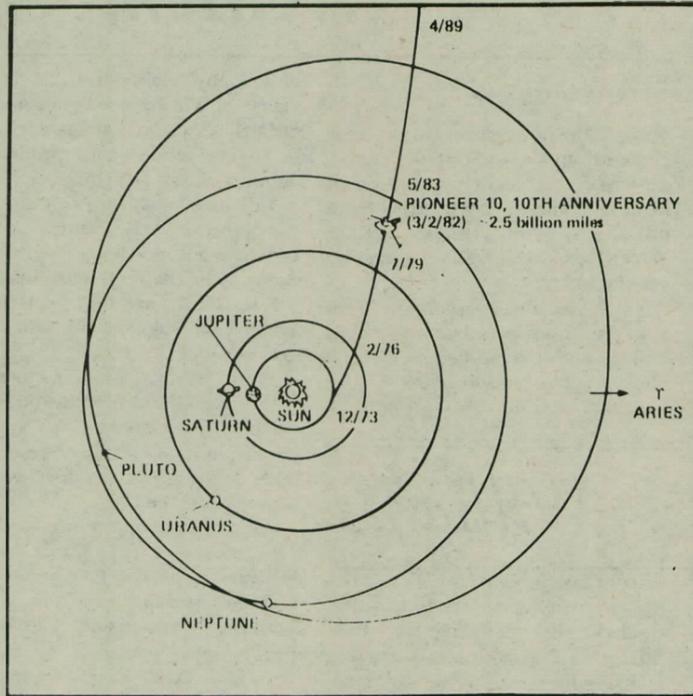

RCA had expected to sell 200,000 units at the retail level in 1981, but sold only about 65,000, even after a substantial advertising campaign during the holiday season.

In an further effort to boost sales, RCA last month cut the price of its 1982 players to $349.95 from $499.95.

The SelectaVision system includes a grooved disc that slips into a player. It then is "read" by a diamond stylus similar to a phonograph needle, which transmits images to a television screen.

RCA, which owns the NBC television network, earlier had reported net income for 1981 of $54 million on sales of $8 billion compared with 1980 earnings of $315.3 million on sales of $8 billion.

In the report to shareholders, RCA chairman Thornton Bradshaw attributed the lower profit to "abnormally high interest rates, continuing inflation and a weak economy."

Non-varsity deadlines coming up include both men's and women's 12-inch softball. The rosters are due Wednesday and must include 12-16 players, all from the same hall. The deadline for grad softball is also Wednesday, with a 12-member roster minimum and all players from the same department. The baseball league rosters are due Wednesday with a roster of 14-18 players. There is a $15 entry fee for each roster. A women's soccer tourney is forming, with teams arranged by hall and rosters due, of course, Wednesday. There will be a $20 fee for entry and proof of insurance is required.

Mud Volleyball registration for An Tostal will be held tonight and tomorrow (Wednesday), from 6 to 8 p.m. in first floor LaFortune. Rosters are to be composed of six to eight players, with a limit of two per team from the volleyball club. Each roster must include names of players, and the captain's name and phone number. You are only permitted to play on one team. There is a limit of 128 teams, so early registration is advised. A $1.00 entry fee will be charged per team. — The Observer

Boxers advance to tonight's semi-finals

Blood, gore, mouthpieces strewn about the ring. Headgear coming lose.

What is one man's violence is another man's sport, and to the 1,780 paid (plus season ticket holders) in attendance Sunday afternoon under the ACC's South Dome, they saw plenty of sport as the 52nd edition of the Bengal Bouts got underway.

In all, 20 matches were contested, although none of the defending champions will see action until tonight at 7:30. There were four technical knockouts, six split decisions and several matches that brought both thunderous applause and/or boos from the audience, depending on one's own interpretation of the fight.

And though the settings are professional as possible, the trunks (of course, blue and gold respectively) appeared to be of the early Bengal Bouts vintage and some of the shoes worn by the boxers weren't far behind.

A case in point came in the 155-pound weight class when Mike Doyen, a junior, answered the opening bell against senior Robert Cooney, only to have his right shoe split on him with the first round barely a minute old, prompting an impromptu search for some white tape.

"We have the finest training department in the country and we can't find a piece of tape," one ring side observer was overheard to have said.

But one of Doyen's cornermasters solved the problem by exchanging shoes with him, and the fight continued with Doyen being declared the winner on a split decision.

Unfortunately, Doyen had to withdraw from tonight's bout with defending champion senior John Donovan because of emergency surgery last night at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The day's first technical knockout came in the 145-pound weight class as freshman Mike Latz used a right-left combination to send sophomore Anthony Scordo to the canvas at the 1:06 mark in the second round. It didn't take long for the second TKO to be recorded as junior Paul Derba

The third TKO was recorded in the 165-pound weight class when senior Dennis Cronk defeated junior Matt Crooks at 1:35 of the second round on a left-right combination that sent Crooks' mouthpiece into his mouth, causing him to choke. Junior Doug Maihafer had the day's last TKO at 1:54 of the first round over freshman Mike Sullivan. He will face defending champion Mike Burke, a senior.

In one of the day's better fights, freshman Dan Watzke gained a unanimous decision over sophomore Mike Cray in the 165-pound weight class. Both fighters closed the fight punching it out toe-to-toe, drawing a standing ovation from the crowd.

Sophomore Angelo Perino gained a unanimous decision over freshman Dave Packo. Packo's shoulder popped out in the first round, but after Dr. Les Bodnar looked at it, he allowed the fight to continue.

Sophomore Tony Bonnacci, one of two novice champs in the field, gained a unanimous decision over Mike Dandurand in the 135-pound weight class. Bonnacci meets boxing club co-president Dickie Hillsman, a past runner-up, who was unable to box last year because of injury. Freshman Tom Lezynski, the other novice champ, defeated junior Joe Meagher in the 150-weight class.

Besides Bonnacci in the 135-pound class, senior Jo Jo Luccero, who has two years' experience, might be worth keeping an eye on as he defeated sophomore novice John Klee in an unanimous decision. Luccero knocked Klee down in the third round, but Klee was able to continue after a ten-count.

Sophomore Frank Maneri in the 140-pound weight class was considered one of the better fighters before the bouts began, and he managed to defeat freshman Kevin Emery on a unanimous decision. Maneri now must tackle defending champ senior Mike Martersteck.

Sophomore Kevin Binger was given an excellent chance in the 165-pound weight class (which is guaranteed a new champion), but lost on a split decision to graduate student John Rice. Rice is a student

Swimmers place third in Midwest

Backed by several record-breaking performances, the Notre Dame men's swimming team placed third in the Midwest Invitational this past weekend, held at the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle.

Western Kentucky captured first place in the 11-school event, totaling 566 points. Eastern Illinois was second with 466 points and Notre Dame third with 390.

"The irony of the whole thing," said Head Coach Dennis Stark, "was that Bradley and Illinois State, two teams that had beaten us earlier in dual meets, both finished behind us in the standings at the invitational (Bradley sixth, Illinois State seventh). That shows the depth that we have."

The Irish rewrote half the school's record book, establishing new varsity standards in ten events.

Sophomore Al "Big Nose" Harding set the marks for both the 100-yard (:46.7) and 200-yard (1:42.2) freestyle events. Freshman Tim Bohdan eclipsed the record in the 500-yard freestyle with his time of 4:46.5. Bohdan also set the record in the 100-yard backstroke (:54.4).

Other individual records were broken by seniors Don Casey (4:17.8 in the 400-yard individual medley) and John Willamowski (2:16.1 in the 200-yard breaststroke), junior Glenn Battle (1:59.1 in the 200-yard individual medley) and sophomore Dan Flynn (1:59.8 in the 200-yard Butterfly).

Both the 400 (Harding, Senior Mike Shepardson, and juniors Greg Bohdan and Gary Severyn - 3:09.3) and 800-yard (Harding, Bohdan, senior John Gibbons, and sophomore Tim Jacob-6:57.1) freestyle relay teams also erased the previous marks.

Bell sets new record as Irish finish 12th

Greg Bell won the long jump with a school-record 24-6 jump in pacing the Notre Dame track team to an impressive 12th-place finish in the prestigious IC4A championships at Princeton, N.J., over the weekend. 60 schools participated in the meet.

The meet, which featured some of the best college athletes in the country, required that runners meet qualifying standards just to be able to compete.

Notre Dame was the only school to qualify all three of its relay teams for the finals and the Irish placed in five individual events as well.

"We definitely surprised some people with the team's performance," said seven-year Head Coach Joe Piane. "Notre Dame was one of the few schools that had people in all areas — sprints, relays, etc. The people on the East Coast are very impressed with ND, that's for sure."

Bell wasn't the only Irish record-breaker, however, as Steve Dziabis broke the school record in the 500 meters with a time of 1:02.4. He placed fourth. The time qualified Dziabis for the NCAA Championships in that event. He already is qualified in the 600-yard dash.

Freshman Chuck Constable continued to jump well as he placed fourth in the high jump with a leap of 6-10 1/4. Senior tri-captain Paul Doyle placed fourth in the pole vault with a 16-1 effort. Doyle also placed seventh in the pentathlon.

The Irish distance medley team of senior tri-captain Rick Rogers, junior Jan Kania, senior Tony Hatherly and sophomore Andy Dillon placed seventh with a time of 10:05.

Dillon ran his part of the race, the anchor-mile leg, in a time of 4:10, prompting Piane to comment, "He ran real strong and I'm sure that he's capable of running a lot faster." It was Dillon's first competitive mile of the year.

The Notre Dame two-mile relay team also placed seventh. The crew of Jim Moyar, Tim Macauley, Jim Tyler and Tim Cannon ran the event in 7:43.

The Irish mile relay team also took seventh place in the finals. Senior tri-captain Jacques Eady, freshman Mitch VanEyken, senior Bill Ribera and junior Steve Dziabis combined for a 3:20 mile.

John McCloughan made it to the semi-finals in the high hurdles. Greg Bell made it to the semi-finals of the 60-yard dash, in addition to his record breaking long jump.

Only Jim Moyar, Steve Dziabis and Paul Doyle will compete next weekend. They will be running in the NCAA Indoor Championships at the Pontiac Silverdome in Michigan.

ND netters post 1-2 weekend slate

The Notre Dame men's tennis team returned home Sunday from a grueling weekend at the Wisconsin Quadrangular held at Madison, Wis. The Irish managed one victory and suffered two defeats as they played three matches in a span of 22 hours.

Notre Dame opened the meet against Southern Illinois University on Friday evening and dropped a disappointing 5-4 decision to the Salukis in a contest that was decided by a tiebreaker in the last match.

After the first doubles team of Mark McMahon and Paul Idzik and the second doubles team of John Novatny and Mike Gibbons lost both of their matches, the third doubles team of Jim Falvey and Tom Pratt defeated their opponents to get the Irish back on track.

In the singles matches, No. 1 Mark McMahon and No. 6 Tom Pratt won in straight sets, and captain Tom Hartzell took his match in three sets to tie the Irish 4-4 with the Salukis. The deciding match was the No. 5 singles, which ended with Mike Gibbons dropping a 7-5 tiebreaker in the third set to give Southern Illinois the win.

The Irish had no time to dwell on their heartbreaking loss as they faced a tough Wisconsin team later Friday evening. The match opened with the doubles team of McMahon and Idzik dropping a close contest in three sets, and the second and third doubles teams losing in straight sets.

The singles matches were held on Saturday morning, but only No. 1 McMahon, No. 4 Hartzell and No. 5 Gibbons could manage victories as the Badgers defeated the Irish, 6-3.

Notre Dame ended the meet on a positive note as it rebounded to beat the Iowa Hawkeyes by a score of 7-2. The doubles teams of McMahon-Idzik and Falvey-Pratt scored big wins to put the Irish ahead 2-1. The Irish then dominated the singles matches, winning five of six as No. 1 McMahon and No. 4 Tom Robison earned their victories in straight sets.

Irish Coach Tom Fallon was pleased with his team's weekend performance, despite the two defeats. "Our boys played very well," said Fallon. "They were three good close matches. It was also advantageous to us, because all three of our freshmen got good experience, and that will help us later in the season."

The Irish now embark on their annual trip to Florida over Spring Break, where they will play 10 matches in 10 days. "It'll be pretty much a mixed bag," Fallon said. "We'll play some very good teams like Florida, Jacksonville and South Florida, and then some lesser junior colleges and community colleges."

"But, then again, everybody is good down in Florida. They'll have the advantage of hitting outdoors for a couple of months, and it should be a good test for us."
