Unsanitary conditions reported in food sales

By MARY HIGGINS
News Staff

Conditions in residence hall food sales are "deplorable," according to a report on inspections conducted earlier this month.

The inspections were conducted on Nov. 8 and Nov. 11. In his report to Father John Van Wolvlear, vice president for student affairs, campus Environmental Safety Specialist, Michael McCauslin stated, "Generally... conditions found within the residence hall food sales are deplorable."

Van Wolvlear said because of the University's liability, certain fire hazards and improper sanitation conditions jeopardize the University's insurance policy. Thus, inspections were conducted by McCauslin, Fire Captains Mark Esenwein and Fred Schleiger, and Firefighter Wayne Bishop.

McCauslin listed several problems prevalent in hall food sales including: unsanitary floors, walls, and ceilings; unsafe food storage (i.e. on floor, under sewer lines, etc.); infrequent disposal of garbage; insect and rodent infestations; and excessive fire hazards.

According to McCauslin, Indiana state food laws require any and all operations that sell, serve, or distribute prepared food must be licensed to do so. As a result, should a problem develop relating to the hall food sales, the University would be liable.

"A potential foodborne disease outbreak would wreak untold havoc," said McCauslin.

The report recommends that all food sales be limited to pre-packaged food. This would eliminate the need for dishwashing facilities, most utensils, potentially hazardous food storage problems, and most fire-hazard-related items. Also, all food sales operators are recommended to have some food service knowledge or receive proper training.

This is the first time that hall food sales have been inspected. Student managers were not forewarned and will not be in the event of future inspections.

Last night's showing of "The Day After" on ABC-TV the United States. The movie depicted a nuclear attack was watched by many Notre Dame students and is expected to spark debate on nuclear weapons throughout Lawrence.

Controversial TV show raises questions about nuclear war

Associated Press

After weeks of hot debate, TV viewers yesterday saw for themselves "The Day After," and Secretary of State George Shultz said the ABC movie depicting a nuclear attack on Kansas City is "not the future at all."

"The film is a vivid and dramatic portrayal of the fact that nuclear war is simply not acceptable," Shultz said in an interview on ABC immediately following the broadcast. The policy of the United States "for decades now," has been "based on the idea that we simply do not accept a nuclear war, and we've been successful in preventing it."

The only reason the United States has nuclear weapons, Shultz added, "is to see to it that they aren't used." And he said the destructive capability of the U.S. nuclear arsenal has been reduced by 70 percent since the 1960s.

"In addition to having this policy of balance and deterrent, we have a policy of reduction," he said. "In President Reagan's efforts to deal with this problem, reduction of nuclear weapons has been at the top of its list."

Many of the expected 75 million viewers gathered in churches and homes to watch "The Day After," a $7 million, 2-1/2-hour movie that shows residents of the Kansas City area dying instantly by irradiation, others in nearby Lawrence, Kan., dying slowly by radiation poisoning, and a resulting society ruled by rifles and fear.

ABC-TV in New York said it received 1,075 telephone calls immediately after the broadcast. ABC spokesman David Horowitz said 662 callers "expressed support" for the broadcast, 393 gave "negative views," and the remainder asked for information about followup programs.

Psychiatrists set up hot lines to help viewers handle the specter of nuclear war. Anti-nuclear groups scheduled candlelight vigils in Kansas City and Lawrence after the movie, and planned rallies and public meetings in dozens of cities throughout the week.

Many teachers planned to discuss the show and feelings about nuclear war with their classes this morning.

ABC executives called it "the most important movie we or anyone else have ever made" and it came against the backdrop of a debate in Europe over whether U.S. nuclear missiles should be stationed in West Germany.

The movie "points out a crying need for a renewed emphasis on civil defense," said Patrick Breheny, regional director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Kansas City. He also said free government information on disaster planning can be obtained by writing FEMA.

In the movie, a Missouri farm family that hides out in the basement for several weeks seems to avoid much of the radiation from the nuclear strike on Kansas City. However, at the end of the movie, a message on the screen says the results of a full nuclear strike would likely be much worse than those depicted in "The Day After."

After seeing the film, Dr. Howard Bauchner, a staff pediatrician at Boston City Hospital, said he was "struck by what would be everyone's impotence, especially medicine, after the event."

About 500 residents of Lawrence lit candles for peace near a hilltop war memorial last night after watching the movie in which their hometown is devastated by nuclear holocaust.

"I do not want this film to be a preview of coming attractions," Lawrence Mayor David Longhurst told the crowd that had just seen ABC-TV's "The Day After."

"This is still the day before," he said.

The ceremony was sponsored by Let Lawrence Live, peace group organized around the film that depicts a nuclear attack and its aftermath in this college community of 53,000 in northeast Kansas.

"We saw our community destroyed this evening," Longhurst said. "We saw all of the nightmares come true. We got a glimpse at what is really at stake in a nuclear war."

Longhurst called for a meeting between U.S. and Soviet leaders on the nuclear arms race, and he said it was "our ultimate duty" to prevent nuclear war.

The ceremony took place beneath a full moon at a flagpole on a hillside just below the Memorial Campanile, a 120-foot-tall bell tower on the University of Kansas campus that honors alumni who died in World War II.

Application deadline approaches for jobs

By GWEN TADDONIO
News Staff

The Notre Dame Alumni Association is offering summer job placement opportunities for 1984, but the Nov. 30 application deadline is fast approaching.

Tim Truesdell, assistant director of the Alumni Association, corrected several misconceptions students have when applying. "This (the application) does not always guarantee the applicant a job, but establishes communication between the student and city alumni club presidents," he said.

After a student has applied, alumni officers supply him or her with information needed to get in touch with specific club presidents of major cities. From that point on, it is the student's responsibility to pursue the job opportunity.

Truesdell emphasized the program is designed mainly to help college students meet rising costs of education rather than to provide a job corresponding to the student's career interests. "Many students think they will be able to find a job in line with their major. Most of the time, this is not the case," he said.

Last year, one-third of the applicants found part-time employment. Truesdell stated that had the economic situation been more favorable, more applicants would have found jobs.

The application asks for the student's occupational goals, two club location preferences, travel limitations, and dates available for employment. The applicant must also provide three names of faculty members for reference and general educational background. Forms are available in the Alumni office and should be typed and returned by Nov. 30.

The Student-Alumni Relations Group provided students with another opportunity to enter the job market with a Career Orientation Day on Nov. 10. Forty juniors and seniors travelled to Indianapolis for this event.

Each student was assigned a Notre Dame alumnus from the Indianapolis area working in a career of interest to the student. Participants spent the day touring corporations, asking questions, and getting a feel for their career interests. At an Alumni Club dinner that evening, students had the opportunity to discuss informally with their hosts the events of the day.

Overall, Truesdell described the day as a major success. Long range deals are being exchanged for future trips to other cities including Chicago and Detroit.

In Brief

Two teen-agers last seen hunting near the site of an enormous dynamite blast in Pleasant Hill, Iowa remained missing yesterday, and authorities theorized they may have fired shots that set off the blast felt up to 45 miles away. However, Polk County Sheriff's Deputy Harold Strasbourg emphasized that that was just a theory and that investigators were still seeking the cause of the explosion in a bunker containing 12 tons of dynamite. Authorities had not released the names of the missing youths. Deputy Mark Breneman said if anyone was near the explosion, in an industrial part of this suburb on the east side of Des Moines "the chances of survival are slim." No other injuries were reported, but the explosion, at about 4:30 p.m. Saturday, was felt for miles around and left a crater 30 feet deep and 100 feet across. — AP

High winds, rain and what citizens described as a funnel cloud ripped through the Tippecanoe Mall in Lafayette, Ind. yesterday, heavily damaging two stores and several homes and apartment buildings. No serious injuries were reported. Lafayette Police Lt. Gene Reed said three funnel clouds were reported sited as the bad weather moved through the west central Indiana city at about 8:30 a.m. "The wind only appeared to last for 30 to 35 minutes. It was wind and rain damage," said Lafayette Sgt. Edward Moser. "Several citizens spotted a funnel cloud." Moser said there was only reported injury, a man who was struck by debris. He was treated and released at an area hospital, Moser said. — AP

Iran launched a major assault against Iraqi positions in the Kurdish mountains in the northern battlefield, but Iraq claimed a "great victory" yesterday, saying its forces killed nearly 11,000 Iranians. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said heavy battles were still raging yesterday "after the successful operation" southwest of the Iraqi border town of Penjwin. It said an Iraqi battalion and four companies were destroyed. That could mean a total force of around 2,000 soldiers. A war communique broadcast by Iraq's Baghdad radio said that after the "containment and final crushing" of the Iranian attackers, the fighting was confined to artillery exchanges. Iraqi warplanes and helicopter gunships mounted raids both in the area of the offensive and deep inside Iran Saturday and yesterday, the broadcast said. It claimed 10,984 Iranian soldiers were killed and a large number were wounded or captured along with a large quantity of usable weapons. — AP

About 4 million Americans will be traveling by airplane, train or bus this Thanksgiving weekend, according to the Travel Industry Association of America. That will make the Nov. 23-27 period the busiest weekend of the year for scheduled transportation, the industry group said in a news release. According to the association, more than 2.5 million people will use the intercity bus system, 1.5 million will take commercial airline flights, and at least 100,000 will ride by train. Spokesmen for various transportation companies advised those planning to travel over the holiday weekend to make reservations if possible and to allow extra time to make sure they catch their trains or buses. — AP

Violence flared in impoverished Oaxaca state, Mexico as voters cast ballots in special elections yesterday following a bitter campaign between communists and Mexico's governing Institutional Revolutionary Party. In Magalena Tequisistlan, the mayor said two men and a woman were shot to death and 20 people were wounded in a clash between factions of the Institutional Revolutionary Party — PRI. Mayor Ariel Zarate Cabrera said some 1,200 people were marching in support of Jesus Montero Toledano who had wanted to represent the party in the mayoral election. When they approached a polling place, they were met by 30 armed men who fired into the crowd, Zarate said. An estimated one million voters across the southern state went to the polls to elect 570 mayors, with the PRI expected to win most of the races. Local officials said they did not expect any results to be announced until this afternoon, and it would probably take a week to compile official results. — AP

Andropov sends letter to Germans

Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov sent a letter to Chancellor Helmut Kohl, a spokesman for Kohl said yesterday, the eve of a debate on the deployment of NATO nuclear missiles in West Germany.

Meanwhile, police reinforced security in the government district to discourage violence by anti-missile activists, and said they will ring the Parliament building today during the debate on an issue that has divided the country.

Chancellery spokesman Alexander Allardt declined to reveal what the letter from Andropov said. But the conservative Hamburg newspaper Bild Am Sonntag said the Soviet president warned that the West German government must be prepared to "take the consequences" if it goes through with the missile deployment.

The first battery of nine Pershing 2 missiles could be placed in West Germany as early as Wednesday.

The letter was delivered to the chancellery Friday evening by Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Semyonov, Allardt said.

Kohl wrote to Andropov Oct. 29 to ask that the Soviets make a new proposal at the Geneva arms talks on medium-range missiles.

Kohl will be the first speaker in the Parliament debate today. He is a staunch supporter of the deployment and his governing coalition has a 58-seat majority in Parliament, so the missile plan is expected to win approval. The chancellor says the parliament's 1981 approval was sufficient and this new vote — expected tomorrow — is not necessary.

The Parliament debate is expected to be heated, particularly after the Social Democrats' rejection of the missiles.

Change in party rules considered successful

By ERIK HICKEY
News Staff

Several hall presidents have expressed satisfaction with the results of the new Hall Presidents Council policy to charge women $1 at parties in men's dorms.

The dollar fee is intended to improve the usually sparse fare of snacks and non-alcoholic beverages provided at dorm parties. The resolution also ensures the privacy of parties by requiring all men to be on a guest list and every person admitted to show a Notre Dame or Saint Mary's ID.

Since the passage of the resolution both Zahm and Keenan Halls have held in-hall parties and enforced the $1 charge. Keenan Hall Social Commissioner Mark Greenwood estimated approximately $120 was collected from women at the last Keenan party. Greenwood said the money will be used to reduce men's expenses and to insure an ample supply of soft drinks and snacks at future Keenan parties.

According to Bob Johnson, Zahm Hall president, resolution guidelines were followed "to the letter" at the Zahm party, but the atmosphere at the party did not suffer.

Johnson observed, "Some girls turned away at first, but then they would stop and look back, and decide to pay." He adds that for the most part women seem to think the resolution is a good idea.

Walsh Hall President Karen Kos-tecky would disagree. While she herself is in favor of the resolution, she said many girls only want to talk to a few friends and don't actually drink while at parties. "I wouldn't want to pay a dollar for every party (if attending more than one)," she said, adding that a dollar is only a minor factor in deciding whether or not to attend more than one party.

Farley Hall President Kelly Fitzgerald agreed the $1 charge is only a minor deterrent to party hopping, but explained the resolution has not been in effect long enough to see any definite results.

All hall representatives contacted expressed support for the resolution, and most made note of the improved quality and better atmosphere of parties held since the resolution was enacted.

Israeli plane downed during retaliatory raid

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Swarms of Israeli fighter-jets rocketed and strafed positions in the Syrian-held mountains east of Beirut in a retaliatory raid yesterday, and ground gunners shot down at least one of the planes.

The fighters came sweeping in from the Mediterranean, roared low over Beirut and hurtled east starting at 2 p.m. (7 a.m. EST). They made at least a dozen runs over the capital and the mountains.

State radio said as many as 18 warplanes struck a half-dozen villages in the 45-minute attack, the third Israeli retaliatory strike this month against targets in Syrian-held parts of Lebanon.

Syria claimed two Israeli planes were downed, but the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv reported the loss of only one. It said the plane was shot down by ground gunners and the pilot parachuted to safety.

Witnesses in Beirut saw one plane suddenly slow, sway and plunge, crashing in flames. They said it was impossible to determine what hit the plane.

The pilot parachuted into an area held by the Lebanese army and was later picked up by an Israeli air force helicopter, the Israeli military command announced.

The plane crashed in the Sfeir neighborhood about a half-mile from the Beirut airport, headquarters for the the 1,800-man U.S. Marine contingent of the multinational force patrolling the capital.

There was no official word on casualties in the bombings, but a statement from the Syrian-backed Druse militia said Israeli bombs killed at least two civilians and wounded eight in the Druse-controlled town of Sofar. It gave no other details.

Reagan record in Congress mixed

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan didn't get everything he wanted from Congress this year, but he continued his three-year string of victories in holding down — if not cutting — federal spending.

The lawmakers did vote to spend about $11 billion on domestic programs Reagan said he didn't want, and they cut a like amount from the money he requested to continue the nation's defense buildup. But when measured against administration expectations at the start of the session, Reagan considered the results quite satisfactory.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, reviewing the final flurry of legislation after Congress adjourned Friday night, said the administration was generally pleased with the outcome.

"The best evidence is we're not vetoing anything," Fitzwater said. "We went in thinking there would be at least four or five (spending bills) we couldn't accept."

Reagan's starkest defeats were in domestic social policy, where liberal and many moderate members of Congress lined up against the president's conservative ideology. A constitutional amendment to permit prayers in public schools never even got within range of passage, and the Republican-controlled Senate rejected Reagan's plan to provide private school tuition tax credits. An administration plan to give poor families vouchers that would help them pay private-school tuition never went anywhere either.

The Senate also voted down a proposed amendment to ban abortions, but the House and Senate agreed to prohibit federally financed health insurance programs from paying for them.

Reagan boasted about passage of revisions in Medicare that he predicts will save $20 billion in hospital payments during the next five years. But missing from the final measure were his proposals to tax private health insurance benefits as income and give Medicare recipients the option of buying their own insurance with federal vouchers.

Congress invoked the War

Powers Act for the first time to restrain a president's power to send troops into action on his own, but in doing so it gave Reagan permission to keep Marines in Lebanon for 18 months.

As the year began, Reagan faced dire predictions that the Democrats, whose House majority had been reinforced by 26 new members elected in 1982, could finally halt the Reagan juggernaut that had dominated the 97th Congress. Plans were laid to block the third year of the three-year, 25 percent income tax cut Reagan had won early on, and substantial tax increases were contemplated to cut into the huge deficit deplored by members of both parties.

The president resolved to veto any tax increase and vowed he would not permit a resumption of the high spending levels of earlier years. Administration concerns were borne out by early defeats in both the House and Senate, which bolted from Reagan's budget requests and set their own guidelines calling for new taxes and only modest spending cuts.

Cuban refuses to leave until material returned

Associated Press

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada — The lone Cuban diplomat on Grenada says he's staying put until Cuba recovers $2 million in equipment used to construct the airport the Reagan administration contends was becoming a Cuban and Soviet military base.

"It is only right," says Gaston Diaz, who remains in the Cuban Embassy in St. George's with an aide, Pablo Mora. "I will not leave until I get a positive response."

"It's paradoxical and ironic that the country that accused us of building the airport for military purposes has now turned it into a military base," Diaz said during an interview at the embassy.

He said Cuba spent more than $35 million on construction and equipment for Point Salines airport, about a dozen miles south of St. George's, the capital.

The Charge d'Affaires wants the United States and Grenada to return vehicles, heavy equipment and machinery the Cubans were using to build it.

Diaz also insists on the return of a Cubana Airlines plane parked at Pearls Airport, Grenada's only commercial airstrip.

The diplomat and his aide say they are the only Cubans left of 784 who were on Grenada when the United States and Caribbean forces invaded the island Oct. 25. U.S. Army Gen. John Farris has said he believes 12 to 30 Cubans are hiding out in the hills or on Grenada's tiny out-islands.

The Cubans on Grenada when the invasion occurred were construction workers at the airport project and soldiers who Diaz said advised Prime Minister Maurice Bishop or were "engineering and technical experts."

Bishop, a Marxist and staunch supporter of Cuban President Fidel Castro, was killed Oct. 19 after a military junta seized power in a power struggle in his ruling socialist party. The invasion toppled the junta, and the occupying forces ordered captured Cubans sent home.

After the invasion, Grenada's governor general, Sir Paul Scoon, asked Cuba to reduce its diplomatic force to one person.

Diaz, 35, took charge of the embassy after the evacuation of Ambassador Julian Rizo and helped oversee the return of the bodies of Cubans killed during the invasion.

Diaz denied U.S. contentions that the Port Salines airport was going to be used by Soviet and Cuban warplanes. Like Bishop, he insisted that the facility, with its 9,000-foot-long runway, would allow jumbo jets to land on Grenada and bring much-needed tourism to the 133-square-mile island, which bases its economy on nutmeg, cocoa and bananas.

The airport "would have been finished on time, in March of next year," Diaz said.

Reflections on service in Arizona

Holy Cross Associates is a post-graduate volunteer service program that is operated under the auspices of, and run in affiliation with, the Holy Cross order religious. The HCA program attempts to integrate into social service an added dimension often lacking in secular volunteer programs, that of spirituality.

Community living and a simple lifestyle form an important part of the experience. Each HCA group is fortunate to have in its area a local Holy Cross religious community that helps provide the group with a sense of support, assistance and guidance.

The challenge that awaits a Holy Cross associate is the challenge to grow in the knowledge of oneself and of others. It is the challenge to seek in one's life the realization of the Christian ideal within a culture full of violence and injustice. It is the challenge to join, in such a world, our ideas with action, in order to reconcile the rich with the poor, the Church with the world, and faith with reason.

The call is a difficult one, for it is an ongoing struggle to make our Christian faith a real part of our daily lives, and yet to be true witnesses to the message of Christ, it is something that we must strive to do.

Awareness is a key to the struggle; until I came out to Arizona with the program I never really gave much thought to what life was like as a migrant farmworker or what it was like trying to support a family at a wage far below the poverty level.

I had never seen transients or street people before, and now I am working with them every day at an emergency shelter in downtown Phoenix. I never knew what life was like for the poorest of the poor.

The homeless people that I am working with at the shelter are each wounded in some way; the spiritual, physical and mental scars run deep. These people have been systematically and categorically oppressed throughout their lives by the extant social structure, and their souls are filled with anger and hate, with fear, and a deep, deep loneliness. They are the helpless, crying out for help, and getting no answers.

Notre Dame and home seem so far away in the face of such experiential learning. I am being challenged each day to try to understand what all this means with respect to my faith and how I will live my life as a doctor, my intended career.

It has been almost three months now that I have been out here, and the adjustment process has at times been full of very difficult educational experiences, however there have been many pleasant and enjoyable experiences also.

We have the household chores — cleaning, cooking, shopping and repair and maintenance — divided up with reasonable equity. After four years of revelling in the squalor of empty-beer-can-laden floors in Dillon, I guess that it is part of my responsibility as a graduate to start picking up after myself.

We have a house meeting once a week to discuss community business, to air out any problems we have been having, and to discuss any other topics that might affect the community. Every Tuesday night we have Father Bill Dorwart over to the house for dinner and Mass. It is a good time for us to get together in a structured way so we might strengthen our bonds as a community and get to know each other better.

We also usually have a discussion on a previously agreed upon subject. The topics generally are about social concerns or thoughts on the readings at Mass, or maybe just on how work has been going and things we have been dealing with.

The experience of this year will change me in many ways. I will not be the same person I was before the year. I will have new perspectives and a new and more critical way of looking at things. I will be tested and strengthened by experience, and with firm trust in God, I will be able to integrate them into my lifestyle and my profession.

Dear Editor:

Can it be true? Is this really happening? First, there was Gerry Faust as head coach of a major (?) college football team: a little hard to accept at first, but after his sparkling record who could deny the wisdom in that move. Then there was the "new" pre-registration system that will cut down on lines in January. I would much rather stand in line and wait now while missing classes than wait in line in January when there's nothing to do.

And now this: THE DRY CAMPUS. I personally think it would be the best move the University could make. Who needs a social life anyway. I thought Paraguayan night at the dining halls was bad.

Let's face some facts. One, if you think the University is only considering the dry campus,

I have some prime beach property in Beirut you might be interested in. The decision has already been made and no matter how many letters like this one are written, it will not be changed.

Two, the social life here is already comparable to the social life of a Tibetan monastery. Without alcohol, they might as well put the closed signs out at ten o'clock. Students will go off campus for a good time, and we all know the advantages of a downtown South Bend social life.

So what's to be done? Don't ask me, I'm only a lowly student. Perhaps conferring with the faculty will help, since they are to be asked their opinion. Personally, I am in favor of violent protest with riots and burnings. Desperate situations call for desperate measures. Let's start with the office of the assistant to the executive vice-president of the University.

In all reality though, something must be done. If not, the void which we call Notre Dame will become an abyss.

Kiel articles

Dear Editor:

The Epic of Blair Kiel... a two-part series recently printed by the The Observer, and written by that aspiring sportswriter, Louis Somogyi, will soon be turned into a "made for television series" starring O.J. Simpson as Blair Kiel and Victoria Principal as the besieged Coach Faust! And so it goes.

Hasn't The Observer printed enough heartless comments and shallow postmortems on Notre Dame football? Must we continue to put up with headlines that speak of "legends that turned out to be just nice guys" and "non-great quarterbacks?" (By the way, check your dictionary, I think you've just invented a new word. Let me be the first to congratulate you!)

The pressure that Blair Kiel was exposed to was tremendous for a student his age. I wouldn't wish it on anyone. As fellow students, you above all should treat him with the respect and dignity that he deserves. Journalism carries heavy responsibilities; I believe that your sports staff has fallen short of those responsibilities.

In your words Mr. Somogyi, "Kiel leaves the legacy which shows that the mark of a winner extends far beyond what the stadium scoreboard or stat sheet says." Fine words but perhaps if you had used them as your thesis statement versus the last paragraph in a two part series, I would have granted your opinions slightly more respect.

Campus comments: If Notre Dame went dry, would you move off-campus?

No, because the bars are always open to people who are 21, and people on campus would still have parties anyway. But I don't think the University should take the privilege of responsible drinking away from us.

Susan de Carvalho

No, I wouldn't because the campus is the center of things at Notre Dame.

Jeff Divney

No, I would wait to see how strictly it would be enforced.

No. For one thing, I don't drink. And anyway, I came to college to learn, not to drink.

If campus went dry, the administration would probably compound the drinking issue, not eliminate it. My parents would object to my living off-campus, not to mention the fact that off-campus housing is limited.

Miss Manners

The proper letter after an 18-year visit

by Judith Martin

Knowing what Miss Manners thinks of people who can spend a weekend in someone else's house and not write a letter there afterward, you can imagine what she thinks of those who spend 17 or 18 years in the same house and then go off to college and never write.

Although the offense is greater, the penalty is less because the student is going to be invited back. Parents can be as offended as anyone with a display of bad manners but they lack the recourse of saying, "You can tell what kind of people be must come from."

Miss Manners is not suggesting that a thank you note is needed for the simple task of child-rearing. Nor is she suggesting that it is necessary to send one's parents a running commentary of everything that happens to a teen-ager away from home — they deserve better than that.

But no child should be allowed to depart his native city for school without an understanding with his parents about how often they expect bulletins. Miss Manners recommends that a sizable percentage of these be in the form of letters, rather than collect calls, not only because of the expense but to give the parents a chance to see if the education is taking. (It is not, however, up to them to issue grades. Parents who return letters with spelling mistakes circled do not deserve to get any.)

Every once in a while, each child is expected to write a letter that contains no mention of money or services he would like to receive from home. And the ones that do must never open with these requests.

It is not necessary to trouble parents with the new eating habits and hours a child tries out on his first extended sojourn away from home. However, if there are natural consequences, the child is obligated to notify the parents before the college infirmary does.

Miss Manners is sympathetic with the wish of every devoted son and daughter to help parents live happily in a fool's paradise. Nevertheless, unconcealable trouble is best stated first by the student — with the opening of "Don't worry, but . . ." that stops every parent's heart — before the dean, their friends who have children in the same class, or the evening news tells them what the matter is.

Surprisingly, there are also students who neglect to inform their parents of the approach of prizes and honors. That is not only inconsiderate, but it seems to contradict the very achievement involved. Nobody with any brains would neglect to report success where it is most appreciated.

A student is required to invite parents to all ceremonies or parents' days, and it is no good saying that the student has made the decision not to attend. The choice is the parents'. A student who really wants to avoid this writes, "I'll feel terrible if you don't stay with me. I'll arrange to borrow sleeping bags for you, and I hope the noise won't bother you."

School holidays are presumed to be for the expressed purpose of visiting home. That doesn't mean that one always has to go home, of course — only that failure to do so must be properly and regretfully excused.

A model letter from a child who is not going home is: "I've been looking forward to seeing you so much that I hate to have to wait until Christmas. But it does seem silly to have you spend all that money for just four days, when most of it would be used-up traveling, anyway. So I thought, since I've been studying so much that I have neglected getting any exercise, I'd just do a little skiing near here, and then get back to work. I certainly will miss having Thanksgiving dinner — which I would have missed, anyway, since I can't get away until Thursday — and I'll be thinking of you then."

Dear Miss Manners — Please advise on the proper way to pay for a lunch or show gratitude when one asks his boss to lunch. Supervisors here usually pay for lunch no matter who invites.

Gentle Reader — Reach for the check saying, "No, no, this is purely social — I just thought it would be fun to have lunch with you." The boss will be so startled after that, that it doesn't matter who finally ends up with the check.

Dear Miss Manners — I am 7 feet tall. This is the source of some difficulty, as everywhere I go I am accosted by imbeciles demanding to know how tall I am.

Perfect strangers then name every near or distant relative or acquaintance whom they consider tall: "I've got an uncle who is 6 foot 2, and I thought be was tall! But you're really tall."

Gentle Reader — The behavior of people who feel compelled to comment on obvious physical characteristics is, as you say, imbecilic, and Miss Manners trusts that you scrupulously refrain from making such observations when you meet twins, redheads, very short people — and, indeed, anyone at all.

You may not be rude in response but Miss Manners will allow you to say, "I really don't know — I haven't measured myself for some months," if you do so pleasantly.

Judith Martin's "Miss Manners' Guide to Excruciatingly Correct Behavior" (Atheneum) is now available for etiquette emergency consultation.

Thanksgiving adventures

by Chris Fraser
features columnist

As I'm sure you all know, Thursday is Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving is known as a time for food, a time for football, and most especially, a time for family. However, due to logistical problems, many Notre Dame students are forced to spend this holiday at someplace other than home (or even Grandma's house). Seniors like myself have long since adjusted to this inconvenience. For many freshmen, on the other hand, this first Thanksgiving spent in foreign surroundings can be a traumatic occasion.

On this topic I speak from experience. I remember my first Thanksgiving away from home not because it proved to be a particularly depressing or momentous happening but because it turned into something of a wacky adventure. Allow me to explain.

Since none of us would be able to make it home, I and three of my friends, Joe, John and Karl, considered ourselves fortunate because we would be able to escape the clutches of South Bend for a few days. That's because Joe's aunt in Indianapolis was kind enough to invite us all down to share their turkey and trimmings. Surely, we needed a few last days of relaxation before that dreadful first set of finals about which we were all being warned.

All we needed, then, was a mode of transportation to get us down to Indy. Four of us, we figured, would never be able to get a ride together so we came up with the idea of renting a car. We were, after all, 18 year old adults who could travel around the country in adult ways. Unfortunately, that line of reasoning did not sit well with the major rental car companies all of whom wanted 21 year olds with major credit cards. But just as we began to ponder dining hall turkey, we stumbled upon a company that would rent us a car. Pacific Rent-a-Car was its name and we found it through an ad in The Observer. It seemed a little strange that they had a long distance phone number, but they said to call collect. So we did. Joe was given the job to make the call.

"We'd like to rent a car for Wednesday through Friday," Joe said in his deepest, most mature voice.

"Ask if we need a credit card," said I.

"Ask if we have to be 21," joined in Karl. So Joe asked and much to our surprise, we needed neither. All we did need was $18 a day plus a hundred dollar deposit for which we could write a check. Certainly, that was no problem. As freshman we loved to write checks.

"Where can we pick up the car?" asked Joe.

"The airport," they told him. We were all set and I must admit we were quite excited about this, our first college roadtrip.

When Wednesday rolled around, we scrounged up a ride to the airport and off we went. We pulled up to Michiana Regional and sent Joe in to get the car. Out he came in five minutes but with no keys.

"No one knows where Pacific Rent-a-Car is," he said.

"It's got to be around here somewhere," I reasoned.

"Maybe it's just not in the terminal," suggested John.

"Wait, I've still got the ad here," said Karl, "Give'em a call." So we threw Joe the ad and a dime. Can't he do anything right we thought. Another five minutes and back came Joe.

"They said it was right next to Dollar Rent-a-Car and that cop said Dollar Rent-a-Car is down in those buildings over there. So we drove down a few hundred yards to a small cluster of structures surrounded by a bunch of private planes. There, we found Dollar Rent-a-Car.

"It must be in there, go check it out Joe," one of us ordered. Joe frowned but went. He was stuck with the legwork because he had made the reservations. This time, he emerged in but a minute, again with no keys.

"They've never even heard of Pacific Rent-a-Car," he moaned. We were beginning to get a bit nervous but we were grown college students and we were not about to panic — just yet.

"Call them up again," suggested

Karl. Having lost some confidence in Joe, we all gathered around the phone and watched him make the collect call. He proceeded to identify himself in a less than pleasant tone and he explained our wanderings through the airport. I could just imagine us all as dupes in a Hertz commercial wildly running around while O.J. Simpson cautioned, "Does this happen to you when you rent a car?" Anyway, we heard Joe getting the same directions from these Pacific clowns and we were thoroughly confused.

"Wait," said John, "maybe we're at the wrong airport." Obviously, none of us were familiar with the South Bend area.

"What airport are you at anyway?" inquired Joe who was beginning to lose his patience. We were all hunched around the phone and heard the response.

"L.A.X.," they said. Ah, we were at the wrong airport but we remained unenlightened.

"L.A.X., hmmm . . . well, we're at Michiana Regional, where is L.A.X.?" questioned Joe. Finally, this whole affair would be resolved.

"L.A.X.!" they cried, "you know, L.A. as in Los Angeles, Los Angeles International Airport!"

"Oh . . . um, I'd like to cancel that reservation," Joe muttered.

We were all in something of a state of shock but soon we were able to sort out the pieces and put the puzzle together. Clearly, this explained the long distance phone call and I knew I'd recognized that 213 area code from somewhere. Why would they advertise in The Observer? Well, because the USC-Notre Dame game was to be played out there of course. We double-checked the ad and it said nothing specifically about picking the car up in Los Angeles. I suppose they thought it was pretty obvious what with Pacific Rent-a-car and that 213 area code. But remember, we were only freshmen.

As an epilogue, I should note that we were resourceful enough to get a last minute car through Ugly Duckling Rent-a-Car. We arrived in Indianapolis, weary and shell-shocked, about five hours late. The turkey, by the way, was delicious.

March in protest of the Bomb

by Kathy Lawyer
guest features writer

Driving along the Ohio Turnpike at 4 a.m., listening to The Clash, it was as though we were returning to Notre Dame from mid-semester break. However, Mike Brennan, John Murphy, Bridget Sullivan and myself were not coming back from break, we were returning from the Nov. 12 march in Washington D.C. The purpose of the march was primarily to protest the nuclear arms buildup and the intervention of the U.S. in Grenada and El Salvador.

Why did I drive 24 hours in one weekend to walk all day with 50,000 other people? I went for the purpose of protesting the existence of nuclear weapons. I agree with the Catholic Bishops' recent pastoral letter which states that, "nuclear war threatens the existence of our planet." One can readily see the Catholic Bishops are justified in this view.

The Pershing II missiles that are soon to be placed in West Germany

(the 1962 Cuban missile crisis in reverse) can reach the Soviet Union within six minutes after deployment. It takes longer than six minutes to discover computer launching errors. There were 155 such errors in 1982. The Russians currently threaten to put their missiles on a launch-on warning system. This would then leave our fate, in the event of an error, to Russian computers. It has been stated that the Russian computers are not consistently reliable.

For myself, the existence of nuclear weapons is sinful. The Trident submarine can create an inferno many times more destructive than the ovens of Auschwitz. Should a nuclear war begin, "I do not want to agonize, 'it is now too late.' Jesus said, 'Blessed are the peacemakers,' not the peacelovers. Soldiers have risked much in war. What are we willing to risk for peace?"

I also went to the march to protest the actions of the U.S. in Grenada and El Salvador. I agree with the Catholic Bishops when they state that, "the human person is the clearest reflection of God's presence in the world." This statement refers to every person — including the ones that live in Cuba, Grenada, Russia, El Salvador and Nicaragua. I do not believe in condoning the killing of God's people. Moreover, our killings of persons in Grenada, El Salvador and other countries are a breeding ground for nuclear suicide.

Perhaps it was the avoidance of violence between our group and a protesting rally of Viet Nam veterans when members of our march placed themselves between the opposing groups and held hands in a non-violent way. Perhaps it was the joking between some police and protestors about police overtime pay. Regardless of the reason, while the impact of this first-of-its-kind protest on public opinion cannot yet be assessed, its impact on individuals was evident.

The age of the dinosaurs returns at the Moreau Galleries

by Margaret McCabe
features staff writer

Who says dinosaurs are extinct? Obviously, they haven't been to Moreau Hall at Saint Mary's lately to see how Keevie McCarthy has managed to bring back a little bit of The Mesozoic Era.

According to Keevie, a senior art major, she woke up one February morning and, "wanted to do something really big." Well, six months, 50 yards of chicken wire, and 60 pounds of flour later, big is exactly what Keevie had. "Bruno," named by those around who watched him come to life, is a 15 foot long and seven foot tall papier-mache dinosaur.

Some of you may have seen Bruno displayed in the lobby of O'Laughlin Auditorium during the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre's production of "The Skin of Our Teeth."

Besides her hopes of creating something big, Keevie wanted her work of art to "generate enthusiasm in people and spark interests and ideas." Bruno clearly demonstrates Keevie's determination to do just that. The dinosaur was not made as an art class project, but was an independent undertaking. Thus, besides consuming a great deal of her spare time, Bruno consumed approximately $100 of Keevie's spare money.

This sum covered the cost of wire, flour, lacquer sanding sealer, and a gold dust powder that gives Bruno his color. The paper that was used is the brown type found on rolls in public bathrooms. This was the only material used that didn't require funds as it was graciously supplied by the Ladies' room at Moreau.

Keevie did not refer to books or pictures in making Bruno, only her imagination. She started her project in a dark, damp, quiet crawl space in Moreau. According to Keevie, "The atmosphere was conducive to creating a creature from the past."

In favorable weather, Keevie worked on Bruno outside and soon discovered that there may be a market for papier-mache dinosaurs. One passer-by wanted to put Bruno on top of his house for a graduation party. Another wanted to mount the dinosaur on top of his car. (It could be fun at tailgaters.)

With many new projects under way now and graduate school in her future, Keevie is looking for a home for Bruno. There is a possibility he will be donated to a local park. In this case, Keevie would add a coat of plastic sealer to make Bruno weather resistant. If not, Keevie may sell her dinosaur, as is, to anyone out there who is looking for a little, or rather, a big conversation piece for his or her dorm room.

'Made in Italy' shown at SMC

Special to The Observer

The works of Giuseppe Gattuso Lomonte, professor of printmaking at the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence, Italy, and the director of the Santa Reparata Graphic Arts Center in Florence, are on display in the Hammes Gallery at Saint Mary's College from now until Dec. 15.

The exhibit, entitled "Giuseppe Gattuso Lomonte: Made in Italy," will include etchings and lithographs and some studies, drawings and photographs of his present work in sculpture.

A native of Toretta in Sicily, Gattuso Lomonte has exhibited steadily throughout Italy, Europe and the United States since 1960. His imagery deals with primeval elements of childhood myths and is approached with the same childlike simplicity.

A graduate of the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence, Gattuso Lomonte received a prize from the West German government at the III Biennial International of Graphic Art at Palazzo Strozzi in Florence and was awarded first prize for the best sculpture at the XI Rassegna Arti Visive at Campi Bixenzio.

The Saint Mary's galleries are open from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. The galleries are closed on Saturday, but are open from 1 to 3 p.m. on Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Since 1970, Gattuso Lomonte has concentrated on sculpture. He has worked with clay, plaster, wood and metal. He often has directly painted, drawn or scratched on the sculpture to conform to his imagery. His approach in printmaking has the same directness.

A gift of history

Professor A.L. Gabriel, director emeritus of the University's Medieval Institute, holds the first of 10 incunabula he is donating to the Notre Dame Memorial Library. Incunabula are books published before 1500, and Gabriel's initial gift volume contains the Sunday sermons on the Gospels preached by Dinkesbuhl, a teacher at the University of Vienna, published in 1496 in Strassburg, France. A collector of rare books, Gabriel has been instrumental in building up Library's holdings in medieval studies.

forget is the last 13 minutes of the game in which it saw its 12-point lead quickly disappear as the defense, which had been very effective for three quarters, started to collapse. The key play was a dropped interception by Chris Brown that fell into the hands of Falcon wide receiver Mike Kirby.

Following the touchdown and a missed extra point by Air Force kicker Sean Pavlich, Irish kick returner Alonzo Jefferson returned the kick-off 91 yards for the score. However, the exciting run was called back because of a clipping penalty.

The Falcons began what proved to be the winning drive with 6:52 left on the clock and the endzone 74 yards away. On the second play of the drive, Brown took the handoff, went up the middle, cut to the left sideline, broke a tackle, caused one cornerback to slip, and picked up 42 of his 148 yards.

The run got Air Force to the Notre Dame 34-yard line. From there, the Falcons bulled the ball up the middle of a suddenly porous Irish defensive line. Finally, John Kershner broke a tackle and fell into the endzone for a one-yard touchdown with 1:35 left.

Kiel, who deserved a better ending than he received, promptly led the Irish downfield. Starting from the 29, Kiel hit Pinkett with two passes to get the Irish into Falcon territory. Two runs by Chris Smith and another pass to Pinkett set up Johnston's field goal try.

"I felt like I hit it solid," said Johnston. "I still had my head down when I heard it hit. I didn't see the line break down but Coach told me that somebody just blew an assignment."

"We felt their kicker was a low kicker and it was a slick field that would also cause a kick to go lower," explained Hatfield. "We told our guys not to come in low like they usually do, but stand up and stay high."

The strategy worked as lineman Chris Funk, who had already blocked a 50-yard Johnston attempt, got his left hand up and deflected the kick.

"We showed what could be accomplished when the players believe in each other and the administration and God," said Hatfield. "They pulled together. It was a tremendous game, and I couldn't be prouder of our team."

"It shows its fun to play the game of football and it shows that anything can be accomplished in life. The team is bigger than the individual."

It is good to see that somebody is having fun right now, because the Irish sure are not. Maybe the Liberty Bowl could change all that.

McCandless victorious in flag football final

By JEAN CRUTCHER

Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's intramural flag football season came to a close yesterday afternoon with McCandless defeating Off-campus 21-6. Earlier this season when the two teams met, McCandless won by a much closer score of 6-0.

On a cold and windy afternoon when passing was near impossible, running plays became the key to victory.

Sophomore Jenny McCauley scored the first of her three touchdowns for McCandless early in the first half. With a successful attempt at the extra point, McCandless led 7-0.

Second half action saw McCauley score her second touchdown on a long yardage running play. McCandless converted the extra point and led 14-0.

Off-campus finally got on the board in the second half when senior Mary Schneeman carried the ball into the endzone for the touchdown. After the extra point failed, off-campus trailed 6-14.

The final touchdown of the afternoon came as McCauley scored for the third and final time on a short yardage play with less than one minute remaining in the game. On a pitch out McCauley successfully scored the extra point and the championship for 1983 went to McCandless.

Final standings for the season have McCandless on top with an 8-1 record, Off Campus in second with a 5 and 4 record followed by Holy Cross (4-4), and Regina and LeMans tied at the bottom with 2 and 6 records.

UCLA-Illinois in Rose Bowl

Associated Press

For the second straight year, the University of Washington Huskies have come away with the best consolation prize in sports.

Hoping to avenge a 1982 loss to Washington State that knocked them out of the Rose Bowl and into the Aloha Bowl, the Huskies found that lightning does indeed strike twice. Saturday's 17-6 loss to Washington State, coupled with UCLA's 27-17 victory over Southern California, rerouted the 15th-ranked Huskies out of the Rose Bowl and onto the beach at Waikiki for their second straight appearance in the Aloha Bowl, this time against Penn State.

But there was jubilation in Los Angeles, where UCLA, which recovered nicely from an 0-3-1 start, defeated Southern Cal and made it to the Rose Bowl for the second straight year, a first.

Ironically, the Rose Bowl is UCLA's home field. Fifth-ranked Miami also will be performing before the home folks on Jan. 2. The Hurricanes, who completed a 10-1 regular season a week ago, accepted a bid to meet No. 1 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

The bowl bids were all announced Saturday with only one recalcitrant from the reported pairings of a week ago. Notre Dame, which wound up a 6-5 campaign by losing to Air Force 23-22, had second thoughts about its Liberty Bowl commitment to meet No. 18 Boston College.

The rest of the bowl lineup looks like this: Cotton — no. 2 Texas vs. No. 7 Georgia Sugar — no. 3 Auburn vs. No. 8 Michigan. Rose — no. 4 Illinois vs. UCLA. Sun — no. 6 Southern Methodist vs. No. 16 Alabama. Holiday — no. 9 Brigham Young vs. No. 19 Missouri. Fiesta — No. 10 Ohio State vs. No. 17 Pitt. Gator — no. 11 Iowa vs. No. 12 Florida. Hall of Fame — no. 14 West Virginia vs. Kentucky. Florida Citrus — no. 20 Maryland vs. Tennessee. Bluebonnet — Baylor vs. Oklahoma State. Peach — Florida State vs. North Carolina. Independence — Air Force vs. Mississippi. California — Northern Illinois vs. Fullerton State.

In other games involving bowl-bound teams, Texas beat Baylor 24-21, Illinois crushed Northwestern 56-24, SMU blanked Arkansas 17-0, Michigan edged Ohio State 24-21, Brigham Young trampled Utah 55-7, Iowa bombed Minnesota 61-10, Syracuse upset West Virginia 27-16, Pitt and Penn State tied 24-24, Boston College trounced Holy Cross 47-7, Kansas stunned Missouri 37-27, Maryland whipped North Carolina State 29-6, Tennessee beat Kentucky 10-0, Ole Miss nipped Mississippi State 24-23, North Carolina outlasted 34-27, Oklahoma State trimmed Iowa State 30-7 and Northern Illinois belted Ohio U. 41-17.

Nebraska, Auburn, Miami, Georgia, Florida and Alabama had the weekend off. All but Miami have at least one regular game left.

Washington State got two short touchdown runs in the second period from freshman Richard Calvin to beat Washington, while sophomore Kerry Porter rushed for 170 yards.

Meanwhile, UCLA trailed Southern Cal 10-6 at halftime, but Rick Neuheisel threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Karl Dorrell, Kevin Nelson scored on a 12-yard run and Bryan Wiley ran 17 yards for another TD, all in a six-minute span of the third period.

Rob Moerschell scored on a 1-yard run and tossed a 6-yard touchdown pass to Mike Chapman as Texas built a 24-7 lead over Baylor and then withstood a fourth-quarter rally.

Jack Trudeau threw four touchdown passes, including two short ones to Tim Brewster and a 47-yarder to David Williams, as Illinois clinched its first Big Ten title in 20 years by routing Northwestern.

SMU's Reggie Dupard rushed for 175 yards, including touchdowns of 60 yards and 1 yard, and the Mustangs shut out Arkansas.

Steve Smith passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as Michigan blew a 10-0 lead and then rallied to defeat Ohio State.

BYU's Steve Young completed 22 of 25 passes for 268 yards and six touchdowns against Utah. He set or tied nine NCAA records, including 395.1 yards per game in total offense, a 71.3 completion percentage for the season, 306 completions in a season and 22 consecutive games with at least one TD pass.

Eddie Phillips ran 80 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the game and finished with three touchdowns and 172 yards to become Iowa's all-time rushing leader with 2,144 in the Hawkeyes' rout of Minnesota. Wingback Ronnie Harmon also scored three times.

Bob Paulling kicked three field goals to lead No. 13 Clemson over South Carolina 22-13.

Harold Gayden rushed for two short touchdowns and put Syracuse in position for two more scores with a 57-yard run and a 58-yard reception as the Orangemen knocked off West Virginia.

Nick Gancitano kicked a 32-yard field goal on the final play to give Penn State its tie after Pitt had gone ahead 24-21 with 1:15 remaining on John Congemi's third touchdown pass to Bill Wallace.

Troy Stradford ran for 165 yards and two touchdowns as Boston College beat Holy Cross and Frank Seurer threw two TD passes and set a Big Eight passing record as Kansas upset Missouri. Boomer Esiason passed for 215 yards and a TD as Maryland downed N.C. State.

In other action, Duke's Ben Bennett became the most prolific passer in major-college history when he threw for 323 yards and two TDs against North Carolina. Bennett wound up his career with 9,614 yards, bettering the mark of 9,536 by BYU's Jim McMahon.

Arizona State's Luis Zendejas kicked four field goals in a 24-17 triumph over San Jose State, giving him 62 for his career, snapping the record of 60 by Clemson's Obed Ariri and equaling the Pac-10 mark of 25 in a season by Washington's Chuck Nelson.

And Oregon and Oregon State battled to a 0-0 standoff, the first scoreless game in the major-college ranks since Northern Illinois and Eastern Michigan did it on Oct. 6, 1979.

Dolphins thrash Baltimore, 37-0

Associated Press

The Miami Dolphins opened some daylight for themselves in the tight American Conference East race with a 37-0 thrashing of the Baltimore Colts on an embarrassing day for many National Football League teams.

Along with the Colts' whitewashing, no less than three other teams were shut out on a day marked by lopsided games, as the Cleveland Browns whipped the New England Patriots 30-0, the Chicago Bears beat the Tampa Bay Bucs 27-0 and the New York Giants blanked the Philadelphia Eagles 23-0.

Dan Marino's 85-yard pass to Mark Duper and Mark Clayton's 60-yard punt return for Miami touchdowns only 42 seconds apart in the second quarter triggered the Colts rout. The victory gave the Dolphins an 8-4 record and a one-game lead in the AFC east over the Buffalo Bills, 27-24 losers to the Los Angeles Raiders.

In other early afternoon games, the Minnesota Vikings upset the Pittsburgh Steelers 17-14; the Detroit Lions defeated the Green Bay Packers 23-20 in overtime; the St. Louis Cardinals bombed the San Diego Chargers 44-14 and the Cincinnati Bengals crushed the Houston Oilers 38-10.

In late afternoon action, the Washington Redskins routed the Los Angeles Rams 42-20; the Atlanta Falcons edged the San Francisco 49ers 28-24; the Dallas Cowboys whipped the Kansas City Chiefs 41-21 and the Denver Broncos outscored the Seattle Seahawks 38-27.

Tonight, the New York Jets play the New Orleans Saints in the Superdome.

John Riggins smashed into the end zone on three short touchdown runs as the Redskins overpowered the Rams. The win kept the Redskins in a first-place tie with Dallas in the NFC east with a 10-2 record. The Rams, now 7-5, remain tied for first place in the NFC west with San Francisco.

Riggins' three touchdowns ran his 1983 total to 19 and tied him for the league lead in TDs with Rams rookie Eric Dickerson and also equaled an NFL mark for touchdowns rushing in a single season, shared by three other players. The Redskin defenders intercepted Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo four times and held Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher, to just 37 yards on 12 carries — the fewest yards in his brief pro career.

Steve Bartkowski fired a desperation pass of 47 yards to Billy Johnson on the final play of the game to lead Atlanta over San Francisco. Bartkowski threw the ball into a crowd of players inside the 5-yard line and it was tipped out to the 7 to Johnson, who squirmed into the end zone.

The game-winning play capped a 73-yard drive that started with 1:04 remaining, six seconds after Joe Montana had given the 49ers a 24-21 lead by scrambling 11 yards for a touchdown to cap a 51-yard drive.

Tony Dorsett, who had branded the Dallas running game "disgraceful," scored two touchdowns and became the ninth player in NFL history to gain more than 8,000 yards, carrying the Cowboys over the Chiefs.

Dorsett dashed 28 and 32 yards for touchdowns as he went over the 1,000-yard mark for the sixth time in seven seasons.

Denver rookie quarterback Gary Kubiak, who had never before taken a snap in an NFL game, passed for one touchdown and ran for another, and Rich Karlis booted five field goals as the Broncos defeated the Seahawks, who lost eight turnovers.

Kubiak was forced into a starting role when rookie John Elway came down with the flu yesterday morning.

Duper's scoring catch, just one yard shy of Miami's longest pass play ever, boosted the Dolphins' lead to 17-0 with 1:42 to go in the first half and they were on their way.

Marino said Duper "came up, I looked at him and he took off and I just threw it as far as I could. It was a great play by Mark."

"He's the one that made the play," Duper said of Marino. "He held the ball until I could get across the field."

After Miami's defense held, Clayton took Rohn Stark's punt on one bounce, scooted past one Colt, sliced to his left and scampered behind a wall of blockers for his TD.

Yugoslavian stars signs to play Irish basketball

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Writer

Nineteen-year-old Drazan Petrovic, a 6-4 guard for the Yugoslavian National basketball team, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Notre Dame, Irish head coach Digger Phelps announced late Friday morning.

"He signed the papers the other night," said Phelps. "The gives us, I think, another solid class behind this class."

Petrovic, whose 24 points led all scorers in last Wednesday night's 75-73 Notre Dame victory over the Yugoslavians, first caught the eye of Irish fans last Nov. 21 when he scored 13 points in the Yugoslavian team's visit to South Bend.

Petrovic also plays for Club Sibenka in Yugoslavia and is a member of the Yugoslavian Army, in which he still has six months of duty to serve. He will continue to be busy right up until the time he returns to campus next fall as a freshman.

"He still plays on the National team and in the Olympics," said Phelps. "After the Olympics, he'll be here as a freshman. That's his plan now. He is signed to do that. If he comes to the United States to play college basketball, he's coming to play at Notre Dame. Between now and then, hopefully he shows up."

Phelps later quipped, "We signed him. But watch the Russians start a war and we'll lose him."

Petrovic is the fourth player to commit to Notre Dame for next season. Already signed are Dave Rivers, a 6-0 guard from Jersey City, N.J., Matt Becuwaert, a 6-6 forward from Santa Ana, Calif., and Gary Voce, a 6-9 forward from the Bronx in New York City.

The Observer/Paul Cifarelli

The Notre Dame hockey team faced its toughest competition of the season as they swept St. Thomas 3-2 and 7-5 this weekend, keeping their record perfect at 7-0. See Ed Domansky's story on page 12 for the details on the teams most physical matchup so far this year.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scores 3,000th point

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — For more than 14 seasons, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has played his finesse game against the bruising centers of the National Basketball Association.

"I've played well a long time," the 7-foot-2 veteran of the Los Angeles Lakers said. "It don't come easy."

Perhaps the points didn't come easy, but they did come. Saturday night, Abdul-Jabbar became the second player in NBA history to score 30,000 points in his career.

"This is really something more for the basketball fans to talk about," Abdul-Jabbar said after reaching the milestone.

Now, it appears likely that the soft-spoken, 36-year-old, with a new two-year contract, will break the all-time scoring record of 31,419 points set in 14 seasons by Wilt Chamberlain. The record is not an all-consuming goal for Abdul-Jabbar.

"If I get it, I'll get it," he said. "I hope he gets it this year," said Lakers' Coach Pat Riley, adding with a smile, "Maybe I'd like to hold him back and get him motivated for next year."

No other player is close to challenging Chamberlain's record. Elvin Hayes of the Houston Rockets, who is in the twilight of his career, is third on the all-time list with 26,975 points.

Playing in his 1,101st NBA game Saturday night, Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 points in a 117-110 Los Angeles victory over Portland, giving him 30,007 career points.

"He's been consistent for 14 years," Riley said.

"It's remarkable that a player can have the offensive production he's had year after year," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "To average 27 points a game like he has is tremendous."

Ramsay said it was pointless to ask who was a better player — Chamberlain or Abdul-Jabbar.

"They're just different players," Ramsay said. "Wilt was a power player and Kareem is a finesse player."

Ramsay also said that the addition this season of backup center Swen Nater will help add to Abdul-Jabbar's longevity as a player.

"This year he doesn't have to play big minutes," Ramsay said. "It looks like he'll be able to play 30 minutes or so per game."

Abdul-Jabbar needed 13 points against Portland to reach the 30,000-point plateau. He scored 11 points in the first quarter.

"I wanted him to get it in the first quarter and get it over with," Riley said.

But he missed his only shot in the second quarter and didn't get his next two points until he was fouled by Portland guard Darnell Valentine with 5:07 left in the half.

Down the stretch, Abdul-Jabbar helped thwart a Portland rally with seven points, including an important three-point play in the closing seconds.

Portland's Mychal Thompson marveled at Abdul-Jabbar's achievement.

"That is the epitome of consistency for him to be that good," he said.

Blair Kiel's last home game proved to be his best statistically, as the four-year commander took over for starter Steve Beuerlein. However, even Kiel's best career game statistically couldn't save the Irish from a 23-22 loss to the Air Force. See Mike Sullivan's story at right for game details and the latest on the Liberty bowl picture.

Irish going to Liberty despite loss to Falcons

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

Folks at Boston College probably were saying, "How could they do it?" Folks at Arizona State and Washington State might have been saying, "I'm glad they did it." And folks around Notre Dame and the nation are saying, "I'm getting too used to it."

The "it" is the Notre Dame football team's 23-22 loss to Air Force Saturday in Notre Dame Stadium. Despite the loss and a 6-5 record, however, the Irish players have voted to play in the Liberty Bowl on December 29.

The defeat added to the miserable record that Notre Dame has compiled during the last few years in the last three games of the season. That mark stands at 1-8. It also gave Notre Dame a 2-3 record at home, the first time a Notre Dame team has had a losing record at home since 1963.

The loss to the Falcons was the second straight heartbreaking loss for the Irish. Last week, Notre Dame fell to Penn State in the last minute. The two games were similar in that the Irish lost fourth-quarter leads. However, while Penn State had the final scoring opportunity, Notre Dame had the final chance against the Air Force. A 31-yard Mike Johnston field goal attempt was blocked as time ran out, though, and the result turned out to be the same.

"It certainly was a great game for the fans. But it was tough on the coach," said Faust, echoing his comments after the Penn State loss.

If "great" means exciting, then Faust was right. Nobody can deny that it was an exciting game as the Irish erased an Air Force lead by scoring 22 unanswered points before the Falcons countered with 13 unanswered points of their own. There were great performances by Allen Pinkett, Blair Kiel, who had his best game ever in his last performance at Notre Dame Stadium, and Falcon running back Mike Brown. And there were three blocked kicks, three turnovers, and 15 penalties.

However, Notre Dame football fans did not think the game was "great." They saw their team lose for the second straight time to Air Force, they saw them drop a 12-point lead that even the television announcer thought safe, they saw them lose their third straight game, and they saw them lose their last five games on national or regional television.

"When is this going to change?" wondered Faust.

"This game has become a game of breaks and we just have not gotten them," said Pinkett who broke a number of school records Saturday with 197 yards. "We seemingly always end up on the short end of the stick. The seniors deserved to go out in style. We played our butts off and that's why it's so frustrating to lose."

The Notre Dame performance did not change much from the other four losses. Some had luck did not help, but bad mistakes proved fatal. The three blocked kicks, two interceptions, nine penalties, a number of missed opportunities, and a defensive collapse in the fourth quarter were the difference.

Despite these errors, though, the Irish could have won if Air Force had not played such an inspired game.

"I should have the team in here (in the media room), not me," said a happy Air Force coach Ken Hatfield. "No one up here felt we had a chance which only helped us. I'd like to thank you for voting us 14-point underdogs. Notre Dame had a lot going for them. I told my players that, whatever happens today, you'll remember for the rest of your life."

Metzler stars

Notre Dame sweeps St. Thomas

BY ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

Three unanswered third period goals by senior wing Mike Metzler gave the Notre Dame hockey team a 7-0 win over St. Thomas College yesterday afternoon, and a weekend sweep of the Tommies at the ACC.

The undefeated Irish now have a 7-0 overall record and a 5-0 mark in the Central States Collegiate Hockey League after the non-league sweep.

In Friday's action, the Icemen came out 3-2 winners as junior left wing Steve Ely connected for the game winner at the 3:49 mark of the third period.

The Irish scored first, taking a 1-0 lead on a goal by sophomore Dave Waldbillig at the 5:49 mark of the first period. Metzler accounted for the other Notre Dame goal, coming in the second period. Sophomore defenseman Bob Thebeau contributed two assists on the evening.

The game was fast and rough, but the fact that no penalties were called in the first period, was no evidence of this. A sudden change of events occurred in the second period, however, when 14 penalties were whistled against both teams. The penalty situation reached its peak when Notre Dame's Tony Bonadio and St. Thomas's Steve Olson were ejected from the game for fighting just past the half-way point.

The hard-hitting Tommies gave the Irish their strongest challenge thus far this season.

"St. Thomas was a real good test for us," said Irish coach Lefty Smith after yesterday's game. "They were very scrappy and wanted these games very badly."

The next action for the Icemen comes next weekend as the team travels to the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Sunday, Notre Dame fell behind for the first time this season when St. Thomas's Mark Vanelli scored at 5:38 of the first period.

The lead was short-lived, however, after the Irish scored two of the season's unprettiest goals.

Sophomore defenseman Greg Duncan bounced the puck past St. Thomas goalie Mike Tubbs at 7:10 of the first period. About six minutes later, Waldbillig deflected a Mark Benning shot past an off-balanced Tubbs to put the Irish in front 2-1.

Midway through the second period, St. Thomas scored two goals in just 13 seconds to take a 3-2 lead.

Only three minutes later, freshman Tom Smith's powerplay goal knotted the score at three.

St. Thomas came rolling back, striking twice within two minutes near the end of the stanza to take a commanding two goal lead into the final period.

Smith replaced junior goalie Al Haverkamp with Friday's starter, freshman Tim Lukenda. Lukenda shut out the Tommies in the final period, while the Irish came up with four goals to earn the victory.

Senior center Adam Parsons pulled the Irish to within a goal at 1:53 of the third period. He rifled a slapshot past Tubbs to cut the Tommie lead to 5-4.

Just 45 seconds later, Metzler scored the first of his three goals on a slapshot through the legs of Tubbs.

The score remained deadlocked at five until the 14:13 mark when Metzler picked up what proved to be the game winner on an Irish power play.

Then, with under one minute to play, Metzler completed the hat trick and iced the victory for Notre Dame with an assist from junior co-captain Brent Chapman.

Metzler said the victory was a big one for the team.

"It was the first time all season that we trailed," he said. "Between periods we were just saying let's go out and show what we got. I was fortunate enough to get the three goals and we just never gave up."

Smith was very proud of his team's effort.

"It shows a heck of a lot of character to come from behind," he said. "It gave the kids a chance to show what they were really made of."

Smith also emphasized that defense was a key to the game.

"The difference goes back to defense," he said. "We were better defensively than they were, and it had a marked effect in the whole series. They handled the intensive forechecking very well."

After a solid performance in the nets on Friday, Lukenda found it somewhat awkward to take over in the third period.

"I knew the team was fired up," he said, "and I knew it was up to them. I just tried to make a few stops and help us get back in it."

"It was a good team effort," said junior defenseman Rob Ricci. "It showed that we worked together and came out on top working as a unit, and that's the key to success."

Benning added three assists to support the Irish effort yesterday. Chapman added two assists to his team-leading scoring total. He now has eight goals and ten assists. Benning is now tied for second with Thebeau. They each have 15 points on four goals and 11 assists.

The Irish played without the services of Bonadio. He and St. Thomas's Olson were ejected Friday for fighting and sat out their one-game suspension yesterday.

The weekend sweep gives Smith a 2-0 coaching advantage over his former player and St. Thomas coach, Terry Abram. Now, Smith is one game over .500 as he upped his career record to 259-258-27.

Kiel's best performance

Seniors bid farewell to home crowd

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

For Irish football coach Gerry Faust and most of his players, the primary halftime thought Saturday was finding a way to cut a 10-7 Air Force lead.

But for 24 seniors some sentimental feelings may have crept into their golden helmets.

It would be the final time that they would charge onto the field at famous Notre Dame Stadium.

Quarterback Blair Kiel came out knowing he could end his college career by guiding the Irish to a come-from-behind win. And when Faust put him in the game halfway through the second quarter, the senior tri-captain did well, but it was not enough.

"Personally I felt good to come off the bench and contribute," he said. "But it hurts to lose."

Kiel saved his best career performance for last as he accounted for 285 of the team's 288 passing yards. He connected on 16 of 22 attempts for two touchdowns with one interception.

Although it was his last chance to prove himself in front of the home crowd, Kiel experienced regret about having to take over for freshman Steve Beuerlein. "I feel bad for Steve," said Kiel. "He's been our quarterback all year and he's done a good job. It would have been nice for both of us if we could have pulled out a win."

Kiel shared his day's success with his teammates. "The line did a great job and my teammates have had confidence in me all year," he said. "That made my job a lot easier to come in with us behind."

For placekicker Mike Johnston, the day was not quite as memorable.

His career string of consecutive extra points was snapped at 51 when his conversion attempt on the second Irish touchdown was blocked. "The extra point (kick) was low," he said. "That's what I was told anyway."

On the blocked field goal attempt that could have won the game, a disappointed Johnston remarked, "It felt like I hit it solid. Usually when I hit it solid, it should be good."

Johnston also had a 50-yard attempt blocked in the first quarter.

Cornerback Chris Brown said that he was depressed after Saturday's loss. "To go out and play as hard as you can and lose is a very frustrating feeling," he said. "I'd rather we had not driven downfield and had it all taken away."

The pomp and circumstance of his final home game was far from Brown's mind until the game was over. "Not until after the block did I realize that it was all over," he said. "Ever since I've been here, we've yet to win our last game. I wanted to go out in style — a winner."

At one point, what looked like a sure interception for Brown, turned out instead to be a 15-yard pass completion for Air Force. Early in the fourth quarter, a Falcon pass bounced out of Brown's hands and was picked up by Air Force's Mike Kirby. The Falcons scored two plays later to pull within six.

"It was one of those things," said Brown. "I was more concerned with running with the ball rather than catching it."

Tri-captain John Mosley was not sure how to react after Saturday's game. "I don't know how I feel," he said. "I don't know whether to cry or laugh. I feel good about us as a team — as a unit. I realized that winning at anything reflects the group. In winning or losing, we shared a feeling. We felt as one and that's what Notre Dame is all about."

The other tri-captain, cornerback Stacey Toran, chipped in with three tackles in his final home appearance.

Linebacker Rick Naylor played well and added seven.

Tim Marshall saw action at flip tackle, but made no stops.

On the offensive side of the line, Neil Maune and Mike Shiner turned in solid performances, opening up big holes for tailback Allen Pinkett and protecting Kiel in passing situations.

Greg Golic also saw some action at quick tackle.

Mike Favorite appeared at split end, but had no receptions to his credit.

For all 24 seniors, the game had to have been a special one, whether they played or not. All of them were able to wear the blue and gold and say that they were truly a part of the Notre Dame football tradition.
