Ducks just want to have fun

Two ducks enjoy themselves in the spring weather yesterday outside Stanford-Keenan Halls. Students joined the ducks in taking advantage of the higher temperatures and sunshine. A few hardy souls even brought out the blankets and laid out on the quad, maybe trying to re-live a Ft. Lauderdale spring break.

Mondale's experience biggest asset

"Walter Mondale is someone you can trust because he's been in there," says Mike Brogioli, campus campaign chairman for Walter Mondale.

Throughout his career in Washington, first as a senator from Minnesota and then as vice-president under Jimmy Carter, Mondale has maintained two major concerns. First, he fears too much money is being spent on defense. Secondly,

Mondale believes America needs to be more supportive of its schools and invest more money in the modernization and development of new programs, especially in the areas of math, foreign languages, and computer science.

In his defense policy, Mondale believes there are ten steps Americans must follow to both insure the nation's security and cut the defense deficit spending. He insists the nation must strengthen its regular military forces. Smaller nations should be dealt with as friends rather than enemies. The government must restore its open commitment to human rights in foreign policy, and the poorer nations must be aided through relief and educa-

Saint Mary's to investigate current social problems

By ANNE GALLAGHER

Current social problems will be explored this week during Social Awareness Week at Saint Mary's. The Social Action Club, an organization of mainly Sociology majors, designed the week to increase student knowledge of such key social issues as rape, poverty and food waste.

Throughout the week, a series of lectures, portunities for students to increase their understanding of topics they don't often come in contact with here in the Saint Mary's/Notre Dame community."

A display of all programs can be found in the lobby of the library throughout the week.

Both Overly and Saas agree everyone has been very eager to help them with the project. "SAGA has been really great," said Overly. "They had clear trash bins made specially, and donated $100 for film and processing. They

Schedule of Events

•Monday: A tour of Memorial Hospital will run from 2:15-3:45, followed by a speaker and film presented by CANCO at 7 p.m. on the third floor of Haggar College Center.

•Tuesday: Films will be shown on rape and life in prison from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the Media Center of the Cushwa-Leighton Library.

•Wednesday: A meal, slide show and sermon will be presented at the Hope Rescue Mission in South Bend from 6:30-9:30 p.m.

•Thursday: Clear plastic waste bins will expose the day's wasted food in the dining hall. Pictures will be taken of the waste. This will go on all day. At 7 p.m., in Stapleton Lounge, Kay Holland from the Battered Women's Shelter will speak.

films, tours and displays will be available to students on the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame campuses. Janet Saas, an SAC member, feels these activities offer an excellent opportunity for students to increase their knowledge of these issues. "It is really important to have people come hear the speakers and see the films. They don't take up much time, and they are worth listening to," she said.

Another SAC member, Karen Overly, agreed "this week provides an excellent op-are very aware already of the waste that goes on here."

The SAC, which stems from the now non-existent Sociology Club, is a mandatory requirement for students in the Social Work Methods class. Social Awareness Week was developed as a class project.

"This is a good club, and this is a good activity," noted Saas. "Hopefully, if all goes well this year, Social Awareness Week will be bigger and even better next year."

Former law professor wins Laetare Medal

Special to The Observer

John T. Noonan, legal scholar, author and professor of law at the University of California, Berkeley, has been awarded Notre Dame's 1984 Laetare Medal, it was announced Saturday by Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of the University. The medal, the oldest and most prestigious award given to American Catholics, had its centenary last year.

In announcing the honor, Father Hesburgh praised the efforts of Noonan, a former member of Notre Dame's Law School faculty, to address contemporary social issues from a perspective of traditional Christian ethics.

"John Noonan's careful scholarship has produced definitive books on a variety of crucial subjects from usury to the morality of abortion," Hesburgh said. "As a lawyer, a historian, a theologian, a medievalist, a classicist and an imaginative legal educator, he has greatly enriched the life of the Catholic Church and the society in which the Church is a sacrament."

Noonan was born in Boston on October 24, 1926. He graduated from Harvard in 1947 and did his post-graduate studies at Cambridge University. He received master's and doctoral degrees in philosophy from Catholic University in 1949 and 1951, and in 1954 he received his law degree from Harvard, becoming a member of the bar that same year.

After six years of law practice in Boston, he joined the Notre Dame Law School faculty for five years, leaving in 1966 for his present position at the University of California, Berkeley.

Noonan's research and publications have been in the areas of Church history, canon law, and theological development. He was a consultant to the Papal Commission on the Family in 1965 and to the Presidential Commission on Population and the American Future in 1970.

Presently he is an advisor to the United States Catholic Conference. He has published over fifty articles and essays in a variety of legal, philosophical and theological journals and several books, including The Scholastic Analysis of Usury, Contraception, Power to Dissolve,

Notre Dame football touted at annual Rockne breakfast

By REBECCA HETLAND
Staff Reporter

The 53rd annual Knute Rockne Memorial Mass and Breakfast was celebrated yesterday at South Dining Hall. The event, sponsored by the Notre Dame Club of the St. Joseph Valley, was attended by almost 200 people. Proceeds from this and other events such as the Blue-Gold Game will go to the club's scholarship fund.

The morning's activities concentrated on the legacy left behind by Rockne, who helped build Notre Dame's reputation as a fine institution with an all-American football team. To accomplish this, tributes to his life and character were combined with updates on the present-day Notre Dame football program.

A special Mass, celebrated by Father Robert Griffin C.S.C. was preceded the breakfast.

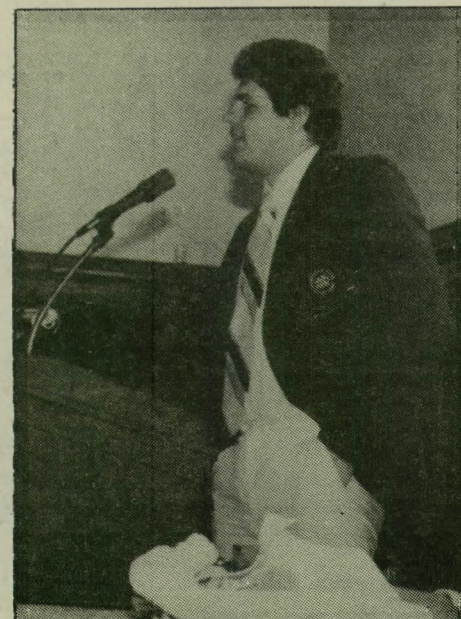

Later, Tom Panzica, member of the S.J.V. Notre Dame Club, began the speaking portion of the program with introductions of some of the special guests of the day including Knute Rockne's son, Jack, and Moose Krause and Paul Castner, two of Rockne's well-remembered players.

Notre Dame's defensive coach, Joe Yonto and next year's football tri-captains Mike Golic, Joe Johnson, and Larry Williams also spoke representing the University's football program today.

All the captains showed enthusiasm for the upcoming 1984 season. Mike Golic, defensive lineman, commented, "We still believe in ourselves as players, and hopefully, coming off the Liberty Bowl win, we will have the momentum we need to catapult us into a winning year."

The next guest was Tony Nelson, who has been a lifelong fan of Rockne and Notre Dame since seeing a movie about both when growing up. Since that day, Nelson, from Ontario, Canada, researched Rockne, and became an avid Canadian Notre Dame fan. He described Rockne as "... a people person, the most sincere man for whom my respect has grown and grown over the years."

Mission of Catholic Worker may be changing in N.Y.C.

Jesus tells us that we must feed the hungry, and shelter those without homes and visit the sick and the prisoner. We cannot feel too satisfied with the way we are doing our work — there is too much of it; we have more than our share, you might say. Yet we can say, "If that's the way He wants it..."

Dorothy Day,
from Loaves and Fishes

Paul McGinn

Despite predictions by some that Catholic Worker, the lay movement founded by Dorothy Day and Peter Maurin, may have outlived its usefulness to the hungry and homeless, the movement is still alive in New York City's Lower East Side.

But while it is alive, Catholic Worker is not exactly well. But then again, it's not supposed to be.

After all, things were not much better when Day and Maurin were putting together their anarchistic answer to the social disintegration of the Great Depression.

Saying "no" to the alienation and pain of a technological society gone awry, the two, together with a few fellow Catholic outcasts, put together in 1933 with little money, a safety net to catch those who fell through the U.S. welfare system.

Through the early years of the movement, Day, armed with the 25th chapter of Saint Matthew's Gospel, and under the theological guidance of Maurin, developed a three-part plan to make at least a slice of U.S. society more catholic than American.

The two opened hospitality houses to serve the homeless and hungry, built farms by which to challenge passive acceptance of industrial society, and began a monthly newspaper to keep communications open between the movement and the outside world.

Fifty-one years later, more and more persons are falling through local, state, and federal safety nets. But Catholic Worker, as one staff member said, "is still there to fill the cracks."

Filling the cracks with sandwiches, soup, or second-hand clothes, Catholic Worker remains committed to the neglected. Using whatever is at hand at any particular time, the Worker gives even until after it hurts at more than 30 hospitality houses across the U.S. As Bowery staffer and Notre Dame graduate Tom Ryan put it, "It's feast or famine."

The "Worker," as the movement is referred to by Ryan and fellow staff members at the movement's two Bowery locations, does not train the unemployed to become employable.

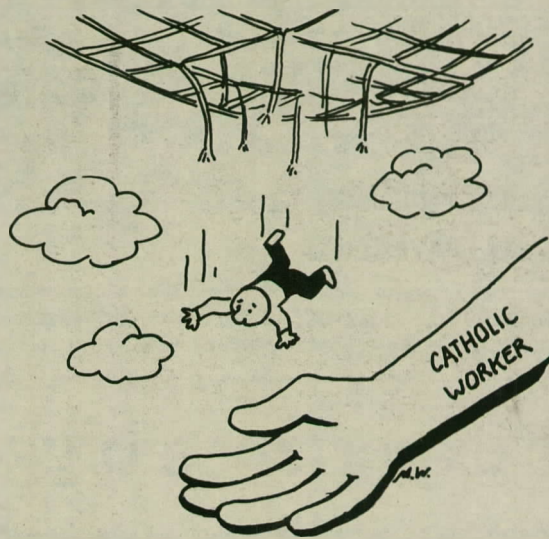

While New York's municipal shelters take in anyone who asks admittance, Worker hospitality houses are selective, although not elitist. And as an anarchist's answer to the municipal shelter system, the Worker has no re-employment program.

Worker members are free to re-enter a society which is more worried about the Soviet Union than the poor. The Worker, however, remains steadfastly dedicated to Day's non-violence and charts its counter-course along skid row.

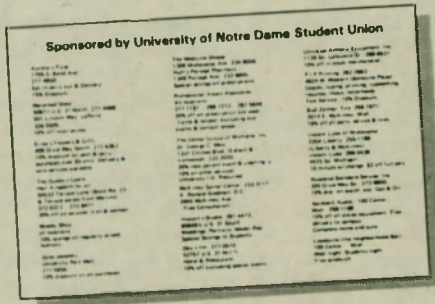

Such a course may be changing for the Bowery houses, however. Developers are creeping in from all sides. Locals term the process "gentrification," because development always means the poor get displaced by affluent persons who can afford renovated condominiums and apartments.

Workers, however, seem undeterred and may move to follow the poor, possibly to Queens or Brooklyn. Or they may stay where they are and change their mission to challenge bourgeois neighbors.

As is its tradition, Catholic Worker will adapt. As there are always persons in need, the Worker remains ready to do what it can wherever it is most needed.

tional methods. Also, the U.S. must attract Central American countries instead of scaring them with weapons.

Mondale also believes the U.S. needs to negotiate with the Russians to work out a mutual and verifiable freeze on nuclear weapons. The SALT II must be ratified, and federal support must be discontinued on projects which develop nerve gases and other indiscriminate killers. Finally a step forward must be made in an effort to halt the development of nuclear weapons.

Mondale's second priority is the education of the nation's youth. If elected, he says by the year 1990, all efforts will be made necessary to make the United States' educational system the best in the world.

During a speech to the American Council on Education, Mondale stated, "Americans want to rebuild this country. If we respond with a new emphasis on education I know we can do it. Name an American aspiration — a growing economy, international competitiveness, secure defenses, personal opportunity, social justice — and you will also name a goal that cannot be achieved without strong schools and colleges."

Mondale has three basic plans for the betterment of the nation's educational system. First, he intends to reinact two of the federal monetary grants cut by the Reagan administration to make more money available to those who cannot afford to go to college. Secondly, Mondale hopes to increase funding to schools so they may be able to modernize and develop advanced courses in foreign languages, mathematics, and computer sciences. Thirdly, he hopes to enact a program, already working in Boston, where various businesses would support local schools by providing jobs for high school students provided the chosen schools keep its faculty informed on recent developments and by making the schools enforce tougher standards for graduation.

Mondale says he learned compassion and respect for those less privileged than he from his humble beginnings. His parents taught him to always be open to the needs and desires of those less fortunate than he. Similarly, in the Mondale home, materialism was frowned upon. "I never saw a wealthy man die happy," said Rev. Mondale to young "Fritz," in Finley Lewis' Mondale: Portrait of an American Politician.

Mondale took these ideals with him when he went to Malcolmer College, in St. Paul, earning a BA degree. He then enrolled in the University of Minnesota Law School and after a year was drafted into the Army and served from 1951 to 1953. Upon his release, Mondale returned to school, where he received his law degree in 1956.

Mondale's political career began in 1960 when he was appointed attorney general for the state of Minnesota. While in office, Mondale passed up an opportunity to run for governor in an effort to unify the the state's Farmer-Labor party. Although Mondale lost the battle, many prominent officials noted his ability for organization and his insight into politics and its inner workings. As a result, in 1964 Mondale was appointed to the U.S. Senate when Hubert Humphrey was named as President Johnson's vice-presidential running mate. He held this position until 1977 when he was chosen to run for the vice-presidency by Jimmy Carter.

When asked why one should support Mondale instead of Hart, Brogioli said, "Again, experience is the key. Mondale believes in constant themes and has been able to modify his programs to fit the changing times." Hart's ideas aren't original. He's trying to be a new JFK and the people are tired of it."

Persons and Masks of the Law, The Antelope, and A Private Choice. His scholarship has brought him numerous academic awards and honorary degrees including one from Notre Dame in 1976.

Noonan married the former Mary Lee Bennett in 1967, and they have three children.

The Laetare (pronounced LAY—tah—ray) Medal is so named because it is announced each year on Laetare Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent in the Church calendar. It was conceived as an American counterpart of the "Golden Rose," a papal honor which antedates the 11th Century. Established in 1883, the medal was restricted until 1968 to lay Catholics; priests and religious are now eligible.

Since its establishment, 105 men and women have received the Laetare Medal. Among those honored in recent years have been Clare Boothe Luce in 1957; President John F. Kennedy in 1961; Phyllis McGinley in 1964; Dorothy Day in 1972; Helen Hayes in 1979; and Edmund Muskie in 1981.

The medal will be given to Noonan at the University commencement exercises May 20.

BOSS: 'FILTHY'

By I.M.I. RATE

Declaring dormitory foodsales "filthy, disgusting and all-around icky," Not-our-Dump Vice-President for Busybody Affairs John-John Van Wobbler permanently shut down all student-operated foodsales throughout campus yesterday.

"It's time we fight grime on its lowest level," Van Wobbler said while slobbering on a maggot-infested Dillon pizza purchased earlier that day. "I'm gonna grab my can of Raid and hit those South Quad garbage dumps of gringy grub while Father Ted takes care of North."

Fader Theodora Hasbeen, University Pres. and all-around friend to the poor and underprivileged of the world, said he was behind the ban "all the way baby." He added, however, "No way, no how will you get me to put that in writing though."

"We're Really Hungry" Coalition members applauded the University junk food ban and announced a "big 'o party" to celebrate tonight with free refreshments and munchies. "It's pig out time," Coalition chairman Anna Rexic ranted and raved.

Hungry students with limited budgets who were angered by the closing of foodsales were reportedly organizing a trip to Shirley's in protest. Said one member, who asked not to be identified for fear of University retribution, "Road trip!"

In an unrelated story, University

Food Services Director Dill Pickley said he was planning to open up Lepercum Pizza booths in every dorm. Pickley said he was looking for students to run the new booths since "those funny green leprachans we hired were too short to reach the upper level pizza trays. I had to fire at least five of 'em."

The Society to Help Out Runts in Town Battle Ugly Management Systems (SHORTBUMS) vowed to take up the cause of the fired little Irish folk and launched a full-scale investigation into the incident. "Aye, for sure we'll lay a curse on the big meanies," said a squirt spokesman.

Copy Idiot

The Absurder yesterday became the second major midwestern tabloid to sell out to media mongrel Rhubarb Muckrake this year.

"The University placed a pricetag on our integrity by trying to force us to join the their silly budget system," said Absurder Editor Dizzy Dzizezdzic. "But our integrity is worth more than their crummy seventy thousand bucks. Our integrity is worth at least twice that, which is exactly what Muckrake offered us.

"As long as we're going to sell out, we might as well sell out to the highest bidder," he said proudly.

Muckrake is planning to fly in editors next week from several of his other major tabloids, including the New York Post-Grape Nuts, the Boston Weird Harold, the Chicago Seen-Better Times and the Pen- nysaver to assist the Absurder staff with the transition.

Nationally-syndicated Absurder columnist Paul Roper-Doper McGinsu quit the paper when he heard of Muckrake's move. "The Alien thinks I work for him. No way. I've put up with that Dzizezdzic clown for a year, but I do have some standards," said McGinsu.

McGinsu's column appeared in today's issue of the dominant campus rag, Spastic Magazine. "I never thought I'd stoop this low, and I wouldn't have if they didn't pay me so much," grinning the unshaven columnist.

A number of other Absurder employees are planning to leave the tabloid after the Muckrake takeover is complete. Rumor has it that Spurts editor Meek Sullivan is considering a position on Berry Louse's coaching staff.

Muckrake plans major changes in Absurder style and content. "First, we're going to try spelling all the words in the headlines correctly. Then we'll move on to the really important things, like screaming banner headlines on the front page, retouched photos, sensationalistic stories and a pretty semi-clad girl on page 2 to replace that stupid Inside Out column. In short, we plan to give Spastic a run for its money," said Muckrake.

No Social Worries

By WHATA PAIN
Senior sneez jerk

The Notre Dame Center for Social Worries announced last evening it will disband because there are no more problems in the world.

Speaking to a sardine-packed audience at the Memorial Library Auditorium, CSW director Ron McFeelgood said the center "has been unable to locate any civil rights violations in the world, and as such, will cease operations effective April 15."

McFeelgood noted the day the Center ceases operation also will be last day the world East African grey squid could file an anti-extinction petition with the Intestines for Reagan Service (IRS or GUTS).

McFeelgood went on to say that the Center had struggled desperately to find some cause in the world to support, but could not find "a thing wrong with the system of even a Third World country."

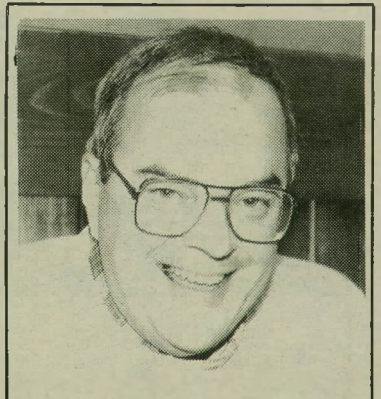

Asked how hard the center tried to uncover some world problems, McFeelgood said, "the Center tried so hard (at which time a member of the audience yelled, 'How hard?') to find crisis that in its failure attempted a coup against Pureena

Contacted by The Absurder at his Michigan retreat, Neuter Doom Prez Daddy Theodopilos M. Iceberg said he was pleased the Center had achieved its goals, but added, "What about my trips to Kampuchea, that's Cambodia for all you ignoramuses?"

McFeelgood told The Absurder that he was deeply troubled by the lack of attention the establishment press, such as the Union of Peons International was giving the plight of those center employees who now have to be laid off.

"By closing the center, we're going to put 17 women, 15 men, 10 collies and seven red squirrels out of work," said McFeelgood, who, as if a fire had been ignited under him, spat out (and incidentally got this reporter quite wet), "By God, that gives me an idea — a Center for the Re-employment of Former Center for Social Worries Staff Persons and Liason Organizaton for Families and Friends of the Same (CRFCSWSPLOFFS). What do you think?"

St. Harold

In a move that stunned hundreds of millions of Catholics around the world, Pope John Paul II announced the canonization of a Fort Lauderdale man who recently was taken off the ballot as a candidate for senior fellow at the University of Notre Dame.

The Holy See declared in front of his daily audience, "Humidus campus est felix campus."

The newly canonized man chose to keep his baptismal name, and will henceforth be referred to as Saint Augustine.

'Is so, is so, is so' 'Is not, is not, is not'

Disassociated Press

Democratic presidential politics became heated in a presidential debate between front runners Gary "I'm not quite sure how old I really am or where I stand" Fart, Walter "I know I'm dull but I've got labor behind me" Airedale, Jesse "I don't need the Hymie vote anyway" Jerkson and Ruben "Am I still in this race?" Sandwich.

The debate in American Samoza was mediated by expert mediator and pseudo-politician Brian Catamaran, former student body wimp at the University of Notre Dame.

The pressing issues of the debate were who was to issue their first statement first, thier first statement second, their second statement third, their last statement first and their final statement last. Airedale, who insisted that he be allowed to issue his third statement second because he won the Minnesota caucuses easily and has season tickets to all Minnesota Twins games said, "It's my turn."

Fart responded, "Is not, is not, is not, is not, is not."

Airedale retaliated with, "Is so, is so, is so, is so, is so."

Catamaran refused to comment on the incident claiming he was sworn to secrecy by the candidates.

Another issue bitched about was nuclear arms. Sandwich, showing a somewhat hawkish side of himself said, "I'd like to send every nuclear warhead we've got over to Russia and blow those damn commies off the face of the Earth. I can say these things 'cause I'm not running any more and don't have to lie."

Jerkson also had some comments on nuclear weapons. "I like mushrooms but not mushroom clouds," he said, "Brothers and sisters we must unite to stop the spread of them Hymies."

All of the candidates were planning to go to New York after the debate. Airedale said, "I just wish it wasn't so close to Jersey."

"I'm only going to New York for a little while," Sandwich said, "I've got to get back to Florida while its still spring break and all the hot chics are down in Dixie."

While in New York the wives of the candidates will be put to the test in a nude beauty contest of which Hairy Flyntlock of magazine fame will be the judge.

Big Lickey eyes a fly he reluctantly pulled from a goulash dish being prepared by the Neuter Dame Food Services. Lickey explained that, although fly wings were part of the Yale recipe, the University would not allow them to serve meet on Friday's during Lent.

Library buys Early Tanzanian Moose Manuals

By RITA BOOK
Army Cook

The No Shame Memorial Library has acquired more than $6.9 million worth of books, though only five percent are in English and only seven percent were published after 1879.

The standout donation was a set of Early Tanzanian Moose Skinning Manuals written in actual moose blood. Anthropology Department Chairman Gimme More said the acquisition represents a major gain for the ailing library which hopes to boost its ranking in the weekly AP throat poll.

Last week, the Memorial Library finished 98th out of 100, beating out Northwestern's library (located on a moving car of the L-train), and the library of St. Cecilia's Gradeschool for the Blind in Logansport, Fla.

Thirty percent of the books are written in French, 20 percent are in German, and 15 percent weigh more than three pounds each which makes the accreditation people happy because it increases the total poundage of books contained in the refrigerator-looking building.

Said Bobby Biller, director of University Libraries (who incidentally looks quite good in horn-rim glass that haven't been washed in a week):

"Nobody reads our books anyway, except for righteous theology grad students who wear jeans that look like they're waiting for the next Great Flood. We want to fill the place. It looks so ugly in here anyways; we just thought a few more books would look better than a bunch of carrols filled with throats who have taken a shower since Wednesday night."

In addition, the University Library

System is planning to buy a computer network to make it even harder to find a book and even more difficult to get help at the reference desk — though the people at the reference desk, especially that one will black hair, are already snooty enough. But the folks at the Library say they will follow the footsteps of the administrators who recently bought a Hewlett-Packard computer that needed a complete software conversion. "We should be getting the computer up by 1988 or so," Biller said.

Absurder orders ND to join system

By RUPERT MURDOCH
News Stuff

The Absurder General Bored has ordered the University to join the Absurder budget system by May 1 or face the cutoff of nearly $200,000,000 the University has earned by investing in South Africa.

The Absurder demand is the result of a Unit Control Budget Control System Control System audit conducted last year when The Absurder discovered that Father Van Wool Veneer and Father William Blowchow had spent nearly $1,200 on beer and hard alcohol without soliciting bids from competitors.

University President Father Ted Pittsburgh said, "I'll be damned if I'm gonna let these kids be my mommy and daddy. If The Absurder controls University finances, they could force us to invest in companies who pay attention to human and civil rights. Why they could take away our keg of Michelob at Horby Hall.

"It's an outrage," said Pittsburgh, characterizing the stalemate as "a tempest in a teaspoon or a T-shirt, or something like that."

The Absurder does not plan on exercising administrative control on the University, provided the University doesn't do anything "outrageous, like extending Jerry Soused's coaching contract," according to Editor Dzavid Dzqzk.

"We insist that they have complete administrative freedom. Otherwise their secretaries would be out of work. Number one, they are administratively free, number two, they'll just have to get our approval before they spend money on anything," Dzqcizd said.

"All we're asking for is accountability," he continued. "It's student money we're talking about. We give 10,000 bucks apiece to this place every year. They've been running it on their own for 142 years, and it's got to stop."

Another Absurder editor, Margaret Curly Larry-Moe, said "Financial decisions made at a university determine its educational content. Profits are prophets."

In a surprise move today, Dzqcizcdzkd announced plans for the formation of an Absurder advisory board for the Office of Sexual Activities. The director of that office, Dr. Ronald McDonald, expressed outrage when he heard the plan, claiming no one had discussed the matter with him.

"No one ever talked to me," said McDonald. "I think I have a fine record here, what with my experience helping out An Tostal, the Math Club and this year's senior trip to the Bahamas."

Dzqcizcdzkykcz insists that McDonald was informed of the plans at a meeting last spring. "Last year Dim Rumor and myself suggested to McDonald that maybe he need a little help. He agreed and agreed to help us form the board."

"No I didn't," whined McDonald. "I was in an executive meeting with An Tostal Director Gay Jeedy."

Student Body Wimp Brainless Celophane got wrapped up in the dispute this afternoon. "The Absurder is just not being fair to the administration. It is obvious that a mediator is needed and, since I have nothing better to do, let it be me. Besides, it will look good on my resume. I prefer pubic relations to accounting, anyway."

Celophane then asked that we devote the remainder of this column to his sex life.

P.O. Box Queer

On and on

Dear Editor:

What gives you people the right to play God with the opinions of the people of this fine (sic) university?

All I ever read in the Viewpointless page is letter after letter extolling the virtues of The Absurder staff. I'm quite sure that you receive some criticism. Do you think you can really hide your faults by not printing letters pointing them out?

I think not.

In fact, I have a few complaints, and I think you should print my ten-page, hand-written list in its entirety.

My first complaint has to do with the Viewpointless page itself. I already mentioned the editorial liberties — censorship — that you take. But it's even more subtle than that. By requiring letters to be well written and typed, you are indirectly limiting the right to be heard to rich throats. That hardly seems like a representative cross-section of the male student body here.

And your limits on the length of letters? Ridiculous! If I have a lot to say, and I do, I'm going to need more than 250 words. How do you know that what you cut is going to be what I would say?

Jackson & watermelons

Dear Editor:

I hereby condemn The Absurder for printing such a racist cartoon as appeared on a recent Viewpointless page of the paper.

In the cartoon, a Hymie can be seen giving Jesse Jackson a watermelon as a peace offering — clearly a racist statement on the part of The Absurder editorial board.

You kids just hate blacks, don't you? Never mind that the cartoon was funny and obviously satiric — it was outrageous, hate filled and unchristian. I bet you like to drop-kick babies too.

I hope you go to hell.

Yours ever devotedly in Notre Dame —

Rev. John V.W.

McGinnicuddy crap

Dear Editor:

With all the bad news being published lately, from the rampant cheating in Dr. Weenie Halfman's class and the subsequent temper tantrums thrown by that official, the overthrow of our duly and democratically elected Senior Fellow, Saint Augustine, and the incredible, although unsurprising, expose of the misuse of alcohol by such officials as Father Wally Bonechewer, it is nice to hear that one good thing has happened lately: one of the most notorious Irish terrorists, Paul "Mad Dog" McGinnicuddy, has finally been "roped" in.

This maniac has been known throughout his career for trying to use the Catholic Church as a front for his activities. He tried to force on the unwitting Irish bans on soups, candy, hot shower water, alcohol, razors, combs and fun in general.

His acts of terror are not confined to the land of the Irish. He is widely suspected of complicity in last year's sabotage of a passenger jet near his home of New Creampuff City.

He claims to oppose investments in South Africa and elsewhere. Of course he does! He wants investments in his own front organizations to finance his revolution, which is doing rather well. Insiders reported that his bank account shows an increase of $200,000,000 in the past year. The informants were brutally assassinated before they could determine the source of his gains. It is certain that they are donations from poor souls who believed his neo-idealistic message.

Yet the demon McGinnicuddy does not confine himself to merely killing and maiming, like most of his ilk. Like all bullies, he knows when he is overmatched. He hides behind the power of his poison pen at the mouthpiece of his revolution. He hypocritically pretends to be for the right, in order to win over the misguided masses.

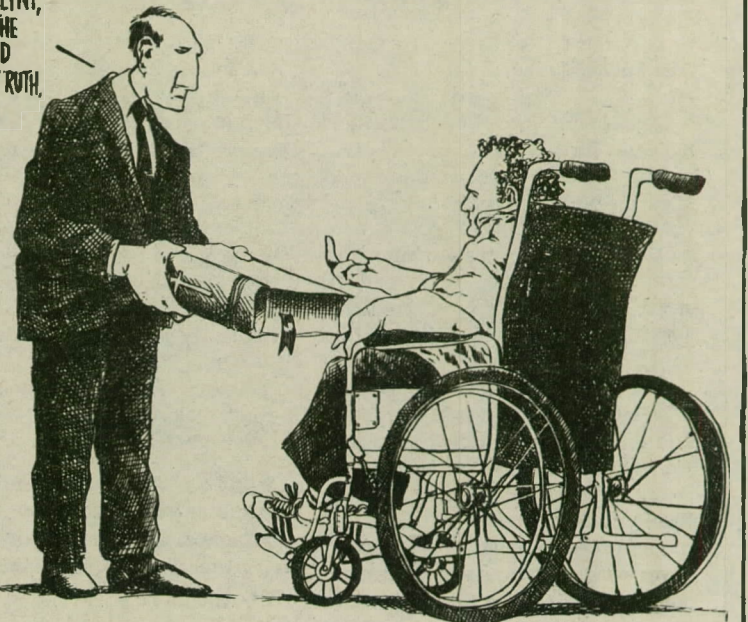

Now that this devil has been captured, justice is due. The Bible says "If anyone mislead any of these poor students, let him be cast into the sea with a fieldhouse stone around his neck" (New Liberally Paraphrased Edition). Since I believe in protecting the environment, I would not so pollute the oceans.

Yours ever, ever, ever devotedly in Notre Dame (and Christ too) —

Father Theocrat M. Hindenburgh

More boring drivels

The year 1984 is an election year. That means unimaginative columnists like me bore you to death with political drivels all year long.

When I was a kid, I lived in a fantasy world or, to be more precise, a world in which my fantasies were different than they are now. Once, for instance, I wore my bathrobe as a cape, yelled, "Up, up and away!" and dove off the end of a bed. This was my first experience with schizophrenia. I'm a damned funny columnist, ain't I?

Max Richard Lerner Cohen

But it was the kiss of Patrick Caddell's campaign scenario that woke me up, and Gary Hart too, for that matter. It was Hart's noisy, clamorous awakening that rudely woke up Walter Mondale.

An internationally reknowned biographer, Pyle Moron, relates these and sordid other tidbits is his latest critical work, Stuff I Know, published by Doubledate, 1984. I just read the book, so I can brag about it.

Violence sells and if it did not it would surely, like quality programming, be banished from the nation's airwaves. That, and not the alleged ability of children to tell reality from make-believe, is why it persists on television. The only TV executives who think otherwise are those who never were children.

And that's a shame, because I really liked Jesse Jackson until he lied to me.

I think I'll end this column with another cute ending. Bye.

Max Richard Lerner Cohen is either in his early 80s or mid 40s, he lives in New York and South Bend and Washington D.C. and California. He loves Ronald Reagan when he writes as Lerner, and hates him when he's Richard Cohen. Actually there are no such writers as Cohen or Lerner, I made both of them up so I could write three times a week without anyone knowing.

The Absurder is the pseudo-independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Nueter Dame du Lack and Saint Mary's Preppy School. It never reflects the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as late and as distorted as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion (sic) of Rupert Murdoch. Letters represent the views of stupid, loud-mouthed, obnoxious dolts. Column space is available to all members of the community with enough money, and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is discouraged, because we throw them away anyway.

The Music of 1918

by Boob Ban derShyt and Sick Cruelty

featureless staff scribblers

With the onslaught of uncomprehensible music videos and the overall lack of quality music produced in 1983, we, The Absurder's uninformed music critics, have decided it would be in the best interest of its readership to overlook this year's noise and instead, rate the music of 1918, a truly memorable year.

Top Ten Singles of 1918

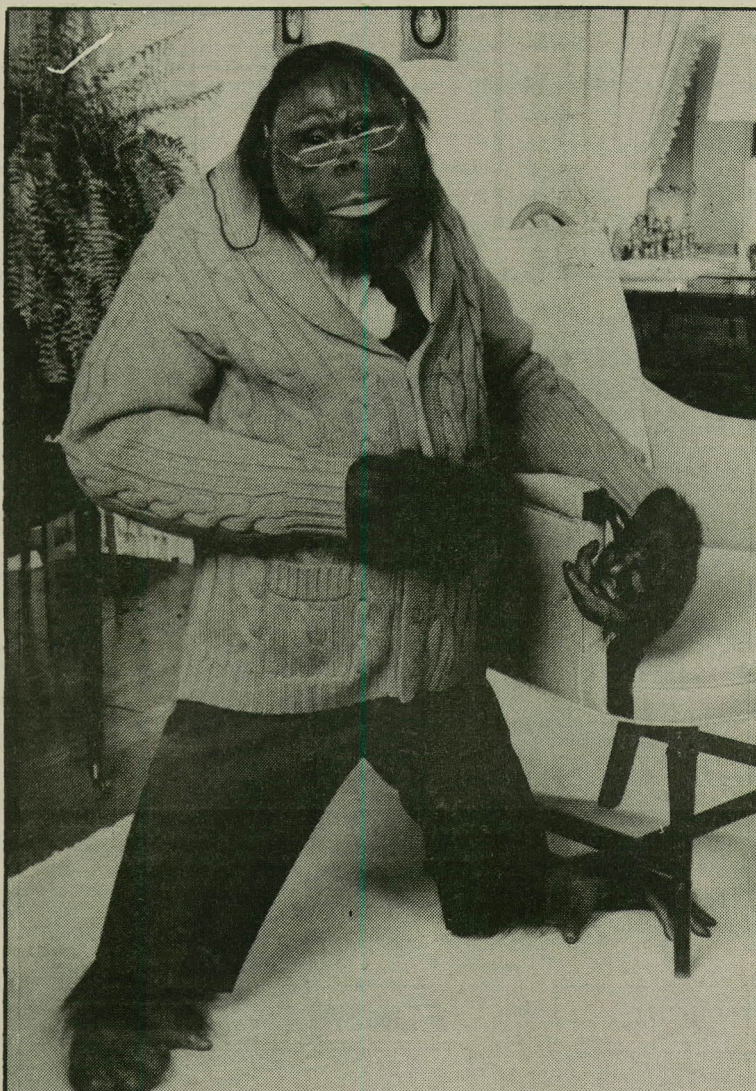

1. "Suffragettes Just Want to Vote," by Susan B. Tony. This single comes off her just released album of never before released songs of this women's rights agitator. Tony's career got a slow start in Massachusetts but skyrocketed once she hit the Empire state. It is probably safe to predict that Tony's career will peek in 1920, but if her fans can keep the memory alive, perhaps a piece of currency, no, how about a coin, yeah, a coin might be named for her.
2. "99 Hindenburgs," by the Humanity. When it first hit the music scene, "99 Hindenburgs" blazed like a star. With such musical geniuses as the Humanity producing this chart-topper, we can only hope that they don't burst our zeppelin by letting their talent burn out too quickly. The flowing melody and striking lyrics leave us in awe. All we can say is, "Oh, the Humanity."
3. "Build the First Train to Clarksville," by Cornelius Vanderbilt and the Railroad Tycoons. Not much can be said about this group as this is their debut single. But there is no denying that it is sweeping the country from sea to shining sea. We see Vanderbilt as developing something of a cult following, however, so someday soon, the Railroad Tycoons will probably be forced underground.
4. "Imagine," by Vladimir Lenin. Finally, our country is learning an appreciation for this revolutionary. He has been stirring crowds in Russia for some time now, so it was only a matter of time before his style and fire caught on here. This single is representative of Lenin's whole style and philosophy of music. The line from "Imagine," "Imagine all the people, living as communists" says it all.

5. "Is It Gonna Fly Now?" by the Wright Brothers. It took this group a long time to get off the ground, but once they did, Orville and Wilbur soared. For much of this year, their song floated at the No. 1 spot but then it dipped, and lost considerable altitude. Now it hovers at No. 5. This didn't keep the Wrights in the hanger long, though. They are back in the studio taping an album. Although it is not complete, such songs as "Leaving on a Bi-plane," and "We May be Wright" are sure to be included.
6. "Innocent Man," by Sacco and Vanzetti. The entrance of Sacco and Vanzetti on the American music scene marks the beginning of the Italian Invasion. These two have drawn more media attention in the last seven years than any immigrant duo to date. The two have made a killing in record stores in every major city, but as trained uninformed music critics, we feel that both Sacco and Vanzetti may soon see an abrupt end to their music careers. I guess it's no more "easy money" for these two.
7. "Nobody Told Me There'd be Wars Like These," by Woody Wilson. After an exhausting tour of Europe where Woody was working on a live album, the man has come home to release this new single. Although its reflective lyrics and sincere melody do redeem this last ditch effort by Woody to stay in control of the pop music industry, the country is tired of socially conscious music. The people want to roar! Maybe in the next decade.

8. "Knights In White Satin," by the Imperial Wizards. This has to be the first successful attempt by a band of hooded men (or women, who can tell underneath the hoods) to reach the top ten. Some critics are saying that these guys are just a gimmick, that there is no substance behind the cross burnings and lynchings. Such critics are obviously informed. We wouldn't tell the Wizards they are superficial to their faces, that's for sure.
9. "Archduke In Pain," by Franz Ferdinand. A few years ago nobody outside of Sarajevo knew of Franz. He started out playing small clubs and bars in this eastern European nation. Then suddenly, he was shot into the international music forum like a bullet. Many attribute this to his manager, an unknown Serbian nationalist. There seems to be no stopping Franz. His style was once unique, but now countless groups are adopting it.
10. "My Little Red Model-T," by Henry Ford. Hot off his new album, 1939, this dance single has the nation shaking their booty. It has inspired such dances as "The Horseless Carriage," and "The Assembly Line."

•MUSIC

Last Saturday in the Franenberg Auditorium a Senior Kazoo Recital swelled the room with such less than melodic strains as "73.5 Trombones," "When the Sinners Come Stumbling In," and of course, the "Notre Dame Humiliation Dirge." This musical extravaganza began at 8 p.m. Saturday morning and admission was the promise of your first born child.

The night before Saturday featured a Grounds Crew Recital in Adams Hall at 8. The performance had been scheduled for 7, but it took longer to rake the leaves off South Quad than expected. There was no admission charge, but during intermission, the audience was directed to clean up the garbage outside of the North Dining Hall.

Winding up its sold out world tour, Saint Joseph's Elementary School Second Grade Choir of South Bend packed the ACC Friday night. Student Union Concert Commissioner, Fred Lenrody called the show "the concert event of the year. It's not easy to find a group that will interest enough students to make a S.U. concert financially feasible. We were lucky St. Joe's was available . . . I try really hard to get live music on campus. I really do, really, honest guys." Only one unfortunate incident marred the otherwise enjoyable evening. During the group's third encore, a delirious SMiC Chick jumped on stage and threw herself at little Oogie Brown, interrupting his solo, "Matilda had a Little Llama." The Chick explained, "But I love Oogie, I wouldn't hurt him. I have all his albums. His picture is under my pillow. I can't live without kissing him just once. Oogie, I love you."

•THEATRE

In its only area appearance, the Theatre for the Blind concluded its two week run in the O'Crylin Auditorium. The company performed Friday evening and the next night too. This was a slight change from the weekend before when they performed Saturday night as well as the prior evening. Those who saw the show the second Saturday received a special treat. Flying in from Paris especially for the show, famed mime, Marcel Marceau made a special guest appearance. When asked to comment on what a thrill it was to perform for such burdens to society, Marceau replied, "!"

•MOVIES

It was Double Feature Weekend last weekend in the Anthropology Auditorium. "Mary Poppins" and "Texas Chainsaw Massacre" drew large crowds Friday night. It was a supercalifragilistic-expialidocious evening as movie goers joined in the fun of the second flick. The first movie started at 7:15 and doors were locked between movies, though some of the more squeamish were able to squeeze through the shattered glass of the little tiny window in the door. Admission was $1.26 but if you dressed up like characters from either movie, there was a $1 discount.

•CHAUTAQUA

Sponsored by Howie Hall, in cooperation with P-B, Dullen, and Pious Crucifix Halls, "Your absolutely last, never again to be repeated chance to dance any way you know how" was the place to be in MisFortune last Friday night. Students tripped the light fantastic in every way from the alleycat to break dancing. Not even this event, dry as it is, could go without a touch of calamity. Disaster struck when a Jennifer Beals' look-a-like whose name has been withheld to protect Jennifer Beals flashed a male student who looked nothing like Ben Vereen and was attacked by a pack of squirrels on the make.

•THE NAZZ

Demonstrating that the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's student bodies are not just a bunch of engineering social outcasts, and irresponsible drinkers, the Nazz Competition saw at least two credible acts, maybe even three, do their stuff on stage Saturday evening. (Laverne de Boom Boom from Regina South does not count.) First place went to Joe Schnoz and Joe Honker, amateur nose wrestlers. First (and only) runner-up was Will E. Graduate with his touching rendition of "Notre Dame, Our Mother" sung to the tune of "The Victory Clog."

The Muzak Store in your neighborhood is having a sale. That means that records are sold at a discounted price, boys and girls. Such chart-topping albums as "Mr. Rogers' Greatest Hits" and Country Music for People Who Like Classical Music are on sale while supplies last. So hurry on in, but be sure you look both ways before crossing the street.

The real story behind CRAP

By IMA DRUNK II
Wine Taster

"Sure I like to get blasted out of my skull every now and then! Who doesn't?" revealed an official on the Committee Refusing Alcohol to People.

The CRAP official, who asked not to be identified, but who is Father Wally Bonechewer, said the real reason the committee has decided to ban alcohol for next year is to hold down administrative costs.

"Like, we can get a special deal for our own brew, if it's just us," Bonechewer commented. "But our suppliers feel like they have to jack up prices to stay competitive if there are students involved."

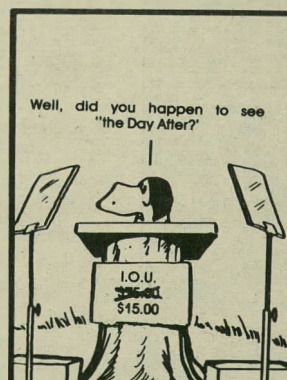

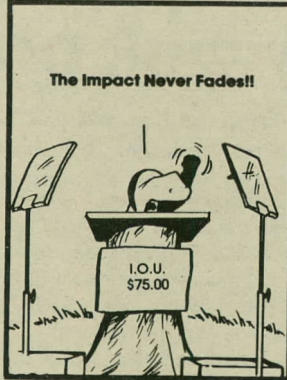

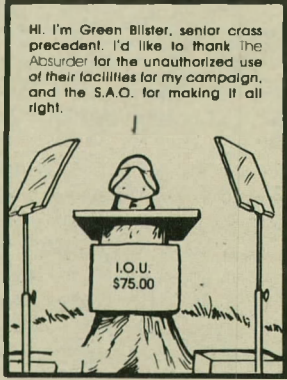

But financing the wild parties in Horby Hall is not the only reason CRAP is making the campus dry. "Let's face it, the students move off campus, get killed and what happens to their tuition money? The parents are so upset they forget to ask for a refund. We could save hundreds of thousands of dollars a year if we don't have to process the dead students."

When asked if his stance was moral, Bonechewer snapped, "Who the hell cares? We're dealing with alcohol, understand, not some minor issue like abortion or apartheid!"

The ND/SMC students are gone. The bars are closed. And it's raining. But we here at Student Disunity (or some such stupid name - we can't make up our minds) want to go back. And the van will return too. This time those folks at the Alumni office have found two stinky dumpsters to park next to.

The cost? $300 for those of you stupid enough to take a bus that doesn't go 80 miles an hour like the rest of us. We who planned the trip are going free. Bahahaha bahaha (mas), like our senior trip friends.

SPECIAL MIDNIGHT SHOW

The Absurder/Joe Mama

Berry Louse, head coach of both the football and tiddlywinks teams, has had his usual problems again this year, but it's clear that at football games he still has no problem predicting a la Babe Ruth just where Heave Airline's next pass will land.

Berry Louse makes annual pledge to restore tiddlywink prestige

By RHETT SCHMITT
Frustrated Jock Writer

The past few years have been tough ones for Berry Louse and his Neutered Dream tiddlywinks team. After advancing to the Sweet 'n Low Bowl in 1980-81, the year before Louse succeeded Henry Heavenly as I-wish coach, the squad has suffered through three seasons of bad aim. Even last season's trip to the Toilet Bowl has not been enough to get I-wish fans off the Louse's back.

Now beginning his fourth year as head tiddler, Louse is confident that Neutered Dream will get the help from the statue on top of the Doom and live up to everyone's expectations.

"Up to now, this has been the greatest laughingstock of a tiddlywinks team in the country," says Louse in his usual tenor voice. "This is a crucial year for us. Either we earn back the respect we once had or I will resign. No, I take that back."

Nobody can deny that Louse has the talent available to finish among the top five tiddlywinks teams in the country. In fact, if you believe Predict Badly, the editor of the Snorkling News, Louse has had the talent ever since he arrived at South Armpit.

"The mention of Neutered Dream always arouses strong emotions and we feel that, by picking Louse and his Fainting I-wish to capture the National Felt Tiddlywinks Pad, we can increase our circulation ten-fold," wrote Badly last spring. "Plus, if the

I-wish ever played up to their potential, they'd never lose a game."

Louse is cautious about the upcoming season, however.

"We have a lot of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors on the team, so, once again, we have a young team," explains Louse. "With all those 18-, 19-, and 20-year-olds on the team, I feel it is asking too much to expect them to compete with the 18-, 19-, and 20-year-olds from other schools."

"We have a real tough schedule again this year, so I would have to think we'll finish about 6-5. We have to play Army on the road and they should be real tough this year. After all, they beat Moeller by a touch-down last year and have most of their starters coming back. We also have to play Air Force again this year and they've beat us two years in a row, so I don't see how we can get the team up to play them. It looks like a real tough year."

All 22 starters return from last year's Toilet Bowl champions, a fact not lost on the preseason pollsters. Neutered Dream, despite Louse's presence, is ranked in everybody's Top 20. Once again, Snorkling News has ranked the Fainting I-wish No. 1 for 1984.

"Because most of the editors are Catholic and did not attend Boston College, we have decided to pick the loaded I-wish as the top team again this year," writes Badly in this week's issue. "Hopefully, Louse's presence will not make us look foolish two years in a row. Besides, our circulation could use another shot in the arm."

In an effort to make sure nothing more than usual goes wrong this year, Louse has invaded the rosters of all the other teams on campus. By stripping the track and baseball teams of very talented performers like freshman sensation Calvin Hurdler, he has guaranteed that no other Neutered Dream athletic program will show his team up.

He has also attempted to get even with head tetherball coach Bigger Kelps for using one of his players, Small Wonder, by stealing head tetherball manager Spike Gorgar.

PE kills ND in Blue-Gold game

By RICK O'SHEA

Air Hockey Champ

Pasquerilla East beat the crap out of the Neutered Dream football team yesterday, 52-6, in the 344th Annual Blue-Gold Game at Notre Dame Stadium in front of 59,075 intoxicated, screaming fans.

"We tried our best," grieved I-wish head coach Berry Louse, "but I guess our best wasn't good enough. We've got a young team."

"We'll come together real soon. Just give us time."

Freshman Annie Buddy led the PE air attack, riddling the I-wish secondary on 67-of-81 passing for a Blue/Gold record 1,984 yards. Her prime target, sophomore Bette U. Cantcatchmie, hauled in 53 catches for 1,669 yards and five TD's.

"We made a few mistakes," admitted Louse. "PE's a tough team. You can't take anything away from

.nem.

"We'll gel sooner or later. Things are beginning to fall into place. We're improving."

"I'm very proud of our girls," said PE head coach Bertha Manley. "They showed today that they're nearly ready to compete on the collegiate level. Hell, I'd love it if we could play a practice game against somebody like, maybe, Northwestern, you know? Now there's a challenge."

Louse refuted the comment, saying "No, really, you guys. We're improving every day. We can't help but improve."

The I-wish offense shone at times, especially when the sun glinted off their gold helmets. On two occasions they fooled the PE secondary by passing on first down. Otherwise, however, it was the same old strategy of Plinkett-Plinkett-Pass-Punt.

"You have to go with your strengths," explained Louse. "We're only a step or two away from greatness. Really, you'll see."

I-wish quarterback Heave Airline was picked off forty-one times by the tricky PE secondary. Junior veteran Sal Sheerote intercepted Airline twenty-six times, once for a touch-down return.

"Ooh, I love to sweat," Sheerote cooed after the game. "There's nothing like the smell of sweat on the playing field. Wanna see my muscles?"

PE now returns to the task of trying to attain varsity status, while the I-wish continue to train for the upcoming season. "We'll get better," droned Louse. "No kidding. Next year's freshman class could be the best recruiting year we've ever had."

"Just watch. You'll see."

Joe Mama does it with everybody

Joe Mama, 5-9 split end for the I-wish football team and star performer for Bigger Kelps' tetherball squad in addition to countless other activities, has agreed to a $60 million, 55-year contract offered by the Neuter Doom Athletic Department in exchange for limiting himself to football and tetherball until graduation.

"We felt such a move was absolutely necessary," explained Athletic Director Jeans Corduroy. "He was just getting involved in too many other things to be fair to them all. He's an extremely talented individual."

At press time, Mama was actively involved in Neuter Doom football, tetherball, tiddlywinks, soccer, hockey, lacrosse, and track, as well as being an active member of the Spanish, French and German clubs. Mama is also president of the finance club, scuba club, karate club, yodeling club, and students-against-clubs club.

In addition, Mama carries a 24-credit schedule and is double-majoring in physics and chemical engineering.

"He's a very talented individual," said tiddlywinks coach Berry Louse. "We love having him around. Why, if it weren't for him, well . . . Well, I just don't know."

Mama quickly became a star upon joining the soccer, hockey, and track teams this year. Known to most as "Small Wonder," he was the first in Neuter Doom soccer history to score over 100 goals in one season. In track, he set new records with leaps of 30 feet in the long jump while earning the nickname "Small Wonder." And in hockey, fans branded Mama with the name "Small Wonder" as he led the team to a 25-0 record.

"He's easily the biggest asset we have," said track coach Grand Piano. "He's a really talented individual."

The Absurder has also learned that Student Body President Bib Fortuna has been discussing the possibility of sharing the presidency with Mama, while among Mama's interested recruiters nationally are the Houston Oilers, Boston Celtics, Sperry-Univac, MCI, Good Morning America, and the NASA Space Program.

"It's really all going so fast," commented Mama. "But what can I say? I'm a pretty talented individual."

yards and two touchdowns, while Abraham picked up 25 yards on seven carries.

• Ron Plantz and Tom Doerger both performed well on the offensive line. The two sophomores are competing for the starting quick tackle spot which was opened up by Larry Williams' move to the strong guard position this spring.

• There's no doubt that the biggest bright spot offensively Saturday was the play of quarterback Steve Beuerlein, who ran to perfection what offensive coordinator Ron Hudson called "a condensed offense." The 6-3, 203-pound Californian completed 20-of-24 passes, including a 46-yarder to Jefferson and 15 in a row during one stretch, for 204 yards and two touchdowns. Three other quarterbacks saw action as well — Scott Grooms, who split the duties on the second unit with Joe Felitsky, connected on 6-of-9 passes for 38 yards, and Todd Lezon hit on 7-of-12 passes for 92 yards, including the longest completion of the day, a 55-yarder to sophomore flanker Pat Cusack.

Hudson, whose plan has been to keep things simple this spring in order to make things easier for Beuerlein and the other underclassmen, knows that the Irish have a long way to go — particularly offensively.

"We've got a lot more running plays in our offense this spring," said the second-year offensive coordinator. "We've put a lot of pressure on the linemen and the backs to learn them. But our passing game is not where we want it to be just yet. It is much more condensed because of our youth."

Faust was generally pleased with his team's effort, but was not overly enthusiastic.

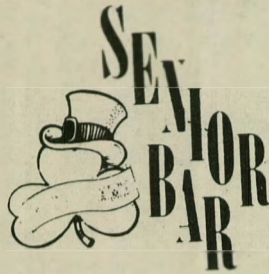

"It was a typical first scrimmage," said the Irish coach. "There were some good things and some bad things like dropped passes and penalties. The first part of the scrimmage had some good hitting, then we got tired and feeling sorry for ourselves at the end. But that's because we went for a long time. Because of spring break, we haven't been able to condition them as we would like. But overall, I was impressed with our enthusiasm and intensity."

"The goal is to be better than we were after the Liberty Bowl. If we can accomplish that, we will have had a good spring. Right now we've obviously got a long way to go, a lot of work to do on fundamentals."

Things are definitely starting to fall into place, but for the 1984 Irish there are still a lot of unanswered questions.

First scrimmage shows off young secondary

By LARRY BURKE
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame football team held its first organized scrimmage of the spring on Saturday morning in sunny Notre Dame Stadium, and although the coaches kept things simple, there was still a lot accomplished in the two-hour affair.

The major task of Gerry Faust and his staff at this point of the spring is to evaluate players in order to best fill the vacant spots left by graduating seniors. In addition, the coaching staff is looking to find dependable backups for proven starters — to give the squad sufficient depth to withstand injuries. Significant strides towards accomplishing both goals were made in Saturday's scrimmage, particularly concerning the following players.

- Upperclassmen Joe Johnson (strong safety) and Pat Ballage (cornerback) both performed well in the secondary, according to defensive coordinator and defensive back coach Andy Christoff. Both will be counted on to provide stability in an area that is a preseason question mark for the Irish.

- Even more important were the solid performances turned in by sophomores-to-be Steve Lawrence (free safety) and Troy Wilson (cornerback). Both will be key performers in the secondary this year, as Notre Dame tries to compensate for the loss of Stacey Toran and Chris Brown. Also impressive at the cornerback position was sophomore Mike Haywood, a flanker last season, who could see a lot of playing time this year.

- Junior Mike Larkin, the speedy 6-1, 219-pound linebacker who sat out last season with a broken arm, impressed inside linebacker coach

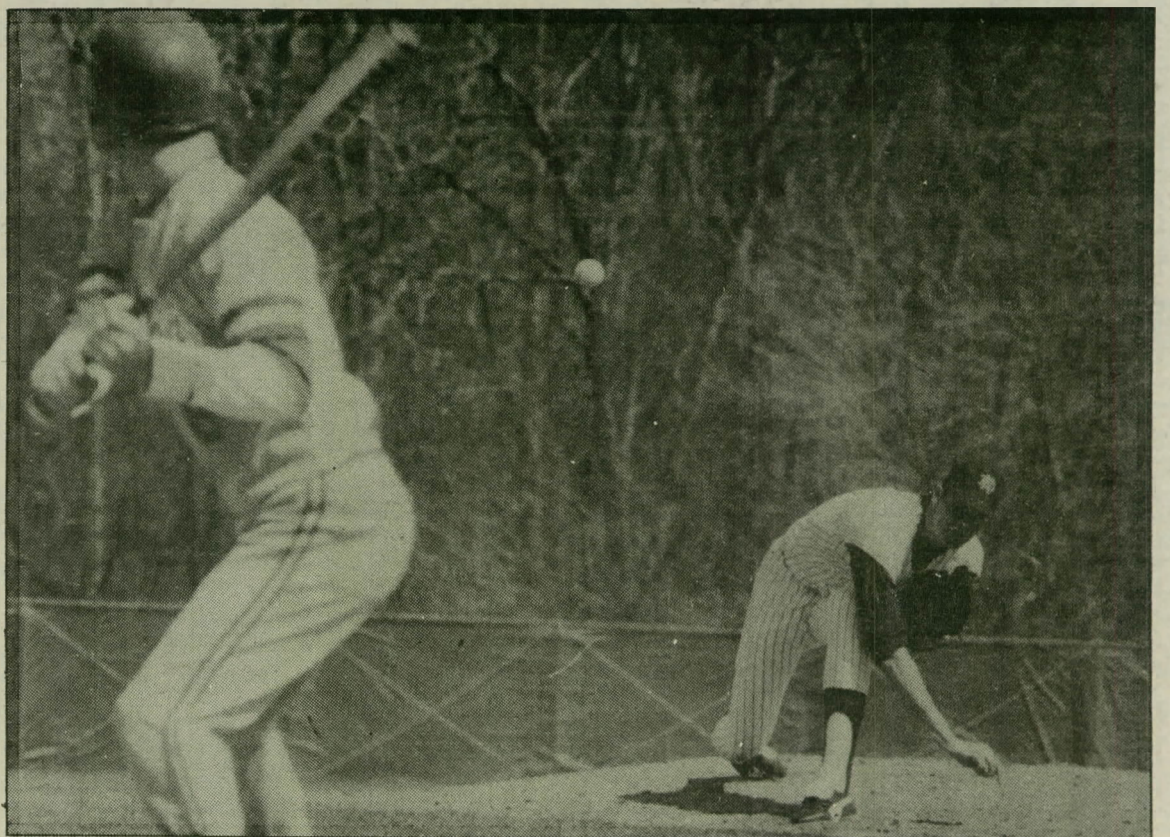

George Kelly with his play on Saturday. Larkin is looking to return his 1982 form when he started all 11 games and finished second on the squad in tackles. If he continues his progress, he will team with two-year lettermen Tony Furjanic and Rick DiBernardo to give the Irish an outstanding starting crew. Add Mike Kovaleski, Joe Bars, and Dave Butler, all of whom played well on Saturday, and the situation at linebacker looks bright.

- Walk-on placekicker John Carney, who handled kickoff duties last year and is the preseason favorite to replace Mike Johnston, had a good day yesterday, converting four extra point attempts and booting a 27-yard field goal in his two attempts. Two other walk-on kickers also performed yesterday — freshman Ted Gradel connected on one of two field goal tries, and sophomore Pat Chura made good on both of his attempts, from 27 and 32 yards.

- Wally Kleine, a 6-8 278-pound reserve defensive lineman, had a great day, racking up three sacks from the flip tackle position to lead the second unit. Kleine, who will be a junior next year, should team with Jerry Weine and Eric Dorsey to provide a solid backup for starters Mike Golic, Mike Gann, and Mike Griffin.

- Offensively, the search for depth at tailback continued Saturday, and with Hiawatha Francisco sidelined with an ankle sprain, the playing time went to Alonzo Jefferson, Lester Flemons and Byron Abraham. Jefferson, a split end last year, worked with the first team, picking up 46 yards on eight carries, and also grabbing five passes for 69 yards. Flemons rushed 15 times for 55

Notre Dame's pitching staff finally got on track as the Irish won three of four games this weekend, with three complete games by the Irish staff. Eric Scheuermann has details on all the excitement below.

Record 7-9

Baseball team wins three of four

By ERIC SCHEUERMANN
Sports Writer

Over a weekend marked by impressive pitching, the Notre Dame baseball team managed to win three out of four games to improve its record to 7-9.

On Saturday, the Irish travelled to Bloomington to take on a very tough Indiana University team. The team came away with a split of a doubleheader, an impressive feat considering the quality of the opponent.

"Indiana is a very fine team," commented Head Coach Larry Gallo. "In fact, I think they have the potential to be the Big-10 champion. They will at least be one of the teams to be reckoned with in the conference."

In the first game of the twinbill, the Irish were able to hold the Hoosiers to one run, and took a 3-1 victory. In the fourth inning, shortstop Tom Shields drove in Mike Metzler for Notre Dame's first run. The Irish moved out to a 3-0 lead in the seventh on Jim Dee's 2-run homer.

Indiana could only score once off Notre Dame hurler Buster Lopes on a seventh inning homer by Brian Trant. Gallo was very happy with Lopes' performance.

"(Lopes) pitched a very fine game against a very fine team," said Gallo. "He threw exceptionally well."

In the second contest, the Irish were held to one run on three hits by Indiana pitcher Barry Jones. Indiana rode this performance to a 4-1 victory.

Indiana scored once in the first inning, once in the fourth, and twice in the sixth. Although Irish pitcher Tom Conlin pitched a good ballgame, giving up only seven hits, the team did not hit well and made some costly mistakes.

"Conlin pitched well enough to win," said Gallo. "We had opportunities to score, but we just didn't do it. We also made too many mistakes. When you play a good team like Indiana, you can't give anything away."

Mike Trudeau, David Clark, and Dee each singled for the Irish. The doubleheader split moved the team's record to 5-9 going into yesterday's home opener against Dayton.

Yesterday, the Irish swept a doubleheader against the Flyers. In the first game, Joe Dobosh pitched a fine game to gain his first victory, as Notre Dame won 3-1.

Although the Irish only managed five hits against Dayton pitchers Tod Brindlinger and Jim Stephen, they combined these with six walks and two Flyer errors to score once in the fourth and twice in the fifth.

Meanwhile, Dobosh allowed only a run in the seventh when the game was well in hand. Gallo was again pleased, especially since Dobosh's victory was the third complete game in a row for Irish hurlers.

"Dobosh pitched well," said Gallo. "Although he got himself into trouble a few times, he made good when he had to."

In the final game of the weekend, the Irish brought out the bats. Pounding nine hits off Dayton pitchers Shane Vandemark, Bill Brewer, and Brad Severyn, they crunched the Flyers, 10-4.

Jack Moran, Dee, and Steve Pascinault each had two hits as the Irish jumped out to a 10-0 lead after the fifth inning. Carl Vuono and Mike Woodcock each added a double.

Pitcher Mark Watzke held the Flyers hitless until the sixth inning. Although Dayton scored four times in the last two innings, it did not matter. Watzke took the win to move his record to 2-0.

"I was very pleased," said Gallo of his team's play over the weekend. "Hopefully we're playing a little better, and hitting the ball a bit better. I hope we can get back to .500 soon. We'll play some tough teams, but I hope we'll just keep fighting back."

The Irish will get their chance to even up their record on Tuesday in a doubleheader against Ball State. On Wednesday, the team will begin a long homestand with a 2:00 game against Valparaiso.

Irish performance pleasing at meet

By CHUCK EHRMAN
Sports Writer

A field of six teams competed in the early-season tune-up meet at Cartier Monogram Track. The host Irish joined Alma College, Western Michigan, Southwestern Michigan, St. Aquinas College, and Valparaiso in the non-scoring event.

In the field events, the Irish performed well. The team put five javelin throwers in the finals. Jim Hoff garnered a second-place finish with a throw of 164 feet and one-half inches. Other Irish finalists included Jim Crandal, Steve Demartino, Andy Ferguson and Phil Kalamaros. No one, however, was able to equal javelin champ Steve Wayward of Aquinas. He turned in the days best throw at 172 feet and 7 inches.

The Irish did not fare too well in the discus and the pole vault. Dave Crandal finished fifth in the discus and senior John Langdon mustered a fourth-place finish in the pole vault. However, Frank Schroer managed a third-place finish in the high jump with a 6-2 leap, four inches short of the winning height turned in by Dave Elliot of Western Michigan.

Junior James Patterson, the blossoming Irish star, was a standout performer in both the long jump and the triple jump. "The jumpers did well," commented Kelly. "It wasn't a good day for jumping." In the long jump, Patterson took second. But he exploded in the triple jump with a 45 foot-11 and three-quarter inch blast that vaulted him into the top position. Freshman Joel Autry (43-11), Gary Lekander (43-4), and Charlie Hackett (41-1) all placed in the triple jump.

The 10,000-meters began the track portion of the competition, with Notre Dame's Dave Sarphe finishing third. Clocked at 32:34.05, he was twenty-two seconds off the winning time. Freshman distance runner John Furno placed fifth (33:44.09).

The Irish trackmen were nothing but sensational in the relays, winning both the 4x100-meter and the 4x400-meter events. Ed Kelly complimented the 4x100-meter team that combined Irish stalwarts Phil Gilmore, Dan Shannon, Mitch Van Eyken and anchorman Greg Bell.

In the 4x400-meter relay, Van Eyken, Van Pearcy, Shannon and Jeff
