Saint Mary's Board reopens discussion of dormitory lofts

By ANNE GALLAGHER
Staff Reporter

There is a strong possibility that lofts will finally become a reality at Saint Mary's after a discussion at last night's Board of Governance meeting.

Although the subject of lofts was thought to be a closed issue, Anne McCarthy, Holy Cross Hall president, stated to the council there is a strong possibility lofts will be allowed in Regina, as well as in the other dorms. "Our hope is to get them through by next year," she said.

McCarthy is heading a committee made up of resident assistants, student representatives, and Director of Residence Life Pat Rissmeyer, to attempt to formulate a policy that will make lofts a very feasible part of dorm life.

Previously, architects had decided lofts would be unsafe in Regina. However, College Architect Tom Borger has developed three plans for horizontal, vertical, and free standing lofts that will work very well in Saint Mary's dorms, according to McCarthy.

The proposed renovations and building improvements that were to have been completed this past summer were discussed. Lee Ann Franks, student body president, explained that the $3,500,000 loan from the U.S. Department of Education has not been fully approved yet, and renovations cannot take place until this is done.

These funds will cover fire safety projects, roof repairs, and restrooms in Holy Cross and LeMans Halls. The antiquated LeMans elevators will be replaced at that time.

The upcoming monthly Student Government newsletter was also examined. Kacey Horner, public relations commissioner, noted publicity in the past has been escaping the students, and the newsletter ought to be an excellent way of relating information. "It will cover Student Government issues as well as items that the Halls view as significant," Horner said.

On September 24-26, a phone-a-thon will be held. Julie Strazzabosco, vice president of academic affairs, predicted this event will raise about $1,000,000.

Mondale releases budget plan, asks Reagan to do same

Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale put his cards "on the table - face up" yesterday with a plan to reduce the budget deficit to $86 billion by 1989, largely by raising taxes, and challenged President Reagan to show his hand.

At the White House, Reagan said the Mondale proposal was "nothing new.... He told us several weeks ago he was going to raise people's taxes and now he's repeated it."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration will produce its next budget proposal on schedule - next January.

As promised when he accepted the Democratic presidential nomination, Mondale's deficit-reduction plan included a call for higher taxes.

But yesterday he added a new wrinkle, saying all $85 billion in additional revenue would be set aside - by law - to reduce the national debt and any additional spending proposals would be accompanied by additional tax proposals to pay the bill.

Mondale also proposed reducing spending by $54 billion and restoring $30 billion in funds cut by Reagan for education, environment and aid to the needy.

"If he can sell the American people on the fact he's going to cut spending, the leopard is really changing his spots," Vice President George Bush said during a campaign appearance in Raleigh, N.C. "I don't believe he's going to be able to do that because he has made so many significant promises in the primaries."

Asked whether he would accept Mondale's challenge to put forward his own deficit-control plan, Reagan said, "I think I've said it more specifically than most other administrations in all the things we've been trying to do since 1981."

While Mondale grabbed the day's political spotlight with his budget plan, Reagan met in Washington with the Rev. T.J. Jemison, leader of the seven million-member National Baptist Convention. Mondale addressed the convention last week.

Mondale proposes cutting $25 billion from Reagan's military buildup by cutting the MX missile, B-1 bomber and "Star Wars" defense program.

The tax increases would come mostly from deferring indexing - designed to protect wage earners from inflation - for families making $25,000 or less, and imposing a 10 percent surcharge for individuals with incomes over $70,000 and couples earning more than $100,000.

Rockne visits the Hoosier Dome

By MARGARET FOSMOE
Executive Editor

The stolen bronze bust of Knute Rockne made the trip to the Hoosier Dome last weekend, according to a note delivered yesterday to The Observer office.

Accompanying the note were several photos displaying the bust of the famous Notre Dame football coach. The figure was dressed in a in a Purdue University jersey. (See photos at right.)

The note was the first information received by The Observer since last May concerning the whereabouts of the stolen bust.

The typed note, addressed to The Observer, stated: "I went on a long road trip to see this game and I'm really disappointed. The football team has never scored this poorly, even after Rule 8 went into effect. P.S. Say hello to my good friend Eddy down at The Rock." The message was signed "Knute Rockne."

"Rule 8" apparently alludes to the University regulation in Du Lac concerning premarital sex.

The statue, approximately two feet tall and two feet broad at the base, disappeared from its pedestal in Rockne Memorial on May 3.

The other two photos display the bust seated indoors at a table. In one, two arms from behind the statue grasp an axe on the table while a voice balloon above the figure contains the words "Where's Gerry?!" In the third, two arms reach around the figure for an unidentified object on a plate.

Notre Dame Security has received information concerning the stolen bust, according to Assistant Director of Security Rex Rakow. "We received some information we forwarded to the L.A.P.D. (Los Angeles Police Department), which is supposed to be running down that lead."

Rakow refused to tell what the information was, saying only "it involves some people on campus."

On May 18, a single photo of the bust accompanied a ransom note that was delivered to The Observer office. That note alluded to the new alcohol policy and indicated that the bust would not be returned "till the students have their beer." It was addressed to "Father Ted" and signed "Rock."

A photograph accompanying the May note showed the bust, in sunglasses, sunning on a beach surrounded by a beer keg, a portable stereo and a frisbee.

The Rockne figure was taken last spring after articles in The Observer, Notre Dame Magazine, and the South Bend Tribune described the history of the Father Sorin statue located in Sorin Hall. The Sorin statue was the victim of several abductions during the past 30 years.

Knute Rockne apparently made a visit to Indianapolis recently as these photos, sent anonymously to The Observer, show.

In Brief

Kathleen Brooks, a Saint Mary's junior, was arrested last Saturday in Indianapolis. Marion County Sheriff Deputy, R. Green, arrested Brooks on charges of battery on a police officer, resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, and public intoxication. Later, Brooks was released on $1,000 bond. Brooks appeared in municipal court yesterday morning, and pleaded guilty to charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct. She received fines of $50 and $20. The charges of battery on a police officer and resisting arrest were dropped. - The Observer

Did you ever wonder what happened to Lake Marian? Everyday people pass by and see an empty concrete lake. Mark Kubacki, grounds supervisor at Saint Mary's, explained by saying, "The project was started on June 4, two weeks after graduation last year and should be completed the end of this week or possibly the beginning of next week. "The job consisted of cleaning the bottom of the lake, which is cleaned every ten to twelve years, and patching the broken concrete," said Kubacki. The grounds department also is rebuilding the bridge, and installing a new fountain and a lower drain outlet that gives better water circulation. - The Observer

In headdresses and crucifixes Canada's Indians and Eskimos flocked by the thousands Monday to the shrine in Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, and received the blessing of the pope - and his support in their struggle for greater rights. "You want to control your future," Pope John Paul II declared to the throng of Roman Catholic native Canadians. "You must be architects of your own future, freely and responsibly." His buckskin-clad listeners, grouped by tribe before the towering Ste. Anne de Beaupre Basilica, cheered. The pontiff had stepped cautiously into a political conflict long simmering in Canada. Many of the more than 600,000 Indians, Eskimos and mixed-blood Canadians have for generations been locked in disputes with the white majority over claims to land and resources. Many want a greater measure of self-government. - AP

A reason for pride

A Catholic college's catholicity is continually challenged; even Catholics question the purpose and value of a Catholic education. Saint Mary's is always eager to point to alumnae and people associated with the College who have become leaders and have done great things to the greater glory of the College. Mother Marie Leonie is a shining example of a humble woman who left Saint Mary's to do great things and become a source of pride for the Congregation of the Holy Cross and members of the College community.

Almost no one knows about Mother Marie Leonie. It seems that the administration "forgot" about the circular letter which Sister Campion, archivist for the Holy Cross sisters at Saint Mary's, sent them about her.

Today, Mother Marie Leonie is being beatified by Pope John Paul II, in Montreal during the papal Mass in Jarry Park. No special day of honor or dedication is planned to observe this day in any way. But Saint Mary's should, none-the-less plan to honor her.

The now Blessed Marie Leonie is one step away from being called Saint Marie Leonie. And she taught at Saint Mary's.

Mother Leonie belonged to the Holy Cross community but later went on to found her own community, The Little Sisters of the Holy Family, an order dedicated to domestic assistance to the Holy Cross community.

Born Alodie Virginia Paradis, she entered the order in 1883 at the age of 14 in Canada, her motherland. She came to Indiana to join the sisters at Saint Mary's after they became a separate community from the founding order in LeMans, France in 1870. She taught French at Saint Mary's until 1874 when enrollment was 217 strong.

The congregation was founded originally to do domestic service for the Holy Cross priests and students. Mother Leonie wanted to continue her life of service in that vocation. And so, through the assistance of Father Sorin who was then the Superior General of the Holy Cross order, she was sent to New Brunswick as a French speaking nun to help establish Saint Joseph's College.

During her first three years there, young women began coming to her seeking to lead the religious life. At that time novitates had to get their training at Notre Dame. The language barrier and low income of most of the girls made the novitiate an impossibility. So Sister Leonie began instructing them and forming them into a group of "auxiliaries," giving these "little sisters," as they were called, a distinctive dress and centering their life of service about the workroom at Saint Joseph's College.

At the insistence of Father Sorin, who remained her spiritual advisor, her community became officially recognized as an order in 1880.

Mother Leonie continued to think of herself as a Holy Cross nun and wore the habit of the congregation most of her life. In 1904, on order of her archbishop, she took on the habit of the congregation she founded, just eight years before her death.

In 1983 there were 83 Little Sisters of the Holy Family in the United States. The community is finding it difficult to grow in numbers because "the woman's movement made housework a dirty word," said Sister Campion. "Nothing's sacred anymore, literally. The beatification of Mother Leonie has become ammunition for Canadian and American feminists, who criticize the Pope for honoring a woman dedicated to domestic work." Sister Campion says this upsets her "because it's a woman's choice." Critics should not judge one's worth according to how much he or she furthers the woman's movement but instead should look at the one's accomplishments in light of the times. Mother Leonie was a champion of the women's movement (for those too busy criticizing to notice). She was a superwoman of the 19th Century, and a source of inspiration for the woman of the '80s.

Law students debate Okla. Congressman

By TERRY BLAND
Staff Reporter

Congressman Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma defended his opposition to the proposed line item veto amendment in a debate yesterday afternoon in the Law School. "Concentration of power in the hands of a few is dangerous to our democratic system of government," Edwards said.

The line item veto is a proposed bill that, if passed, would give the president power over certain aspects of a bill. If the line item veto were passed into law, the president would have the power to "enact what he approves and veto what he disapproves," said Edwards.

Currently the president can only veto an entire bill and not just selected parts of it.

There are many legislators in Congress that believe in limiting federal spending. "If the only issue is to limit federal spending, then I would be at the head of the line advocating such powers," said the congressman.

However, Edwards does not see the limiting of federal expenditures as the only issue regarding the line item veto. "The real issue is the expansion of the powers of the president," he said.

"The two most important promises in the Constitution of the United States is the separation of power and the system of checks and balances," cited Edwards. "The framers of the Constitution did not intend such power to be constituted in the hands of one or two people."

If the line item veto were passed, the balance of power would be disturbed," Edwards said.

Most conservative proponents of President Reagan are in favor of the line item veto. However, Edwards cited an example of "a non-conservative president striking things with this power that conservatives would want." Edwards referred to the possibility of Mondale, if elected, striking the B-1 bomber or the MX missile from a defense spending bill.

Edwards sees the line item veto as strengthening the power of the president so as to challenge the power of Congress. "With the line item veto, if 65 percent of Congress favors a bill and the president doesn't, the bill will not become law," said Edwards.

Thomas Lupo and Walter Brown, both law students, presented arguments countering those of Edwards.

Lupo argued government would "restore the balance of power with the line item veto....Right now, the president must pass an entire bill if he wants only some of it to be enacted."

Lupo used the example of a housing and water works bill to illustrate his point more clearly. "If a house and water works bill came before the president and he didn't agree with the water works part of it, his hands would be tied," said Lupo. "He would have to pass the whole bill or none of it."

Brown also argued the line item veto would save the federal government billions of dollars. He stressed the line item veto would be "a good model to follow" and by the president vetoing just certain points of a bill it would force Congress to "take a second look at things and look at a bill for its individual merits."

Ombudsman and Judicial Board wrestle election ballot controversy

By MIKE MILLEN
Staff Reporter

A debate to gain control of ballot counting from Ombudsman ensued at last night's Student Senate meeting.

The motion to transfer control from Obud to the Judicial Council was defeated 4-7.

Joe Zahn, chairman of the Judicial Board, argued it was in the students' best interest to change the current procedure of having Ombudsman tally the results in the major elections.

Zahn prefaced his seven minute speech by stating "in no way is this an attack on Obud." However, he argued that the organization "hasn't been doing its job."

Citing the 53 missing votes from last year's Senior Class elections, Zahn felt "there is no reason why there has to be a mistake." He also alluded to candidates overstepping their spending limits.

Zahn promised his organization would be "as fair as possible," saying counting officials would be people who the "Senate agrees upon." "It's just not fair that one organization outside student government should be responsible," he concluded, saying the democratic process was hurt in the current system.

"The Judicial Board is a legal advocate," said Henry Sienkiewicz, Ombudsman director. He said it "doesn't work to have a political organization run elections."

Sienkiewicz said last year's miscount was atypical, citing the fact that a large number of Ombudsman officials were in the infirmary and that a number of election rules had been changed just before the actual election.

Regarding spending limits, he said, "admittedly, rules were not strictly enforced," while adding "some of you (senate members) were caught." In the case of conflicts-of-interest, Sienkiewicz affirms "we will see that there is a disassociation upon command," adding "we will force resignations."

Rick Rhuleman, junior class president, asked why anyone would want to assume the tedious job of ballot counting. Zahn responded since "the Judicial Council counts for the hall president's elections," it would be consistent for them to do all elections.

Sienkiewicz said his group would expedite the job because they may acquire a number of ballot machines from the county.

Executive Coordinator Doug Wurth disagreed with Zahn, saying "I see nothing which says... the democratic process has been negated."

Academic Commissioner Mark Rolincik reported the status of the Faculty Course Evaluations. He said turnout was 30 percent, and the final report will be distributed to students before registration for the spring term, if possible.

Student Body Vice President Cathy David said student government representatives will meet with South Bend Mayor Roger Parent this week. She states the purpose will be to "channel the manpower (of Notre Dame) into areas that (Mayor Parent) feels would be most beneficial."

In other matters, it was announced that the next trustee meeting will take place in mid-November.

Hunger coalition begins tenth year

By CINDY RAUCKHORST
News Staff

Remember the shocking sight of the food storage bins outside of the dining halls last year? The purpose of the bins, according to World Hunger Coalition Chairman Mark Storen, was to create an increased student awareness of the food waste in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community. The results were eye-opening for many students.

Many additional world hunger awareness programs are being planned this year by the World Hunger Coalition, which celebrates its tenth anniversary in the spring.

Founded ten years ago by a committee headed by Father Don McNeill of the Center for Social Concerns, the coalition's main purpose then was to learn more about world hunger and to do something about it. This year, an additional emphasis will be placed on the education of WHC members and students about many hunger-related problems.

"We're going to try to educate our members, and encourage a change in attitude of students," Storen said. "Just a look around shows that there is a need to educate the students about world hunger." He hopes that what the members learn through meetings and discussions can be applied directly to projects sponsored by the group.

Many projects are being planned by the WHC this year. One of the most well-known is the Wednesday fast, in which over 900 students participate annually.

Last year, over $10,000 was raised for the cause by the fasters. The Dining Hall administration donates a dollar per person per meal to the WHC. Most of the money is sent overseas as direct aid for various programs in underdeveloped areas, and the rest is used to help the poor in the South Bend area. The WHC does not use any of these funds for operating costs.

Other projects include volunteer work at the St. Augustine soup kitchen in South Bend, which provides meals for over 600 people per week. A mass and dinner will be held October 16, designated as World Food Day across the country. A Run For Hunger is planned for late October, as well as the annual Crop Walk, held in South Bend in the spring.

According to WHC member Bill Jordan, "There are many misconceptions about world hunger, primarily the idea that we can't do anything. That's not true. Each individual can play a role in defeating the problem as it exists today."

The WHC meets twice a month to discuss problems, view films, and interact with speakers from various viewpoints.

The WHC will meet on September 24 at the CSC.

Saint Mary's senior part of Olympics

By CLAIRE KNEUER
News Staff

Many Americans gathered around the TV set to watch the summer Olympics. But Maureen Meagher, sister of gold medalist swimmer Mary T. Meagher, experienced the excitement of the Olympics firsthand.

Maureen, a senior at Saint Mary's, accompanied the U.S. team on their victory tour. She had worked as an intern with the press operations of the Los Angeles Olympic Committee during the summer.

Maureen Meagher

The celebration began in Los Angeles with a presidential audience. The tour then continued to Washington D.C., where the entourage was received by members of Congress on the steps of the White House.

Afterward, the tour traveled to New York City, N.Y. "We didn't realize the exhilaration of the nation until we arrived in New York for the ticker tape parade," Maureen said.

"There we were...driving down Wall Street and all these businessmen in three piece suits are waving at us. When we passed the docks it was the same reaction. People were in the most awful traffic jams and there wasn't a mad face anywhere," Maureen said.

Maureen's sister Mary qualified for the 1980 Olympics at the age of 15. President Carter's boycott of the 1980 Games was a blow to Mary and her family, according to Maureen.

"We didn't realize the effect the boycott would have on her until we had experienced the past four years," Maureen said. "Right after the boycott Mary said she'd quit...From 1980 to 1981 she kept her toes out of the water, not swimming seriously," Maureen said.

Despite this time out of the water, Mary easily qualified for the 1984 Olympics, and then went on to national fame.

The two sisters returned home to Louisville and after hometown celebrations, life returned to normal. Mary went back to the University of California at Berkeley to complete her swimming scholarship; she will maintain her amateur status.

In answer to the frequent question concerning the 1988 Olympics, Maureen says "only time will tell," whether Mary will compete or not. But she adds as far as the Eastern competitors are concerned, in the Friendship Games played by the boycotting nations, no one could touch her sister's scores.

Making a point

Changes in academic policies were under discussion at last night's Faculty Senate meeting in the Center for Continuing Education. At left, Senate Chairman Father David Burrell listens as Professor Mario Borelli discusses an item on the agenda.

Do you know someone who is dying to be thin?

Nearly one-third of the world's population goes hungry because of poverty. And nearly 20% of the young female population in the United States also starves — but by choice. Because they're dying to be thin.

Anorexia Nervosa. Bulimia. Two serious eating disorders. Illnesses that can affect people of all ages... and are most common among young women.

Symptoms — although not all victims display all of them — can include abnormal weight loss. Refusal to eat, except for tiny portions. Binging. Vomiting. Abuse of laxatives. Denial of hunger. Excessive exercise. Depression. Preoccupation with food. Absent or irregular menstruation.

And the effects can be life-long or even fatal.

Now there is HOPE — Healthy Options for Problem Eaters. A therapeutic program developed by Memorial Hospital of South Bend. HOPE is designed to help those with eating disorders return to a normal, healthy lifestyle, because Anorexia and Bulimia can be cured. But early detection is vital.

If you know someone who is a victim of an eating disorder, you can help. Register by September 14 for HOPE's next 10-week session which begins September 18. Call 284-7308 for further information. Because HOPE can help.

U.S. accuses Soviets of agreement violations

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The White House plans to issue a report within a week accusing the Soviet Union of repeated violations of nearly a quarter-century of arms control agreements with the United States, congressional and administration sources said yesterday.

The report, prepared by a presidential advisory committee, is likely to contribute to the campaign debate over President Reagan's methods of dealing with the Soviets and the lengthening suspension of negotiations between the two sides.

Reagan, stressing the difficulty of verifying Soviet compliance, has taken a skeptical stance toward dealing with Moscow. The Democratic challenger, Walter F. Mondale, has urged a new effort to work out agreements aimed at curbing the nuclear arms race.

The report was submitted to Reagan last November by his General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament and kept secret. Conservative Republican members of Congress have urged its release to bolster their claims that the Soviets are threatening U.S. security interests.

A member of the committee, weapons expert Colin Gray, urged Reagan last week to share the evidence with Congress. He said it challenges "the very notion that the superpowers retain enough common interests in arms control to warrant continuing negotiations."

"The release of the GAC report is in fact a vital necessity to rebut the 1984 Democratic platform on arms control," Sens. John P. East, R-N.C., and Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, wrote Reagan on Saturday.

Otherwise, they said, "the Carter-Mondale coverup of Soviet violations of SALT I and II remains in effect and has not yet been fully revealed."

Reagan informed Congress in January of seven claimed or probable violations of six agreements, including the 1972 and 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaties. The report adds 11 others, beginning with violations in 1961 of a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere, said a congressional source.

Other agreements the advisory committee found to have been breached over the years, according to the sources, include a Soviet commitment in 1962 not to send offensive nuclear weapons to Cuba; bans on chemical and biological weapons; the 1975 Helsinki agreement, and a pledge by the late Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in 1982 not to add to the Soviets' array of SS-20 intermediate-range missiles trained on Western Europe. All the sources spoke on condition they not be identified.

The principal findings will be made public, probably next Monday, when all members of Congress are provided with the full report. According to the sources, the State Department was opposed to disclosure because of the potential effect on already poor relations with the Soviet Union, but Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, argued for release and prevailed.

Archbishop opposes Ferraro view on abortion and politics issue

Associated Press

NEW YORK - New York Archbishop John J. O'Connor, whose championing of the anti-abortion cause has stoked debate over the role of religion in politics, charged Sunday that Geraldine Ferraro had created an incorrect "impression" that Roman Catholic teachings on abortion are flexible.

But Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, said she had "never made a statement relative to the church's teaching on abortion." And she said she would try to reach the archbishop for clarification of his comments.

In an interview after he celebrated Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, O'Connor said the "impression has been created (by Ferraro) ... that there are a variety of positions that can be held in consonance with Catholic teachings."

"Anyone who says that this is open to interpretation ... is simply not expressing what the Catholic Church teaches," he added.

When asked to specify what Ferraro has said in regard to the Catholic stand on abortion, O'Connor said he had no time to discuss the matter further.

O'Connor had also mentioned Ferraro's views on abortion on Saturday, when he talked to reporters at an anti-abortion convention in Altoona, Pa.

"I will never tell anyone ... to vote for her or against her," he said at that time. "The only thing I know about her is that she has given the world to understand that Catholic teaching is divided on the subject of abortion. Geraldine Ferraro doesn't have a problem with me. If she has a problem, it's with the pope."

The archbishop said he gets upset when politicians "misrepresent Roman Catholic teachings on abortion" by endorsing legislation that supports abortion.

Ferraro "may have very sacred beliefs, may be intensely sincere on everything she's doing," he added.

Diana gaining power along Atlantic coast

Associated Press

SAVANNAH, Ga. - Generating 95 mph winds and gaining strength, Hurricane Diana crept threateningly northeastward along the Atlantic Coast yesterday as officials evacuated low-lying areas and complained that some people refused to leave.

School was canceled in South Carolina and Georgia, beaches were closed from Florida to North Carolina, rescue boats were towed inland and military planes were flown to safer fields. Banks in Savannah closed at 2 p.m. yesterday and sent employees home.

At midnight EDT, the first Atlantic hurricane of the season was about 100 miles southeast of Savannah, drifting at about 5 mph to the northeast, the National Weather Service said. The crew of an Air Force plane reported "a well-defined eye has formed."

"Even though the hurricane is now moving toward the northeast, steering currents are weak and only a slight change in track could bring the hurricane on shore in just a few hours," cautioned forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Forecaster Hal Gerrish of the Hurricane Center said the storm could continue its very slow drifting into today, and cautioned that storms can build strength when they are moving so slowly.

The eye of the storm was located at latitude 31.5 north and longitude 79.0 west.

Smith's "Invisible Hand" and the phone system

When the Bell System was broken up at the beginning of this year Adam Smith was undoubtedly dancing in his grave and Milton Friedman probably threw a party. After all, the efficiency and lower prices of the free market were now supposedly added to long distance communication.

The mighty Goliath AT&T was cut down to size and his siblings the local telephone companies were cut loose to fend for themselves. Everybody was going to benefit, the prophets which means providing long distance service to even the smallest town in the outreaches of Wyoming, while its competitors concentrate on the more profitable long distance traffic between larger cities.

Some will argue that AT&T welcomed the break-up because it allowed it to enter the high-flying computer field and take on IBM for a share of that very profitable market. And it is difficult to argue for a company with close to 40 billion dollars in assets. But working for a large corporation lets one meet the people involved in providing service and consequently puts a more human face on the company symbol. Also one becomes exposed to the concerns of the employees about their futures and the future of the company.

A consequence of the break-up, which has mostly been overlooked, is the fact that as the market becomes even more competitive some people may not be able to afford a phone. This may sound confusing since competition usually lowers prices but one AT&T executive I talked to put forth an interesting view.

Before the break-up local service was subsidized by profits from long distance service. Therefore, the cost of local service was basically the same across the nation. Even though it is cheaper to install and provide service to a phone in Los Angeles than to a small town in South Dakota, both customers paid generally the same rate. Now, actual costs will be passed onto the consumer and people who live off the beaten path and want a phone may find the cost, once an inexpensive necessity, a very expensive luxury.

Indeed, in Portland, Oregon a new type of "soup kitchen" has developed. At a local YMCA, a free phone is being provided for people out of work who have had their phone service cut off. To these people, who may never have thought of a phone as anything special, the reality of losing one emphasizes one effect of saying good-bye to "Ma Bell."

It may be true that in the long run everything will work out and the "invisible hand" will appear once again, but right now it seems that the hand is not only invisible but non-existent.

Mark Boennighausen is a senior in the college of Arts & Letters at Notre Dame.

Mark Boennighausen

Gravity is a myth

of the free market claimed. Long distance rates would fall to such an extent that the expected rise in local telephone charges would be more than offset. The "invisible hand" would improve the nation's telephone network that was already the best in the world.

Unfortunately this wonderful scenario has not taken place. Long distance rates have dropped, especially now that many long distance carriers such as MCI and Sprint are vying for pieces of the long distance pie. A pie, until recently, almost entirely controlled by AT&T. These decreases, though, have not offset the dramatic rise in the cost of local service. In fact, in Oregon the cost for local service has doubled since the break-up. Furthermore, many consumers will claim that service has decreased and quality suffered despite the friendly, "Thank you for calling AT&T," now heard when a caller uses that long distance carrier.

This entire subject is of particular interest to me since I worked for AT&T Communications over the summer and thus I became familiar with the consequences of the divestiture of the Bell System. As AT&T fights to hold onto its once dominant share of the long distance market it faces a difficult battle. Unlike its rivals, AT&T still has to deal with much government regulation and thus has to pay more to sue local telephone exchanges.

As a result, AT&T has the unenviable task of competing in a supposedly unregulated industry while itself is still shackled by government regulations. Furthermore, AT&T is committed to providing full nationwide service,

We are N.D.

Dear Editor:

The game at the Hoosier Dome is now a part of history. Though the outcome of the game wasn't to our liking, the student body was a great example of Notre Dame's hospitality and sportsmanship.

I received many compliments from a wide variety of people, including law enforcement personnel, Indianapolis residents, and Purdue fans concerning the student body. A front page article in The Indianapolis Star on Sunday was also highly complimentary.

The chant, "We are N.D.," was frequently heard in the Hoosier Dome. More importantly, you showed all in "Hoosier Land" that N.D. means class.

did not even blink at spending $421.00 for a generic hammer.

These are just a few of the points Healy selectively chose to ignore. There are many more. Of course, the fact that the United States suffered its worst recession since the Great Depression during Reagan's term only seals Healy's point that the choice is indubitably clear.

Come on Paul

Dear Editor:

So, Paul Cimino wants to bring back the death penalty. His argument has a lot of history behind it. An eye for an eye. The kind of justice that made our American frontier such a safe place to bring up the kids. Come on Paul! The death penalty is gone because it just doesn't work. A great deterrent to crime? Check the stats. You'll find that murderers aren't exactly the most reflective of people in the world.

I don't know what the answer is or if there really can be an answer, but I do know how easy it is to confuse justice with revenge. We're sorry for your uncle, Paul, but don't be so quick to throw the switch.

Good job Bill

Dear Editor:

Please convey my appreciation to Bill Healy for his activism and involvement in the present election campaign. From my own student days I will know the time and commitment his position must require of him.

Whether we are for Reagan or not, I believe we still have to exercise critical judgment in our evaluations or our country's policy. For example, we might ask, what is the data base for stating "we have regained respect around the world"? To what statements from what governments or peoples are we referring? Again, and more importantly, we might ask, by what criteria do we evaluate that "we acted justly" in the invasion of Grenada? I don't believe our attack satisfied the requirements either of the War Powers Act, or those of ius ad bellum in the Christian Just War Theory.

Finally, I think Bill would want to know that he may have unthinkingly erred when he stated about Grenada, "when we were finished, we left." At last report in the New York Times about two weeks ago, we still have several hundred troops in Grenada, together with well over 1,000 "foreign troops" and our own troops are training a Grenadan police force, in contravention of the OAS treaty.

Again, my deepest regards to Bill for all his efforts on behalf of our community.

Father G. Simon Harak, S.J.

Vote on that

Dear Editor:

I never thought that I would see the day. I used to think that there was no justice in this world, but now I know that just isn't true. Yes, believe it or not, the HPC has voted in favor of the Off-Campus Representative and he or she can now vote in the HPC. That's great, but who the hell cares. I'm all for a more democratic society, but I believe that there has to be something to vote about first. When was the last time a vote in the HPC had a genuine effect on your life as a student? The only one that I can think of is their vote to raise the Student Activities Fee, and I am only aware of it because it showed up on my tuition bill this fall.

Reagan wrongs

Dear Editor:

The problem with Bill Healy's recent analysis of the "Reagan success" is that he neglects to mention any of the 73-year-old's errors. To measure a success one needs to look at what didn't work as well as what did. Healy fails to note:

- A budget deficit whose down payment might be made by 1989 — such a borrowing against the future will only constrain the government's options in the future.
- 269 dead Marines in Lebanon—if such is the result of "coherent foreign policy," then give us incoherence.
- 33 percent of Americans with incomes below the poverty level in 1982, a rise from 28.9 percent in 1980 (Economic Report of the President, 1983).
- An administration that has seen more top-level resignations due to conflicts of interest and other scandals than any other since Richard Nixon's Watergate administration.
- An increase in military spending unseen in peacetime — so many dollars chasing around the walls of the Pentagon that defense officials

This is what I cannot understand. According to the Senate Representative in my hall, the student government always has money left over at the end of the year. Every fall, the University gives the student council and its many committees thousands of dollars to spend on student activities. Yet, year after year, the student council returns thousands of dollars, money that is not given back to the next year's budget. Certainly they cannot have trouble finding things to spend it on. How about some good concerts at the ACC. I'm sure there are many students that would like to see the Boss or Elvis Costello instead of AC/DC or Wayne Newton. Or perhaps a concert sponsored by the Student Union would be a bad idea after what happened at the Billy Joel concert last year.

All that I am saying is that the HPC and all of the student government should use their funds wisely, and who knows, maybe we will have a social life at Notre Dame. Put that to vote!

The inside story on the theology requirement

When the department of theology announced a curriculum change in the courses designed to fulfill the University requirement for six credits in Theology, the point and purpose of the changes were obscured by the cloud of controversy which immediately encompassed it. Now that the dust has settled (and the grittiness of the cloud leads us to believe there was more dust than mist), I would like to state plainly why and how the change came about, and exactly what it entails. What leads me to believe this effort will not be in vain is that last spring when I spoke directly with students who were disturbed about the changes, my explanations set the students at ease.

F. Ellen Weaver

guest column

1. It was the University Curriculum Committee which mandated the departments of theology and philosophy to review the content of their two-course requirement. This committee was formed by the provost to implement a recommendation in the 1982 Report on Priorities and Commitments for Excellence (PACE), namely, that, the role of philosophy and theology in general education requirements be examined."

2. The department of theology formed an ad hoc curriculum committee for this task. The committee met several times from May 1983 until they submitted a proposal for curriculum change to the faculty on 14 November, 1983. The following is the text of the preamble to their proposal, which explains the rationale behind the new curriculum.

The ad hoc curriculum committee of the department of theology has carefully considered the recommendations made to them by the faculty. They have also consulted among themselves. It should be noted that all members of the committee have taught the Introduction to Theology course, most of them many times. They have then examined the present theology requirement of two courses and evaluated how the department meets the needs of the students.

Such an examination of the theology requirement needs to be made periodically because of the rapidity of change in society, in the self-understanding of the Roman Catholic Church over the past twenty years, and in the changing profile of the students.

The students now attending Notre Dame have only known a Church in change. They were born as Vatican II began. One should avoid generalizations about the students' theological background, but factors such as changes in theological education, rapid and public discussion of the increased prominence of attendance at public high schools, and the unclear union of theological education with adolescence argue for an appreciation that the students need to learn not only theological method but content, not only an adult critical approach to thinking about their faith, but something of the content and history of the faith.

To meet the needs of these students, over 90 percent of whom are Roman Catholic, the Committee proposes two courses which together would comprise an exposition of the Christian tradition with special attention to Roman Catholicism. We have drawn up criteria for the courses, and made suggestions as to how they could be taught in a manner that would utilize all the faculty to their best advantage.

3. The faculty voted to accept the new "two course sequence in theology" proposed by the ad hoc curriculum committee.

4. The new courses are described in the Bulletin of Information as follows:

Arts and Letters Requirements

Theology. The University requires that all students take two courses (six credit hours) in theology. The first course, Foundations of Theology: Biblical and Historical (Theology 100 or Theology 200), is an academic introduction to the college-level study of Scripture and, through documents of the early Church, a critical understanding of the foundations of Christian doctrine.

The second course is normally chosen from courses numbered 201-299. This course builds on an intelligent grasp of tradition to show how theological doctrines developed, especially in the Catholic tradition. This understanding helps students come to a more mature comprehension of their faith and appreciate the intellectual history of Catholicism.

Students with adequate background may choose a course from the 300 or 400 level to satisfy the second requirement.

Theology is required of all students because it is an intellectual inquiry as academically valid as any other discipline and because the college strongly believes that every student should reflect on and personally face the questions of a human being's relation to God.

5. A few final points may need clarification. First, this new ruling is, of course, not retroactive. Students who have taken a "first course" and one numbered 300 and above as a "second course" before this revision have fulfilled their requirements.

Second, the "adequate background" mentioned in the third paragraph of the Bulletin description must be in Catholic theology for Catholic students, and a broader Christian theology for other students. Exceptions are also made on choice of the second course under certain other conditions; for example, a non-Christian student who wishes to take a course outside the Christian theological tradition.

In sum, the change was not so radical as depicted in some of the criticism of it last semester. We believe the sequence is logical. The first four centuries, treated in the Foundations course are, of course, part of the history of the entire Christian tradition. Also, the historical aspects of this course are part of the cultural heritage of Western civilization, Christian and non-Christian alike. The treatment of doctrinal developments in the second course focuses on the Catholic tradition, in keeping with the reasons for which Theology is a requirement at the University of Notre Dame, but even this focus is not exclusive. On the contrary, the course must take into serious and sympathetic account the insights and contributions of other traditions, and open students to the ecumenical, indeed "universal," nature of Catholicism itself.

If questions and concerns remain, please bring them directly to my attention. I stand ready to help in any way I can.

F. Ellen Weaver is an assistant chairman and collegiate director in the theology department at Notre Dame.

Amnesty International is making a real difference

"We are God in here," warned a guard who repeatedly applied electric shocks to the woman's body. As she laid handcuffed to the springs of a metal bed, her screams were echoed by the cries of other victims and the laughter of their torturers. "They called us 'the walking dead,' reminding us constantly that the only thing to be decided was the time of our death."

Graciela's nightmare in an Argentine jail in 1979 - Torture in the 80's.

Torture does not simply occur because individual torturers are sadistic, even though testimonies verify that they often are. Torture

Santiago O'Donnell

free-lance

is usually part of a state controlled machinery to suppress dissidence.

In the Soviet Union's psychiatric hospitals, prisoners are treated with pain-causing drugs. Such is the case of Vladimir Tsurkov, a 35 year-old worker, interned for his peaceful efforts to emigrate in 1980. He describes his torture.

"The triftazin (sterazine) made me writhe, and my legs began to twist about in a ridiculous way. I lost the ability to walk and felt sharp pains in my buttocks, at any movement feinting fits began, recurring very often. I fell and hit my head on the floor and on brick walls. The pain prevented me from sleeping or eating. The sulfazine made my temperature rise, and it stayed around 104 degrees fahrenheit. This nightmare lasted a week."

In 1975, the United Nations unanimously adopted the Declaration against Torture, but in the 1980s more than one third of the world's governments are involved in the torturing of prisoners.

If you are looking for a group with clear-cut apolitical objectives, and the possibility of improving the world in a meaningful and substantial way, the ND-SMC branch of Amnesty International is kicking off its campaign against torture tonight at Saint Mary's Hagar Center.

As John Dardis, the ND-SMC Amnesty group coordinator for the past two years, explained, "Forty years ago the world was horrified by the Holocaust, but stuff like that is still going on every day." One prisoner in Turkey witnessed the torture of a married couple in 1981 and related the following account.

"In the presence of four or five torturers they were undressed and made totally naked. One torturer played with the genital organs of the wife, squeezing her breasts and caressing her hair, while her husband watched ... (then) they gave an electric shock to his penis and hung him by his feet. They threatened to rape his wife unless he would admit to the accusations made against him."

Amnesty International is a human rights organization primarily concerned with the fate of political prisoners ("prisoners of conscience") around the world. Its standard is the United Nations' Declaration of Human Rights.

John Dardis describes his organization, "Our group works for real change, as opposed to simple protest or condemnation. Besides special events, like this year's campaign against torture, we take individual cases and work for the prisoner's freedom, and to improve his or her condition. Since our group started in 1973, we have succeeded with a Cameroon chemistry student, a Rhodesian student, an Argentine priest, a Phillipine woman, and a Pakistani woman.

"Our goals this year are the freedom of an Argentine woman and a Syrian lawyer. Our ultimate goal, to abolish torture in the world, is a very realistic one. We will end torture like we ended slavery not too long ago."

"Considering the Christian Doctrine of Human Rights, there should be a lot more interest in this subject. I would like to see more people involved with human rights."

In Argentina, my country, 20,000 have people "disappeared" and many more were tortured. But thanks to the efforts of the ND-SMC Amnesty International at least one life, that of an Argentine priest, was saved.

Cubs' magic number reduced to 12

Mets fall to St. Louis Cardinals

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Willie McGee sliced a two-out, two-run double to snap a seventh-inning tie and Dave LaPoint and Bruce Sutter combined on a six-hitter last night as the St. Louis Cardinals downed the New York Mets 3-2.

The loss dropped the second-place Mets seven games behind the National League East-leading Chicago Cubs, who beat Philadelphia 3-2 yesterday. The Cubs' magic number was reduced to 12 with the Mets' loss.

With the score tied 1-1, Darrell Porter blooped a one-out single in the seventh and took second on a groundout. After Sid Fernandez, 4-5, walked LaPoint, McGee lined a full-count delivery just inside the right field line to score both runners.

LaPoint, 10-10, who has just two complete games in 85 career starts, was relieved by Sutter with no outs in the ninth after Mookie Wilson led off the inning with a double.

Nolan Ryan, 12-10, was the loser despite striking out nine batters in six innings and increasing his all-time career strikeout lead over Steve Carlton to 11 - 3,871-3,860.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 2

TORONTO - Don Mattingly snapped a 2-2 tie with a three-run homer in the fifth inning last night to pace the New York Yankees to a 6-2 victory over the slumping Toronto Blue Jays, who lost their fifth straight game.

Mattingly, who doubled home a run in the two-run Yankee first inning, smashed a pitch from Dave Steib, 14-6, over the right field fence for his 21st home run of the season.

John Montefusco had checked the Jays on seven hits through six innings to run his record to 3-2.

The Yanks' Butch Wynegar hit his sixth homer of the season.

Expos 8, Pirates 5

PITTSBURGH - Jim Wohlford drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a single to lead the Montreal Expos to an 8-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates last night.

Dick Grapenthin, 1-2, pitched 4 2-3 innings of one-hit relief to earn his first major-league win.

Wohlford's fourth homer of the season came in the first inning off starter John Candelaria. It followed a walk to Andre Dawson and single by Gary Carter.

Pittsburgh scored four runs in the bottom of the first off starter Dave Palmer, who retired only one hitter before giving way to Grapenthin. Lee Lacy, Jason Thompson and Tony Pena had RBI singles and Denny Gonzales drew a bases-loaded walk.

Braves 3, Astros 1

HOUSTON - Rookie left-hander Zane Smith won his first major-league game last night, pitching the Atlanta Braves to a 3-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Smith, who was brought up from the Braves' Richmond farm team on Sept. 2, combined with reliever Pete Falcone for a seven-hitter in his first major-league appearance. Falcone picked up his second save and Brad Kominski singled in the winning run in the fifth inning as the Braves knocked the second-place Astros 9 games behind San Diego and reduced the Padres' magic number to 10.

Perles: Michigan State ready for Notre Dame

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. - Michigan State football Coach George Perles isn't letting Notre Dame's opening loss affect his attitude about playing the Fighting Irish this week, saying the Spartans' opponents "have a lot going for them."

"I don't know if it gives us an advantage. Notre Dame is a big challenge," Perles said yesterday at his weekly luncheon with sports broadcasters and writers. "They're the biggest team we'll play."

But Perles reminded everyone the same was true last year when the underdog Spartans went to South Bend, Ind., and knocked off the top-ranked team.

"It proved to our players that even though they were 21-point underdogs, ... you still have the opportunity to beat it," the coach said. "It gives them confidence" that the smaller Spartans can handle the bigger opponents.

"If you use your leverage and technique, you can overcome that," Perles said. "The setting is right. We'll play at home."

Tom Allan, the Spartans' 6-foot-1, 243-pound defensive end who will be dwarfed by a Notre Dame offensive front that averages about 271 pounds, said the size difference will "psyche us up." And he agreed last year's upset is proof that quickness and technique can overcome that obstacle.

But he noted that last year's matchup will weigh heavy in the minds of the Fighting Irish.

"For them, it's a definite advantage," Allan said. "They're going to be so sky high to come in here and get revenge."

Notre Dame lost to Purdue in the Indianapolis Hoosier Dome by a 23-

21 score Saturday. Michigan State survived a fourth-quarter scare to score a 24-21 victory over Colorado at Boulder, Colo.

Saturday's game will be the second for both teams.

"I think they would come at us the same as if they had won against Purdue," Perles said. "They had some bad luck. They just had some careless mistakes, which makes the difference in a close ball game."

"But they have pretty sharp kids there," he added. "They're down for a very short period of time."

And he defended beleaguered Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust, who is under fire from fans and alumni for a mediocre record at football-crazed Notre Dame.

"I have a lot of respect for Gerry Faust," Perles said, "because of all the criticism he takes. He sticks by his guns."

Allan said Notre Dame's biggest strength appears to be its running attack, led by 5-foot-9 junior tailback Allen Pinkett, who gained 69 yards last Saturday. "He's amazing," Allan said.

But he added that the Spartans 4-3 stunt defense, which held Colorado to 14 yards, is flexible.

On the offensive side, Perles admitted he was too conservative against Colorado but denied saving any surprises for Notre Dame this week.

Will quarterback Dave Yarema, who threw 13 times completing nine for 145 yards on Saturday, throw more this week? Perles was noncommittal.

"It all depends," Perles said. "We're ready to go into the game thinking we're going to run the ball half the time and throw half the time."

Can he play the perfect game?

Payton closes in on Brown's record

Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. - Walter Payton, the Chicago Bears' premier running back, has two goals other than leading his team to a championship - one realistic, the other the impossible dream of perfection.

Payton, who is nearing Jim Brown's National Football League career rushing record, has set 15,000 yards as his realistic goal.

The dream is to play what Payton considers the perfect football game.

"To play the perfect game, as I see it," he said, "is to make every block I'm supposed to make, to fake out everyone who is keying on me, to catch every pass thrown, and to run as hard as I can and hit every hole I'm supposed to hit.

"People will say, 'He's crazy, he'll never do it,' but how will you ever know unless you try?" said Payton. "And even if you don't do it, you'll be a better person for having tried."

Payton, 30, is in his 10th year in the NFL. When he rushed for 179 yards and gained seven yards on two pass receptions Sunday in a 27-0 victory over Denver, he ran his combined-yardage total to 15,517 yards, breaking Brown's record of 15,459.

He also boosted his career rushing total to 11,865 yards, 447 short of Brown's record of 12,312.

He says he now seeks the haughty figure of 15,000 yards because "if you set your sights on small things, that's what happens. I'm setting my sights higher."

Payton, who has two more years on his current contract with the Bears - which pays him about $240,000 per year for the next 43 years - has no doubt he will reach 15,000 yards.

Rozier leaves Maulers for Houston Oilers

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - Mike Rozier will no longer play for the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League and has been offered an opportunity to buy out his contract, his agent said last night.

The running back hopes to sign with the Houston Oilers, who selected him in a supplemental National Football League draft, if not this season, then next, said Art Wilkinson.

"They want us to give them back the signing bonus of $1.3 million plus the $300,000 Mike received for playing last season, and they want it tomorrow," Wilkinson said of the Maulers.

The agent said Rozier, the 1983 Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Nebraska, was adamant about not playing again for the Maulers, though two years remain on his three-year deal, which Wilkinson described as a personal service contract to Edward J. DeBartolo, Sr., the club's owner.

Wilkinson conceded that DeBartolo could seek to have Rozier fulfill the contract. "That's something they will have to decide," the agent said.

Women's tennis team beats Purdue to open last year in Division II play

By MICHAEL J. CHMIEL
Sports Writer

Aiming to finally capture the NCAA national championship in what appears to be their final year in Division II, the members of the Notre Dame women's tennis team began the new season by taking six of nine matches against a tough squad from Purdue at West Lafayette on Friday.

"The girls had come back with a great attitude and are playing much better tennis," commented Irish head coach Sharon Petro.

In this initial meeting, the Irish were without the services of their

No. 1 starter - junior Susie Panther, who was injured last week in practice.

"We were happy, especially when we were playing without our No. 1 player (Panther)," said Petro. "Probably with Susie we could have done even a little better."

Despite Panther's absence, the Irish were still successful, taking four out of six singles matches against the Boilermakers.

Junior Mary Colligan lost to Molly McGrath of Purdue, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, in the opening challenge only to be followed by senior Lisa LaFratta's loss to Shelly Weiner, 6-2, 6-4.

Junior Izzy O'Brien brought the Irish back in the third match by downing Jennifer Allen 7-5, 6-1. The singles action was then concluded with three more Irish wins: sophomore JoAnn Biafore beat Debbie Mackey 6-1, 6-3; senior Cathy Schnell downed Debbie Prochaska 6-2, 7-6; and, senior Laura Lee trounced Karen Reiss 6-1, 6-2.

In doubles action, the Irish took two of three after once again losing in the opening matchup.

To open the action, Lee and LaFratta lost to McGrath and Allen of the Boilers 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. However, Colligan and O'Brien were able to bring the Irish back with a 6-1, 6-3 downing of Purdue's Weiner and Prochaska team. Schnell and freshman Michelle Dasso wound up the action by burying a team of Mackey and Laurie DeCamp, 6-1, 6-1.

"We played well for the first time out," said Petro, "and I think Purdue had about a week on us in preparation."

On Sunday, the Irish had their meeting with North Star Conference rival Butler cancelled due to rain.

"I really wanted to play them (Butler)," said Petro. "We'll (have to wait to) see them in the conference tournament and we'll beat them there."

"I think we're going to be the strongest team in the conference and they're the next strongest."

Tomorrow, Notre Dame will travel to Chicago, where they will face a team from the University of Illinois at Chicago. On Friday, they will journey to Champaign, Illinois, facing a tough Big Ten team in Illinois.

Volleyball team easily defeats St. Francis

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Experience. It makes all the difference on the court. And experience is what the Notre Dame women's volleyball team is striving to gain this season.

Last night in the Tacomah Gymnasium, skill and talent tipped the odds in favor of Notre Dame as the Irish easily defeated Saint Francis College 15-6, 15-7 and 15-10 and improved the team's season record to 2-3. "We had the better program and it was an easy win," said senior netter Josie Maternowski. "We had a chance to use substitutes, which is good for our younger players."

After the match, Notre Dame Coach Art Lambert said there was no question who had the better team and doubted Saint Francis would appear on Notre Dame's schedule next season. "After the match their coach came up to me and said, 'I wish we could have given you a better match.'"

Unfortunately, inexperience worked against the Irish this weekend when they competed in the Illinois Tournament at the University of Illinois. Notre Dame rounded out the four team tournament finishing a disappointing fourth behind the University of Georgia, the University of Illinois and the University of Missouri.

"We haven't spent much time on offense," said Lambert. "We've got an inexperienced freshman setter who has a bright future, but it takes time.... You can't play the heavies and expect to win right away."

In Friday's first round of competition, the Irish fell to the Illini, 15-4, 15-4, 15-3. However, the low scores are deceiving. The Irish were competitive with the Illini defensively, but couldn't muster the savvy to score. "We don't know how to win yet," explained Lambert. "You can have all the technical skill in the world and still not win. We're get-

Purdue wins, 2-1

Field hockey opens with new coach

By MARK S. PANKOWSKI
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's field hockey team opened the 1984 season in disappointing fashion Sunday. Purdue, coming off a preseason tournament in which they faced such teams as Penn State and Villanova, beat the inexperienced Irish, 2-1.

The young Notre Dame team, beginning its first season under head coach Jill Lindenfeld, played very well defensively but couldn't seem to get it cranked up offensively. The lone goal was scored by junior Melissa Sommer, who later was forced to leave the game with a tooth problem. The Irish team also lost starting right back Mary Rose Rodgers with a possible broken nose.

Despite the loss of two of their starters, the Irish played well. They had a goal nullified on a controversial call that would have put them up, 2-1. Later in the second half, Purdue scored the go-ahead and eventual winning goal on a penalty stroke from six yards out. Notre Dame tried desperately to tie the game again, but they could never seem to sustain an attack on goal.

Even though the Irish lost, Coach Lindenfeld felt relatively positive about their effort. "I feel optimistic," she said. "It was a good opener despite the loss."

Lindenfeld cited junior Molly McCabe and the only starting freshman, Benet DeBerry, as standouts offensively. "Molly McCabe centered the ball nicely and Benet DeBerry played particularly well in the second half," the Irish coach said.

Lindenfeld thought junior goalie Patti Gallagher, who was injured and did not practice all week, played an excellent game. Other than mentioning Gallagher's fine play, the first year coach would not single out individuals on defense, believing the team as a whole deserved praise. "We played hard and didn't give up," Lindenfeld said.

However, with the loss comes the need for improvement. Coach Lindenfeld felt the team needed work on using the entire field consistently and particularly needed practice on their stickwork.

Lindenfeld summed up the Purdue game by saying, "I see it to be beneficial because we now realize how far we have to go stickwork-wise. It also gave us an indication of Division I talent. I now know what is to be expected and so do the players."

This weekend the Notre Dame women's field hockey team will play several games at Sauk Valley College. The next home game is against Valparaiso College on Friday, Sept. 21, at 4 p.m.

The Observer/Vic Guarino
Freshman John Fossella is one soccer player who was pleased to reach his goal in a game last Sunday against the University of Louisville. Notre Dame meets a traditionally easy opponent, Bethel College, today at 3:30 in an attempt to up its record to 4-0.

Nester ready to contribute at SMC

By MARK B. JOHNSON
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

Little known to most Notre Dame-Saint Mary's sports aficionados is the existence of the Belles, a dedicated group of women who have consistently proven themselves and the quality of their athletic program to critics during their short four year existence. Despite the high level of competition and success on a national scale these ladies have yet to overcome their most formidable foe, obscurity, because no one has taken the time to fully recognize their accomplishments.

After the recording of brilliant tennis, softball and swimming campaigns during the 1983-84 season, as well as strong showings in the four other varsity sports, to all but the few ardent supporters it appeared as if the Belles had reached their outer limit of achievement, but hang on folks because you ain't seen nothin'

yet. Stepping down from her position as director of athletics and recreation after four very productive years in order to better concentrate on raising a family, Erin Lorenz opened

The Notre Dame soccer team will travel across town today to meet Bethel College in a game beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Bethel usually is a very easy opponent for the Irish, and Notre Dame holds a 6-0 advantage in the series between the two teams. The Irish have outscored Bethel, 44-3, in their six contests.

A win today would increase Notre Dame's record to 4-0 this year and sustain a nine-game winning streak begun last October.

Bethel College is located on McKinley Road at Logan in South Bend.
