A reportedly unsolicited attempt to save the University approximately half a million dollars was undertaken on the Stepan Mall by some North Quad students sometime Thursday night. The im-

Spring Student Senate budget vote overruled by activities director

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Copy Editor

At least one Student Senator is outraged by the decision of Director of Student Activities Joni Neal to overrule the Student Senate's vote to approve a two-thirds, one-third allocation of student activities fees.

In its final meeting of the spring semester, the senate had voted to allocate two-thirds of the student activity fee budget then, and to hold the other one-third until it could be reviewed in the fall when they had more time.

Neal's decision last spring, however, nullified that vote and the entire budget was approved without the senate's consent.

Student Senator Chris Abood, citing provisions in the Student Government Constitution giving the senate the power to allocate student funds, accused Neal last week of taking away that power, thereby contradicting the constitution and appearing to invalidate it.

Neal, who made the decision after Vice President of Student Affairs Father David Tyson gave his approval, said she acted because "the Senate had not finished its job. They had to have a budget."

She mentioned two reasons why the two-thirds, one-third split was unacceptable.

"First, the University has a vested interest in that money. No one has a choice of paying the mandatory (student activities) fee," she said. "It is run through the University accounts and the University really does have the last say from an administration point of view on how those funds are spent."

"The other reason is because (clubs and organizations) can't run on a partial budget. Groups can't wait until the fall because they have to have the summer to plan," she said.

Father David Tyson agreed. Said Tyson, "The senate did not do what they were supposed to do."

"If the budget wasn't allocated and sealed, which it wasn't, then the student body would have returned and there would not have been all these activities which are now going on."

Abood also cited the constitution's provision giving the senate the power to determine the fiscal policies of student government and said this year's senate had never approved of the fiscal policies.

He said former Director of Student Activities Jim McDowell two years ago had "fabricated his own set of fiscal policies" and Neal again had decided "to hand down the same set of rules."

According to Neal, she had worked with the 1983-84 Student Body President Brian Callaghan and Vice President Peggy Prevostnick, who she said, were instrumental in formulating the fiscal policy. Neal added she was "almost positive" that the senate had approved it that year.

Records show that the 1983-84 senate did abide by the fiscal policy, although they are unclear whether the senate had approved it.

Although the fiscal policy was never approved by this year's senate, said Student Body President Bill Healy, "that argument is invalid because, by precedent, last year's senate came into power and followed that fiscal policy."

The controversy surrounding the fiscal policy stems from its stipulations providing for two committees, one that allocates 80 percent of the budget, the other 20 percent.

Classes, which Abood said are becoming more important to students' social life, fall under the 20-percent committee.

Because classes do come under the 20-percent committee, they must share 20 percent of the approximate $250,000 budget with several clubs and organizations.

East L.A. residents assist police in capture of alleged Night Stalker

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Richard Ramirez, a suspect in 16 slayings throughout Southern California, was arrested Saturday after he was chased and beaten by a group of residents in East Los Angeles when he allegedly punched a woman and tried to steal a car.

The capture ended an hour-long chase that began when shoppers at a liquor store reported that Ramirez picked up a newspaper, looked at his photograph on the cover, and fled, said Los Angeles Police Commander William Booth.

Police identified and released a photograph of Ramirez on Friday night. They identified him as the prime suspect in the Night Stalker series of 16 slayings and at least 21 assaults that has terrorized California since Feb. 8. The victims were shot, bludgeoned, stabbed or had their throats slashed by an assailant who sneaked into darkened homes through unlocked doors or windows.

Police launched an air and ground search as calls continued, saying the man was seen crossing the city line into unincorporated county territory, where he finally was arrested.

"It seemed like alert citizens were reporting the suspect every step of the way," said Booth.

At one point Ramirez ran through backyards, where at least one man struck him with some barbecue utensils, Booth said.

Ramirez ended up in an East Los Angeles neighborhood, where he allegedly tried to steal a car, but crashed it into a house while trying to back it out of a driveway, said Booth.

He crossed the street and pulled Angie De La Torre, 29, from her car in front of her home and tried to grab her keys, witnesses said.

"He hit her in the stomach. She fought back," said the woman's brother, Juan Hernandez, 17. "She recognized him right away. She screamed, 'It's the killer, the killer!'"

"My brother-in-law took a metal stick from the gate and started chasing him," Hernandez said of Manuel De La Torre, 35. "He hit him in the head three times."

As Ramirez tried to flee, neighbors emerged from their homes and joined in the fight, police said.

Ramirez had had problems with drugs since his childhood in El Paso, Texas, suffered epilepsy and was working as a street sweeper for the city of Los Angeles, relatives told newspapers.

Ramirez, 25, was being held without bail Sunday after being booked for investigation of one unspecified count of murder and for attempted auto theft and assault. He was not to be arraigned until Tuesday.

Sheriff's deputies took Ramirez for questioning to the Hollenbeck Station, where a surging crowd of about 500 jeering people gathered outside, shouting "Kill him! kill him!"

About 50 officers formed a human chain to protect the handcuffed Ramirez as he walked from the station to an unmarked police car for transfer to the main county jail.

Donations set record

Notre Dame received a record breaking gift income of $33.8 million in the fiscal year 1985 according to William Sexton, vice president for University relations.

The total of $33.8 million represents an increase of 40 percent over fiscal year 1984 and an increase of $2.3 million over the previous University record of $31.5 million in fiscal year 1981.

According to Director of Development, Joseph Sandman, the University also received record breaking gift totals in the areas of corporate giving ($9.7 million) and parental giving ($7.5 million). The percentage donated by alumni was also up 48 percent.

"The main reason for the increase is that the Notre Dame alumni, parents, and friends endorse the Notre Dame mission. Notre Dame is unique nationally in that it maintains both a strong graduate and a strong undergraduate program while also keeping a Catholic character," said Sandman.

A talented development staff is another reason for the increase in the gift income. This development staff has used several new fund-raisers, including the newly-created Sorin Society as well as an annual phone-a-thon.

According to Sandman, most of the money is being apportioned for buildings, scholarships, research, and the Notre Dame libraries.

Student receives gun-shot wound at afternoon field hockey practice

By MARK PANKOWSKI

A Notre Dame field hockey player is recovering from a minor gun-shot wound to her leg, sustained during a Thursday afternoon practice at Car-tier field.

Christina Weinmann, a senior co-captain on the team, was taken to Saint Joseph's Medical Center after being wounded by a small-caliber bullet four inches above her ankle while warming-up before practice.

Notre Dame Security, which is investigating the incident, would not comment yesterday on whether a suspect had been apprehended.

Weinmann, who returned to her dorm Friday morning, said she was "facing the Golden Dome on the north(west) side" of the field when she was hit. The trajectory of the bullet, she said, indicated it was fired from a patch of woods at the corner of Eddy and Edison streets.

She said the nine-millimeter bullet, which was fired from a .22 or a .38, was on the way down when it struck her.

"Personally, I don't think anyone was trying to shoot me," she said. "I think it was a stray bullet."

Dr. Willard Yergler, director of sports medicine at Notre Dame, performed the half-hour surgery on Weinmann's leg.

"The bullet didn't have any power and didn't do any serious damage," he said. "It didn't strike the bone, but just hit soft tissue."

Weinmann's description was slightly more graphic.

"It was really gross. I didn't want to look at it, but I did and there was a big hole in my leg," she said. "(The bullet) entered the left side of my leg and was protruding through the right side."

"You could see the bullet. It just missed going all the way through," she added.

Yergler said Weinmann should recover in approximately 10 days to two weeks, and said there should be no complications.

The incident, Weinmann said, occurred at approximately 3:55 p.m.

"I bent down to stretch and I heard a loud whipping sound," she

The Rev. Jesse Jackson spoke at the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Lynchburg, Va. church yesterday, and said the two shared some ideas on how to end apartheid in South Africa. Jackson, speaking at Thomas Road Baptist Church, said the situation in South Africa, where the white minority deprives the black majority of political power, presents a moral issue best addressed by the Golden Rule. Jackson, a civil rights leader, said he and Falwell, the founder of Moral Majority, "have shared various points of view on how to end apartheid." Falwell, who did not attend the breakfast, said he thought it was only fair to let Jackson speak at Thomas Road Baptist Church. "I told Jesse that it would probably be better not to have a debate forum, but to say anything he wished," Falwell said. "Talking with Jerry was a chance to share with him face to face how hurt people were, how as Christians we ought to find alternatives to apartheid or communism, the issues to end apartheid and fight for democracy," he said. - AP

Students of the 80s
avoid confrontation of the 60s

The not-quite-stiff body of a college student lies face down on the pavement. Another student crumples over him, the agony and disbelief on her face summarizing the incident known simply as "Kent State." This scene, a nationally famous photograph, captured on a square of film nearly a decade of social upheaval and disgust with the war in Vietnam. It won a Pulitzer Prize.

Last spring, fifteen years after the National Guard opened fire on a group of protesting students, more than 30 universities were the sites of student demonstrations. Some social historians have compared the new activism to that of the '60s and '70s. This time around, subjects in focus are broader than the Vietnam War. Among issues to which students are publicizing opposition is apartheid in South Africa.

At last April's meeting of the Student Affairs Committee of the Notre Dame Board of Trustees, a small band of student representatives demonstrated their concern over University investments.

There were no Pulitzer Prize opportunities at this demonstration. In attendance were 11 students requesting a meeting with the University's Investment Committee. John Dettling, chairman of the student government committee for responsible business practices, presented the appeal, "It's not that we're suspicious, we're just interested."

"There has been both disruption and discussion on other campuses over this issue, but at Notre Dame there has only been discussion," Dettling said. He emphasized the committee's strategy, "We've been careful not to make the mistake of being antagonistic and confrontational."

Veterans of the 1960s demonstrations might be surprised by the temperance of the students' concern with the University's dealings in South Africa, but it was fairly representative of this decade's college protests. Few such demonstrations have been violent. Many have been planned with cooperation from campus authorities. At Kent State, the university funded the demonstration that marked the killing of four students.

In protest of the University of Massachusetts' alleged violation of its policy of South African disinvestment, approximately 300 students camped out in administration offices for three nights early last April. Chancellor Joseph Duffy brought hamburgers and french fries for the students when he met with them.

The recent college protests may be less dramatic than those of the '60s; however, the participating students are demonstrating social responsibility. "I think

Sarah
Hamilton

Editor-in-Chief

students are less into theatrics than they were in the '60s," said Alicia Svigala, 22, an activist at Brown. "There are mainstream-looking students participating here. They've done serious research into these problems and are involved in a lot of planning for these activities."

"Violence versus nonviolence is almost an abstraction. This is more along the lines of civil disobedience, giving the system a chance," said Sandor Katz, 22, another Brown student.

There may be fewer photo opportunities with the new activism, but the students are achieving results. Yale University, for one, agreed after a student protest, to stop investments in three companies with dealings in South Africa. Likewise, governing boards of Northwestern University and the University of Illinois have agreed to study proposals of disinvestment.

After the hamburger and french fry session, the University of Massachusetts consented to create a commission consisting of students, faculty and administration to study its disinvestment policy. At Notre Dame, three students serve together with trustees, faculty members and administrators on the Trustees Ad Hoc Committee on South African Investments. Last week the committee met to review the University's policy and prepare proposals for the Board of Trustees' meeting in November.

No Pulitzer-winning photo may be shot at a campus demonstration this year. Rather than trying to fight the system through fires and violent protests, students of the '80s are attempting to change it, often elbow-to-elbow around a university conference table with administrators. It seems to be working. If so, maybe a Pulitzer will go to a frame of a racially integrated South Africa.

Inmates set fire in Eire

Associated Press

CORK, Ireland - About 70 inmates, some wielding pickaxes and pitchforks, seized control of the Spike Island prison compound off the Irish coast yesterday and set it afire, leaving three-fourths of the prison a smoldering ruin, police said.

Riot-equipped police, backed by Irish soldiers, moved in to restore order at the minimum-security prison. No terrorist convicts are housed in the compound.

About 40 inmates clambered onto the roof of a two-story recreation hall and held out for a time, but gave up and climbed down as dusk fell, police said.

Inmates had commandeered a bulldozer and smashed across the compound as they torched buildings, witnesses said. They said three buildings were destroyed and two others heavily damaged.

One guard was slightly injured by a gasoline bomb, but no inmates were reported hurt, police said.

Justice Minister Michael Noonan had said the rooftop protesters could stay there "until they come to their senses and realize that no prison system will tolerate activities of the type that they have been indulging in."

Noonan rejected their demands for transfers to mainland jails of their choice and assurances that they would not lose the normal time off for good behavior from their sentences as a result of the disturbances.

New Saint Mary's faculty and staff added for fall semester

By ANN KALTENBACH
Senior Staff Reporter

It's that time of year again.

Saint Mary's has recently added new smiling faculty faces and administrative staff appointments.

Beginning duties as Holy Cross Hall residence director is Teresa Garrick. She is currently completing a master of arts degree at Pacific Lutheran University and was formerly assistant director of student activities and director of Elderhostel at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

"I needed residential life experience in the hopes of gaining a higher position in student affairs," said Garrick.

She cited creating a sense of community and respecting the rights of others as hall objectives.

"So far," Garrick added, "I really like Saint Mary's. Everyone is friendly and helpful."

In other appointments, Sister Maria McDermott has been named special assistant to acting assistant president William Hickey. Most recently chairing the education department, McDermott has served as a member of the College's administration or faculty for 28 years.

Joining the campus ministry department are Rene Kay, Father Thomas Stella and Jeanne Vasoli.

New faculty members have also joined the ranks of several departments.

Acting as visiting assistant art professor is Julie Wroblewski, a 1982 Saint Mary's graduate. She received a master's in fine art from the Cranbrook Academy of Art in May.

Carol Kirkner, a Notre Dame alumna, has been named a biology laboratory instructor. She was formerly a research assistant at Notre Dame.

Marlis Sever has been appointed a biology lecturer while Andrea Wade will join the department as a visiting professor. Wade earned her Ph.D. from Notre Dame.

The business administration and economics department have acquired four new lecturers.

Joseph McKew, earned his MBA from Western Michigan University. Kalyan Patra, an MBA recipient of the Indian Institute of Management, Calcutta, India, has also joined the department.

Herb True and Marcel Vroman have also been named lecturers in the business and economics department. Vroman is currently completing work toward an Master of Arts degree at Notre Dame.

Earning her Ph.D. at Notre Dame, Pamela Plouhar has been named a chemistry and physics lecturer.

In the department of communications and theater, there are three new additions to the staff.

Cynthia Dieckgrafe, master's of fine arts from the University of Illinois, and Roberta Rude, who received her master's of arts from Trinity University, have been appointed assistant professors.

Also joining the communication and theatre department as lecturer and visiting lecturer respectively are Carol Winchester, MS, Bradley University, and Anita Zimmerman. Zimmerman is currently working towards a Master of Directing at Indiana University at Bloomington.

The English department will be sporting many new faces this semester.

Acting as a visiting professor and chairman of the English department is David Clark. Receiving his Ph.D. from Yale, Clark was formerly an English professor at the University of Massachusetts.

Clark said, "Saint Mary's is great. I retired from the University of Massachusetts, but I really didn't want to retire. Saint Mary's was a golden opportunity for me."

J. Robert Baker, MA, Notre Dame, has been appointed an English lecturer.

Coming to Saint Mary's from Stanford University is lecturer Charles Kirkpatrick. He is currently working towards a Ph.D. at the University of Texas.

Jane Porter, MA, Pennsylvania State University, and Patricia Quattrin, Ph.D. candidate, Notre Dame, will serve as English department lecturers.

The government department has named Jane Fleming as a visiting instructor.

A Ph.D. candidate at Southern Illinois University, Fleming said, "I knew the reputation of Saint Mary's as a very good school."

She added, "I like the smallness of the school and the feeling of community. It's great."

Also acting as a government instructor is Stephen Manning, a Ph.D. candidate from the University of Wisconsin.

The history department has added Brian Pavlac, a former Notre Dame instructor, to its staff along with instructor Walter Rinderle, a Notre Dame Ph.D. recipient.

William J. Knight, a visiting associate professor, Ph.D., University of California at Berkeley; Lauren Krieger, lecturer, MA, Michigan State University, and Karen Whitehead, MS, Butler University, will join the mathematics department this fall.

Kevin Bauman, MA, Notre Dame, has been named a modern languages lecturer.

New to the music department is Loretta Robinson, assistant professor, MM, University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Holding an Master of Science, Nursing from the Indiana University, Cynthia Bower will join the nursing department as an assistant professor. Melody Kessler, MS, University of San Diego, will fill the same capacity.

The philosophy department will add Terry Hall, MA Oklahoma State University, to its ranks as a lecturer. Joining him in the department will be visiting assistant professor Stuart Warner, Ph.D., Michigan State University.

Jyotsna Vasudev, Ph.D., University of Pittsburgh, has been named visiting assistant professor of psychology.

Elena to hit land today

Associated Press

CEDAR KEY, Fla. - Unpredictable Elena, after being stalled at sea for two days, strengthened to a major hurricane with sustained winds of 125 mph yesterday and headed toward the Gulf Coast, where the second evacuation in four days was ordered.

Some 250,000 people in Florida's Panhandle were told to flee the storm Sunday, as were 175,000 people on Alabama's coast.

Hurricane warnings were extended westward from Yankeetown, below Florida's Panhandle, to beyond New Orleans. The warnings covered more than 500 miles of coast.

The storm, blamed for at least one death, was expected to make landfall by daybreak today between Pensacola and Mobile, Ala., if it sustained its movement of 10 mph to the north-northwest, Mark Zimmer, a forecaster with the National Hurricane Center said yesterday evening.

Farther south, officials said they would lift evacuation orders in the central Florida area around Tampa yesterday evening, letting some 500,000 people return home. National Guard troops called out earlier yesterday to keep restless evacuees from returning to the coast were then told to check identifications of those returning.

Elena had forced evacuation in the Panhandle and in Alabama's two coastal counties on Thursday before veering toward Florida's west-central coast, where an estimated 1 million people were evacuated. Panhandle and Alabama residents returned home as the storm wobbled 80 miles west-southwest of Cedar Key in the Gulf of Mexico on Saturday.

The hurricane started moving yesterday afternoon, when Zimmer said the storm had "established a definite track, heading north-northwest."

At 7:30 p.m. EDT the storm's center was 40 miles south-southwest of Panama City, the center said. Zimmer said the "best bet" was landfall between Pensacola, at the western tip of the Panhandle, and Mobile, about 70 miles to the west.

Tyson said he would be willing to consider changing the 80-percent, 20-percent split. "I have no particular investment in 80-20, 70-30, or 60-40, so if they have a recommendation, then fine."

The problem, according to Healy, was that by the time the senate tried to change the fiscal policy, it was too late.

"The 80-20 policy was written in stone by then. The senate wanted to change it but they could not at that point," Healy said.

Aboud also pointed out that the fiscal policy states that the committees shall "allocate" funds, yet the constitution expressly states that committees shall make recommendations.

Neal agreed that the word "allocate" should be changed to "recommend." Neil said, however, that the committees did make recommendations and the budget was brought to the senate.

"What it says on (the fiscal policy) and what happens are two different things," she said.

said. "I thought someone had driven a hockey ball into my leg, but usually when you get hit by a hockey ball, it hurts on the surface.

"But this pain shot right through my leg," Weinmann said.

"I didn't think I got shot, but I couldn't stand up," she said. "I had an unstable ligament and I just thought it had given out."

Weinmann said Coach Jill Lindenfelf, who thought her center-halfback had been shot by a B.B. gun, carried her from the field to the training room at the A.C.C.

After a trainer examined her leg, she said, she was taken to the emergency room at Saint Joseph's Medical Center.

Her leg also was x-rayed and examined to discover the bullet's trajectory to aid in the investigation.

After the surgery, she was taken to a "penthouse on the seventh floor" of the hospital, where her friends "snuck in after visiting hours saying they were my relatives and my roommates, even though I live in a single," she said.

Weinmann, who is hoping to recover in time for the opening game Sept. 13 against Ball State, said she would not be using a golf cart to get around campus.

"I don't want to lose any strength so I'll just hobble," she said.

Artificial heart recipient improves

Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. - Michael Drummond shed his fever Saturday after doctors increased the blood flow through his artificial heart, and the youngest recipient of a Jarvik-7 was monitored for signs of pneumonia, his surgeon said.

"I think he looks much, much better than he did yesterday," Dr. Jack Copeland said of the 25-year-old supermarket assistant manager who on Thursday became the sixth person to receive the plastic device.

Copeland, who installed the device during an operation at the University Medical Center, plans to remove it and implant a human heart, it is hoped within three weeks.

Drummond, who suffered a viral heart infection in March, had been taken off a respirator for six hours Friday, but was reconnected because of breathing difficulties caused by fluid in his lungs, Copeland said.

Although a bronchoscopy showed no evidence of infection in his lungs, doctors were concerned he could develop pneumonia, Copeland said at a news conference.

Drummond, who weighed between 210 and 220 pounds when he entered the hospital Monday with a severely diseased heart muscle, eliminated about 10 pounds of fluid in the last day, much of it after the heart rate was increased.

Copeland said doctors thought they had an adequate blood flow, about 6 liters per minute, but the amount was insufficient because of Drummond's size.

The problem was detected Friday night when an examination showed that Drummond's extremities were cool while his face, torso, back and upper legs were warm.

Meanwhile, Drummond's parents said they were grateful their son has been kept alive by the device, although his mother said she had been against it.

"But when you're against the wall you have no choice," Joan Drummond said.

Clarence Drummond said, "We brought our son down here and he was dying, and today he's looking great. . . . He's scared but he's doing very well with it."

Taxes and Geneva await Reagan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - With few big victories under his belt this year, President Reagan faces more tough battles with Congress this fall on everything from taxes and trade to sanctions against South Africa, topped off by a summit showdown with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

It is a challenging autumn agenda for anyone, much less a 74-year-old president who underwent major surgery for colon cancer just seven weeks ago. The difficulties are compounded by a sluggish economy, a simmering White House feud with Republicans in Congress and the GOP's nervousness over next year's congressional elections.

Given Reagan's mixed record of achievements and setbacks this year, his performance in the final four months of 1985 could determine how much steam is left in the "Second American Revolution" he proclaimed or whether his administration is losing its political muscle.

"I am feeling fine and when we get back to Washington it's going to be full steam ahead," Reagan promised in his only public appearance during his 23-day California vacation that ends today. He returns to work with his popularity at an all-time high, according to a poll published by Time magazine in August.

Administration strategists believe the chief measures of Reagan's success or failure this year will be his meeting in Geneva with Gorbachev in November, and the progress of his plan for sweeping changes in the tax code.

Already, the administration has dampened expectations of any breakthrough in U.S.-Soviet relations at the summit, saying it may be difficult to achieve even incremental improvements without some change in the Kremlin's approach to arms issues.

Space shuttle Discovery successful in repair of communication satellite

Associated Press

NASA Space Center, Houston - With a mighty heave and a weightlifter's grunt, spacewalker James "Ox" van Hoften sent a repaired satellite spinning off on its own yesterday, successfully completing a daring salvage project in space.

"Good spin, Ox," called fellow spacewalker Bill Fisher as the 7-ton Syncom 3 satellite whirled away from the space shuttle Discovery at three revolutions per minute. "Ahhhh, that's great."

"Well done, Ox," said mission commander Joe Engle, who watched from Discovery's cabin.

Van Hoften pushed the satellite away from the shuttle while standing on the end of Discovery's 50-foot robot arm, 230 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

The hand launch was the final act of a complex repair job that energized dead electrical circuits inside the Syncom 3 and gave the $85 million communications craft a chance to climb out of its uselessly low orbit and become a working satellite.

About an hour later, Mission Control told the astronauts that a ground station had contacted Syncom 3 by radio and that the satellite had responded to commands.

"The status (of the satellite) looks good," said Mission Control.

"That's good news," replied Engle. "If you've got any other satellites that need fixing, we'll be glad to take care of them before we come down."

Fisher and van Hoften worked in the vacuum of space for four hours and 34 minutes to complete the job started in a record seven-hour, eight-minute spacewalk Saturday.

Van Hoften was forced to enter the airlock ahead of Fisher and attach an oxygen hose to his suit when he got a pressure warning, but by then the job was done.

With the salvage work finished, Discovery's mission goals were completed. In addition to fixing Syncom 3, the astronauts also launched three other satellites.

The astronauts will stow equipment aboard the craft Monday and then land before dawn Tuesday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

As Syncom 3 spun away, the astronauts said they could still see lights blinking on an electronic box Fisher installed on its side Saturday. The box will permit ground stations to command the satellite, bypassing a failed automatic timing system.

But officials said it will be at least two months before they know for sure if Syncom 3 has been saved.

Engineers at Hughes Communications Co., which owns the satellite, said its 11,000 pounds of rocket fuel had been chilled during its more than 2,000 lifeless orbits. The propellant must be allowed to slowly warm up in sunshine before the engines can be fired. If successful, the rocket firings will place the satellite on station 22,300 miles above the Earth.

We're welcoming back all ND/SMC students with the campus' best music.

Turner and Frey turn the heat on at the ACC

Pat Beaudine

Concert review

As seniors in line for football tickets listened from their overnight camps outside the ACC, Tina Turner and Glen Frey made sparks fly inside. The audience at the Private Dancer Tour performance was prepared for a show, and what a show it was.

The concert got underway with an opener by former Eagle Glenn Frey. He came out looking slick - almost too slick - in a suit and tie, and launched right into "I Found Somebody," a hit from his first solo album. It was a perfect, conservatively performed rendition, but just a little slow for a concert opener.

The next two songs, "Sexy Girl" and "The One You Love," followed suit and were again expertly performed. He seemed to follow the Eagles' philosophy of performing a song exactly as it sounds on the record.

After that mellow and rather curious start, Frey started to show sparks of his old monster self. "Partytown" was a highlight of the set, and the saxophone solo showed the highly respectable band at its best.

"Smuggler's Blues" came complete with jokes about Digger Phelps, who should, according to Frey, "lose the carnation." Frey also mentioned Coach Gerry Faust when he dedicated "The Heat Is On," a song that won instant approval from the crowd.

"Heartache Tonight" recalled Frey's glory days with the Eagles. But the song "an old Eagles song from an old Eagle" stole the show.

The audience then recharged in anticipation of the eighth wonder of the world, Tina Turner. Always running the risk of being overrated or being treated as a mere sex symbol, Turner established herself as more than that the minute she charged on stage. With comments like, "Are you ready for me? ... Well, I'm ready for you," she got the audience hooked, and with her vocal gymnastics and onstage presence, she established her credibility as well.

Turner tore through the first part of the set and a powerful rendition of "River Deep, Mountain High." Although the subtle intricacies of the next song, "You Better Be Good to Me," were lost in a blaze of distortion and guitars, Tina rose above the din of the audience and delivered another vocal exhibition.

Turner appeared dressed to kill for the next song, "Private Dancer," which turned into a jam with saxophonist/bodybuilder Tim Capello adding some pelvic thrusts to accent his screaming solo. "What's Love Got To Do With It," and "Let's Stay Together" were back to back successes performed later in the set. Both were notable for their vocals, and the latter received special response. After all, it was responsible for relaunching her career.

Turner's special chemistry was further illustrated by her next two songs, "Help Me" and "Proud Mary." During the Creedence classic she was at her best, informing the audience that "the longer I do it, the better it gets." She also asserted, "People ask me when I'm ever going to slow down. You know what I tell them? I'm just getting stronger!"

After three encores, including the appropriate "Legs," Turner launched into the showstopper, Bruce Springsteen's "Dancing in the Dark." It was a perfect ending to a steamy evening, highlighting her energy and connection with the crowd.

To say that the heat was on at last night's show would be an understatement. Surprisingly and most convincingly, Glenn Frey proved himself to be that same all-nighter he was when he made the best music of his career. And Tina Turner showed what a dynamic and complete performer she is.

8:00 p.m.AVAILABLE AT THE ACC BOX OFFICE AND STUDENT RECORD STORE--LAFORTUNEBill Elliott receives $1 million after winning Grand National 500 race

Associated Press

DARLINGTON, S.C. - Bill Elliott, driving a heady, conservative race, watched his top three competitors go up in smoke on his way to winning both the Southern 500 Grand National stock car race and a $1 million bonus.

Elliott, who earned his 10th victory in 20 starts this season, made it three out of four in the Grand National "Big Four" and picked up the Winston Million, the biggest single payoff in the history of auto racing as he outran five-time Southern 500 winner Cale Yarborough to the finish line.

"Awesome Bill from Dawsonville," a 29-year-old Georgian, added his first Southern 500 victory to triumphs in the Daytona 500 and the Winston 500 to earn the $1 million prize offered for the first time this year by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

This week, shrugging off the intense pressure that nearly smothered the young driver at the World 600, Elliott first ran off to an easy pole victory on Thursday, played it cool for the huge media turnout, then drove confidently to the 14th victory of his Grand National career.

However, Elliott's intimidating Ford Thunderbird was not dominant in the 367-lap race over the treacherous 1.366-mile Darlington International Raceway. In fact, he played a waiting game throughout the sweltering day as Dale Earnhardt, Harry Gant and Yarborough all took turns in seeming control.

Just past the halfway point in the 500-mile event, during the longest green-flag stretch in the race slowed by 14 caution periods, Elliott's tires appeared to be wearing badly. He slipped back to fourth, about 15 seconds behind Earnhardt, who was leading at the time.

The always aggressive Earnhardt, who was belching smoke from his tires on practically every turn, hung his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS on the edge throughout the race. With Yarborough leading on lap 324, Earnhardt slid sideways off the second turn, tagged the wall and slid down the backstretch.

Elliott decided to go by on the low side as Earnhardt slid along the outside wall, but the Chevy suddenly came down the banking and Elliott made it past by less than a yard.

Gant's car, which had been spewing smoke, went out with a blown engine on lap 349.

Elliott had just passed Tim Richmond moments before the hood flew off Richmond's car on the backstretch on lap 332, bringing out the 12th caution flag. And the winner was starting to pull away when oil on the track, apparently from Gant's engine, brought out the 13th and final yellow flag on lap 337.

Added to the $1 million, Elliott also picked up first-place money of $53,725 from the total purse of $410,000. He now has an all-time auto racing record of $1,857,243 in earnings for the season.

Geoff Bodine, who regained a lost lap late in the race, wound up a distant third, followed a lap down by Neil Bonnett and Ron Bouchard.

Long-time racing star A.J. Foyt, who was a rookie at the Darlington track, never was in contention, falling off the lead lap in the early going and dropping out with an engine problem on lap 263. Pancho Carter, an Indy-car star and another Darlington rookie, suffered a mild case of heat exhaustion on the tropically humid day and was replaced in the car shortly after the halfway mark by Phil Parsons.

Detroit cruises past Oakland, 14-3

DETROIT - Chet Lemon hit two solo homers and singled in another run and Barbaro Garbey added a three-run double during a nine-run explosion in the eighth inning yesterday as the Detroit Tigers beat the Oakland A's 14-3.

The Tigers broke the game open in the eighth as Garbey's pinch-double and a two-run single by Kirk Gibson highlighted the outburst.

Juan Berenguer, 4-3, allowed six hits, struck out nine and walked one in 7 1/3 innings.

Loser Chris Codiroli, 10-11, gave up four runs in the 3 1/3 innings he worked for Oakland.

White Sox 4, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO - Harold Baines slugged a two-run home run and Ron Kittle added a solo shot to power the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays yesterday afternoon.

Both Baines and Kittle hit their homers off rookie Steve Davis, 1-1, who was making his first major-league start for the Blue Jays.

Britt Burns, 15-8, who has two of the Chicago wins over Toronto this season, allowed five hits in seven scoreless innings. Bob James took over at the start of the eighth.

Red Sox 10, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS - Jim Rice and Tony Armas homered, highlighting a 16-hit attack yesterday that led the Boston Red Sox over the Minnesota Twins 10-3.

Rice, Wade Boggs and Bill Buckner each had three hits. Boggs went 3-for-6 and is now hitting .362.

Rookie right-hander Mike Trujillo, 4-3, scattered nine hits for his second major-league victory as a starter. The Red Sox hammered Twins starter Frank Viola, 13-12.

Viola failed to retire any of the four batters he faced in the third, when Boston made it 6-0. Buckner singled and Rice lined his 22nd homer.

Yankees 5, Angels 3

NEW YORK - Pinch-hitter Don Baylor and Don Mattingly homered consecutively in the seventh inning, breaking a 3-3 tie and giving the

New York Yankees a 5-3 victory yesterday over the California Angels.

The triumph, coupled with Toronto's 4-1 loss to Chicago, moved the Yankees within four games of the American League East-leading Blue Jays.

Baylor's homer came with one out on the first pitch from reliever Al Holland, 0-1. Mattingly's 25th made a winner of Bob Shirley, 4-4, who relieved in the sixth inning. Brian Fisher pitched the final two innings for his 10th save.

Mariners 10, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE - Jack Perconte went 5-for-6, Alvin Davis hit a three-run homer and Domingo Ramos had a three-run triple yesterday as the Seattle Mariners rapped 16 hits and routed the Baltimore Orioles 10-2.

Matt Young went eight innings and gave up seven hits, including a solo home run by Mike Young, as he raised his record to 10-14 while notching only his second victory in 11 road decisions this season.

Dennis Martinez, 11-8, was shelled for eight hits during his 3 1/3 innings.

Rangers 5, Royals 3

ARLINGTON, Texas - Oddibe McDowell tripled and singled and scored twice last night as the Texas Rangers completed a three-game sweep by beating the Kansas City Royals 5-3.

The Royals remained 2½ games behind first-place California in the American League West. California lost to New York 5-3 earlier in the day.

Winner Mike Mason, 6-12, pitched seven innings, giving up two runs on eight hits. Duane Henry pitched the last two innings for his first save.

Danny Jackson, 12-9, gave up all five Texas runs and took the loss.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 1

LOS ANGELES - Juan Samuel had three hits, scored twice and drove in a run while John Russell homered as the Philadelphia Phillies completed a four-game sweep of Los Angeles with a 4-1 victory over the Dodgers yesterday.

It was the first time the Phillies had swept a four-game series from the Dodgers since July 16-18 in 1955.

John Denny, 9-11, yielded four hits over eight innings. Denny walked six batters and struck out seven.

Jerry Reuss, 12-9, let up three runs in six innings and lost to the Phillies for the fifth straight time.

Reds 3, Pirates 2

CINCINNATI - Bo Diaz homered and Pete Rose and Dave Parker singled home runs in a three-run eighth inning yesterday that carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rose's single off reliever Rob Scurry, 0-1, tied the game 2-2 and Parker followed with a single for the go-ahead run. Rose had two singles in four at-bats Sunday, leaving him six shy of breaking Ty Cobb's all-time mark of 4,191.

Mario Soto, 11-15, allowed six hits in eight innings. Ted Power and John Franco finished, Franco getting two outs for his eighth save.

Cubs 15, Braves 2

CHICAGO - Davey Lopes belted a homer and a pair of singles and Keith Moreland had three hits and drove in four runs yesterday, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 15-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Cubs, enjoying their biggest scoring total since 1980, were aided by three Atlanta errors and 11 walks as the Braves suffered their second loss after winning five straight under new manager Bobby Wine. They had 15 hits.

Derek Botelho, 1-2, pitched a six-hit complete game for his first National League victory and Len Barker, 2-7, was tagged with the loss.

Padres 5, Expos 1

SAN DIEGO - Andy Hawkins and Lance McCullers combined on a three-hitter and Garry Templeton singled in two runs to help the San Diego Padres defeat the Montreal Expos 5-1 yesterday afternoon.

Hawkins, 17-4, gave up three hits in 5 1/3 innings, walking two batters. McCullers replaced him with two runners on, got Andre Dawson to ground into a double play and pitched hitless relief for his fifth save.

Floyd Youmans, 1-2, gave up a run in the first on a single by Templeton, a wild pitch and a single by Graig Nettles.

Martina Navratilova breezes past Italy's Sandra Cecchini in US Open

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova made a cameo appearance yesterday to join five-time winner Jimmy Connors and No. 2 men's seed Ivan Lendl in the fourth round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Navratilova dropped only 21 points as she breezed through Italy's Sandra Cecchini 6-0, 6-1. The match was over so fast that there was a question on how long she took.

The official clock on the court said the match was 37 minutes long, but umpire Jim McKnight listed it as 27 minutes on his scorecard. A replay of the television tape, however, showed the official clock was correct.

Connors, the only man to win America's premier tennis event on all three surfaces on which it has been played - grass, clay and hardcourt - defeated Thierry Tulasne of France 7-5, 6-2, 6-2. The victory was his 75th, tying him with Vic Seixias for the most men's singles matches won in a career.

"I'm happy to have tied it and to have won so many matches here," Connors said. "I didn't even know about it until I walked out there and played. I'm here to play and try to win the tournament."

Lendl, who has reached the final in each of the last three years only to lose, crushed Horacio De La Pena of Argentina 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

Also posting third-round victories Sunday on the hardcourts of the National Tennis Center were seventh-seeded Yannick Noah and his French Davis Cup teammate, Henri Leconte, No. 11 Stefan Edberg of Sweden, Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt and two teen-agers, 18-year-old Jay Berger of Plantation, Fla., and 17-year-old Jaime Yzaga of Peru.

Joining Navratilova in the fourth round of the women's singles were No. 4 Pam Shriver, No. 6 Zina Garrison, No. 8 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 11 Steffi Graf of West Germany, No. 13 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden and two Americans, Alycia Moulton and Kate Gompert.

Noah ousted Vitas Gerulaitis 6-3, 6-4, 6-3; Leconte defeated West Germany's Hans Schwaier 6-2, 6-2, 6-1; Edberg stopped Brad Gilbert 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4; Gunthardt outlasted Argentina's Martin Jaite 6-7, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-1; Berger, an amateur, eliminated veteran Brian Teacher 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, 7-6; and Yzaga, the French Open junior champion and the lone qualifier left in the tournament, stopped David Pate 6-3, 6-3, 7-6.

Lendl, quietly slipping through the draw while the spotlight has been on defending champion John McEnroe, Connors and Wimbledon champion Boris Becker, said his lopsided victories are indicative of how well he has been playing.

"I would have to say that I haven't faced any players (who) ... have the game to push me," he said. "I'm definitely playing my best this summer, but I was playing awfully well at Forest Hills," when he won the Tournament of Champions in May, downing McEnroe in the final.

The crowd in Louis Armstrong Stadium applauded loudly when Cecchini held serve to begin the second set. It was her lone moment to shine in the bright sunshine as Navratilova was devastating.

Navratilova served only six times in the match - and was taken to deuce only once. But she broke Cecchini's service six times.

It was Navratilova's easiest match as she has rounded into top form for the final week of this Grand Slam tournament. She has yet to lose a set and has dropped only six games in her first three matches.

"It reinforces the fact I am hitting the ball well," Navratilova said of her brief Stadium Court appearance. "In 1983, when I won it (the women's singles title), only the final went more than one hour."

Noah said he is beginning to feel comfortable on the DecoTurf II court and with his game.

"I'm pleased I have been improving with every match," said the winner of the 1983 French Open. "I feel very confident now and this has been my best match so far."

In the fourth round, Noah will face Berger, who just began his sophomore year at Clemson University and is playing in his second professional tournament. He qualified for Boston, a clay court event, before losing in the first round to Sweden's Mikael Pernfors, a University of Georgia graduate who has captured the NCAA singles title the last two years.

Seniors camp out for best football tickets

By KEVIN HERBERT
Sport's Writer

When a line begins to form over twenty-one hours before the ticket windows open, you would expect the sale of Springsteen concert tickets or a bank-run to be in the making. Yesterday at 5:45 p.m., however, optimistic Notre Dame seniors began forming the line to obtain tickets to this season's home football games.

Mike Wisneski, Tom Gallagher and Kevin Walker from Grace hall, John Bereslka of Carroll and Todd Christenson from Pangborn arrived at Gate 3 of the ACC to assure that they will have midfield seating for this year's action.

"Even after three disappointing years we still have the hopeful aspirations that Gerry Faust will exceed his expectations" commented Walker. "With all of the talent we have, this should be the year."

Gallagher was a little more pragmatic about his motives.

"Win or lose, it is always better to watch a game from the fifty than from behind a goal-post."

For Wisneski, this is the opportunity to avenge past poor seating.

"I have always wanted to see our games from good seats," he said. "In my freshman year I was as far up in the endzone as possible. This is my chance at the fifty."

Of course, these early arrivals will be relieved this morning. And the relievers, in turn, will be relieved. In all, eight shifts of people buying tickets for no less than thirty-five people will come and go before the ticket windows open at 3 p.m.

As for last night, the early arrivals came equipped with sleeping bags, beverages, snacks and cards.

Irish tailback Allen Pinkett stopped to talk to the crowd outside of Gate 3 when he left the Tina Turner Concert last night at about 11:30. He told the crowd, which had grown to about 25 people, that they would not be disappointed watching the Irish from the best seats in the house.

Ticket distribution will continue tomorrow for juniors, Wednesday for sophomores and graduate students and Thursday for freshmen.

Kenny Bernstein wins drag race preliminaries

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - Funny Car racer Kenny Bernstein won the final preliminary to the U.S. Nationals drag races yesterday, beating Ed McCulloch of Sanger, Calif., to win the Big Bud Shootout bonus race at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

The victory was worth $30,000. Bernstein, 40, of Dallas, Texas, qualified second fastest for today's 16-car Funny Car finals and could win an additional $40,000 by capturing that event.

Bernstein won the Funny Car preliminary in 1983 and went on to win the national championship the following day.

Bernstein, whose Budweiser King Ford Tempo was timed in 5.69, 5.69 and 5.70 seconds yesterday, is one of the favorites to win the Funny Car title even though he qualified behind Tom McEwen of Fountain Valley, Calif., during the preliminary phase of the 31st annual event.

The current National Hot Rod Association record holder for quarter-mile time and speed at 5.646 seconds and 260.11 mph, Bernstein has won five of nine Winston World Championship Series races this season and has been runner-up in two others. He can clinch the world title today.

McEwen, whose qualifying time was a career best of 5.671 seconds and 258.17 mph, lost to Bernstein in the second round of the Big Bud Shootout, an eight-car race run by drivers who earned the greatest number of points in the nine races preceding the Nationals.

The qualifying orders in the Top Fuel and Pro Stock division changed little during yesterday's runs.

Joe Amato's Saturday time of 5.508 seconds, 259.36 mph, held up for the No. 1 spot in Top Fuel and Bob Glidden of Whiteland, Ind., made his Thursday best of 7.576 seconds stand up as the quickest qualifying run in the Pro Stock division.

The quickest run during yesterday's qualifying was a 5.517 second, 259.96 mph effort by Gary Ormsby of Roseville, Calif. The run was good enough for the No. 2 position ahead of defending champion Don Garlits of Ocala, Fla.

Garlits, a 53-year-old veteran, recorded a best of 5.535 at a track record-setting speed of 262.39 mph. Garlits, the current world championship points leader, is bidding for an unprecedented seventh U.S. Nationals title.

Notre Dame soccer team has toughest schedule ever in '85

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

Under normal circumstances, the last thing a coach would admit before his season starts is that he would be happy if his team were to finish with a .500 record.

But these are not normal circumstances.

Notre Dame soccer coach Dennis Grace, in only his second year as the head of the Irish program, has put together the toughest schedule in Notre Dame soccer history. If his team is able to win half of its games, he will have been lucky. But still he says it is possible.

"I have a feeling that if we are somewhere around a .500 season then a lot of people will call that successful," Grace says, but he adds that his players are not among that group of people. "I don't know if this group, with their attitude, is going to be satisfied with just .500, and that makes me a happy coach."

Given that the team, which was 12-6-2 last year, will be playing some of the premier soccer teams in the country, Grace has adjusted his goals for the season. He says he is not as concerned about winning a certain number of games as he is that his team plays as well as it can.

"I just want to look back in November when I have my Thanksgiving dinner," Grace says, "and, without reservations, say that my team played as well as it could play, my team reached its potential, my team won as many games as it could possibly win."

Grace says that the upgrading of Notre Dame's schedule this season is just one step in the process of upgrading the Irish soccer program to the point where it will be on a par with the best in the nation. He says he wanted to be able to offer a demanding schedule to highly recruited high school players, so that they would consider attending Notre Dame.

"We promised our recruits that we would give them a program in which they could grow and develop and be as good as they can be in four years," he says. "The first step in that direction is giving them good competition."

"After I had made these promises, I had to go out and patch the schedule together. Making the schedule was easy because everyone wants to beat the Irish. Everyone wanted to play us."

So just how tough is the schedule? Considering that eight of Notre Dame's opponents this season were ranked in the national top 20 last season, it is by far the toughest schedule the Irish ever have faced.

In addition, the schedule features 10 of the 11 teams which were in the top 10 of the Midwest region at some point last season. The Irish will face Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Wisconsin-Madison, Michigan State, Indiana, Bowling Green and Marquette at home. They also will come up against Evansville, Wisconsin-Green Bay, Miami (Ohio) and Akron on the road. Grace has called these regional games "crucial" for receiving a bid to the NCAA post-season tournament.

Even if the Irish do not make it to the NCAA tournament, they will see some tournament action. Notre Dame will play in the Wright State Tournament and the Illinois State Tournament on consecutive weekends in mid October.

"We wanted to make sure that we got 22 games in the season," Grace explains, "and we wanted to make sure that we didn't miss a lot of classes. So the logical thing was to play two games in one weekend. And if you're going to play two games, you want to make sure that the team you are going to play also plays two games."

One look at Grace's freshman recruits is enough to show that his bold scheduling has begun to pay off. The class of 1989 is sprinkled with all-state selections, all-region selections and even one all-America player. In fact, the freshman class is so strong this season that Grace says he expects five or six of the first-year players to step directly into starting roles.

"I couldn't be happier at this point with the contribution that (the new players) appear to be making," Grace says. "Anytime you can bring in a freshman to contribute, that's important, but when you can bring in six to challenge for a starting position, you have to be happy."

Grace says the veteran players have accepted the newcomers into their ranks with open arms.

"Most of the players who are concerned about the overall success of the program are delighted," Grace says. "When they took a step back and said, 'What's best for Notre Dame soccer?' they recognized that those six have to play."

The six players that Grace refers to as the most promising rookies are freshmen Tom Gerlach, John Guignon, Randy Morris, Kurt Roemer and Joe Sternberg and junior college transfer Bruce "Tiger" McCourt.

With these new players in the lineup, Grace has a wealth of experience on the bench, giving his team the depth it will need to play a full 90 minutes with the best in the nation. The Irish also have moved

Mary Jo Lambert moves into new job as assistant athletic director

By KELLY PORTOLESE
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

In this age of specialization in the sporting world, coaches who are experts in several sports are a dying breed. But Saint Mary's has just that coach in Mary Jo Lambert, who was named Saint Mary's volleyball coach in January, and recently has been named Assistant Director of Athletics and Recreation at the College.

With twenty years of college coaching and teaching behind her, this will be Lambert's first collegiate administrative position.

"I'm ready to take all my experience and use it in an administrative sense," says Lambert, who boasts collegiate coaching experience in not only volleyball but tennis, gymnastics, basketball and track and field. "I'm excited. There are a lot of things that could happen here. I want to make (the Angela Athletic Facility) a positive place to come. We are planning some fun things, including some night programs to bring the students in. This place needs to be used."

A native of the Northwest, Lambert did the majority of her coaching and teaching at Eastern Washington State College and Spokane Falls Community College. At Eastern she developed a national caliber gymnastics team, while at Spokane she coached five different teams and was named Washington's volleyball coach of the year in 1981.

At Spokane, she founded the entire women's athletic department and is credited with making Spokane the first college in the state of Washington to receive full women's scholarships. In addition, all of her players at this community college went on to receive full scholarships at four-year schools.

"A lot of my players have also gone into coaching and been very successful. So that is very rewarding," Lambert says. "My profession has been very good to me."

"I've fought for women's scholarships throughout the years. I've also had a lot of fun coaching. I think I have a real talent to analyze skill and people. God gave me a gift to be a teacher first. Everyone is an individual and you can't treat them the same. But I will be fair with everybody."

With all of her successful years of coaching experience and a 211-60 volleyball record and an equally impressive tennis slate, Lambert should bring much to the Saint Mary's volleyball program in her first year with the team.

"I coach from a team concept," she says. "I have a commitment to excellence. I demand a lot of myself and am constantly going to clinics. Therefore I also expect this from my players."

"I love the strategy of the game and teaching players to be students of the game. I enjoy seeing players feeling good about themselves and excelling. In the collegiate level you have to be tough."

Lambert, whose volleyball teams have won championships at the regional and state levels, says her husband, Notre Dame women's volleyball coach Art Lambert, has rounded out her knowledge of the game.

"I've learned a lot," she says. "We share a lot about the game. He's very demanding. I am too, but in a different way because we're in two different programs. I've learned a lot about strategy, tactics and the mental part of the game from him."

Although volleyball is her favorite sport to coach, Lambert says skiing is her first love and she really misses the mountains and the ocean of the West where she also sailed competitively on the national level.

Though South Bend does not offer the geographic advantages she enjoys, Lambert says she has been very impressed with the Saint Mary's community as a whole.

"The warmth from the faculty and staff has been great," she said of her first year teaching health and physical education at the College. "I feel so welcome. I love the attitude here. They want to make the Saint Mary's student be better academically, athletically, and emotionally. They're looking at the whole person and that's exciting."

Saint Mary's is just as excited to have a coach and administrator as qualified and enthusiastic as Mary Jo Lambert.

Irish lose soccer opener to Virginia as Cavaliers outshoot them, 33-3

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame soccer team opened its 1985 season yesterday with a 3-0 loss at the University of Virginia.

Despite the decisive play of junior goalkeeper Hugh Breslin, the Irish were unable to stay in the game with the Cavaliers, who are ranked third in the country.

Breslin kept the game close by making 12 saves on 33 shots from the Cavaliers. The Irish managed only three shots near the Virginia goal, but the Cavalier goalkeepers were not forced to make a single save in the contest.

Virginia also owned an 11-0 advantage over the Irish in corner-kick restarts.

The Notre Dame midfield played well, but the Irish were not able to sustain any offensive threat.

The Cavaliers took the lead only 7:36 into the contest with a goal by Jay Del Carmen. The score remained at 1-0 for the rest of the first half.

About eight minutes into the second period, Virginia strengthened its lead. Jeff Gaffney shot the ball past Breslin for a 2-0 lead at 53:32.

Scott Platenburg ended the Cavalier scoring with only two minutes remaining in the contest. His shot beat Breslin at 87:50.

The Irish will meet George Mason, another top-20 team, tomorrow at 3 p.m. on the Patriots' home field before returning to Notre Dame late tomorrow night.

The home opener for the Irish will be Saturday, when Notre Dame plays host to the Panthers of Wisconsin-Milwaukee at 2 p.m. on Alumni Field.

Lyons Hall begins volleyball tournament

By JEFF CISSELL
Sports Writer

A new tradition is starting at Notre Dame with the First Annual Lyons Hall Volleyball Tournament.

The event, which will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 7, will be a fundraiser for the Logan Center for Handicapped Children.

According to tournament organizer Gretchen Wroblewski, the tourney will provide an opportunity for students to become more involved in the community, while having fun at the same time.

"The tournament hopes to encourage more involvement between the Notre Dame-St. Mary's community and local charity organizations," Wroblewski said.

Teams will match up for a best-of-three series to advance. Registration will be tomorrow and Wednesday from 4:45 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. in both the North and South Dining Halls. Teams are to consist of six players, two of which must be women. An entry fee of six dollars will be charged. Wroblewski said she hopes that the charity volleyball tournament eventually will become a fall event comparable to the spring's Bookstore Basketball Tournament.
