Class of 1990: the beginning at last

450 to enter Saint Mary's

By MARGIE KERSTEN
Saint Mary's Editor

More than 450 freshmen have arrived on campus to begin their four years of college at Saint Mary's.

"The incoming freshman class will gain a lot from the Saint Mary's experience as well as enhance the College community," said Mary Ann Rowan, director of admission for Saint Mary's.

Fifty percent of this year's freshmen were in the top one-fifth of their graduating class, and 30 percent were in the top 10 percent, Rowan said.

From an applicant pool of 1025 women, 820 were accepted to attend Saint Mary's, according to Rowan.

The class of 1990 represents 34 states and seven foreign countries. Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Illinois are the largest states that are represented, she said. Rowan noted that an increased number of students came from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, New York, Pennsylvania and California.

The size of the freshman class is down from last year, said Rowan, explaining that it was "smaller by design." The decrease in students is because of the size of the graduating class of 1986, as well as the "phenomenal retention rate" — the number of students who remain at Saint Mary's rather than transfer to another college.

Although housing is filled to capacity, Rowan said no students will have to live in temporary housing.

Rowan attributes "the effective enrollment plan to a total College commitment." This includes personal contact to prospective students by faculty and administration as well as more than 700 personal interviews by the six-member admission committee.

As future alumni and their parents arrive yesterday afternoon, they are greeted by the Alumni Association van. More than 1,800 Notre Dame freshmen will have arrived by this weekend as freshman orientation continues. Four years from now, many will travel this road again, but they'll be heading in the other direction.

ND welcomes 1,820 frosh

By MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editor

For about 1820 incoming freshmen at Notre Dame, this is when it all begins.

Members of the Class of 1990 have arrived for freshman orientation weekend, the first of many events during their four years at Notre Dame.

"I wouldn't doubt it's one of the best classes ever," said Pat Leonardo, assistant director of admissions.

Thirty-five percent of this year's freshman class ranked in the top five of their graduating class, 75 percent were in the top 10 percent and 92 percent were in the top one-fifth, according to Notre Dame's 1986-87 Fact Sheet.

Members of the Class of 1990 also did well on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Their average composite score — approximately 1,200 — is slightly higher than last year's, Leonardo said.

"It's a very talented class," Leonardo added. "A tremendous number of them were captains of school teams or class presidents."

Approximately 2900 of the 6700 students who applied to Notre Dame were accepted, Leonardo said. Of those 2,900, between 1,820 and 1,825 are expected to enroll, he said.

Exact figures were not available because some students who sent in their enrollment confirmation may cancel at the last minute or not show up, he said.

Only about 90 of this year's freshmen have cancelled so far, Leonardo said. "That's one of the lowest number of cancellations ever," he said. "It's 50 percent lower than two year's ago."

"This is a class that seems to want to go to Notre Dame."

Despite the low number of cancellations, this year's freshman class probably will be slightly

Study lounges to be temporary home for 84 ND freshmen

By MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editor

While some students like to get a head start on their schoolwork, that's not the reason why more than 80 Notre Dame freshmen are expected to be in study lounges this week.

They'll be living in them — but only for awhile.

Because of overfilled dorms, about 84 freshmen will temporarily reside in study lounges in Flanner, Grace and Sorin halls, according to Evelyn Reinebold, director of student residences.

In addition, six other freshmen will be squeezed into dorm rooms in Alumni, Cavanaugh, Morrissey and Zahm halls. For example, a room designed for three students may temporarily have four.

Reinebold, who has been at the University for 15 years, said that this is the largest number of freshmen in makeshift quarters that she can remember. She added that Student Residences has been forced to put freshmen in temporary quarters for a number of years.

"We've always had an overflow," she said.

As other students move off campus or leave the University, freshmen will be relocated into other dorms, she said.

Reinebold said that she didn't know how long it would take to find permanent rooms for all the freshmen. "I wish I had a crystal ball," she said.

Last year, study lounges were home to 41 freshmen. Reinebold said she believed all had permanent rooms by the beginning of October, possibly earlier.

Freshmen will be moved out according to when they sent in their enrollment confirmations, she said. The earlier a student sent in his confirmation, the quicker he'll be moved out.

Currently, freshmen who sent in their confirmations after May 1 are in study lounges or squeezed into dorm rooms, Reinebold said. Although in the past both male and female freshmen were placed in temporary quarters, this year all are male students, she said.

Reinebold said freshmen must be placed in makeshift quarters because the Admissions Office accepts more students than there is space for, knowing that some will not come. Admissions must estimate the number that will decline the invitations, cancel their confirmations or not show up.

Because the number of cancellations was low this year, Student Residences was forced to place freshmen in temporary rooms, Reinebold said.

Assistant Director of Admissions Pat Leonardo disagreed, however. Leonardo said that although the number of cancellations was very low this year, Admissions expects between 1,820 and 1,825 freshmen to enroll. That's approximately the same number as Admissions was told to bring, he said.

With that in mind, Leonardo said he could only explain why about 20 students are without permanent rooms. According to Leonardo, on Wednesday Student Residences was given a list of approximately 1,840 freshmen that would need rooms. About 20 freshmen do not show up each year, he said.

Because Student Residences doesn't know which freshmen won't show up, some must be placed in temporary rooms, Leonardo said. Later, as the names of freshmen that didn't enroll become available, Student Residences can then assign those students in temporary quarters to the rooms of the "no-shows."

Because this only accounts for about 20 students living in temporary quarters this year, rather than 90, Leonardo suggested that Student Residences might be partially responsible for the overflow. "If in fact 90 people are in study lounges . . . why are there not 20 or 30?"

After Leonardo asked this question, an attempt was made to call back Reinebold. However, her assistant said Reinebold had become ill and had left the office for the day. An early deadline for

In Brief

Three residence halls at Saint Mary's will have new directors. Holly Taylor, who served in a variety of administrative positions at Bethel College, will be Regina Hall's residence hall director. Mary Jo Palmieri, who received her Masters Degree in counselor education from the University of Pittsburgh, will serve as McCandless Hall's director. Margaret "Mugs" Caven has moved to serve as director at LeMans Hall. - The Observer

Construction of the additions to the Notre Dame Law School has been delayed and won't be completed until October, according to Don Dedrick, director of the physical plant. Rain in November and delays in the delivery of materials slowed construction, Dedrick said. The remodeling of portions of the old building has been completed, as well as the north end of the addition, he said. Workers are now finishing the exterior masonry and working on the windows. Once they're done, they'll work on the offices in the south end of the addition. - The Observer

Notre Dame's War Memorial will be completed in about two weeks, according to Don Dedrick, director of the physical plant. Construction was delayed by the late shipment of black granite that surrounds the fountain, Dedrick said. "We had a heck of a time getting the black granite from Italy," he said. On Tuesday, the fountain was turned on. However, workers still must repair the sprinkler system and put in new sod before the memorial is completely done, Dedrick said. - The Observer

Ernan McMullin, O'Hara professor of philosophy at Notre Dame, has been elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, an international honorary society based in Cambridge, Mass. McMullin, who joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1954, was chairman of the department of philosophy for seven years. Currently director of the program in the history and philosophy of science, he specializes in theories of scientific method, the scientific revolution of the 17th century and the interactions of science and theology. Academy members research and publish material on national and international issues such as human rights, weapons in space and corporate responsibility. - The Observer

Notre Dame received $1,150,575 in grants during May and $1,748,858 during June for the support of research, equipment, instructional programs, service programs and other projects. Research grants in May totaled $818,069 and included $134,785 from the National Institutes of Health for research on predicting and modifying parenting in adolescent mothers by John Borkowski and Thomas Whitman, professors of psychology; Cynthia Schellenbach, assistant professor of psychology; and Scott Maxwell, associate professor of psychology. Research grants in June totaled $1,537,192 and included $344,071 from American Biogenetic Sciences Inc. for research and services in the University's Lobund Laboratory. - The Observer

LaFortune renovation complete by October

By MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editor

Once hoped to be finished by now, the renovation of the LaFortune Student Center is currently slated for completion by the third week of October, said Don Dedrick, director of the physical plant.

However, Dedrick said, parts of the building are essentially complete, and some businesses and organizations have already moved in.

Dedrick attributed the late completion date to delays in the delivery of materials and bad weather in November and December.

"The delivery of materials really held us up," Dedrick said. "When one material is not here, it really holds everything up."

"Construction delays were also caused by the weather," he said. "We had quite a bit of rain last November. We were doing outdoor work and we just couldn't get the work done."

Once completed, the student center will feature an elevator and a ramp, making it accessible to the handicapped, he said.

Dedrick described the renovation, begun last year, as being done from the top on down. "As parts are completed, they'll be turned over to the students," he said.

Currently, workers are putting the finishing touches on the third floor, which will house Student Activities, The Observer, the Dome, Scholastic, Adworks, a lounge area and conference rooms.

The offices of Student Activities, The Observer and the Dome are nearly complete, while Scholastic's should be done in about two weeks, Dedrick said. Student Activities and The Observer already have begun moving in.

On the second floor, workers are painting and doing the wood trim, Dedrick said. Student government, the International Student Affairs/Minority Student Affairs Office, Student Activities Board, Shenanigans, the class offices, WVFI-AM student radio station, the International Student Office lounge, the Black Cultural Arts Council lounge, Theodore's and club offices will all be located on the second floor.

Although Dedrick said the offices of student government should be completed in about two weeks, it wasn't clear when the others would be finished.

The Ballroom, also located on the second floor, is essentially complete, Dedrick said. However, the stairway leading to the Ballroom still needs painting and plastering.

On the first floor, construction is being done on the walls and ceiling of the Huddle, he said. The fast-food eatery should be completed by the third week of October.

Much work still needs to be done on the basement area, although the University Barbershop, which moved from Badin Hall, is already open there, Dedrick said. He added that he expects 1st Source Travel, which also moved from Badin Hall, and the Irish Gardens florist to be open by the time school starts.

"The other businesses, it's a little premature for me to know (when they'll be open)," Dedrick said. "The sweet shop, University Hair Stylist and game room will be awhile."

University Hair Stylist will remain in Badin Hall until it moves to the basement.

Other businesses to be housed in LaFortune's basement include the Ticket Stub, The Cellar (a record store) and a 24-hour laundromat. A television lounge will also be located there.

Dedrick said he expects the 24-hour laundromat to be the last part of the building completed, probably by the third week of October.

"I think when we finish everybody will be pleased," Dedrick said. "It's worth the wait."

Hawaiian Luau one of many events set for SMC freshmen

By MARGIE KERSTEN
Saint Mary's Editor

Saint Mary's freshmen may not have time to become homesick as the Orientation committee has planned several events to keep them busy.

Beginning this afternoon, freshmen and their parents will have the opportunity to learn about the different study-abroad programs affiliated with Saint Mary's. These include Rome, Spain, Semester around the World and the various summer-abroad programs offered by the College.

This evening, the traditional Hawaiian Luau will take place on the Dining Hall Green. According to Orientation Chairperson Maura Barille, Hawaiian dancers, food and much socializing will be part of the festivities.

Guests of Saint Mary's freshmen will be able to purchase tickets for $5. Admission is free for those 12 and under.

For the second year in a row, the survival-leader program will play a significant role in introducing freshmen to college life, according to Barille. "I think it (the program) is fantastic for the freshmen and is an instant way for the girls to make friends."

The survival-leader program consists of approximately 85 upperclassmen volunteering their time to the freshmen. Each upperclassman has five or six freshmen in her group, said Kathy Bryant, assistant chairperson.

All members of the group live in the same dorm, which allows the women easy accessibility to their leader, Bryant said.

Survival-group meetings will continue throughout the orientation period and possibly throughout the entire semester, said Barille.

Socializing will continue tomorrow night at the Pre-Dance party on the Haggar College Center Terrace for both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's freshmen. During the party, Saint Mary's freshmen will be able to obtain tickets for the Stepan Center dance, which will follow at 9.

In addition to the socializing, educational meetings will be scheduled for incoming students today and tomorrow. Meetings for parents and discussions about college majors are among the events planned.

After the initial transition to college life, Saint Mary's will be sponsoring a freshman trip to the Warren Dunes in Michigan. Buses are scheduled to depart from the McCandless Hall parking lot at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 30.

Barille said she is "pleased with the attitude and enthusiasm" of about 200 volunteers who have made the orientation possible. "We are really anticipating the arrival of the freshmen and feel we are organized and confident that it will go well."

Parents Welcome

'Ultimate icebreaker' set for Sunday

By LYNNE STRAND
Staff Reporter

Before it's all work and no play for Notre Dame freshmen, they will be treated to Playfair, a set program of comedy skits and audience participation to be held tomorrow at 8:45 p.m. on the Stepan Courts.

Described as "the ultimate icebreaker" by Martine Beamon, chairman of the Freshmen Orientation Committee, Playfair will feature group dynamic exercises. Students may be asked to form groups according to the month of their birth or their home state.

Lou Holtz, Notre Dame football coach, will be the event's guest speaker. According to Beamon, Holtz is the appropriate speaker because "he will tell why he's very proud to be at Notre Dame."

Beamon suggests students dress casually for the event because it's non-competitive. Following Playfair will be Dancefair, based on Recess, an event of Notre Dame's spring festival, An Tostal. "Dancefair is more than a dance, it's a party," said Beamon.

Freshmen will be officially welcomed aboard tonight at 7:30 in the Athletic Convocation Center.

Tomorrow, parents are invited to a morning financial aid meeting, a new orientation event to be held in the A.C.C.. At 11 a.m. will be the Welcome Mass for freshmen and their parents.

For those who have not yet toured the campus, the Freshman Orientation Committee will continue to offer tours today and tomorrow. Groups will leave hourly from the Main Circle, with sections of the 2 p.m. tour offered in Spanish.

"Freshmen Orientation is designed for new students to see what Notre Dame is really about," said Beamon.

ND student government unchanged

By FRANK LIPO
Staff Reporter

Although several attempts were made last year to reorganize Notre Dame's student government, they all failed, and thus the structure remains the same.

Student Government
Campus-wide student government is established by a written constitution. The constitution establishes the positions of student-body president, vice president and treasurer, and allows a cabinet to be chosen by the student-body president.

Student Activities Board
By the use of subcommittees, the SAB runs the annual Stepan Mall where students are able to rent refrigerators and buy furniture for their rooms. The SAB also coordinates other events throughout the year.

Student Senate
The Student Senate also is established by the constitution. It is composed of representatives from other branches of government, an elected off-campus senator and four elected on-campus senators.

Judicial Council
The Judicial Council, also established by the constitution, is composed of the judicial board chairmen of each dorm. The council provides assistance to students accused of violating University rules and regulations.

Hall Presidents' Council
The Hall Presidents' Council is composed of all 24 hall presidents, an elected off-campus commissioner, a secretary and a chairman. The HPC helps sponsor dorm events and acts as a network of information and a support system for the individual dorms.

The HPC, which meets once a week and has its own constitution, also has legislative responsibilities.

Campus Life Council
The Campus Life Council is the part of student government responsible for passing or rejecting proposals initiated by the Student Senate. It includes people from every aspect of the University.

Freshmen can get involved in SMC student government

By MARGIE KERSTEN
Saint Mary's Editor

Freshmen at Saint Mary's will have plenty of opportunities to become involved in student government, according to Student Body President Jeanne Heller.

Freshmen will have the opportunity to apply for several different commissioner positions in their respective dorms, Heller said. They can also run for one of the four class offices in September.

Student government at Saint Mary's takes the form of three main bodies: the Board of Governance, the Student Academic Council and the Programming Board.

The Board of Governance, chaired by the Student Body President, has jurisdiction over proposed changes in policy. Residence hall and class presidents are members of the Board of Governance, in addition to student commissioners. A Notre Dame representative and a resident advisor representative also attend Board meetings.

Betsy Burke, vice president for academic affairs and college relations, chairs the Student Academic Council. It consists of student representatives from each academic department of the College and various College committees. The Council provides a forum for student discussion of different academic policies and proposed changes.

The third student-government body, the Programming Board, is chaired by Sarah Cook, vice president for student affairs. The Programming Board plans activities and coordinates student-related events on campus.

smaller than last year's, when approximately 1,840 freshmen enrolled, Leonardo said. However, it will be larger than the freshman class of two years ago, when 1790 came to the University.

Approximately 1310 of this year's freshman class are men and about 515 are women, a ratio nearly the same as last year, Leonardo said. About 62 blacks, 58 hispanics, 32 Asian-Americans and nine American Indians are expected to enroll, as are 43 foreign students, he said.

Indiana, New York and Illinois are about tied for the state which most freshmen call home, Leonardo said. In descending order, the remaining top 12 home states of freshmen are Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, New Jersey, Michigan, Texas, Massachusetts, Florida and Wisconsin.

Lounges

this issue prevented additional calls the next day.

Earlier, Reinebold said that 40 freshmen would live in study lounges in each of Grace and Flanner halls, with four men to a lounge. Four freshmen will also live in Sorin Hall's study lounge.

Although Building Services tries to make the lounges comparable to a student room, placing furniture and phones in the lounges, Reinebold said it's still difficult for freshmen to live in the temporary quarters.

"The problem is they (students) move in and get acquainted with each other. They make friends," Reinebold said. "But then we move them out according to confirmation dates."

"Some really want to stay in Flanner or Grace, but we can't do that," she said.

Roommates: horror stories, happy endings

MARY JACOBY
features editor

The question right now might be: How do I become best friends with my roommate?

Three months from now that question could be: Is it really important that I become best friends with my roommate?

Many of the most fruitful rooming situations result from roommates who "broaden their horizons and develop new interests," according to Christine Conway, a psychologist with the University Counseling Center. Conway said stress often results when roommates "have the expectation they're going to be best friends."

It may seem like heresy to suggest that successful roommates can be none other than best friends. That notion can become even more stupefying for freshman when they look around them and see their new classmates in the dorms going to parties with their roommates already, talking and laughing together as if their relationships date back to kindergarten.

Don't let it fool you. Most every other freshman out there is experiencing the same tight knot in the stomach when it comes to smiling at all these new acquaintances and trying to make interesting conversation without asking too many times where someone is from or what his major is.

And the person who deludes himself the most could very well be the freshman across the hall who spends every moment of his time with his roommate, going from one orientation session to another together, laughing, talking, calling his roommate his best friend after only a week on campus.

These are some of the people you might hear the horror stories about later.

Campus lore passes down the tale of one freshman woman on the North Quad who moved all her roommate's belongings into the hall — including her bed — after reaching the breaking point in their relationship. What that breaking point may have been varies with each interpretation of the story. Maybe the dispossessed roommate was a neurotic chain smoker who was afraid to face men, or perhaps she chattered incessantly on the phone with old friends from home so that her new friend — her roommate — couldn't get a peaceful moment in edgewise. Or possibly they both couldn't take the strain of trying to force themselves to like each other.

But this is an extreme case. I spent my entire first week on campus living off a tin of molasses cookies my grandmother sent with me as a going away present. I couldn't go to the dining hall because my roommate was always away, off with her parents or other friends, attending different functions from mine. And no freshman ventures out anywhere, much less the dining hall, alone.

Thus I was too shy to hang around with some of the other freshmen in my dorm until I was asked to go to dinner with them because they all seemed so chummy. Already. The women in the quad next to my room were already wearing each other's clothes and french-braiding each other's hair. The roommates in the singles across from mine were already a solid pair in the minds of other residents, who never saw one without the other. And then there I was, all alone, tired of tagging along with other roommates and afraid that I might already appear to be a real loser because even my own roommate wouldn't associate with me.

"You arrive at the University and haven't met anyone yet but your roommate. It's kind of out of fear you want to be with this person," Conway said.

But that was only the first week of my career at Notre Dame. Of all the roommates around me in my dorm, I was one of the few who ended up pairing with my freshman roommate again. We shared the same living space for three years.

During freshman orientation it would have been hard to believe that we could milk three years together out of that unsure beginning. After all, we didn't seem to take to one another right away as others around us did. But that's just the point: we gave each other time to become adjusted to our new situations and recognize that we were not old friends, that we were not ready to share our all our moments and activities together.

But now after having shared many memorable times, I'd say we would qualify as old friends. Living successfully with another person in a 12-by-18-foot room fosters a special kind of bond into which no one else can ever quite enter. That first week of doubt and insecurity really paid off.

Beth and I... we go WAY back!

Exploring strange frontiers

ERIC M. BERGAMO
assistant features editor

Being a freshman at Notre Dame in South Bend is like being a stranger in a strange land.

Gone are all the familiar places of your hometown, replaced by the new surroundings of South Bend. Here are some hints to help make the transition to this new home easier.

Places to shop

Three major shopping malls in the South Bend area offer a variety of stores.

University Park Mall is two miles north of the campus on State Route 23. The mall features more than 90 stores and restaurants along with two movie theaters that show the latest releases. A shuttle bus runs from the campus to the mall every Friday and Saturday evening at a cost of 50 cents. During the week Transpo, the South Bend area public transportation service, runs buses to the mall.

Scottsdale Mall is on the south side of the city on Ireland Road. Scottsdale offers many of the same stores as University Park and has two movie theaters. Transpo runs bus service to this mall as well.

The 100 Center in nearby Mishawaka is different from University Park and Scottsdale in that it is located in a renovated brewery. A number of unique specialty shops and restaurants can be found at the 100 Center.

Other smaller shopping centers are close to the Notre Dame campus. North Village Mall on U.S. 31 and the Town and Country Plaza on McKinley Avenue are nearest.

The Goodwill Store offers used merchandise at very inexpensive prices. Such items as easy chairs, couches, tables and lamps for dorm rooms can be bought there. Goodwill is a half mile south of the campus at the Five Corners.

Lodging

A number of hotels and motels in South Bend provide lodging at comparable prices, either inexpensive or expensive.

The Morris Inn, operated by the University, is the closest hotel to Notre Dame. The hotel is just south of the campus across from the Center for Continuing Education.

Many inexpensive hotels can be found on U.S. 31: The Budgeteer Motor Inn, Days Inn, Motel 6, Howard Johnson's and the Ramada Inn. The more upscale hotels can be found in downtown South Bend at the Americana Inn on West Washington Avenue and the Marriott on St. Joseph's Avenue.

Places to eat

Fast food restaurants are on U.S. 31 near the campus: Azar's Big Boy; Denny's; Bonnie Doon; Godfather Pizza; the Golden Bear; Kentucky Fried Chicken; McDonald's; Pizza Hut;

Ponderosa; Steak and Ale; Taco Bell and Naugles.

One of the more popular restaurants is not located on US 31. Barnaby's, where many Notre Dame students go for pizza, is on Grape Road and East Jefferson in Mishawaka.

For more formal dining, South Bend offers its share of restaurants with good food and good atmosphere: Barclay's on U.S. 31; Captain Alexander's Wharf on East Colfax Avenue near downtown; the Carriage House on Adams Road; Doc Pierce's on North Main Street in Mishawaka; the East Bank Emporium on South Niles Avenue; the Ice House and the Rathskellar, both located in the 100 Center in Mishawaka; Jeremiah Sweeney's on Grape Road; and Tippecanoe Place

Transportation

Transpo offers bus service to all of South Bend and Mishawaka at a cost of 50 cents one way. Transpo buses stop at the Main Circle and the Library Circle on the campus.

If Chicago is the destination, the South Shore Railroad Station, located at 722 W. Washington Ave., provides service to the Windy City. The South Shore provides service to Chicago three times daily at a cost of $14. Amtrak also provides train service to the rest of the country from the station.

Freshmen can ride the Transpo bus service downtown to visit their parents at the Americana Inn.

Pressures, parents and promises for ND family

The following column originally appeared in the Aug. 25, 1984 edition of The Observer. It was read to the students and parents of the Notre Dame Class of 1988 at Freshman Orientation. Although its content has been revised for the Class of 1990, its message remains unchanged.

Joe Murphy

welcome home

Other "Veteran Domers" no doubt will tell you, the Class of 1990, about Emil and about the alcohol policy. I will not. Instead, this column is about pressure, parents and promises.

Last year at this time, I received a phone call from a man who had hoped his son would be a member of the Class of 1989. The man asked that I tell his son how one becomes a "Domer" and what exactly "Domers" do. So, being the man for others that I am, I met with the man's son.

Young Bill reminded me of myself. Here he was, not even officially a senior in high school, already worried about college life. He obviously had been placing a great deal of pressure on himself to succeed and become a "Domer." I told him that you do not have to be a "Domer" to be a success.

The pressure Bill was facing was compounded by the fact that his parents, like many Catholic parents, wanted him to attend Notre Dame. Bill wanted to know whether he could get accepted and whether he could survive at Notre Dame. I told him he would answer those two questions himself in the near future.

Unfortunately, Bill was not accepted. During your four years here, remember Bill and the thousands of other young students who would love to be where you are. I ask only that you make a simple promise to yourself because you are here and they are not: Promise yourself that you will leave Notre Dame a better person and that Notre Dame will be a better place for your having been here.

For the Class of 1990, the question of acceptance has been answered. I am sure though, the question of academic and social survival remains a nagging doubt hidden in the back of your mind.

To the Class of 1990, some simple advice is offered. Do not let the pressure get the best of you. Your parents will be just as proud of you whether you make the Dean's Honor List or not. Second, keep in close touch with your parents and relatives for they are a source of inspiration on many lonely nights. Third, stay particularly close to your grandparents for you are their golden dome which keeps them young.

Fourth, remember it is a privilege to attend Notre Dame, but it is a privilege for which you are paying. Do not accept second-best from yourself or your school. Go beyond your potential and expect Notre Dame to go beyond its. That is all anyone can ask of you, and all you can ask of Notre Dame. Simply be the best.

Fifth, and above all, remember that not everyone's life revolves around Notre Dame. Be proud, but always be humble. The purpose of your education is not to place you above the masses, but enable you to lead the masses.

Today marks not only an arrival, but a departure. You are leaving your family and joining ours. You are doing the one thing which your parents have feared from the day of your birth - you are growing up.

So to the parents of this class, I merely say that it is OK to cry when you say goodbye. If you cry though, cry for the right reasons. Cry because you have given your children the opportunity you probably never received. Cry because your children are no longer under your roof, and you will miss them. Cry because you love them.

Parents remember that for every parting there is a homecoming. Your children have left only your house, not you. Rejoice in this triumph. You have raised your children well. Call often, send surprises through the mail and one day four years from now your children will return having become the type of people you are. That is a promise.

Joe Murphy is a senior government and international relations major from Saint Louis, Missouri and the editor-in-chief of The Observer.

Predictions and expectations for freshman year

Cliches tend to be so troublesome. They rear their predictable heads at births, weddings and deaths and other occasions where tearflow reaches optimum production. Entrance into college could well fall into this classification, meaning that the following inches of newsprint will be filled with archaic and bronzed bromides. I will attempt to diversify.

Pete Pranica

guest column

Once upon a time, a somewhat famous person was heard to say, "Gentlemen" (although some other word would be more appropriate here today), "never in your lives will you do anything so important." This is not a line from a general or a college dean. In point of fact, it was uttered prior to the start of a Yale-Harvard football game. Before a football game, the coach's theatrics were a bit much, although upon entrance into college, it is more relevant.

True, I said I would not deal in cliches, so rather than pick apart that coach's charge to his troops, I will tell you that what you are about to undertake is the most important thing in your lives — both to you and your families. Certainly, anything costing $10,000 per year would mean a lot to anybody.

Like it or not, at Notre Dame you will be carrying a banner for your family, town and school. In a sense you become a symbol — a symbol of academic and social success. You achieved in high school and now it is on to a bigger challenge. How you handle that challenge will be watched by all.

Your parents will be most concerned — about everything from academics to your diet to your roommate. Understand and comfort them. Believe it or not, they are probably just as worked up over this as you are, perhaps more so. You are the product of their toil and tears; they want only the best for you.

While you must be understanding of your parents, it is you who must strap on the bookbag and do the reading. For some of you, this will be the first time that you have been so independent, so alone. Intimidating?

It would certainly seem so, but only for the first few months or so. That's why Dean Emil Hofman is there. Listen to him; he has seen countless freshmen enter the University and he knows, even better than you do, what will run through your mind during your freshman year. You will be alternately happy and not so happy, unsure of what lurks around the next corner when the only thing to fear is your own uncertainty. Notre Dame is not a monster which spits out young men and women. Instead it nurtures and educates.

But you will do other things on your own once you've found yourself in the Notre Dame community. You will study and read and compute and write and re-write. You will be tested, graded and evaluated. Some will excel, others will flounder, but most will do "all right." You will look at career choices and choose a major as a first toddler's steps into the Great Big World Out There. Understand though, that academia is but one part of your experience.

You will cheer and shake down the thunder at football and basketball games, but complain if the Irish lose. You will learn that plaid pants are verboten, especially when they come with batteries.

You will criticize the administration for its doctrine of in loco parentis. You will roast Father Hesburgh as a sometimes-absentee president who is out of touch with student concerns. You will toast him for turning Notre Dame into an intellectual, as well as athletic, giant. You will celebrate with him at Mass.

You will complain loud and long about the opposite sex. You will fall in love; you will fall out of love. You may even marry someone in your class. But be forewarned... any insights into the social situation you might have were already discovered years ago. Plagiarism is grounds for dismissal from the University.

You will laugh and you will cry; you will love and (unfortunately) you will hate. You will break up and make up and sit up all night trying to make sense of it all. Welcome to college, a laboratory where you can learn in a controlled environment about yourself and others.

You will pray at the Grotto at three in the morning in the rain or snow. You will thank God for your successes and question your failures and plead for more of the former and not the latter.

Before long, the high-school hotshot turned scared frosh will round into shape — spiritually, academically and socially. The trip will be filled with rough seas and treacherous winds and cold nights. But you are not alone; there are 1,800 others making the same voyage and shared adversity will make you strong and mature.

You will enter the port of adulthood in May of 1990. You will look back at the romances and road trips, the dances and the drinks, the formals and the football games, the complaints and the camaraderie and you will cry quiet, happy tears, just as your parents cried when they left you behind.

Welcome to Notre Dame.

Pete Pranica is a Notre Dame alumnus and was a regular Viewpoint columnist.

Quote of the Day

"You know your gifts better than anyone else. You are free to use them as you will. I cannot tell you that you should use them to make the world better, although I think you should. Whatever I think, you must make the decision, and only you can. I can only say that your gifts are a precious heritage, and that mankind today needs such gifts if human equality, human development, and the promise of science and technology are to become a reality and not a frustrated hope."

Student Activities Newsletter

August / September 1986

Welcome to your home away from home! We, in the Office of Student Activities, know how thrilled you are to be in South Bend, Indiana!!! Well, you can enhance your stay by participating in some very exciting events. Start your year off right -- a year which we hope will be academically successful as well as socially enjoyable. Following are some of the highlights:

Hear ye, hear ye, Class of 1990! Orientation takes place August 22 through August 24. There will be a movie Friday evening, "Flamingo Kid" at 8:00 p.m. in Washington Hall. Following the movie, parents are invited to a reception in the South Dining Hall at 10:00 p.m. while students may attend a gathering on South Quad at 10:00 p.m. Social festivities will end Sunday with "Playfair" from 8:45-9:45 and a "Dancefair" immediately following which you won't want to miss. Last year there were approximately 3,000 students who attended this event. This dance is a great way to start off the social side of your college career.

Whether you are jubilant or hesitant (or maybe a combination of the two) about your return, you will find fun geared to your individual pleasures during our week of welcome. Individual class picnics, ice cream socials and trips to the Dunes are just a few of the events enticing you to participate. There will also be an opportunity to do some shopping at Stepan Mall to make your dorm less dreary. Come spend your moolah! A few other highlights of this week are 1) "The Panic" will be playing on the North Quad in front of Haggard Hall from 8:00-11:00 p.m. Everyone is invited. 2) There will be a first ever outdoor movie on campus. No cars invited!! 3) Yes, the "Music King" returns to play again at the annual (campus-wide) "Dance Under the Stars" Beach Party, August 29 from 9:00-11:00 p.m. Just imagine 22 tons of sand on Stepan basketball courts. Add to that the sound and light extravaganza, refreshments, a WALLAH! Instant Beach party. all you need is a pair of sunglasses, a towel and your dancing thongs to enjoy this evening on Stepan Beach.

Student Activities Night will be held at Stepan Center, September 2 from 7:00 p.m. until 10:00 p.m. Clubs and organizations will provide information at their respective booths. This is an excellent time to learn about the different groups on campus to help you determine where your interests lie.

For more than a decade, Gloria Steinem has been the most persuasive spokesperson for the feminist movement in America. At the same time, she has built a reputation as a journalist of outstanding integrity. Her work has appeared in New York Magazine, where she was a founding editor and the political columnist until 1971, and numerous other national publications, as well as many abroad. She currently writes regularly for MS. Considered to be one of the most influential women in the United States, she also travels as a speaker and feminist organizer. We in the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community will be fortunate enough to hear her elaborate on issues concerning the humanity of all peoples on September 17 O'Laughlin Auditorium. Don't miss this opportunity to hear the "woman of our times."

"The World's Greatest Mime." This is how Don McLeod is billed. McLeod was the famed American Tourister gorilla and is presently filming an episode of TV's "Amazing Stories" which will be aired in September. Don performs a closing piece entitled "The Creation," which portrays God's creation and Man's uncreation. In addition, he has agreed to create three of four topical pieces regarding social concerns. He will also do a piece called "Sophomoric" about a young college student who "Knows it all." He will appear in Washington Hall, 8:00 p.m., September 18. Don't miss this unique performance.

staff. Nester also is credited with upgrading the College's soccer team from club status to the varsity level, in addition to arranging for the Saint Mary's swim team's use of Rockne Memorial pool. With 11 years of high school and college coaching and teaching behind her, Nester headed the Saint Mary's tennis team, which finished 10th in the nation in NAIA competition last spring. Nester holds bachelor and masters degrees from West Chester State in Pennsylvania, and she received her doctor of education degree with a minor in sports administration from Temple University.

Col. John Stephens - This is Jack Stephens' 19th year in the Irish administration and his fourth year as director of special projects for Corrigan. He assumed the role after having spent seven years as associate athletic director and another eight as an assistant director. Despite holding his present job for only a short time, though, he already has made an impact, playing a major role in the formation of the North Star Conference - a conference in which several women's sports competed until last spring.

Roger Valdiserri - Valdiserri is entering his fourth year as associate athletic director after having served seven years as an assistant. However, he is best known for his work as director of the sports information department. A 1954 Notre Dame graduate, he served briefly as an administrative assistant to former football coach Terry Brennan. In 1966, after public relations stints with Mercedes-Benz and the Kansas City Chiefs, he returned to his alma mater to become sports information director and, 10 years later, added assistant athletic director to his duties. Regarded as one of the best in his field, Valdiserri has earned 43 awards since 1976 from the College Sports Information Directors of America for his sports publications, many honored as the best in the nation. Valdiserri is also the current president of CoSIDA.

Joe O'Brien - A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, O'Brien is in his fourth year as associate athletic director after a seven-year stint as an assistant director. He also continues to manage the department's finances as athletic business manager. In 1955, O'Brien was named director of personnel functions at South Bend's second-largest employer - Notre Dame. He has been here ever since, joining the athletic staff in 1976. He served as president of the College Athletic Business Managers Association in 1983 and was named business manager of the year in 1983 by CABMA.

Dr. Tom Kelly - As director of non-varsity athletics, Kelly oversees 12 club sports and 63 different intramural events. Kelly, who was named an assistant athletic director in 1983, received his masters degree in physical education from Penn State and his masters and Ph.D in Educational Administration from Notre Dame. He previously was NVA's assistant director for 11 years (until 1979) and varsity baseball coach from 1976 through the 1980 season.

Brian Boulac - A former Notre Dame tight end, this 1963 University graduate was named assistant athletic director in 1983 following 13 seasons on the Irish football coaching staff. During that time, Boulac was recruiting coordinator for seven years, an administrative assistant to Dan Devine for two years, and a coach of the offensive and defensive lines, receivers and specialty teams over that span. Presently Boulac's job is to offer direct assistance to athletic director Gene Corrigan in a wide variety of areas.

Mike Bobinski - Bobinski is something of a newcomer to the athletic department's administrative ranks, although certainly no stranger to Notre Dame sports. He was named ticket manager and assistant business manager in the spring of 1984. The 28-year-old Bobinski is a 1979 Notre Dame graduate and a former Irish baseball pitcher who returned to South Bend after two years in management audit and participant accounting with Disney World in Orlando, Fla. He earned two letters as a right-handed pitcher and was a four-year member of the Irish starting rotation.

Mike DeCicco - Better known as coach of the highly-successful Notre Dame fencing team, DeCicco doubles as academic advisor for all Notre Dame athletes. Responsibility for the University's high graduation rate among its athletes lies mostly with DeCicco, whose task is to advise more than 500 athletes at Notre Dame. A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, DeCicco taught for a number of years in the University's mechanical engineering department before giving up teaching to concentrate full-time on his job as academic advisor. His fencing teams have brought home an overall record of 480-40 and won the national championship last spring as well as back-to-back titles in 1977 and 1978.

John Heisler - Now in his fifth year as associate director of sports information at Notre Dame after four years as assistant director, the 32-year-old Heisler has had a large hand in the editing of a number of award-winning publications. Ten have been judged "Best in the Nation" by College Sports Information Directors of America panels, including two of the last four football guides. Before coming to Notre Dame, the South Bend native had been an assistant director at Missouri for one year, after serving as a student assistant at that school for four years and then graduating from Missouri's School of Journalism in 1976.

Jim Daves returns to Notre Dame to begin his first year as assistant sports information director. Daves, who was a graduate assistant in the Sports Information Department two years ago, will edit both football and basketball game programs as well as supervise press relations and publications for Notre Dame's non-revenue sports. The 25-year-old native of Greensboro, N.C., graduated from North Carolina-Charlotte in 1984 and spent last year as the director of communications for the Midwest Collegiate Conference.

the day. It wasn't like we went out and started bashing each other."

The end of the first day of full-gear practices was highlighted by a freshman scrimmage which gave the coaching staff their first real look at the newcomers. Banks and Johnson teamed up in the backfield and each broke off some good gains. McShane ended the scrimmage by breaking up a sweep and causing a fumble. After Thursday's practice Head Coach Lou Holtz was optimistic about his new players.

"As far as athletes, we can't evaluate them yet," he said. "They're a really nice group. They work well together, and they're fun to work with."

In the weeks to come the freshman football players will face more adjustments as they begin to deal with the pressures of being student athletes and continue to assert themselves on the field.

Notre Dame baseball team, begins his second year as chairman of the department of physical education. Gallo received undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Rhode Island before coming to Notre Dame as a physical education teacher in 1979. Gallo was named head coach of the Irish baseball squad in 1981 and now also works with Gene Corrigan and Dean Emil T. Hofman of the Freshman Year of Studies to coordinate the freshman physical education program.

Dennis Stark - After 27 years as the head coach of Notre Dame's men's and women's swim teams, Stark resigned his duties in the spring of 1985 to assume the position of director of aquatics for Notre Dame's new pool on the east side of the ACC, which opened last fall. Stark, a graduate of Notre Dame, had been the only coach of the men's swim team since it was granted varsity status in 1958, and he compiled a 174-137-1 record during that period. He continues to teach swimming for the physical education department while coordinating all activities in the new swimming facility.

Sports facilities offer diversion from classes

Athletic & Convocation Center - The double-domed ACC, located east of the Stadium, contains more area than the Houston Astrodome. The South Dome houses the basketball arena used by both men's and women's varsity teams. The North Dome is used by the hockey, tennis and track teams, among others. Within the structure are handball, racquetball, squash, basketball, tennis and volleyball courts that usually are open to the public. Reservations are required for most of the courts. One may also take advantage of the ice rink, boxing room and running track.

The Rolf's Natatorium - Completed last year, this Olympic-sized pool is located at the east end of the Athletic & Convocation Center. The pool has the capability of being divided into three sections. This allows diving in one end, recreational swimming in the middle and water polo in the other end. The pool, which measures 50 meters in length and 25 yards wide, also includes a diving area with three one-meter boards and two three-meter boards.

Angela Athletic Facility - Located north of the Cushwa-Leighton Library on the Saint Mary's campus, Angela includes a track, basketball, volleyball, racquetball and indoor tennis courts. Weight machines, fitness and gymnastic equipment also are housed in the facility. In addition, there are tennis and basketball courts outside the building. The facility is open to all Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students upon the presentation of a student ID. Reservations are needed for the racquetball courts.

Burke Memorial Golf Course - On the west end of campus is the 18-hole, 6,500-yard University golf course. The course is open until late fall and reopens in early spring. Green fees are $3 for students, faculty and staff.

Rockne Memorial Building - Located at the west end of South Quad, "The Rock" is the center for the physical education program. The brick structure contains basketball courts, handball-racquetball courts, a weight room, a light apparatus room, a swimming pool and the golf pro shop. Use of the Rockne Memorial is free to all students and faculty members upon presentation of a University identification card. Closing time is 11 p.m. daily.

Stepan Center - Stepan Center and its adjoining fields and outdoor basketball courts are located in the northeast corner of the campus. Outside of the domed Center, one can play basketball, football, soccer, rugby and softball. The basketball courts, which can be turned into an ice rink in the winter, are outfitted with lights that allow students to play basketball late into the night. Within Stepan Center are basketball and volleyball courts, open for recreational and league play.

Scrimmages such as that above signal the beginning of the 1986 Notre Dame football season. Although noting that improvement is still necessary, Coach Holtz says he is pleased with the team's progress.

Holtz pleased with fall scrimmage

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

One of the comments heard most often along the sidelines at practice this week has been "I can't believe it's football season already." But with the season opener with Michigan less than a month away, the 1986 edition of the Notre Dame football team has gotten into full swing.

Upperclassmen reported Friday, August 15, to receive physicals and equipment and after Picture Day last Saturday, began three days of practice without pads the following Monday. Thursday, the Irish began two-a-day practices in full pads.

As is usual in the first days of practice, the defense appeared to be a little ahead of the offense in the first scrimmages. Timings on pass patterns and the center exchange were off. Yet despite the miscues, Irish head coach Lou Holtz was pleased with his squad's early showing.

"We can't do any more as far as effort and intensity," Holtz commented after Thursday's drills. "You can't tell that we're getting there - and we've got a way to go - but we're getting there."

"No matter how much film you look at in the summer, you've still got more to work on in the fall."

One thing that was immediately evident was the discipline that has been instilled on the field. There were more "yes sirs" and "no sirs" heard on the field than one hears at a boot camp.

So far in this early season, injuries haven't been much of a factor with the exceptions of senior offensive tackle Pete Rokich and senior tailback Hiawatha Fransisco. Rokich suffered a herniated disc while lifting weights and was scheduled to undergo back surgery yesterday morning. As of then, it was too early to tell how long Rokich would be unable to play. Fransisco has yet to take part in any action because of continuing problems with his arthritic knees.

Defensive backs George Streeter, Mike Haywood and Steve Lawrence all sat out Thursday's action because of various minor muscle pulls.

Frosh football players prepare for college ball during fall practices

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

Life at Notre Dame began early for a select group of the class of 1990, the freshman football players. For this group, they faced more of an adjustment than just being away from home. On August 10, the newest members of the Irish squad reported to Notre Dame and when they did, they were no longer the high schools stars that they had once been.

Instead of being the biggest, fastest or strongest players on their respective teams, now they were just one of many players of equal ability. They now had to start over to prove themselves to their coaches and teammates.

"On your high school team, you're the man. Here, everybody's an all-American," said Kevin McShane, a 6-3, 218 lb. outside linebacker from Joliet, Ill. "Now you have to rely on technique and what the coaches are telling you rather than God-given talent."

After the first meal on the 10th, the players underwent physicals and then began a series of daily meetings that left them little time to themselves.

"The schedule was kind of crowded," said Braxton Banks, a 6-2, 205 lb. fullback from Hayward, Calif. "There wasn't much time between meetings, and we're used to relaxing and doing what we want to do. There just wasn't much time. But it's something you have to overcome and get through - no pain, no gain."

After the veterans reported last Sunday, the freshmen and the rest of the team began working out without equipment for three days, which left the freshmen wondering about what it was going to be like when they started mixing it up with players the size of 6-9, 274 lb. Wally Kleine or 6-7, 243 lb. Tom Rehder when contact drills began Thursday.

"There was a big question mark in every freshman's mind," said Anthony Johnson, a 6-1, 220 lb. running back from South Bend. "After a while I really wanted to hit. Once we started banging, it was kind of a relief."

"The night before pads, everybody was a little uptight," echoed McShane. "The next morning, no one was talking. They were all thinking about what it was going to be like. The coaches do a really good job. They start out easy and let everybody progress through

A guide to the people behind ND athletics

Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C.

- A 1937 Notre Dame graduate, Fr. Joyce was named executive vice president of the University in 1952, three years after his ordination. As chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, Joyce always has maintained, "First things come first, and the first things for us are academics. I tell every squad of athletes that when the students return to campus each fall." In his 34 years at Notre Dame, Joyce has watched as Notre Dame has built one of the nation's most successful records in intercollegiate athletics, while at the same time maintaining one of highest graduation rates among its athletes.

Gene Corrigan - Since succeeding the legendary Moose Krause as athletic director in 1981, Corrigan has made his presence felt both at Notre Dame and on the national level. In addition to being a member of the NCAA Division I basketball committee and the NCAA Council, Corrigan also has been instrumental in the dealings of the College Football Association

(CFA) with both the NCAA and the television networks. Corrigan was a driving force in the organization and planning of Notre Dame's first-ever athletic endowment fund, designed to increase opportunities for Notre Dame students at all levels of competition. He also is credited with the introduction of two new varsity sports - lacrosse and women's swimming - in his first full year as athletic director. Additionally, women's cross country made the jump to varsity status this year. Before coming to Notre Dame, Corrigan served for nine years as director of athletic programs at the University of Virginia.

Dr. Jo-Ann Nester - Nester is in her third year as Director of Athletics and Recreation at Saint Mary's College. In her first collegiate athletic administrative position, some of Nester's accomplishments include organizing Saint Mary's first student-run athletic council and bringing in four highly-touted coaches to the Saint Mary's
