Parking tickets computerized

By ASHOK RODRIGUES
News Staff

Notre Dame Security has installed a computer system to handle parking violations. Security officers can now issue parking tickets generated on the spot by hand-held computers. The system also signals when a vehicle has accumulated enough violations to be towed.

"The advantage to the University is that it makes parking enforcement more efficient," said Phil Johnson, assistant director for Notre Dame security and the individual in charge of the new ticketing procedure.

Using the touch sensitive screens on their portable Epson computers, security staff enter the relevant data about the vehicle in question. The unit then prints out the vehicle description, violation, and fine on a form, which is left on the vehicle.

In addition, if the vehicle's owner has accumulated four or more citations in an academic year, the computer will instruct the officer to have the car towed at the owner's expense. Accumulation of two tickets for parking in handicapped zones will also trigger a signal to tow the car.

With over 800 'towable' cars on campus last year, Security needed a means to keep track of them. Cars that should have been towed were not, due to the administrative difficulty of keeping track of the violators. "My feeling is that if we are going to be towing people with tickets, we should tow after the fourth ticket, and this system will allow it," Johnson explained.

"We want violators to understand that if they park in an area where they ought not park, there are consequences," Johnson added.

One advantage of the new system is that it displays the amount of the fine on the ticket. In the past, people had to call in to find out exactly how much the fine was.

Security expects the system,

Notre Dame contributes to open homeless shelter

By KELLEY TUTHILL
News Staff

An innovative multi-service center for the homeless will open this fall in South Bend, as a result of the efforts of the Council of Providers of Services to the Homeless (COPOSH), and a half million dollars from the University of Notre Dame.

Last year the United Religious Community (URC) operated an overnight winter shelter in South Bend. This new center, located at 813 So. Michigan Street, will be open year round, 24 hours a day. David T. Link, dean of the Law School and member of COPOSH, said that the purpose of this facility "is not just to shelter the homeless, but to help people move from the homeless condition back into society."

The center will consist of several different agencies under one roof offering various services to those in need. The URC has hired Stephen Newton to coordinate the operations of the center. "Keeping a balance between the different factors will be the trick," said Newton. "Notre Dame's involvement means that the school does care about the local community."

Thomas Mason, vice president for Business Affairs, said, "the top reason the University became involved in this project is the number of students that have been active in serving the homeless in the past." Mason said the project was financed from physical plant funds that are generally used for the construction and renovation of campus facilities. He added that the University will maintain the site as it does any other University building.

Mason said that the center was particularly appealing because, "we (the University) did not want a warehouse type of shelter, but a place that had a total involvement to the physical and mental well being of the homeless." He believes that the center will be, "a more

Notre Dame to establish new scholarship fund

By JULIE FLANAGAN
News Staff

Notre Dame has received a $100,000 pledge to establish a scholarship fund from the Elise and Joseph Beck Foundation of Shrewsbury, New Jersey.

University President Father Edward Malloy has called fundraising for scholarships a priority.

According to Joe Russo, director of Financial Aid, this goal for scholarship fundraising has been set at $100,000,000, and is to be reached by 1990. This figure doubles the previous endowment.

Last year, $3,000,000 was distributed in the form of Notre Dame scholarships to 1100 undergraduate students.

Despite the recent push for merit scholarships, financial need is still a primary consideration. However, according to Kevin Rooney, director of admissions, about 200 individuals with a strong desire to attend the University can not do so because of the insufficient amount of scholarship money available.

In addition, every year several students must transfer out of Notre Dame due to lack of financial resources. Rooney stated, "I do not know of any comparable private university that has such limited scholarship funds."

Kerrigan, a poet, writer and editor, is best known for his work as translator for such authors as Miguel de Unamuno, Jorge Luis Borges, and Pablo Neruda. He is the first translator to be recommended for a Senior Fellowship.

In a bizarre experiment designed to simulate life in space, the Gambian Air Force welded four men in the cab of a 1957 Chevy pickup and left them there for sixteen days. The Weekly World News reports that the men were hospitalized with heatstroke after being freed from their "spacecraft." General Dembo Ceesay, the top-ranking officer in the Gambian Air Force (which has yet to buy its first plane,) defended the tests, saying that they "are imperative if we are to reap the benefits of interplanetary exploration and trade."

Stop for a moment. Try to forget about the assignments that are due tomorrow and the reading that you are already behind on. Temporarily disregard weekend plans and hectic schedules. Ignore any stress that you may be feeling right now.

Now you are ready to reenter a child's world. Even though most college students consider elementary school ancient history, I feel that we could all benefit by occasionally adopting a child's carefree attitude and unclouded perspective.

We have many responsibilities and inhibitions now that did not dictate our actions as third graders. Although our current situations in a college setting prevent us from acting childish, we must remember how to think like a child.

Healthy children seem to have an irrepres-sible love of life. They laugh about silly things. They cry about silly things. Kids are often candid, spontaneous, and nervy. They don't deliberate about the long term consequences of their actions; they simply live for the moment.

Does this mean that we should all cut after-noon classes tomorrow for recess, play hopscotch and dodge ball on the quads, and have food fights in the dining halls? Although these activities sound tempting (and maybe familiar), they are just not realistic.

We are, however, not so far removed from our childhoods as you might imagine. We should learn to recognize our youthful tendencies and to be able to laugh at ourselves. For example, eight year olds love to play boys chase the girls and vice versa. A slightly more complex version of this game is very popular on campus.

Remember the undying devotion that you pledged to your first sweetheart (the one who gave you the fancy valentine in second grade?) A similar innocent infatuation emerges in those who have helpless crushes on people whom they are too scared to approach.

What about the way that you idolized your parents when you were a kid? Everyone re-members arguments with friends about whose dad could run faster or yell louder. Last year it was Tim Brown who was indestructible. This year so far the students' strongest passions seem directed against Miami. Notre Dame stu-dents' avid school spirit also has roots in the exaggerated passions and loyalties of our younger years.

Most Notre Dame students love sports. Many migrate outside on rare sunny days to play bas-ketball, football, frisbee and many other games. Although the types of sports have evolved since grade school, it is the ability to play that we must remember from our childhoods.

How do you distinguish between playing like a child and playing like an athlete? No one can teach you how to play like a child. It's a phenomenon that occurs when you relax, lose all feelings of self consciousness, and concen-trate solely on doing something fun. You may fear that others will see you as foolish. I can't deny that some will see you that way. But, I can assure you that no kids will agree.

A child can find excitement and fun in even the most common matters. Bill Vaughan ex-pressed this gift when he said, "A three-year-old child is a being who gets almost as much fun out of a fifty-six dollar set of swings as it does out of finding a small green worm."

Next time you stress about a test, lose your sense of humor, or buckle under the pressures of daily life, try to think like a child. Relax, go play outside, or say something directly from the heart. Acting like a kid again can put your life back in perspective. After all, it wasn't long ago that we were all playing tag on the play-ground instead of studying in the library.

Notre Dame hosts Indiana gubernatorial debate

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS- Republican John M. Mutz and Democrat Evan Bayh went through last-minute preparations Tuesday for the first, and possibly only, debate of their hard-fought gubernatorial campaign.

Mutz, the two-term lieutenant governor, and Bayh, the first-term secretary of state, are scheduled to participate Wednesday night in South Bend in a one-hour debate that will be televised in most major media markets in the state and carried on as many as 40 radio stations. The debate, which will be held on the University of Notre Dame campus, is sponsored by the Associated Press Managing Editors and AP Broadcasters associations of Indiana.

Campaign managers gave their candidates some quiet time to collect their thoughts Tuesday, after putting both men through mock debates during the Labor Day weekend.

Both campaigns expect the debate to give their candidates broader exposure than they've enjoyed during the early months of the race, which began in earnest shortly after the May 3 primary.

But campaign officials say the effect on the Nov. 8 election could be minimal in the long run, depending on how the two men perform.

"I think there's no question it's very important," said Joseph H. Hogsett, Bayh's campaign manager. "It's especially important when you have the opportunity to do this while it's beamed into every household in the state. More viewers than ever before will have an opportunity to see it."

Michael McDaniel, Mutz's campaign manager, agreed that the event will be important in allowing viewers to make comparisons between the two candidates. But the long-term effect could be minor, he said.

"Unless someone makes a terrible blunder, these things have a short time span," said McDaniel.

Bayh went through a mock debate Sunday night, and Mutz practiced Monday night for the second time in four days, campaign officials said.

Soviet cosmonauts delayed

Associated Press

MOSCOW- Two cosmonauts from the Soviet Union and Afghanistan aborted their return to Earth on Tuesday after a malfunctioning guidance system sent them toward a landing in China, and were reported low on food and oxygen.

However, the agency said their Soyuz TM-5 space capsule landed early this morning, about 99 miles southeast of the city of Dzhezkazgan. It said both Mohamand, 29, and Lyakhov, 47, "are feeling well."

Soviet news reports earlier had said neither cosmonaut was in immediate danger but that the situation soon could become critical soon.

"Accident! the engine worked 60 seconds and shut off. A violation of the stabilization regime," Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Lyakhov, 47, told mission control in an exchange reported by the government newspaper Izvestia.

Soviet news reports emphasized that 29-year-old Abdul Ahad Mohmand, the first Afghan in space, and Lyakhov were not in immediate danger but indicated the situation could become critical unless they descend soon.

Lyakhov, a military pilot who has flown in space twice before, and Mohmand, an Afghan air force pilot, were to try again early Wednesday to bring the Soyuz TM-5 space capsule to a soft landing on the steppes of Uzbekistan in Soviet Central Asia, a Soviet space official told The Associated Press.

James Oberg, a U.S. expert on the Soviet space program who is familiar with the Soyuz TM-5 design, said time was running out.

caring place for the homeless because it is a multi-faceted project."

J. D'Arcy Chisholm, associate director of the Institute for Pastoral and Social Ministry and treasurer of COPOSH, explained how this center was established. A year ago COPOSH decided that something better than an overnight winter shelter was needed, according to Chisholm. COPOSH negotiated 38,000 square feet of space in a former clothing store that had been empty for seven years, said Chisholm. COPOSH secured a $96,000 short term loan from the South Bend Housing Development Corp, according to Chisholm.

The transaction was closed on January 29, 1988, and shortly after a proposal was submitted to the University, said Chisholm. Father Edward Malloy, president of the University, and other university officers were interested, according to Chisholm. The University purchased the building and leased it back to COPOSH for $1 a year, said Chisholm. He added, "The University should be commended for putting to action its commitment to the city of South Bend and to social justice."

The URC is an "organization of almost 100 local congregations that acts to provide effective, useful programs in areas where separate congregational efforts would be inadequate," according to a shelter pamphlet. Mason said that the University will budget the first year of operations and then it will be the responsibility of the URC.

The URC, as well as almost 300 Notre Dame and St. Mary's students will staff the center according to Dean Link. The volunteers will also work with the various provider groups to service the homeless, said Link. "This project would be impossible without the URC, Notre Dame's involvement as volunteers, and Notre Dame's involvement as a major supporter," said Link.

Newton said that when the center opens on November 1, 1988, there will be many services available to the homeless. A drop-in area will be set up with a library and a television, in addition to the sleeping and eating areas for men, women, and families, said Newton. The providers will offer alcohol and drug counseling, educational services, child care, mental and medical health care, case management, housing referral, job training, and prenatal care, said Newton. In addition there will be a client advocacy service run by University Law School students.

Newton said that he "hopes to coordinate the creation of a program that will respond to the immediate needs of the homeless." He also said that it is an original idea to coordinate the various providers under one roof. Newton hopes that this will become a model for the country and a challenge to major universities to become committed to their communities. Newton said that having Notre Dame's reputation attached to this project is a plus.

"There is a light at the end of the tunnel in this community because the problem is solvable if everybody pulls together," said Mason. There are somewhere between 300 to 1,000 homeless in South Bend according to Chisholm.

Steve Newton is, "optimistic about the project and believes that it will be exciting for Notre

Military represents a necessary evil

Dear Editor:

To Mr. Michael Garvey's letter of Sept. 2, I must respond. If taken to its logical conclusion, the premise that the Armed Forces are for the sole purpose of killing would mean that members of the services are killers. I, for one, as a veteran, find that quite offensive.

Mr. Garvey appears to be living in a world of black and white, in a vacuum that knows only pure good or pure evil. It may be true that we are all God's children. But a number of His children are severely misguided. It falls upon the shoulders of Mr. Garvey's "killers" to stop those of God's children who deviate from the accepted rules of behavior.

Note that I did not say punish, for that falls upon the domestic and international courts and ultimately God. Nor did I say kill, for it has been proven throughout history that the mere threat of force will suffice in stopping possible uses of violence, either by states or individuals.

Historical figures that responded only to the use of force also come to mind. Men such as Hitler and Napoleon and groups such as the Red Brigade and IRA are evidence of those who have fallen victim to the less desirable traits of human nature. Mr. Garvey seems to ignore such traits in his black and white world.

It would be wonderful if we could all live in a world of God-like perfection, in peace and harmony and knowing no national boundaries. I doubt, however, that God wishes us to ignore reality until we reach that state.

I therefore applaud Notre Dame's commitment to training future officers for the service of our nation. Moreover, it is by playing educator to these men and women that the University is able to influence their training. I hope these aspiring officers will receive a dose of Christian ethics and responsibility that can only add to the qualities a good officer needs.

I find the proposition that ROTC and Notre Dame are inconsistent to be completely absurd and naive. I hope that the administration will be in no way influenced by the misguided and irresponsible attitude of the proposition. Furthermore, the University should continue its responsible contribution to the United States by training more leaders of the future.

Mr. Garvey's letter was an insult to the members of ROTC, and to Catholics and all Christians who are serving or have served in the Armed Forces of the United States.

Jackson not a viable alternative

Dear Editor:

Mr. Tom Varnum's Viewpoint article of Aug. 29 concerning the defeat of Jesse Jackson and racism in America is far from reality. The claims that Americans did not vote for Reverend Jackson because he is black and that if Jackson were white he would be the Democratic presidential nominee are absurd.

There are two reasons Rev. Jackson had the success he did. The first is the hands off attitude the press took with him. While we were bombarded with news of Gary Hart's relationship with Donna Rice, and unsubstantiated rumors of Dan Quayle and Linda Parkinson, the media did not think it important to cover Jesse Jackson's relationship with Yasser Arafat or Fidel Castro. The press made the Reverend's Rainbow Coalition a household term, while his significant term "Hymietown" (in reference to New York City) was a footnote quickly forgotten. When Rep. Rodino of New Jersey, a Democratic Congressman with a 100 percent civil rights voting record, sought reelection, Jackson supported his opponent, admittedly, because he was black. Jackson apologized, but the incident was forgotten. The list goes on and on.

The second reason for Jackson's success is the support he received from black voters. Nine out of ten black voters cast ballots for Jackson. While Mr. Varnum claimed racism kept whites from voting for Jackson, was it also racist for blacks not to vote for white candidates? If Jackson were white it would be safe to assume that blacks would not have come out in such masses to support him. Also, assuming Jackson were white, his super-liberal ideas (which make Mike Dukakis look conservative) would have been as accepted as Senator Paul Simon's liberal ideas. But Simon was put out of the race long before Jackson. It is obvious that a white Jackson would have been laughed off the political arena.

Mr. Varnum needs to stop looking at life in a mirror and seeing everything backwards. Americans would vote for a qualified black man or woman, for example Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania or Head of the National Security Council Colin Powell. But Americans can also see through an inexperienced, leftist, racist and anti-semitic candidate such as Jesse Jackson with or without the media's help.

Wednesday lunch fast helps needy

Dear Editor:

"No way, I need my lunch." I wish I had a dollar for every time I heard that type of response during the past three years when I've been signing people up for the Wednesday Lunch Fast. The Fast is a program in which students agree to give up their dining hall lunch on Wednesday. The Food Service then donates one dollar for every lunch that is skipped. It's sad that people who have always had more than enough to eat can really think that missing one turkey sandwich and some pudding is such a big deal. "Miss lunch?," people say, "I'll get hungry." Maybe they will. And maybe it's time for those of us who have always enjoyed, not only enough food, but thousands of other good things in life, to find out what it's like to go hungry for a few hours. Maybe it will help us to appreciate our innumerable blessings. The ugly problem called hunger seems very far removed from us, and as students we don't have time to worry about it. The money collected from the Fast at the end of the semester goes toward grassroots development agencies in India, Bangladesh, Chile and Africa that are helping people to feed themselves and to better their existence.

On Sept. 14 the Wednesday Lunch Fast will begin. It will last through the semester, except for finals week. I would like to ask those of you who have been faithful fasters in the past to continue your generosity this semester. And to those who've never fasted, I'd like to ask you to try it. Skip one lunch and see if you can keep it going. It's not necessarily going to be easy, but it's a sacrifice well worth making. If you are willing to give of yourself, please sign up at the dining halls this Wednesday or Thursday, or call 283-3293 and leave your name and ID number. Thank you for your concern and caring!

Law School: a success

Ian Mitchell
accent writer

From its early beginning as the first Catholic law school in the United States, the Notre Dame Law School has grown to become a nationally known, highly respected institution which draws applications from all over the country.

The history of the study of law at Notre Dame began only two years after the creation of the University itself. University founder Father Edward Sorin had shown an interest in forming a law department in 1854, but 15 years passed before his dream finally became a reality in 1869. By 1898 the department had become a full-fledged college of the university, but law remained an undergraduate program until 1932. In 1955 the college was renamed the Law School, reflecting its purely graduate status.

Today the Law School has over 510 students divided almost equally over the three years of graduate study. This year the Law School's application pool was considerably larger than those of preceding years; approximately 2,000 applications were received for only 169 positions, making competition for admission extremely difficult. The number of applications received this year represents a 20 percent increase over last year's total.

On the national scale, law school applications have been up this past year, but no one reason for this trend has been generally accepted. Law School Assistant Dean William O. McLean reports that "you have all sorts of speculation about that (the reasons for the larger numbers of applicants), from L.A. Law to the Supreme Court confirmation hearings." But whatever the causes of the national upturn, here at Notre Dame the reasons seem more clear-cut; Assistant Dean McLean credits the increase in the Law School's "growing national reputation to increased faculty scholarship, highly successful placement of graduate students, and a strong representation of Notre Dame graduates holding judgeships."

As a result of the larger applicant pool, the Law School can afford to be more selective about its offers of admission, and the Assistant Dean believes that "there is no question that the breadth and depth of diversity and academic credentials (of the students) have all been rising." These high caliber students, in turn, further enhance the School's reputation.

It seems that the benefits the Law School enjoys from its highly selective status will continue for years to come. In the words of Assistant Dean McLean, "we see no reason why we won't continue this ascent towards further national prominence." From humble beginnings to national recognition; Father Sorin would be proud.

Good 'Days' lie ahead

accent writer

"Like sands through the hourglass..." For many, this phrase marks the beginning of the day's best hour of television viewing. Each day thousands of people spend their noon hour watching the trials and tribulations of the Hortons and friends on NBC's "Days of Our Lives."

On November 8, 1965, NBC unveiled the daytime serial that, two weeks ago, topped the ratings chart for the first time in fourteen years. Although "Days of Our Lives" ratings have recently dipped to the second position, the show continues to be the "king of the soaps" to its avid fans.

The success of the show can be attributed to the cast and production staff, but the show's emphasis on family is one of its most evident and appealing factors.

Since its beginnings, "Days" has centered around Alice and Tom Horton (Frances Reid and MacDonald Carey) and their family. The viewing audience has grown with the Hortons and the Hortons have grown with the audience. One of the best examples of audience enthusiasm for "Days" occurred several years ago when the Salem Strangler attacked Marlena Brady (Deidre Hall) Roman's now-deceased wife. Viewers were so upset at the thought of losing Marlena that they protested at NBC Studios. In the end, the story explained the Strangler killed Marlena's twin sister Samantha.

Another reason for the success of "Days" is its ability to keep the older audiences entertained while appealing to the "next generation" of soap viewers. In fact, NBC Media Relations indicates, "Days of Our Lives" is by far the most popular serial with men and women between ages twelve and twenty four.

Socially-relevant plots keep audiences informed as well as entertained. Over the years the show has featured such topics as rape, surrogate parenthood, and diabetes. Currently, "Days" is tackling the problems of AIDS, illiteracy, and myasthenia gravis, Maggie's (Suzanne Rogers) muscle disorder.

These elements are some of the reasons why "Days of Our Lives" hit number one. The peaks of certain plots, especially the wedding of Kayla and Patch (Mary Beth Evans and Stephen Nichols), attracted large audiences. Ironically, this landmark achievement occurred during the writer's strike when non-union writers as well as the show's producers were overseeing the storylines.

Two of the characters greatly responsible for the show's large appeal to teens are Jennifer and Frankie (Melissa Brennan and Billy Warlock); however, that may soon change. On October 5, Frankie will bid Salem a fond adieu by accepting a psychology scholarship to Columbia University. Billy Warlock, winner of the Emmy award for best supporting actor in a daytime drama series, decided to leave the show. Frankie's departure will open new storyline possibilities as Jennifer copes with the loss of Frankie and searches for a new love interest.

Future "Days" plot twists should prove to be exciting. NBC Media Relations revealed that Roman's identity crisis will emerge as one of the most exciting "Days" plots of the year. Mickey's campaign for a Senate seat will put pressure on his relationships with his wife Maggie and his daughter Melissa. Gabrielle will leave Salem on an important ISA mission. While this should relieve some of the stress on Kimberly and Shane's marriage, their world will be far from tranquil. Watch for Shane's twin brother to arrive in Salem shortly (Charles Shaugnessy who plays Shane will also star as Shane's twin). April and Mike's relationship will grow while Justin and Adrienne begin to drift apart.

With these exciting new storylines and the show's eternal devotion to quality entertainment, viewers will have more than their fill of romance, suspense, mystery, and intrigue. So are the days of our lives.

Red Sox increase lead to 2 in AL East

Associated Press

BALTIMORE—Mike Greenwell had three hits, including a home run, and drove in three runs and Wes Gardner pitched a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox increased their American League East lead by defeating the Baltimore Orioles 6-1 Tuesday night.

Gardner, 7-4, walked two and struck out two as he won his second straight start with the first complete game of his career. His previous longest outing was 7 1-3 innings against Chicago on July 22.

The Red Sox collected six singles their first time through the lineup against Jay Tibbs, 4-13, and finished with 13 hits in all. By the time Wade Boggs singled in the sixth, all nine Red Sox starters had hits.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 3

DETROIT—George Bell

doubled to trigger a four-run Toronto second inning as the streaking Blue Jays beat the skidding Detroit Tigers 7-3 Tuesday night.

The Tigers, 23-30 since the All-Star break, have lost six straight games and 13 of their last 15.

Jimmy Key, 10-4, struck out five and walked one in seven innings plus. Two of the Detroit runs came on Chet Lemon's 10th and 11th home runs, in the fourth and seventh innings. Duane Ward, the third Toronto pitcher, got out of a bases-loaded jam in the Tiger eighth with a double-play ball and finished for his 13th save.

Detroit's Doyle Alexander, 11-11, was tagged for five runs on six hits in two-plus innings. Alexander, 8-4 at the All-Star break, is winless in his last six starts, going 0-5 since his last win Aug. 6.

Indians 1, Yankees 0

NEW YORK—Greg Swindell pitched a three-hitter and Ron Kittle hit his 18th home run to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 1-0 victory Tuesday night over the New York Yankees.

Al Leiter, 4-4, making his first appearance since June 21, gave up three hits in five innings, throwing 80 pitches. He had been out with blisters on the middle finger of his left hand, but healed after a treatment that included soaking his hand in pickle brine.

Swindell, 15-13, struck out eight and walked three in pitching his fourth shutout and 12th complete game of the season. The 12 complete games tie him with Boston's Roger Clemens for second in the American League, behind the 14 of Oakland's Dave Stewart.

Braves 2, Dodgers 1

ATLANTA—Jeff Blauser hit his first major league home run with two outs in the eighth inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday.

With the score tied 1-1, Blauser hit a pitch from reliever Jesse Orosco, 2-2, over the left-field fence.

Paul Assenmacher, 7-4, got the victory in relief of starter Pete Smith. Bruce Sutter got the last three outs for his 13th save and 299th lifetime.

Pirates 3, Mets 2

PITTSBURGH—John Smiley allowed five hits in 8 2-3 innings and Glenn Wilson hit a two-run double in the first inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the New York Mets 3-2 Tuesday night.

Parcells not impressed by Nelson

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.—The reviews are in on Karl Nelson's first regular season game back in the NFL after a battle with cancer, and New York Giants coach Bill Parcells isn't too happy.

Although the Giants overcame a 13-0 deficit to defeat the Super Bowl champion Redskins 27-20 on Monday night, Nelson really struggled against Washington defensive end Charles Mann.

Parcells even went so far as to say that the reason the Giants gained only 56 yards rushing on 21 carries was because there was one breakdown on the offensive line.

And yes, you guessed it. It was Nelson.

"Well look it's only the first week," Parcells said Tuesday after looking at game films. "You have to keep that in mind. I don't want to put up the hurricane flags yet. Let's just leave the sympathy pennant flying for a while."

Trouble in paradise

MIAMI—Quarterback Dan Marino said Tuesday the Miami Dolphins' early season troubles could snowball unless they win Sunday at Buffalo.

"It's a critical game for us," Marino said.

The NFL's all-time top-ranked quarterback suffered his least productive day as a starter when Miami opened its season with a 34-7 loss Sunday.

Hurricanes not thrilled by No. 1 ranking

Associated Press

CORAL GABLES, Fla.—The Miami Hurricanes' ascension to the No. 1 ranking doesn't automatically mean all's well with the defending national champions, Coach Jimmy Johnson said Tuesday.

Johnson himself was sick, in fact, but not about becoming the team to beat in college football.

"I don't really care one way or another," Johnson said. "I'm more concerned about having a cold and a sore throat."

The Hurricanes replaced Florida State as the No. 1 team in this week's Associated Press poll by thrashing the Seminoles 31-0 in Saturday's opener. Despite the impressive victory, Johnson said, his players remain young, inexperienced and unswayed by their ranking.

"We will work them hard enough to where they're more concerned about the work than they are the polls," he said.

Miami took 10 first-time starters and a No. 6 ranking into the Florida State game. Reaction about the leap to the top was mixed among the players.

"I don't really want to be ranked No. 1 at this point," linebacker Randy Shannon said.

"The next 10 games are going to be the toughest games we ever played. Everybody shoots for No. 1

Bruno match cancelled after accident

Associated Press

NEW YORK—Mike Tyson suffered a concussion and amnesia when his car struck a tree on Sunday, doctors said Tuesday, and Tyson's manager said that will keep the champion from fighting Frank Bruno in London on Oct. 22.

"He may have been unconscious as long as 20 minutes," said Carolyn Britton, a Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center neurologist. "He was still groggy when he came to in the ambulance and was quite alert in the hospital. His neurological examinations were normal."

Tyson's manager, Bill Cayton, said, "The fight (against Bruno) is off.

Holtz are hesitant to usher him in as a Brown heir apparent.

"Rocket has had a pulled calf muscle and a bruised shoulder," said Holtz, "and I don't think he can play, or is ready to play, for all intents and purposes."

"Rocket is a very exciting player," said Cordelli. "But he's going through a learning process. Like I said, you can't learn this position overnight, and he was a running back in high school. He's going to catch the ball some, but I'm not sure how soon."

Ismail and Ray Dumas will back up Alaniz.

ting against the Cardinals tonight.

"We can feel ourselves coming, together," said Cunningham. "Our passes are improving and we're hoping we can really score big."

The match will be especially important for Coach Lambert, who led Stanford's womens volleyball team to a 22-8-1 record and a NorthCal Conference Championship in 1977 and the water polo team to the 1976 NCAA title.

"I'll be happy if they just play their best," said Lambert. "But they have the ability to play with any team in the country and I'm hoping the team won't come out and play the uniform. They can't be awed by them."

emerge from the pack of very good receivers we had on the team at the time. Steve is very intelligent, runs excellent routes, blocks his position very well and can catch the ball. He thoroughly deserves the starting nod and will perform more than capably."

against the Hoosiers and should help neutralize Stanford's senior hitters Amy Hayes and Laura Olesen.

Freshmen Julie Bremner and Jai Bruno performed well in their collegiate debuts and will be faced with their first real test under pressure against Stanford's senior setter Lara Asper and her talented teammates.

Notre Dame will need junior Kathy Cunningham to be in top form as well, and take up where she left off last season after suffering a shoulder injury. If the Indiana game is any indication, the Irish can count on her defensive skills and hit-row and feel comfortable. Shewman is often inserted into the Irish lineup for her defensive skills and her cool-headed play under pressure.

"Coming off the bench and playing is very difficult," said Irish head coach Art Lambert, "but she's a real student of the game and she does it very well. I just love to have her in there in the close matches because she's going to do what it takes to win."

Shewman's competitive attitude and never-say-die spirit have been the key to preserving many Irish victories and the catalyst that has brought the team from behind to win on several occasions, but she tries not to think of that in the heat of the battle.

"I hate to lose, I can't stand it," said Shewman. "When I'm out there playing I just concentrate on doing my job and doing whatever it takes to win."

Irish volleyball needs 'significant win' for NCAA's

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

Tonight at the Joyce ACC, the Notre Dame volleyball team begins playing hardball.

After soundly defeating Indiana in three games last Saturday, the Irish will take on Stanford—last year's NCAA runner-up and this season's fourth ranked team after winning its first three matches against San Francisco, Indiana and Illinois State.

The match will be the first meeting between the Irish and perennial power Stanford and the first of many obstacles the Irish will face on the road to an NCAA bid.

"The big complaint last year from the polling committees was that we had no 'significant' wins," said Irish head coach Art Lambert. "You've got to beat the teams you are supposed to beat and hopefully split on the others and then you've got it made."

A victory over Stanford will not be easy though, as the visiting Cardinals fly into South Bend sporting three starters and eight letter-winners from last season's 29-7 team. They also have made a transition from being a team known for its small, quick players, to one dominated by height and strength.

"This year's smallest starter

(for Stanford) is 5'10, with the others ranging from 6'0 to 6'3," said Lambert. "Stanford used to rely mostly on quickness—it would seem like they got to every ball. Now they are a big team who can really beat you badly at the net."

The Irish will need to counter with a power game of its own, using seniors Zanette Bennett, Maureen Shea and Mary Kay Waller. Bennett was a standout against Indiana, recording 14 kills and will have to repeat the performance against Stanford's strong blocking team.

Shea and Waller tallied nine and eight kills respectively

Shewman sparks team off bench

By MOLLY MAHONEY

No, this is not the Whitney of pop-singing fame, as the public address announcer at the JACC nearly said during the Indiana match Saturday night. This Whitney is more of an unsung hero who earns her keep on the volleyball court, not the stage. This is senior outside hitter Whitney Shewman.

Throughout her career, Shewman has been the player who paid her dues and waited for her chance in the spotlight, content to come into the game when she was needed to spark the Irish to victory.

But Shewman is still waiting. Fortunately, she understands that her abilities are better suited for some games than others and can sympathize with players who have yet to sense their importance on the team.

"I try to encourage the freshman and sophomores when coach gets down on them or they don't see much playing time," said Shewman. "I don't exert myself much in games, but at practice, I feel like I can help the younger players because I've been in their situations."

Shewman suffered a knee injury last year that forced her to miss the first six games of the season, but she has recovered most of the 30-inch vertical jump that has kept her a steady player at the net despite her lack of height.

She has earned a reputation as a talented utility player though, who can enter the game in either the front or back

Women's soccer romps over St. Joseph's 8-1

RENSSALAER, Ind.—Susan Zilvitis had the hat trick and Kathy Birmingham added two goals as the Notre Dame women's soccer team destroyed St. Joseph's 8-1.

The Irish, 2-0, also had goals from K.T. Sullivan, Debbie Ho and Mimi Suba.

The team travels to Bloomington Friday for an afternoon match against Indiana.

A new generation of receivers emerges

As Irish fans and mere speculators alike kick around the prospects of a bowl-bound Notre Dame football team this season, one question seems to surface more frequently than any other.

Who's going to catch the ball now that Tim Brown is in L.A.?

"We've got a lot of guys who can catch the ball," said Irish receivers coach Pete Cordelli. "They always could catch the ball. But it's tough to break into starting lineups that feature Tim Brown, Reggie Ward, Alvin Miller, and Milt Jackson. I think when people show up on Saturday night, they're going to be surprised and pleased with what they see from the wideouts."

Not many ardent Irish followers will be too surprised at the speed Ricky Watters will bring to the flanker position. His move from tailback was brought about by Notre Dame's relative depth at that position and inexperience and lack of a deep threat at wideout. But with the availability of standout tailback Tony Brooks uncertain due to an injury, Watters has had to stay on top of both positions.

"No doubt about it," said Cordelli, "Ricky is our top weapon out there. Last year, he showed the ability to run away from people, and he's got very sure hands. But he's moving from one position to another, and although he's done everything that's been asked of him, there are still a few rough spots in the transition to smooth over. I'm positive that with a little experience at the position, he'll make a great flanker."

Pat Eilers will back up Watters and, Cordelli hopes, will be able to show the results of his gritty work ethic in the process.

Split end will be anchored by senior Steve Alaniz. But as Cordelli explains, his starting role resulted from more than just a process of elimination.

"Steve Alaniz is another guy who always had the talent," said Cordelli, "but just couldn't

Anticipation for football season reaches full blaze

Anticipation.

For over eight months there has been a fire burning inside all those who live and die Notre Dame football.

Sparked by an 8-1 start in 1987, dimmed by a 0-3 finish and fanned by a long off-season hiatus, this fire will be in full blaze on Saturday evening when the Irish open the 1988 campaign against Michigan. Finally.

The tickets have been purchased, the Musco lights are being moved into position and the empty Stadium seems to beckon the Irish faithful. The bookstore readies for the impending rush.

Upon returning to campus most students took one look at the Administration Building and asked "When will the scaffolding be down?" The answer was not September 10, although that was the projected date. The answer was, "before the first home game."

The last remaining question is whether the football team will be ready by then, too.

"We're right on schedule as far as our development," says tri-captain Andy Heck, "and we've been improving everyday. Saturday we will be where we need to be to face Michigan."

Lou Holtz answers the question in a slightly different manner.

"I'm glad we're playing at night," quips Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz after Monday's practice. "That gives us longer to mature. I wish it were at 11 instead of 8."

Humor aside, the general consensus among the coaches and the players and anyone who has seen them practice is that, yes, they are ready to play football on Saturday. They are improving every day and they are hungry to hit someone else besides their teammates.

Recent Notre Dame-Michigan matchups have provided for some of college football's most exciting moments. But there is another reason why this game is more important than the other eleven games the Irish will play this season. It is the season opener, the first test, the momentum builder, or destroyer.

It is that first grade on the year's tally, and like Florida State found out on Saturday night, it can not always be as bright as expected.

Like the Seminoles, the Irish face a nearby rival which is in the top 10 of nearly every national poll. The challenge of getting rid of opener jitters becomes even more imposing when you're getting jarred by a team like the one Bo Schembechler will bring with him this weekend.

"Against 99% of the teams in the country," says Head Coach Lou Holtz, "I'd say we would play extremely well. But Michigan is one team that can make you look bad in the opening game."

"I've never had a football team have as big a test as this one."

Michigan. The season opener. Holtz' highest pre-season ranking in his three years here. And lofty expectations after last year.

October 15 will come soon enough, Jimmy Johnson haters. But September 10 is three days away and the longest wait is over. After Saturday the Irish are off and running, with nine straight Saturdays of tests before a weekend off in mid-November.

There are still several question marks. Holtz questions the ability of his offensive line. Schembechler says he still doesn't know who will start as his quarterback.

But the only answer will be on the scoreboard come Saturday night around 11 p.m. And it's about time.
