Pan-Am bomb was in cassette player

Associated Press

LOCKERBIE, Scotland--A radio-cassette player held the bomb that brought down Pan Am Flight 103, but the identity of the bomber still is not known, the top investigator of the bombing said Thursday.

Investigators believe the explosive that shattered the Boeing 747 on Dec. 21 was placed aboard the aircraft in Frankfurt, West Germany, where the flight began, said Detective Chief Superintendent John Orr. It apparently had been put on the aircraft as checked baggage.

"New positive lines of inquiry are unfolding," he told a news conference in this southwestern Scottish town where the jumbo jet crashed, killing all 259 people aboard and 11 on the ground.

"While there is insufficient evidence at this stage to establish the identity of the person or group responsible for this dreadful crime, the progress made and the evidence obtained has been substantial," Orr said.

Asked whether the investigation would point to a specific country, Orr said: "It may."

On Feb. 8 the Jerusalem Post reported the bomb that destroyed the jet was hidden in a radio-cassette recorder and was traced to Frankfurt.

That report quoted unidentified investigators as saying the device was similar, but not identical, to one found earlier

Raising clenched fists, Iranians demonstrate in Tehran streets Wednesday, chanting slogans "Down with Britain and down with America" to protest the publish-

UK protests to Iran about threats Bounty on author doubled to $5.2 million by Khomeini

Associated Press

LONDON--Britain protested to Iran on Thursday over Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's orders to kill Salman Rushdie, the author of "The Satanic Verses," and religious students in Iran threatened suicide attacks on him.

The bounty for killing the Indian-born writer was doubled to $5.2 million, and Britain's airlines—including British Airways—tightened security following bomb threats against some flights.

The death threats against Rushdie, whose book has been denounced across the Moslem world as blasphemous, were called "appalling" by the U.S. State Department. A leading Islamic theologian who opposes the book said in Egypt that Khomeini erred by not giving Rushdie a chance to repent.

Rushdie, a naturalized Briton whose novel has sparked violent protests from Islamic fundamentalists, has canceled a promotional tour for the book in the United States and remains in hiding with his American wife, Marianne Wiggins. Published reports said they were under police guard in Britain.

Moslems say the allegorical novel offends their faith by satirizing the prophet Mohammed as fallible; implying that Islam is not the only true religion; portraying Mohammed's wives as prostitutes; and suggesting he wrote the Koran, rather than receiving it from God.

Winnie Mandela, wife of the jailed black activist Nelson Mandela, arrived in Cape Town to visit her husband amid a growing storm about the activities of her "football team."

Anti-Apartheid leaders denounce Winnie Mandela for violent activity

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa--Anti-apartheid leaders gave an unprecedented rebuke to Winnie Mandela on Thursday, saying she has betrayed the trust of the black community and kept bodyguards who waged a "reign of terror" in Soweto.

The influential activists accused Mrs. Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela and once called the "Mother of the Nation," of "violating human rights ... in the name of the struggle against apartheid."

The strongly worded statement was the first public repudiation of Mrs. Mandela by the senior leadership of the anti-apartheid movement. They accused her of complicity in the abduction and assault of a 14-year-old black activist, Stompie Seipei, whose decomposed body was found dumped in Soweto last month.

Mrs. Mandela, in the few public statements she has made, denied she was at home when the teenager and four men were abducted to her house on Dec. 29 by members of a so-called soccer team known as Mandela United who act as her unofficial bodyguards. But she has defended the abduction, saying the four were taken to protect them from sexual abuse at a Methodist Church residence where they were staying in Soweto.

The church denied the charge, and the anti-apartheid leaders made their denunciation of Mrs. Mandela at the Central Methodist Church in Johannesburg.

Tom Sebina, a spokesman for the African National Congress, said from the organization's Lusaka, Zambia, headquarters that ANC leaders were concerned at reports linking Mrs. Mandela with the boy's death.

Asked if Mrs. Mandela was present when Stompie was abducted, Sebina said: "Everybody at home believes so."

The ANC has called on Mrs. Mandela to disband the soccer team.

Leaders of the banned United Democratic Front, the nation's largest opposition coalition, joined prominent anti-apartheid lawyers and officials of the Congress of South African Trade Unions, the largest black labor federation, in reaffirming their allegiance to Mandela while distancing themselves from his wife.

Mandela's lawyer, Ismail Ayoby said he did not believe his client had been informed of the statement.

Mandela, 70, has been imprisoned since 1962 and is ser-

INSIDE COLUMN

JPW: a chance to show our appreciation

Dave Bruner
Viewpoint Editor

Our hallowed campus will fall deathly silent this weekend for all who are not members of the junior class. Following the true spirit of the season of Advent (well, close enough), Junior Parents' Weekend is making its annual return to Notre Dame.

If you're one of the three-quarters of undergrads left with nothing exciting to do this weekend, please bear with the juniors. If you're a freshman or a sophomore, you'll get your turn soon enough. Seniors, you've already had your chance at the food, fun, and festivities.

Admittedly, the campus will suffer from a lack of social activities, but for a very good reason. (Besides, when the night life is near the bottom of the barrel anyway, how much worse can something like JPW make it?)

Regardless, Junior Parents' Weekend is here. So what's the big deal about JPW, and why have dozens of students put in many long hours planning, organizing, delegating and coordinating the weekend's activities?

The first and most obvious reason is that it gives parents an excuse to see Notre Dame; for some, maybe even for the first time. Our campus will be inundated by throngs of moms and dads eager to explore the surroundings in a vain attempt to discover exactly where their hard-earned tuition money is going.

Of course, there is another reason for Junior Parents' Weekend, a reason a little more subtle and quite a bit more mushy. The second reason: The love Mom and Dad have for their kids.

Awwww, isn't that sweet?

Well, yes. Yes it is. Would you rather have parents who didn't care enough to make the (probably exhaustingly long) trip and spend 48 hours or so basking in South Bend's winter warmth?

Making time for their children is nothing new to most parents. This kind of stuff is old hat for them.

Who was it that stayed up late that night you ate one too many marshmallows after dinner and spent the night not in bed, but in the bathroom?

Who provided free, convenient chauffeur service to and from little league games while putting up with your counting out loud the number of days until you turned 16 and would be terrorizing the streets and jeopardizing the integrity of the family truckster?

Who sat through two acts of not-so-hot acting and weak-to-awful singing just to see you in your tree costume during the second grade play?

Who did all these things? Those same parents who are now making the trek to South Bend to be with their son or daughter for Junior Parents' Weekend. The same parents who have given a large part of their lives to raising their progeny the best they know how. And the same parents we should go out of our way for this weekend.

Juniors, most of us are now 19, 20, or 21. We're inching closer and closer to being on our own for good. No more calling Mom at 2 a.m. because you had a fight with your roommate and need a friendly ear to listen. No more asking Dad on April 14 for help filling out those tax returns that you put off until the last minute.

We're adults now. Though many hall rectors might swear otherwise, we've been adults for quite some time. Our moms' and dads' work as parents is finally winding down. They know that they've done their best at raising us, and they have confidence that we'll do well and accomplish something worthwhile with our lives (Please, quit laughing, Mom).

If your parents are coming up this weekend, don't waste the opportunity to show them around the campus. Show them where you spend nine months out of your year. Show them your friends (even introduce your friends, if your friends are the introducable type).

But most of all, show your parents what you have made out of yourself. Let them know what a good job they've done with you, and that you're ready to take it from here.

North's lawyer says trial rules 'intolerable'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court lifted its stay delaying the start of Oliver North's trial Thursday, but North's lawyers complained he cannot get a fair trial under a deal struck by his prosecutor and the attorney general for handling testimony involving national secrets.

"Defendant North still faces two governments, rather than a single prosecutor with full power to make all trial decisions," said Brendan Sullivan, the head of North's defense team, in papers filed with U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell.

The Supreme Court, meanwhile, lifted a stay that had been requested by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh while he was still arguing with independent counsel Lawrence Walsh over whether rules on disclosing classified information were tight enough.

There as no word from Gesell when he would summon jurors, who are already selected, to his court to begin the trial of the former Marine Lieutenant Colonel and White House aide.

The newest Thornburgh-Walsh arrangement "would impose intolerable burdens on the court, the witnesses, and the jurors," Sullivan said. He asked Gesell to tell the Attorney General he can take action to dismiss the entire case or any of the 12 criminal charges but that he will not "have the right or the opportunity to intervene in the trial."

Sullivan recalled that Gesell had said earlier in the week that Thornburgh would have no right to intervene "by bits and pieces" to object to the introduction of classified material. But Sullivan said the new arrangement does give Thornburgh that ability.

Under the arrangement announced Wednesday, Walsh agreed to ask Thornburgh for an affidavit whenever Walsh believed undisclosed secrets were about to be spilled in the trial.

Overhaul of Medicaid proposed

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—A coalition led by the American Medical Association on Thursday proposed a sweeping overhaul of the Medicaid program to expand coverage to 11 million more poor Americans, improve benefits and raise reimbursement rates for physicians and hospitals.

The proposed expansion of the federal-state health assistance program for the poor would cost at least $13.2 billion and as much as $28 billion above current Medicaid expenditures, with most of the additional cost borne by the federal government, the coalition said.

In fiscal 1988, the federal government spent $30.5 billion and the states spent $20.5 billion on Medicaid, but fewer than half of the 33 million Americans with incomes below the federal poverty line are enrolled in the program, the coalition said.

"We are all for a system that truly cares for the needs of the poor," said James R. Tallon Jr., majority leader of the New York State Assembly and chairman of the coalition's committee on Medicaid.

To pay for the program,

"new revenues will have to be developed ... This is going to cost the government more money," Tallon said.

The plan was proposed by the Health Policy Agenda for the American People, a coalition organized in 1982 by the AMA to help develop health policy.

The AMA pays for most of the work of the coalition, which is comprised of 172 groups representing business, labor, consumers, the elderly, children and health-care providers.

A major problem with Medicaid, the coalition's report said, is the absence of national standards. Eligibility varies from state to state, as do many of the services Medicaid covers.

in the possession of members of Ahmed Jibril's extremist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command. The group has denied involvement.

Orr said the brand name of the radio-cassette player had not been established and would not say whether it was a pocket-sized device or a larger model. Nor did he say whether investigators had located the detonator.

Anti-terrorist experts have said the explosive most likely used was Sentex, an odorless, highly malleable substance made in Czechoslovakia and known to be used by terrorist organizations.

Orr said he was "aware of some aspects of the explosive that was used," but declined to elaborate.

The discovery of the bomb's hiding place followed painstaking reconstruction of a baggage container from pieces—some no larger than a table knife—strewn over 40 miles of Scottish countryside.

"The reconstruction of the baggage container suggests that the explosive device may have been among the baggage from the Frankfurt flight," Orr said.

"The particular bag which contained the device has not been identified at this stage, but there is most detailed work under way with forensic assistance to achieve this identification. I believe this can be done," he said.

Orr said the belief that Frankfurt was the origin of the bomb was based on "a balance of probabilities." Most of the 1500 pounds of baggage in the container in which the bomb was located was checked in at Frankfurt, and the rest was "interline" baggage from other points.

Flight 103 originated in Frankfurt on a Boeing 727. At London's Heathrow Airport, the New York-bound flight was changed to a Boeing 747.

ving a life sentence for sabotage and plotting to overthrow the white-run government.

"We are outraged at Mrs. Mandela's complicity in the recent abductions and assault of Stompie," the anti-apartheid leaders said. "Had Stompie and his three colleagues not been abducted by Mrs. Mandela's 'football team,' he would have been alive today."

Police this week identified Stompie's body in a Soweto morgue and opened a murder investigation when stab wounds were found in his neck.

Police also are investigating the murders of a Mandela United member found hacked to death in Soweto this week, and a prominent anti-apartheid physician who reportedly saw Stompie after he had been beaten.

Maj. Gen. Jaap Joubert, who is heading the investigations, said police also are looking for two young Soweto men who have been missing since November, after last being seen in the company of members of the soccer team.

The investigations are the latest in a series of controversies involving Mrs. Mandela, 54, in the three years since the government removed all restrictions on her activities and ended the ban on quoting her. Many black activists used to call her "Mother of the Nation," but her erratic behavior and reluctance to consult with black leaders have alienated many supporters.

"Mrs. Mandela has abused the trust and confidence which she has enjoyed over the years," said Murphy Morobe of the United Democratic Front.

"Numerous efforts have been made to reconcile the conflict between Mrs. Mandela and the (black) community," he said. "On every occasion Mrs. Mandela has refused to cooperate and has chosen to disregard the sentiments of the community."

Morobe noted that Mrs. Mandela has faced severe hardships, such as being separated from her husband for 27 years, raising her two daughters alone.

Moslem insurgents begin assault on Afghan capital

Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan--Moslem guerrillas fired a barrage of rockets into the capital today, one day after the Soviets completed their troop withdrawal, and seven people were reported killed and six wounded.

Also today, the foreign minister said the government has asked the United Nations to set up outposts along the border with Pakistan to check the flow of arms to Moslem guerrillas.

In the attack on Kabul by U.S.-backed guerrillas, one rocket landed outside a house in western Kabul, killing three children playing in the street, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said. Another young girl was killed and her mother's legs were blown off but she survived, the spokesman said.

Less than a half mile away, a rocket struck near a power transmission station, killing a bus driver and two men, the official said. Five people were injured in the rocket attack, said the spokesman, who demanded anonymity.

In his comments today, Foreign Minister Abdul Wakil also accused Britain, France and other Western nations opposed to Afghanistan's Marxist government of blocking emergency airlifts of food into Kabul, which is facing severe shortages. An official with the United Nations, which is coordinating the airlift, declined to comment on Wakil's statement.

Some Western officials have predicted that the Afghan army will be unable to prevent Kabul and other major Afghan cities from being taken by Pakistani-based Moslem guerrilla forces now that the Soviet forces are gone.

At a news conference, Wakil reiterated allegations President Najib made over the weekend that Pakistan is planning to invade the eastern city of Jalalabad.

He said Afghanistan has asked the U.N. Good Office Mission to Afghanistan and Pakistan to set up outposts near six towns along the border. The agency, UNGOMAP, monitors compliance with the Geneva Accord.

Bush applauds Soviet withdrawal

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President Bush said Thursday he hopes the final pullout of Soviet armed forces from Afghanistan ensures "no more bloodbaths" in the war-torn nation.

While applauding the troop withdrawal as "a new chapter in the history of Afghanistan," Bush rejected a Kremlin call for an immediate cease-fire and arms embargo.

Answering questions from a group of reporters in the Oval Office, he said he was afraid rebels opposing the Soviet-backed Kabul government would be left in a disadvantageous position if U.S. assistance stopped.

Just hours before Bush talked to reporters, the second-ranking official at the Soviet Embassy in Washington had reiterated the Kremlin's call for a cease-fire.

Minister-Counselor Yevgeny Kutovoy said that a comprehensive settlement of the strife in Afghanistan depends for the most part on "a broadly based government with the participation of all warring parties and without outside interference."

Bush demanded the Soviets stay out of Afghan affairs.

"The Soviet Union has nothing to fear from the establishment of an independent, non-aligned Afghanistan," he said in a written statement. "At the same time, the U.S.S.R. bears a special responsibility for healing the wounds of this war and we all upon it to support generously international efforts to rebuild Afghanistan."

Bush's comments came a day after the final pullout of Red Army forces from Afghanistan after a nine-year occupation.

Bush said he could not endorse the cease-fire and arms embargo proposal because he was concerned Soviet forces may have stockpiled weapons for the Marxist government in Kabul.

"It would not be fair to have a tremendous amount of lethal supplies left behind and then cut off support for the resistance and thus leave an unacceptable imbalance," he said.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said there has been massive stockpiling by the Soviets in recent months. Supplies provided to the Kabul regime include numerous fighter aircraft and helicopters, dozens of medium tanks, infantry fighting vehicles, armored personnel carriers, more than 200 howitzers and scores of other artillery pieces and hundreds of transport vehicles.

"In the final days of the withdrawal, they left behind even more military equipment, including tanks, APCs and multiple rocket launchers," he said.

Bush said the U.S. commitment to the Afghan people "will remain firm, both through our bilateral humanitarian program and through the United Nations' efforts to remove the mines and resettle the refugees and help reconstruct the war-torn economy."

There are widespread fears that a struggle for control by competing guerrilla groups could throw Afghanistan into a civil war.

"The time for recrimination is over," Bush said. "The time for bloodbaths is over."

The British Foreign Office summoned Iran's lone diplomat in Britain, told him Khomeini's threat was "totally unacceptable," demanded special protection for its Tehran Embassy, and froze plans to expand diplomatic relations with the Islamic state.

"We recognize that Moslems and others may have strong views about the contents of Mr. Rushdie's book," British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe said after his office summoned Iranian Charge D'Affaires Mohammed Basti.

"However, nobody has the right to incite people to violence on British soil or against British citizens. Ayatollah Khomeini's statement is totally unacceptable."

Howe stopped short of threatening to break diplomatic relations. But in an address to a Foreign Press Association luncheon he said "A stable and serious relationship ... will not be possible while Iran fails to respect international standards of behavior."

Basti emerged from the Foreign Office in a defiant mood, saying Rushdie's "infamous book" has had "appalling consequences in some Islamic countries."

On Wednesday, protesters stoned the British Embassy in Tehran.

Fed punishes bank for not serving poor areas

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—A Federal Reserve Board decision that for the first time penalizes a bank for failing to serve poor neighborhoods appears to signal a new willingness by regulators to enforce a 12-year-old law against such practices, community activists said Thursday.

The Fed rejected a request by the Chicago-based Continental Bank Corp. to purchase a small Arizona bank because it said Continental had not fulfilled its duties under the Community Reinvestment Act, which requires banks to meet local credit needs, including those in poor neighborhoods.

The law, on the books since 1977, is aimed at preventing "red-lining," the practice of denying loans to an entire neighborhood based on the predominant race or economic class of its residents.

"We hope this is the beginning of a trend," said Allen Fishbein, general counsel of the Center for Community Change, a Washington-based group concerned with housing and community development.

"The Fed has never denied an application on Community Reinvestment Act grounds before. . . This is a major breakthrough," he said.

Continental's 14-month-old petition to acquire Grand Canyon State Bank in Scottsdale, Ariz., was rejected on a 4-2 vote Wednesday, with board members H. Robert Heller and John LaWare opposed. Edward Kelley Jr. did not vote.

"We feel that the Fed has finally put teeth into the law," said Michael Zucker, an international representative of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, which had lodged a formal complaint against Continental's application.

Zucker said Continental "never has done a good job of lending to the low-income and minority community of Chicago." He described Grand Canyon as a "boutique bank" catering to affluent customers in suburban Phoenix.

Washington State wildlife officials check out their first captured sea lion Wednesday in Seattle, where sea lions have been devastating runs of salmon and steelhead trout. Officials decided to set a trap, capture the sea lions, and then transport them off the Washington coast.

Sea lion captured by wildlife agents dies

Associated Press

SEATTLE—One of two sea lions snared by wildlife agents in an attempt to protect migrating fish died overnight before wildlife agents could return it to the ocean, officials said today.

The 550-pound animal had a week-old bullet wound in its neck and died Wednesday night after coming out from under an anesthesia administered so agents could attach a radio transmitter to track its future movements.

Bob DeLong, a marine mammal biologist with the National Marine Fisheries Service, said the sea lion may have been shot by someone frustrated by the animal's continued presence at the Ballard Locks.

At least a dozen sea lions, which migrate from southern California and Mexico, have stopped at the locks to feast on salmon and steelhead migrating from the Pacific Ocean through Puget Sound to the freshwater lakes and rivers of Western Washington.

Wildlife agents had planned to release the two captured sea lions along the southwest Washington coast. The effort has been dubbed "Operation Goodbye."

Previous efforts to remove the animals, including protective nets, tape recordings of killer whales, firecrackers and foul-tasting chemicals, have failed to stop the steelhead and salmon suppers.

Some local fishing advocates have suggested the 20 or so beasts be shot, but they are protected by federal law.

DeLong said a .22-caliber bullet wound was found in the throat of the sea lion, who was clearly sick even before he was trapped in the floating cage of-officials have used to remove the hungry California sea lions.

The dead sea lion also had a severe infestation of lung worms, he said.

A second sea lion trapped in the floating cage also is not very healthy, DeLong said. "Blue eye," as he was dubbed even before his capture, is "blind in one eye and can't see out of the other" because of a cataract, DeLong said.

DeLong said the dead sea lion stopped breathing after coming out from under anesthesia. The cause of death will be studied, he said.

"Using anesthesia on the animal was one of the risks that went along with studying them," DeLong said. The bullet wound and lung infestation however "may have compromised his ability . . . to withstand the anesthesia."

Ind. may give death penalty in drug cases with murder

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS--The death penalty could be imposed against someone who intentionally committed murder during a drug deal if a bill approved by the state Senate Judiciary Committee on Thursday becomes law.

Senate Bill 562, sponsored by Sen. James Monk, D-Sullivan, is part of the governor's anti-drug package.

The bill cleared the committee on a 7-2 vote despite objections that expanding death penalty provisions would do nothing to deter such crimes.

Monk disagreed and stressed that the question of whether the death penalty should exist is a separate issue from his bill. The premise of S.B. 562 is, "If the death penalty exists, should this be part of it?" Monk said.

Prosecutors in Indiana may seek the death sentence only if certain aggravating circumstances exist. S.B. 562 would add murder while dealing in cocaine or narcotic drugs as one of those factors.

Sen. Robert Hellmann, D-Terre Haute, attempted to amend the bill to specify that people who object to the death penalty could not be prevented from serving on a jury for that reason alone.

Hellmann noted that the conviction and death penalty portions of a case are handled separately.

Although a jury that convicts someone of murder later recommends whether the death penalty or life in prison should be imposed, the judge makes the final decision.

"The purpose of the jury is to get a sense of community recommendation," he said.

Colonel held hostage may still be alive, says Shiite leader

Associated Press

TYRE, Lebanon--A Shiite Moslem leader said U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, abducted a year ago Friday while serving as a U.N. observer, is alive despite his captors' statement that he was sentenced to death as a spy.

"He'll be released eventually" by the pro-Iranian Shiite extremists who seized him, said Abdul Majid Saleh, political officer of the Amal militia in this ancient port 50 miles south of Beirut.

Higgins, from Danville, KY, commanded a 76-man U.N. observer group monitoring the Lebanon-Israel border. He was kidnapped by gunmen who stopped his car, 20 minutes after he had met with Saleh, on the highway south of Tyre.

Saleh would not say how he knew Higgins had not been killed by the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth, which claimed responsibility for the abduction.

His militia claims to have undercover agents who track hostage developments. The moderate Shiite movement, backed by Syria, opposes the pro-Iranian fundamentalist Shiites who hold most of the 15 Westerners missing in Lebanon.

Amal and the militia Hezbollah, believed to be an umbrella group for those holding hostages, were at war for months and nearly 600 people were killed. They reached a peace agreement in January with mediation by Syria and Iran.

Militia officials and other sources interviewed in south Lebanon shed new light on Higgins' abduction near Tyre on Feb. 17, 1988. His 44th birthday was Jan. 19.

A security source told the Associated Press that members of Amal tried to rescue Higgins three days after he was kidnapped, but were overwhelmed by Hezbollah gunmen in the village of Jibcheet.

He said 15 Amal fighters "infiltrated Jibcheet the night of Feb. 20 last year and surrounded the house where Higgins was being held. A dozen gunmen were guarding Higgins, but Amal was determined to set him free.

"A few shots were fired, after which about 200 Hezbollahs surrounded the Amal men and disarmed them. A golden opportunity to release Higgins was lost."

ND children need to grow up

In the comic strip "Calvin and Hobbes," Calvin maintains an ongoing relationship with a little girl named Susie. These two youngsters constantly torment each other with the ferocity of a South Bend winter. Although Calvin and Susie irritate one another, it is evident they both like each other. This love-hate relationship is tolerated and even expected among six year-old children. Unfortunately, in the past few weeks, similar behavior has evidenced itself among another group of children—the student body at Notre Dame.

third and long

The weeks of sexist backbiting and journalistic counter-punching have provided a truly romantic prelude to Valentine's Day. Girls accusing boys of being perverted, magazine-reading sex-fiends; boys accusing girls of being overweight, conceited, ice maidens. (Author's note: I use the terms "girls" and "boys" because we are not acting like men and women). Frankly folks, this has got to stop. Do you think the administration will listen to any student input on divestment, co-ed housing or the alcohol policy when they see us fighting among ourselves about hero-worship and the Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue? Judging by the maturity displayed in the past few weeks, it's a wonder rector's don't read us a bedtime story, tuck us in and kiss us good night.

The whole mess began with the publicity surrounding the swimsuit issue. Some girls cried foul. They condemned men for supporting the annual exploitation of women. Articles were written in The Observer; responses soon followed. The flame was fanned by another article last week. That article chronicled the adventures of a hero-worshipping girl who thrilled at meeting members of the football team. This enraged the less athletic men on campus and the battle lines were drawn. Since then the fight has been waged in classrooms, dining halls and dorms across campus. People, it's time to end Notre Dame's battle of the sexes.

The time has come for us to stop acting like six year-old comic strip characters. We continually plead with the administration to treat us as adults, yet we continue to act like children. There are far too many barriers separating the sexes on this campus, yet we are building additional ones. We all live together here, so it would be nice if we could play together without throwing sand in each other's faces.

First of all, we have got to take these things a little less seriously. People have been looking at pictures of members of the opposite sex since Mr. Eastman first said "cheese." Long after we've outgrown these vices, people will still do it. Both men and women partake in this relatively harmless activity. Men whistle at women, women whistle at men. In the Keenan Revue, two of the acts included scantily clad male dancers. While these performers were dancing, the women in the crowd whistled and hooted. Did these finely tuned dancers feel exploited? No, they were just having fun. Both sexes enjoy looking at members of the opposite (or same) sex.

Trite as this may sound, let he (or she) who is without sin cast the first stone. We are all guilty of admiring the body of a beautiful person. Why this fact continues to bother people is beyond me. If these people have worked hard to become models, why shouldn't we acknowledge their effort? I'm sure I'll merit some blistering responses for this, but the Sports Illustrated models are not exploited. They are not forced to pose and are paid quite handsomely. Exploitation of both sexes does exist in the world, but you won't find it in Sports Illustrated (nor Notre Dame football players, for that matter).

Boys and girls, we are all in this together. Whining and moaning about how poorly we treat each other will not help. There is only one way to end this insidious issue: GROW UP! Although we have been acting a bit childish lately, I think we can still distinguish between dream and reality. Looking at girls in bathing suits or worshipping football players are exercises in fantasy. Living at Notre Dame is reality. The sooner everyone remembers that, the better.

The inane, superficial dispute must end. In acting like children, we have lost the respect and tolerance of the faculty and staff. On this campus, there are dozens of more important issues to be concerned about than the battle of the sexes. This little spat has gone on far too long. The swimsuit issue has been out for a week; the hero-worship of football players has reared its ugly head; and, of course, I've gotten my two cents in. Hopefully, this will help put an end to this little skirmish. Since we've just passed Valentine's Day, I think the boys and girls at Notre Dame should kiss and make up.

And if you don't, you'll be sent to your room for the rest of the semester. And don't think I won't do it either. When your father gets home...

P.O. Box Q

Recycling requires student support

Dear Editor:

In 1980, the study group initiated by President Carter to study the global environment produced The Global 2000 Report to the President of the U.S.: Entering the 21st Century. The report concluded: "If present trends continue, the world in the year 2000 will be more crowded, more polluted, less stable ecologically, and more vulnerable to disruption than the world we live in now. Serious stresses involving population, resources, and environment are clearly visible ahead." The environmental degradation which caused a public uproar in the 1970's remains even more relevant for the world today. Global warming has continued; population still expands; deforestation and animal extinction have increased, and the garbage of our "throw-away" society piles up at unprecedented rates. What can be done in the face of such an eco-catastrophe?

Here at the University, we can formulate a comprehensive recycling program, one that goes beyond just food and aluminum cans, and includes newspaper, computer paper, and cardboard. Yet it will be necessary to pressure the administration into adopting such a program. However, why recycle?

First, the amount of waste produced by the average New Yorker in one day is about four pounds, and the total amount of waste generated per year in the U.S. is 150 million tons. Here at Notre Dame, we go through 200 pounds of aluminum cans and 5,565 pounds of newsprint each week. The environmental and economic impact of this blatant waste detracts from our national health, disrupts the biosphere, and conflicts with the Christian environmental ethic of stewardship of and harmony with the earth. Recycling is an effective way to slow the buildup of greenhouse gases and the pollutants that contribute to acid rain.

Secondly, recycling can be both environmentally beneficial and cost-effective. According to the Worldwatch Institute, by simply recovering the print run of a Sunday edition of the New York Times, 75,000 trees would be saved.

Therefore, the time has arrived for the transition from extractive industries to the use of recycled materials. Progressive cities, such as Seattle, and universities, such as Brown, Wisconsin, and Rutgers, have already successfully engaged in comprehensive recycling programs. The success of CILA's can drive and the Foodshare program demonstrate the feasibility of a comprehensive recycling program here.

As a Catholic university, we too must accept the responsibilities of protecting nature. So, take direct action by supporting Notre Dame's Environmental Action Team and stop by our informational meeting on Feb. 21 at 9 p.m. in the Center for Social Concerns, or hear our guest lecturer, Dr. Ching, on Feb. 22 at 4:30 p.m., also at the CSC. Dr. Ching, the director of the National Recycling Coalition, will speak on this vital environmental issue and attempt to begin a recycling program here.

The home of Chicago blues is no longer the city's southside in bars like the legendary Checker-board Lounge. Today the best blues in the Windy City, and probably the best blues in the world, blast from clubs on the near-northside streets of Halsted and Belmont.

Kingston Mines, located at 2548 N. Halsted, is probably the premier bar when it comes to Chicago blues. The bar, which has been open for about eight years, serves up live music seven nights a week. But it's more than just the music that makes Kingston Mines unique. This long, dark club creates an ambience so conducive to the blues that most people have a hard time not enjoying themselves.

The club is divided into two long rooms which are separated by a wall and the bar. Each room has its own stage, and on weekends both stages are in use to offer constant music. Just when one band needs a break from the sweat-filled passion of singing the blues, another band starts to howl from the depths of the tiny stage in the adjacent room.

Mysteriously drawn by some magical force, the crowd rises and glides effortlessly into the next room. People sit at long communal tables or lean against dirty walls, while the blues roll in a slow wave over the entire club, a wave that gathers momentum as the night goes on.

The people that frequent the Mines vary greatly. I've often found myself sandwiched between a pork belly trader in a blue suit and power tie and a smelly, stoned drunk. Last Friday I shared a table with a slimy, balding 45-year-old man who was disgustingly attempting to secure an evening of passion with a drunken 24-year-old bimbo. These two people, sad as they were, added to the fun of my evening in their own special way. The diversity of a Kingston Mines crowd, all packed together in a sweaty, smokey mess, add to the feeling and taste of live blues.

During the week, the club only uses one stage. Crowds don't really seem to suffer all that much, however. The music is still fast and rather furious or sometimes slow and solid. Whatever the mood of the band, they still play until 4 a.m.

Cover Sunday-Thursday is $4, a dollar or two more than most Chicago blues clubs, but well worth the money. Friday and Saturday covers usually run about $7-8, but the club has non-stop music on both of its stages and stays open until 5 a.m. Beer costs $2-3 a bottle and goes down nice and easily amidst the heat and smoke of the cramped bar.

Some of the bands which headline on weekends at the Mines include Sugar Blue, Otis Rush, Junior Wells, and Jimmy Johnson. Dion Payton's 43rd St. Blues Band works the second stage every Friday and Saturday night and provides a nice complement to the main act.

Kingston Mines' own slogan probably sums up their spirit better than anything I could say. They claim the Mines is the place to "Hear Blues, Drink Booze, and Whoever thought a motto ought to have brain bronzed.

Taken together, the beer, and the sounds of Kingston Mines, a near sensory overload weren't for the faint of heart. The blues has that taste effect that is so hard to describe. Legally, many people don't return from the Kingston Mines alive.

The menu and advertising for Lenny's American Grill say "the beginning of an old tradition." Well, I don't know about that, but it is the beginning of cheap, good food.

The motif is sort of '50s diner. It's not Ed Debevic's, but it does have a jukebox with lots of oldies, from the Beach Boys to Frank Sinatra. There're old-time root beer float glasses, a fair amount of Mickey Mouse on the walls, and a picture of James Dean in the back. The place does reek hole-in-the-wall, but as many truck drivers know, the hole-in-the-wall places often have the best food. Lenny's ain't bad in the food department.

Hangin' out at Lenny's review

The menu is very reasonably priced: we ate for $11 and were stuffed. The most expensive dish on the menu is the Hot Meatloaf Plate, with potatoes, gravy, soup, and vegetable, all for a big $3.95. A mix of sandwiches and burgers are also served, most for under $3, with potato chips and a pickle. The half-pound Big Al ($2.98), Andy's Stuffed Burger ($2.55), and the Chili Burger ($2.35) all looked pretty good.

There is also a long list of side dishes: homemade chili ($.95), cheese fries ($1.05) and onion rings ($1.05) to name a few. They even have Green River and root beer floats.

We ordered the chili, french fries, and the onion rings, taking advantage of those cheap prices. The chili was brought out first by a waitress that was a bit overworked but courteous. It was watery, but not too bad; and for once in South Bend it was decently spiced. The cheese fries were the curlique kind with cheddar cheese spread melted all over. Rather impressively, they actually didn't taste like cardboard like most french fries. The onion rings were on the thin 21-year-old Joshua Bell will be playing at the Morris Civic Auditorium tomorrow night at 8:15.

Young violinist plays South Bend

accent writer

Bloomington, Indiana's own Joshua Bell is no ordinary violinist. From a young, teenage boy obsessed with the violin, Bell has become a world renowned violinist at the age of 21. During these mere 21 years, he has not only toured throughout Europe, but also performed in Australia and Japan, and frequently makes appearances in the U.S. and Canada.

Bell will be much closer to his hometown tomorrow when he performs with the South Bend Symphony in the Morris Civic Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. He will play the Sibelius Violin Concerto, which, Bell told the South Bend Tribune, is a favorite of his that he learned when he was only 15.

At the young age of 12 and under the instruction of Josef Gingold, a professor at Indiana University's School of Music, Bell's extraordinary career took a foothold. In 1982 as a 14-year-old, he became the youngest guest soloist at a Philadelphia Orchestra subscription concert, conducted by Riccardo Muti.

Since then, Bell's calendar has been filled with guest performances. He and his $250,000 1726 Stradivarius violin have been engaged as guests with many of the top orchestras in the world, including the London Symphony and Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. He has also performed solo with the Philadelphia Orchestra, National Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, and the symphonies of Saint Louis (with which he made his debut at Carnegie Hall in 1985), Montreal, Toronto, Pittsburgh and Indianapolis, to name a few.

Bell's original excitement and determination to perform his music seems evident as he makes future plans to debut with the New York Philharmonic under Charles Dutoit and proposes recital debuts in Berlin, Amsterdam, and London.

Another rung to Bell's success was added when he became the first violinist in ten years to be signed exclusively by London Records. Currently, he has three albums out on the market, has just completed two others, and is striving to complete an additional two before the year is through.

Despite all his achievements, Bell professed to the South Bend Tribune an anxiety which he attributed to the attitudes of persons his own age. He realizes that few of them have any interest in classical music. These worries are most likely relieved with the realization that at each of Bell's concerts— which add up to about 100 per year— there is always an audience waiting to hear him.

SUGAR BLUE

accent writer

Blues harmonica Sugar Blue will be appearing at The Center Street Blues Cafe tonight and tomorrow at 9:30 p.m., and they are sure to be riveting shows.

Sugar has been hailed as an harmonica virtuoso, and previous reviews rave of Sugar's high-intensity performances and his incredible speed. City Pages says that Sugar "wails like a banshee, a jazzman, a tornado, and metamorphoses like a phoenix, at each and every gig."

Sugar was born Richard Whiting in New York but moved to Paris, where he was discovered by the Rolling Stones. He made appearances on three Stones albums and is best known for his distinctive solo in "Miss You." He went on to record five of his own albums, one of which won a Grammy Award in 1985.

For the past six years Sugar has been living and playing in Chicago, the home of modern blues and the host of the Annual Blues Fest, though he is far better known in France. His claim to fame, says the Boston Globe, is his "distinctive harmonica style that emphasizes horn-like phrasing and lightning-like high-note runs." It has been said that Sugar is creating new limits for the blues harmonica the way that Jimi Hendrix created new limits for the guitar.

Sugar himself said to the Boston Herald that "great players have always changed the tradition. If you try and maintain a tradition, you take a musician and turn him into a caretaker."

Sugar sees blues as the root of rock, jazz, and even country/western, and can play any of them. "The blues is the momma, and the momma can raise all her kids no matter what you call them."

In concert, says City Pages, Sugar seems to have been "kissed by demon fire" and "could blow a band off a stage. . . just him, his harp (harmonica) and his demon." Due to the intensity of his playing, his vocals tend to take a backseat and pale in comparison, but that is no drawback to the overall show. International Musician and Recording World described Sugar having "the habit of making it seem as if he's putting on his last, desperate performance," and his performances have been described as everything from furious to strange.

It's been said that Sugar Blue can get many different things out of his "harp," and pure music is one of them. His show this weekend at Center Street will be the perfect opportunity to experience his magic for yourselves. Cover is $5.

Lenny's is on S.R. 23 at Ironwood, sort of across from Martin's. If you know where University Pizza Delivery is, it's right next door.

Hours are (right now) 5:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Thursday; 5:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday; and 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Sunday. You can call ahead and carry out, but I'd go back just to hang out over coffee and chili fries.

The manager assured me that Lenny's would be open later in the spring; according to him, they used to open until 3 a.m. He also said Lenny's had applied for a beer and wine license, which would add a new dimension to a potential cult spot.

Drink Booze, and Talk Loud." Whoever thought up that motto ought to have their brain bronzed.

Taken together, the blues, the beer, and the bellowing sounds of Kingston Mines are a near sensory overload. If it weren't for the fact that good blues has that tasty, numbing effect that is so hard to attain legally, many people would not return from the depths of Kingston Mines alive.

The bacon cheeseburger was big, obviously freshly made, and had plenty of bacon and cheese. The chicken sandwich was fairly hefty and fried up good, with a dollop of mayonnaise or tartar sauce or something. Both were greasy but good— about what you'd expect from a diner.

The root-beer float did hit the spot.

Breakfast items were available, with a basic Sunrise Breakfast ($2.75) of two eggs, bacon or sausage, hashbrowns, and toast and jam. Short order omelettes, pancakes and french toast are also on the menu, along with

JPW, the Virgin Mary, and Dad

Neither of my parents ever laid eyes on Notre Dame. My mother was never well enough to make the long trip out here from Maine, even when I graduated in 1949. My father died when I was a college freshman.

Dear old Dad was a WASP, and his WASPishness was never in fuller fig than when he was considering the pomps and vain pretensions of the Catholic Church. He would dogmas about her. Catholic theology doesn't begin to get sophisticated until you accept the mystery of Christ as the Word made flesh. The theology of the Incarnation has the tightness and beauty of a metaphysical poem in honor of Christ. You can't imagine His life without remembering the way Our Lady was a part of it, from alpha to omega: as the maiden of Nazareth, to whom the glad tidings were

As a student, I used to think that when I said the rosary, I was praying to Our Lady. If it's only a repetition of Hail Marys, the rosary must be the shallowest prayer in the world. When you're very tired, you hope the Hail Marys are enough, if, in saying them, you're trying to be faithful to the will of God, wide open to His love.

But if prayer is to be a genuine lifting of the heart and mind to God, you have to pay attention to the mysteries of the rosary; and so you try, as intensely as you can, to meditate on Christ, and on the meaning of His ministry, the resurrection, and the side trips He took to Jerusalem. Then it becomes plain that Our Lady had no life at all apart from Jesus; and that she, from her experience, must be the embodiment of the Gospel. Whatever truth the Gospels contain, she was cherishing in her heart before the Gospels were written.

For me, saying the rosary is a way of asking Our Lady, as an instrument of the Paraclete, to show me the lights I need for prayer; for serious prayer to God can be heavy-duty stuff, and I'm not always in the mood to pray. Using the mysteries of each decade as a prelude to prayer, I ask Our Lady: "Walk with me, please, through the good days and the bad days of your son's time on earth, and let me see truth I can grow on." After trying to look at Christ through the eyes of His mother, I rouse myself spiritually to make the acts of love and contrition that stand at the gateway to deep prayer.

What does it mean to have faith? Faith is Mary walking with the women to the tomb of Christ, so that they can anoint the body. "Who," they were asking, "will roll away the stone that seals up the door?" When they got there, the stone was already rolled away, as they trusted it would be. What does faith mean? It means that you keep walking on the path of Christian service, even if there are discouraging roadblocks in the way.

Why do I ask Mary to show me God's will? It's not because she's a demi-goddess whom Catholics rely on instead of giving God the glory. Our Lady is trustworthy as a prayer partner because she's a redeemed human being who found her fulfillment in doing God's will. Allowing me to have recourse to Mary as the mirror of truth is one of the ways God shows His great kindness to me. In the dogma of her Assumption, I can see His fidelity to a creature outstanding for her fidelity to Him. Sex is not a corruption, but in a world which has corrupted sex, God invites the Church to celebrate the awesome purity of Mary, immaculately conceived, "our tainted nature's solitary boast."

Gerard Manley Hopkins wrote a poem comparing the Blessed Virgin to the air we breathe—for without the Earth's atmosphere covering us, we would die from the heat of the sun. In a similar way, says Hopkins, the glory of God—in whose intense presence no creature can survive—is mediated to us by the humanity which the Virgin Mary shares with her son, who uses it like a garment that keeps His brightness from blinding us.

In the years that spread out like the days of a novitiate, Our Lady has been faithful in keeping the night-watch in the Grotto near the lake, by the candles' red flames. Like the blood in the bricks of the place, and the echoes that shake down from the thunder rising up from the stadium, her presence among us as "Notre Dame du lac" is a permanent part of the myth. Feeling herself much loved, she has loved us much.

Our Lady has shrines which the Junior Parents may have visited, but Notre Dame as home plate isn't like any of them. The sun doesn't dance, and you will not see miracles, and the lame don't leave their crutches behind them. In the Grotto at night, you can hear the ducks splashing in the lake. Then the quiet time comes, peace descends, and you can feel your soul clapping its hands in praise of

have been like a fish out of water in this Emerald City, with the Woman in Gold on the Dome as its chatelaine. I never wrote to tell him of Our Lady who stands tall in the Gospel, like a candle that lights the face of Christ. How could I? I was too young, and he died too soon.

Perhaps religious symbols are like poems that should not mean, but be. But if there are Junior Parents anywhere, Catholic or Protestant, to whom Our Lady is a superstition foisted by priests on the minds of mere children, why shouldn't I tell them what the Dome and the Grotto mean to me? I offer them the letter, like a love song to Our Lady, that I never wrote to my father.

To understand about Mary, you don't start with the brought; as the Sorrowful Mother of the Pieta.

Mary is the Morning Star and Evening Star of divine revelation, and the dogmas about her are like pegs that hold truths from the Gospel in place as part of the Creed. But how could I have told my father this when I was twenty years old?

At his retirement, Father Hesburgh said: "When I was a young priest, I travelled around the world to visit the great Marian shrines. When I saw the campus again, I decided that, though Our Lady visits those other places, she makes her home at Notre Dame."

When you make a habit of visiting the Grotto, you appreciate Notre Dame as a place dear to Our Lady, where she's always at home to you.

Her$hi$er gets top contract

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES--Orel Hershiser capped a record-setting season with a record-setting contract Thursday, agreeing to a three-year, $7.9-million deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers that makes him the highest-paid player in baseball history and the sport's first $3 million man.

Hershiser, the National League Cy Young Award winner last year and the most valuable player in the NL playoffs and World Series, will receive a $1.1 million signing bonus, $2.4 million this season, $1.6 million in 1990 and $2.8 million in 1991.

"This contract is historic in its nature," Los Angeles general manager Fred Claire said.

The 30-year-old right-hander's deal with the Dodgers set several records:

--Including a prorated share of the $1.1 million signing bonus, Hershiser will make $2,766,667 this season, the highest salary of any player, topping the $2,466,677 of Baltimore's Cal Ripken.

--Hershiser's raise of $1,666,667 broke the record of $1,326,442 set on Feb. 1 by Toronto's Jimmy Key.

--Hershiser's average annual salary of $2,633,333 broke the record of $2.5 million set Wednesday by Boston right-hander Roger Clemens.

--Hershiser would get $3,166,667 in 1991, including a prorated share of the signing bonus, making him the first $3 million baseball player unless someone beats him to it in 1990.

"I'm glad that it's over with," Hershiser said at a Dodger Stadium news conference a little more than two hours after an agreement had been reached. "Deep down, this is what I wanted, to remain a Dodger."

Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Orel Hershiser signed a record-breaking contract Thursday. The Cy Young award winner became baseball's first $3 million dollar man, surpassing Roger Clemens of Boston.

Neck injury sidelines Buckeye star

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio--A broken bone in his neck has ended the college basketball career of Jay Burson, Ohio State's 6-foot, 156-pound guard.

Dr. Robert J. Murphy, the team doctor, said Thursday that Burson sustained a fracture of the front surface of the fifth cervical vertebra, and his neck would be immobilized in a halo traction brace for the next three months.

Murphy said the injury most likely occurred midway through the first half of Monday night's loss to Iowa when Burson fell under a backboard. Burson, a senior, played most of the second half and finished with 25 points.

"If everything goes as expected, he should be well in three months," Murphy said. "There's no reason why he can't play basketball at that time, if he so desires."

Burson, who is being treated at the Ohio State University Hospital, sustained no spinal cord damage, the doctor said.

Murphy said he had twice diagnosed similar injuries in his 37 years with Ohio State and "all resulted in quadriplegia."

ND tennis faces tough foes at West Virginia tournament

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

On the blackboard of Bob Bayliss' office there is a characterization of Notre Dame men's tennis coach—“Toughest Tennis Coach In the Midwest.”

This weekend, the demanding midwestern coach takes his squad east to Charleston, W.V. to tackle three of collegiate tennis' premier teams, North Carolina, West Virginia and Murray State.

Undoubtedly, the upstart Irish are the underdogs against all three foes.

“These three teams are the toughest teams we will play all year with the exception of U.C.L.A. and USC who are both ranked in the top five in the nation,” said senior captain Brian Kalbas. “In our past matches, either our top or bottom three have played well, at Charleston every player must play well in one match.”

The 6-2 Irish first tack the court against Murray State in the round robin tournament. Traditionally, Murray State relies on foreign talent, and this season's team is no different. All six singles and all three doubles combinations are held by Swedes.

“Murray State is historically very good,” said Bayliss. “They are probably better in singles but we have the edge in doubles. If we take three singles matches, we have a good chance to win.”

Next up for the Irish is the host team, West Virginia. The 20th ranked Mountaineers are presently the best team in the east. In addition, WVU has won six out of the last eight Atlantic 10 championships. Last season saw the Mountaineers make their first NCAA Championship appearance. West Virginia's roster includes an experienced total of total of two seniors and four juniors in the starting lineup. West Virginia, in an Atlantic 10 first, swept through the championship round and captured all six singles and all three doubles titles.

Paul Mancini, WVU's No. 1 player, is currently ranked 49th in the nation. In 1987 and 1988, Mancini captured the National Amateur Clay Courts Championship. The 5-11 junior is reknown for his quickness and superb baseline tactics. To illustrate the strenght of their lineup, WVU's No. 2 player, Joby Foley, is ranked 27th in collegiate tennis, 22 places above No. 1 Mancini.

The Observer / Trey Reymond

The Notre Dame men's tennis team will battle three of the toughest teams on its schedule this weekend as it travels to West Virginia to face Murray State, West Virginia and North Carolina.

Mooney

In his most glorious of boxing days, Mooney made $75 for fighting in Detroit on a card that featured Joe Louis, and once reached the semifinals of the Golden Gloves in Chicago. He was the Studebaker champ, and earned $5 (“enough to buy a good meal”) for every win in the Navy.

The Bengal Bouts have a similar history of staying out of the spotlight. The punches used to fly in the Notre Dame Fieldhouse, until the event was moved to Stepan Center when the Fieldhouse was torn down in 1983.

The dressing room is small and there are no showers. But the ACC just didn't seem right.

“When they used to fight in the old Fieldhouse, we had a small training room in the back, and it smelled like a horse barn,” said Mooney. “They'd pack four or five thousand people in there, and it would just be great.”

“It's just like when you pack three or four thousand in Stepan Center. I have to watch all their clothes so nobody runs off with them. There aren't even any showers in there, but I couldn't imagine having it anywhere else.”

Even after the bell sounds four nights a year at Stepan, Mooney can be found in the dressing room. Many of the fighters ask him to stand in their corner, but that would bring about a conflict of interest.

“To me, each one is my son,” Mooney explained. “I'm not going to say, ‘Hey, Joe, go out and knock him around.’ So I stay in the dressing room.”

But don't be surprised if you see him sneaking a peek out the dressing room door every now and then.

Mooney hasn't changed much.

peace. This is the Notre Dame miracle, and we hope the Junior Parents will take the memory of it home with them.

The Grotto is holy as a shrine to God's mother, conspicuous not as a tourist trap, but as a much-loved student hangout. Whenever you go there, day or night, you will always find students ahead of you, leading the way. The Junior Parents should go there, to see if they feel at home with the Mother of God in the dearest place Notre Dame has to offer outside Sacred Heart Church and the Keenan-Stanford chapel. While they're there, I hope they remember to light a candle and say a Hail Mary. If the they do that, we're sure to see them back at Notre Dame next year, at graduation time, certainly, and perhaps for a football game. Until then, may Christ and His Lady watch over them.

The Notre Dame women's basketball team will try to put the pressure on the Loyola Lady Ramblers to take the top spot in the MCC this weekend.

Irish battle Lady Ramblers

Big matchup pits top two teams in conference

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Writer

Notre Dame's sole possession of first place in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference will be at stake Saturday night when the women's basketball team travels to Loyola.

It will be a big test for the streaking Irish, who sport a perfect 9-0 record in the MCC. The Lady Ramblers are 8-1 in the MCC after being upset Thursday night by Butler, 70-65. The Irish are 15-6 overall, while Loyola is 15-6.

"I think that at this point in the season every game is important," Irish coach Muffet McGraw said. "We would certainly like to go undefeated in the conference. We're looking forward to the challenge of playing a good team."

While the Irish have dominated league play, Loyola has won, but struggled against MCC foes. The Lady Ramblers have won four games by five points or less and came from behind in wins over Xavier and Dayton last week. Notre Dame has won seven of the last nine meetings between the two teams.

Either the Irish defense or the Loyola offense will have to give in Saturday's contest. The Lady Ramblers have a potent offense that averages 75.5 points per game, while Notre Dame is coming off its best defensive effort of the season. The Irish allowed only 34 points in last Saturday's win over St. Louis and are giving up just 62 points per game overall.

Loyola boasts the top scorer in the MCC in Sheryl Porter. Porter scores 19.3 points per game and has connected on 11-of-31 three-point attempts. Porter originally attended Illinois, but transferred during her first season. She was the Chicago Sun-Times Player of the Year in 1986.

"She's just a great athlete," McGraw said. "I think we're going to play straight up man-to-man with Diondra Toney and Comalita Haysbert on her."

Guard Veronica Pettry (12.5) and center Denise Lawrence (11.2) also average in double figures for the Lady Ramblers.

Probable starters for Loyola at forward are Missy DeNeil (8.6 ppg) and Erin Joslin (4.6).

The Irish have had some difficulty getting quality practice time this week, as Toney and Karen Robinson have been out with the flu. McGraw expects both to play against Loyola.

The Irish are also on a streak, winners of nine of their last 11 games. The only losses in that stretch came to non-conference opponents DePaul and Syracuse.

Robinson continues to be the leader for the Irish after the early-season loss of Heidi Bunek to an injury. Robinson averages 13.2 points per game and has a team-high 113 assists.

A pair of sophomores are also near double figures for the Irish. Guard Sara Liebscher averages 9.8 points per game, while forward Krissi Davis scores at a 8.2 clip.

The Loyola contest will be the first in a four-game roadtrip for the Irish. They travel to Tennessee Monday and have MCC games against Dayton Thursday and Xavier next Saturday.

Bengals

Notre Dame boxing coach Sean McCormack is very excited about this year's group.

"This will be the best Bengal Bouts in a long time," claims McCormack, who has guided the boxers in this short training season, and who will work the corners during the week's fights.

"This has been our shortest season ever," says Noone, "but for the amount of time these guys have had, we've got excellent fighters."

McCormack is especially excited about the lower weight classes, which host the majority of the new, hungry fighters. The quarterfinal round in those classes will commence with the first session on Sunday.

Besides the high quality fighting and the charitable spirit, two other Bengal traditions will continue.

Friday night's finals traditionally feature an influential member of the national boxing community. Last year, Muhammad Ali sat ringside for the final round. McCormack expects South Bend's own junior welter-weight contender Harold Brazier to participate in the activities this year.

Finally, the true crowning moment of the event will be the presentation of the Bengal Bouts Award, which this year will go to long-time Bengal supporter Father Edmund Joyce.

Wrestlers face CMU looking for revenge

By GREG SCHECKENBACH
Sports Writer

Can Notre Dame be intimidated by the mighty Chippewas of Central Michigan? No, because the only thing on the minds of Irish wrestlers is revenge for the 27-12 pounding they took from them last year.

"We are looking forward to having them as guests because last year they were not to hospitable toward us," said Irish head coach Fran McCann. "Our guys don't forget very much."

The match is slated for tonight at 7:30 in the Joyce ACC Pit. CMU comes to Notre Dame with a deceiving 3:10 record. Notre Dame is sporting an 8-3 dual meet record, which is the best since McCann's first year in 1985 where they finished 8-4.

The Irish are still not at full strength, battling a few cases of bronchitis. At 118 pounds, Andy Radenbaugh (32-7) will sit out the meet. In his place will be freshman Mike Sheehy who's current record is 6-2. Jerry Durso, who wrestles at 134 pounds, is a question mark for the match.

"We'll take Jerry on a day to day basis," said McCann. "If he is ready, we'll go with him."

On an individual basis, revenge is very high for the Irish. At 177 pounds, Chris Geneser will look to return the favor against Kevin Vogel, who pinned him last year. Other outstanding wrestlers for CMU are Greg Hoffman (158 pounds), Kevin Aiken (167 pounds), and Derek Phillips (190 pounds). They will match up against Mark Gerardi (17-12), Todd Tomazic (17-12), and Curt Engler (7-12) respectively.

"If we wrestle the way we are capable, we should win the match," said McCann, who is preparing the Irish for the NCAA West Regionals with two a day practices.

"Right now, we are priming for the Regionals in every dual meet, and our spirits are high," said McCann.

Selected few run at IC4As

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's track team will take care of some necessary business today as it competes in the Indiana Intercollegiate at Indiana University.

The whole team will not be in attendance, as only those who "need some opportunities to compete" will make the trek to Bloomington in the hopes of sharpening performances and getting qualifying times for the upcoming championship meets.

The main championships that the athletes will be aiming for will be that of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America (IC4A) scheduled for March 4-5.

"The purpose of this meet is to give some guys the opportunity to compete who have not had the opportunities in the past," said Irish track coach Joe Piane. "It is a great opportunity for the kids to run, jump and throw well, and hopefully some kids will get some marks to qualify for the IC4A's."

Notre Dame will not be sending many of its athletes because of the vigorous schedule of the team in recent weeks. Piane will give those who have been suffering from injuries an opportunity to recuperate, and for those who have been running extensively to rest.

The Irish also will be experimenting with some athletes. Senior Dave Warth will compete in the 600 to give him some leg speed for the 800, and the team may put some sprinters in the long jump. Piane also added that pole vaulters Chris Bush and Chris Componovo will compete to get the necessary marks to qualify to the IC4A's.

"We're taking certain kids and trying to get a good performance out of them," said Piane. "We have little regard for the team championship. It's more important to relax now."

"It used to be that we would get all worked up for this meet, but now we have a great team competition every time we step into our own track facilities for an invitational," continued Piane.

Piane listed Mike Rogan, Mark Lavery, Brian Peppard, Ron Markezich, Tom O'Rourke, Ryan Cahill and Yan Searcy as runners who would not be making the trip.

Robinson's next basket tied the game at 78.

"Keith was awesome. . . This was a must win game and puts us back to where we should be," Phelps said.

LaSalle led the Irish 48-40 at the half as LaSalle was 5-for-6 from three-point range in the first half. Junior guard Bob Johnson came off the Explorers' bench to lead LaSalle with 18 points in the first 20 minutes.

After Notre Dame had jumped out to a 9-2 lead, LaSalle went on an 18-8 run to lead the Irish 20-17.

Johnson and Hurd scored fifteen of LaSalle's next 17 points over a 5:44 span as the Explorers extended their lead to 37-25.

"They were getting easy points in transition," said Phelps. "We wanted to get it under ten before the half."

Freshman center Keith Tower gave the Irish a boost with four points, six rebounds, and seven minutes of strong play as the Irish cut the lead to eight with 2:05 left in the first half.

"Tower played the best game of his life for us as a freshman," said Phelps. Tower wound up with 6 points and 6 rebounds in just 13 minutes of play.

More running than slamming

Houston visits Notre Dame with an unfamiliar style

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

The University of Houston basketball program is entering a new era.

Gone are the days of Akeem "the Dream" Olajuwon, Clyde "the Glide" Drexler and Phi Slaton. Cougar head coach Pat Foster has replaced the old inside offensive and defensive attack with a much faster model featuring three-point field goals and a full-court press. The new nickname should be Phi Runna Gunna.

All will be on display Sunday when the Cougars visit the Joyce ACC at 2 p.m. to take on Notre Dame, fresh from its Thursday night battle with LaSalle.

Notre Dame entered Thursday night's game against the Explorers with a 14-5 record. Sunday's contest against Houston completes a four-game homestand for the Irish in which they also defeated USC and lost to Boston College.

Houston puts its 15-9 record (6-5 in the Southwest Conference) on the line Saturday against conference rival Texas Christian. Sunday's game against the Irish marks the fifth in nine days for the Cougars.

Houston's five SWC losses this season have been by a combined seven points. In fact, the Cougars have been victimized by several buzzer-beaters this year, including one in an ESPN-televised 88-86 loss to Texas on Jan. 14.

Notre Dame has not played Houston since the 1977-78 season, when the Irish beat the Cougars 100-77 in the first round of the NCAA tournament. The all-time series is tied at three games apiece, with both teams averaging well over 90 points per game.

Third-year coach Foster is looking to take the Cougars to a third-straight post-season appearance. Houston went to the NIT last season after qualifying for the NCAA tourney the previous year.

The Cougars must get outstanding performances from two key frontcourt players Sunday if they are to defeat the Irish and keep alive their dream of returning to the NCAA tournament this season.

Forwards Craig Upchurch, the 1987-88 SWC Newcomer of the Year, and Richard Hollis, 1987-88 Second-Team All-SWC selection, pace a Houston starting lineup that includes three scorers in double figures.

Upchurch, a 6-8 sophomore, led the Cougars in scoring with 18.9 points per game entering the week. He also owns a team-leading average of 6.6 rebounds per game. He scored a career-high 34 points earlier this season against Texas A&M while nursing an injured shoulder.

Hollis, bearing the number double-zero on his jersey, may be the most instantly recognizable player on the Cougar squad. The 6-5 senior is second on the team in scoring at a 16.2 points per game. He has recorded 10-or-more rebounds in 10 games this season, and his 7.8 rebound average was third in the SWC entering this week.

Freshman point guard Derrick Daniels leads the SWC in assists this season with a 6.1 average. He broke the Houston record for assists by a freshman earlier this year against Rice.

Houston's Craig Upchurch, a 6-8 sophomore, will lead the Cougars into the Joyce ACC this Sunday. Upchurch is averaging 18.9 points and 6.6 rebounds per contest.

Krause wins Hall of Fame award

Associated Press

LARCHMONT, NY —Edward H. "Moose" Krause, athletic director at Notre Dame for 32 years until his retirement in 1980, has been named winner of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame's Distinguished American Award for 1989.

He will be honored Dec. 5 at the foundation's annual Hall of Fame dinner in New York.

Krause, 76, graduated from Notre Dame cum laude with a degree in journalism in 1934 after starring in football and basketball. He was head basketball coach at St. Mary's (Minn.), Holy Cross and Notre Dame and is a member of the College Basketball Hall of Fame.

He also served as head football, track, golf and tennis coach at St. Mary's in addition to heading the journalism and physical education departments. He was an assistant football coach and head basketball coach at Holy Cross before returning to Notre Dame in 1942 as an assistant coach in both sports.

Then get in on the ground floor in our undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

■ Earning $100 a month during the school year

■ As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session

■ Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session

■ You can take free civilian flying lessons

■ You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

We're looking for a few good men.

Irish edge Explorers 80-78

Juniors Robinson, Fredrick combine for 48 points

By CHRIS MURPHY

Keith Robinson and Joe Fredrick combined for 32 second-half points and Notre Dame's defense limited LaSalle's junior sensation Lionel Simmons to nine second-half points as the Irish came from behind to defeat the Explorers, 80-78 Thursday night the Joyce ACC.

Fredrick nailed a 15-foot jumper with two LaSalle defenders on him and three seconds remaining to win the game for the Irish.

"Fredrick hit a great shot," said Irish head coach Digger Phelps. "I told Tim (Singleton) to jump stop and find somebody. We're lucky to win, but it's a win. We fought hard and I'm happy the way they got it done."

LaSalle missed an opportunity to win the game at the buzzer when freshman Jack Hurd's three-point attempt bounced off the rim.

"Hurd usually makes that shot," said LaSalle head coach Bill "Speedy" Morris. "I thought we had won the game. Digger said he stole one and he's probably right. But I give him the credit."

LaSalle also had an opportunity to go ahead with ten seconds remaining, but Simmons missed two free throws after Notre Dame had called two consecutive timeouts.

"I can't explain it," said Morris on Simmons missing the free throws. "He's icewater but just didn't get the roll. He might hit 30 in a row now."

Simmons, who entered the game averaging 28.3 points per game, was held to 22 points, thirteen of which came in the first half.

"Jamere Jackson did a super job on Simmons in the second half," Phelps said.

Robinson scored a career-high 24 points, had a season-high 16 rebounds, and grabbed a Fredrick miss and converted it to pull the Irish even at 78 with :29 seconds left.

Simmons then missed his free throws allowing Singleton to set up Fredrick for the game-winning shot.

With the Irish trailing 48-40 at the start of the second half, Robinson and Fredrick combined for Notre Dame's next 16 points. A goaltending call on Simmons gave the Irish a tie at 56-56 with 14:22 left.

Jackson drove into the lane for layups on the Irish's next two possessions to put the Irish ahead at 60-56.

The Irish led 64-61 when Robinson took over for the Irish hitting his next three shots.

LaSalle jumped back into the lead at 69-68 on a Doug Overton three-pointer with 7:38 on the clock.

After Simmons drove across the lane and hit a bank-shot to put LaSalle up 73-70 with 4:17 left, the Irish chipped away on a Robinson jumper and two free throws by Singleton to trail 78-76.

Six champions return in 59th Bengal Bouts

By TIM SULLIVAN

"Strong bodies fight that the weak may be nourished."

Those words have inspired thousands of boxers over the years, including 104 who will take to the boxing ring in the next week in the 59th annual Bengal Bouts at Stepan Center to benefit the Holy Cross Missions in Bangladesh.

Beginning with Sunday's two-session quarterfinals (1:30 and 7:30), continuing on Wednesday night at 7:30, and concluding with the finals next Friday night at 8:00 PM, those 104 boxers will vie for 14 titles in this annual exhibition of skill, hard-nosed spirit, and the legacy of Dominic J. "Nappy" Napolitano.

Knute Rockne founded the bouts in 1930, hoping for an off-season workout outlet for his football players. The event expanded to its present thriving level over the ensuing 59 years, but football players still share the limelight.

This year's super-heavyweight division features defending champion and defensive tackle Brian Shannon, along with senior defensive tackle Steve Roddy and 1987 champion Dan Quinn.

Napolitano took the reigns of the Bengals from Rockne and added the charitable status of the event, his own indomitable personality, and his immortal words.

Nappy, who passed away in 1986, will remain with the Bengal Bouts forever.

Notre Dame Boxing Club President Mike Noone is one of six returning champions expected to headline the three days' cards.

Noone will be attempting to join an elite group of Notre Dame boxers. With a championship this year, Noone will become one of only five four-time Bengal champions.

"It's definitely something you think about for four years," said Noone. "It's big."

And those in Noone's 135-pound weight-class better look out.

"I'm in better shape (than any other year). I'm stronger."

Joining Noone on the list of defending champions are Shannon, Doug Biolchini, Vance Becklund, Bill Angrich, and Chris Balint.

But it's the 98 other fighters who will add the suspense to this year's bouts.

Mooney as much a tradition as the Bouts

Boxing at Notre Dame hasn't changed much in the past 59 years.

Take it from Jack Mooney, the 76-year-old Bengal Bouts trainer who has been involved in the sport for most of his life.

Mooney used to fight wherever and whenever he could—for South Bend's old Studebaker plant, the United States Navy, in the Golden Gloves competition and eventually on the undercards of legendary boxers like Joe Louis and Max Schmelling. Now he helps Notre Dame boxers with their headgear and gloves, washes their mouthpieces and shows them how to throw left jabs and right hooks.

"I'll tell you truthfully, those guys back then weren't any tougher than these kids," Mooney said Thursday, as he scanned the Joyce ACC boxing room at some of the fighters who were getting ready for the start of the 59th annual Bengal Bouts this weekend.

"These kids have better training, better facilities," Mooney continued. "They train hard. When they spar in here, some of them beat the hell out of each other. This year we had a broken nose, but that kind of thing can't be helped. It's boxing."

Boxing. In its purest form, it involves two strong men trying to knock each other silly in a roped-off area, for the honor of having an arm raised in victory.

In recent years, big-time boxing has meant a great deal of show-business hype, millions of dollars for every has-been who decides to come out of retirement and, of course, closed-circuit television.

But Mooney and the Bengal Bouts have a lot in common. Neither has changed much from the days of pure, hard-hitting, broken-nose boxing.

More than 50 years ago, Mooney met and befriended the late Dominic J. "Nappy" Napolitano, who founded the Bouts that are now fought in his memory. Mooney, who boxed in the amateur ranks in those days, helped out however he could—carrying spit pails, fetching towels and eventually judging and officiating some of the matches.

Now he does more of the same in training sessions, performing many of the chores that go unnoticed by most people during the four nights of fighting. But hiding in the shadows is not new to Mooney.
