40 guerrillas killed in Namibia

Associated Press

WINDHOEK, Namibia- Territorial police reported killing more than 40 guerrillas Sunday in widespread fighting that shattered a cease-fire and threatened to derail Namibia's day-old transition to independence from South Africa.

South Africa accused the rebel South-West African People's Organization of launching the attacks, but SWAPO said its guerrillas were defending themselves.

Since late Friday, the eve of the truce, more than 80 guerrillas and four policemen have been killed, according to official from South Africa, which agreed to give up control of Namibia under a U.N.-monitored process that began Saturday.

Namibian police said fighting continued into Sunday evening, with more than 30 confrontations during the day, but no details about the encounters were released. A police spokesman, Kierie du Rand, said 44 guerrillas were killed Sunday and that the toll probably had risen past 50.

Thirty-six guerrillas were reported killed in clashes late Friday.

Einloth is named this year's valedictorian

By MAURA KRAUSE
Staff Reporter

Brian Einloth, an electrical engineering major, has been chosen valedictorian after maintaining a 3.992 GPA through seven semesters.

Einloth's only blotch was a "B" that he received in a one-credit lab course his freshman year, he said.

Einloth, a native of Pittsburgh, described being chosen valedictorian as a "great honor. You can't possibly figure as a freshman that you can attain this honor. You don't think about it until it happens."

"Being valedictorian is hard to talk about in a way because I've done the best I could. If I hadn't done as well, I'd be just as satisfied," Einloth said.

"I really haven't felt I've had to sacrifice much. If anything I sacrificed sleep; a few times I got up early before a football game or held strange study hours," said Einloth.

For Einloth, being valedictorian is, "a great responsibility. In giving the address I want to say something that will hit home with the other graduating seniors."

Einloth will be working as an engineer for Delco Electronics Corp. in Kokomo, Ind. where he has interned for the past two summers. He also plans to "pursue an MBA at Harvard University, but Harvard requires job experience so they've preserved a spot in the class of '92 for me," said Einloth.

The three highest ranking graduating seniors in each College of the University have also been named.

In the College of Arts and Letters, these students are Karen Dwyer, an English major from Naples, Fla.; Theresa Rice, a modern languages and medieval studies major from Mishawaka; and Christopher Barker, an economics and computer applications major from Salem, Ore.

In the college of Business Administration the highest ranking students are Michael Lawler, an accounting major from Jacksonville, Ill.; Michael Collins, a finance major from Lancaster, N.Y.; and Charles Sacher, a management major from Miami, Fla.

For Lawler, achieving such a high ranking called for, "a lot of hard work in the afternoons and late nights. However, I never let it cut into my social life. It's a nice honor; it's not something I worked at but I'm glad it happened. I

Smoke covering Beirut

Black smoke continues to ascend over the Lebanese Capital, from the exploded gas and fuel tanks at Dora's depot in Christian east Beirut, Friday. The tanks were hit during fierce artillery duels earlier this week between Christian units of the Lebanese army and Syrian gunners. At least 50,000 people have evacuated the area around the fuel depot. Story page 6.

Soph. Sibs Weekend nixed

By ALISON COCKS
News Staff

The 1989 Sophomore Sibs Weekend will not be held, according to Sophomore Class President Rob Pasin.

The decision was based on financial considerations, said Pasin. "Typically, it is an event that runs into a lot of debt."

Traditionally, Sophomore Sibs Weekend provides an opportunity for students in the sophomore class to bring younger brothers and sisters to the campus and introduce them to the traditions of Notre Dame. Activities in recent years have included movies, a brunch, and a Casino Night.

This year's Sophomore Sibs Weekend had been tentatively scheduled for the weekend of April 21, although this had not yet been approved by the Office of Student Activities.

Class president Rob Pasin said that the cancellation of this year's event would not prevent it from occurring in years to come. "It's something that has to be planned from the beginning of the year. Someone needs to be working on it from the start," Pasin said.

When asked if it might be possible to schedule a similar event in the coming year for the junior class, Pasin replied, "It's a possibility. We thought since we couldn't do it this year maybe we could next year. I'm

Doyle looks back on 'successful' year

By FLORENTINE HOELKER
Senior Staff Reporter

Editor's note: This is the first of a two-part series.

"The past year in student government has been successful," said former Student Body President Tom Doyle, and despite disappointments, if given the chance, he would do it "all over again, in the same way."

Doyle said he believes that he and Mike Paese, former student body vice president, have mostly succeeded in their original campaign promises of improving both intellectual life and improving student services.

"We made a big push in the direction of intellectual life," said Doyle. "We felt that a commitment to intellectual life wasn't there, and we tried to change that."

The well-publicized Iceberg Debates and Hiler-Ward debate were only a few of the events that student government worked on during the course of the past year to promote intellectual life.

"We at student government worked with other organizations to get events like the Hiler-Ward debate on campus for the students," said Doyle. "It was a real credit to those who worked on it."

Student government cooperated with organizations like the Student Union Board to bring guests like Michael Pozner and Bruce Babbit to campus, according to Doyle. "People like these come to campus with a diversity of opinions and speak on them, which is yet another way to expand the intellectual life on campus."

"Voter registration was another major project of ours. We disseminated information on the elections last fall, put up posters, and en-

WORLD BRIEFS

A train collision killed six and critically injured more than 100 in a Sunday crash in the town of Damanhour, 75 miles north of Cairo, Egypt. A passenger train collided head-on with a train carrying fuel oil, police said. Police sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the collision caused a fire that burned the six to death.

Named "Papa Cocaine" by the Italian media, 38-year-old Antonio Lancia has been sentenced to five years under house arrest and fined nearly $9,000 for giving cocaine to his girlfriend's 4-year-old son, news reports said. Lancia was arrested last spring after Daniela Tirelli told police he had abused her and forced her son, Stefano, as well as his own 5-year-old son to use cocaine. Investigators found traces of drugs in Stefano's scalp.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Four bodies were pulled from the Hatchie River after a 50-year-old U.S. highway bridge collapsed 45 miles north of Memphis, Tenn. At least seven people died when the bridge over U.S. highway 51 collapsed. The search for more victims continued but was hampered by bridge debris and muddy waters, said state Highway Patrol Lt. Larry Durham. The cause of the collapse was unknown.

INDIANA BRIEFS

A South Bend man was found dead in his apartment Saturday, St. Joseph County police said Sunday. A county police officer found the body of Robert Gibson, 66, on Saturday. He had apparently died of a gunshot wound to the head and massive bleeding, police said.

Jonathon Pollard is receiving $5,000 a month from Israel, according to the April 10 issue of Newsweek magazine. The former South Bend resident is currently serving a life sentence in federal prison in Illinois for stealing U.S. secrets for Israel. Each month $5,000 is put in an Israeli bank account for the former U.S. intelligence analyst, according to the article.

Two men escaped from the Steuben County jail in the northeast corner of Indiana before noon Saturday. Still at large is James Mizner, 21, of Jackson, Mich., who was awaiting trial on armed robbery charges. He was described as white, 5-foot-11, 150 pounds, with a slender build, green eyes, collar-length brown hair and a moustache. Search dogs lost his scent about 1:15 a.m. Sunday some four miles south of Angola, Ind. It was not known whether he was armed, said dispatcher Cindy Snyder. An Ohio man who escaped with Mizner, 19-year-old Randy Bowen, was captured about 10 p.m. Saturday. Bowen was awaiting trial on burglary and theft charges.

Giraffe Evie died Sunday morning in Evansville's Mesker Park Zoo some 11 hours after falling flat on her side, officials said. The 8-year-old female giraffe was taken to Purdue University in West Lafayette for an autopsy, Grannon said.

Censorship assumes many guises

Censorship is a dirty word.

One of the principles upon which the United States was founded is embodied in the First Amendment to the Constitution. "Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press..."

The history of America has been one remarkably free of infringement on the freedom of the press. The Supreme Court has drawn the line over which the government cannot cross in this area.

Freedom of the press has brought many benefits to the country. Some are major: the disclosure of Watergate and Iran-Contra; the uncovering of the Gary Hart/Donna Rice affair; and the Pentagon Papers, among others.

Freedom of the press has also allowed the media to influence public policy to a degree never expected by the Founding Fathers. The advent of television news, aside from dramatically altering other forms of media, directly affected the United States' policy in Vietnam. TV serves to weed out presidential candidates; in order to have a chance, a candidate must pass the test of the media.

Whether one considers these effects good or bad, freedom of the press has greatly opened up the freedom of information in American society. The media's freedom has encouraged the greatest development of democracy possible.

The Constitution's freedom of the press refers to government censorship and infringement. This type of censorship was the one most pressing to the Founding Fathers; it was, and is, present in many of the countries of the world.

However, there exist other forms of infringement of the press's freedom. One type is particularly important here, at Notre Dame. The University administration exercises a particular type of censorship, not based on the ability to threaten the editorial copy of a media source, but rather based upon an economic threat to a newspaper.

The Observer is a particularly good example of this, but is not alone among campus publications. Readers of The Observer might have noticed that, in the past year, no advertisements for alcohol have been on the pages of this paper.

'The University administration exercises a particular type of censorship.'

Matt Gallagher
Exec. News Editor

This was a result of a University Task Force report last fall. The report suggested, and the University decided, that no alcohol advertisements should run in campus publications.

It is true: this decision does not inhibit The Observer's editorial freedom; the paper can print anything it wants in its written copy, but not in its advertisements. The administration is not editing the copy of the paper, saying what can and cannot run.

The administration is, however, making a decision which directly affects what appears on the pages of The Observer. The Observer is not "The independent newspaper serving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's." Its independence is not total; control is exercised.

The University exercises a very real control over campus publications in one important respect: as a private university, the administration can prohibit distribution of publications on campus. In other words, a campus media source's freedom to print what it wants is limited by the University's freedom to ban that publication from campus.

I do not mean to suggest that the University has ever suggested such a course of action; to my knowledge, it has not. However, it is a very real threat.

ND China summer program cancelled

By KELLEY TUTHILL
Senior Staff Reporter

The Notre Dame summer program in Tianjin, China has been cancelled for this summer due to low enrollment.

Isabel Charles, associate provost and director of the foreign study program, said that the eight week program has been in place for five years and that this is the first time that it has been cancelled.

"I was surprised, but the trip has been questionable other years," said Charles. She said that the $3,000 cost of the program, while not exorbitant, may have been contributed to the low enrollment.

Another factor in the low enrollment may have been that students are not interested in going so far away, said Charles. She did say that 50 students have travelled to China on the program over the past five summers.

The program consists of six weeks of intensive language classes at the Tianjin Foreign Language Institute including lectures and tours that pertain to the Chinese culture, said Charles.

The final ten days consist of rail and air travel to Hong Kong and other points of interest in China, said Charles. The students earn six credit hours for this program.

She said that cancelling the program did not cost anything to the students who did sign up or to the University.

The two faculty members who normally accompany the students are Dian Murray, associate professor of history and Peter Moody, director of the Asian studies program.

The Groove takes first place in Nazz band competition

By JEFF SWANSON
Staff Reporter

The Groove took first place in the Nazz band competition held on March 18. The sixteen campus bands in the competition were judged on their enthusiasm, musical ability, and stage presence.

The annual Nazz competition was judged by sound engineers hired for the event. "The sound people were chosen to judge the event because we felt that they would be the most objective," said Mike Ford, musical entertainment commissioner for Student Union Board.

Over 100 participants in the 16 bands took part and approximately 200 to 300 listeners attended the Stepan Center event. "It went very well and the sound people did a good job considering the fact that there were sixteen bands," said band member Dave Geist.

The Nazz Competition is named after a twenty-four hour lounge called the Nazz which was located in the basement of LaFortune Student Center. It was closed by the administration when LaFortune was remodeled, said Ford. "SUB decided to name the event after the Nazz because musicians used to hang out and perform there," he said.

Catholics in Bad Standing took second place, After Hours third, Dead Horse fourth, and Boathouse Blues Band placed fifth.

Investigators say captain of Exxon Valdez admits drinking at mishap

Associated Press

VALDEZ, Alaska- The captain of the Exxon Valdez admitted drinking on board the tanker before it rammed a reef, investigators allege.

When the first investigator on the scene of the nation's worst-ever oil spill boarded the vessel and asked Capt. Joseph Hazelwood what the problem was, he replied, "I think you're looking at it," according to court documents.

ments.

The documents were filed in support of an arrest warrant issued for the captain Friday on state misdemeanor charges of operating a ship while under the influence of alcohol, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil.

Hazelwood remained at large Sunday as investigators continued to look for the cause of the spill, which now covers an area the size of Rhode Island.

The animal-rescue effort quickened as authorities kept an eye on a plume of oil headed for salmon fisheries and a national park more than 100 miles southwest of the accident site in once-pristine Prince William Sound.

Scientists and fishermen brought in oil-smeared otters in everything from airline dog cages to boxes hurriedly hammered together from plywood and chicken wire. A refrigerated trailer truck served as a morgue for dead otters and birds.

An estimated 10.1 million gallons spilled in the March 24 disaster and now cover parts of more than 1,000 square miles.

The captain lives in Huntington, N.Y. Peter Kelly, a spokesman for the Suffolk County, N.Y., police, said on Sunday, "We don't even know if he's in the state or not. He could be in Alaska or anywhere."

Affidavits filed in court said one of the first investigators to board the tanker, state Trooper Michael Fox, asked Hazelwood, 42, what the problem was. The captain replied, "I think you're looking at it," the court papers said.

The documents also said a prosecutor in Valdez, Leonard Linton, reported that the captain admitted he had been drinking on board the tanker before it went aground.

Hazelwood, the statement said, told troopers he had "one beer" in Valdez before going aboard.

Exxon officials said the company would not comment on the crew's actions.

"We got over 2000 students registered, so I think that we were pretty successful in that respect," Doyle said.

In respect to student services, Doyle stated that he and Paese made many steps in a positive direction.

"For example, student government got the 24-hour lounge started, and although it did not remain open, we have gotten the Administration to realize that it is a legitimate student need. This can only help things in the future," Doyle said.

"The Board of Trustee Reports were also an important step," said Doyle. "The reports dealt with aspects of student life like co-ed housing, transportation, and campus social life. The recommendations they made were designed to aid in the areas of student life where change is needed."

"We also laid groundwork in the way the reports are made and dealt with," said Doyle. "Constant contact was maintained with the Board of Trustees while the reports were being compiled, and we also received assurance from the Office of Student Affairs that they would follow up on the reports."

Student government had a good relationship with the University Administration, said Doyle, which helped facilitate the goals that student government had.

"Of course we disagreed with the Administration at times, but they were worked out in an orderly and cooperative manner," said Doyle.

"The most frustrating thing about the past year was how slowly things moved," Doyle said. "You want instant results all the time but have to realize that things don't happen that fast."

Haitian gov't. foils attempted coup

Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—The government said it foiled an attempt by rebel army officers Sunday to overthrow Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril. U.S. officials said loyal soldiers apparently rescued Avril as he was being driven away to be deported.

A government communique read over state-run television said "certain officers besieged" the palace "and attempted to overthrow the government."

Earlier, sources in Haiti said military commanders had ousted the 6-month-old government. It would have been the third coup in this Caribbean country in less than a year.

The communique did not explain how the plot was suppressed but said "Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril is in control of the situation and guarantees peace in the streets and the security of life and property."

It said he would address the nation on television later.

U.S. embassy spokeswoman Susan Clyde said reports indicated the coup attempt occurred about 4 or 5 a.m. and that Avril was detained for a time.

"But it appears that when he was being taken to the airport to be deported ... members of the presidential guard arrived at the airport and escorted him back to the palace to be president again," she said in a telephone interview from Port-au-Prince.

She said there was apparently no bloodshed during the ouster attempt and that the city was calm.

There was no word on the fate of the coup leaders, who included the army commander-in-chief, Maj. Gen. Herard Abraham. The attempt came four days after the discharge of four top army officers accused of drug trafficking.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dennis Harter said the situation in Haiti "remains fluid."

sure it wouldn't be a problem."

This is not the first time problems with the event have occurred. It was reinstated by former class president Pat Cooke for the 1986-87 school year after it had been permanently cancelled, several years before, largely due to problems with drinking on the part of some of the siblings, said Pasin.

The class of 1989 was permitted to hold the event, for that year only, with increased restrictions placed to curtail similar problems. An age restriction was imposed, allowing only siblings between the ages of 10 and 15 to participate, and they were also required to check in at the dorms each night.

"We didn't foresee a problem because last year it went so well," said Pasin.

Duels rock Beirut Sunday

Airport and home of U.S. ambassador are struck

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon—Shellfire hit Beirut's airport Sunday, and radio reports said the home of the U.S. ambassador was struck during fierce duels between Syrian gunners and Christian army units. Police reported 13 people were killed.

Thunderous explosions rocked Beirut in what authorities called the heaviest artillery duel since renewed fighting in the 14-year-old civil war erupted March 8.

Syrian and allied Druse gunners poured more than 8,000 rounds, at a rate of up to 100 per minute, on east Beirut and the Christian suburbs northeast of the city in 24 hours, a police spokesman said.

Christian soldiers of army commander Gen. Michel Aoun struck back with 155mm howitzers, firing at least 3,000 rounds on Syrian positions in Moslem west Beirut, the central mountains and east Lebanon's Bekaa valley, the spokesman said.

He said Christian gunners also blasted the Beirut-Damascus highway in the mountainous Dahr al-Baidar region in an apparent bid to block the way of Syrian tanks poised to roll into Beirut.

The spokesman, who cannot be named under standing rules, said eight people were killed and 20 wounded in the Christian side and five killed and seven wounded in Moslem west Beirut.

The confrontation has exacerbated a political crisis that created competing Christian and Moslem governments and split the army on sectarian lines.

"Have mercy on the helpless people," pleaded Acting Prime Minister Salim Hoss, who heads a mostly Moslem Cabinet vying for legitimacy with Aoun's Christian Cabinet.

"I appeal to all those pulling gun triggers to stop shooting at once, stop this bloodbath, stop this massacre," he said in an appeal broadcast by Moslem radio stations.

Aoun has declared a "war of liberation" against Syria, which has 40,000 troops in Lebanon and has become the country's main power broker during the civil war.

Sunday's Moslem fatalities included four soldiers stationed at Beirut airport in south Beirut, which was bombarded by Christian shellfire. Police said fires broke out at the airport, which was shut down 23 days ago because of the fighting.

Christian-controlled radio stations said shellfire struck U.S. Ambassador John McCarthy's residence, damaged by a Syrian shell on Tuesday, and the Brazilian Embassy near the presidential palace. But police said they could not confirm the report.

Telephone calls to McCarthy's residence and the Brazilian Embassy went unanswered.

Throughout Beirut and its suburbs, tens of thousands of residents remained huddled in underground shelters from nightfall Saturday, when the shelling duel started.

"I don't care who's fighting who or why," screamed Yolla Chaker, a Christian.

The territorial army, due to be dismantled in mid-May as part of a U.N. accord, suspended its demobilization process Sunday because of the fighting and began reassembling some units.

South African's foreign minister, Pik Botha, accused SWAPO of ordering hundreds of insurgents to cross into northern Namibia from Angola in violation of the U.N. agreement, which was reached in December.

On Saturday, Botha said his government might order the 1,000 U.N. troops in Namibia to leave if it was not satisfied with a U.N. response to the fighting.

SWAPO, which has waged a bush war for independence since 1966, accused South Africa of initiating the clashes and said its guerrillas "fired only in self-defense after being hunted down and attacked."

"It is the earnest desire of SWAPO to scrupulously observe the terms of the ceasefire agreement," SWAPO said in a statement from its headquarters in Angola. It did not explain why its fighters were inside Namibia.

Until Friday, there had been no fighting between South Africa and SWAPO for more than six months as both sides observed an informal truce.

SWAPO urged the United Nations to deploy more peacekeeping troops to monitor the truce "with seriousness and a sense of urgency." Thus far, only about 1,000 of the planned 4,650-member U.N. force is in Namibia as the territory prepares for elections in November.

This will be one of the first things Gorbachev will see when he arrives in Cuba Sunday on a four day visit with President Fidel Castro. The sign says "Welcome Comrade Mikhail Gorbachev."

Gorbachev in Cuba to visit Castro

Associated Press

HAVANA- Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev arrived Sunday in Cuba for talks with President Fidel Castro, who has criticized the Soviet leader's new pragmatic brand of communism.

Gorbachev's blue and white Aeroflot jetliner touched down at Havana's airport about 6 p.m. EDT and was greeted by cheering crowds.

Gorbachev was met by

Castro, and the two stood side by side on the tarmac as a military band played the anthems of their two countries.

In Havana, Gorbachev will hold lengthy discussions with Castro. Castro has criticized Gorbachev's pragmatic reforms, and Soviet officials have said they may reduce aid in the future to the Caribbean nation.

"We are going to discuss Fidel Castro's performance, just as he is going to discuss our own performance," Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told ABC-TV in an interview from Havana. "We will exchange views and experiences."

Gorbachev's two-hour stop to the politically neutral, staunchly Roman Catholic Ireland was the first by a Kremlin leader. It was Gorbachev's first overseas visit since a December trip to the United States.

Most ex-cons are soon rearrested

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- Nearly 63 percent of the inmates released from state prisons are rearrested for a serious crime within 3 years, according to a Justice Department study.

The department's Bureau of Justice Statistics examined the criminal records of more than 16,000 men and women who were among 109,000 offenders released from the prisons of 11 states in 1983.

It found that by the end of 1986, about 62.5 percent of the former inmates had been rearrested for a felony or serious misdemeanor, that 47 percent had been convicted of a new crime and 41 percent had been sent back to prison or jail.

Acting Bureau Director Joseph Bessette said the report, released late Sunday, represented "the most comprehensive and detailed ... recidivism study ever conducted."

It tracked the records of people released from prisons in California, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon and Texas.

According to projections from the sample - with a margin of error of plus or minus 1 percent - about 68,000 of the 109,000 people released in those states were rearrested within 3 years and charged with 326,000 new crimes, including 2,300 homicides, 17,000 robberies, 36,000 burglaries and 46,000 drug offenses.

Before their 1983 release, the inmates averaged more than 12 criminal charges each, and almost two-thirds had served previous jail or prison sentences. The bureau estimated that the prisoners released in the 11 states - representing more than half of those released nationwide - had been charged with a total of 1.7 million serious crimes throughout their lifetimes. About 265,000 of those were violent crimes.

Recidivism rates were highest for young prisoners and those with extensive prior records. An estimated 68 percent of those younger than 25 at the time of their release were rearrested within 3 years, compared to 40 percent for those 45 or older. Almost 79 percent of the former inmates with 11 or more previous arrests were rearrested in the study period, compared to 38 percent for first-time offenders.

A whopping 94 percent of those younger than 25 who had 11 or more prior arrests were rearrested.

Recidivism rates were highest during the first year of release, with 25 percent of the former prisoners rearrested within 6 months and 40 percent within 1 year.

Former inmates were frequently rearrested for the same offense for which they had been imprisoned in the first place.

Ethics investigation of Wright to resume

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- The ethics investigation of House Speaker Jim Wright resumes behind closed doors this week as Congress returns from its Easter recess to deal with that touchy matter and some major legislation, including a raise in the minimum wage.

The House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is scheduled to resume its private deliberations Tuesday. The 12-member panel - six Democrats and six Republicans - has been laboriously discussing dozens of areas where its outside counsel has found possible rules violations, according to sources familiar with the probe.

The uncertainty surrounding Wright, and whether he will be able to withstand whatever political damage results from the panel's findings, will likely continue for at least another week; the committee has tentatively scheduled meetings into the week of April 10.

The case, involving charges that Wright abused his office for financial gain, has been in the investigation phase since last June. The ethics committee spent three weeks hearing presentations by its outside counsel and by Wright's lawyer, and put in another three days deliberating the charges before the Easter break.

The committee reportedly has focused most of its attention on a book deal on which Wright made $55,000 in royalties, his use of a Fort Worth condominium at below-market rental rates and his dealings with business partner George Mallick.

House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said on national television Sunday the House is "going to have a long and difficult spring" and repeated his prediction that Wright will be out as speaker by June.

But House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., countered that he is confident Wright will be cleared of any wrongdoing.

Meanwhile, Wright over the weekend denied a report by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, which quoted an unnamed source as saying 100 potential violations were cited in the investigative report. "It is absolutely absurd to suggest that I have broken House rules on 100 occasions," Wright said in a letter to the paper.

In the Senate, lawmakers resume debate Tuesday on legislation that would require President Bush to appoint an emergency board that would have up to 26 days to suggest a way to end the Eastern Airlines strike.

The measure, favored by organized labor, cleared the House last month with heavy Democratic support. But Bush has threatened to veto the bill, and both sides say it is unlikely to pass by a veto-proof, two-thirds margin.

The Senate also is scheduled to take up legislation to increase the minimum wage, frozen at $3.35 an hour since 1981, to $4.65 over three years.

The Democrat-backed bill is more generous than a version advanced by Bush, which would peg the new rate at $4.25. The president also wants a lower sub-minimum wage - opposed by Democrats - which could be paid to employees during their first half-year of work.

The House passed a compromise version two weeks ago that would boost base pay to $4.55 and allow a two-month sub-minimum rate.

Holtz's endorsement out of place

By JAY FARRAHER

I decided back in January that I would put together a ticket for senior class office. I knew that elections would be held in March and that with a lot of hard work and an equal amount of good fortune, I would have at least an average shot in my campaign endeavor. Well, as fate would have it, my ticket for senior class office did not fare as well as I had hoped. Despite the polling results, I have no regrets, and, as I'm sure my parents would say, the whole experience was some sort of "character builder." Discussing the details of my campaign, however, is not the point of my writing this article.

I think it is only fair to say from the very start of this article that I have the greatest respect for the two tickets which ran against me in the senior class elections. Any further mention of them is done in order for the story to be told properly and is not an attempt to discredit their platforms or campaigns in any way. For days prior to the first round of voting for class office, rumors flew around campus that Coach Lou Holtz was going to endorse the senior class ticket of Rod West and Pat Eilers (known to a lot of people as "the football ticket")— primarily because both of these men are members of the Notre Dame football team). To say the least, I was shocked to hear this rumor. I was able to calm myself down by reasoning that the coach would never do anything such as endorsing a ticket— he must realize how influential his endorsement would be on this campus and how unfair such an action would be.

At 8 p.m. on Tuesday, March 21, 1989, the evening before the run-off elections, St. Edward's Hall invited Coach Lou Holtz to be the feature speaker at that night's forum. Prior to addressing his views about the Notre Dame football team's past and future season, Lou Holtz publicly endorsed the ticket of Rod West and Pat Eilers for senior class office. Paraphrasing the coach's words, he said, "I have known these players for some time now, and I think they would make excellent class officers, and they'll do a find job." Loosely translated, "Juniors, vote West/Eilers tomorrow." I could not believe it! In front of a couple hundred people Lou Holtz, who to many on this campus is second only to God, made a public endorsement of a candidate. For once, a campus rumor had come true.

Anyone who has ever heard Coach Holtz speak will attest to the fact that he has almost a magical way of making you feel good about yourself and your future, as well as Notre Dame and her national champion football team. Needless to say, by the time it came for questions and answers, the audience was in the palm of the coach's hand. In concluding his talk, the coach again urged all the people in the room to support the West/Eilers ticket. As one person said as he exited, "If everyone in that room had to vote right at this very moment, Rod West and Pat Eilers would be the new senior class president and vice-president." How unfair, I thought, for the other ticket in the run-off, Rey/King, to have such an influential figure endorse the opposing ticket. How unprofessional, I thought, for a staff member to publicly meddle in a student election.

I followed the coach to his car and proceeded to explain to him that I thought it was very unfair of him to use his influence with the student body in such a way as to influence people's votes. I argued that when a student seeks office he or she must work very diligently to put together ideas for a platform, print up posters and campaign door to door. When a candidate appears at your door, he or she should be there seeking your support based upon their merit. Candidates are running on who they are and what they have done, not on how popular they are or who has said they like them.

I proceeded to tell Mr. Holtz that his action, in principle, was not fair to those other tickets which had put in the time and effort to fare well in the elections. As was his prerogative, coach Holtz disagreed with me 100 percent. He claimed that the students of Notre Dame love football players but have a negative attitude towards them as student government participants. The coach said that he wanted to help dispel that attitude and to insure the student body that, if elected, Rod West and Pat Eilers would have plenty of time to devote to class office despite their commitment to the football team. "Football players are working against a terrible disadvantage in this respect," he said.

I will not argue that there may be people who have claimed that they did not think that an "athletic ticket" would be able to effectively balance their studies, athletic endeavors, and leadership commitments. But, to play devil's advocate, what about all the notoriety an athlete gets in the press, never mind how much attention a member of a National Championship football team must get. And lets face it— in politics, name recognition means a lot. So one could say that these two facets kind of balance each other out. I still do not see the justification in Holtz's argument that he is trying to give his football players a better name. If Rod West and Pat Eilers are qualified for the position of senior class officers, they will be able to convey that theme when they campaign.

The coach and I parted, neither one of us any more convinced of the other's point of view than before. By approaching coach Holtz, I was attempting to express a belief that, as far as campaigns here at Notre Dame are concerned, they are run by and for the students, and only students should have an input into the decision-making process. People in positions similar to that of Coach Lou Holtz, whose name draws people's interest, should refrain from active participation in campus elections. It is blatantly unprofessional for any staff member, faculty member, or administrator to become publicly involved in a student campaign.

Upon leaving, coach Holtz said to me, "If you don't agree with what I have done, why don't you go talk to someone who can do something about it." And so I make my appeal to others on this campus; members of the faculty, sports coaches, administrators, and rectors, who have the power to sway votes— don't! Let the candidates do their own campaigning; let their character and ability shine through. And student voters, please don't base your vote upon the sex or group a candidate belongs to— vote based upon the candidate's ability to do the best job possible.

EDITORIAL

No student input is not neighborly

No amount of student complaining is going to reverse the decision to rezone the Northeast Neighborhood. The water passed over the dam in October, 1988, when the ordinance rezoning the area from multi-family to single-family homes was passed.

Now is not the time for input from the more than 800 Notre Dame students living in the Northeast Neighborhood or for the University to intervene. Students should have known about the rezoning when it was first proposed, not five months after the fact.

Laying blame now, however, is not constructive. Let the omissions of the past stand as lessons for the future. The students who live in the Northeast Neighborhood should have been aware of rezoning plans.

Student government and the campus media also should have known about a possible rezoning. The University, which clearly knew about the rezoning, should have notified students about it.

Notre Dame's Director of Community Relations Jim Roemer said he told Father David Tyson about the rezoning immediately after he learned of the plan. If the matter was important enough for the Office of Student Affairs to know, why weren't students in the Northeast Neighborhood notified?

The effects of the rezoning will become apparent in a few years, when students will no longer be able to rent houses in the area. The Northeast Neighborhood, according to Roemer, wants "a healthy mix, ethnically and demographically." Reading between the lines, the Northeast Neighborhood wants students out.

But students in the Northeast Neighborhood are partly responsible for their lack of input in the rezoning process. The South Bend Tribune, which most area residents read, reported the rezoning plans, though The Observer did not. The University should have told the students but did not. The students should have been more involved in the neighborhood but were not.

The moral of the Northeast Neighborhood story is simple: to be heard in your community, take an interest in it.

Year of Sexual Perversity coming

By SARA MARLEY

The 198990 school year has been declared the Year of Sexual Perversity, University President Father Edward Malloy announced Sunday.

"Now that we've gotten to appreciate each other through the Year of Cultural Diversity, let's really get to know each other," said Malloy.

In conjunction with the Year of Sexual Perversity, parietals have been abolished, Malloy said.

Vice President of Student Affairs Father David Tyson is enthusiastic about the upcoming year.

"Let's just all loosen up and have some fun," said Tyson.

"We don't want to see any of those tame Bookstore team names either," said Tyson. Team names which do not contain sexual innuendos will be censored, he said.

Events planned for next year include lectures by Dr. Ruth Westheimer, Geraldo Rivera, Jimmy Swaggart and John Tower.

A series of workshops will be held on premarital sex, contraception, bondage, bestiality, and sadomasochism, Tyson announced.

Non-varsity Athletics has gotten in on the Year of Sexual Perversity by announcing a change in format in the annual "LNO." Renamed "Late Night Orgy," the event will be held in the South "Pleasure" Dome of the JACC.

Also in celebration of the Year of Sexual Perversity, condom dispensers have been installed in all restrooms on campus.

"We saw the need for an awareness of safe sex, particularly at the freshman 'meat market,' Theodores. These students are especially impressive," said Malloy.

Likewise, in an effort to bring more sexually active and perverse students to campus, mirrors have been installed on the ceilings of all rooms in the so-called "Mod Quad" dorms.

For an additional fee, students may request a room with a queen-sized water bed, soundproof walls and audiovisual equipment.

Student Union Board jumps on the bandwagon of sexual perversity by sponsoring an X-rated film fest.

"We felt we were losing too many perverse students and faculty to the art films at the Annenberg Auditorium," said an SUB super secret under-commissioner of the Ad Hoc Film Committee.

Director of University Food Services Bill Hickey has planned special dining hall meals featuring aphrodisiacs and videos entitled "Sexual Fun with Food."

The Hammes Bookstore will offer a new line of National Championship lingerie and blue and gold whips, chains and handcuffs.

The LaFortune deli will carry edible underwear in the future.

Security apprehends 'great Grotto candle caper' thief

By KELLEY TUTHILL
Liver quiverer

Notre Dame Security apprehended a male student on Friday for repeatedly lighting large candles at the Grotto while only donating $.25, not the requested $1.00.

"We received an anonymous phone call on Easter Sunday," said Phil Johnson, assistant director of security, "The caller reported a young male who she saw placing a quarter in the donation box and lighting a large candle," said Johnson.

Since Sunday, security officers have been staking out the Grotto in nearby trees. The officers, equipped with binoculars, carefully watched visitors at the Grotto to see if they could notice any strange behavior, said Johnson.

"Because of the sacredness of our Grotto the officers did their best to remain inconspicuous while looking for the individual that would commit such an absurd crime," said Johnson. He added that this crime is particularly terrible because the money donated goes to charity.

According to Johnson, security officers spotted the suspect on two separate occasions. The student was spotted wearing a long dark trench coat and sunglasses on Tuesday night by security officers who were disguised as worshipping monks. Security was unable to apprehend the student at that time.

The student was apprehended by two security officers on Friday when an officer clearly saw the student place a quarter into the donation box and proceed to light a large candle, said Johnson.

"We's tried to keep da 'ho thing quiet as there wuz lots 'o peoples prayin' and stuff down there (by the Grotto)," said Billy Bob Redneck, security officer. "Nothin' like this eva happen'd when I's worked at A & M," said Brown.

Security has since turned the student over to John Goldrick, associate vice president for residence life, for disciplinary action. "I am appalled that a Notre Dame student would stoop to such levels," said Goldrick. "I can assure you that stiff disciplinary action will be taken."

Goldrick would not specify the exact punishment, but he did say that Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs, will supervise the student in his penance at Sacred Heart.

Drink until you puke

The Absurder is our pseudo-annual lampoon of some of the "sacred cows" on campus. It is meant to be a joke.

NO BRIEFS

Why are we late with our annual joke issue, one might ask? In the spirit of giving, The Absurder decided to hold up its publication over the weekend to allow our fellow campus publications the chance to print their joke issues. Congratulations go out to our rival publications Common Sense, Juggler and Humanitas for putting out their joke issues, not just in April, but throughout the academic year. -The Absurder

Common Sense is celebrating its two year, one month and ten day anniversary. You've come a long way, baby, from an eight page issue coming out every two months, filled with biased, slanted articles to a sixteen page issue coming out every two months, filled with biased, slanted articles. -The Absurder

The flooding problem on campus is the subject of a report issued by the Ad Hoc Committee on Making Notre Dame a Dry Campus. The report, issued last week, said the sidewalks have sunk lower than the Office of Student Activities. Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson, a member of the committee, said only "I thought we were addressing the alcohol problem again." -The Absurder

Another ticket scandal erupted last week, this time at Saint Mary's. Reminiscent of last semester's "Great Bush Ticket Fiasco," hundreds of students protested when they were closed out of the Gwendolyn Brooks poetry reading. "There was a reactionary plot by a bunch of right-wing English literature students to keep us engineers out," said a seventh-year aerospace/psychology/finance/market-ingCAPP/PLSHonors/PPE major. -The Absurder

Another rezoning plan was announced today by the Northeast Neighborhood Housing Service. The proposed plan, currently before Mayor Joe Kernan, would rezone the entire Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses to single-family residential, with NO grandfather clause. Apparently Student Government was aware of this planned change, but made no moves to inform the Administration. "Hey, they can read the South Bend Trib, too," said Student Body President Tom Doyle. University President Father Edward Malloy, in reaction to the plan, said "Hey, it's no problem. We're just like a family-- the Notre Dame family. We treat the students like infants." -The Absurder

I love Notre Dame and its benevolent policies

Mark McLaughlin
Back from Student Affairs

I have seen the light! After my last couple of columns, I got a call from His Holiness John Goldrick. He sent me to this place where men in little white coats attacked me with cattle prods. They were mean and they kept attacking me . . . the pain . . . MOMMY! HELP-

Sorry. As I was saying, I had a nice interview with a nice man in a white coat. He explained to me how the benevolent, omnipotent, and all-loving Holy Cross Priesthood had set up Notre Dame for our own good.

And now I have seen the light! Notre Dame, you see, has been in the hands of the University President since Father Edward Sorin told his disciples: "If you forgive students' sins, they shall be forgiven. If you hold students' sins bound, they are expelled." His holy mission has been handed down through the ages from president to president.

Women are treated as second-class citizens because Father Sorin, in his benevolent wisdom, didn't name a woman president. If he had wanted to have women in the Notre Dame hierarchy, he would have named one president.

Besides, they turn into gremlins after midnight (two on weekends).

And homosexuals and other deviants aren't treated as citizens because none of them have been president either.

Notre Dame's off-campus policy is part of the Grand Plan as well. We don't have any restaurants or bars near campus because they are dens of iniquity and evil. People can eat meat on Fridays there and thereby sin. Worse yet, they could relax with a few beers and then instantly get out of control, killing children, raping women and taking the name of the Lord in vain. Alcohol is the root of all evil, I always say.

It's a good thing the University makes us take Foundations of Christianity, too. Us simple students with such mediocre GPAs and SATs would have a hard time thinking without being told how to think in this fine survey course covering such a wide range of religious issues.

And the food! In my former heathen state I thought the food was horrible here. Silly me. The food is actually deliberately the same everyday so that Notre Dame can do its part in fighting obesity, cholesterol buildup, and that disgusting display of muscle and skin so prevalent at large state schools. It prevents us from overindulgence, and of course, moderation is a virtue! Except for evil alcohol, of course.

But the most profoundly decent thing the University does for us is made manifest every month or so, when the Holy Cross Fathers and their lay help in the Dome make manifest their wisdom in new Task Forces, Directives, and dedicated Years. They hand down their pronouncements without troubling us with needless debate and discussion. I'm glad we traded in our parents for the Notre Dame family. They have God on their side.

In fact, I'm sure this Year of Sexual Perversity is for our own good. They will let us see the error in our ways, then they will return us to the Notre Dame Blue and Gold Road. Oh, how lucky we are to be here!

Cheer, cheer for old Notre Dame . . .

Hot tubs and orgies in Fawn Hall

Robyn Simmons
John Blasi
accidental couple of the week

The Absurder has named Fawn Hall Brothel of the Week in light of its lascivious activities. The administration was interested in testing out some of its latest policy changes on one dorm, and Fawn Hall was the result.

Because the Knights of Columbus had been disbanded by the University last semester, their former clubhouse provided a natural spot for experimental housing. Students were quick to volunteer, and the clubhouse was transformed into Fawn Hall.

Fawn Hall has had an Open House Policy that allows anything to live as a resident in the dorm. "We have tried not to discriminate on the basis of sex, sexual preference, or species. I think we've had a lot of fun so far," said Fawn's androgynous rector/ess, former Mayflower Madam, Sidney Biddle Barrows.

Rooms are "co-ed by bed." Parietals have been retained, but never result in expulsion in order to keep the excitement of breaking parietals. One resident, scantily clad in sheer lingerie, commented on the seemingly contradictory policy change: "I like to break parietals. It makes me feel naughty."

Because of the new mandates, bathrooms are co-ed and include contraceptive dispensers. Hot tubs have been installed in the study lounges on the first floor. Swimsuits are optional.

Fawn Hall's foodsales were expanded recently to include strawberry-flavored whipped cream, motion lotion, edible underwear, push-up pops, frozen bananas, and electric bomb pops. Hot fudge and chocolate-covered cherries were also added to the menu.

Cosmopolitan magazine has donated a free subscription to each of the residents of Fawn Hall in honor of the Year of Sexual Perversity. Helen Gurdy Brown, editor of Cosmo, said, "I'm both pleased and shocked by the residents of Fawn. I believe they represent the quintessential Cosmo reader: the lover looking for shallow relationships and cheap thrills!"

As part of the Open House Policy, Fawn Hall has implemented a novel variation of "Room Picks." Every Sunday after brunch, residents gather for "Bed Picks." Singles, doubles, and triples are available for freshmen and sophomores, while more experi-

It's even better than Section Porns."

Paese plans to initiate bigger and better social activities for Fawn Hall. "From now on, SYRs will be observed in the most literal sense," he said, "We will sponsor a Screw Your Roommate orgy on all home football weekends. They'll be BYOBC (Bring Your Own Birth Control)."

What subliminal campaign?

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN
Has-been

The Absurder was accused last month by the Notre Dame administration of running a vicious "subliminal message" campaign to convert the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's into normal alcohol-conscious students.

"There's nothing to this rumor," said Absurder First Citizen Chris <sup>drink beer</sup> Donnelly. "It has been consistently proven that advertising influences brand choice but doesn't increase drinking. Without a doubt."
But Ann Firth <sup>drink beer</sup> and some other officials disagreed. "That whole newspaper does nothing but <sup>drink beer</sup> shamelessly promote alcohol," Firth said. "They are trying to corrupt good little Catholic boys and girls and I won't have it."

The powers of subliminal <sup>drink beer</sup> advertising have been debated in academic circles for years. Said Professor of Psychology Dan Lapsley: "Look at all those <sup>drink beer</sup> cigarette advertisements in the 50s and 60s. Those sure didn't affect me. I only smoke <sup>drink beer</sup> two or three packs a day."

Sexual perversity-- What does it mean? How does one become sexually perverse? What does it mean to be sexually perverse? Can only Domers be sexually perverse, and only in the '89-'90 academic year? What happens when the Year of Sexual Perversity has come and gone? Everyone will be doing it, but be sure to do it to them before they do it to you.

Never fear, sexual perversity is here

Dear Editor:
How many times have you returned from break after visiting other major universities and wondered if Notre Dame would ever be able to match the standards those other schools set?
Weep no more, kiddies, the year of Sexual Perversity is here.
No longer will Notre Dame be the object of scorn and ridicule from schools more perverse than we. Now we can show them Notre Dame will not be out-perverted by any other school at any other price.
Creation of the Perversity Institute was the necessary first step in the scientific study of the many different and exciting forms of sexual perversity. Unfortunately, the Perversity Institute's square footage may not be so massive at first, due to lack of funding, but we all know that size isn't the issue.

Perversity not welcomed at ND

Dear Editor:
The Year of Sexual Perversity has succeeded in raising the proportion of sexual abnormalities at Notre Dame to an alarmingly high level. It is appalling for a University with such a morally upright position to have deviated from the long, narrow path of sexual good standing. ## Sutton takes over for Digger

Former Kentucky coach to ensure program's integrity

By JOHN SMITH
Steve Garvey's son

Notre Dame athletic director Dick Rosenthal stunned the college basketball world Sunday by firing veteran coach Digger Phelps and replacing him with former Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton.

Rosenthal, who did not inform Phelps of his decision until five minutes before the formal announcement, honored the 18-year Irish coach during the press conference.

"I tell you, Eddie Sutton would be the first to tell you he couldn't carry Digger's water bucket," said Rosenthal. "However, I never would have left the banking profession if I didn't know Eddie Sutton would be my coach in a couple of years."

"We want to make sure the Notre Dame basketball program can be at the level of the Kentucky program, both academically and athletically."

Upon his appointment as head coach, Sutton announced that he was hiring former Kentucky assistant Dwayne Kasey to his staff. Since leaving the University of Kentucky under pressure, Kasey had been working at Emery, Inc., as the representative in charge of making sure things don't fall out of packages in the mail.

Sutton's star-studded assistant coaching staff at Notre Dame also will include Larry Brown, who led Kansas to the national championship in 1988 before leaving for the NBA's San Antonio Spurs.

"I finally feel like I'm home," said an excited Brown. "I know this is where I've belonged all these years."

Brown, who has been known to leave coaching positions with regularity, emphasized he intended to stay at Notre Dame for the rest of his career.

"Eddie and I are staying right here until we get this school on probation, I mean, to the national championship," said Brown.

After the press conference, Sutton and Brown headed to the nearest truck stop to hire the rest of their assistants.

"We want to make sure we have a bunch of truck drivers as our assistants, as long as they have sons with talent who are almost out of high school," said Sutton.

Phelps still is mulling over future options, which include participating in next week's Fischhoff National Chamber Music Competition.

"A lot of people knew me as the Notre Dame basketball coach," said Phelps, "but not many of you know about my great appreciation for classical music."

Phelps also has applied for the open coaching position at Butler vacated by the resignation of Joe Sexton. Phelps' endorsement contract with Sprite is contingent on his staying at a university in Indiana.

"I think I could create a lot of Butler moments over there," said Phelps, "and I could continue my own personal rivalry with Valparaiso."

Digger Phelps ponders his future after the announcement.

'Hate Miami' hype won't compare to this

With all the hype surrounding the biggest game of the year on the Notre Dame football team's 1989 schedule, Head Coach Lou Holtz held a special press conference Saturday to respond to all the requests for his views on the upcoming Nov. 11 battle.

Football Cliffnotes

"Southern Methodist is a fine, fine football team," said Holtz. "And their coach is an awfully fine football coach. I think Forrest Gregg's track record at Green Bay speaks for itself."

"Keep in mind that it's just a football game. But it's a game you'll remember for the rest of your life, and a game you have to live with for the rest of your life. This is what Notre Dame is all about."

"I think the University of Southern Methodist is a better football team than last year," Holtz continued, "probably one of the top three or four football teams in the country. I see people saying we don't have a chance, and looking at the two teams, I might be inclined to agree with them, except for one thing—on a given Saturday we do have a chance. We can win this football game."

Betting dooms O'Sullivan

By MIKE JOHNSON
Another son of Steve Garvey

Former Notre Dame golf coach Noel O'Sullivan has received a five-year prison sentence for his participation in a multi-million dollar sports gambling ring.

O'Sullivan left the courthouse mumbling to himself something that sounded vaguely like, "Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Notre Dame."

Throughout his 15-year tenure at Notre Dame, which ended last season, O'Sullivan placed bets on Irish football games

"He would call one of us up and say to us, 'Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Notre Dame,'" said a source from Alumni Hall. "For some reason, he thought one of us would know who we could contact to place a bet."

O'Sullivan also allegedly had betting contacts in his popular freshman physical education classes. He like to announce his prediction for the upcoming Notre Dame football game each week.

"I always used to think he was just predicting the games for fun," said Lisa Edwards, a Notre Dame sophomore and daughter of Steve Garvey who took O'Sullivan's golf lessons in phys ed last year. "Then I started noticing one funny-looking guy in a suit was always there taking notes furiously."

"Then, every Monday, that guy in the suit was always giving Coach something in an envelope, and Coach would start saying 'Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Notre Dame,' with a big smile on his face."

Despite Keith Tower's efforts, Elmer Bennett of the Notre Dame varsity freeze-tag team mistakenly un-freezes a Louisville player in Sunday's game. LaPhonso Ellis' 24 tags while "it" were not enough for the Irish as the Cardinals won 96-72.

'Chances Are'

MICHELLE BERNINGER
Accent Copy Editor

How would you like to awaken one morning only to remember a past life? All those new places and new people that seem so coincidentally familiar are actually part of a life you lived years ago. But what if those "years ago" equal a mere 20 years, and you realize that your girlfriend is your daughter and her mother is your wife from that previous life?

It also depicts not just the usual 'love triangle,' but instead, more of a ridiculous 'love rectangle.'

In the midst of numerous popular movies presently showing in the theatres, "Chances Are" explores such a predicament in a modern story of reincarnation. Bearing a resemblance to the late 1970s film, "Heaven Can Wait," the Lobell/Bergman Production for Tri-Star humorously presents the notion of life and love not ending with death, but continuing and changing form.

When Louie Jeffries (Christopher McDonald), a newlywed Washington, D.C.

attorney, is fatally hit by a car, he annoys the "officials" in heaven just enough to get sent back to Earth much sooner than usual. The only problem occurs when, in his haste to return to life, Louie doesn't receive the proper "innoculation of forgetfulness" administered so the reincarnated will not remember their past lives.

Twenty years later, Louie, now reborn as recent Yale graduate, Alex Finch (Robert Downey, Jr.), unknowingly finds his way back to the Georgetown home of his past wife, Corinne (Cybill Shepherd) and the daughter he never knew, Miranda (Mary Stuart Masterson). Miranda, also a student at Yale, has met Alex at the Yale library just a short time earlier.

The bulk of the plot involves Alex's realization of his past identity and his attempts to convince Corinne and Miranda of his reincarnation. It also depicts not just the usual "love triangle," but instead, more of a ridiculous "love rectangle." At first, Alex falls in love with Miranda, but upon realizing that he is actually her father, falls in love with Corinne once again. Miranda, however, remains hopelessly in love with her fellow Yale, although unable to interpret the true meaning of his sudden protective attitude towards her.

Robert Downey, Jr., and Cybill Shepherd star in Tri-Star Pictures' romantic comedy "Chances Are," in which Downey discovers he was married to his girlfriend's mother in another life.

As if things aren't confusing enough already, it becomes evident that Louie's best friend, Philip Train (Ryan O'Neal), loves and has always loved Corinne, but has never been quite able to express his feelings.

Downey is, without a doubt, the savior of the film. His actions are as spontaneously humorous as those of Chevy Chase in "Fletch," and he is convincingly able to play two characters in one.

For the majority of the movie, Shepherd deviates little from the determined and rather uptight character she portrayed in her "Moonlighting" days. Yet within a single day, her actions change from those of a mature business woman still tormented by her husband's death, to those of a teenager in love, strolling hand-in-hand with Alex and accidentally wearing mismatched clothing.

As for the other two, O'Neal and Masterson, their parts are as mediocre and limited as their displays of acting talent. O'Neal plays a sensitive ace reporter for The Washington Post. Despite his good looks, however, he comes off as a bit of a geek, too spineless to admit his feelings even after 20 years—that is, until his competition comes along.

Masterson's part is so limited that any outstanding acting abilities which she might possess are obscured within the confines of the script. Miranda is seen as a young intellectual who is somewhat socially immature, and the audience is kept in the dark as to what she really thinks about what is happening around her.

For such a bizarre mix of leading characters, and quite an unrealistic plot, "Chances Are" does not fail to elicit laughs. It is a harmless romantic comedy, and it's corny, yet chances are, you'll be entertained.

'Live-In' should move out of CBS' new lineup

CBS has a thing about Australia. The network's first attempt to "cash in" on the Australian mystique spawned by "Crocodile Dundee" was "Dolphin Cove." While the show is ridiculous, it at least provides a reasonable albeit an absurd one—for its Australian locale. CBS' newest Australia-related fiasco is "Live-In," a show as dopey and dull as Australia is south of the equator.

"Live-In" airs on CBS Mondays at 7:00. The show features the talented young star Chris Young as Danny, the oldest boy in a family that hires an Australian live-in housekeeper, Lisa (Lisa Patrick). Ed (Hugh Maguire) and Sarah (Kimberly Farr) are Danny's parents and Peter (David Moscow) is his wisecracking brother.

It seems the creators of this show tuned into "Growing Pains," liked the blossoming romance between Mike and the Seavers' new housekeeper, and decided to make a show of it. In theory, this insignificant premise may have seemed feasible. In actuality, however, it holds a show together as well as the adhesive on Post-It notes. Also, there is no reason whatsoever that Lisa be Australian—besides the attempt to take advantage of America's recent fascination with residents of that country. Yet, even if the live-in were Moses himself, he couldn't lead this show to the Promised Land.

In addition to the barely present premise, the show lacks comedy (that somewhat important element usually contained in a TV sitcom). Peter's sarcasm is pathetic—not witty. When Danny tells Peter that Ed intends to buy the older son a car, the younger brat replies, "He may be old, but he's not stupid." Gee, could anyone have predicted that comeback?

In the same episode, which centers on Danny's passing his driver's test (another of the shows' attempts at originality), Ed explains Danny's driving ability: "He's a great driver; he's a lousy stopper." Maybe Danny should drive through an obstacle course and stop as close to an egg as possible for practice. (What? "The Brady Bunch" did it already? That wouldn't stop this show.)

Finally, the producers portray these parents as idiots. Maybe Steven Spielberg can pull that off, but this show cannot. Besides, the American public deserves better.

"Live-In" is an absurd, dreary situation comedy. The premise is silly—not to mention a cliché; the characters are two-dimensional. Even the traditional "touching moments" cannot put the bounce back in this kangaroo's jump. Of the house that is CBS, this "Live-In" should move out.

Stay Tuned: ABC will air a two-hour "Odd Couple" reunion movie next season. It will star both Jack Klugman and Tony Randall. If the film does well, ABC plans to air several "Odd Couple" films a season. This week's episode of "Dallas" takes viewers to Austria and Russia, where J.R. and Cally are taking a honeymoon, to set up this season's cliffhanger. On "Dynasty," watch for Sable to find out she is pregnant.

ND softball splits pair of twinbills

By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer

The women's softball team raised their record to 11-9 by picking up two wins last Friday and dropping a pair of games on Saturday.

The Irish started their eight game homestand on a good note by rolling over the Ramblers of Loyola on both ends of a doubleheader, 5-1 and 12-2. Missy Linn pitched a complete game in the first contest to record another victory, striking out five and allowing only four hits.

Despite not having any extra base hits, the Irish hit well. Laurie Sommerlad continued to excell at the lead off position, going three for four in the first game and driving in two of Notre Dame's runs. Marie Liddy was a perfect two for two and also drove in a run.

"In the first game we came out and established ourselves," said head coach Brian Boulac. "We played extremely well, and Missy pitched an exceptionally fine game."

The second game was an easy win for the team as they took advantage of Loyola's wild pitcher who surrendered eight walks and eight wild pitches. Boulac started some new faces and they did not disappoint him, scoring 12 runs.

Dawn Boulac was one for two, driving in two runs and scoring another. Monica Heller, Mia Faust, Terri Proksch and Stephanie Nomura also collected RBIs for Notre Dame.

The most important aspect of the game from Boulac's point of view was that Barb Mooney won the game, and hopefully is back on track for the team. Amy Raczkowski also pitched and inning so that Linn did not have to pitch at all in the second game.

The second game against Loyola ran for only five innings, and was called because of the 'ten-run rule' and because of darkness.

The Irish were hoping for the same success on Saturday that they enjoyed against Loyola as they played Wisconsin-Green Bay in a doubleheader, but it was not to be. Wisconsin, one of the strongest teams in the midwest, played tough and swept Notre Dame by scores of 2-0 and 6-5.

It was not hitting but pitching that doomed the Irish in the first game. Jodi Radies, the Wisconsin pitcher, shut Notre Dame out while pitching a complete game. The Irish had only three hits.

Meanwhile, Wisconsin took advantage of two miscues by Notre Dame players. Starting pitcher Linn hit a batter, and the batter later scored. Another player reached on an error and also scored, accounting for both Wisconsin runs.

The doubleheader on Sunday against McHenry College was cancelled due to injuries on the opposing team, but the Irish still have two games scheduled today against neighbors to the north, Southwest Michigan. The game will take place at 3:30 on the softball diamond behind the Eck Pavillion.

ND tennis falls to Ball State

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

MUNCIE --During the three-hour ride home on Saturday night to South Bend, Irish head coach Bob Bayliss turned to his team and said, "Remember how losing like this feels because you are not going to feel this way for a long time."

Nobody knows if they will feel this way soon or not but one thing is for sure, the Notre Dame men's tennis team will not soon forget their disappointing 7-2 loss to Ball St. Moreover, the squad will not soon forget that in a little over an hour of play the 15-9 Irish were down an insurmountable 3-0 deficit, dropping all three doubles' contests. Because of the absence of one-half of the No. 1 doubles teams, Mike Wallace, Bayliss was forced to scramble his lineup.

"I don't believe in making a big deal about Wallace's absence," said Bayliss. "You have to play with the people that are able to play. Losing the first three matches put us on the defensive. I didn't think it was impossible to win the match, but everybody walked on the court with a little extra pressure."

The makeshift No. 1 duo of Dave DiLucia-Walter Dolhare who is ranked No. 31 in the nation was suprised by the un-ranked Cardinal duo of John Nobel and Stefano Demarchi gruelling three set contest, 4-6, 6-2, 4-6.

"Losing No. 1 doubles really suprised me," said a stunned Bayliss. "I expected to win at No.1, and be competitive in the other two matches. It was the first time will played doubles first. This wasn't a normal doubles lineup but that it isn't a good excuse."

The only two Irish victories came at the No. 1 and No. 2 slots. Despite a sub-par performance, No. 1 Dave DiLucia earned a straight-set win over John Nobel, 6-3, 7-5. For the No. 51 player in collegiate tennis, it was his 20th consecutive complete singles victory. At the No. 2 position, junior Walter Dolhare rebounded from dropping the first set to win in decisive fashion in three sets, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, over the Cardinal's Stefano Demarchi.

For the 15-9 Irish, the loss marks the sixth defeat on the road as well as the third loss to an important regional foe. Previously, Notre Dame has fallen to Wisconsin, Miami (Ohio) and now Ball St.

"I think we lost some winnable matches but that is called playing on the road, and it is playing a team of roughly equal ability," said Bayliss. "Playing on their indoor courts is always a difficult chore."

In fact, Ball St. head coach Bill Richards was even suprised about the decisiveness of his team's 11th of the season.

"To tell you the truth, I would have been the happiest guy in the world to get a 5-4 victory," said Richards. "I never expected to win all three doubles. I expected to go down to the last match. I was never confident until we got that fifth point."

And how will this disappointing loss affect the Irish in their four remaining matches and the MCC Tournament?

"It was a match we could have won," reasoned Dave DiLucia. "Obviously, it hurts a little bit, it was a tough loss but this team has enough character to come together."

Tennessee captures women's national title

Associated Press

TACOMA, Wash. -- Olympic veteran Bridgette Gordon scored 16 of her 27 points in the first half, and Tennessee shut down Auburn star Vickie Orr in the second half as the Lady Volunteers won their second national women's championship in three years with a 76-60 victory Sunday.

Tennessee rallied from an early five-point deficit to defeat its Southeastern Conference rival for the second time in three meetings this season, and they sent the Lady Tigers home as the second-place finisher for the second year in a row.

Gordon, a member of the U.S. olympic team that won the gold medal at the Seoul Olympics, also helped Tennessee win the 1987 NCAA title. The Lady Volunteers finished 35-2, their best record ever.

Auburn, which lost to

Louisiana Tech 56-54 in last year's championship game, stayed with Tennessee for three-fourths of the game, but eventually succumbed to the Lady Volunteers' intense man-to-man defense in the final 10 minutes.

Gordon did most of her scoring on baseline jump shots over Auburn's zone defense and got help from two youngsters--freshman point guard Dena Head and sophomore reserve Daedra Charles.

Head scored 15 of her 19 points in the second half and Charles added 13 points, including five in a 13-2 second half run that gave Tennessee control of the game.

Orr, a three-time All-American, scored 10 points in the first half, but Tennessee's 6-foot-4 Sheila Frost blocked two of her shots in the first 8:50 of the second half and that seemed to frustrate the 6-3 senior. She finished with 16 points.

Spring

Holtz and his assistants vigorously blew their whistles, indicating a stoppage of play. Defensive tackle Chris Zorich hit Rice just as the whistles sounded, and the junior quarterback emerged from the pileup with a noticeable limp.

"We don't protect Tony any more than we do anyone else," said Holtz, despite evidence to the contrary. "We need to be more than one dimensional on offense. We threw the ball more today than we have."

Rice completed 7-of-13 passes for 97 yards on the day, despite a slow start. He hit Waters over the middle for a 30-yard touchdown on a pattern similar to the one where he was hit by Terrell.

Fullback Anthony Johnson also scored on an 11-yard run early in the scrimmage.

Holtz devoted the beginning of practice strictly to the kicking game. Placekicker Billy Hackett, who converted a 30-yard field goal in the scrimmage, made seven of 11 attempts with punter Jim Sexton holding. Sexton recovered from a slow start to average 43 yards on five punts.

Baseball squad sweeps St. Louis

Special to The Observer

Erik Madsen hurled a two-hitter and James Sass had both game-winning RBI as the Notre Dame baseball team recorded a 1-0, 6-2 doubleheader sweep of Saint Louis on the road.

Rain forced the postponement of Sunday's scheduled doubleheader between the two teams.

With a fierce wind blowing throughout the doubleheader, Saturday's two games saw a total of only 12 hits. James Sass doubled in the second game for the doubleheader's only extra-base hit.

Saint Louis (5-12) managed just two hits in each of Saturday's games. Madsen shut out the Billikens in the first game, and Mike Coffey saved Mike Passilla's victory in the second game.

Sass drove in the first game's only run when his third-inning groundout scored shortstop Pat Pesavento. In the nightcap, Sass drove in three runs with a two-run double in the first inning and an RBI single in the second.

The senior outfielder from Louisville, Ky., now leads the Irish with a .393 average and has knocked in 18 runs with four gamewinning RBI in his last six games.

Madsen allowed two runners to reach scoring position in the first game to improve his record to 4-1. Passilla went to 2-1 and Coffey earned his fifth save in the second game.

Women's tennis rolls against weekend foes

By VIC LOMBARDI

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team extended their dual-match win streak to eight as they dominated Eastern Michigan (8-1) and beat SIU-Edwardsville (5-2) after the Lady Cougars defaulted four matches.

"It has just been an outstanding weekend," said an elated Notre Dame coach Michele Gelfman. "We had a few matches here and there that were a bit spotty, but on the whole the girls played outstanding tennis. I think we're really starting to peak at the right time."

The Irish improved their overall season mark to 61-38 and have been victorious in 11 of the last 13 matches.

In singles play, CeCe Cahill, Katie Clark, Kim Pacella and Cathy Bradshaw each were victorious in both matches.

Cahill, the number-62 singles player in the nation, defeated SIU-Edwardsville's number-one singles Christina Bukeland 6-1, 7-6 (7-2) and Eastern Michigan's ace Marta Varanda 6-1, 6-0 to extend her overall record to 21-5.

"I felt kind of sluggish yesterday," said Cahill, who on Friday came back from 5-0 in the second set to edge Bukeland 7-6 in the tie-breaker. "But the team, as a whole, played a lot better against Eastern Michigan. We just had more intensity and aggressiveness."

Barton won yesterday's number-two singles match 6-3, 7-5 but lost in three sets 7-5, 5-7, 6-3 to SIU's Portia George. In the number-three slot, freshman Katie Clark triumphed 6-2, 6-1 and defeated her SIU opponent 6-1, 0-3 after an injury forced her to default.

"Katie Clark has been showing a tremendous amount of improvement in the past few weeks," said Gelfman. "I think many times Katie has been overshadowed by the number-one and two players, but she has made a lot of contributions to the team."

The 20th ranked doubles team of Cahill and Barton didn't get a chance to play SIU's highly lauded tandem of Bukeland and George since the Irish had already clinched the match before the doubles competition. But against the Hurons, the duo crushed their opponents in a quick 6-1, 6-2 outing.

"It was one of our best matches in a while," said Barton. "We started off pretty poor but once we started to focus we gained the momentum. We have to keep playing at this pace to get to the NCAA's."

Also in yesterday's competition, the doubles teams of Clark-Pacella and Bradshaw-Resa Kelly won their matches 6-1, 7-6 (7-3) and 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, respectively.

The Irish begin a regional swing that opens this weekend with Ohio State and Michigan State at the Eck Pavillion. Gelfman says her team is anxious to play some of the tougher Big Ten squads, especially since the ITCA poll dropped the Irish from fourth to tenth in the ranks.

"There's no way that we should have been dropped that low with the way we're playing right now," said Gelfman. "At this point we've just negated the poll. We're just worried about going out and letting our rackets speak for themselves."

Sluggish Irish lacrosse squad edges Wooster

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio --The Notre Dame lacrosse team was twice derailed before getting back on track to hold off Wooster College 8-7 here Saturday.

The Irish (4-3) were originally scheduled to play the Fighting Scots in Wooster, which is 50 miles north of Columbus, but six inches of snow at Wooster forced the game to be moved to Buckeye Stadium.

That wasn't the only surprise awaiting the Irish, though, as the Scots took advantage of an Irish letdown to keep the outcome continually in doubt.

Wooster (3-4) gathered in more ground balls than Notre Dame and split the faceoffs with the Irish on its way to almost pulling off the upset. Notre Dame usually has the edge on ground balls and faceoffs and failure in those areas has usually signaled an Irish defeat.

But according to Irish head coach Kevin Corrigan, a lack of intensity following Wednesday's emotional win over Air Force was most to blame for the lackluster effort.

"For the most part we dominated in possession, although the ground balls gave them some possession," Corrigan said. "Our problem was just that the intensity was not there. That was reflected all over the field and caused the game to be as close as it was."

The Irish were again led by the scoring of junior Brian McHugh and senior tri-captain John Olmstead, who each have 20 points for the season. The two attackmen combined for four of the last five Irish goals as McHugh had three goals in the game and Olmstead chipped in two goals and an assist.

Olmstead's three points gave him 127 career points and moved him into third place on the Irish all-time scoring list, behind Bob Trocchi's 143 points and Joe Franklin's 161.

Freshman goalie Tom Duane started his first game for the Irish, coming up with eight saves on 24 Wooster shots. Duane started strong, saving the first four Wooster shots. But the Scots struck back in the third quarter, scoring three goals in two minutes to deplete a comfortable 7-3 Irish lead.

Scots' defensive midfielder Chris Dumont started the Wooster rally by scoring a fast-break goal with 3:40 left in the third quarter. Midfielder Steve Spitzer then found the Irish net 40 seconds later before Wooster attackman Steve Davidson scored his third of four goals, again on a fast break, with 1:35 remaining in the quarter.

"The fact that Wooster scored most of their goals off transition plays shows that we weren't in the game mentally," explained senior tri-captain defenseman Kevin O'Connor. "Most of the times we simply were not in the right place where we should have been."

Nonetheless, the Irish held on for the win on Olmstead's second goal with 9:32 to play. The Notre Dame defense helped the effort in a big way, as they held off three Wooster man-up situations in the final quarter.

But the outcome still was not assured as Davidson scored his fourth goal for the Scots with :45 remaining. Several attempts by Wooster to get a game-tying score failed, though, as the Irish escaped with a win they said they knew should never have been that close.

"We had some problems but the bottom line is that we won the game, and we won't slit our throats over a game we win," Corrigan said. "We made some plays that we needed to make, and that's important for a young team."

"Early in the year we lost some games like this and that just shows that we've improved and have learned something from the earlier defeats."

The Irish host Kenyon College Saturday at Edward W. "Moose" Krause Stadium. The Lords lost only two players off of last year's squad that lost 8-7 to the Irish in double overtime.

basket by Sean Higgins. The Wolverines' first success against the Fighting Illini this season in three meetings.

Glen Rice led Michigan in scoring against Illinois with 28 points and he has 153 points in the tournament, 25 short of Bill Bradley's mark set with Princeton in 1965.

Rice has shot 59.4 percent from the field, including a 22-for-37 mark from 3-point range.

"I jumped on Glen Rice's back before the tournament and he's carried me this far," Fisher said.

Seton Hall picked things up more than one notch in its semi-final victory over Duke.

The Pirates trailed 26-8 12 minutes into the game and they looked more like one of P.J. Carlesimo's early teams at the New Jersey school when it was common for them to be the doormat of the Big East Conference.

"I think we're getting respect and that comes from the kids playing unselfishly," Carlesimo said. "Defense is a big part of our game and that is critical for us to be successful."

The defense has especially shined for the Pirates in the second half of their five NCAA victories as no team has managed to shoot better than 40 percent in the second half.

Center Ramon Ramos credits the team's depth with the second-half success.

"I don't think we do anything consciously about playing better defense in the second half," he said. "We have a real deep bench and they keep us fresh. When guys come in they keep the same intensity and we're fresh when we come back in."

The Seton Hall reserves have outscored the opponents' subs 98-36 in the tournament.

"It's not unusual during a game to see more starters on the bench than on the floor," Carlesimo said. "We also know we can spread the scoring around because we have guys who can score 20 points one night and five the next but they still contribute."

Record field set for tourney; Fame team survives antics

By FRANK PASTOR and GREG GUFFEY
Assistant Sports Editors

The dream begins today for a record 672 teams in Bookstore Basketball XVIII. 320 teams will take to the courts this week in preliminary rounds to cut the field to 512 hopefuls. It's an annual spring rite at Notre Dame, perhaps the only event that draws interest from every walk of campus life.

But the real story in this tournament is the tradition, most notably playing all games outdoors in any weather condition. Last year, teams played in rain, snow, strong winds and sunshine during the first four days.

"Rain is the great equalizer," Bookstore Commissioner Mike Manning said. "It puts teams at a disadvantage. It slows teams down, and players cannot count on the outside shot because of the high winds."

But rain did not keep the favored team from winning Sunday's Hall of Fame game. The Hall of Fame team downed the Primitive Bushmen 21-12 in the annual affair.

The Bushmen were out-matched from the beginning and didn't try hiding the fact. They set the tone for the game when they first appeared on the court dressed in grass skirts.

The Bushmen were long on gimmicks and short on virtually all of their shots, converting only 12-of-47 attempts from the field. Irish football coach Lou Holtz, quarterback Tony Rice and ticket manager Bubba Cunningham were the object of most of their barbs.

One of the most memorable moments of the contest occurred when Cunningham was accosted by a swarm of Bushmen demanding that he furnish an ID, the irony of which was not lost

Football was meant to be played outdoors.

That is why it seemed so odd to see Notre Dame training inside the Loftus Sports Center when spring practice opened on March 16.

The team returned to its element Saturday afternoon at its first official scrimmage of the spring season outdoors in Notre Dame Stadium. The Irish welcomed the change by playing just under two hours of inspired football under the watchful eye of Head Coach Lou Holtz.

One might think it would be difficult to get motivated for a spring scrimmage, especially after winning the National Championship the previous year.

Guess again.

The Irish came out hitting on Saturday. And running. And throwing. All the while having a remarkably good time.

Holtz alternated between the first- and second-team offense and defense, giving the veterans work and the younger players a chance to prove themselves.

And while it is still early, many Irish reserves took advantage of the opportunity and caught the attention of Holtz, who generously distributed accolades following the scrimmage.

"The defensive ends and outside linebackers got better as the scrimmage went along," Holtz said. "(Cornerbacks) Todd Lyght and David Jandric (replacing Stan Smagala, who pulled a muscle) showed up well, which was encouraging. (Free safety) Pat Terrell made some plays when the opportunity was there.

"But our offensive line—the longer we were out there, the more we seemed to lose our rhythm. We're not as consistent at tailback as we need to be."

Terrell set the tone for the scrimmage when he levelled tailback Ricky Watters as he juggled a pass thrown over the middle by quarterback Tony Rice.

Freshman tailback Kenny Spears broke loose on a couple of occasions, once taking a pass from Pete Graham on the run, eluding a couple of defenders and streaking down the sideline for a score.

Defensive linemen Troy Ridgley, George Williams and Jeff Alm made their presence known in the offensive backfield all afternoon long. Minutes after sacking backup quarterback Kent Graham, Ridgley tipped a pass from Steve Belles and then pulled it down for the interception. Williams sacked Belles late in the scrimmage and then recovered a fumble jarred loose by Alm, who also knocked down a pass from Rice.

Rice, who was an untouchable until Saturday, took his first hits of the spring season. He scrambled up the middle on one play and when a couple of defenders zeroed in on him,

Michigan, Seton Hall set for title showdown

Associated Press

SEATTLE --Steve Fisher has brought as much attention to the word interim as he has to the Michigan basketball team he has been coaching for the past five games.

The storybook career of interim--there's that word again--head coach Fisher ends Monday night with the national championship game against Seton Hall regardless of the outcome.

The final game of the entire college basketball season is an unlikely place for an interim coach to be and until last season it was just as an unlikely place for a Seton Hall team to be.

Fisher's story started 48 hours before the tournament began when Bill Frieder was fired by Michigan after agreeing to take over as the head coach at Arizona State next season. Since then, the Wolverines have not only not lost but they have played their best basketball of the season and their best of any recent NCAA tournament.

"Timing is everything and I jumped in at the right time," Fisher said Sunday, adding that he will not talk to Michigan athletic director and football coach Bo Schembechler about the head coaching position until

Men fencers take fourth in nation

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame men's fencing team finished fourth in the NCAA Championships Saturday in Evanston, Ill.

Irish fencers Ted Fay and Todd Griffie finished 12th and 18th respectively in the epee competition—the third and final event.

"We were hoping for a better placing for the team and also hoping for a better performance from each of our individuals, but as we've seen hope alone is not enough to win at the NAAs," Irish coach Mike DeCicco said.

Columbia won the men's title with 88 points. Penn State was second at 85, Penn third at 70 and Notre Dame fourth at 69. Columbia's Jon Normile won the epee individual title.

The women's competition got under way Sunday, with Notre Dame facing North Carolina and Penn State.
