Earthquake rocks N. California, kills 200

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO—A catastrophic earthquake rocked Northern California on Tuesday, killing more than 200 people and injuring 400, caving in bridges and freeways, igniting fires and causing widespread damage to buildings.

The quake, which struck during the evening rush hour, registered 6.9 on the Richter scale and was on the notorious San Andreas Fault. It was the second deadliest in the nation's history, exceeded only by the 1906 San Francisco earthquake that destroyed much of the city and killed more than 700 people.

At least 200 people were crushed to death in their cars when a mile-long section of the upper level of Interstate 880 in Oakland collapsed onto the lower level, according to Marty Boyer, public information officer for Alameda County.

"This is just a devastating, terrible, terrible situation beyond everybody's imagination," she said.

The earthquake forced evacuation of 60,000 fans from Candlestick Park where they were awaiting Game Three of the World Series. There were no major injuries reported at the stadium.

A 30-foot section of the upper level of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge collapsed onto the lower level, trapping three cars in the wreckage.

N.D. 23rd, St. Mary's 7th in U.S. News college rankings

The University of Notre Dame is ranked 23rd among the nation's best universities and Saint Mary's College is ranked seventh among the midwestern regional colleges, according to a U.S. News and World Report article dated Oct. 16.

These findings are based on five areas: academic reputation, student selectivity, retention patterns, faculty quality and financial resources. Much of the objective data was gathered from surveys sent out to the universities themselves.

The highest overall score attainable is 100 percent, which was awarded to Yale University. Notre Dame received a score of 74.2 percent and Saint Mary's received an 86.2 percent in its category.

When asked what his reaction to the U.S. News study is, Father Edward Malloy, University president, said, "I think we deserve to be among the top-ranked schools." He also added that U.S. News is rating things they can objectify—the study does not include important aspects such as student residential life and the proud religious tradition.

In response to the same question, Saint Mary's College President William Hickey stated that he was "quite pleased." Regarding the College's high standing, Hickey said it is "a real feather in our cap."

Grades in academic areas were determined by a one being the highest and a 204 the lowest, since the National University portion of the survey included 204 schools. The regional colleges survey is handled in the same manner.

In academic reputation, which is largely subjective, Notre Dame received a grade of 27; under student selectivity the University received an 18; retention patterns — a 6; faculty quality — a 53; and financial resources was a low 122.

Among its midwestern peers, Saint Mary's scores were: academic reputation — a 27, student selectivity — a 13, retention patterns — a one, faculty quality — an 18, and financial resources — an 8.

Student selectivity is "based on rejection rates—the reciprocal of each school's acceptance rate—for applicants in the 1988-89 school year; average combined scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or American College Testing Assessment, and high school class standings for entering freshman who enrolled in the 1988-89 school year," according to the U.S. News article.

Notre Dame's median SAT score is a 580 verbal and a 670 math. Thirty-five percent of this year's freshmen were ranked between one and five in their high school class; 80 percent were in the top 10 percent and 96 percent were in the top 20 of their class, said Director of Public Relations and Information Richard Conklin.

The mean SAT score for Saint Mary's is a 1025 and 26 percent of the freshmen graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school class and over 60 percent in the top quarter of their class.

"Retention rankings were based on the average percentage of freshmen in the classes of 1985-87 who became sophomores at that institution and the average percentage of freshmen in the entering classes of 1981, 1982, and 1983 who graduated with bachelor's degrees in 5 years," stated the article.

Regarding Notre Dame's retention patterns, Dean of the Freshman Year of Studies Emil Hofman stated, "We lose no more than one and a half percent (of the freshmen) per year." Approximately 93 percent of the freshmen continue to graduate on time, he said.

Ninety percent of Saint Mary's freshmen continue as sophomores and more than 80 percent graduate. Retention "has always been real high, due to the type of services offered to the students," stated Brett McLaughlin, public information officer at Saint Mary's.

Novello chosen as first female surgeon general

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President Bush has chosen Antonia Novello, a pediatrician and deputy director of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, to be surgeon general, administration sources said Tuesday.

Novello was undergoing routine background checks before her formal nomination, said the sources, who spoke only on condition of not being identified.

If nominated by Bush and confirmed by the Senate, she would become the first woman to hold the post and would succeed C. Everett Koop, the outspoken pediatric surgeon who stepped down last month after serving as surgeon general for seven years.

Chase Untermeyer, Bush's personnel chief, said "there is a candidate in clearance," but refused to confirm or deny that the candidate was Novello.

Her office said she had no comment, but later the institute's press office provided Novello's resume.

Novello, 45, is a native of Puerto Rico. She graduated from the University of Puerto Rico and in 1970 from the university's medical school in the top 5 percent of her class. She is a pediatric kidney specialist.

Novello joined the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in April 1986. She is its deputy director as well as coordinator for AIDS research.

She was recommended to the White House by Louis Sullivan, secretary of health and human services, the sources said. Her nomina-

Duffy discusses situation in N. Ireland

By DAVID CERTO
News Staff

A leading member of the British House of Commons drew a large crowd to his lecture Tuesday dealing with the past problems, future difficulties and recent development in Northern Ireland.

The Honorable Patrick Duffy, an acknowledged expert on Northern Irish affairs, delivered his lecture entitled "Is Peace Possible in Northern Ireland?" The lecture was sponsored by the Cushwa Center for the Study of American Catholicism.

Duffy, a Catholic of Irish descent, shared his views as a participant with sympathies on both sides of the struggle by discussing his heritage, constituency and personal experiences. "I am a Brit," Duffy said, yet he was quick to speak out against discriminatory practices implemented by the British government.

To open, Duffy detailed occurrences in Parliament when the disturbances began in 1969. "I was neither unprepared nor taken by surprise," Duffy stated, "but the Speaker of the House wouldn't listen or set up a committee."

Duffy then discussed the role of the Royal Army in Northern Ireland. "There is still too much policing by the army, and I want to see them out," Duffy said. "There can only be a political solution. The army knows it, and many of us have known it for years," Duffy stated.

However, Duffy does not advocate immediate pullout of British forces. "I have no doubt that Britain would like to get out," he stated, "but I look for a time when the withdrawal of troops will compel the conflicting parties to move toward peace."

Duffy described the nature of the conflict in the region. "The heart of the problem lies between the two tribes—the natives and the transplanted," he said, referring to the native Catholics and the Protestant settlers. Duffy then mentioned that "the biggest obstacle to a solution is the distrust of Ireland by the Protestants. Until that mistrust is resolved, there will be no peace."

The British government has taken steps to try to resolve the problems, according to Duffy. While voting and housing discrimination has largely been alleviated, the most troubling problems, employment and economic discrimination, have not been solved, he said.

Despite the death of an average of one British soldier every 12 days, Duffy remains optimistic for the future. "I cannot set a timetable, but for the first time in my lifetime I see the requisite dynamics in place," he said.

These hopes are based largely on the Anglo-Irish agreement, an innovative pact establishing

WORLD BRIEFS

East Germany's ruling Politburo held a meeting Tuesday that could determine the fate of Erich Honecker, the 77-year-old leader whose stern rule has been challenged by mass emigration and pro-democracy protest. Demonstrations were reported in five cities on the eve of the regular weekly meeting, including a march by 120,000 people in Leipzig that was the largest protest since East Germany was founded 40 years ago.

The Soviet Union's attitude toward human rights has improved dramatically and most political prisoners have been freed, although abuses persist and the picture is "deeply confusing," Amnesty International says. In a report published Wednesday, the worldwide human rights movement says its list of Soviet citizens imprisoned for non-violent exercise of their human rights shrank from 600 three years ago to about 90 in July, and would have been lower but for further arrests.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev wandered like a kid in a candy store through displays of IBM computers, Band-Aids and Ritz crackers Tuesday at the first full-fledged U.S. trade show to be held in the Soviet Union. Deprived Soviet consumers soon will enjoy a small flood of such goodies, according to the head of the council that organized the fair.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

The stock market seesaw tipped downward again Tuesday as the Dow Jones industrial average lost nearly 19 points after briefly falling more than 60 points early in the day. Speculators and program traders yanked around a market still deeply shaken by Friday's 190-point plunge and Monday's 88-point recovery in the Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks.

Rain offshore, not demonstrators or mechanical problems, stopped the launch of the space shuttle Atlantis and its nuclear-fueled cargo Tuesday. "It looks like the local weather is not going to cooperate, we're going to call it a day," launch director Bob Sieck told the five astronauts who had been lying on their backs in Atlantis' cabin for three hours. NASA said it will try again Wednesday at 12:50 p.m. EDT. The launch opportunity — determined by the relative positions of Earth and Jupiter — extends until 1:21 p.m.

A prediction that 14.5 million Americans will be infected with the AIDS virus by the year 2002 was issued by the Hudson Institute on Tuesday. The Institute called for strong measures to be taken by government and society to control the epidemic. "If the nation shrinks from taking responsible action now to contain the ... epidemic, it tacitly will be accepting a disaster of immense proportions," the Hudson study says. "Unchecked, AIDS will kill more Americans in the next decade than have died in combat in all of the nation's wars since our founding," the study said.

Information compiled from Observer wires and Observer staff reports

There is no escape from D.J.-on-the-brain

Picture this: you're sitting in your room, studying for a midterm. There's no one in your room except for you and your books. The room is completely silent, except for that damn song that keeps running through your head.

I don't think I'm the only person in the world plagued with this affliction, but sometimes I feel as if my brain is a big sponge whose only purpose is to soak up any music I hear and replay the songs over and over again. There must be a radio station in my head, and the D.J. has the weirdest playlist in the world.

Everyday, a particular song runs through my head and usually stays there all day. Usually it's an oldies tune, that's about the only kind of music I listen to—my dorm room looks like a shrine to the Beatles. On other occasions, my soul is tormented by some Top 40 tune, and my mind is filled with the sound of drum machines.

Sometimes the song doesn't go away for days. I'll hear the same song all the way through, and then the D.J. in my head presses the rewind button and lets me hear it all over again. Recently, I went for days hearing Milli Vanilli's song, "The Dream Is Over." Actually I didn't hear the entire song, just the refrain, "It's a tragedy for me to see, the dream is over..." over and over again. I think it had something to do with the Cubs blowing it in the National League playoffs that week.

The worst time to have a song running through your head is while you're studying or taking a test. I usually hear some song while I'm studying because the music is far more interesting than my class notes. But nothing is more aggravating than having a tune racing through your brain when you're taking a big test.

When I took the ACTs my junior year of high school, all I could hear was, "All I Need is a Miracle" by Mike and the Mechanics. A few weeks later when I took my AP U.S. History exam, Elton John's "Someone Saved My Life Tonight" stayed with me throughout the exam.

Anytime you get a song running through your head, it's very difficult to keep it to yourself. You can either tell your friends, "You know

'All of a sudden, I had this Barry Manilow attack.'

Robyn Simmons

Assistant Accent Editor

what song has been running through my head all day?" or you can sing snatches of the song under your breath. This can be particularly annoying to the people around you.

For instance, this summer my family went to downtown Chicago to a nice restaurant to celebrate my sister's birthday. All of a sudden, I had this Barry Manilow attack. A medley of his greatest hits stayed in my head for the entire evening. All night long I kept murmuring lines from Barry's songs: "Her name was Lola, she was a show girl..." "It's a miracle, a true blue spectacle..." "And I've looked high, low, everywhere I possibly can..." I couldn't contain myself; I wanted to get up on top of the table and sing "I Write the Songs" but I contented myself with whispering the lyrics. None of the patrons in the restaurant knew my secret torment.

Sometimes the best way to get rid of a song that won't go away is to listen to it all the way through. One time I had to go out and buy the single for Billy Vera and the Beaters' "At This Moment" and play it on the stereo just so I could study in peace for finals during my senior year of high school.

For all of those people who suffer from D.J.-on-the-brain, you are not alone. Just one word of advice: stay away from Top 40 stations unless you want to hear Milli Vanilli all day, or worse yet, allow yourself to be tormented by the scourge of humankind—Rick Astley.

Bush: govt. ready to help quake victims

Associated Press

WASHINGTON— President Bush said Tuesday night that the federal government was prepared to send help to the earthquake area in California and was sending Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner there to assess the damage.

The president, who was informed of the earthquake after addressing a Republican governors' dinner, paused outside his limousine before entering the White House and told reporters at a distance that "the federal government will do everything it can to help."

Bush said Skinner, who had also been at the governors' dinner, was flying immediately to California.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu said he had contacted the office of California Gov. George Deukmejian.

Bush, in his brief exchange with reporters, said, "There is no assessment yet. ... We will provide assistance in every way we possibly can."

Bush said Deukmejian was "out of the country."

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said later that Sununu had authorized use of a U.S. Air Force plane to fly Deukmejian immediately back to California from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Bush said officials of the Federal Emergency Management Agency — the government's disaster response agency — were coming to the White House to brief chief of staff John Sununu on what they knew about the situation.

Fitzwater said Skinner would leave "within the hour" and "will land as close as he can get."

Fitzwater said FEMA was establishing a command center at its headquarters in Washington, "where they will coordinate all the information and dispatch of whatever support they can provide."

"It's a given they will get whatever disaster aid is called for," he said.

Fitzwater said Sununu had "talked to officials at the Department of Defense, and they will be prepared to help in any way they can, coordinating again through FEMA."

Sununu also contacted Vice President Dan Quayle by telephone in San Diego. "The vice president was aware of the earthquake. There was no experience of it that far south, however," Fitzwater said.

Quayle is returning to Washington "at about midnight tonight, San Diego time" as originally planned, said Fitzwater. "He wanted to return, was scheduled to return, and we saw no reason to suggest a change of plans," said Fitzwater.

Fitzwater said FEMA would keep Sununu informed. No top officials planned to stay at the White House throughout the night, Fitzwater said.

"Sununu will make a phone call to (the president) before he leaves with any new information, but other than we wouldn't expect to have any other activity here tonight," Fitzwater said.

Reporters learned of the earthquake while Bush was just beginning his address at the ballroom in the Capital Hilton, a few blocks from the White House.

Fitzwater described how Bush was informed after he finished his speech: "We handed him the note just as he was coming off and he read it and just said — mentioned something to Barbara, 'Look at this. It looks like a very serious problem. Do we know anything more about it?'"

White House domestic adviser Roger Porter, informed by ABC-TV correspondent Brit Hume, darted out of the room to gather information. Sununu, who was also at the dinner along with Skinner, five other Cabinet members and numerous other top administration officials, also left the ballroom to try to contact the governor's office in California.

HPC plans events for ND spirit

A mile of tape, a 24-hour run, a pie throwing contest, and a 16-foot trojan horse will raise campus spirit while raising money for charity this Friday, said representatives at Tuesday's Hall Presidents' Council meeting.

The "Quarter Mile" of double-faced tape will be set up from Dillon Hall to the Hammes Bookstore Friday to collect change for the United Way.

A trojan horse constructed by Irish Insanity will be appearing at Fieldhouse Mall on Friday from 4:30-6:30 p.m., said Erich Straub, president of Irish Insanity. The horse will lead the marching band in a parade around North Quad, and should arrive on South Quad at approximately 6:45 p.m.

Residents of Grace Hall will run in 15-minute shifts for 24-hours on Friday, collecting pledge money for South Bend's Northeast Neighborhood, a representative said.

Pie-throwing enthusiasts can test their skills at 4 p.m. at Lyons Hall's "Cream Your Favorite Lyonite," where $1 dollar will purchase a shot at any resident of Lyons.

Those interested in the charity event should sign up in the dining halls, said the Lyons Hall representative.

Straub stressed that the horse was created as a catalyst to "get some folks to the pep rally" Friday night. He also said that the theme for half-time festivities during the USC game is "Beach Party," and requested students to purchase beach balls for the event.

Students remaining on campus during Thanksgiving break will be treated to a free phone call home, said Rich Daly of the Alumni Association. The first annual Holiday Host program will also offer students a chance to have Thanksgiving dinner at the homes of alumni, faculty, or staff members.

"This is a program directed at both graduate students and undergraduates," said Daly.

"We think it's an excellent way for the alumni to serve the students," he said, "and that's what we're here for, to help the students."

The largest viewing of a game in Notre Dame history has also been planned in conjunction with the holiday program. Up to 2000 students, alumni, faculty, and staff are expected to watch the Miami game in the Joyce ACC, Daly said.

The dorm pairings for Greek Week were announced by a Student Union Board representative: Knott-Zahm; Lewis-Flanner; Breen-Phillips-Grace; Pasquerilla East-Stanford; Pasquerilla West-Alumni; Siegfried-Keenan; Farley-St. Ed's; Walsh-Dillon; Badin-Cavanaugh; Howard-Pangborn; and Lyons-Sorin.

Pairings with Saint Mary's are: Regina-Fisher; Holy Cross-Morrissey; LeMans-Holy Cross; and McCandless-Carroll.

Britain may release 3 IRA prisoners

Associated Press

LONDON— Britain paved the way Tuesday for the probable release of at least three people imprisoned 14 years ago for IRA bombings aimed at British soldiers. The Irish government and civil libertarians cheered the move.

The government said it will not oppose the appeal by the so-called "Guildford Four" — three men and a woman who insisted throughout that they were innocent and who became the focus of a lengthy campaign for their release.

The Times of London newspaper said policemen involved in the original investigation that led to the convictions and life terms will be prosecuted.

In its Wednesday issue, copies of which were available Tuesday night, the paper reported: "A handful of officers, who were then of relatively junior rank, will face charges after an investigation by ... police into a number of aspects of the original inquiry."

A spokesman at the Home Office, the government department responsible for police, refused to comment.

The bombings led to murder convictions for the Guildford Four during a wave of terrorism by the Irish Republican Army.

The Dublin government, leaders of the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, and prominent British government figures protested the innocence of the four.

British Broadcasting Corp. Television, the domestic news agency Press Association and other news reports said at least three of the prisoners probably would be released soon after a Court of Appeal hearing Thursday.

"Circumstances have recently come to the notice of the Director of Public Prosecutions which have caused him to conclude that it would be wrong for the Crown to seek to sustain the convictions," the prosecutor's office said.

It said its decision will be explained at the Thursday hearing.

The murder convictions of Paul Hill, Gerard Conlon and Patrick Armstrong, all of Belfast, Northern Ireland, and of Armstrong's English girlfriend, Carole Richardson, were referred to the Court of Appeal by Home Secretary Douglas Hurd in January.

throughout much of the area, and phone service was disrupted.

Three hours after the 5:04 p.m. PDT quake, the magnitude of the disaster began to emerge as reports came in of widespread death and destruction. Mullins said Santa Cruz, 75 miles south of San Francisco, had apparently suffered heavy damage and most communications there were knocked out.

Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy said he expected states of emergency would be declared in Santa Clara, Alameda and Contra Costa counties.

Tom Mullins, spokesman for the California Office of Emergency Services, said preliminary figures indicated at least 400 injuries throughout the area. David Hammons at Kaiser Hospital in Santa Clara, just north of San Jose, said about 100 patients were treated there, most injured by falling or being hit by debris.

San Mateo County, directly south of San Francisco had no deaths but 108 injuries, mostly heart and anxiety-type problems, according to county emergency services coordinator Kent Paxton. Seven people were injured when part of a wall collapsed at the Amfac Hotel in Burlingame.

At least two bridges in the Santa Cruz area collapsed and other highways leading out of the city suffered significant damage, said Officer Kim Penrose of the California Highway Patrol. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

"All the mountain passes are closed because of major landslides and fissures in the road," Penrose said.

Mayor Art Agnos said eight deaths had been reported in San Francisco, five from a building collapsing on cars, and three in a fire in the Marina section that blazed spectacularly through much of the evening before being brought under control. He said 12 buildings, all smaller residential dwellings, were destroyed but there were no reports of major damage in high-rise buildings.

Agnos' press secretary, Eileen Mahoney, said as many as 20 people had been injured at the Marina fire. Another fire damaged a section of downtown Berkeley.

The Marina fire was blamed on a broken gas main, and authorities said breaks in a water main made it harder to extinguish.

The California Highway Patrol said six people were killed in the collapse of part of the City Garden Mall in Santa Cruz.

a council for Northern Ireland made up of both Britons and members of the Irish government. "The truly historic departure was that a Dublin-based government had the right to a say in Northern Ireland," Duffy remarked. The great breakthrough, he said, was that "for the first time in recent history a British government has been prepared to act without consulting Northern Ireland."

A flyer in World War II and later Secretary for the Royal Navy, Duffy has been stationed in Northern Ireland and continues to be close friends with many of the area's key figures. He has served in the House of Commons since 1963 and is currently the President of the North Atlantic Assembly.

In closing, Duffy said, "There are times when I must put my head above the parapet, and it's not easy." He also stated that the Labor government, as a party, was "committed to a united Ireland."

Faculty quality was used as a measure of instructional quality. U.S. News based their final scores on student/faculty ratios in 1988-89, the percentage of faculty with doctorates in 1988-89, and the "per-student instructional budgets, which reflect salaries during the 1987-88 academic year."

The student/teacher ratio at ND is 12 to 1. Faculty salaries are among the highest in the nation, "better than the top 20 percent," said University Provost Timothy O'Meara.

At Saint Mary's, the student/teacher ratio is 13 to 1. Currently, curriculum and faculty programs are in the works, said McLaughlin.

"Financial resources were measured by a school's per-student endowment income during fiscal 1988, its per-student library budget and, where applicable, total per-student funding from state and local governments," U.S. News stated.

O'Meara wasn't sure if government funding included financial aid and attributed Notre Dame's rather low ranking in that area to financial aid, if that was the case. "Financial aid is not what it should be," he said, "but tuition is low" for a school of Notre Dame's caliber. The University has just started an analysis of its financial aid programs, O'Meara said.

Also bringing down this score is perhaps the library budget. According to O'Meara, the problem is "already being looked into." Both he and Malloy said that Notre Dame has recently made a "dramatic commitment to computing resources," at the library.

O'Meara stated that the rankings have been improved and that they are "much better than three years ago." Previously, they were not well-controlled, he added. This is Notre Dame's second year on the list.

This is Saint Mary's 3rd consecutive year on the list published by U.S. News. In the past, however, Saint Mary's was grouped with all of the small comprehensive colleges. This year the category was divided into regions. This gives Saint Mary's a bit more prestige, as it is ranked high among colleges such as DePaul University and Valparaiso University, said Hickey and McLaughlin.

"Any time you receive this type of recognition, it is flattering," McLaughlin said. The survey "speaks well for our reputation among our peers," he said.

O'Meara concluded that the important questions are: "What is the top bracket of schools? Are these the best schools in the country?" If so, then O'Meara said he was very pleased to see Notre Dame on the list.

In addition, she was one of a number of women recommended for the job by President Bush's personal physician, Burton Lee, who said he was knocked out of consideration because his views on abortion differ from Bush's.

Novello "would be terrific" in the job, Lee said Tuesday.

Novello worked for Hatch in 1982-83, when he was chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Paul Smith, a spokesman for Hatch, said he remembered Novello as "a ball of energy. She's got a lot of vitality. She was enthusiastic about everything she did. We think she'll be a good spokesman for health issues."

He said she is married to a psychiatrist, Dr. Joe Novello, who hosted a talk show on a Washington radio station and whose brother is Don Novello, the comedian better known as "Father Guido Sarducci."

She has served on several government task forces studying AIDS and on committees that dealt with women's health issues. She also is a clinical professor of pediatrics at Georgetown University and is a commissioned officer in the Public Health Service.

Although not much is publicly known about Novello's views, her opinions on abortion apparently are acceptable to the White House.

Untermeyer said his office quizzes candidates about their views on the subject "if it's pertinent, and in almost every case there (at the Department of Health and Human Services) it is." He said that includes surgeon general.

"The president's position on abortion, and that of the Republican Party, is well known, and the American people knew that when he was a candidate," Untermeyer said.

"Therefore, it is entirely appropriate for people being considered for appointments at HHS to be asked if they hold the same views as those of the president of the United States, who would appoint them," he said.

He added: "It is valid and proper and expected that somebody up for consideration for a position at HHS and certain kindred agencies should be asked that question, because you know they'll be asked that by Congress, the press and members of the public."

U.S. wants chemical weapons

Associated Press

WASHINGTON— The head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency confirmed Tuesday that the United States wants to reserve the right to continue producing chemical weapons, even as it pursues an international pact on banning the deadly weapons.

Ronald Lehman was asked in a meeting with reporters about recent reports that President Bush has signed an order allowing the continued production of a new generation of chemical weapons for an unspecified period of time.

The reports surfaced after Bush told the United Nations last month that he was proposing the United States and the Soviet Union cut their existing chemical weapons stockpiles by 80 percent as an impetus to the Geneva negotiations at which talks on curbing chemical weapons are underway.

The president did not mention his decision on production in his U.N. speech.

Bush, as vice president in 1984, carried a draft text to the Geneva negotiations proposing that nations signing a chemical weapons treaty cease producing such arms right away and destroy their stockpiles over a 10-year period. The international talks, in which 40 nations are taking part, resume next month.

An agreed-upon draft of the international treaty calls for the immediate end to the production of such weapons.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, on Monday criticized Bush's stance on continuing to produce chemical weapons, calling it "a major step backwards" and one that threatens the international negotiations.

Asked about such criticism, Lehman said the threat of chemical weapons "needs to be addressed and our policy has been to seek a total ban on the production and storage and use of these weapons."

U.S. officials contend Moscow has far greater stockpiles than the United States — an acknowledged 50,000 tons compared to an estimated 30,000 tons for the United States.

Bush proposed a U.S.-Soviet agreement to begin those cuts at once, while the 40-nation treaty was being worked out in which the United States would destroy 98 percent of its chemical weapons over eight years if the Soviets joined the ban.

Kurt Waldheim cleared of WWII crime allegations

Associated Press

LONDON— A government report published Tuesday cleared Austrian President Kurt Waldheim of allegations he was involved in the executions of British prisoners in Greece while serving as a German army officer in 1944.

Armed Forces Minister Archie Hamilton told Parliament 16 investigators examined thousands of documents provided by the United States, West Germany and Greece. Their 117-page report concluded Waldheim could not be held responsible for the prisoners' execution though he was probably aware of their fate.

Hamilton said the lengthy investigation failed to find evidence pointing to a war crime by Waldheim when he was a lieutenant serving as an intelligence officer in the Balkans.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher ordered the inquiry in February 1988.

The Justice Department said in Washington that Waldheim would still be banned from entering the United States. His name was placed on the unwanted list in April 1987 after a finding he was involved in the execution of Allied prisoners and the deportation of Jews to death camps.

Neal Sher, head of the U.S. Office of Special Investigation that looks into Nazi war crimes, said Tuesday, "The notion that Waldheim has been exonerated is absurd."

Waldheim always denied war crimes accusations and after the British report was delivered in Vienna, his office stated: "The investigation report of the British government relayed to the British Parliament today proves once again that the allegations against Federal President Dr. Kurt Waldheim in connection with his wartime service are devoid of any foundation in this case, too, as has been the case with previous accusations."

In an interview later on Austrian television, Waldheim said: "The report fills me, of course, with great satisfaction."

Six British commandos were captured in April 1944, two years after Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler ordered that all captured commandos be killed after interrogation.

The commandos of the Special Boat Squadron were taken to Arsakli, 10 miles east of Salonika, for interrogation at the headquarters of German Army Group E, where Waldheim was a junior intelligence officer.

The prisoners refused to talk and were later shot by firing squad in a suburb of Athens, a war crime under the Geneva Convention, which forbids killing prisoners of war.

"No evidence has come to light to indicate that as a junior staff officer he (Waldheim) had the power either to order or to prevent that fate or indeed to affect the outcome in any way," Hamilton said.

The report dismisses allegations that records were altered, destroyed or withheld to protect Waldheim and says Waldheim was never wanted by Britain either as a "top Nazi" or as a war criminal.

Assassin kills judge as drug war in Columbia continues

Associated Press

BOGOTA, Colombia— An assassin apparently sent by drug barons stepped from a motorcycle Tuesday and calmly killed a federal judge with six gunshots as he waited outside his home in Medellin for a ride to work, witnesses said.

Hours later, a radio announcer was shot to death by unidentified assailants in Medellin, hub of the major Colombian drug cartel, making him the eighth newsman assassinated since the government cracked down on narcotics traffickers on Aug. 19.

The radio network Caracol quoted police as saying two men on a motorcycle gunned down Diego Vargas Escobar of the Medellin station La Voz de las Americas while the 54-year-old was in his car in a western section of the city. The victim had worked for Caracol until changing jobs several months ago.

Police said there had no suspects in the shootings.

Earlier, an anonymous telephone caller to Caracol radio in Medellin said "the Extraditables" killed Judge Hector Jimenez Rodriguez in retaliation for the extradition of Colombians wanted on drug charges in the United States.

Jimenez, 55, is among scores of judges and court employees slain by the drug gangs. After his murder, the 14,000 members of a court workers' union, which includes federal judges, called a three-day strike that virtually shut down the judicial system.

Union spokeswoman Consuelo Herrera said about 3,000 of the estimated 9,000 non-union court employees had decided to join the strike.

A union executive in Bogota said none of Medellin's 42 federal judges had police protection. He spoke anonymously to avoid becoming a target of drug dealers.

'Students-teaching-students' employed in seminar

Dear Editor:

Two years ago, during the spring semester of 1988, a group of students initiated a new course at Notre Dame. This course, "Redefining Security?," was run under the rubric of an independent study. The primary reason for organizing "Redefining Security?" was to utilize a new pedagogy of learning. In the simplest of terms, this new pedagogy can be summarized most accurately as "students-teaching-students!"

The pedagogy itself is carried out through a seminar format. In this respect it is not new or original. However, what is new about the seminar is the removal of the faculty member from the role of the "teacher" in the classroom. Technically, this may still sound like a seminar, but the difference is a removal of a subtle hierarchy of authority usually stemming from the presence of a faculty member. Under the "new" pedagogy, the emphasis is placed on educating through a shared authority coming equally from all who participate in the seminar.

The heart of this new pedagogy can be stated as "actively practicing democracy by participating in the seminar/course itself." The student realizes either passivity or activity as a choice for which he/she is responsible. The project cannot simply be passed off to another, rather it must be engaged in and provided for continually by the students.

The course content is purely up to the imagination of the students. In the past two years subjects have included: Language, International Relations, Just War Theory, Nonviolence and Alternative Security, Human Rights, Economic Development, World Hunger, Global Environmental Issues, Utopias, the Peace Movement of the 1960's, Feminism, Literary Criticism, Students for Democracy, Vatican Council II, and Pop Art, to name a few.

In order to survive as an educational process, "Redefining Security?" demands student motivation and faculty support. If you are interested in learning more about "Redefining Security?" or if any of these subject areas appeal to your intellectual curiosity, please join us in a brief information meeting tonight at the Center for Social Concerns at 7:30 p.m.

God says 'no' to homosexuals and so should ND

Dear Editor:

Maybe it's because I'm old fashioned or in need of liberal enlightenment, but I have few sympathies for the plight of homosexuals on the Notre Dame campus. Their outrageous letter to the editor (The Observer, Oct. 11) is a clear example of how blatantly immoral the times in which we live have become. Are we to be criticized for not giving homosexuals a conducive environment in which to live at the preeminent Catholic institution in the nation?

Society refuses to accept homosexuals for the same reasons it rebukes criminals. For instance, our society has agreed that stealing is socially unacceptable and worthy of punishment; in a similar way, our society has also deemed that homosexual activity is socially unacceptable. These people make a choice, even if that choice is not entirely of their own free will. Those who "come out of the closet" are completely aware of the consequences of that choice. To demand acceptance and understanding from a society that rejects their lifestyle is unrealistic. The day our society can wholly embrace homosexuality is the day for some reason, the majority of the community is indeed homosexual.

Although Christians in the Notre Dame community should be especially sympathetic, we should by no means condone their lifestyle lest we abandon our principles and faith. We are ND: a society whose spiritual and intellectual growth are firmly rooted in the Catholic tradition. Quite simply, God says "no," and Christians should obey.

And exactly where do homosexuals believe their position in society should be? Why should any society have to accept what is believed to be wrong? It is obvious that we are a community morally asleep and indifferent. What other possible explanation is there for a community which allows "National Coming Out Day" for homosexuals? National Coming Out Day? What will come next, Hallmark greeting cards for such an occasion?

Business reputation gets a raw deal

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to John Blasi's "The Quest for the Easy A is a Futile Effort" inside column (The Observer, Oct. 12).

In this column, Mr. Blasi describes how his search for the perfect class, one that would "yield maximum results with a minimum of effort," led him to enroll in two introductory business classes. Unfortunately, he did not find these business classes to be as ridiculously easy as he had hoped.

Though I realize that Mr. Blasi was attempting to write his column humorously, the end result was a condescending and inane portrayal of the business major which exceeded the normal level of playful joking that often occurs between Arts and Letters and Business students.

It is unfortunate indeed that when Mr. Blasi signed up for his business classes, he was forced to compromise his superior ideals and submit himself to "be trained like a robotic tool and take [his] place with the other cogs in the wheels of corporate America." It is my understanding that in the PLS program, in which Mr. Blasi is enrolled, free thinking and acceptance of others' ideas is of high importance. Why then, does Mr. Blasi fail to offer me even the minimum degree of respect for my decision to study business? I do not consider myself or any of the other business majors with which I have been associated, to be "robotic tools." Like Mr. Blasi, I am even considering graduate school—obviously something which shouldn't even enter my one-track, unappreciative mind. Of course, the only proper thing for me to do upon graduation would be to don my blue suit, red tie, and wingtips and take my place helping to fill the corporate coffers.

I wish Mr. Blasi luck in finding his "perfect class." However, perhaps he should take a close look at why he apparently finds the classes in his own major so dissatisfying that he puts so much effort into searching through the other academic disciplines for easy courses.

Mahatma Gandhi
(1869-1948)

A plea for justice or death

This is an excerpt from the Plea of three accused African National Congress members who were on trial during my visit to South Africa. Their statement illustrates the true South Africa. It is, without doubt, one of the most moving documents I have ever read.

We stand here charged with "terrorism". The original charge against us was treason. After the State had been questioned on our behalf, it withdrew this charge. The next allegation was that we sought to overthrow the State. The present indictment still attributes such an intent to us. What was and still is omitted is that the State referred to is the apartheid state.

Our understanding of treason is that it is a crime against the people. It would, for instance, be treason to betray the people of this country and to take up arms against them. But our people have been treasonably betrayed.

The racist minority regime rules by force, through the barrel of the gun and without a mandate from the people. It has created an apartheid state and, in order to maintain and defend it, employs awesome weapons of war which it has unleashed against the citizenry of this country. One of the results is an ongoing international armed conflict in which the racist minority regime is ranged against the people of the country.

We believe that South Africa belongs to all who live in it and that no government can justly claim authority unless it is based on the will of the people. We accordingly abhor the apartheid state and, in so far as we have any choice in the matter, we owe it no allegiance whatsoever. We make no apologies for seeking its downfall. Nor do we believe that those who seek its demise, whether by international armed conflict or otherwise, should on that account be considered guilty of criminal conduct.

The regime therefore stands accused of treason and the people do not and will not withdraw that charge.

As for the charge we now face, we again say that it is the State that stands accused. In defense of its apartheid practices, this regime has brooked no opposition. Mass democratic organizations, the organizations of the people, have been silenced and their leaders gaoled or restricted. Tens of thousands of the regime's political opponents have languished in gaol, having been detained without trial. Scores of others are forced to stand trial for so-called crimes against the State. This is called the maintenance of law and order. We call it terrorism.

It is terrorism too when innocent men, women and children are attacked by the regime's police and SADF, and killed while they sleep, in foreign countries; we think of Maseru, Matola, Gaborone and others.

It is terrorism when this country's neighbors are destabilized, all in the name of apartheid.

It is terrorism when assassination squads, operating inside and outside this country, hunt for and eliminate opponents of apartheid. We think of Ruth First, Jeanette Schoon, Pat Ndzima, Cassius Make, Abram Tiro and many others.

It is terrorism when, in the pursuit of apartheid, whole communities are uprooted--when extreme misery and poverty are the lot of certain sections of the population while others enjoy a standard of living which rates with the highest in the world.

We say that it is the regime that is guilty of terrorism. It would therefore be terrorism for us to identify with apartheid, or to condone a system that forces its youth to take up arms against fellow citizens, to defend the indefensible.

Apartheid stands condemned as a crime against humanity. It has been declared a crime by the international community and has been rejected as a heresy and a sin by the religious community. Yet it has been allowed to devastate millions of lives in this country.

Most regrettably, apartheid has not left the legal system and the judicial process of this country untainted. With due respect to your Lordship and learned Assessors, we have to point out that an official Court in this country cannot ignore the laws to which it owes its existence, nor the body of laws which constitute the apartheid legal system: in other words it is enjoined to apply an unjust legal system.

One facet of the workings of the system has already been manifested in this case, in the course of events whereby we were arrested, detained, interrogated and brought to trial.

After our arrest, we were detained under Section 29 of the Internal Security Act, a provision which is, in practice, used only against the political opponents of the regime. It is a horrific legal provision and it is in blatant disregard of the Rule of Law. The Security Police have not failed to take full advantage of its provisions; it enables them to operate in the dark and to extract maximum advantage to the maximum detriment of their victim. It enables them to exert pressure on the detainee such as torture, intimidation and assault. It exposes the detainee to dehumanizing and degrading treatment, lengthy interrogation and months of solitary confinement without even the basic mental comforts such as reading material, access to family, friends and legal representation and advice. It is as though the system is designed to destroy the detainee; it is in fact designed to break him, to force him to produce information which will be used against him at his trial. Having undergone the rigors of Section 29 ourselves, we are not surprised that political trials are characterized by a high number of "confessions" allegedly made by the accused. The courts have admitted numerous of these so-called confessions.

The Act stipulates that the detainee should be visited periodically by a magistrate as well as by other employees of the State. We were so visited. Some of us were also visited by the Judge President of this division. Our experience shows that these visits do not succeed to ameliorate in any substantial way the conditions under which we are kept. It would rather seem that they were designed to put a more humane veneer to barbaric treatment which is in effect sanctioned and countenanced by the law. Some of our comrades still bear painful reminders of their ordeal; they are still receiving medical and psychological treatment.

There is no doubt that the State is using the section as a terrorist weapon: to exact a terrible revenge on opponents of the regime's sterile and outdated policies. Eventually, when the victim has been thoroughly broken, he is brought before these courts to put a final stamp of credibility on the actions of the police. The Court then in effect becomes a mere tool of the oppressor.

The courts have, furthermore, failed to fight the erosion of civil liberties. The judiciary have, by their silence, allowed this erosion to gain momentum and the courts now find themselves bereft of their traditional role of an independent arbiter and protector of individual rights.

The total picture is therefore that of a regime which has treated the courts of this land with disdain. We cannot therefore have confidence in those Courts; they are not the Courts of the people of South Africa; they cannot dispense "justice" except in accordance with the guidelines and rules devised by the oppressor. Our ideal is that all shall be equal before the law; that the courts shall be representative of all the people.

While, therefore, we find ourselves compelled by circumstances to participate in the proceedings in this case, as we intend to do, we have no desire, nor do we find it at all necessary, to plead to the charges brought against us in this court.

Finally, we cannot fail to observe that there are numerous political trials before the courts in this country. Hundreds of our comrades, decent, sensitive and intelligent men and women are daily arraigned; they have but one thing in common: they pursue the same ideal of freedom which the fathers and grandfathers of today's rulers sought and fought for against the British. But they seek something more; they struggle for a new society where discrimination based on the color of one's skin shall be a thing of the past. Hundreds of these noble souls already populate the gaps of this country. Thousands more have suffered severe deprivation whilst being held in detention for indefinite periods without trial, the anguish and desperation of it all sometimes driving some of them to adopt extreme measures, such as hunger strikes, in order to draw attention to their plight.

We in this court are but a humble few. We tread a thorny path which is rapidly becoming a highway. We do expect pain, prison and death if need be.

But our cause is just. Therefore, and in accordance with the ideals enshrined in the Freedom Charter, we here, together with the rest of the people of South Africa, black and white--equals, countrymen, brothers and sisters--will strive together, sparing nothing of our strength and courage, until a just and democratic society is achieved.

Victory is certain. South Africa shall be free." This is the fourth in a series of articles about South Africa. Mike Schadek is a senior government major.

Tickets for this weekend's baseball games and tennis match against USC are on sale in the dining halls at dinner this week or at Gate 10 of the Joyce ACC. Student Blue/Gold Cards will be accepted at the baseball game. Student tickets for both events will be $2 each. Tickets are also available at the door.

Shuttle service for students to the Notre Dame-USC baseball game will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday from the main circle. The buses will leave Friday immediately following the pep rally from the Joyce ACC.

Hapkido Club meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 219 Rockne Memorial. Learn self-defense from sixth degree black belt Phil Hong. Beginners welcome.

Basketball ticket sales begin Monday, Oct. 30. Seniors may buy tickets on Monday, juniors on Tuesday, sophomores, grad and law students on Wednesday and freshmen on Thursday. Applications will be in students' mailboxes by Oct. 30. Tickets for the 11 home games are $55 for lower arena and $44 for bleachers.

were reports of fires and damage in the city.

The press box in Candlestick Park shifted as the initial tremor hit. There was an announcement to clear the upper deck, but most of the fans remained.

At the time of the tremor, a band was playing on the outfield grass and hundreds of balloons were set to be released as Candlestick prepared for its first World Series game since 1962.

A few minutes after the first aftershock there was another brief tremor at about 5:10 p.m., but the fans remained calm and stayed in their seats.

Candlestick Park, which opened in 1960, has a capacity of 60,000. At the time of the initial tremor, the stadium was almost full.

Mike Pechner, a local meteorologist, said he was walking up a concrete ramp with hundreds of fans when the stadium began to sway.

"We knew what it was right away," Pechner said. "But everyone remained calm and kept going."

Lois Gilliam, a stadium vendor, said "the power went out. It came back on and scared me, and I grew up here. The building shook. The power went out."

She said people were in line to buy snacks when the earthquake hit and stayed there after the tremor.

The Notre Dame-USC baseball series, dubbed as the South Bend Tribune Irish Fall Classic, will have one aspect alien to college baseball during the regular season. Both teams will be exclusively using wooden bats.

Furnished by Louisville Slugger and engraved with the wording "USC vs. Notre Dame," the bats could produce a game very different from the normal collegiate style, where the use of aluminum bats often results in high-scoring contests.

Notre Dame has been working with wooden bats throughout their fall drills.

"It helps us in a number of ways," said Murphy. "The wooden bats force you to drive through the ball and use your hands more in hitting. With aluminum, you can have success without doing those things. It also gives all the scouts in the area an indication of what the players can do with a wooden bat in their hands."

Wooden bats are not used in college baseball, primarily because of their added expense in comparison to aluminum.

"I think the game of baseball is meant to be played with a wooden bat," Murphy continued. "If you polled college coaches and they had financial backing, they'd say they'd rather be playing wood."

Wednesday night's earthquake was not the first unusual incident to occur at San Francisco's notorious Candlestick Park. The "Stick" has gained a reputation for being the home of baseball's strangest moments since the Giants moved there in 1960.

Quake latest of Candlestick curses

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The earthquake that caused postponement of Game 3 of the World Series Tuesday night was another chapter in the controversial history of Candlestick Park.

The stadium, in which the San Francisco Giants began play in 1960, has been the butt of jokes because of the cold, windy, foggy weather conditions that sometimes assail the park during the baseball season.

The nation got a first-hand look at what can happen at Candlestick Park during the 1961 All-Star Game, when pitcher Stu Miller was blown off balance during his windup.

The following year, Game 6 of the World Series between the Giants and New York Yankees was postponed three consecutive days because of rain. The field eventually was dried by the high-speed rotors of helicopters hovering a few feet above the playing surface.

The stadium was built after the Giants played their first two seasons in San Francisco at Seals Stadium, a former minor league park. Candlestick was built at Candlestick Point, which juts into San Francisco Bay about five miles south of the center of the city.

It has long been renowned for strong winds which blow in from left field, accompanied by chill, moisture and occasional dense fog. Major league players have complained about the conditions since the park was built. A routine fly ball with the wind blowing at Candlestick can become a difficult chance.

The city-owned stadium has been a subject of political debate for years, with several proposals made for building a park elsewhere in the city. The latest idea is to construct a park in the China Basin area, about three miles north of Candlestick, adjacent to the west shore of the bay.

A bond issue seeking support for a new stadium is being put before the voters next month. Giants owner Bob Lurie, who has been courted by San Jose and Santa Clara, about 40 miles to the south, has said the Giants will not play in Candlestick when their lease expires after the 1994 season.

When Lurie reached agreement with the city last summer for the China Basin park, a $115 million project, the city said it would allow him to move after next year if voters reject a stadium construction bond issue. They did so in 1987.

The stadium seated 42,500 when built and was virtually open behind left field, where the winds begin to blow heavily most afternoons at mid-game. It was double-decked all around in 1972 to increase capacity.

Lemieux, Penguins defeat Leafs

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Randy Gilhen scored with 3:34 remaining and Mario Lemieux had the 22nd three-goal game of his career as the Pittsburgh Penguins overcame a 3-1 deficit to beat the Toronto Maple Leafs 7-5 Tuesday night.

Lemieux — who twice hit an empty net — also had two assists to raise his point total to 14.

Ten seconds after Lemieux hit the empty net the first time, Toronto's Al Iafate scored his second goal of the game. Lemieux then scored his fourth of the season into the empty net with 13 seconds left.

Gilhen got off a low, hard shot into the far corner of the net despite being checked closely by defenseman Rob Ramage. It was his second goal of the season and broke a 4-4 tie.

Rob Brown scored on Pittsburgh's first shot before the Maple Leafs came back with three consecutive goals. Brown converted Lemieux's pass during a power play at 3:52.

Dan Daoust, Iafate and Daniel Marios scored in a span of 8:06 for Toronto. Daoust scored at 10:32, Iafate scored while being held by Randy Hiller at 12:19 and Marios converted a power-play chance at 18:38.

Flames 8, Nordiques 8

The Calgary Flames tied an NHL record by scoring two goals, both short-handed, in four seconds and also had three goals in a 27-second span during the third period Tuesday night to pull into an 8-8 tie with the Quebec Nordiques.

With the Flames' Gary Roberts off for roughing in the final minute, Calgary (4-1-2) pulled goaltender Mike Vernon and sent five attackers against the Nordiques.

Doug Gilmour scored with a quick shot from the left faceoff circle at 19:45 and then fed Paul Ranheim off the ensuing faceoff for the tying goal at 19:49 on a wrist shot from the top of the slot.

Three other teams have scored two goals within four seconds, most recently Toronto last December. The shortest time ever between goals is two seconds, accomplished by St. Louis and Boston in 1987.

The Nordiques, helped by two five-minute powerplays when the Flames' Jiri Hrdina and Theoren Fleury were ejected for drawing blood on high-sticking infractions, led 8-3 with 12:25 remaining.

Stars 6, Islanders 3

Larry Murphy set up five goals, including two each by Mike Gartner and Neal Broten, as the Minnesota North Stars remained the NHL's only unbeaten team with a 6-3 victory over the New York Islanders Thursday night.

Minnesota is 5-0-1 and has scored 26 goals, while allowing 16 in its best start in seven years. The North Stars also beat the Islanders 6-5 in the season opener.

Gartner and Broten each scored a goal in the first period and had half of Minnesota's four goals in the second period.

The North Stars broke it open with three goals in the final 7:36 of the middle period, including Dave Gagner's power-play score with one second remaining in the session. The Islanders' Randy Wood had been ejected with a match penalty for attempting to injure Curt Giles, creating the manpower edge.

Hawks 3, Rangers 3

Greg Gilbert's wrist shot off a pass from Troy Murray with 3:21 to go gave the Chicago Blackhawks a 3-3 tie with the New York Rangers Tuesday night.

Boxing Club gains experience for Bouts

The Boxing Club held its novice tournament last Friday at the Joyce ACC. Although the name of the tournament suggests that the boxers don't have previous experience in the ring, the boxing was of high quality.

"All the fighters really used their fundamentals," said Club president Doug Biolchini. "A lot of times when they get in the ring for the first time, fighters forget to think, but everyone used what they learned well."

Mike Kamradt Club Corner

The fights kicked off with the 130 lb. class as Chris "Ned" Sneddon took on Shane Mickey. The bout was well fought by both fighters, but Sneddon was able to use his jab well to propel him to victory.

"It was a lot of fun," said Sneddon. "I have a lot to learn before the Bengals. Since I started though, I've learned a lot about the fundamentals."

At 138 lbs., Craig Tiller won over Kevin Prendeville. David Iverson defeated David Nouhauer at 145 lbs. and at 150 lbs. Pat LeRoe beat Joe Kerrigan. In the latter fight, the two fighters battled each other evenly until LeRoe was finally able to use his reach advantage to gain the victory.

At 155 lbs. Mike Murray won against Andres Rodriguez and Pat Murphy beat Craig Guffey at 158 pounds. Guffey was hurt in the second round, but managed to hold off his opponent's attack and finish the fight.

The next fight was an exhibition between club officer Dave Cane and novice Steve Kubinski. Cane used his experience well as he was constantly on the move and slipping in punches. Kubinski held his own showing good style and form.

The day's best fight was in the 160 lb. division where Tim Trainor met Tim Tyvand. Trainor, who had the help of his Bengal Bout champion brother in getting ready for the fight, used a very aggressive style while Tyvand took advantage of his reach. The aggressiveness of Trainor eventually proved to be the deciding factor in the fight.

The rest of the tournament saw Mike Boutin defeat Mike Rubino, J.P. McNeil down John Rapchinski, Justin Moran over Mike Folgia, Pat Walsh beating Chris Sullivan, and at the 197 lb. division, Greg Cooper win a decision over John Donahoe.

The good fights in the novice tournament should prove to carry over to next spring's Bengal Bouts and once again provide the spectators with a good display of boxing. The fans present at the novice tournament got a small taste of what is to come in the future.

The Rugby Club had a disappointing weekend against Kalamazoo College as the A side lost 26-13 and the B side was dropped 7-6. In the A side game the Irish came out flat again.

"I don't know what's wrong," said president Mike Smiggen. "We just can't seem to get up for the beginning of the game."

Notre Dame fell behind 16-3 at the half with Sean McNamara scoring the Irish points on a penalty kick. Less than a minute into the second half the Irish had another defensive breakdown and fell behind 20-3. Notre Dame rallied to play well for the rest of the half, but it was too little too late.

"We just didn't adapt fast enough and we had problems of our own," said Smiggen. "Our forwards played pretty well, but we had a lot of trouble with their backs."

The Sailing Club traveled to Ohio over the weekend to compete in the Ohio State Regatta. The Irish finished 5th out of 15 teams that included Midwest powers Michigan, Michigan State, and Western Michigan. The A division was skipped by Patti Losinske with Paige Cooper and Paul Matier splitting time as the crew in the 6th place finish for the weekend. The B boat finished in 2nd with Lisa Fox at skipper and Laura Sullivan as the crew. The Irish missed 4th place by only a few points.

The next big weekend for the club is the Area Eliminations on the weekend of November 5th. There are 3 areas in the Midwest and the top three from each one will compete in the Midwestern Collegiate Sailing Association Championships the following weekend.

Davis always ready when the secondary needs a boost

By KEN TYSIAC
Sports Writer

In speaking of his increased playing time on the Notre Dame football team, junior safety Greg Davis sounds like a preacher exhorting his congregation to live a holy life.

"You never know when you're going to get the call," says Davis, speaking of his role as a reserve coming off the bench to relieve D'Juan Francisco and Pat Terrell. "You have to be ready at all times."

"I didn't play very much last year, but the other defensive backs help me out a lot because they are confident in my ability. So it's not like there's any pressure on me when I come into the game," he continued.

In a defensive secondary, confidence in the abilities of your teammates is crucial to success because everybody is responsible for their own man or zone. Fellow junior Todd Lyght, who starts at cornerback, is one of those who is in Davis's confidence corner.

"Greg fits in well in the secondary," praises Lyght. "He's one of the strongest hitters we have in the defensive backfield. Greg really likes to express himself by making a big collision with a receiver on the field."

One of those big collisions in practice early in the year left Greg with a broken thumb. But he did his best to practice every day despite the pain. Lyght thinks Davis proved a lot to his teammates by gritting his teeth and taking the injury in stride.

"Greg showed a lot of toughness by coming to practice while he was injured and catching the ball with a cast on. He really set a good example for our younger players by showing them that you can practice when you are hurt," says Lyght.

Davis modestly downplays his bravery. "The injury wasn't really that bad," he says, "It was only difficult to catch and grab with the injured hand."

Greg's persistence earned him a spot as backup to safety

D'Juan Francisco, and when Francisco went down with a painful leg cramp with the Irish clinging to a tenuous lead late in the Stanford game two weeks ago, Davis got his call from coach Lou Holtz. He responded by causing a fumble with a big hit on a Stanford receiver and forcing the Cardinal to punt with an important third down tackle.

"It felt good to make the big plays and help the team," says Davis, "I want to contribute to the team the best that I can and hopefully if I get the chance to start some time in the future, I'll be ready."

Davis and his fellow defensive backs had better be ready for their next two games. USC and Pittsburgh both have red-shirt freshman quarterbacks who are coming into their own. This Saturday, the Irish will have to contend with Todd Marinovich, who has been giving PAC-10 opponents fits this season.

Davis says that to be successful against the Trojans, the Irish secondary will have to "be very physical and stay with our assignments. We'll have to really concentrate out there and do what we're supposed to do. Everybody out there will have to discipline himself to play his own position, because if we start trying to play our teammates' positions we will get burned."

With the improvement of Greg Davis, Irish fans should worry a lot less about their favorite team getting burned in the secondary. "Greg has really matured a lot this year," says Todd Lyght, "He is becoming a dominant player in the secondary."

Defense dominating in IH football Cavanaugh, Morrissey remain among unbeaten teams

By CHRIS FILLIO
Sports Writer

In the fourth week of men's interhall football action, all seven games resulted in shutouts, including one scoreless tie.

Games in the Leahy Division were both decided by a 6-0 score. Cavanaugh continued its bid for an undefeated season by downing the once mighty Stanford Studs with but a single score.

Cavanaugh plowed 75 yards for their touchdown, a one-yard scamper by senior two-way man Trent Boneau. Quarterback Chris Fox fueled the drive with connections of 42 and 23 yards to Roger Ptak and Dave Richardson, respectively.

"The defense played a great ballgame," said coach Ken Cotter. "They really rose to the occasion."

Defensive standouts included Boneau, John Niehaus, Flip Molloy and Kyle Sullivan, holding Stanford to only one first down, which was converted on a pass interference call.

In the other division game, Alumni bested Zahm with the same 6-0 score.

In the Parsegian Division, Off Campus beat Keenan and Dillon topped Flanner, both by a 14-0 score. Morrissey completed the shutout circus with a 6-0 victory over Grace.

"We played from the heart in that game," said Morrissey head coach Dave Shaw, "and Grace was a tough team to beat."

Morrissey drove the length of the field with some big ground gains by Brian Doherty, who also punched it in for the touchdown. Holding Grace to minimal first down conversions, Morrissey remained among the unbeaten elites.

Play in the Rockne Division saw Fisher down St. Ed's, 7-0, with a rare occurrence of the often-elusive extra point. The Pangborn Violence and the Sorin Otters battled to a scoreless tie.

On Wednesday, men's interhall football will return to Cartier Field, with four games slated to be played under the lights. At 7:00 p.m., Alumni faces Holy Cross. The Vermin will meet the Otters as Carroll squares off against Sorin at 8:00 p.m., in a game which could help shape the playoff picture. Dillon will put its undefeated record on the line against Keenan in the 9:00 p.m. game. The final game of the evening will pit Flanner against unbeaten Morrissey at 10:00 p.m.

ND men's soccer to host DePaul

Observer Staff Report

Having ended a six-game winless streak earlier this week, the Notre Dame soccer team looks to continue its winning ways at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday with an afternoon match against DePaul at Alumni Field.

The Irish are coming off a 9-2 Monday home victory over Valparaiso that improved their record on the year to 6-5-3.

Notre Dame has defeated DePaul, 4-9-1, every time in the nine-game history between the two Great Lakes Region schools. Tim Green and Randy Stedman lead the Blue Demon scoring attack, while goalkeeper Rich Horwath has posted a 2.31 goals against average.

Former Irish goalkeeper Danny Coughlin coaches the DePaul squad.

In Monday's victory over Valparaiso, the Irish ended a three-game scoring drought in impressive fashion. Freshman Kevin Pendergast led the Notre Dame effort with a hat trick, and sophomore Kenyon Meyer recorded two goals and one assist.

Tom Connaghan, Mitch Kern, Paul Kaemmerer and Peter Sanchez also scored goals in the win over Valparaiso.

The Irish had not scored a goal in over a week prior to the Valpo contest, losing 4-0 to Santa Clara and having scoreless ties with Cal. State-Los Angeles and Akron.

Notre Dame will conclude its homestand at 7:30 p.m. Friday with a match against Midwest Collegiate Conference rival Loyola at Krause Stadium.

Notre Dame senior goalkeeper Danny Lyons could break the school's career appearance record in Friday's match. John Milligan currently holds the record of 60 appearances from 1978-81.

Lyons had played in 57 games entering this week.

San Francisco earthquake postpones Series

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The World Series was postponed Tuesday night when an earthquake shook northern California shortly before gametime, damaging and forcing evacuation of crowded Candlestick Park.

A decision on when and where Game 3 of the first-ever Bay Bridge series between the Oakland Athletics and the San Francisco Giants will be played will not be made until Wednesday. A section of the Bay Bridge itself collapsed.

Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent said there were cracks in the stadium and the extent of damage would not be known until later in the night. No major injuries were reported.

One possibility was that the series would be moved back to Oakland, where the A's won the first two games Saturday and Sunday.

A section in the upper stands in right field separated by about six inches, and several cracks ran down the concrete aisle and broke off. Fans were carrying them home as souvenirs.

"The people two to three rows in front of me had big pieces of metal several inches, fall on their heads," said David Guzzetti, a city council member from Chico, Calif. "The light towers were just rocking back and forth. I couldn't believe it."

The quake registered 6.5 to 7.0 on the Richter scale 10 miles north of Santa Cruz. It shook buildings in Sacramento, 95 miles to the northeast, and was felt as far away as Reno, Nev., 225 miles to the east.

least 45 minutes after the quake struck at 5:05 p.m. PDT. Players stayed on the field for 30 minutes before the game was postponed. Many of them left hand-in-hand with their families.

"I was sitting on the bench and at first I thought it was the fans stamping (their feet)," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa. "Then right away I realized what was happening."

"You can't stop concrete," Oakland outfielder Dave Henderson said. "Forget the World Series."

"I try to be a big tough guy," said 6-foot-3 umpire Eric

Gregg. "but I was scared senseless. I couldn't fit under the table and finally I went to stand under some arches."

Oakland slugger Jose Canseco was standing with his wife when the tremor hit. He said he looked up at fans yelling at him and thought, "Jeez, look at that. They still want us to play."

An hour after the earthquake was felt, about two-thirds to three-fourths of the sellout crowd of 60,000 were still in their seats, but police began evacuating the upper deck about 5:40 p.m., 10 minutes after the game was scheduled to start and moments after a second aftershock was felt at the ballpark.

The power in the stadium was knocked out and phone lines were disturbed.

"The game couldn't be started because a power transformer is out," Vincent said. "We have to wait to see if the power comes back on. We are not going to start the game unless we get lights."

ABC, which was on the air from Candlestick Park at the time, announced it lost the feed from its truck at the stadium.

The network was doing its pre-game show when announcer Al Michaels said: "There's an earth ..." and the picture was lost.

The first aid station at Candlestick reported a few people were hit by falling debris and were being treated. None of the injuries was said to be serious.

However, a 30-foot section of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge collapsed and there

ND women's soccer team looking to extend 8-game winning streak

By DAVID DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team (11-6), which extended its winning streak to eight games with inspired victories over Alma College and Saint Mary's this past weekend, takes on the University of Chicago tonight at 7:30 at Moose Krause Stadium in its last home game of the 1989 season.

Last Friday, the Irish women defeated Alma College of Michigan by a considerable margin for their tenth win of the season, as opposed to six losses. The win over Alma set a new record of eight consecutive wins in a season for the women, again besting the previous high of six consecutive wins set last year.

On Monday night, the Irish women looked to extend that record winning streak to nine games, and that they did, earning a crucial 1-0 decision over Saint Mary's College for their eleventh win of the year.

Notre Dame's lone goal came on a first half score by sophomore forward Susie Zilvitis. Meanwhile freshman goalkeeper Michelle Lodyga had several critical saves late in the second half, and the talented Irish defensive unit did their jobs to preserve the win. The tough work ethic of the Notre Dame women was especially evident in the second half, as the Irish made good use of their staggering depth, with frequent substitutions and intense play.

"These girls played really hard and did really well. We had a tremendous first half, and the team really pulled together to get this victory. Saint Mary's played very well, to their credit," said head coach Dennis Grace. "This was our eighth win in a row, and I'm very proud of and very hopeful for these girls. Still, we need to have a good game against Chicago, because after that game we go to the Virginia Classic and the Midwest Collegiate Conference Tournament."

Tonight's game versus Chicago is pivotal to the team's hopes for the season, as it is not only the last home game of the 1989 season, but also the last match before the Notre Dame women have to face nationally ranked Virginia and Duke. Additionally, the Midwest Collegiate Conference Tournament, from which the Irish came away empty-handed last year, looms ominously on the horizon for this young team.

However, it would be nothing short of wrong to dismiss Notre Dame's chances. As coach Grace stated, "As far as Chicago is concerned, they are going to have to come in here ready to play. Notre Dame is going to be tough to beat, as Saint Mary's found out. We're going out ready to play hard."

Finally, though some onlookers may be startled by Notre Dame's rampant success of late, determined play and winning are certainly not uncharacteristic of this year's edition of Notre Dame women's soccer.

"Even though we started the season at 2-6, we were playing well," Grace said. "Really, our competition dictated our win-loss record in those first few games. It's easy to get down in the face of adversity, but our girls didn't do that. We beat Indiana to start this winning streak, and that's something we've never done before."

USC baseball coach adjusts to pressure

Replacing a legendary figure like Rod Dedeaux, perhaps the most revered college baseball coach of all time, might be too much for some to handle.

For Southern California coach Mike Gillespie, it's business as usual.

"It's been a tremendous responsibility and challenge; the heritage of USC baseball is the best in the country," said Gillespie, whose team has a two-game exhibition series with Notre Dame this week. "But we've been so busy that we haven't been caught up in worry."

Steve Megargee Irish Items

USC plays Notre Dame at 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 p.m. Friday at Coveleski Stadium. Shuttle buses will take students from campus to the stadium and back both nights.

Gillespie is in his fourth year at USC since replacing the retired Dedeaux, who made Trojan national titles practically an annual event in the 1970s and whose former players could make up a major league all-star team. The fact that Dedeaux continues to assist the program in retirement makes the transition easier, according to Gillespie.

And when you're in a conference like the Six-Pac, one actually does get too busy to worry about other things. The conference includes the entire Pac-10 minus the Oregon and Washington schools and produces so many College World Series teams that it drew major attention last summer when no Six-Pac teams made the trip to Omaha.

"Very seldom has that happened over the last 30 years," said Gillespie.

Prior to then, the Six-Pac had produced the last three national champions (Arizona in 1986, Stanford in '87 and '88). The 1988 national title game was between conference foes Stanford and Arizona State.

"There's not a weak link," said Gillespie. "Every week you go out, and it's a grind. But it's great fun when you're in that high level of competition."

That brutal schedule may explain why USC has not enjoyed the success in recent seasons than it was accustomed to several years back. The Trojans' luck could be changing this spring.

USC returns eight starters and almost its entire pitching staff from a team that reached the NCAA tournament last year.

"It was a surprise," Gillespie says of the team's performance last season. "Our freshmen played beyond what we anticipated of them."

Gillespie is particularly high on his team's hitting attack, which features Brett Boone (son of major league great Bob), Brett Jenkins, Murph Proctor and Mark Smith.

Trojan centerfielder John Jackson will not be playing for the baseball team this week because of his commitments as the starting left end on the USC football team.

"They're loaded, perhaps the best baseball team ever to play at Coveleski," said Notre Dame baseball coach Pat Murphy. "It must be very difficult to replace Dedeaux, who won 11 national championships and still stands as a legend in college baseball."

"Mike Gillespie has his own dynasty building, and you'll start to see it this year. The way you recall Rockne and then Leahy, you'll think about Dedeaux and Gillespie."
