E. Germany replaces Honecker after 18 yr. rule

Associated Press

BERLIN — East Germany's Communist Party on Wednesday ousted Erich Honecker, the builder of the Berlin Wall, but new party leader Egon Krenz quickly made clear he intended no sharing of power with pro-democracy groups.

Honecker ruled with an iron fist for 18 years. He was replaced amid growing unrest, calls for democratic reform and a flight West by East German refugees.

Honecker, reported ill after a gallbladder operation in August, said he was resigning for health reasons.

Two other ruling Politburo members also lost their jobs.

The state news agency ADN said Krenz will take over as Communist Party chief, head of state and military boss, replacing his 77-year-old mentor in all three roles.

Krenz, 52, a Honecker protégé, conceded in his first national address that discussion of changes was important, but declared, "Without the Communist Party there would be no German Democratic Republic (East Germany)."

More than 53,000 East Germans fled to West Germany in the last two months, rejecting the rigid authoritarian system at home, and tens of thousands turned out in major East German cities this month to demonstrate for more freedom.

Krenz said in an hourlong speech carried on state TV, "We all sense and recognize the great opportunity to determine, in dialogue with all the citizens of our country, a new socialist course.

"We know well the serious situation at hand."

But he added, "Our society already has enough democratic forums in which different interests from various parts of the population" can express themselves.

He accused West German officials of meddling in East Germany's internal affairs and reaffirmed East Germany's sovereignty.

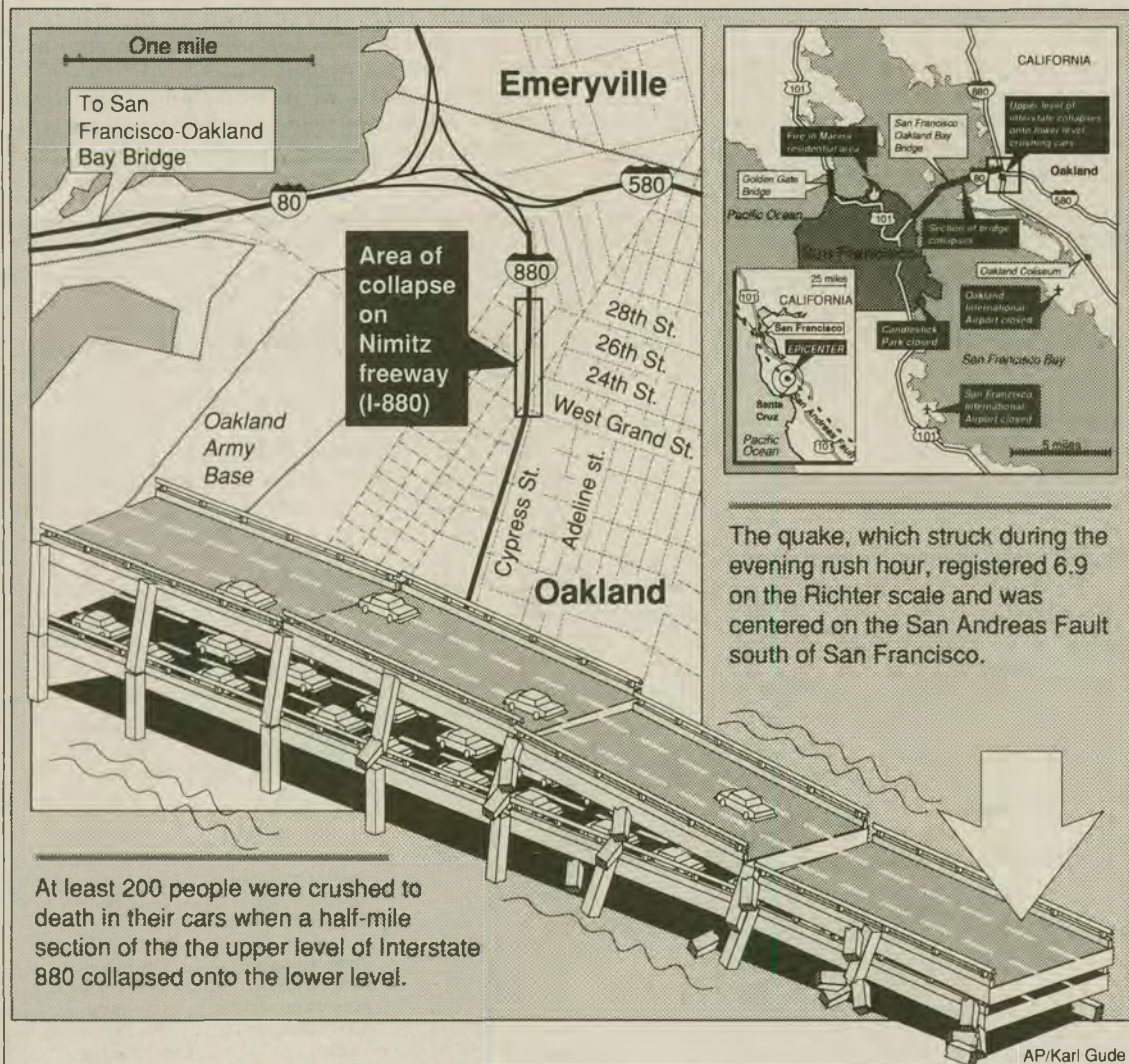

Krenz, referring to the continuing mass exodus, asked all his countrymen to stay and work for improvements at home.

"These wounds will smart for a long time, but if we steadfastly address ourselves to the causes, perhaps we can make those who are considering leaving think again," he said.

Krenz said West Germany's refusal to recognize East German citizenship was an obstacle to any new travel law.

More than 250 feared dead in Oakland freeway collapse

Earthquake Damage Overview

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rescuers Wednesday found at least one person alive in the rubble of Interstate 880, the elevated road turned into a giant concrete pancake and gnarled girders by the earthquake.

More than 250 rush-hour commuters were feared buried in the section of the Nimitz Freeway, which collapsed during Tuesday evening's devastating 6.9-magnitude quake.

Seven bodies were recovered by midday, and police said at least 86 people still were reported missing.

At about 6 p.m., Mayor Lionel Wilson was telling reporters that a search had found no survivors when police Lt. Kristina Wraa interrupted to say one had been discovered.

"We have confirmed that there is one person alive, apparently in a car underneath the top level," Wraa said, adding that rescue workers had heard a voice and established physical contact with the survivor.

Gov. George Deukmejian claimed the collapse of I-880 was the result of substandard construction, although state transportation officials said the freeway, one of the oldest in the area, had been reinforced and was considered earthquake-safe. However, they said further upgrading had

Rescue workers using dogs, jackhammers and muscle searched for victims in the twisted metal and concrete, and used a concrete saw to cut through cement to each automobile. Search dogs covered all but two sections of the collapsed freeway and found no survivors, Wraa said.

A helicopter brought in a remote-control backhoe late Wednesday afternoon. Officials planned to shore up the freeway with steel and wood piles to protect workers from a possible aftershock.

The search was moving "slowly and meticulously" because the collapsed highway was like "a house of cards" that could crash down at any time, Kyle Nelson of the California Department of Transportation said earlier.

Shortly before dawn, a hook-and-ladder truck moved alongside the flattened section of I-880. It stopped periodically to allow firefighters to shine bright lights into gaps between the northbound upper deck and the southbound lower deck.

Screams and the crash of metal brought bystanders to the scene on Tuesday.

Provost appoints a committee on ethics

By JOHANNA KELLY
News Staff

In response to a growing concern about ethics on campus and in society, Provost Timothy O'Meara has appointed a committee to review the ethical dimension of education at Notre Dame.

"While Notre Dame has always taken pride in its focus on ethics and values, the new committee will review how effective we are today in this area and make recommendations for improvement," O'Meara said.

The committee will examine undergraduate and graduate education in each of Notre Dame's colleges as well as in the Law School. The new committee plans to help better prepare Notre Dame students for their future professional responsibilities, he said.

The Notre Dame faculty is also targeted for reform with hopes of deepening their discussion of ethics and values, according to a press release. In addition, the committee will research the University's current standards and increase the effectiveness of Notre Dame's existing ethical centers.

"We've always been concerned about ethics here at Notre Dame," said O'Meara.

The new committee, to be chaired by Father Oliver Williams, associate provost, will include Alan Howard, professor of mathematics; David Link, Joseph A. Matson dean and professor of law; Alasdair

Luggage service makes trial run Friday

By NATASHA WILSON
Senior Staff Reporter

The Irish Express Luggage Service will transport student's bags Friday from the dorms to the main circle bus stop for the United Limo shuttle to O'Hare.

The new service, which is sponsored by the Student Government, will operate for the shuttles leaving Notre Dame at 3:20 p.m., 5:20 p.m. and 7:20 p.m. Friday.

"For this first attempt we're servicing only three of the O'Hare shuttles. One shuttle leaves campus every two hours each day," said junior Sigi Loya, who developed the service.

The luggage service will retrieve bags at designated areas outside the dorms and deliver them via Rider trucks to the main circle at no cost to students. Specific pick-up times and locations are listed on posters in the residence halls, he said.

Students who miss the pick-up time for their dorms may take their luggage to a baggage stop at any other residence hall, said Loya who is the District Four student senator.

Alumni, Dillon, Fisher and Pangborn Halls were excluded from the service because of their proximity to the main circle, he said.

The organizers of the service designed a security system to ensure the correct distribution of luggage to the students, Loya said.

The luggage service workers will tag each bag at the pick-up site and will give corresponding claim checks to the owner of the luggage. Students must present the claim checks at the main circle to retrieve their bags before boarding the United Limo shuttle, he said.

An "Irish Express" banner will hang from each truck so students can easily identify the service from any other trucks on campus, Loya said.

"There won't be any shuttles at the end of (this) break because it would be too difficult to estimate when students will be coming back," he said.

"It's hard to go by this first time because of the football game," Loya said. Many students will remain on campus until after Notre Dame plays USC Saturday afternoon, he explained.

WORLD BRIEFS

The Hungarian Parliament changed the country's communist name and created a democratic system by adopting key constitutional amendments Wednesday in Budapest. Amendments formally ending one-party domination in Hungary, regulating free elections by next summer and creating the office of state president won overwhelming approval at the nationally televised session. The country was renamed the Republic of Hungary. Like other Soviet bloc nations, it had been known as a "people's republic" since 1949.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Space shuttle Atlantis soared into orbit Wednesday and its astronauts started the Galileo probe on a six-year, roundabout journey to Jupiter for the closest look yet at the colossus of the solar system. Earlier, concerns about Galileo's nuclear power supply were left behind as Atlantis lifted off flawlessly from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on its mission to carry the $1.5 billion space probe into orbit on the first leg of its trip.

Nearly 32 million Americans lived in poverty in 1988, the Census Bureau reported Wednesday, marking the second straight year in which the nation made no significant inroads against poverty despite the economic expansion. The Census Bureau, however, found some cause for encouragement in the report, pointing to a 1.7 percent increase in per capita personal income last year.

Surprisingly widespread concentration of radon were revealed in tests in eight states by the Environmental Protection Agency. The latest results prompted EPA Administrator William Reilly to repeat his agency's call for every homeowner to test for the carcinogen. Radon is colorless, odorless and radioactive gas produced by the decay of uranium in all soil and rocks. Seeping from the ground and concentrating in houses, radon has been blamed for up to 20,000 of the nation's more than 130,000 annual lung cancer deaths.

INDIANA BRIEFS

Two central Indiana men were indicted Wednesday on charges they defrauded federal Housing and Urban Development programs. The indictments were the first in Indiana growing out of a nationwide probe of HUD programs. Real estate agent Joseph Cirillo of Evansville and Indianapolis businessman Garry Newman, a former closing agent for HUD sales, were named in separate indictments. U.S. Attorney Deborah Daniels and HUD regional inspector general Thomas Boockmeier said investigations of HUD programs are continuing in the attorney's southern Indiana district.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

The schedule for Region 3 of the Irish Express Luggage service was left off of the posted schedules. The truck will pick up luggage Friday afternoon between Pasquerilla East and Knott Halls from 1:30 to 1:50, from 3:30 and 3:50 and from 5:30 and 5:50. Luggage will also be picked up behind Grace Hall from 1:50 to 2:10, from 3:50 to 4:10 and from 5:50 to 6:10. Pickups behind Flanner Hall will be from 2:10 to 2:30, from 4:10 to 4:30 and from 6:10 to 6:30.

Laundry Day in Siegfried is rough and tumbled

The guy who said, "War is hell" probably had just done his laundry in my dorm.

For most normal people, Laundry Day is just a tedious expense of energy and money. For the women of Siegfried Hall, however, Laundry Day is a cutthroat battle that pits roommate against roommate in a violent attempt to secure clean clothes for the week.

Laundry Day? A war? Why?

Well gosh, I don't know. After all, the 400-plus residents of Siegfried have been generously supplied with a whopping eight nifty new and usually working washers and dryers. Even with my practically non-existent math ability 400 to eight seems like a bit of a lopsided ratio.

Nonetheless, Siegfried women are an easygoing bunch and of tough stock, so we grin and bear it.

Sometimes.

But usually, all hell breaks loose.

The Laundry Battles begin because some people have the nasty habit of throwing their clothes in a dryer and then scampering off to brunch or class or India or somewhere, leaving their laundry in the lurch. Thus, valuable dryer space is often filled with fully dried and forgotten clothes.

This tends to annoy patient souls who are waiting to use the dryers. So after waiting a reasonable amount of time, one of the now-irritated women removes the clothes from a dryer and replaces them with her own. The others follow her lead and soon the tops of the dryers are heaped with colorful piles of dried clothing.

This practice would be no problem by itself, but as the laundry room becomes more crowded, tempers grow short and launderers get tense. The mild Laundry Battle escalates rapidly and becomes more cutthroat with every passing moment. The laundry room is like a time bomb, with the seconds ticking away.

Soon it explodes and war breaks out.

The second a washer or dryer cycle ends, hordes of crazed women descend like Harpies, fighting violently for possession of the machine. Wet and dry clothes are heaped in haphazard piles around the room, or strewn carelessly across the floor.

Once-civilized women guard their wash, growling with paranoid hostility and unwilling to leave the room for fear that the enemy will seize their washer or dryer. Destruction and suspicion reduce the once amiable group to a pack of brutal savages. All in the name of clean socks.

I, for one, have decided to become a conscientious objector and swear off the frenzy of this deadly battle. So if you want to find me on a Saturday morning, don't bother to check the laundry room. I'll be down on the banks of the St. Joe River — beating my clothes on a rock.

Student-alumnae group proposed

By LESLIE LONGVAL
News Staff

The implementation of a student-alumnae association was discussed Wednesday at the Saint Mary's Board of Governance and Student Activities meeting.

Tricia Burke, head of Alumnae Relations and a 1981 Saint Mary's graduate, spoke to the Boards about forming a club that would bring together alumnae in various cities and the students on campus.

"The idea would be a campus based club," explained Burke. "(It would) get students in the mind-set that they will be connected to this school forever."

The club members would serve as ambassadors to the campus. They would work with representatives on campus to coordinate activities associated with the 65 alumnae clubs throughout the U.S., Burke said.

Members would also introduce freshmen to the campus and provide moral support for them, she added.

"We're open to ideas," said Burke. She emphasized that the association is only in the planning stage and any help would be welcomed.

The board decided to set up a task force to explore interest and possibilities for the student-alumnae association. The task force will begin work after October break.

Board members also discussed the SMC/ND Relations Committee that is also in its planning stage. Student Body President Lisa Cantenacci said the prospective committee would attempt to relieve tensions between the two campuses.

The committee would include students, faculty and staff from both campuses. The committee hopes to get underway next semester, said Ted Stumpf, the SMC/ND relations co-commissioner.

Plans for the OXFAM charity drive and the SMC/ND talent show were also announced.

ND ROTC places first in state competition

By JESSICA ZIEMBROSKI
News Staff

The Notre Dame ROTC Ranger Challenge Team placed first in competition in Indianapolis last weekend, earning its second consecutive state championship.

Team captain Kevin McKay said they owe the victory to "a lot of work and being physically stronger and more experienced than last year."

The competition against six other Indiana colleges was held Saturday and Sunday at Fort Benjamin Harris.

Nine events make up the thirty hour competition. The physical training test consists of push-ups, sit-ups, a two mile run, a rope bridge test, a grenade assault course, M-16 marksmanship, and a M-16 and M-60 weapon assembly, said Sergeant Stephen Price, coach of the team's technical training.

Other events are orienteering or land navigation, a patrol mission and a 10K road march in full combat attire with gear, Price said.

In addition to placing first overall, the team placed first in two events: the physical training test and the road march in which they set the record of 63 minutes, well ahead of any other team. McKay said that is the hardest event "because of being in full gear and having no sleep."

Coach Captain John Pottinger, who handles physical conditioning for the team, said, "It has to be a tremendous honor. These people sacrifice a lot to be on the team. They are in extraordinary physical condition."

The team consists of nine individuals competing and each member "wins" his position by competing in strength and skill.

The Ranger Challenge Team is called the varsity sport of ROTC and at other universities members of the teams do earn varsity letters. There is a team from most major universities in the United States, Pottinger said.

The team began practicing Sept. 4 and continued five mornings and afternoons per week including weekend sessions. The team will resume training in January to build upper body and leg strength.

The state championship qualifies the Notre Dame team for regional competition among nine states on April 5 in Fort Knox, Kentucky.

"It is hard to say how we will do, but we will train hard and do the best that we can," Price said.

ND to host conference on foreign student affairs

By JOE MOODY
News Staff

For the first time since 1975, Notre Dame will host the regional meeting of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs from October 22 to 25.

The annual event will be attended by university administrators from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, said Arthur Grubert, director of International Student Affairs.

One of the topics to be covered at the meeting concerns cooperative relationships between institutions in this country and their counterparts abroad, said Grubert.

In regards to Notre Dame's current involvement abroad, Grubert said, "I would hope that Notre Dame would expand its study abroad program. The seven or so that we have are excellent but I would be very happy to see us go into Africa or into other Asian options such as Korea."

Another issue that will be addressed is what to do with foreign exchange students here in the U.S. at times of unforeseen political upheaval that occur in the student's homeland.

Grubert said there are situations when students may be cut off from their ties to home. He used the military crackdown that occurred in Beijing, China as an example.

Residents of Santa Cruz mourn loses

Associated Press

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Residents mourned Wednesday over lost lives and ruined buildings in this handsome seaside city that was closest to the epicenter of the second-deadliest earthquake in U.S. history.

A downtown shopping center of renovated turn-of-the-century buildings, gardens and walkways was badly damaged during Tuesday evening's 6.9-magnitude quake. Two people were killed.

"The downtown lost between 12 and 20 buildings — the heart of the community and its vitality," said Gary Patton, chairman of the Santa Cruz County Board of Supervisors.

Five people died in the county. Authorities initially said 40 buildings were damaged beyond repair, but revised that figure to 25. Water, gas and sewage lines burst. Crews restored power and water service throughout the county Wednesday.

Also hard-hit by the quake was Los Gatos, an affluent hillside city in Santa Clara County, 40 miles northeast of here, where Victorian homes were shaken off their foundations and masonry buildings crumbled to the ground.

"I've got to somehow figure out how to get a ton of chimney off my roof," said Peter Cifelli, who spent the night with his wife and two daughters in their station wagon because they feared the chimney would plunge into their home.

SAN FRANCISCO — Rescuers searched with dogs and sensitive microphones Wednesday for the last survivors of an earthquake that killed at least 270 people, as partial power was restored to this region wracked by an estimated $2 billion in damage.

In just 15 seconds, the earthquake destroyed or damaged hundreds of buildings along 100 miles of the San Andreas Fault, collapsed a section of the San Francisco-Oakland inches, said passer-by Patrick MacIntyre.

Emergency workers pulled a girl from the wreckage of another automobile. The fate of her parents and brother was unknown.

A three-member surgical team had to amputate the right leg of a 7-year-old boy who was trapped in a car for seven hours. At 12:15 a.m., he finally was carried down a 20-foot ladder and taken to an ambulance.

There were many heroes.

Darius Brewer, a 26-year-old cook, joined an impromptu rescue party. The group crawled as far as possible under the crushed road to help injured motorists.

Art Kanerviko, head of Student Life, helped Loya organize the service for its initial run.

Loya and Kanerviko divided the residence halls into three regions to coordinate the routes of the three trucks.

Region One consists of Carroll, Morrissey, Lyons, Holy Cross, Lewis, Sorin, Walsh, Howard and Badin Halls. Region Two includes Pasquerilla West, Siegfried, Breen-Phillips, Farley, Cavanaugh, Keenan, Stanford, St. Edward's and Zahm Halls. Pasquerilla East, Knott, Grace and Flanner Halls constitute Region Three.

Thomas Gordon Smith, professor and chairman of architecture; James Taylor, professor of civil engineering and associate dean of engineering; Maria Rosa Olivera-Williams, associate professor of romance languages and literature; Ricky Battistoni, an MBA student and David Kinkopf, student body vice president, will serve on the committee as well.

Survivors search for neighbors

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Neighbors who had feared for each other's lives embraced cheerfully Wednesday as they surveyed their ruined homes, and tourists swapped stories about how they survived the killer earthquake.

Neil Hancock comforted Maryellen Sechser, his upstairs neighbor in what had been a 21-unit apartment building in the Marina District. The building toppled and caught fire after Tuesday's quake, and three people were feared dead.

"She is the first one I've seen since last night," Hancock said.

The two stood among a crowd at Divisadero and Beach streets watching firefighters hose water over the blackened remains of the building.

"When I got here the whole building collapsed. I could see into my apartment," Sechser said, fighting back tears. She watched helplessly as the flames came up through the floor of her ruined living room.

The worst thing was not knowing if her neighbors, many of them elderly, were all right, she said.

"(I thought) people were still in the building. I couldn't save anyone, I couldn't save the animals, I couldn't save anything," Sechser said. "I lost everything. What you see is all I've got."

Bay Bridge and two spans near Santa Cruz, cracked roads, and severed gas and power lines, sparking fires.

The trembler, the nation's second-deadliest, surpassed only by the San Francisco quake of 1906, measured 6.9 on the Richter scale and was felt 350 miles away.

San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos, appearing on television Wednesday night, estimated damages at $2 billion to public and private property in San Francisco city and county alone.

Agnos said 60 buildings are being considered for demolition and 1,000 people are in shelters, adding, "We expect that number to rise."

He said it might take as much as 15 or 16 weeks for water and power to be restored in parts of the Marina District, which was hard-hit by fires following the quake.

More than 1 million people lost electricity. By Wednesday night, Pacific Gas & Electric had restored power to about one-half of the residential customers in San Francisco.

Two years later, investors reminded of market hazards

Associated Press

NEW YORK — As Wall Street marks the second anniversary of Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987, investors big and small have just gotten a refresher course in the hazards of "playing the market."

After last week's Friday-the-13th selloff that drove the Dow Jones industrial average down 190 points, it looked as if stocks were heading for something similar to the record 508-point crash that occurred two years ago.

The market has since settled down, gradually allaying those fears. In Wednesday's trading, Dow Jones's average of 30 big-name stocks rose 4.92 to 2,643.65, bringing its net gain over the past three days to 74.39 points.

But if the steady showing came as a relief, it did not necessarily provide much reassurance for anyone who follows the ups and downs of stock prices.

Indeed, the image of Wall Street as a sort of upscale gambling den has been reinforced in many minds by the latest fluctuations. To individual investors, who have been withdrawing more money than they put into direct stock holdings for two decades now, stocks are widely seen as "too risky" and "too volatile."

While nobody disputes that risk and volatility are facts of life in stock investing, long-time students of the markets say the perils are often viewed in a distorted light.

Volatility — the tendency of stock prices to rise and fall dramatically in short periods of time — has drawn more and more attention in recent years with advances in technology and the concentration of large amounts of capital in the hands of professional traders and money managers.

With instant communications and computers programmed to execute buy-and-sell orders, the market now can react within moments to changing news developments that might once have taken weeks to absorb.

But the importance of short-term changes in stock prices diminishes drastically in the context of what has happened in the market in the post-World War II era.

Since the late 1970s, stocks have suffered four separate "October massacres." Yet this month also brings another, happier anniversary, notes Norman Fosback, editor of the investment advisory letter Market Logic.

"Fifteen years ago, amidst the turmoil of Watergate disclosures and the gloom of a deep recession, the current bull market was born," he states.

From its low of 577.60 in late 1974 through its recent highs near 2,800, the Dow Jones industrials nearly quintupled, and other, broader measures of stock price trends recorded even greater gains.

Results like these were achieved during a time of economic growth, erratic though it may have been from year to year.

Britain calls sanctions 'utterly irresponsible'

Associated Press

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain, waging a lone war on sanctions against South Africa, told the Commonwealth summit Wednesday the measures were "utterly irresponsible," officials said.

Other nations in the 49-member grouping of Britain and its former colonies, including Canada and host Malaysia, pressed for continued or stronger embargoes. Proponents said sanctions forced President F.W. de Klerk to promise reforms and release black nationalist leaders.

The exchanges on the weeklong summit's opening day heralded a new confrontation over South Africa, which quit the Commonwealth in 1961.

"We are much more likely to achieve our aim by giving encouragement than by trying to behave as if nothing significant has happened," Mrs. Thatcher told a closed session of the summit. Her comments were reported by a British official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He quoted her as saying de Klerk took a "major step forward" by releasing eight black leaders this week, allowing peaceful demonstrations and being prepared to consult "all shades of opinion."

Britain, a major trading partner of South Africa, argues that sanctions hurt blacks and increase white resistance to change.

Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad of Malaysia said sanctions "must not only continue but must be escalated" to force an end to apartheid, the official policy of racial segregation that allows South Africa's 5 million whites to maintain control over 28 million blacks.

"Sanctions work," Mahathir declared. "Concern for the effect of sanctions on the blacks is misplaced."

In a blunt opening address, he also blamed industrialized countries for pollution and accused them of "manipulating" the world economy.

"It is the developed countries which have most assailed our environment," he said. "Nuclear testing, excessive use of fossil fuels, private transportation, release of CFC into the atmosphere, massive wastage of paper, toxic chemical disposal — all these and more are the direct result of the lifestyle of the rich."

Quake didn't damage market

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices posted modest gains Wednesday as the market regained its composure after several jumpy sessions.

Contrary to initial fears, the Northern California earthquake didn't do much damage to the market. Some companies' stocks benefited as investors bought on the hunch that business might boom during the cleanup of the destruction in the San Francisco Bay area.

Blue chips overcame a late flurry of selling and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished with a gain of 4.92 at 2,643.65. The key market measure now stands 74.39 points above the level reached in Friday's 190-point plunge.

Activity on Wall Street was subdued compared to the wild trading that began Friday with the worst selloff since the crash of 1987, which occurred exactly two years ago Thursday.

Computer-guided maneuvers, which had tugged stock prices up and down during the three previous sessions, were not much of a factor in Wednesday's trading.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by less than 5 to 4 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 822 up, 668 down and 461 unchanged.

Despite some early selling on worries about the extent of liabilities, insurance group stocks generally rose amid speculation that heavy quake-related claims — on top of losses from Hurricane Hugo — could lead insurers to raise premium rates, enhancing the industry's profitability.

There also was speculation that the big temblor Tuesday could boost demand for earthquake insurance coverage.

Commie schemes and Econ 101

By Matt Janchar

It was a cold and grey Thursday morning. Although my alarm clock had awakened me half an hour ago, I was still in bed. I was debating whether or not to go to class that day. Suddenly, a friend of mine from down the hall burst into my room.

"Still in bed?" Roach shouted. "I'm not going to class today. Roach. I've decided that education is a hopeless pursuit."

"Quit whining," Roach said, "You'll get over that D minus." "It's not just that D minus, Roach," I sighed. "The American system of higher academicism as a whole is an inefficient failure, a frivolous illusion. Why should I go to class?"

"Oh, now I understand," said Roach. "You're still upset about that Gallup Poll about the ignorance of American college seniors."

"You read that article too?" "Of course. Don't tell me you buy that stuff about the college senior not knowing that Columbus discovered America and all that other junk."

"Why shouldn't I buy it?" I asked Roach.

"Because it's all just a communist plot, man. Can't you see that? They're trying to fool American college students into thinking our system of education is inferior. Soon they'll come out with a poll saying that high school students who took three years of Russian and studied all that Marxist-Lenin stuff got 90% higher scores on their SAT's."

"You really think so?"

"I know so, comrade. Besides, the tests that they gave those students were fixed. The questions they asked had nothing to do with what a student should learn in college."

"But those questions were about basic history, math, and science," I said. "What are we supposed to be learning about?"

"A university is a place where learning and scholarship are central," Roach replied. "But not all learning and scholarship comes from history, math and science."

"That sounds familiar," I said. "Did you read Du Lac or something?"

"For example," he went on, "there are several areas of learning and scholarship that American college students are extremely proficient in -- but of course no Commie-pinko poll will tell you that!"

"Oh, yeah," I said, "and what areas might those be?"

"I'll show you. This is question one, category of Economics," he said. "A graduate student goes into a super-market. Knowing he is hosting a study session that weekend, does he buy six cases of Meister Brau at $6.69 a case, or five and a half cases of Budweiser at $8.29 a case?"

"Neither," I answered. "I say he leaves the super-market and goes and gets a keg."

"Absolutely correct!" yelled Roach.

"That was a trick question," I said.

"What does that matter? You got it right, didn't you? Question two, category of geography. On which ocean is Daytona found?"

"Isn't Daytona a beach somewhere?" I replied.

"Right again! Daytona isn't on any ocean. Everyone knows you can't build a city on water," said Roach.

"That was a trick question, too."

"So what, that just goes to show you that American college students are even smarter than you thought we is, doesn't it?"

"Gee, Roach, I guess I never thought of it that way."

"I knew you'd see it my way. Now c'mon, we don't want to be late for class, do we?"

Evidence refutes drug legalization

Dear Editor:

It is a shame that two representatives of the National Organization to Reform Marijuana Laws (NORML) chose to embarrass both themselves and Notre Dame outside the "Drug Enforcement in Indiana" hearings last week. Their argument, that the U.S. should legalize marijuana to provide an alternative to the use of hard drugs, is ludicrous at best. Statistics clearly show that people who use marijuana are more likely to experiment with harder drugs, such as crack, than are those who do not use marijuana. Furthermore, the National Cocaine Information Service estimates that over 70 percent of current cocaine users have previously used marijuana.

When will groups such as NORML realize that legalization of any narcotic is against the best interests of our society? People are fed up with drugs in their communities, and the legalization of marijuana would only increase the demand for drugs.

Although the federal government could tax and place restrictions on the sale of marijuana, there would be more problems than there are today. With an increasing number of people using the drug, there would be an increasing number of abusers who require rehabilitation in our already backlogged system.

The drug problem has reached epidemic proportions in American society, and our only plan should be to get tough on drug users. Americans are sick of drugs and are begging for a remedy. It's time to support and enforce our country's drug policy, and not challenge it with preposterous alternatives.

Parents share ND security concerns

Dear Editor:

As parents of a female Notre Dame student, we read with concern and alarm of the increased number of assault incidents on campus this year. Though we realize that no campus can be totally secure, it is apparent that Notre Dame needs to tighten its security and other efforts to protect the students.

The University is frequently spoken of as a family and, as such, it must do whatever necessary to protect its family members. We hope that adequate and bright lighting will immediately be installed, regardless of the cost. It is also our hope that the administration will begin a serious escort service for the female students. It is certainly not realistic to expect the present guards to provide this service, but, instead, more guards should be hired.

It is imperative that the service be efficient and well staffed, so that no female student is waiting for a prolonged period in a dark and isolated building. It would be well, too, if the faculty would impress upon the students the importance of taking precautionary measures and to be certain not to walk around campus alone.

We all share the concern about this present danger at Notre Dame and all of us—students, faculty, parents and administrators—must do whatever necessary to secure the safety of the students and hopefully alleviate the problem as quickly as possible.

A Modestly Honest Proposal for Notre Dame

By Roger Hipp

It seems like you can't cough in class anymore without signing something to the effect that, on your honor, your cough was not an effort to cheat. Despite underwhelming student/faculty support, the Honor Code (official name: Code of Honor) is probably here to stay. Let's face it: the only thing the administration hates more than fun is losing face, and it's getting late in the game for the parents of our Notre Dame Family to admit the Honor Code isn't such a great idea.

But it's never too late for us to make the best of things, and I think it's high time the Honor Code was extended to cover many more aspects of life at Notre Dame. I'm writing this column to garner support for a Comprehensive Honor Code, one that would apply to everything that goes on under the Dome.

For example, under the Comprehensive Honor Code, there would no longer be any need for security guards at the doors of the library. Upon exiting the building, each student would simply complete two forms: one form to state that he or she had not illegally borrowed library materials, and a second form on which to turn in fellow students. After all, we at Notre Dame constitute a community of mutual trust (and surveillance), so there shouldn't be any more need for external policing at the 'brere than there is at other academic facilities. If we can be trusted to take those big exams without proctors, we can be trusted to patronize the library without security guards.

The Comprehensive Honor Code would also eliminate the disciplinary role of hall rectors. The wisdom of Du Lac would be preserved, but its enforcement would be left to the students. Each day the students would sign documents attesting that on the previous day they did not break parietals, host parties, have fun, etc. Students would also fill out a form with the names of fellow students caught participating in such activities. The current rectors would have the opportunity to continue living in the dorms as "resource persons" without punitive power.

Perhaps the most important facet of Notre Dame life to be altered by the Comprehensive Honor Code would be tuition billing. Under the present system, the University sends a bill to you and your parents, and if you don't pay, you can't come to school here. This policy certainly damages the atmosphere of trust and honesty the Administration is attempting to foster with the present Honor Code. Under the Comprehensive Honor Code, students would sign forms promising to pay tuition, and, of course, to monitor payment by their classmates.

At the beginning of each semester, a representative from the registrar's office would place two large collection bins in front of the Administration Building. During registration week, the students would come by and put their tuition check in one bin at their convenience. Lists of those students suspected of avoiding tuition payment would be placed in the other bin. Thus the mistrustful practice of individual billing would be eliminated.

These are only a few of the changes that would take place with an extension of the current Honor Code. Eventually, bookstore billing, Vali-dine checking, and even football tickets would be done away with in favor of a Comprehensive Honor Code.

What can you do to help bring this about? Not much, since honor codes are handed down by the administration, not organized by the students. But the next time you sign that statement pledging that on your life, your fortune, and your sacred honor you did not cheat, look at the bright side. Maybe a Comprehensive Honor Code is on the way.

Racial concerns solved in caring manner; student actions not a modern 'witch hunt'

Dear Editor:

In the Friday, Oct. 13 issue of The Observer, Fr. Robert Griffin wrote an article entitled "An Open Letter to Black Students On Campus." Fr. Griffin critiqued the efforts of a group of black students, specifically the officers of the Black Cultural Arts Council, on our response to an incident concerning Fr. George Wiskirchen. In his letter, which would be better entitled "A Close Minded Letter to Black Students On Campus," Fr. Griffin accused black leaders of conducting a "witch hunt" on campus, with the sole intention of persecuting an innocent man for our own selfish gain.

As "black leaders" on campus and especially as members of the Notre Dame community, we felt not only justified but compelled to address the particular incident of injustice which has sparked this debate and for this we are not apologetic. As Notre Dame students and members of the Notre Dame family, we were hurt and insulted that a priest such as Fr. Wiskirchen could knowingly or unknowingly use his position to promote negative stereotypes, injurious not only to the Black community but also to the Notre Dame community as a whole.

Fr. Griffin insinuates that as young blacks, we are out of touch with "black culture of 50 or 100 years ago" and must search intently to find evidence of racism in this supposedly enlightened day and age. It would seem, reading Fr. Griffin's letter, that black students let their "black sensitivities" get the best of them and are blindly and unjustly "traumatiz[ing] the faculty with an exhibition of Black Power".

Nothing could be further from the truth. While Fr. Wiskirchen was approached (not for the first time, it should be noted) concerning this matter, our approach could in no way be construed to be a witch hunt. Weeks ago, Fr. Wiskirchen was approached with a private letter asking him to reconsider his remarks, apologize for them and revise the format of his class to one that is not injurious or insulting to his students. Fr. Wiskirchen responded positively to our efforts to reasonably address this problem. This issue was also discussed with Associate Provost Fr. Williams, who showed support for our efforts. The issue was resolved between the Executive Council of the Black Cultural Arts Council and Fr. Wiskirchen, who published an apology in the Oct. 6 issue of The Observer.

This situation was thus settled with Fr. Wiskirchen in early October without a "witch hunt", yet Fr. Griffin saw fit to reprimand the black community in his article. He condemned those involved as "imaginative" students who "dumped a load of injustice on a gentle priest" while in reality this priest himself admitted, through his apology, the error of his actions. In his column Fr. Griffin expressed the sentiment that no "Holy Cross priest...is happy to see a community member hurt, or the black students either, because of a regrettable misunderstanding which caring people should be able to resolve without a witch hunt." A look at the facts of this issue clearly shows that it was resolved in a caring manner without a senseless witch hunt.

Therefore, not only do we fail to see the necessity of Fr. Griffin's column but are hurt and insulted by his unfair indictment of our actions. Not only were many students hurt by Fr. Griffin's condemnation of our actions but his comparison of our actions to a witch hunt is ludicrous and unjustified. As rational students actively in pursuit of education at this institution, many black students are insulted by what Fr. Griffin is inferring through his statements. Not only does Fr. Griffin not present a true picture of these events as they unfolded but in so doing has shown gross insensitivity not only to blacks but to the entire Notre Dame community.

The controversy concerning Fr. Wiskirchen and Fr. Griffin's insensitive commentary goes far in demonstrating that black students are justified in their concern that racism and injustice still are relevant issues meriting attention, discussion and action on the Notre Dame Campus. We, as members of the Notre Dame community feel that it is our duty to address these issues in order to foster a true family atmosphere on our campus.

Ad wrong on concert ticket prices

Dear Editor:

It has come to our attention that there has been a misprint in the advertising of ticket sales for the SQUEEZE concert on Nov. 16, 1989. We wish to clarify the situation concerning the ticket price by confirming that only Notre Dame/Saint Mary's students receive the rate of $8.00. This price is available only at the JACC box office. Notre Dame/Saint Mary's faculty and staff ticket price is $12.50.

We hope the misprint has not caused any undo inconvenience. Any questions should be directed to the Student Union Board.

'Catholic' implies acceptance for all

Dear Editor:

In his letter to the editor in the Oct. 18 Observer Keith McKeon, presuming to know what "God says," laments "how blatantly immoral the times in which we live have become." But instead, he provides us with another example of how blatantly self-righteous, absolutist, and un-catholic the response to homosexuals in the Notre Dame community has often been and continues to be.

Mr. McKeon, like too many people, has allowed the dogmatic constructs of his religion, which he presumes speaks for God and society as a whole, to blind him to the spirit of openness and universal acceptance which stands at its center. He need only look up the word "catholic" in the Oxford English Dictionary to learn that it refers to "universal human interest or use; touching the needs, interests, or sympathies of all men."

Jesus died on the cross in a posture symbolic of his all encompassing embrace, his arms extended toward opposite poles, excluding none. It is a shame that a non-Christian like myself must remind Mr. McKeon of the original definition and the fundamental image of his own religion.

Homosexual members of our community wrote a letter to us asking openly and sensitively for acceptance and support. They do not deserve the reactionary and mean-spirited response which Mr. McKeon's letter represents. Like Mr. McKeon, I like to believe that Notre Dame is a place of spiritual and intellectual growth; but it should not allow its Catholic roots to keep its branches from striving for light. Roots should be a source of nourishment, not of bitterness. I think it is important for the homosexual members of our community to know that we are not all "morally asleep," that some of us (I hope many of us) are glad that you are ND too and hope that our support for you can strengthen our community and assert it as truly catholic, as universally accepting.

Article inflates U.S. homeless figures

Dear Editor:

The article, "March on the Capitol," (The Observer, Oct. 10) by Michelle Berninger, contains some serious fallacies concerning the homeless in America.

Ms. Berninger claims that most experts now estimate the number of homeless Americans at three million. It would be interesting to learn which "experts" she is referring to, for the four major studies that have been done on the homeless seem to refute her figure. Last year, the National Academy of Sciences discovered 650,000 homeless in the nation, and the Urban Institute found 570,000. Harvard's Richard Freeman estimated the number at 300,000, and the General Accounting Office puts the figure between 300,000 and 600,000. These numbers are much lower than Berninger's severely inflated statistics.

Berninger also states that spending on the homeless has declined during the Reagan administration. Actually, the reverse is true. A quick look at the U.S. Budget will show that "Housing Assistance" has risen 172 percent from 1980 to 1989.

Today the government is spending over $8,000 per homeless person in America. Before any more money is apportioned, one must search for the real reasons why there are people on the streets. The recent wave of drug abuse and the deinstitutionalization of over 300,000 mental patients who are unable to take care of themselves might be a good place to start.

COLLEGE MAD HOUSE

accent writer

In this vicious week of all-nighters and hectic schedules, there seems to be an uncontrollable urge to be a kid again—to just let loose, forget all that has to be done, and act as silly and crazy as kids so often do. A new action game show now attempts to provide that necessary outlet. College Mad House allows two teams representing rival universities to compete for a half an hour on a childish level that is rarely found on campus.

Airing Saturday mornings on TV 46, College Mad House is based on the children's show Fun House. A wide variety of stunts and games of skill force the students to "play" to the best of their ability. The show pits well-known college rivals, such as Notre Dame and Miami, against each other in a childlike atmosphere which dares the participants to enter and to win the most outrageous contests imaginable.

With each show featuring new and different games, an episode might find teammates amidst slippery chocolate pudding as they attempt to win a "pillow fight" while straddling a pole four feet from the ground. Another stunt may involve the tossing of water balloons in some of the most unbelievable fashions. No matter what the stunt, the action eventually leads to one final round which consists of mind-boggling trivia questions. For every correct answer, the winners gain the honor of throwing pies at the opponents.

As this competition between college rivals begins to draw to a close, the winning team is left to face the "Mad House" which is a three story obstacle course challenging the students to find prizes hidden within it. Fighting the pie-throwing "Roommate from Hell" and the spaghetti-filled mechanical mouth dubbed "The Dean of Students" are among the zany experiences in the race to gather such prizes as personal computers, televisions, exotic trips, and money for the school's scholarship fund.

Four students traveled to Los Angeles this summer to represent Notre Dame in a matchup with Miami. Three of the four, Don Gomez, Jilanne Klaus, and Don Stager, are cheerleaders who originally expected to cheer the team on and instead found themselves as contestants. The fourth, Kelly Streit, was chosen to participate after auditions which were held on campus last year.

On the first weekend in July, 112 contestants were flown to Los Angeles to participate in the filming which took place in the Warner Bros. Studios. After watching several tapings, the Notre Dame representatives faced Miami in an outrageous battle that will air on Saturday, October 21.

Not only did the students have an opportunity to have fun doing all the ridiculous stunts, but they were also able to get to know students from schools from across the country. And, according to Jilanne Klaus, "We met a lot of interesting, fun, outgoing people." An all-expense paid weekend to Los Angeles was an added bonus. As Don Gomez put it, "It was a blast. They treated us really well."

College Mad House immediately follows Saturday morning cartoons and brings out the child in all who participate. It first aired at the beginning of October and is slated to run at least until the first weekend of December. In addition to the Notre Dame-Miami matchup, other episodes feature Indiana University against Purdue, Kansas against Missouri, and USC against UCLA.

Host Greg Kinnear leads the two teams through the series of stunts chosen for each episode. With the same producers as the children's version, Fun House, College Mad House is sure to provide much entertainment due to the efforts of Scott A. Stone and Bob Synes.

As TV 46 representative Edgar Cabello believes, "Anybody who knows the experience of college will find College Mad House a lot of fun to watch. It's a good way to start your Saturday." And what better way to be a kid again than to sit back and to laugh on a Saturday morning?

Students here in South Bend can watch College Mad House at 10:30 a.m. Saturdays.

A fun fight between representatives of rival colleges Arkanasa and Texas happens without warning on the set of the new weekly game show.

Mr. C. survives by concentrating on his sax

Associated Press

NEW YORK—The King of the World. The Master of Disaster. The Big Man. After more than 20 years in rock 'n' roll and almost as many nicknames, Clarence Clemons prefers the simple tag, Mr. C.

"All those names, it's a heavy cross to bear," said Clemons, the mightiest supporting star of Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band. "I think about all that stuff, but 'Mr. C.' has evolved, and he's the guy who combines all these things."

As Clemons says, it takes someone special to play the saxophone. "You got to have an urban attitude, be a streetwise person," he said. "I don't know whether the saxophone made me this kind of person or if I was just born to play a saxophone. It's an extension of yourself."

"Nobody played instruments in my family. My father got that bug and said he wants his son to play saxophone. I wanted an electric train for Christmas, but he got me a saxophone. I flipped out."

Clemons prides himself on being a survivor, staying around even when music involved far more than the simple joy of playing the sax. On tour now with Ringo Starr and a band that includes Joe Walsh, Levon Helm and Rick Danko, Clemons is getting those old feelings back.

"Every night when Levon Helm breaks into 'The Weight,' I catch myself," Clemons said of the band's drummer. "When Rick Danko goes into his bass, I have flashbacks to when I was young and wild and didn't understand a thing."

"You need to go back a little bit and remember how it was and how screwed up it got. It was a wonderful time. This whole tour is bringing back this stuff."

Clemons also reaches back on his third solo album, A Night With Mr. C, which recalls a few other nicknames—such as King, referring to King Curtis whose sweet saxophone was featured on hits by the Coasters, Sam Cooke, Aretha Franklin and many others. Clemons covers Cooke's party classic "Twistin' the Night Away."

"King Curtis is my mentor," Clemons said. "I try to pattern myself after his style. He made a live record that's one of my favorites. 'Memphis Soul Stew' and 'Soul Serenade' are two songs that made me understand the kind of music I liked."

On stage, Springsteen loves to remember the time he and E

Street guitarist Steve Van Zandt were on the boardwalk outside a New Jersey club at four in the morning. Through wind and pouring rain, a large man appeared, dressed in white, carrying a saxophone.

That, Clemons agrees, is how he and "The Boss" first met, back in the early '70s—the short, skinny guitarist and his towering sideman.

The rest quickly became history. By 1975, critic Jon Landau had dubbed Springsteen the "future of rock 'n' roll" which led to simultaneous covers on Time and Newsweek. Born to Run, featuring Clemons' blistering solo, was an instant rock anthem that even gathered support as the official song of Springsteen's native New Jersey.

But business soon set in. Legal hassles delayed Springsteen's Darkness on the Edge of Town album. Harsh words were exchanged all around. The simple joy of such earlier songs as "Rosalita" and "Thunder Road" was gone.

"That was the beginning of it, that was a sign," Clemons said. "The handwriting was on the wall for a lot of people, not just Springsteen. You look at the record companies and see the turnover in personnel and wonder what is going on."

So Clemons chooses to look the other way, concentrating on his music and getting by as best he can.

"I tell people to get out of the business, forget about it. If you're not really, really special, forget about it. It's glamorous and beautiful, and at the same time, it ain't. You got to have faith and you got to have a lot of luck."

World Series postponed in wake of quake's destruction

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Baseball still hoped Wednesday to salvage a World Series shaken by the Bay area's worst earthquake since 1906, though it was uncertain when or where games could resume as the mayor of Oakland asked the games not be played immediately.

Game 3 of the Bay Bridge Series between the Oakland Athletics and the San Francisco Giants was postponed for the second straight day, but Commissioner Fay Vincent said, "Our inclination is to stay the course."

More than 200 people were killed and hundreds were injured when the earthquake struck at 5:04 p.m. PDT Tuesday, a half-hour before game time. Part of the Bay Bridge, the very symbol of the Series, collapsed.

There seemed to be little thought by baseball officials to entirely canceling the Series, in which Oakland leads San Francisco 2-0, but baseball was waiting from city officials to assess the damage, physical and mental.

Oakland mayor Lionel Wilson said late Wednesday he had met with Athletics' representatives told them they should not resume play immediately.

"I did tell them that at this time, it would be inappropriate to play baseball in this city while there are still bodies underneath the concrete," Wilson said at the Alameda Naval Air Station.

Wilson said the team officials were supportive of his request, then estimated it would take at least four to five days to recover the bodies from underneath double-decked Interstate 880, the freeway which collapsed and was responsible an estimated 250-plus deaths.

The possibility of playing as soon as Thursday night had not been ruled out, but that would only happen if the stadium were deemed safe and other logistics, such as transportation, could be worked out.

The Giants told their players Wednesday to be at Candlestick Park Thursday at 1 p.m. for a workout or, possibly, to play a game.

Vincent said baseball executives were told that damage at both Candlestick Park, home of the Giants, and Oakland Coliseum, home of the A's, was "not significant."

But he said "the proper people have not examined it yet" and added that even if it were possible to keep the Series in the Bay area, he was concerned whether it would be appropriate right now. One other possibility was to move the Series to a neutral site for the first time.

"We want to be very sensitive to the state of the community," Vincent said. "Our modest little game is not a priority."

Power, telephones and other services were limited during the cleanup. So too, fortunately, was crime.

Debris littered the streets, windows from the best shops were shattered and hotel lobbies were strewn with sleepers. Tourists roamed with video cameras, focusing on cracks in the concrete and frozen clock faces.

Candlestick Park, where 60,000 fans were watching the Giants and Athletics warm up when the stadium shook, and the Oakland Coliseum were inspected during the day.

The strongest possibility if neither ballpark were structurally sound was Dodger Stadium, although it might take a couple of days to prepare the field.

The Oakland A's are two games ahead of the San Francisco Giants, but baseball is not a priority in the San Francisco Bay area in the aftermath of Tuesday's devastating earthquake. The third day of play was postponed for the second straight day.

Oakland's Welch gives 'thumbs-down' to condition of future home

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Bob Welch, the scheduled pitcher for the Oakland Athletics in Game 3 of the World Series, looked with dismay at his earthquake-damaged future home Wednesday, after a walk through the hard-hit Marina district.

Welch, with a pained expression on his face, turned to his wife Mary Ellen and gave a "thumbs down" sign.

Mrs. Welch held the couple's 10-week-old son Dylan in her arms and tried unsuccessfully to hold back tears, after a short walk from their current residence, an apartment. They had spent the night without water, electricity or heat. Natural gas service in the area was cut off because of the danger of more fires in the area, where a major blaze erupted following the quake.

The earthquake caused a postponement of Game 3 at Candlestick Park, home of the San Francisco Giants. Welch was in the trainer's room, getting his arm rubbed, when the quake struck, shaking loose chunks of concrete throughout the stadium with about 60,000 people waiting to see the game.

The couple and friends who were at the stadium then went through an anxious drive to their Marina-area apartment where the Welch's son was with a babysitter. The baby and sitter were OK, and the Beach Street apartment suffered no serious damage.

"It was an ugly ride, because we heard on the radio there was a big fire on Beach Street and we had left the baby (with a sitter) at the apartment," Welch said. "The ride took about two hours."

Normally, without traffic tieups, the Welch apartment is about 30 minutes from Candlestick Park.

"I don't worry about the World Series," Welch said of the disaster which caused widespread damage in a large area of Northern California.

The couple recently bought the condominium unit in a two-story building.

AP Photo

Oakland Athletic's pitcher Bob Welch, who was scheduled to start in Game 3 of the World Series, has put baseball on the back burner to investigate the condition of his future home, which was damaged during Tuesday's earthquake.

Red Wings beat North Stars; Devils down slumping Flyers

Associated Press

DETROIT — Steve Yzerman had two goals and an assist as the Detroit Red Wings beat Minnesota 4-3 Wednesday night and handed the North Stars their first loss of the NHL season.

The North Stars, the NHL's last unbeaten team, had tied a club record with a 5-0-1 start. Last year Minnesota didn't notch its fifth win until Game 23.

Detroit's Glen Hanlon turned away 20 of 23 shots to win his third straight start. He made a clutch save on a breakaway by Brian Bellows with 1:19 remaining.

North Stars goalie Kari Takko, who faced 27 shots, was pulled immediately afterward for an extra attacker. But he returned with three seconds left in the game after Larry Murphy was called for holding Yzerman.

Gerard Galland, playing his last game before beginning a five-game suspension, gave Detroit a 1-0 lead at 4:18 of the first period after Yzerman won a faceoff in the right circle. Galland drew his suspension for a foul against Vancouver's Garth Butcher in the Red Wings' second game.

The North Stars gave up their first short-handed goal of the season at 6:28 of the first period when Dave Barr took a pass from John Chabot and tucked it behind Takko into the lower left corner of the net. Both of Barr's goals this season have come while the Red Wings were killing a penalty.

Devils 5, Flyers 3

Soviet star Viacheslav Fetisov scored his first NHL goal, sparking a three-goal outburst in 2:01 of the first period as the New Jersey Devils coasted to a victory over the struggling Philadelphia Flyers on Wednesday night.

The Devils, who also beat the Flyers in Philadelphia on opening night, put the game away early by scoring on four of their first seven shots against Pete Peeters.

Fetisov, the former captain of the Soviet National Team, scored on a 35-foot straight-on wrist shot after a beautiful give-and-go with John MacLean at 4:36. Fetisov had four assists in the Devils' first five games.

The goal snapped the Devils' 0-for-12 slump on the power play over the past four games.

Rookie Janne Ojanen of Finland scored his second of the season just 32 seconds after Fetisov's goal, with the aid of a friendly carom off the boards. Jim Korn shot the puck into the Flyers' zone, and as Peeters left the net to play it, the puck bounced out in front to a wide-open Ojanen.

Whalers 2, Sabres 1

Hartford defenseman Sylvain Cote scored during a goalmouth scramble with 3:11 left in the third period to give the Whalers a NHL victory over the Buffalo Sabres Wednesday night.

The Hartford Whalers downed the Buffalo Sabres 2-1 in NHL action Wednesday night. Hartford's Sylvain Cote found the net with 3:11 left in the third period to snap the Whalers two-game losing streak. In other NHL action, Detroit handed Minnesota its first loss of the season by defeating the North Stars 4-3. The New Jersey Devils and the Philadelphia Flyers did battle in East Rutherford, N.J. as the Devils downed the struggling Flyers 5-3.

from Ron Francis to snap a 1-1 tie.

Pat Verbeek scored at 5:58 of the first period to give Hartford a 1-0 lead which the Whalers held until the 15:15 mark of the third period when Mike Ramsey scored for the Sabres to tie the game 1-1.

The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for the Whalers. The loss was the second in a row for Buffalo.

Whaler goaltender Mike Liut stopped 24 shots to lower his league-leading goals-against average to 1.67. Liut has allowed just five goals in 179 minutes. Darren Puppa finished with 28 saves for Buffalo.

Maple Leafs 4, Canucks 3

Ed Olczyk's fluke goal early in the third period gave Toronto a 4-3 victory over the Vancouver Canucks Wednesday night, ending end the Leafs' four-game losing streak.

Vancouver's Brian Bradley tied the game with a 10-foot shot from a bad angle past Allan Bester at 2:19 of the final period. But Olczyk slid the puck from the corner toward the crease that hit goaltender Steve Weeks' skate and went over the goal line for the game-winner at 4:19.

Blues 9, Penguins 3

Brett Hull scored three goals and assisted on two by Sergio Momesso to lead the St. Louis Blues to a 9-3 NHL win over the Pittsburgh Penguins Wednesday night.

The Penguins came within 1:30 of equalling the franchise's worst home loss. They had lost 9-1 to Montreal in 1976 and Buffalo in 1980.

Irish

as good as there is defensively.

Craig Counsell (.289, 32 RBI) moves from left field into the infield at third. Sophomores Tom Allen, Jason Martinez, and Mike Rooney provide the Irish with experienced depth in the infield.

This year's outfield is filled with new faces. Freshmen Chris Michalak and sophomore Mike Miadich, a former football player, will battle for time in left field. Dan Bautch will get the start in center for the Irish.

"Bautch has been incredible, but he still has a long way to go," said Murphy.

Freshman Eric Danapilis, who has had a good fall season, will get the start in right field. The Irish will use either Mike Rotkis, whose three-run homer was a key in last year's 9-8 win over Miami, or Edwin Hartwell as the left-handed designated hitter. If the Trojans come with a lefty, look for either Greg Hudson or Pat Leahy to get the nod.

Murphy is really looking to improve the pitching staff this year. Lefthanders Alan Walania, Chris Michalak, and Chad Hartvigson, as well as righties Dave Sinnes and Leahy, make up a group of freshman pitchers all with fastballs in the mid-eighties or better and bright futures. Murphy though, is quick to point out that they are very young.

"These guys are very talented, but on this level that won't get them by like it did in high school. They must learn the plan and identify their roles."

In the series, Walania will be used as the set-up man and Michalak will be the closer.

Mike Coffey, last year's stopper out of the bullpen, is out with an injury. Either Leahy or Sinnes may get the start Friday night.

The performances of the veteran pitchers will go a long way toward determining how the Irish will fare against the Trojans. Senior Brian Piotrowicz leads the staff and will get the start Thursday night.

Piotrowicz was an all-MCC performer last year with an 11-4 record and a sparkling 2.24 ERA. One of the keys to his success was the fact that he walked only 37 batters in 112.3 innings.

Last year's other starter, sophomore Brian Conway, is healthy after an injury over the summer. Conway was 5-4 in 70-plus innings last season.

Junior lefthander Tony Livorsi has been Mr. Consistency over the last year. Livorsi went 4-1 last year as a long reliever and a spot starter. His mere 16 walks in almost 60 innings last year make him the ideal reliever.

The staff is rounded out by 1989 Irish Freshman of the Year Joe Binkiewicz and junior Dave Legus.

Vols will know importance of Cobb in SEC clash with 'Bama

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
Associate Sports Editor

It won't take long to realize just how much running back Reggie Cobb, kicked off the Tennessee team last week, meant to the Volunteer offense.

In its first game since Cobb's dismissal, sixth-ranked Tennessee puts its 10-game winning streak on the line against 10th-ranked undefeated Alabama. The winner of Saturday's game at Birmingham, Ala., will have the inside track to the Southeastern Conference championship.

Cobb, whose dismissal reportedly was drug-related, had averaged over 120 yards per game this season and rushed for 225 yards against Auburn's famed run defense in a 21-14 victory over the Tigers three weeks ago.

Chuck Webb, who teamed with Cobb to form the "Cobb-Webb" offense prior to the incident, replaces Cobb in the backfield.

Alabama coach Bill Curry claims that Cobb's departure will actually help the Vols.

"(Tennessee) not only has great athletes, but they play with great enthusiasm and great coaching," Curry said.

"When a major loss occurs to a team like that, what they do is they play together and just get better as a unit."

Tennessee overcame the loss of a major player in its last Sugar Bowl season. Darryl Dickey stepped in for the injured all-America candidate quarterback Tony Robinson midway through the 1985 season, and the Vols were undefeated the rest of the way.

Alabama stumbled past Southwest Louisiana 24-17 last Saturday after a week in which Curry says the team was hit by the flu bug. The Tide is healthy now, and quarterback Jeff Dunn has recovered from injury.

Replacing Dunn the last two weeks, Gary Hollingsworth passed for 363 yards in a 62-27 win over Mississippi. Curry has not named a starting quarterback for Saturday's contest.

With Michael Taylor

College Football

recovered from the injury he suffered against Notre Dame last month, Michigan coach Bo Schembechler has not decided whether he will start Taylor or freshman Elvis Grbac this Saturday at Iowa.

Schembechler has gone to great pains not to call his situation a quarterback controversy.

"I do not know why people make an issue of this," Schembechler said. "We have two good quarterbacks and feel comfortable with both."

While Grbac and Southern Cal quarterback Todd Marinovich have enjoyed success as redshirt freshmen, the same can't be said of classmate Bret Johnson.

Johnson, the starting quarterback for beleaguered UCLA, was 11-of-22 with two interceptions in last Saturday's 42-7 loss to No. 22 Arizona.

utes left in the match, smashing home yet another LaVigne cross for his second goal of the season. Crowe's goal sealed the second big Irish victory in three days, as they thumped Valparaiso 9-2 Monday night.

With only three games remaining before the MCC playoffs commence on November 2, Grace hopes the past two games are an indication of things to come. At the very least, they are a step in the right direction.

"We want to go into the MCC tournament on a bit of a roll," says Grace. "But right now our first concern is Loyola. We beat them 4-1 at their place earlier in the year, but their coach, Ray O'Connell, is a good friend of mine, and he told me after that game that Loyola would give us a better game the second time around."

The Irish will meet the Runnin' Ramblers Friday night at 7:30 at Krause Stadium and attempt to record their second victory in a row. A victory against Loyola would improve their MCC conference record to 5-0-1 and their overall record to 7-5-3.

LSU has had a season even more disappointing than UCLA, 3-3. A 10-6 loss to Auburn last weekend dropped LSU's record to 1-4.

"I'm glad I'm young because I'm 36 going on 80 right now," said Tigers coach Mike Archer. "When you play major college football and play in a conference like the SEC, so many of the games are decided in the fourth quarter, and it's one play that makes the difference."

"We've gone back in the last five years, and there have been 10 to 15 games that we won that we could have very easily lost. Now we're just not making those plays."

Florida State, which has moved from the critical list to the Top 20 list since rebounding from an 0-2 start, is entering the most difficult portion of the nation's toughest schedule.

The 15th-ranked Seminoles host Auburn this Saturday and Miami next weekend.

Quarterback Peter Tom Willis has led Florida State's recent surge. The fifth-year senior is averaging more than 270 passing yards per game, and Pat Dye calls him the toughest opposing quarterback he has seen in his Auburn tenure.

"We've played against some pretty good ones - Boomer Esiason at Maryland, Wayne Peace at Florida and (Don) McPherson at Syracuse," said Dye, "but this kid has the best arm and the best supporting cast we've played."

"I fully realize (Florida State), for whatever reason, wasn't ready to play early in the year, but they're a totally different football team and right now are probably as good as anybody in the country."

Further down the Sunshine State, turmoil continues at the University of Florida. Starting quarterback Kyle Morris was kicked off the team this week for betting on football games. Lex Smith will replace Morris.

Despite all the troubles, Florida has won five straight games and is 20th in the nation heading into Saturday's game with New Mexico.

LaVigne

field, accelerated through the middle of the field past two more sluggish defenders and blasted a shot underneath the crossbar for his tenth goal of the season.

One minute later, Brendan Dillman carried the ball down the left side and drove a low cross toward Demon goalkeeper Rich Horwath, who misplayed the ball. Dillman's cross rolled past Horwath to a wide open Steve LaVigne, who poked the ball into the net.

LaVigne was the hero of the day for the Irish. In addition to the goal, he tallied three assists Wednesday to bring his season point total to 13, second only to Pendergast's 23 on the Irish squad.

"Like anybody, Steve is sensitive, and his confidence comes and goes," says Grace. "When he's confident, he is just a tremendous player. Oddly enough, he is doing all of his scoring from the fullback and midfield positions, and not from the sweeper position, but he does a great job for us, and if the ball would have bounced right he could have had a few more goals today."

Kevin Sax also provided spark for the Irish offensively. He struck early in the second half with his second goal of the game from in close on a feed from LaVigne to increase Notre Dame's lead to 4-0.

"As a freshman Kevin has taken a while to adjust," says Grace. "But he is feeling better about himself now and he's coming into his own. His positioning on the field is outstanding, and he's getting some very crucial goals for us."

Junior midfielder Mark Crowe closed out the scoring for the Irish with a little over 10 min-

shutouts, the stingy Irish defensive corps has allowed a mere pittance of three shots on goal, two of which came against Saint Mary's.

"I think we played extremely well," noted the Irish head coach Dennis Grace. "Their defense was strong, especially the sweeper and goalkeeper, but we really dominated the game. The goal on the penalty kick gave us quite a boost, and we really took control after that. Also, it was sort of appropriate that K.T. Sullivan had a goal in her last home game."

On the other side of the coin, Chicago head coach Juan Lucio, in his third season with the Maroons, said that he was "pleased as a whole. The team responded well, and we hope to keep up our schedule with Notre Dame in the future."

Meanwhile, the Irish must now prepare for the Virginia Classic and Dayton Tournament, where they will face nationally-ranked Virginia and Duke, as well as Dayton and Xavier. In the words of coach Grace, "I'm proud of our girls. We're peaking at the right time, and if we play to our potential, we'll be fine."

Men's soccer downs DePaul; women shutout Chicago 2-0

LaVigne leads Irish in shutout

BY KEN TYSIAC
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's soccer team overcame the wind, the cold, and the DePaul Blue Demons Wednesday afternoon at Alumni Field with an impressive 5-0 victory.

The Irish dominated the entire contest, which was nowhere near as close as the score indicated. Notre Dame outshot DePaul 17-1 in the first half and 26-4 for the game as Danny Lyons and Peter Gulli each made two saves in recording the Irish's third shutout of the year.

Although they controlled the run of play from the outset, the Irish did not build a comfortable lead on the Demons until late in the first half. Kevin Sax scored just 4:30 into the game for Notre Dame, but his team couldn't add to that lead despite numerous opportunities, and coach Dennis Grace became frustrated.

"I was not happy with the first 25 or 30 minutes of play this afternoon," growls Grace. "We didn't have enough time to warm up today, it was a cold day, and we simply weren't ready to play."

Late in the first half, the Irish struck twice in the span of one minute to take a commanding lead and placate their angry coach. At the 43:00 mark freshman Kevin Pendergast knocked a Demon defender to the ground just past mid-

Irish record 10th straight victory

The Notre Dame women's soccer team (12-6) extended its remarkable winning streak to ten games last night in a hard-fought 2-0 victory over the University of Chicago Maroons at Moose Krause Stadium.

In the last home game of the 1989 season, Notre Dame dominated. The first half saw the potent offense of the Irish frustrated by the spirited play of the Maroon defense, as Chicago goalkeeper Jennifer Ast saved every shot the Irish could take.

However, 19:20 into the second half, the Irish were awarded a penalty kick in the Chicago penalty box, and senior co-captain K.T. Sullivan, who, with Joy Sisoak, played the last home game of her Notre Dame career, bested the Maroon goalie to put Notre Dame up 1-0. Sophomore Susie Zilvitis finished the scoring for the Irish at 39:04 of the second half, as she dribbled past two Maroon defenders and beat the Chicago goalkeeper for a 2-0 lead.

The speedy Notre Dame offense, which took 30 shots in the contest, was backed up by the relentless defense, who allowed no shots. The win over Chicago was not only the record-setting tenth in a row for Notre Dame, but also the sixth consecutive shutout. In those six

Irish take on USC at Coveleski Stadium in Fall Classic

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame baseball team will host the USC Trojans in the second annual South Bend Tribune Fall Classic tonight and Friday night at Stanley Coveleski Stadium.

Tonight's game will begin at 7 p.m. and Friday night's game will begin at 8:30 p.m.

The Trojans will be as great, if not greater a test for the Irish than Miami was last year. USC has all eight of its position players returning and its three top pitchers as well.

"They will be very strong," said Irish head coach Pat Murphy. "They may be the best team in the country, and if not that, definitely in the top 10."

The Trojans are led offensively by sophomores Mike Robertson (.329 average last season) at first base and second baseman Brett Boone (.273, 9 HRs). Senior Randy Powers, an all-Pac-10 selection, leads the pitching staff. Last year he was 10-5 with a 3.75 ERA.

The Irish of this year are a much different team than last year's, which won a school record 48 games and went to the NCAA Regional for the first time since 1970.

Gone is All-American centerfielder Dan Peltier, as well as all-MCC shortstop Pat Pesavento, rightfielder James Sass, second baseman Mike Moshier, and starting pitchers Erik Madsen and Mike Passilla. This year's ballclub is characterized by youth as 24 of the 30 players are freshmen or sophomores.

"We're a long way from where we want to be," said Murphy. "When you've had the success we had last year, it's hard to be objective. We just try to downplay that and think about performance."

Although the Irish are young, they are a talented bunch. Senior captain Ed Lund leads the Irish from his catching position. He hit .328 last year with four home runs and 48 RBI and is even better known for his defensive skills. Matt Krall has worked hard over the summer and fall to become Lund's backup.

At first base, the Irish return Joe Binkiewicz. The sophomore hit .337 with four homers and 44 RBI last season. The Irish will look to these two to provide the power.

At second base will be Cory Mee, a .327 hitter and outstanding fielder. Mike Coss will try and fill the big shoes of Pesavento as he moves over to shortstop from third base.

"Mike Coss has made a good transition," said Murphy. "He's

The Notre Dame baseball team has been gearing up to take on the USC Trojans at Stanley Coveleski Stadium tonight in the second-annual South Bend Tribune's Irish Fall Classic.

Trojan showdown just one of many big games for Irish

Welcome to the Big Game, the rivalry so good that someone saw fit to write a 400-page book about it (The Glamour Game, by Bill Cromartie and Jody Brown).

The rivalry so good that anyone dumb enough to give them up could sell tickets for a cool hundred, end zone. For the fifty, you'd better stay in your armchair. You'll be warmer.

Unfortunately for Notre Dame, every game has become the Big One, every team is out for blood, and every team they are playing this Saturday is among the best in the league.

But this weekend's big, unmatchable, heart-stopping rivalry is no less important just because every other game has gotten bigger. It still transcends everything else, because this weekend, it's Notre Dame vs. USC.

Irish head coach Lou Holtz has reminded his team about USC head coach Larry Smith's remarks after last year's 27-10 Notre Dame victory.

"He reminded us," said tri-captain Ned Bolcar. "If a coach wants to say his team outthit us, outplayed us and out hustled us, that's his business. At Notre Dame, we just prove him wrong."

The proving may not be that easy. The ninth-ranked Trojans stand 13th in the nation in rushing offense, 11th in total offense, 13th in scoring, 11th in total defense, 10th in scoring defense and, bad news for the Irish, first in rushing defense.

"It's incredible what they do," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said. "We're going to have to throw the football, but I've got to be honest with you, throwing the football is not our strong suit."

Holtz's worries continue, as he recalls the Irish ground game's performance in last season's 27-10 Notre Dame win in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

"I don't think anyone can run against Southern Cal," Holtz said. "They're giving up one-point-six yards per run. I could even afford to buy that if I was in Manhattan. That's not very much yardage."

Holtz is concerned with the team's progress at tailback, in terms of depth, rather than talent.

"We're still moving around of offense, moving this guy here and that guy there, trying to get the right combinations. We came to the conclusion a week ago that we just don't have definite answers."

One of the changes saw flanker Raghib Ismail using his talents from the tailback spot against Air Force.

"On the practice field, he knew he was getting the ball, he didn't even know who the blockers were," Holtz said of Ismail. "He found the hole anyway. We can't keep him in that spot. You'll see him there some, but not consistently. We just can't afford to do that."

...

Irish tight end Frank Jacobs will be lost for the season after fracturing his left fibula and tearing ankle ligaments Saturday against Air Force.

"The loss of Frank Jacobs is really a very discouraging thing," Holtz said. "he shared the time with Derek Brown, he gave Derek time to catch his breath, but we didn't lose anything with Frank Jacobs in there."
