Thomas finally faces Senate confirmation hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clarence Thomas will speak for himself Tuesday after a summer of vigorous political campaigning by supporters and opponents of his nomination to the Supreme Court. "There's a fight on," President Bush declared on the eve of Thomas' confirmation hearing.

"I am confident we're going to win it," Bush said as Thomas and his questioners made final preparations for Senate Judiciary Committee consideration of the nomination.

After two months of avoiding public stands while others attacked and defended him, Thomas will be asked to detail his views on contentious subjects as he makes his case for confirmation to take Thurgood Marshall's place on the high court.

Like Marshall, Thomas is black, but he has staked out conservative positions in sharp contrast to Marshall's staunch liberalism. So there will be tough questions from liberal Democrats concerned about how Thomas, 43, would vote on such issues as abortion, privacy and civil rights.

Yet, Bush suggested that Thomas should not be pinned down on how he might vote on specific issues.

Bush said that when he nominated Thomas, "the administration applied no litmus test on specific issues that might come before the Supreme Court. We did not question Judge Thomas on possible decisions or cases that could come before the court.

"Similarly, I have confidence that the Judiciary Committee will want to preserve the independence of the court as it explores the record of Judge Thomas," the president said in a written statement.

Even after all the efforts to influence opinion for or against Thomas, 65 percent of respondents in a new poll said they had no opinion about whether he should be confirmed. This was close to the 73 percent who had no opinion about Robert Bork just before the confirmation hearings that led to the rejection of his nomination in 1987.

Results of that CBS-New York Times poll, published in Tuesday editions of the newspaper, showed blacks with an opinion splitting 23 percent in favor of Thomas and 15 percent against, and whites with an opinion dividing 26 percent for Thomas and 10 percent against.

Bookbag thefts still present but decreasing

By MICHAEL SCHOLL
News Writer

It was not a good way to start the school year.

At around 1:15 p.m. on Sept. 3, freshman David Bregande of Morrissey Hall and several of his friends arrived at South Dining Hall for lunch.

As he entered the building, Bregande placed a bookbag he was carrying inside one of the cubbyholes located in the dining hall's vestibule.

His bag was one among dozens left in the cubbyholes by the many Notre Dame students who find it too inconvenient to return their bags to their dorm rooms and too cumbersome to carry their bags inside the dining halls. Such students trust that bags placed in the cubbyholes will still be there when their owners return.

On that day, however, Bregande should not have been so trusting.

When he and his companions left the dining hall about 30 minutes later, Bregande's bag, containing an estimated $205 of textbooks and other items such as a paper for his Freshman Seminar class, was gone.

After a search of the immediate area failed to produce the bookbag, an "angry and frustrated" Bregande reported it stolen to Notre Dame Security.

Bregande's bag was the second of two bookbags that were reported stolen by Notre Dame students in the first week of the current school year, according to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Notre Dame Security.

Bookbag theft has long been a major source of concern of Security officials. Recent investigations have led Security to believe that most bookbag thefts are committed

Macedonians vote to support independence from Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The Yugoslav federation suffered another blow Monday when early returns in a Macedonian plebiscite said the republic's voters overwhelmingly supported declaring independence.

Even before the first returns were released from Sunday's referendum, tens of thousands of Macedonians partied in the streets to celebrate leaving the union.

But Macedonian leaders stressed they would try to work out new ties with Yugoslavia as part of a loose confederation of sovereign states, rather than the complete independence sought by Croatia and Slovenia.

Intense fighting continued in Croatia between Croat militia-men and Serb rebels. In a potentially dangerous escalation of tension, Yugoslav troops clashed with soldiers from neighboring Albania along their mountainous international border, and five people were reported killed.

In Belgrade, federal Premier Ante Markovic announced a Cabinet reshuffle. But with the six feuding Yugoslav republics paying little heed to the federal government, the move was not likely to affect the crisis.

Preliminary returns from Sunday's referendum in Macedonia showed 74 percent of the votes counted backed secession, the Tanjug news agency reported from Skopje, the republic's capital.

Macedonia, the southernmost region of Yugoslavia and the poorest, is expected to follow Croatia and Slovenia in abandoning the federation. But its leaders hope to avoid completely severing ties because they fear neighboring Greece and Bulgaria, which have sizable Macedonian minorities, might raise claims to Macedonian territory.

The firefight on the Albanian border killed four Albanian soldiers and one civilian, Belgrade Radio said. No Yugoslav casualties were reported.

The report said the fighting began when a group of Albanians tried to cross into Yugoslavia near Dragas, a village 180 miles south of Belgrade. Hundreds of Albanians have crossed the border to escape economic hardship in Albania.

The incident was likely to worsen tensions between Albania and Serbia, the biggest Yugoslav republic and leader of the fight to prevent Croatia's secession. Albania contends the Serbs are mistreating the nearly 2 million ethnic Albanians in the Serbian-ruled province of Kosovo.

The worst fighting in Croatia was reported in the towns of Kostajnica, on the border with the republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina, and Pakrac, in the ethnically mixed Slavonia region.

Most of Kostajnica, the last major Croat stronghold in the Tadzhikistan becomes 11th Soviet republic to declare independence

MOSCOW (AP) — Tadzhikistan declared its independence on Monday, becoming the eighth Soviet republic to do so since last month's brief coup against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

"We can't lag behind other republics. Everybody is declaring independence so we are as well," said Aleyev Abdodezhabad, parliamentary spokesman in the Soviet Central Asian republic of 5.1 million people.

Eleven republics have opted for independence — eight since the coup, including Azerbaijan, where incumbent President Ayaz Mutalibov won 90 percent of the vote Sunday as the sole candidate in an election of the old Soviet school.

The majority of the Soviet republics have seized the chance to retrieve the independence they lost with the expansion of Communist power since the Aug. 19-21 coup collapsed, and with it their fears of military intervention vanished.

The Kremlin has already granted the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania their independence.

But Monday's declaration by a special session of Tadzhikistan's parliament was largely symbolic, since most of the republics, including the Tadzhiks, have agreed to transform the Soviet Union into a loose confederation of sovereign states.

Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher of Germany said in Moscow on Monday that his country was prepared to establish relations with all sovereign republics in the current Soviet Union.

Tadzhikistan's sluggish response to change after the coup, and opposition charges of intimidation in the weekend election in Azerbaijan show how some of the predominantly Muslim republics have trailed other republics in achieving political reform.

Tadzhikistan is to hold a presidential election on Oct. 27. Former President Kakhar Makhkamov resigned Aug. 31 after the republic's legislature passed a vote of no-confidence in him for not vigorously opposing last month's coup attempt against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

A mountainous republic bordering China and Afghanistan, Tadzhikistan has the highest birth rate in the Soviet Union and is one of the poorest republics.

Tadzhik lawmakers, meeting in the republic's capital of Dushanbe, also declared Sept. 9 to be a national holiday known

Take a chance

ND students finally make it to the front of the line in Stepan Center for tickets for the Notre Dame / University of Michigan football game that will take place in Ann Arbor Saturday.

INSIDE COLUMN

The time has come for co-ed housing at ND

The year 1992 not only marks Notre Dame's sesquicentennial, but it is also the same anniversary for the "Notre Dame of the East," that is, Villanova University in Villanova, Pa. The two schools, both Catholic and non-Jesuit, have enjoyed national prominence in both academics and varsity sports. The student bodies on both campuses share similar backgrounds. Women were admitted to Villanova at about the same time as at ND.

Peter Loftus
Asst. News Editor

In the past few years, however, an important difference has arisen: co-residential housing, or "mixed-gender housing," as it is referred to by Villanova, which began limited mixed-gender housing two years ago. Why has Villanova made progress while ND has made none?

Villanova, like ND, has traditionally been resistant to change, and if it hadn't been for zoning laws in its township prohibiting the construction of new dormitories that would provide housing for the increased proportion of female students, Villanova might never have gone co-residential in 1989. As it is now, only two dormitories are "mixed," but the fact remains that they did go co-residential, and no complications have arisen since then.

ND wouldn't be forced to go co-residential the way Villanova was. We have more land and a better relationship with local municipal officials. We could probably continue building single-sex housing as long as the need would dictate.

However, other necessities should be taken into consideration when ND studies the mixed-gender housing question. The danger of off-campus life (which attracts more students as the alcohol policy becomes more restrictive) and the poor quality of male-female relationships on campus should be glaring reasons for the establishment of mixed-gender dorms.

In a 1990 student survey conducted by Student Government, about 80 percent of the students who responded said ND does not provide a healthy environment for interaction with the opposite sex, and about 75 percent of those students cited single-sex dorms as one of the causes. Similar polls have shown ND students to be heavily in favor of co-residential housing.

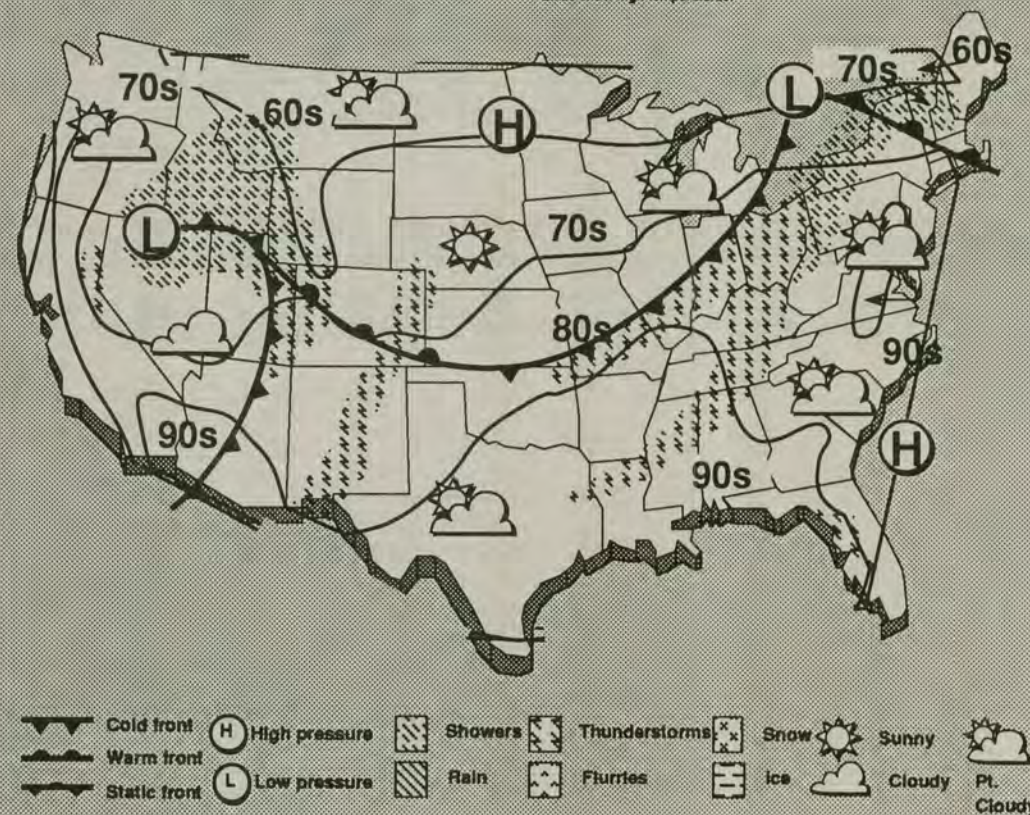

Most students believe a choice should be offered between co-residential and single-sex housing. And it has been suggested that the newer dorms, especially Grace and Flanner, be made co-ed. The towers lack in Dillon-like unity and tradition and are physically conducive to co-residential housing by wing. It would not result in the orgiastic atmosphere that administration-types and even some students envision.

As a senior, co-residential housing shouldn't concern me, and, due to apparent Administration intransigence, most upper classmen are apathetic about the situation. But I would hope that some freshmen will make a cause out of the drive toward co-residential housing, and find some way to pressure the administration into catching up with the times. Villanova's did.

Baker praises Mexican Free-Market

MEXICO CITY — On the eve of his first post-coup visit to Moscow, Secretary of State James Baker on Monday praised Mexico's free-market reforms as an example for the Soviet Union. "The dramatic and revolutionary changes that are taking place in the world today are not just going on in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe," Baker said. "There are equally dramatic changes underway in Mexico." Baker admitted that political reform in Mexico, which has been ruled by the same party for 62 years, had lagged behind economic reform. "Democracy has been going forward in Mexico," he said.

Saudis Exchange 400 Iraqis

ARAR, Saudi Arabia — Saudi Arabian authorities on Monday released 400 Iraqi civilians who had sought refuge in the kingdom during the Persian Gulf crisis and took custody of a Saudi prisoner of war and a Saudi woman. The exchange with Iraq took place at a checkpoint 38 miles from Arar, a garrison town on the Iraqi-Saudi border. The Iraqis were among the 20,000 civilian refugees housed in camps at Rafha, in northeastern Saudi Arabia. Red Cross delegates said the Iraqi group included two prisoners of war flown from a hospital in Riyadh.

Actor dies of AIDS complications

LOS ANGELES — Brad Davis, who starred in the film, "Midnight Express" and co-starred in "Chariots of Fire," has died of AIDS complications, his widow said Monday. He was 41. Davis died Sunday at his home in Studio City, said his wife, Susan Bluestein, a casting director. "Brad had known he was HIV-positive since 1985," Bluestein said. "We all kept this a secret because he was afraid that if it were known he had AIDS, he would never be able to work as an actor." Davis, whose other film credits include "Querelle" and "Rosalie Goes Shopping," contracted the deadly virus from drug use, she said.

ANGOLA, Ind. — A Fort Wayne woman was hospitalized in serious condition Monday after being thrown from a ride at an Angola amusement park. Viola Knox, 43, sustained multiple fractures after she fell from a ride called "The Bullet" at the Fun Spot Park around 5:30 p.m. Sunday. Steuben County sheriff's department officials said the cage door for the ride flew open and threw Knox 30 feet from the car. No one else was hurt.

Renaissance music concerts by vocal ensemble scheduled for Sacred Heart

Special to The Observer

Three concerts of Catholic sacred music of the 15th and 16th centuries will be performed by Pomerium Musices, a vocal ensemble specializing in Renaissance music, at the University of Notre Dame during the University's Sesquicentennial celebration.

The first of the concerts will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 14 in Sacred Heart Church. The later concerts are scheduled for March 28 and Oct. 10, 1992, also to be held in Sacred Heart. All are free and open to the public.

Incorporated in New York in 1977, the group performs music composed for vocal ensembles and virtuoso chapel choirs during the Renaissance. It presents an annual series of concerts in New York City and tours throughout the United States.

The ensemble has been acclaimed on both sides of the Atlantic for its live performances, its two recordings on the Nonesuch label, its first compact disc on classic masters — "The Flemish Masters, Vol. 1: Netherlanders in Italy in the 16th Century" — and its radio broadcasts.

A second compact disc — "The Flemish Masters, Vol. 2: Burgundian Plainchant and Polyphony" — will be released this year. In addition, the group's recording "Mannerist Music of the Late Renaissance" with Dorian Recordings also will be released in 1991.

Previous performances of Pomerium Musices, whose name means "a garden of music," include concerts for the Cambridge Society for Early Music; the International Conference on Performance Practice, affiliated with New York University Early Music Center; and the Utrecht Early Music festival in Holland.

In 1990, Pomerium Musices was one of the few American groups to appear at the San Antonio Early Music Festival.

The first half of the September concert's program will include sections of masses by three 15th century composers — Alexander Agricola, Josquin Desprez, and Pierre de la Rue.

Both Alexander Agricola and Pierre de la Rue accompanied Philip the Fair, Duke of Burgundy and King of Castile, on trips to Spain in 1501-03 and 1506 and may have been influenced by the music they heard there, according to Alexander Blachly, Pomerium's founding director.

Blachly, who has been active in early music for the past 20 years as both a performer and scholar, believes Agricola's "Magnificat quarti toni II," which Pomerium Musices will perform first, may have been written in Spain.

Sections of La Rue's "Missa L'homme arme," a Mass believed by music historians to have accompanied Philip the Fair and La Rue on the 1506 trip to Spain, also will be performed, as well as sections from another La rue Mass, "Missa Ave sanctissima Maria," which is the earliest known Mass written in six vocal parts.

Josquin, who spent many of his formative years in Italy, was universally regarded in his own day as the greatest composer of the age, says Blachly.

Works by two composers of the sixteenth century, Orlando de Lassus and Carlo Gesualdo, will make up the second portion of the concert.

Lassus, a French speaker by birth, spent the decade between his twelfth and twenty-third birthdays in Italy, explains Blachly. Four of his works will be performed in the September concert. The first, "Alleluia, vox laeta personat," is a motet for five-voice choir. The second, "Tristis est anima mea," is a study in the musical rhetoric of great emotion. The third work, "Cum essem parvulus," demonstrates Lassus' adoption of rhetorical figures, says Blachly.

Blachly describes the fourth work, "Timor et tremor," although an early work, as one of the composer's boldest. Carlo Gesualdo first developed his art as a madrigalist, says Blachly, and when he transferred some of his style to the composition of five- and six-voice motets, liturgical music moved to a new plane of religious fervor. Pomerium Musices will perform three motets — "Tristis est anima mea," "Omnes amici mei," and "Velum templi scissum est."

Blachly taught early music and directed collegia musica at Columbia University, Sarah Lawrence College, New York University, and Rutgers University.

Leadership conference announced

By JENNIFER HABRYCH
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

"Visions, Values, & Viewpoints," a conference designed to enhance the leadership skills of students, is slated to take place at Saint Mary's Sept. 28.

This workshop was announced by Janet Anderson, director of Student Activities, at Monday's meeting of Saint Mary's Board of Governance (BOG).

Designed for the current and aspiring leaders on the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame campuses, the workshop will explore the role of leadership, and the impact leaders decisions have on others. Participants will also exchange their viewpoints with students, faculty, staff and community leaders.

Sister Patricia Vandenberg, president and chief executive officer of Holy Cross Health System, a multimillion dollar national health care system run out of South Bend, will serve as the keynote speaker. She will share her perspective on ethical leadership and women's leadership.

According to Anderson, participants will also spend the day developing skills such as personal development, group dynamics, listening and developing successful programs.

The conference is sponsored by SMC Student Government, SMC Student Activities Office, and the Leadership Development Committee.

There is a five-dollar registration fee. All interested students should contact the SMC Student Activities Office at 284-4562.

Overall, the poll of 1,519 adults by telephone from Sept. 3 through Sept. 5 had a likely margin of error of three percentage points either way. An additional sampling of 218 blacks for a total of 324 was necessary to reach useable conclusions; for blacks, the margin of uncertainty was given as five points.

Supporters of Thomas have highlighted his rise from a poor black family in segregated Georgia to important positions in Washington, where he chaired the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and became a federal appellate judge.

But the opposition coalition of civil rights and labor organizations has focused on Thomas' opposition to affirmative action programs and on writings concerning "natural law" that suggest he would vote to overturn women's right to abortion.

Ralph Neas, director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, said the White House has tried to divert attention away from Thomas' "awful public record" by emphasizing his storybook rise from poverty in Pin Point, Ga.

"What is really at stake is Clarence Thomas' vision of the Constitution," said Nan Aron, director of the liberal Alliance for Justice, which opposes the nomination.

The White House, meanwhile, tried to steer the debate over Thomas' qualifications away from specific issues such as abortion.

Bookbags

by "local people who hope to sell any textbooks they steal to local bookstores," said Hurley.

To help combat such pilferage, Security has enlisted the cooperation of area bookstores in an effort to apprehend bookbag thieves. "We check with the bookstores to see if any books reported stolen have been brought in to their shops," Hurley explained, "then we then ask them to give us the names of those who brought in the books."

Hurley said such investigative efforts have led to the arrest of several suspected book thieves over the past year. He believes that the recent arrests have helped to deter bookbag stealing on campus, leading to a decline in the number of bookbags reported stolen from approximately 100 in the 1989-90 school year to around 30 in 1990-91.

Bookbag theft has also been a concern of University Food Services, which is particularly worried about the acute vulnerability of bookbags left unattended in dining hall vestibules.

Food Services considered installing coin operated lockers in dining hall vestibules, but found that space limitations make such an installation unfeasible, according to Bill Yarbrough, manager of South Dining Hall.

However, Yarbrough said Food Services has attempted to weed out potential bookbag thieves by asking dining hall ID checkers to "look out for and report any suspicious people lurking near the cubbyholes."

Similarly, Hurley advises students to report anyone who does not seem to belong on campus to Security. "Students should make that call early rather than think twice about it," Hurley said, "or else they may wait too long to call and might allow a bookbag thief to get away."

Hurley also said that students can help combat bookbag theft by placing "unique identifying marks" inside their books. Such marks make it easier to prove that a book sold to a bookstore is stolen, thus making it easier for the authorities to capture the thief and return the book to its rightful owner.

Bregande accepts Hurley's advice as reasonable. However, despite the fact that he placed such identifying marks into his textbooks before they were stolen, Bregande does not expect that his books or his other stolen possessions will ever be returned to him.

Since he has already re-purchased his books and re-written his paper, he would have little use for the items in the bookbag if they were returned.

"After all this aggravation, I might even be a little upset if I ever got that stuff back," Bregande said.

The University of Notre Dame's Theodore Hesburgh Center for International Studies will be dedicated Sept. 13-14 as the first event in the University's Sesquicentennial.

The Hesburgh Center houses the Joan Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies and the Helen Kellogg Institute for International Studies.

Hesburgh, Notre Dame's president emeritus, and Kroc, whose $12 million in gifts to Notre Dame made possible the peace studies program and the Hesburgh Center, will both take part in the dedication. Kroc is the widow of Ray Kroc, who founded the McDonald's restaurant chain.

On Friday, there will be two symposia in the University's Center for Continuing Education, under the overall title, "Global Peace and Development: Prospects for the future." At 9 a.m., a Kellogg Institute panel will discuss "Prospects for the Hemisphere," and at 1:30 p.m., a Kroc Institute panel will discuss "Peacemaking in the Global Context."

A Mass will also be celebrated Friday at 5 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church.

On Saturday, Sept. 14 at 10 a.m., there will be a blessing ceremony at the Hesburgh Center, followed by tours of the new building.

At 11 a.m. in the Center for Continuing Education, there will be an academic convocation at which the University will confer honorary doctor of laws degrees on the following people:

- Lester Brown, founder, president and senior researcher of Worldwatch Institute. The institute's numerous publications issued under his direction, as well as his own 12 books, are internationally recognized as among the most authoritative assessments available on global environmental issues.

- Fernando Henrique Cardoso, member of the Brazilian Senate. Internationally known for his scholarship in fields including the sociology of development, the theory of dependency, authoritarian political regimes and redemocratization, Cardoso endured years of harassment and exile for his opposition to military rule in Brazil.

He retains his association with Centro Brasileiro Analise Planejamento (CEBRAP), which he founded as a center of scholarship and resistance to authoritarianism.

- Alejandro Foxley, Helen Kellogg professor in international development. A key figure in one of the world's fastest growing economies, Foxley serves as Chile's minister for finance after a distinguished academic career that included positions at Oxford, M.I.T. and the University of California at Berkeley, in addition to ND. He and Guillermo O' Donnell were the first scholars named to the faculty of the Kellogg Institute.

- Randall Watson Forsberg, founder and director of the Institute for Defense and Disarmament Studies. Her wide-ranging contributions to the movement have included publishing authoritative estimates of world nuclear arms stockpiles, helping to launch the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign and, in 1989, briefing President Bush, Secretary of State James Baker and other top ranking administration officials on the future of East-West relations.

- Ivan Head, member of the Kellogg Institute's Advisory Council since its inception in 1982. Head served for 10 years as Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's special assistant for international relations.

He recently was appointed professor of law at the University of British Columbia after completing three terms as president of the International Development Research Centre, an institution established to enhance scientific competence in developing countries.

- Spurgeon Keeney, Jr., one of the world's foremost authorities on nuclear disarmament. Prior to assuming his present post as president and executive director of the Arms Control Association, he spent more than eight years as a senior official of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, headed the U.S. delegation to the 1980 Theater Nuclear Force Talks with the Soviet Union, and served as senior staff member of the National Security Council.

- Abraham Lowenthal, a member of the Kellogg Institute's Advisory Council. A leading figure in Latin American studies in the U.S., Lowenthal has been a professor of international relations at the University of Southern California since 1984. He was the founding director of the Latin American Program at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. He also served five years with the Ford Foundation in the Dominican Republic and Peru.

- Thomas Odhiambo, one of Kenya's most distinguished scientists and one of the world's leading authorities on tropical insects. Odhiambo founded and directs the International Centre for Insect Physiology and Ecology in Nairobi. He has published more than 100 scientific papers and books.

- Sadako Ogata, a prominent expert on international human rights. Ogata is in her first year as United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. In addition to being among Japan's leading U.N. representatives for more than 20 years, she has served as director of the Institute for International Relations at Tokyo's Sophia University and as dean of its faculty of Foreign Studies.

Ogata will also be the convocation speaker.

Following the convocation, former first lady Rosalynn Carter will be the principal speaker at a luncheon honoring Kroc for her efforts on behalf of world peace.

republic's central Banija region, was controlled by Serb guerrillas and the estimated 1,000 Croat defenders appeared to be surrounded, Tanjug reported.

Several hundred Croat militiamen were reported surrounded at Pakrac, about 70 miles east of the Croatian capital, Zagreb. The Croats were ambushed and pinned down Sunday by Serbs.

Fighting also continued at Okucani, along the Belgrade-Zagreb highway linking Europe and the Middle East. Serb rebels took over a stretch of the road last Wednesday, virtually cutting Croatia in half. There was no word Monday on who was in control.

The fighting in Croatia's Slavonia region came despite an agreement Saturday among Croatian officials, Serb insurgents and the local federal army commander to cease hostilities to allow an attempt to negotiate a settlement of the crisis.

Independence movements across the Soviet Union:

as Independence Day. They renamed downtown Lenin Square to Freedom Square.

Only the Russia Federation, Kazakhstan, Turkmenia and Armenia have yet to declare outright independence from the Soviet Union. Armenia is voting on independence later this month.

Azerbaijan, with 6.9 million people, declared its independence on Aug. 30 after declaring sovereignty in August 1989, meaning that the republic's laws would take precedence over Soviet laws.

Mutalibov's ascent to power accelerated in January 1990, when he was named leader of the Communist Party in Azerbaijan following bloody ethnic violence when Azerbaijanis attacked ethnic Armenians.

In renewed violence this weekend, 13 people were killed and more than 30 wounded in Nagorno-Karabakh, a predominantly Armenian enclave inside Azerbaijan where ethnic battles have claimed hundreds of lives in three years.

Opposition leaders in Azerbaijan said they would not recognize the election of Mutalibov, who quit the Communist Party only after last month's bungled coup and the subsequent collapse of the party.

Mutalibov was defiant Monday in a Soviet television report from Baku, the Azerbaijani capital.

"I am not going to join any parties," he said. "I will fulfill the duties of the president based on the law and my likes and dislikes of this or that movement are my personal business."

Official results of the election were expected Tuesday. An informal exit poll by the independent ASSA news agency gave Mutalibov 90 percent of the vote.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pickpockets will profit from new ticket booklets

Dear Editor:

Once again we return to school to find new, harsher regulations around us, affecting every facet of our lives. Of course, these rules are designed to transform the characters of average Notre Dame students into those of wonderfully wholesome alumni.

Some changes are doing more harm than good, particularly that of the new student ticket policy. The booklet that is meant to prevent us from selling these invaluable items is only making the student body ever more vulnerable to theft on football weekends, which are notorious for their heightened crime rate of non-ND persons towards the student body.

By forcing every Notre Dame and Saint Mary's student to carry every ticket with him or her to every football game, the chance is much higher for ticket holders to be pickpocketed of these virtually priceless items. Would the administration advocate carrying between $500 to $1000 in cash to every football game, not to mention tailgating and other football-related activities on campus? What a pickpocket paradise!

The tickets clearly state that they are invalid without student ID, yet the chances are very high that even a cautious student would carry his or her tickets in a wallet—directly next to the student ID! So with one quick and careful movement, a crafty thief can make one thousand dollars in less than 20 seconds. South Bend is not a crime-free city. Shall we put one more temptation before our neighbors?

The ticket book also states that "should it be lost or stolen, the fee for restoration is $150.00." How convenient for the organization in charge of ticket sales! Not only has the price of season tickets for our very own school team gone up $6.00 from last year, but the price for replacing the risky item is twice the cost of the original! What an opportunity to turn a pretty profit. Certainly the spirit of honesty and goodness of Notre Dame would not allow the administration to make a slightly discolored buck.

Jim Sexton apologizes, explains story behind his recent shoplifting charge

Dear Editor:

Let me tell my side of the story. On Monday, August 26, 1991, my fiancée and I were shopping in Martin's. We kidded each other about saving money and about spending on frivolous items, e.g., football cards.

As a joke on her, I put some packs of cards in my pocket fully intending to pay for them when we completed our shopping. (I would never steal nor would I take something that did not belong to me.) After 30 to 40 minutes of shopping, we paid for our purchases and began to leave the store when a gentleman confronted me with not paying for the cards. I had totally forgotten about them. I explained this and began to pay for the cards, but was refused. He insisted that the incident be reported.

In the space of what seemed a microsecond, the Prosecutor's Office suggested that I accept pretrial diversion. The alternative, a public hearing, would certainly lead to much adverse publicity for my family, my school, and my team.

Solely in an effort to avoid what now has happened, I accepted diversion and community service. This was all concluded within a day of the incident.

Fully ten days later, someone called this matter to the attention of the media. (I feel that this was done because of my being a member of the Notre Dame football team.) Be that as it may, the prolonged series of stories which have been reported in The South Bend Tribune, The Observer, on TV and radio have created erroneous impressions as to the nature of the incident, its handling, and basically of me as a person.

Words could never express the sorrow I feel for the embarrassment that has been brought to those who mean the most to me. I deeply apologize to my fiancée, my family and friends, my classmates, my school and my team for that which they have suffered over this affair.

As Coach Lou Holtz has said often, "Adversity as little else can teach the important lessons." It is painfully clear to me that there is nothing that could possibly replace the feeling of faith, trust, and support from family and friends.

I have learned that no matter what the consequences appear to be, if you have done no wrong you must accept no compromise but stand and hold to the truth. Thank you.

Lt. Williams deserves our thanks

Dear Editor:

I think we, the members of the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's community, should take a moment to give a well deserved thank you to Lieutenant Norval Williams of the South Bend Police Department.

Most of us are aware of the arrests of Rick Mirer and Demetrius DuBose and the role of Lt. Williams in this ridiculous case. Lt. Norval is an exception to the stereotypical police officer that has been portrayed in recent issues of The Observer. He is a man whose motto truly is, "To serve and protect."

Lt. Williams took an enormous career risk last Friday when he chose to take a stand and speak up for Demetrius DuBose and Rick Mirer, and a result of his courage is the subject of an investigation. It is abundantly clear that he is being used as a scapegoat by his fellow officers' behavior, which is unprofessional and inexcusable.

Since a public apology is undoubtedly not forthcoming from Police Chief Robert Marciniak (who, by the way, had better not even think about getting football tickets in this lifetime!), we take this opportunity to apologize for them. Please accept our apologies for the troubles you have had to suffer as a result of your fellow officers. We sincerely hope that they will exercise better judgment in the future.

Thank you Lt. Norval Williams for knowing how and when to "Do The Right Thing."

p.s. Let the F.O.P know no donations are forthcoming.

Day in the life

Sesquicentennial exhibits feature ND history

By JAHNELLE HARRIGAN
Assistant Accent Editor

In coordination with the Sesquicentennial, University Archives has put together four exhibits to highlight the history of Notre Dame.

Located in the Administration Building, the Hesburgh Memorial Library concourse, the Center for Continuing Education, and the JACC, they focus on the first 25 years of Notre Dame history, from 1842 to the Civil War.

The displays are meant to give historical information about the students, faculty, administration, and campus of this time period, according to Charles Lamb, Assistant Director and Associate Archivist.

A set of minutes from the Council of Administration is on display in the Administration Building. This Council, the first governing body of Notre Dame, was made up of the University's founder, Fr. Edward Sorin, and various clergymen.

The minutes give a very detailed account of daily life in Notre Dame's early years, ranging from people on campus and student life to the University's farms and livestock.

In organizing the exhibits, items were chosen that applied to the students of the time period. "The way we like to use our collections is to look at things that can tell us about daily life," said Lamb.

Also part of the Main Building exhibit is an enlarged copy of the account book of Patrick O'Sullivan, a Notre Dame student in 1847.

This document recorded many purchases, mostly sheets of paper and quills, made by O'Sullivan while at ND. "It is interesting to see the different things that students purchased," said Lamb.

With this account book, a price list of tuition and related costs from 1855 is displayed. The connection between these items emphasizes the importance of the collection, not the individual items, according to Lamb.

A main focus of the exhibits is the role that Sorin plays in the University's history. Displayed in the Administration Building are various portraits of Sorin, the stole and maniple from his vestments, and a volume of his breviary.

Sorin was "one of the main forces behind the University," according to Lamb, which is why much of the exhibits are focused on him.

Also emphasized is the evolution of Notre Dame's campus. The original Administration building, Sacred Heart Church and campus farms are seen in the photographs and illustrations of the exhibits.

Documents and photographs seen in the exhibits were taken from University Archives, and most other artifacts were borrowed from the Sacred Heart Church museum.

The display in the Administration building will be changed in January, 1992.

This display, in addition to those in the CCE and library concourse will remain until December, 1992.

Petty's latest album is nothing new

By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR
Accent Writer

Throughout his fifteen-year recording career, Tom Petty has consistently improved his popularity and art.

However, with his latest album, Into the Great Wide Open, Petty seems to have leveled off his ascent into rock 'n' roll immortality.

The critical and commercial success of 1989's Full Moon Fever, recorded without Petty's band, the Heartbreakers, was partly due to the album's accessible themes of youth, opportunity, and love gone wrong.

Though common in today's rock, these topics were handled with musical and emotional maturity by the 40-year old Petty.

In this respect, Into the Great Wide Open is a disappointment. Petty has again included several songs about hitting the road, and a couple more about the girl down the street.

Into the Great Wide Open grasps the same themes and sound that pervaded much of Full Moon Fever. Yet without

Into the Great Wide Open

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers

 1/2

(on a scale of 5)

the novelty of Full Moon Fever's sound, much of the new album falls flat.

Indeed, several of the songs on Into the Great Wide Open are apparent twins of tracks from Full Moon Fever.

"All the Wrong Reasons" is "Free Fallin'" without reference to the San Fernando Valley, and "Out in the Cold" is another three and a half minutes of "Love is a Long Long Road."

On the other hand, the excellent musicianship and songwriting that has characterized Petty's work since his debut in 1976 is found on the new album.

Complete with the southern drawl of the guitars and skillful blending of electric and acoustic sounds, the new album has Petty's distinctive mark.

The first song on the album, "Learning to Fly," is destined to be a Petty classic, with its friendly lyrics and soothing acoustic rhythm guitar.

Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers recently released their new album Into the Great Wide Open featuring "Learning to Fly."

The title track is another standout. With clever, pun-filled lyrics, "Into the Great Wide Open" is vintage Petty driving music.

Much of the rest of the album is very enjoyable music made by a very capable group of musicians.

The quality of Petty and the Heartbreakers' product should not be ignored merely because they have done the same thing before.

Produced by Petty, Jeff Lynne, and Heartbreaker guitarist Mike Campbell, Into the Great Wide Open suffers from the same syndrome that plagues many Lynne projects.

The pop savvy he brings to artists benefits them in the short term, but the limits he seemingly imposes on their sound is ultimately detrimental.

If one has never heard Full Moon Fever, Into the Great Wide Open is an enjoyable album full of catchy melodies and lyrical hooks.

However, with the consideration of Full Moon Fever, Into the Great Wide Open is but Full Moon Fever II, and as we have seen before, the sequel is never quite as good as the original.

Strawberry's 5 RBI's keep Dodgers in first place

CINCINNATI (AP) — Darryl Strawberry drove in five runs Monday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers held onto first place in the NL West with a 10-4 drubbing of the Cincinnati Reds.

Strawberry's RBI single tied it 4-all in the fourth, and his three-run double an inning later sent the Dodgers to their third straight win and their ninth in 11 games. He also had an RBI grounder amid a three-run seventh.

There was one troubling development for the Dodgers: starter Tim Belcher had to leave the game in the second inning with pulled groin muscles. Kevin Gross (9-10) got the win despite giving up four runs in three innings. John Wetteland got the last three outs.

Braves 8, Giants 3

ATLANTA — David Justice drove in a career-high five runs with a pair of homers and a single and John Smoltz won his 10th game since the All-Star break as the Atlanta Braves defeated the San Francisco Giants for their fourth consecutive victory.

Atlanta entered the game trailing first-place Los Angeles by one-half game in the NL West.

Smoltz (12-13) won his fourth straight and is 10-2 since July 12 after going 2-11 the first half of the season. He pitched seven innings and gave up one and five hits.

Atlanta scored four runs in the first inning off Bud Black (10-15), who lost for the sixth time in seven decisions.

Expos 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Montreal snapped a nine-game losing streak to New York as Mike Fitzgerald had a two-run single to lead the Expos past the Mets.

The Expos have won nine of their last 10 games and still have a chance of catching the Mets, who lost their fifth straight game.

Brian Barnes (4-6) pitched five innings for the victory. The left-hander, 1-3 with four no decisions in his previous eight starts, gave up two runs and three hits. Bill Sampen pitched 2 2-3 innings and Jeff Fassero finished for his seventh save, getting a double play to end the game with runners on first and third.

David Cone (12-12), 4-6 in his last 10 decisions, gave up four runs on eight hits.

Red Sox 4, Indians 3

CLEVELAND — The smallest crowd at Cleveland Stadium in 17 years saw the Boston Red Sox win their sixth straight game, beating the Indians on Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

Only 1,695 fans attended at the 74,483-seat ballpark. The game, not on the teams' original schedules, was a makeup of an April 19 rainout. Despite special pricing on tickets, it was the smallest crowd in Cleveland since 1,564 watched a game against Oakland on April 24, 1974.

The Red Sox matched their longest winning streak of the season and moved within five games of AL East-leading Toronto, which was idle. Cleveland has lost five straight.

Greg Harris (11-11) got the win in relief despite allowing the tying run in the seventh inning. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for his 37th save.

Cooper wary as Buckeyes host Louisville

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Having spent eight years on the outside looking in while at Tulsa, John Cooper knows what it's like to have a successful team overlooked in the national polls.

Based on that experience, the Ohio State coach said Monday that it will be an uphill struggle for Louisville and coach Howard Schnellenberger to meet their goal of a national championship in the near future.

"I think it's very questionable whether Howard can win a national championship or not, simply because it's Louisville," said Cooper. "I would say the same thing if, you know, I was coaching at Tulsa, or if I was coaching at Louisville. I think it's hard. It's hard to win a national championship anywhere. There have been teams go undefeated and not win a national championship."

"I think he's competed (for one). I think he competed last year for it. But I don't know if he can win it or not."

Louisville (1-1) plays 19th-ranked Ohio State (1-0) at Ohio Stadium Saturday. The Cardinals are coming off a 10-1-1 season in 1990, capped by a 34-7 victory over Alabama in the Fiesta Bowl and a No. 14 ranking nationally.

"They (Louisville) got my attention last year when they beat Alabama as badly as they did in the bowl game. I guess I was like a lot of other people in college football. To me, that was one of the big shockers. Not that I didn't expect them to play well," Cooper said.

"Incidentally, I was extremely happy when they got a chance to go to the Fiesta Bowl because I coached a team at Tulsa one year that went 10-1 — probably the same kind of team that Howard had — and we didn't go anywhere."

Tulsa, where Cooper was 57-31 over eight years, was a program similar to Louisville in scope and size. Cooper said he recognizes the turnaround that Schnellenberger has undertaken.

"Howard's done a fantastic coaching job, probably as good a coaching job as has ever been done in college football during my lifetime," said the 54-year-old Cooper. "I don't care who you're playing, you win 11 games anywhere and you're doing a heck of a job."

Ohio State opened its season Saturday with a 38-14 victory over Arizona. Cooper said he saw many things he was pleased with, but "I'm not sure they (Arizona) were as good as we thought they were going to be going into the game."

Louisville opened with a 24-14 victory over Eastern Kentucky, but lost to Tennessee 28-11 Thursday. In the loss, the Cardinals lost starting quarterback Jeff Brohm with a broken leg. But Cooper said he still doesn't expect Louisville to be any less dangerous.

"I think psychologically they may be more fired up now than if they would have been 2-0," Cooper said. "This gives them a chance to come in here and to upset a nationally-ranked team on the road."

Dayton captures campus golf tourney crown

By RICHARD MATHURIN
Sports Writer

The best players on the Notre Dame campus gathered this past week to compete in the Notre Dame Campus Championship.

Senior golf team member Chris Dayton fired a four-round total of 289 to capture the championship by three shots over fellow teammate Mike O'Connell. Dayton shot a 69 in the final round to best O'Connell, despite the latter shooting a blistering 67 in the last loop.

"Dayton really hadn't been playing well last spring and I had to get on him a bit. He worked really hard over the summer, though, and it really shows," said Irish coach George Thomas.

"I worked a lot on the mental part of the game over the summer. I did a lot of going through the motions, not concentrating before, but I played in a lot of tournaments which really helped," said Dayton.

place third in the tournament. Other top finishers: Loren Crosbie (301), Mark Muscato (305), Joe Dennen (307), Jay Johnsrud (307), Todd Klem (309), and Mike Graf (310).

It was an especially satisfying tournament for Crosbie and Muscato, whose impressive play caught the eye of Thomas and earned them spots on the golf team.

"They both really showed me something. I asked Muscato why he didn't play golf in high school and he said the he played football instead," commented Thomas.

The Irish enter this season with an optimistic outlook. They return four starters from last year's squad, losing only last year's captain Paul Nolte to graduation. Thomas will begin the season with a starting team of O'Connell, Dayton, Crisanti, Dennen, and Johnsrud, though freshman Klem and Brennan Murphy will push the top five.

The Irish will open the season this weekend at the Purdue Invitational to be held on the campus of Purdue University.

Campus Ministry

... considerations

Our Lady of Sorrows

Sometimes we tell visiting tourists that the statue on the top of the Golden Dome is Knute Rockne in a rain coat. Sometimes we just say it's "Mary." Very seldom do we say that it's Mary, portrayed as the Immaculate Conception, the woman born without sin who lived her whole life without sin.

Through the centuries, Christians came to believe that if Mary was such a great mother that she could raise a perfect child like Jesus, she herself must have been free from all sin. In the nineteenth century, this belief was declared a truth of the Catholic Church, and this image of Mary was included by Fr. Sorin on the top of his newly-rebuilt Main Building at Notre Dame du lac.

The image of a golden woman, without sin, high above the hustle and struggle of the real world might feel distant and other-worldly to us. The protectress of our school could seem to invite a spirit of distance and privilege onto our campus. This would be a mistake; for more than ever, we need a spirit and an education here that seeks engagement with the world and with its struggles.

From the top of the Dome, the Blessed Mother looks down Notre Dame Avenue and over the Northeast neighborhood of South Bend. These days, she sees a neighborhood of struggle and change. More and more, she sees a neighborhood that includes violence and fear and uprooted lives. Surely, she hears the pleas for security and protection. And surely, she understands.

For her own life was uprooted by senseless violence. Her own life witnessed poverty and pain. Her own heart was as if pierced by a sword when she saw the early death of the child she loved and held his limp body in her arms.

That Golden Lady on the Dome was first Our Lady of Sorrows. She was not called sinless because she refused to dirty her hands in the real world. She is sinless because she refused to run from the truths of this life and she embraced the struggles of the poor and of those who suffer with her whole being.

That spirit of engagement must now infect us all. Sunday we will pray in an opening Eucharist for the Sesquicentennial, thanking God for all our gifts and blessings. Sunday is also a Feast Day of Mary, as she is called Our Lady of Sorrows, the patroness of all the religious of the Congregation of Holy Cross and its works. Let us pray that the many gifts of this much blessed institution, guided by the spirit of our sinless, sorrowing Mother, may be brought to the service of those most in need, in the neighborhood, in the dormitory, and in the world.

Tyson indicted on rape charges

Ex-champ could face maximum sentence of 63 years

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A special grand jury indicted boxer Mike Tyson on charges of rape, criminal deviate conduct and confinement Monday in an alleged attack on a beauty pageant contestant. The charges include one count of rape, two counts of criminal deviate conduct and one count of confinement. If convicted on all counts, the former heavyweight champion could face a maximum sentence of 63 years in prison. The grand jury returned its decision shortly before 5 p.m. EDT before Marion Superior Court Judge Patricia J. Gifford. A warrant was issued for Tyson's arrest, and bond was set at $30,000. Gifford also banned Tyson from contacting the alleged victim, an 18-year-old Miss Black America contestant from the East Coast. Tyson, meanwhile, stayed under wraps in Las Vegas, where he was reportedly staying at promoter Don King's home on the gated Las Vegas Country Club. The former heavyweight champion skipped a scheduled training date at a local gym, but King spokesman John Solberg said Tyson would keep his normal schedule and would probably begin sparring next week for the Holyfield fight. "He's going to continue the same training schedule," Solberg said. "Mike handles adversity well, and I'm sure this won't have any effect on his fight preparations." Prosecutor Jeffrey Modisett said Tyson was expected to return to Indianapolis this week to make an initial court appearance and to post bond. No trial date was set. Modisett has said a trial would not be scheduled before the end of the year, leaving intact Tyson's planned heavyweight fight against champion Evander Holyfield on Nov. 8 at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Promoter calls for Nevada to strip Tyson of boxing license

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Rival promoter Bob Arum called on Nevada boxing officials Monday to "do the decent thing" and strip Mike Tyson of his boxing license pending resolution of the rape charges against him in Indianapolis. Arum urged the Nevada State Athletic Commission to suspend Tyson's license under an obscure state boxing regulation that allows suspension of a license "if the holder is arrested or convicted on a charge involving moral turpitude." Arum said if Tyson is acquitted of the charges, his scheduled Nov. 8 fight with Evander Holyfield could still be held at a later date and would be an even bigger fight financially than the original would have been. Boxing officials said the regulation has never been used, but commission vice chairman Luther Mack said the commission would meet to decide whether to allow the Nov. 8 fight between Tyson and heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield to go on. "We have certain rules and regulations we have to abide by," Mack said. "We have to meet as a total commission and take a look at it. We will decide it at that time." Tyson, meanwhile, stayed under wraps in Las Vegas, where he was reportedly staying at promoter Don King's home on the gated Las Vegas Country Club. The former heavyweight champion skipped a scheduled training date at a local gym, but King spokesman John Solberg said Tyson would keep his normal schedule and would probably begin sparring next week for the Holyfield fight.

them and they've put forth the effort. They want to succeed, and I am sure we will." Likewise, the players are not short on praise for their new leader. "He (Cooper) came in as a fresh face and was real enthusiastic," said sophomore Greg Lane. "He gave us a lot of confidence and picked us up." These sentiments were echoed by Burris. "Coach Cooper has a lot of motivation and has brought us together," he said. "We work more as a unit, playing close-knit football with more confidence." Against Indiana this past weekend, the Irish secondary gave up a healthy 221 passing yards to Hoosier quarterback Trent Green, but Holtz seemed pleased with the unit's performance in a post-game press conference. "I think that the secondary was playing back well, and we were reacting to the ball well," said Holtz. As far as the rest of the season is concerned, the Irish will face their usual tough schedule, but Cooper and his players will be looking to disprove all of the doubters that came out of the woodwork after last season.

Saint Mary's soccer team splits weekend matches

By NIKKI WELLMANN
Sports writer

Saint Mary's soccer team had mixed results this weekend with a 3-0 victory Friday over DePauw and a 0-0 tie Saturday in a matchup against Wooster.

Against DePauw, both teams started out slowly in their respective season openers. Junior Greer Gilliland, the Belles' leading returning scorer, appropriately started this year's scoring with a goal 35 minutes into the first half.

That goal sparked Saint Mary's, and just minutes later, freshman Maura Sullivan beat the Tiger goalie from 15 yards out. Saint Mary's carried that 2-0 advantage over the Tigers into halftime.

In the second half, the Tigers became the aggressors, creating several serious scoring threats. The Belles appeared tired, playing to protect their two-goal lead rather than seal the victory.

"We played tentatively the second half due to fitness," Belles' coach Tom VanMeter commented. "We were making mental mistakes, not physical ones."

However, it was the freshmen, who showed they were not awed by their first collegiate game, who woke up the Saint Mary's attack. Jennifer Ferry scored from just outside the goal box at the 77:10 mark to conclude the day's scoring.

Senior Kelly Cook's two steals also helped stave off DePauw on the defensive end of the field.

Even though the Belles faltered somewhat in the second half, VanMeter was still positive.

"Why should you complain when you win?" VanMeter asked. "I am excited. We are a really good team. We're balanced. It was a really great confidence boost. The goalkeepers played really well."

"We should have had more opportunities, though. We cannot be satisfied. You can always get better."

In Saturday's action, despite better play, the Belles could not manage to hit the back of the net. The two teams played 120 minutes of scoreless soccer, including two 15-minute overtime periods, and finished in a 0-0 tie.

The fact that Wooster was shut out as well resulted from "a more organized and composed defense," VanMeter said.

Also very important components were Cook's game-saving defensive play late in the second half, and excellent play by the two Belles' goalkeepers, junior Mary Beth Barger and senior Mary Alice O'Neill. The two goalies combined to stop eight shots.

On the other side of the scoreboard, the Belles were halted due to outstanding play by the Wooster goalkeeper, who managed 10 saves.

Saint Mary's will be in action again this weekend at the Lady Scot Classic hosted by the College of Wooster.

Judge reinstates Montana lineman

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A judge ordered Monday that Montana offensive tackle Steve Premock, who had been declared ineligible by the NCAA for alleged steroid use, be allowed to play.

Citing "substantial questions" about the NCAA's drug-testing procedures, state District Judge Douglas Harkin issued his injunction following a two-day hearing.

Harkin also said he intends to order NCAA officials to appear before his court to show why they should not "forever be barred" from penalizing Premock, a 296-pound senior who was a starter last year.

Premock transferred to Montana before the 1989 season from Sierra Junior College in California. He was redshirted that year but started every game last season.

He missed the Grizzlies' season-opening 38-6 victory Saturday over Humboldt State, but probably will play Saturday against Louisiana Tech, Montana athletic department officials said.

Premock was declared ineligible for his senior season after an NCAA random drug test on Feb. 28 showed positive for use of anabolic steroids.

Premock and Montana officials weren't notified of the results until April 2 and quickly had Premock tested again. His lawyers said that test, conducted at American Biotech Laboratories in Santa Clara, Calif., proved negative for any steroids.

Premock went to court, and Harkin issued a temporary injunction two weeks ago.

In his ruling Monday, the judge cited the lack of a clear chain of custody of the urine specimen, inaccurate dates in the NCAA's drug tests, an improperly signed lab manifest, and a late notification of the test results.

He also pointed to a telephone appeal process that "left a lot to be desired" and uniformity of certain results for all the players tested except Premock.

The overall result, Harkin said, was "nothing short of remarkable."

Premock was one of 71 college players nationwide declared ineligible for positive drug tests during the past school year, according to the NCAA.

"I could tolerate some inconsistency in the testing procedure if there was some indication slight errors occurred and the plaintiff showed evidence of steroid use," Harkin said.

But team physician Dr. Robert Curry testified that Premock doesn't exhibit the normal symptoms of a steroid user.

And Harkin noted that at the time of the NCAA test Premock was on a diet, trying to lose weight, not gain it.

The NCAA has no representatives at the court hearing Friday or Monday, although Joan Newman, an attorney representing the university, said she had notified the organization several times.

Harkin said he was worried that the NCAA would penalize the school if Montana allows Premock to play.

NCAA rules say a team that uses ineligible players may have to forfeit its games, lose its team and individual awards, be declared ineligible for postseason play, and have to send the NCAA all its television receipts and 90 percent of its gate receipts.

"It's foolish to go through a football season and have it all thrown out the window because I didn't hear all the evidence that might change my mind," Harkin said. "I don't think it's right for a party to ... lay back in the weeds and tag you at the end."

He told Newman and Premock's attorney, Brad Luck, to draw up motions to require NCAA officials to appear in his court before they attempt to impose sanctions against Montana.

Soccer teams take on MCC foes

Women travel to Dayton in first of three straight on road

By MIKE SCRUDATO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's soccer team takes on Dayton, an Midwestern Collegiate Conference member, today at 4:00 p.m. in a Central Region contest.

Today's matchup is the first of three road games over the next six days, a week which could set the tone for the remainder of the season.

"To be successful, we have to be able to win on the road, especially against teams in our region," Irish coach Chris Petrucelli said. "More importantly, in 1992, we begin MCC competition, and we would like to establish our dominance over those teams now."

(The MCC currently does not have round-robin competition in women's soccer. By 1992, all seven MCC schools are expected to sponsor teams, with a full slate of conference competition—along with a year-end conference tournament—taking place.)

The Lady Flyers are coming off a 6-9-3 season against a schedule that featured seven top 20 teams. They return 17 players from last year's squad—including Lori Davis, their leading goal scorer—which the Irish narrowly defeated, 1-0.

Despite its experience, Dayton started its 1991 campaign with a disappointing road trip on which the Lady Flyers fell to SMU, 6-1, and Tulsa, 4-0. They will be looking to rebound against the Irish in their home opener.

"I expect our defense to hold them down and not up a lot of goals," an upbeat Petrucelli said. "I am confident in our ability to score goals."

Notre Dame expects its success from the second half of Saturday's 2-0 win over Mercyhurst to carry over to today's game. Senior Susie Zilvitis and sophomore Alison Lester, in the center of the Irish offense, especially benefitted from the Irish game plan.

"On Saturday, most of our success was from the middle because of the ability of our outside people to get it in there," Petrucelli said.

Following their meeting with Dayton, the Irish travel to Cincinnati to take on 22nd-ranked Cincinnati on Saturday and Vanderbilt on Sunday.

Men face Loyola at home to kick off season

Observer Staff Report

After blanking Michigan's club-level team 3-0 in a scrimmage last Saturday, the Irish men's soccer team will begin the regular season against Midwestern Collegiate Conference rival Loyola tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Moose Krause Stadium.

Improving on last season's 4-11-3 record will not be an easy task for second-year coach Mike Berticelli as 15 of the team's 29 players are freshmen.

This inexperience could be a factor against a schedule that includes four of Soccer America's top 15 teams. Sheer talent could overcome that inexperience, however, with Parade high school All-American's Bert Bader and Jason Fox leading the freshman class.

Seven returning starters also will play a big role in the team's success this season. Senior co-captains Kenyon Meyer and Brett Hofmann will lead the young team, along with junior forward Kevin Pendergast.

Pendergast has collected 19 goals and 47 points for the Irish in his career, and Meyer, a midfielder, notched seven goals in 1990. Their experience will be crucial if the team is to be successful against some of the nation's best teams.

If history repeats itself, the Irish should get off to a good start this season. Since their first meeting in 1979, the Irish are 10-0-2 against Loyola, and 6-0 in games played at home. Last year, on their home turf, the Ramblers battled the Irish to a 2-2 tie. In season openers since earning varsity status in 1977, Notre Dame is 9-4 overall, and 5-1 at home.

Good things are expected from Loyola this season, however, with 16 lettermen returning from 1990's 8-9-4 campaign. Veterans David Forsythe and Chris Hawkins combined for 13 goals and seven assists last year, while midfielder Jeff Kreikmeier returns after earning MCC all-newcomer honors in 1990.

Along with the tough MCC schedule, the Irish will face some great teams throughout the nation this year. Trips to Washington, D.C., to face Georgetown and Columbia, S.C. for the South Carolina Met Life Classic highlight the team's 1991 slate.

Big scores haven't died despite NCAA efforts

So Penn State beat up on poor, defenseless Cincinnati. Was anyone expecting any less?

Okay, 81 points is a little rough, but it's not like the Nittany Lions didn't try to hold the score down. Their fourth-string quarterback rambled 75 yards for one of their scores—on a broken play, no less.

That wasn't all. California crushed Pacific 86-24, Alabama trounced Temple 41-3, Nebraska rolled past Utah State 59-28, and many, many more.

And no one should be a bit surprised.

Not even our beloved Notre Dame is above adding a cupcake or two to its schedule. Doesn't Notre Dame vs. Navy rank in the same category as Florida vs. San Jose State or Clemson vs. Appalachian State?

Having a couple of soft spots on the schedule is not necessarily bad, though. You can't play top-ranked teams week in and week out and expect to survive a schedule alive. An easy win may be just what the doctor ordered in the middle of an otherwise tough stretch of games.

Conversely, if you wonder why Nebraska annually fades down the stretch, look no farther than its non-conference slate. Last year, Baylor, Utah State, Minnesota and Oregon State provided cannon fodder for the Cornhuskers' early-season ranking, but in the end, Colorado, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech shot them down from their inflated status.

The NCAA took some steps to stop record padding this spring, mandating that for a team to be eligible for a bowl game, it must have six wins against Division I-A opponents. And with television, more attractive non-conference matchups will be presented for public viewing.

Even Nebraska wised up; the Cornhuskers host Washington later this month. So there's always hope.

But as long as Cincinnati, Pacific and Utah State qualify as Division I-A teams, fourth-string quarterbacks will have a chance to shine.

Cooper revitalizes young Irish D-backs

Time was right for Holtz to bring protege to Notre Dame

By RICH SZABO
Sports Writer

There's a new look to the Notre Dame defensive backfield this season, and secondary coach Ron Cooper is the guiding force behind its development.

Cooper, in his first year at Notre Dame, faced the task of revamping an Irish secondary that had given up a team-record 267 yards per game last season, shattering the previous record by a whopping 73 yards a game.

"We have to be better," said Cooper, "and it was my job to make sure that was done. I expect us to be fundamentally sound, do everything we're supposed to do, and not give up any big plays."

Cooper's coaching experience started after college. He graduated from Jacksonville State University in 1982 with a degree in physical education and biology, after earning three letters as a linebacker and leading his team to three Gulf South Conference titles.

Following a stint as a graduate assistant at Appalachian State University, Cooper served as a graduate assistant at the University of Minnesota under

Ron Cooper

Lou Holtz for one year.

"Coach Holtz helped me get my first full-time job, at a Division I-AA school in Tennessee," said Cooper. "I stayed there two seasons, and then went on to Murray State University as a defensive coordinator."

Cooper then landed his first Division I-A job at East Carolina. Last year, he went to UNLV as a defensive coordinator under former Irish offensive coordinator Jim Strong.

"It was then that coach Holtz called me and offered me a job here," said Cooper. "When I left Minnesota, he told me that one day he was going to hire me—when the time was right. I always kept that in the back of my mind, and one of my goals was to work for him at this university."

As far as other goals are concerned, Cooper hopes that a head coaching job is in the cards one day.

"Coach Holtz is not going to accept anything but the best," Cooper said. "You always want to be like great football coaches, and he is without a doubt a great football coach."

"If I can keep learning and doing everything to improve myself as a better football coach, then hopefully I can reach all of my goals. All I am concentrating on right now is doing the best that I can here at the University of Notre Dame, and I think that good things will happen from there on."

Cooper has plenty of talent to work with this year. Safeties Greg Davis and Jeff Burris and cornerbacks Rod Smith and Tom Carter will anchor the defensive backfield, and Cooper has nothing but confidence in his players.

"We have the athletes to get the job done," extolled Cooper. "The kids have done absolutely everything I've asked. In my eyes, I've put the pressure on
