

Epitaphs.

It's when a man comes to die that you can get a real survey of his accomplishments; to look at things as they are, and evaluate them in the light of their importance in an obituary notice is a good method for one who is afflicted with a false sense of values. It is the intention of the Church that we readjust our sense of values during Lent. Epitaphs giving the high-lights of our career may help us to this. Pick out your own:

- 1- "He was a high-powered thinker -- but he always thought too late."
- 2- "Here lies a liar."
- 3- "A martyr to his convictions: 27 hard-boiled eggs for supper."
- 4- "The horizontal position fits him well."
- 5- "He was truly a marvelous dancer."
- 6- "Last into Mass and first into dinner--
Here lies the corpse of a gluttonous sinner."
- 7- "The graceful end of a week-ender."
- 8- "Volstead made me what I am today."
- 9- "Hullies knew him well,
So did the LaSalle --
(Josephus Ne'er-do-well)
He died....."
- 10- "He was well prepared for death:
He never missed the ashes on Ash Wednesday,
And then one year he made his Easter Duty."
- 11- "Only once in his life did he miss breakfast.
He died that day."

Their Heads Are Still in Sand.

Eighty-two Communion was the increase yesterday over the Ash-Wednesday of a year ago. The average daily increase for the first semester over the corresponding period last year was 125. This means that Lent has not taken hold as it should. And a glance at the personnel of the Lenten daily communicants shows that Freshmen are not keeping up the Notre Dame tradition.

First Friday Tomorrow.

As usual there will be a Mass of Exposition at 6:30, followed by Adoration throughout the day. There will be Way of the Cross after Benediction at 7:30.

Prayers.

Al Daschbach, of the class of 1925, asks prayers for his mother, who is ill. Three students ask prayers for sick friends, and one for a deceased person. -- The Novena for Vocations began yesterday; it calls for the Litany of the Sacred Heart daily.
