Beads For the Game.

A gross of rosaries arrived yesterday. If you haven't a pair of beads to say during the game pick one up at the pamphlet rack on your way to the gridgraph.

The Spiritual Bouquet.

A great many students who have offered Holy Communions and prayers for the repose of the soul of Frank Gallagher have not checked their offerings on the Bulletin. It will be of great consolation to the family to know what you have done. You may still check below and your good works will be added to the total, which stands as follows:

Holy Communions - 480

Masses heard - 273

Masses said - 6

Visits - Blessed Sacrament - 165

Visits - Grotto - 185

Rosaries - 194

Make Sure of Confession.

If history repeats itself, tomorrow is going to be a busy Sunday in the confessionals, especially at the seven o'clock Mass out here and the eight o'clock down town. Make sure of your chance for Holy Communion by going to confession today -- all day in the Sorin chapel and after supper in the basement.

Reminder.

On the occasion of the Navy game an invitation was extended to you to make use of the church for a welcome to the team on its return from the Army game. Since the return will be during the breakfast hour the original plan is not quite feasible, but it is still possible for you to offer Holy Communion and hear Mass for the team before that time. Do it in the hall chapels. A record of your attendance will be given to the team as a testimonial of your affection. And make it for the intentions of the members of the team. They frequently want spiritual favors that you know nothing of; you can do them much good by praying these spiritual intentions.

Don't Worry About Exams.

Exams are two days off, so there is still plenty of time for you to ask the spiritual help you want for them. Go out tonight and commit mortal sin, do the same thing tomorrow night, miss Holy Communion Monday morning -- and then say three Hail Marys before you start. That's plenty of preparation -- if it fits the spirit of study you have shown so far this fall.

Prayers.

Three special intentions and two acts of thanksgiving are recommended. Wm. Cronin, of Freshman Hall, was called home yesterday by the critical illness of his grandmother. A student asks prayers for an old friend and benefactor, Father Darcy, of the diocese of Rochester, who died a few days ago. John Cassidy's brother is very ill with pneumonia.
