
The Miraculous Medal.

Enrollment in the Miraculous Medal will take place today after the Rosary Devotions, which on Saturdays are held at 12:30. This is the medal that will be worn by the teams today.

The Miraculous Medal carries with it extraordinary indulgences, the chief of which is a plenary indulgence every time you say 6 Our Father's, Hail Mary's, and Glory be to the Father's, provided you are in the state of grace and wear the medal suspended from your neck. (The same indulgence may be gained by the wearer of the Jubilee Medal of St. Benedict, provided you visit a church to say the prayers.)

The Rosary For the Team.

The Rosary Devotions at 12:30 today will be offered for the team; and the team will offer today's game for the speedy recovery of Fred Collins.

Campus Students May Attend the Eight O'Clock Mass.

Get this straight now, once and for all: Campus students may attend the eight o'clock Mass on Sundays, PROVIDED they enter by the transepts, that is, by the sacristy door or the door of the Memorial Porch. This concession is granted until such time as it proves no longer feasible. The Mass is for the off-campus students, but campus students may attend if there is room for them.

Off-campus students will continue to enter by the main entrance, where they will be checked.

Drink Only Good Beer.

If you must drink beer, be sure that it is sanitary. It is, of course, a relatively simple matter for you to determine what sort of stuff you are drinking: all you have to do is to have the Board of Health pass on the premises and a government chemist on the staff.

A few years ago one of the boys who had given up one beer joint in South Bend after another came into announce a discovery. "It's absolutely the best beer I ever tasted," he said, "and we are perfectly safe, because the disciplinarians don't know the place, and there are only half a dozen of us going there. I'm in for a nice winter." "There is a catch in it somewhere," he was told. "There always is."

Two weeks later he was back, looking a little pale about the gills. "You know that place I was telling you about," he said. "Boy, do we have a scare! Do you know what we found out? The man's wife is dying of an unmentionable disease, and they make the beer right there in the house." There's always a catch in it.

Rosary Indulgences.

From noon today until tomorrow evening you can gain a plenary indulgence for every visit you make to the church, if you pray for the intentions of the Holy Father and receive Holy Communion today or tomorrow.

The Matter of Bad Books.

There is this much about the sin of circulating filthy literature: you won't know till Judgment Day how much harm you have done, and you won't know definitely until your particular judgment, just how true has been your contrition for the evil. If you steal and do not restore, you know that your sin is not forgiven; if you rob a soul of its purity and do nothing to make good the evil done, you are in the same boat with the unregenerate thief. One soul you corrupt may ruin ten others; these in turn may each ruin ten more; figure it out yourself for a few generations. Can you afford the risk?
