

Coach Rockne Needs Prayers.

The congestion of blood that kept Coach Rockne away from the Navy game is a dangerous condition. He is resting well, and following the doctor's orders patiently, but he needs many prayers. You won't forget him, will you?

Say The Beads For The Team.

Have a pair of beads in your pocket (get them at the rack) and say them for the team. The Rosary Devotions -- at 12:30 Saturdays -- will be offered today for the coach and the team. After Benediction there will be another enrollment in the Miraculous Medal. This medal carries the great privilege of a plenary indulgence for those who say six Our Fathers, Hail Marys and Glory be to the Father while wearing this medal suspended from the neck, provided they are in the state of grace at the time.

"Thief."

That's a horrible name to carry through life. They used to brand thieves on the forehead with a "T" in order to protect society; that was harsh treatment, but it enabled you to look things up when you saw a thief coming.

The latest depretation reported to this office is the theft of a new desk set, valued at $15, from the desk of the Librarian. Are we going to have to put the whole place under lock and key, and make every student give bond before stepping on the campus?

Joe Lauterbach Is Sinking.

Yesterday's report from the bedside of Joe Lauterbach is as follows: "The doctor does not give us any hope for his recovery as yet, but says if we can keep him alive until after the crisis there is hope. We have an oxygen tent over his bed, and that has helped him greatly along with the prayers. Joe has such confidence in Notre Dame's prayers."

Yesterday's Holy Communion.

The number of Holy Communions yesterday was approximately 1750. Notice of the Mass for Coach Rockne did not reach the off-campus students, and their number remained about the same as Thursday; among campus students there was an increase of about 450. Off-campus students are urged to supply their deficiency at the eight o'clock Mass tomorrow.

Freshmen Modernists.

The number of Catholic freshmen who have been exposed to Modernism in high school is unusually large this year. The sermon course for the first semester will deal with their difficulties. More about this will appear later.

Founder's Day Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is St. Edward's Day, the feast day of the founder of the University, Father Sorin. The sermons will deal with the Founder, and the 9:00 Mass will be a Solemn High Mass.

Prayers.

Mrs. Trombly, mother of Don, '26, and Mack, '30, died Thursday evening. A brother of Stanley Czapalski is ill, following an operation. John Gannon's grandmother is very low. Five special intentions. One of the special intentions announced during the week was the recovery of Coach Rockne; the name was omitted because when a man is up and around it is embarrassing to have everyone asking for his health. The incident shows the importance of praying for the special intentions announced.
