

Take One On The Nose For Eddie.

The football team is making up an interesting spiritual bouquet for Eddie Collins. Eddie, as you heard the other day, was an end on last year's team. After his graduation in February, he went to the coast to assist Jimmie Phelan, head coach at Washington University. An attack of bronchitis this summer ended in a mild attack of tuberculosis, and Eddie has been sent to Tucson to take the cure.

That's one side of the story. Such matters call for certain action, however, when they happen to Notre Dame men. A hard luck story means that all able-bodied and sound-minded Notre Dame must pitch in and pray. The football team proposed a spiritual bouquet for Eddie, and the cards for it are posted in the gymnasium dressing rooms. In addition to the usual items of Holy Communions, Masses heard, rosaries, visits, etc., there is a call for the offering of mortifications - bruises, black eyes, bloody noses, hours of practice, and the like.

Take one on the nose for Eddie. Speed his recovery by offering for him the things you don't like to do. That's Notre Dame spirit.

The Novena to the Little Flower.

As announced the other day, the feast of the Little Flower, St. Therese, now falls on October 3 each year. The Novena to her begins September 25 and ends October 2. Prayer books containing the prayers of the Novena will be found at the pamphlet rack and in the pews of the Sorin chapel (where her statue is honored).

Prayers for this Novena will be said publicly in the Sorin chapel daily at 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. If you wish to make the Novena privately, receive Holy Communion every day and say the same prayer for the nine days.

Intentions for this Novena should be handed to the Prefect of Religions, or left in a box (marked for intentions) at the pamphlet rack. Included in them will be the following:

1. The cure of a little girl, eight years old, who is paralyzed;
2. Father John Kelley, C.S.C., religion professor here the last nine years, who is now in Holy Cross Sanitorium, Deming, New Mexico;
3. Father Lavin, C.S.C., rector of Sorin Hall last year, and veteran priest of Notre Dame, who has been very ill for several months;
4. Father Miller, C.S.C., professor in Moreau Seminary for several years past, who is desperately ill.

Also include in your prayers the intentions of the football team. This team has been asked to assume two heavy responsibilities: the upholding of Notre Dame traditions in the new stadium, and bucking the toughest schedule ever made for a school used to tough schedules. The boys will appreciate your prayers that they may meet their responsibilities like men.

Help Others Make the Mission.

A lot of timid souls enter Notre Dame every year - timid about religious matters. Help these fellows make the Mission. Drag them out of bed in the morning, make them go to the evening sermons, shove them into the confessional. They will be grateful, whether they show it or not. Especially, pray for the delinquents, that God may give them abundant grace to make a good confession and start afresh.
