
No "Godless" Football Here.

Week ago Harrington Gates of the "Holy Ghost And Us" Society thought football at Dartmouth was "Godless." Newspapers never gave us details.

But here's a detail. You see to it, tomorrow, there's no "Godless" football here. If ever your team needed you, your spirit and backing and fight, it needs them tomorrow. Sacrifice. ~~Throw yourself out of bed first thing in the morning.~~ Get down to Mass and Holy Communion and pray. Pray that the boys may play against the great Minnesota a clean, hard game. Pray that nobody on either side will be injured. Pray for yourselves, to be good sports win or lose. Be ready to give and take the right way.

And a special word to the men on the squad: you can't expect the school to turn out if you don't lead the way. Why should they pray for you, if you don't pray for yourselves? Every Catholic player among you, how about Mass and Communion tomorrow? How about winning this game for Bill Coogan? He was one of your freshman managers. What's the matter with taking the game for George Belting. He's taking plenty for you. Here's what he writes:

There isn't much change and there is plenty of pain. That means another chance to offer it up Saturday for Elmer and the boys. You see, Father, I don't take any hypodermics until after the game.

All set now. Biggest "pep" meeting you ever saw-- tonight. Tomorrow morning-- the Chapel. Game on ice in the afternoon. Notre Dame, let's go.

For Bill.

There will be a big crowd at the 7:20 Mass in Dillon tomorrow. The Metropolitan Club is having Mass said for Bill Coogan of Brooklyn. This is one time for St. John's, Brooklyn Prep, Loughlin to forget their quarrels and get together.
