The Sick.

John Kelly of Cavanaugh and Tom Hennessey of Brownson who underwent emergency operations last week are improving. Father Gartland writes that his father seems to be on the road to recovery after a most serious operation. Ed Sachalski of Cavanaugh asks prayers for his grandmother who is not expected to live more than five days. Vincent Sweeney, an alumnus, was injured in the recent collision of three trains on the B&O line outside Washington and is in critical condition.

Confessions For Brownson and Carroll.

There are two confessors every night in the Basement Chapel after supper until 7:00. Stop there after your evening visit to the Grotto. Upperclassmen may use these facilities. Fathers Teske and Broughal will be in the confessionals.

May He Rest In Peace.

God has called another friend of Our Lady's University to his reward. A great reward it must be, for Christ saw the innumerable acts of charity of Joseph C. Smith and the love motivating them. Mr. Smith was never a student of the University, yet he knew Father Sorin and other priests of the early Notre Dame history. The last Notre Dame Commencement Exercise Mr. Smith attended was in 1941 - it was the fifty-fifth time he had seen N.D. men receive their diplomas. He was the brother of Brother Alexander, old time rector of Carroll Hall and professor of mathematics. Imitate the devotion and loyalty of this kind man.

Famed Architect Dies.

Ralph Adams Cram, internationally known architect died last week. In 1924 Mr. Cram received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Notre Dame in recognition of his professional achievements. Mr. Cram was an authority on Gothic architecture and church design. The Notre Dame dining Hall built in 1927 was designed by him.

Mr. Cram was not a Catholic. He wrote voluminously on architectural, social, philosophical and religious subjects. His books are in the University Library. One of his outstanding works is The Catholic Church and Art. Remember Mr. Cram at Mass and Holy Communion tomorrow.
