CRIBBER

A Request From The Philippines.

A letter written last October by a native priest has just reached the campus. Read the letter. Perhaps you can offer some help.

"Dear Reverend Father: I come to write to you in the name of Our Lord, just after the 2nd World War in which I lost many things in the mission field. Have mercy on me, dear Father. When the Japanese soldiers entered my mission home with fixed bayonets, they took all my little money, my watch, my bed, my typewriter, some of my clothes, and they burned my books and articles of American make. They even placed me in jail for one day without eating for having American friends and articles. I come to ask your generous help. Could you send me these articles so I can proceed in my mission work?

Money to buy clothing and medicines
A cassock
Altar linens
Religious articles

Breviarium Romanum
One sweater
Soap and matches, stationary
Envelopes and one umbrella

Students who are leaving for the Service should have a few articles they won't need. Others may want to make a money offering as an expression of gratitude to God for a successful semester. Leave your donations with the Prefect of Religion, 141 Sorin.

In Praise Of A Notre Dame Man.

In South Carolina there is an army camp situated near the mission center of a Catholic priest. A former student was stationed at that camp. His exemplary life made a profound impression on the pastor whose duties took him to the army base. The priest sent a note to Notre Dame in praise of this loyal son of Our Lady, and he enclosed a copy of the letter he wrote to the young man on his departure from the camp. The letter will be sort of an examination of conscience for you.

"Dear Eddie: This letter conveys my priestly thanks for all those refined Notre Dame courtesies rendered at Camp M ----, not only to the undersigned, but to all Catholic Chaplains who were sent there. I know how anxious you are about your discharge from the army. May that discharge come soon, so that your footsteps may hasten towards dear Old Notre Dame. What a proud son She will have. The son that never forgot in army life his daily Rosary, visit to the Blessed Sacrament, Mass, the Sacraments, his duties in Catholic Action. With every blessing on your departure as the camp officially closes. Gratefully in Christ..."
