Pledge Card

This is what the pledge card on the Dillon pamphlet rack looks like. Maybe you need to take the pledge, for a short while at least. Repeated over-indulgence calls for serious reflection, and in many cases, for a period of abstinence. Students who do not drink for one reason or another can help those who abuse liquor by consecrating their abstinence to the Sacred Heart for the sake of obtaining grace for those who can't behave themselves.

Scram

Day dreaming gets one no where, only into trouble. An idle mind is the devil's workshop. Keep your mind occupied, otherwise Satan and his assistants will fashion a host of dangerous suggestions and images that will lead you into sin. The day dreamer falls easily into sins of impurity, jealousy and rash judgement.

If you are mentally fatigued, leave your room and get some fresh air, or take exercise. If you won't discipline your mind and become its master, then you will become a plaything for the devil.

The student who said he always screamed when he saw trouble ahead was a smart cookie.
