Mr. Butch McGutsky

Notre Dame, Indiana

Dear Mr. McGutsky:

I have the honor to inform you that your recent act of self-sacrifice, namely, rising for Mass and Communion the day after you returned from your Easter vacation, has been recorded in gold letters in the Book of Deeds, so unique was it in your life.

As regards your prayers, for the week of April 14, I have the honor to report as follows:

1. For fat check from father to cover expenses of dozen golf balls and prom date. Granted.
2. For sickness to come upon 9:00 A.M. Saturday professor, so you can take an extended weekend without being cut out of class. Granted, for the third and last time.
3. For warmer weather in Indiana for the sake of elevating morale. Impossible.

These favors are conceded for the reason that it is hoped you will hereafter be touched by the goodness of God towards you, and thereby resolve to say more prayers of thanksgiving. You have yet to express your thanks for the way Providence got you out of four jams with your Prefect and one with your father over money.

Hereafter, unless the following items are corrected, you will be classified as undeserving, and requests will not be heard, to wit:

1. No effort to receive Communion and say the rosary frequently to overcome bad habits.
2. Tardiness at Sunday Mass.
3. Indecent conversation.

(Signed)
