Competition From Across The Dixie.

A note titled WOMEN AT WORK was directed to the Bulletin. It said: "Notre Dame has no priority on Catholic Action Workshops. This weekend Saint Mary's College will be host to another NFCCS Workshop. There will be panel discussions on such subjects as Spiritual Formation, Social Problems, and Christian Recreation . . ."

Here's the clincher: "Take a trip across the Dixie and give us the masculine view-point on these questions!"

Head-Hunters.

In any crisis it is sage advice "to keep your head." But the wisdom of Solomon is not wisdom enough to keep some men from "losing their head." This is no warning that Malayan or Melanesian natives are roaming the hinterlands of Notre Dame. But whether you have lost your head, or in danger of losing your head, or about ready to cut your own throat, this verse by T.E.B. will stand you in good stead. One of the local, fairer daughters of Eve suggested its reprint:

The Life Companion.

If you want a happy life
Don't pick up your future wife
From a night club, or you'll pay a frightful toll;
Look for her in some nice place
Where she's wearing her own face
And where you can get a side glimpse of her soul.

Do not wed a powderruff
Who's made up of frills and fluff
Or your life will be a headache to the end;
Get a girl whose views are sound,
Who has both feet on the ground,
And upon whose common sense you can depend.

College students never fail
When from the Communion rail
They select the girl their children will call mother;
She's the kind of girl who wears
Through life's conflicts and its cares,
She's a soul mate and there isn't any other.

She will kneel with you and pray
At the close of every day.
And she'll teach your little ones to love their God;
And she'll climb life's hills with you
Whether skies be gray or blue,
Till she sleeps with you at last beneath the sod.

Masses for the living. Many Catholics never think of having a Mass offered for the living, never had Masses celebrated for themselves. It's a long-standing custom to arrange for Masses after death. That's good. But they may do you no good then if your soul is lost; they will help you now to save it. . . Have you ever thought of having a Mass offered for your mother and father as a birthday gift, or as the main part of your spiritual bouquet for Christmas?

Prayer. The husband and two sons of Mrs. Wells (employee in the Dining Hall) were killed in a recent auto accident near Michigan City.
