A Parable of Our Times

or

$676 for "The Creative Ones"

HOW TO MAKE $676 BY GIVING AWAY $15,000

Since tax credit is given for the full present value of stock transferred to educational institutions, the net cost to the donor is greatly reduced if he makes his contribution in appreciated stock. He thereby eliminates the 25 per cent capital gains tax and liberates cash income from taxation.

Take the case of a man with $100,000 of taxable income who owns stock that has increased in value from $10 to $100 a share. If he transfers 150 shares of stock (worth $15,000) to an educational institution, he pays no capital gains tax, and his taxable income is reduced to $85,000. The tax on this amount is $51,699, and his net income therefore, is $48,301. Had he sold the 150 shares (thereby similarly liquidating capital) and made no contribution, he would have had to pay a capital gains tax of $3,375 (25% of the $13,500 gain) and income taxes of $64,000 on his $100,000 income. This would have left him a total of $47,625, so he actually saves $676 by giving away $15,000.*

Although such cases naturally are exceptional, the fact that they can occur at all suggests the importance of this type of giving. Substantial savings, and sometimes a profit, can be made by transferring stock, that has appreciated in value, to educational institutions.

* Fortune, August 1947, p. 109 and 140.

Certain changes in income tax rates would alter some of the figures in the above example but would not prevent a net tax saving in the case cited.

LOBUND Institute Dedicates Germ-Free Life Laboratories on North Campus

The importance to the modern world of pure scientific research, such as that being conducted in colleges and universities throughout the United States, was stressed by nationally prominent speakers during the opening session of a symposium June 21 on "Science and Society" at the University.

Speakers at the opening session of the symposium, held in conjunction with the dedication of a new Germ-Free Laboratory in the Laboratories of Bacteriology at Notre Dame (LOBUND), included: Dr. Bradley Dewey, President of the Dewey and Almy Chemical Company, Cambridge, Mass., and Chairman of the Advisory Council for Science and Engineering at Notre Dame; Dr. Ira Baldwin, Vice-President of Academic Affairs at the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Robert Chambers, Professor Emeritus at New York University; and Dr. Charles DeKoninck, Dean of the Faculty of Philosophy at Laval University, Quebec, Canada.

Professor James A. Reyniers, founder and Director of LOBUND which was announced as an Institute for Research in the Life Sciences, presided as chairman of the symposium and told the audience that "it is one thing to accept the material benefits of science and quite another to allow it to become a way of life." There is mutual responsibility, he said between science and society to care for each other.

"The amount of intelligence and energy that has been spent upon trying to prevent a future war through exploration of psychological, psychiatric techniques is practically negligible. This is a great unexplored region for basic and applied science."

Although the "ideas and actions that emanate from the Kremlin are most difficult from our way of thinking," Mr. Davis ventured the opinion that "it may not be too late for this great ideological and emotional conflict to be resolved if it could be approached in the same way that a problem in physical and biological science would be approached."

Admiral Solberg declared during the symposium that "the industry of tomorrow will rely more and more upon the activities of the plant and animal world—upon the chemical work performed by plants and micro-organisms. Admiral Solberg was unable to attend the Symposium personally and his address was delivered by Dr. Roger D. Reid, Head of the Microbiology Branch, Biological Sciences Division, Office of Naval Research.

The Chief of Naval Research said that he is in agreement with the statement that "the photochemical energy resulting from photosynthesis might be more valuable to man than atomic energy."

Speaking of Naval Research, Admiral Solberg pointed out that "it is our mission to stimulate, encourage, and coordinate research and development in all fields that will help to defend this nation in times of emergency and to assure better health and a more secure economy for the nation at all times." He said that it always has been the policy of the Navy to "have the monies we spend on research and development come back to the taxpayer in some way wherever possible."

Dr. Woolpert, in his symposium address, likened the world to "a culture which we can examine as bacteriologists might study a culture of micro-organisms."

"Let us recognize frankly that our world culture is mixed, that nature has contrived it thus," Dr. Woolpert declared. "Let us have faith in the potential compatibility, indeed the mutual interdependence, of diverse elements and squarely face the problem of resolving basic maladjustments."

Reunion Great Success

The 1950 reunions had everything, including a treatment of Indiana's famed and variable weather.

Nine hundred and seventy made the annual Alumni Banquet Saturday night, June 10, and heard Father Cavanaugh, University President, review the year at Notre Dame. His impressive speech will be reported in the next issue of the ALUMNUS.

Mr. Leo Ward, National Alumni President reported on the Alumni Board meeting which was held simultaneously with the reunions and Hon. Frank C. Walker, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Notre Dame Foundation gave a report on the year's activity.

Athletic Trainer Hugh Burns awarded the prizes for the Alumni Golf Tournament which this year attracted a record 248 players. Surprise of the entire tournament was Mr. Frank McCarty, of Kokomo. He played 18 holes Friday, June 9, and managed to break 100. Saturday, June 10, he played another 18 and scored 105 but managed to grab the prize for the least putts on 18 holes. Mr. McCarty graduated in 1893 and was 76 last February.

The class of 1935 claims the highest number of reunioners, 161. The Silver Anniversary Class (1925) took over Lyons Hall and had movies in the archway. 1915, 1920, 1910 and 1905 shared Howard Hall and their memories, both of which were far from absolute quiet. 1940 and 1945 shared Alumni Hall and 1935 was in Dillon.

While all Notre Dame men look forward to returning some time to the University, perhaps the richest experience taken away from the 1950 reunions was taken by the members of the 50-Year Club. The 50-Year Award presented to Mr. Louis C. M. Reed of New York at the Alumni Banquet and subsequently mailed to all members of the club has evoked the most deeply-felt sentiments regarding Notre Dame and what she means to her graduates. A few of these letters are reprinted at the head of the Classes Section in this issue.

Laetare Medal Presented to Gen. Collins During 105th Commencement Exercises

The University on June 4 formally conferred its 1950 Laetare Medal, awarded annually to the outstanding American Catholic layman, on General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

General Collins received the medal at ceremonies held following Notre Dame's 105th Commencement Exercises in the Stadium. General Collins was announced as the 68th recipient of the medal on March 19, Laetare Sunday, which is the fourth Sunday of Lent.

The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., president of Notre Dame, in the citation accompanying the medal, told General Collins that "your life as a professional soldier has been dedicated to the peace of America, and in the pursuance of that duty you have risen from the rank of second lieutenant to the highest position in the American army, its Chief of Staff."

The citation recalled that "during the late war, as Chief of Staff of the Seventh Army Corps, you were responsible for one of its decisive victories, the capture of Cherbourg" and "in time of peace you served . . . in a number of executive positions where the making of American soldiers was your responsibility." Father Cavanaugh, in reading the citation, told the Chief of Staff that "you have been all that is implied in a great soldier."

"But, sir, all our warring is not with flesh and blood," the citation continued. "The Christian has also to wrestle with 'princedoms and powers, with those who have the mastery of the world in these dark days, with malign influences in an order higher than ours.' And in that warfare, too, you have shown yourself a true soldier. You have not been unmindful of the counsel of another great soldier, battle-scarred in both kinds of war, St. Paul.

"Take up all God's armour then," he wrote, 'so you will be able to stand your ground when the evil time comes, and be found still on your feet when all the task is over. Stand fast, your loins girt with truth, the breastplate of justice fitted on, and your feet shod in readiness to publish the gospel of peace. With all this take up the shield of faith, with which you will be able to quench all the fire-tipped arrows of your wicked enemy; make the helmet of salvation your own, and the sword of the spirit, God's word'."

The Notre Dame president concluded: "Through all the vicissitudes of the life of a soldier, you have shown yourself a stalwart Catholic man, an exemplary husband and father, and a commander whose character has won the respect, admiration and affection of your fellow officers and men.

"For these reasons, the University of

A Friend Leaves

Capt. Bernard F. McMahon, one of the best-liked Navy officers ever to be on duty at the University, left July 1 for duty with the Fleet Submarine Force.

During his tenure as commanding officer of Navy units at the University, the NROTC rifle team won a national championship.

Capt. McMahon, although an Annapolis product, is regarded by most persons who were associated with him at the University as embodying all the fine traditions of a Notre Dame graduate. A much-decorated hero of World War II, he earned the Navy Cross, Silver Star and Bronze Star.

His submarines made seven combat patrols against Japanese shipping in the South Pacific.

Notre Dame is happy to welcome you into that distinguished company of Catholic Americans whom she has been proud to honor, and to confer upon you this Laetare Medal."

General Collins, in accepting the medal, said he considered it not a personal honor but "a recognition by Notre Dame of the part played by millions of men and women in the armed forces throughout the world who are rendering service to their God and their country."

The Chief of Staff of the United States Army declared that many people in the country look with suspicion on the Army during peacetime. "These suspicions are unfounded," General Collins declared. "In our democracy the military must be, and is, subservient to the people."

Dr. Otto Bird Will Teach New A.B. Course

Dr. Otto Bird, nationally-prominent leader in the Great Books movement, has been named Director of the new General Program of Liberal Education which will be inaugurated in September at the University, the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., president, announced recently.

The unique Notre Dame Program of Liberal Education, designed to answer the need for a basic and general education on the college level, is built around the master works of the Western Civilization—the great books from the ancient Greeks to the moderns—and around the technique of teaching through discussion.

Dr. Bird, since 1946, has been Assistant Editor of the "Syntopicon," the analytical index of the "Great Books of the Western World," published by the "Encyclopedia Britannica" and the University of Chicago. Editor of the "Syntopicon" is Dr. Mortimer Adler, of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Bird was educated at the University of Michigan, the University of Chicago, and received his doctorate at the University of Toronto in 1939. The doctorate was earned in philosophy at the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in Toronto.

The new Notre Dame program director formerly taught at St. Michael's College in Toronto and at St. John's University in Brooklyn, N. Y. Dr. Bird also formerly was associate editor of the CIP Correspondence, a weekly newsletter published in New York by the Catholic International Press.

Notre Dame Confers Degrees on 750 Graduates

Honorary degrees were conferred June 4 by the University at its 105th Commencement on a Catholic archbishop, a newspaper publisher, a business executive, a diplomat and an Irish priest.

As 750 June graduates left the University, honorary Doctor of Laws degrees were conferred by University President Father John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., upon Most Reverend Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore; Mr. F. A. Miller, publisher and president of the South Bend Tribune; Mr. Charles F. Williams, president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Co.; Hon. John J. Hearne, Irish ambassador to the U. S., and Msgr. John P. Carroll-Abbing, founder of "Boys' Town" in Italy.

Archbishop Keough delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon on Commencement Sunday and Mr. Hearne made the Commencement Address. Most Rev. Keough was consecrated Bishop of Providence, R. I., in 1934 and transferred to Baltimore in 1947. Among his other duties he is currently vice-chairman of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and chairman of the Department of Education of the N.C.W.C.

Mr. Miller, who joined the staff of the South Bend Tribune in 1887 on his graduation from high school, became president of the paper in 1924. Under his direction the paper has become one of the most respected in the middle west. Mr. Miller is a member of the National Press Club and was first president of the South Bend Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Williams, a member of the University Board of Lay Trustees has twice been honored by the Vatican. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory, and has been appointed as Master Knight of the Sovereign Order of Malta. Mr. Williams was elected vice-president and general counsel of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Co. in 1910. In 1931 he became president. Repeatedly he has been called to the White House in times of national emergency for consultation and to attend conferences of business leaders.

The Irish ambassador, who assumed his current duties March 29, was formerly High Commissioner of Ireland in Canada. With Eamon de Valera, he drafted the Irish Constitution which was approved by the people in 1937. Mr. Hearne has also been Assistant Attorney General of Ireland and Legal Adviser to the Irish Department of External Affairs.

Mr. Hearne told the 750 graduates that "European nation after European nation has imperilled its freedom by forsaking the path of truth, honour and justice." He pointed out that "it is the truth that makes us free" and "peace is a work of justice."

"European nation after European nation had given up the practice of the Faith upon which it was historically founded," Mr. Hearne declared. "They had deprived their public law of its final sanction, and the morality of their people of its final motive. It is the Faith which makes us whole. Private infidelities were followed by public apostasy and the unity and solidarity of Europe was . . . politically shattered by the Schism.

"I say 'politically' because morally Europe was smashed on the deadly rocks of pride, covetousness, lust, anger, gluttony, envy and sloth. But the code itself was not destroyed. The whole intellectual tradition survived, the tradition of an objective truth, of an objective beauty, and an objective virtue or goodness, a sense of the issues of right and wrong, of justice and injustice, and a sense of standards in private and public behaviour."

The Irish ambassador reminded the Notre Dame graduates that "never before has mankind been so much in need of the true pattern as well as the true tradition of human life formed in the Mind of its Designer and spun from the Hand of its Author."

"The world needs teachers much: but it needs models more," Mr. Hearne emphasized. "And if we be not the models there will be none. On us and our example will depend the issue of whether or not the image of God is written upon the character of this and the next generations."

Archbishop Keough, in his Baccalaureate Sermon, warned that the "material achievements of almost two thousand years of Christianity in eastern Europe are crumbling before the hideous juggernaut of Communism.

"Where this dreadful, cancerous thing has entered into the members of the Body of Christ, it has paralyzed the nerve centers by destroying leadership—it has cut off the vital supply of spiritual nourishment by breaking communication between the members of the visible heart and head of Christendom—it has choked off the many organs of the Body of the Church through which the

Deans Review 50-Year Progress of University

For the Alumni who did not attend the reunions, and for the Alumni who made the reunions but did not attend the Deans' Forum Saturday, June 10, the ALUMNUS presents here a summary by the deans of the history and progress in the University's five colleges.

Father Frank Cavanaugh, C.S.C., dean of Arts and Letters was unable to be present, and Father Charles Miltner, C.S.C., became the logical choice to present the Arts and Letters summary.

Arts and Letters

For the first twenty one years of its existence the University of Notre Dame was just a college of liberal arts. Like most of its predecessors in the United States, it owes its existence to a religious motive. This is not strange, for secularism had not yet arisen to rob life of its true purpose and men of a just appreciation of their true dignity. In 1844, as in colonial times, it was still commonly accepted as a self-evident truth that men were created by God, and that of all things it was most important to know him and how to attain him, to know, that is, the reason for being on earth.

In their philosophy, men were therefore not regarded merely as brute animals moved necessarily by instinctive mechanisms to live out the predetermined order of their lives. They understood that, though the brute was incapable of education, he was nearly self-sufficient from the beginning of his existence. They knew, as we who possess the same philosophy of man and the same faith in God know, that men are born free agents; that they depend on the care and direction of others for their very survival for many years after birth, and for the normal development of their physical, intellectual and moral powers on living in the society of their fellows. Because men are free, and because right choice depends on an informed and cultivated mind, education is indispensable to them. Unlike the brute animal, men must be taught the meaning and purpose of life. They must discover and learn laboriously to use the means to that end. They must construct and maintain the moral order of their lives.

It is clear too that this education must be such as to minister directly to the needs of man as man, to human excellence; and that is precisely what liberal education is. It alone then is first not only in time but also in importance. All other education presupposes it and depends upon it. Though preëminence is nowadays often given to scientific education, it must be remembered that "the Golden

Age of Greece existed without benefit of physics, chemistry or even of genetics." Science, as the term is currently employed, yields information about material things, but however useful or valuable it may be, it is not wisdom, not a knowledge of anything through its ultimate causes, not therefore a knowledge capable of satisfying man's deepest needs. Information is important, but not all-important. Someone has said: "Soon we shall have the universe completely tabulated, and no one will know what it means." Understanding really comes through a knowledge of final causes, and these science claims not to know.

Now the first need of man as man is language. Its possession is the very evidence of his rational nature. It is his first need because it is the key to all the rest. Without it, he can neither think, nor communicate his thoughts to others, nor collaborate with them in the manifold and necessary enterprises of social life. Without it, he can not enter into the possession of his spiritual inheritance, the accumulated wisdom of the past. His ability to use it effectively is the measure of his influence on others, as his lack of facility in its use seals off and renders useless whatever other learning he may possess.

His next need is for information about the world in which he lives. He is not here guided, as are the brute animals, by instinct. His free nature obliges him to learn what they possess without learning. Furthermore, it is obvious that without such knowledge he could not survive. Nature's law is: obey or die. Things then, their natures, the general laws that govern them, and their several relationships to him,—what falls under the heading of general science form the object of his second educational need.

A while back, I mentioned the necessity man is under of constructing the moral order of his whole life. His actions, then, his conduct in all the departments of practical life, require definite objective norms, not merely to avoid fatal blunders, but in order to be positively just and right and good. Since man is by nature a social animal, this final group of studies is aptly called the social sciences, including as it does both ethics and religion. Now these needs which are universally experienced, explain both the character and the relative constancy of the liberal arts curriculum. Wherever man and human living are rightly understood it will be substantially the same. Whether education shall be qualified as liberal or as professional or vocational depends, not on the subject studied, but on the reason why it is studied. Sir Richard Livingstone quotes Aristotle as saying that "in education it makes all the difference why a man does or learns anything; if he studies or learns it for the sake of his own development or with a view to excellence it is liberal." (On Education, 71) It happens that language study, the physical sciences as information, and the social sciences for proper norms and adequate motivation for conduct are indispensable for the development and excellence of man as man anywhere and at any time. As human nature does not change essentially with the passing years, so neither do man's basic needs. As Hutchins says: "In general education we are interested in drawing out the elements of our common human nature; we are interested in the attributes of the race, not the accidents of individuals." (Higher Education, 73)

This of course does not mean that during the last fifty years there have been no changes in the liberal arts college. Though the same aim has been maintained and substantially the same curriculum, there have been modifications of time elements, such as the reduction in total semester hours from 175 to 136, and of weekly instruction periods from five to three; of emphasis, in that, though eschewing electivism, fewer subjects are now as rigidly prescribed. There is less diffusion of effort and a greater concentration on a particular group of studies during the last two years. Far more efficient use is made of both library and of laboratory. Lectures both by visiting scholars and by distinguished Faculty members are more numerous, as are departmental and interdepartmental seminars. There has of course been a notable increase in the size of both student body and Faculty. In 1905, for example the total number of students in this college was 66, while in 1949 it had risen to 1308. Where in 1905 one man taught all of the subjects in philosophy, the present staff numbers twenty five. In general there is now more detailed organization, smaller classes and lower teaching loads. On the other hand increased growth has brought with it regrettable changes in human relations. Many students are now unacquainted with members of their own class, and even some Faculty members are all but strangers to one another. Like the modern world of which it is a part, the University community, though it has adopted many time and labor saving devices, seems to have less and less time available for work, and almost none left for the leisurely and delectable living, with regard to which the Notre Dame men of fifty years ago displayed, many think, a judgment far superior to our own.

—Charles C. Miltner, C.S.C.

College of Science

The University of Notre Dame is one of the few schools in the country which maintains a separate college for the administration of programs which are predominantly scientific in nature. A comparison of our programs in science with those offered by arts and science divisions in many universities shows many close similarities; the only difference is in the degree which is awarded for the academic work.

From the founding of the University in 1842, until 1865, the only courses offered were the traditional ones in arts and letters. At that time provisions were made for courses in science. In 1897 the University was organized in four units—arts and letters, science, engineering, and law; in 1905 these divisions came to be designated as colleges.

The existence of a separate college of science is undoubtedly a carry-over from a period when the University offered a great many special programs. While this practice is still common and necessary in the larger, and particularly the state universities, the trend in the private and smaller schools is to unification and simplification of the academic programs. The accrediting organizations for the standardization of highly specialized and professional programs quite often make demands which cannot be met by the smaller and private institutions having a lower and limited enrollment. In 1920 the College of Science offered no less than 14 different programs, including one in agriculture and two in pharmacy.

The department of agriculture was discontinued in the early 1930's, the department of pharmacy in 1939. At the present time the College of Science is made up of five departments, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, and Geology, each offering a program leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in the particular division.

The Department of Biology, headed by Rev. Robert J. Sheehan, C.S.C., with Donald J. Plunkett as assistant head, is made up of two divisions, botany and zoology, and is housed in the Biology Building at the north end of the campus. The Laboratories of Bacteriology occupy the basement of this building and are a part of the department.

All of the required and elective courses in botany and zoology for the entire university are administered by this department which is staffed with 15 full-time faculty members and 12 research associates and teaching fellows. In the Biology Building are located the Nieuwland and Greene Herbaria and Libraries, also the Weninger-Kirsch Zoological Library.

The editorial offices of the American Midland Naturalist, a professional scientific journal, issued bimonthly and devoted to the natural history of the Midwestern States, are also located here. At the present time the journal is under the capable editorship of Dr. John D. Mizelle. This journal was started in April 1909 by the late Rev. Julius A. Nieuwland, C.S.C., whose fame in chemistry has frequently obscured but has not dimmed his achievements in botany and pharmacognosy.

The Department of Chemistry, with

Mr. Charles C. Price as head and Mr. Andrew J. Boyle as administrative head, is made up of 16 staff members and 27 associates and teaching fellows. The program in this department for undergraduates, which is designed to prepare them for teaching, graduate work, or for professional careers, is accredited by the American Chemical Society, on the recommendation of its Committee on the Professional Training of Chemists.

In the Department of Physics, which is headed by Rev. Henry J. Bolger, C.S.C., a staff of 15 senior faculty members and 23 associates, administers a rigorous program which is to prepare the undergraduate for industrial work or to undertake graduate training in physics. As a rule, if the student is interested primarily in industrial work, he is advised to go into electrical engineering.

The Department of Mathematics, made up of thirteen (13) staff members and 12 associates, is headed by Mr. Arnold E. Ross. The program in mathematics is designed primarily for preparation to go into graduate studies and includes a number of courses in the other sciences. For those students who wish to specialize in mathematics alone, the department offers a special program in the College of Arts and Letters leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree.

The Department of Geology is the latest addition to the College of Science and is an outgrowth of the Department of Mining Engineering which was discontinued in the early 30's. It provides a strong program for students who plan to undertake graduate work or to become professional commercial or teaching geologists. The department is headed by Mr. Archie MacAlpin with Mr. Raymond Gutschick as acting head; four staff members make up the faculty.

In connection with the excellent work of this department, a word of tribute should go to Professor Emeritus Knowles B. Smith who is now curator of the Science Museum and whose untiring efforts in the restoration and exhibition of the valuable specimens housed there have made it one of the show-places of the University.

At the present time the Department of Geology is located in the Main Building. Science Hall houses the Museum, the Departments of Mathematics and Physics, also the Science Library; the new Science Building which is scheduled for erection in the near future will serve Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics, and will relieve the crowded and dangerous conditions which exist at present. The present Chemistry Hall, which was enlarged by the addition of the Chemical Engineering Annex about ten years ago, and by the annexation of the old post office to serve as a library about twelve years ago, will continue to be used after the new Science Building is erected.

Although the enrollment of science majors in the college is not high, between 500 and 600, the course registrations in the individual departments are very heavy because of the many service courses which are administered for other divisions in the University.

One of the largest groups in the College of Science is made up of preprofessional students—premedical, pre-dental, pre-law, and teaching—and those who wish to get a general training in science without following one of the specialized programs. The University is recognized by the American Medical Association as an accredited premedical school; the proper selection of courses in the program leading to a Bachelor of Science degree will qualify the student to apply for admission to any school of medicine or dentistry in this country. A combination program in science and law is now available; the degree of Bachelor of Science is conferred at the end of the fifth year of this combination course, and the degree of Bachelor of Laws at the end of the sixth year; the student is free to select science courses in this program to suit his own wishes.

Nothing has been said in this report about the graduate work in the various departments of the College of Science, this because of the publicity which has appeared previously in the various University publications, also because these activities have been coordinated into the Graduate School, headed by Rev. Philip S. Moore, C.S.C., Dean. To give complete and worthy consideration to all of the many research projects in the College of Science would require much more time than has been allotted to me, and would be beyond the scope of this report on the status of the undergraduate division.

Two of the major problems which confront those of us who administer the programs in the College of Science are the selection of students properly qualified to carry out the intensive programs, as well as the proper procedure in advising those who find that they have mistaken an interest for an aptitude in a particular field of science. In these problems we have been aided immeasurably by Mr. Edward Quinn and his staff in the Department of Guidance and Testing.

Be assured, gentlemen, that your sons, brothers, and relatives who come to Notre Dame and who find their way to the Department of Guidance and Testing via the deans' offices will be treated with the same consideration and kindness we would expect for our own youngsters.

The great interest in science which developed during and since the last war has brought large numbers of youngsters to the colleges; in too many instances, however, the background, the abilities, the aptitudes, and the parental advice or coercion have not been commensurate with the interest they profess in their choice of vocations. An important and invaluable aid to us in directing these boys to programs for which they have the ability and in which they will be happy, is the cooperation and understanding of the parents.

In closing, it is fitting and proper to pay tribute to the loyal group of faculty members, both religious and lay, not only in the College of Science, but also in the entire University, whose efforts in the profession of teaching make our own work easier and more enjoyable; also a word in memory of those whose work and accomplishments in the College of Science still serve as an example and a stimulus to those of us engaged in the present-day training of science-conscious youngsters.—L. College of Commerce

I think it ever so appropriate that Notre Dame's Alumni have willingly elected to hear reports relating to the conduct of the various Colleges of the University. I say this because I think there is a continuing bond between you and ourselves—a bond that is not terminated by graduation or age since you bearers of the Notre Dame hallmark, must, by reason of this designation, have a continuing and irrevocable interest in our plans, our conduct, and our aspirations.

I think it is eminently appropriate too, that you should hear first-hand from us of those goals towards which we are pointing our activities and to know in reasonable detail why we are committed to work toward achievement in certain prescribed areas.

In the College of Commerce we conceive it to be our obligation to our 1400 students to maintain a correct balance between the primary purpose of education, which is to perfect a student's spiritual being and prepare him for immortality, and subordinately, to prepare him for successful living.

Strange though it may seem, this seemingly simple balance between primary and secondary things has become complex and unbalanced in too many of the modern educational dicta being advocated today.

In the ascendancy of certain "practical" education theories in some colleges and schools of commerce, a philosophy has gained currency that only those courses of instruction that will supply students with new and up-to-the-minute techniques are desirable. That nothing is desirable that does not serve convenience.

We take the view at Notre Dame that specialization develops only part of a student. And, that undebatedly, and irrevocably, our processes of education must deal with the relation of men to God and the relation of men to men. We do not want student acquisition of unrelated details to become an end in itself and take the place of a true Christian ideal of education. We hold this view because we know that things of highest values are not effected by the passage of time.

Succinctly stated, this is our profession of faith relating to the enduring code of values that is the basis upon which the College of Commerce carries on its function.

In the area that has to do with preparation for successful and responsible living we want our students to re-interpret and adapt Christian values to the social and economic environment of our times. We want them to acquire wisdom in dealing with human organizations and administrative principles in all their aspects, since instruction and guidance in these areas, is one of the real purposes of the Commerce College.

We want them to have that clarity of thinking that will help them in combating the political and economic heresies that have gained currency in our country. We want to know that despite wars and disturbances, the doctrine of human cooperation must remain the guiding spirit of a developing civilization. We want our students to have an awareness of the evils inherent in the evangelistic schemes that would make our people the servants of government instead of the

Club Presidents and Alumni Board of Directors Meet on Campus During June

The (Third) Club President's Council and the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association met in separate and joint sessions at the University, recently.

Seventy local alumni club presidents attended a two-day conference, June 8-9, and listened, as well as suggested, how best to operate the alumni club program. It was the first meeting of this type since 1947 and representatives displayed unusual interest in the entire schedule of events.

Various panel sessions included discussions on club fundamentals, Prestige program, placement service, Notre Dame Foundation, athletic activities and enrollment.

Presidents heard how club programs were functioning not only in metropolitan organizations but also in the cities with smaller alumni populations. University officials participating in the conference included Father Louis Thornton, c.s.c., Registrar; Bill Dooley, Placement Director and former assistant alumni secretary; Ed Krause, Hugh Burns, Herb Jones and Bob Cahill from the athletic department; and Ray Donovan, Public Information department. Father John Cavanaugh, University president, addressed the group on "The Club is Notre Dame in its Community."

The Alumni Association Board of Directors held their June meeting two days prior to Reunion weekend. Leo B. Ward, Los Angeles, president of the Alumni Association, presided with the entire membership attending. Committee reports were given on the Budget, Foundation, class activities, job counseling, preparatory schools, religion and citizenship, inter-alumni relations and prestige.

In addition to Mr. Ward the following Board members were here: John Q. Adams, Upper Montclair, N. J.; William B. Jones, Washington, D. C.; Edward J. Beckman, Plandome, N. Y.; William J. Sherry, Tulsa; Harvey G. Foster, Indianapolis; R. Conroy Scoggins, Houston, Texas; Father Vincent P. Brennan, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Arthur D. Cronin, Jr., Detroit, Mich.; Richard J. Nash, Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Matthew Weis, St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph M. Boland, South Bend; and Francis Wallace, Bellaire, Ohio.

government being the servant of the people. We want our students to work towards great and desirable goals in gaining the enthusiasm, initiative, loyalty, devotion of mind and hearts of the labor forces of America since we both know that we cannot legislate harmony into the hearts of men.

Our job is to train leaders. To equip young men so that they have emancipation from herd opinion. So that they have self-mastery, the capacity for self-criticism; suspended judgment and urbanity. In another manner of speaking, we aim towards turning our potential managerial talent who possess a storehouse of facts; a mind trained to think straight; mental humility and a developed sense of the fitness of things which is normally called judgment. We are not interested in training subordinates—only leaders.

Notre Dame's academic climate, together with the good traditions and concepts of Christian education have enabled us to do a reasonably good job so far.

I say reasonably good job because we never want smugness or complacency to replace our unshaken belief that there are brighter and more progressive goals in store for our students and for the University, if we look for them.

In an evolutionary sort of way, we have kept pace with the shifting, changing business patterns that influence the practical content of our courses. We have been reasonably alert to framing our business courses and training our students to the long range demands of business.

I am grateful for your generosity in letting me come to you with this condensed version of the philosophies and goals towards which we aspire in the College of Commerce.

DEADLINE, CLASS AND CLUB NEWS

The editors would be extremely grateful to all class and club secretaries if they will send copy for the September-October issue so that it may reach us by September 10. We are very appreciative of your fine response in the past regarding deadlines and particularly for your fine cooperation concerning the preparation of this magazine.

South Bend Campaign Is Highly Successful

The University of Notre Dame discovered on Friday night, May 19th that it has some real neighbors. The proposed $500,000 objective of the Greater Notre Dame Campaign in South Bend was surpassed by $1,012. Contributions totalling $501,012 in cash and pledges over the next three years were received.

This neighborliness demonstrated by the residents of South Bend, Mishawaka and other communities near the university will advance the general program and help complete the financing of the New Science Building.

In appreciation for what the citizens of the South Bend-Mishawaka Area were doing for Notre Dame, University employees undertook a campaign of their own in which 929 employees contributed the gratifying sum of $18,926.95. 1,341 citizens of South Bend-Mishawaka contributed the remaining $482,085.

Harold S. Vance, board chairman and president of the Studebaker Corporation, was general chairman of the Greater Notre Dame campaign. Mr. Vance, a non-alumnus, was assisted by Ernest M. Morris, '06, and Bernard J. Voll, '17, as Honorary Chairman. The Executive Committee consisted of Joseph F. Donahue, '12, W. Robert Walton, L. O. Gates, Paul Gilbert, Otto A. Pfaff, Robert L. Garvey and J. Arthur Haley, '26. John E. McIntyre, '31, was in charge of the Advance Gifts Committee.

Chairmen of the various divisions included G. A. Farabaugh, '04, Transportation: Henry Lowenstine, Chain Stores, Theatres and Hotels; Joseph Barnett, Merchants; Albert McGann, '25, Special Prospects; Joseph Boland, '27, Governmental; R. Floyd Searer, '28 and Dr. Kenneth Olson, Professional; Earl E. Reeder, '14, Wholesalers and Jobbers; A. N. Hepler, Jr., Outlying Merchants; J. J. Crowley, Jr., '31, Small Industries; C. G. Harding, '25, Individual Donors; Karl G. King, Jr., '37, Restaurants, Motels and Hotels; Ralph S. Sollitt and Thomas L. Hickey, Sr., Real Estate and Contractors; David A. Nye, Auto Agencies; John A. Scott, '38, Speakers Bureau; and Ralph E. Jones, Publicity.

Dr. Price Honored

Dr. Charles C. Price, head of the department of chemistry at the University, was honored in a science day celebration at his alma mater, Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.

In a special convocation, honorary doctor of science degrees were presented to Dr. Price and to Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University.

NOTRE DAME LAWYERS, ATTENTION

The Notre Dame Law Association has procured facilities and arranged a luncheon for those Notre Dame lawyers in attendance at the convention of the American Bar Association to be held in Washington, D. C. September 17 to 22. The headquarters room is located in the Statler Hotel and will open on Sunday, September 17, and remain open for the rest of the week. The luncheon will be held in the banquet room of the Carlton Hotel Wednesday noon, September 20. Prospects for a large turnout are excellent. Plan now to attend. Reservations or inquiries should be directed to the chairman, Mr. William B. Jones, Hamilton & Hamilton, Union Trust Building, Washington 5, D. C.

Law Reviews Come Here

Notre Dame has been selected as the site for the second conference of the National Association of Law Reviews in the fall of 1951, it has been announced by Dr. Clarence Manion, Dean of the College of Law.

Representatives of more than 50 law journals from all parts of the United States are expected to attend the conference. Addresses will be presented by prominent educators and jurists on matters of current legal interest. A series of informal forum discussions also will be held on law review problems.

Because of its selection as site for the conference, the Notre Dame College of Law will assume responsibility for direction of the Association until the conference.

E. A. Steffen, Jr., editor of the Notre Dame Lawyer, has also been appointed the first national chairman of the association, which was organized last October to coordinate the efforts of law reviews throughout the country. Steffen, a native of Indianapolis, Ind., is a senior in the College of Law.

spiritual aspirations of the Christian soul are fulfilled, substituting diabolical travesties of those very organs.

"Like a bodily cancer, this thing grows wildly in Europe and Asia and its cells are spread throughout the entire world. The very compactness of our world, its size shrinking in the face of technical advances makes the isolation of communism almost impossible.

"Our world today is in a state of fearful crisis. Are we perhaps presumptuous to see in the unprecedented material strength, the genius for organization and the youthful spirit of America—a providential preparation of certain qualities and institutions which are to become as necessary to the development of the Church as was Greek speculation or Roman law?

"The destiny of the Church will not be fulfilled until all the wondrous gifts of all peoples; the mysticism of the East; the tremendous capacity of suffering of the Slav; the joyous heart of the Negro—all have been absorbed by her and in turn have helped her to express completely the fullness of Christ.

"Why, then, may we not say that the peculiar greatness of our own America has been providentially prepared to adorn the Church? That the very rapidity of the growth of the Church in America is a sign of this? Perhaps the hour is not far off. Perhaps this is the meaning of the crisis that rocks the world—that the eternal Church clothed in the vigor of our young land may bring salvation to the world."

Miss Blanchard Dies

Miss Marie G. Blanchard, one of the few women ever to receive a degree from the University, died May 12 in Pittsburgh. She was 76.

News of her death reached the Alumnus only a few days too late to be included in the May-June Issue.

* DENOTES MONOGRAMS WON.

Named to Council

Two of the nation's leading figures in science and industry have accepted membership on the Advisory Council for Science and Engineering at the University, it was announced by the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., president.

New members of the Notre Dame council are Charles S. Beardsley, Chairman of the Board of Miles Laboratories, Inc., Elkhart, Ind., and Daniel M. Heekin, President of the Heekin Can Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Beardsley, a former attorney, joined the staff of the Miles Laboratories in 1926. He served as vice-president in charge of advertising and sales from 1931 to 1944 and was president from 1944 to 1947. He assumed his present duties as chairman of the board of Miles Laboratories in 1947.

Mr. Beardsley has been president of the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education since 1948. He formerly served as president of the Proprietary Association of America.

Mr. Heekin received a mechanical engineering degree from Purdue University in 1910. He has been associated with the Heekin Can Company, Cincinnati, since his graduation and now serves the company as president.

Bradley Dewey, president of the Dewey and Almy Chemical Company, Cambridge, Mass., is Chairman of the Advisory Council for Science and Engineering at Notre Dame. Consisting of twenty-three leading scientists and industrialists of the United States, the Council advises Notre Dame regarding its scientific and engineering research program.

Concert Mass Dedicated

A Concert Mass dedicated to the University was presented for the first time on Ascension Thursday in Sacred Heart Church on campus.

The new musical arrangement, in G Minor for solo quartet, mixed chorus, and organ, is the work of Carl A. Mathes, an instructor in music at the University. Mr. Mathes, a native Hungarian who has been blind since early childhood, accompanied the choir on the organ.

After the performance a manuscript of the Grand Mass was presented by Mr. Mathes to the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., president of the University. The manuscript is bound in blue and decorated with gold leaf—the official colors of the University.

More than three months of rehearsal went into preparation for the performance. Three minor works by Mathes—an organ prelude, an Ave Maria, and a Salve Regina—also were included in the program. The conductor was the Rev. William J. McAuliffe, C.S.C., director of the Moreau Seminar Choir.

Trained in the Royal Academy of Music in Budapest, Mr. Mathes has performed his own works and other musical programs in the major cities of Hungary, Yugoslavia, Roumania, Austria and Italy. His new Mass is a modern polyphonic composition in the style of Anton Bruckner.

Baldinger Gets Award

Dr. Lawrence H. Baldinger, Dean of the College of Science at the University, has been named the 1950 recipient of the Notre Dame Lay Faculty Award for distinguished service during the 1949-50 schoolyear.

The award, which carries a $500 purse, is made annually by the Notre Dame Alumni Association. Last year's award went to Professor William D. Rollison, of the College of Law at Notre Dame.

Dr. Baldinger, as Dean of the College of Science, heads the staff of scientists who are conducting research in the fields of chemistry, physics and mathematics at Notre Dame. Among the research projects at Notre Dame are those involving cancer, the Rh factor in human blood, radiation chemistry, electronics and atomic energy.

The Notre Dame dean, who has been a member of the faculty since 1933, was head of the Department of Pharmacy at the University until 1939 when the department was absorbed in the Department of Chemistry. Dr. Baldinger was named Assistant Dean of the College of Science in 1941, was made Acting Dean in 1942, and has been Dean of the College since 1943.

Another Cincinnati Scholarship

Joseph D. Crowley, 17 year old Middletown Senior High School student, is the recipient of a four-year Scholarship to the University, it was announced by Robert C. Burke, President of the Notre Dame Club of Cincinnati, donors of the Scholarship.

Crowley, son of Thomas F. Crowley, a metal finisher in the Frigidaire Plant, Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. Thomas F. Crowley, is a First Honor student, the County Winner in the Prince of Peace Oratorical Contest in 1948, placed fourth in the State finals of the same contest in 1949, and is District tennis champion.

Crowley was selected from many nominees of Public, Private and Parochial High Schools in the Greater Cincinnati Area, by the Scholarship Committee, consisting of Albert D. Castellini, Chairman, J. Walter Nienaber and Joseph S. Morrissey, Alumni members, and the Honorable Edward T. Dixon and Mr. Louis Richter, non-alumnus members.

The award, first in a series to be offered by the Cincinnati Club, is based on financial need, scholastic attainment, moral character, activities and personality of the applicant.

Medicinal Chem Meeting

Three prominent foreign scientists were featured speakers during the second National Medicinal Chemistry Symposium held June 15, 16 and 17 at the University.

Appearing on the Notre Dame symposium program was Dr. Arthur Stoll, a member of the board of directors of the Sandoz Pharmaceutical Company in Switzerland; Dr. F. Berheim, Professor of Pharmacology at the University of Cambridge, England; and Dr. H. R. Ing, Professor of Pharmacology at the University of Oxford, England.

Dr. Stoll, who is internationally known for his researches on the naturally occurring drugs that act on the heart, spoke at the final session of the Notre Dame Symposium the morning of June 17, which treated the "Newer Developments in Drugs Used for Heart Disease." Dr. Stoll currently is on a lecture tour of the United States and Mexico.

Dr. Berheim and Dr. Ing took part in the panel held in the evening of June 16. Both spoke on the subject of the means by which drugs act in the body.

The Notre Dame Symposium was sponsored by the Division of Medicinal Chemistry of the American Chemical Society. Dr. Kenneth N. Campbell, Professor of Chemistry at Notre Dame and Chairman of the Medicinal Chemistry Division of ACS, was general chairman of the 1950 Symposium.

50-Year Club Organized

Louis C. M. Reed, '00, New York City, said in acknowledging the symbolic award of the 50-Year Club Medals at the Alumni Banquet, "I have done nothing unusual in my life except persist." Only seventy graduates before 1900, and including that Class, enjoy this distinction.

The Alumni Association has always had a deep respect for the Golden Jubilarians at Reunion time. In the nature of Notre Dame's own growth, and in the nature of man, this annual group has been so small as to be depressing, whereas in spirit and in the admiration of fellow-alumni it should be exhilarating.

To recognize the abiding friendship, and to escape from the mathematics of membership, the Alumni Board this year sanctioned the formation of the "50-Year Club," comprising all Notre Dame men out of school 50 years or more. And this group will be invited back annually, with the actual 50-Year Class being initiated as freshmen in the Club at the Reunion. An outstandingly beautiful medal marks membership.

In this first year, we have evidence of the merit of the Club. The group was large enough to provide fellowship with the common denominator of Notre Dame life at the turn of the century. And each man back found someone like himself, young in heart and mind, and—to an amazing degree—young in ideas and in physical prowess.

All other Classes derived real inspiration from the presence of the 50-Year Club members. The meeting of the group in the Junes ahead should increase in enjoyment as they will increase in numbers of eligible members.

Alumni director John Q. Adams of New York, and Louis F. Buckley, 1928 Class Secretary will be two of the principal speakers at a workshop sponsored by the Catholic Business Education Association, August 7 to 11 at the University.

Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, archbishop of Cincinnati will open the workshop with an address "The Need for Social Order." Mr. Adams will present a paper on "Employers' Associations" and Mr. Buckley will preside as chairman at the Aug. 10 session and present a talk on "Approaches and Objectives."

Notre Dame Books

SOCIOLOGY FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY, by Rev. Raymond W. Murray, C.S.C. Appleton-Century-Crofts: $3.00.

Expectation that the growing challenge of Communism in the United States may lead many non-Catholic colleges to abandon their traditional "naturalistic" philosophy in sociology courses is reflected in "Sociology for a Democratic Society," a new college textbook written by the Rev. Raymond W. Murray, C.S.C., Head of the Department of Sociology at the University.

In the new book, published by the Appleton-Century-Crofts Company of New York City, Father Murray claims that the naturalistic approach to sociology is "undemocratic."

Naturalistic philosophy is based upon the belief that "no one can be certain of any suprasensible truth," according to Father Murray, and it thereby denies the validity of both the philosophical and religious principles upon which "our government was founded." The Notre Dame author points out that this "undemocratic" approach is said to have resulted from the attempts of sociologists "to copy blindly the methods of the physical sciences." Sociology as taught in Catholic colleges has never accepted this philosophy, Father Murray writes.

"Sociology For a Democratic Society" shows that our form of government "involves much more than a system of checks and balances, free play of conflicting opinions, and majority determination." The book points out that democracy "as reflected in our cornerstone, the Declaration of Independence, recognizes the natural rights of the governed . . . a principle which has its source in the Jewish-Christian faith." Both Communism and naturalism deny this principle, according to the author.

The new textbook presents sociology within the framework of our basic Judaeo-Christian tradition. While it leaves room for denominational differences, it is equated to a common denominator made up of the basic or core-values underlying America's democratic tradition.—R.W.D.

Alumni Clubs

Twenty-one Alumni Clubs have contributed $20,082.25 so far in 1950

Boston

Two club members have recently been appointed to important and responsible posts in the administrative family of John Hynes, mayor of Boston. Harry J. Keefe, '40, is Building Commissioner. John Moran, '30, whose selection as City Purchasing Agent was reported last year, has been chosen to perform additional duties as Director of Civilian Defense for Boston.

On June 27th we arranged the Annual Get-together for the purpose of welcoming members of this year's graduating class, and it was very well attended. Among those present and boasting a 1950 diploma were Joe Clancy, Philip McCartin, Joseph Benoit, and Robert Sayers. New member of the Board of Directors is Joe Clancy, appointed by president Jack Duffey to represent his class. Philip McCartin is in electrical sales training with Cutler-Hammer Co. of Milwaukee, Wis., and at this time connected with their Boston office.

During the business meeting, the dates of our retreat at Stonehill College, Northeaston, Mass., were confirmed by Committee Chairman Joe Garland, Jr., '27, as July 14-16. The retreat will last from Friday evening through Sunday afternoon.

The date and time of the club's family outing have been definitely set as August 17, 2 p. m., and it will take place at Riverside Recreation Grounds, near Norumbega Park, Auburndale, Mass. Good golf, swimming, boating and picnic facilities are available, and the feature of the day will be a softball game between the Old-Timers and Youngsters. An interesting question was raised in connection with this contest: where do you properly draw the line between alumni Old-Timers and alumni Youngsters? Joe Clancy, '50, with something resembling a sneer, expressed the view that all those alumni from '48 back should be classed as Old-Timers. Needless to say, all present did not concur. The issue was not finally resolved, but it is interesting to note that the game will begin at a cool 6 p. m.—undoubtedly so that those "Old-Timers" can enjoy a long nap and a tall, healthful glass of hot water before tottering into the fray. Mike Manzo, '45, is general chairman of the outing, assisted by Arthur Brady, '48, and Joe Clancy, '50. Arrangements for the get-together were given much time and excellently handled by Dick Herlihy, '48.

John Moran, '30, has been appointed chairman of the Placement Committee, and will try to help job-seeking alumni to help themselves.

A Prep School Committee, whose work will consist of interesting young men from this area in Notre Dame, will be headed by Jack Saunders, assisted by Bill Thompson, '47.

Buffalo

On June 17, the Buffalo Alumni Club made it possible for almost 100 Notre Dame men in western New York to get together for the first time since their campus days. A highly successful stag outing was held in Mayor's Park, North Tonawanda, for all Notre Dame men within a 100-mile radius of Buffalo.

The idea for such a party grew out of a suggestion by Joe Ryan, '39, last winter. He wrote to many Notre Dame men outside of Buffalo at that time to see if many would be interested. It was very much approved and plans were started.

Invitations were extended to many cities, large and small, as far as Rochester and Erie, Pa.; men from Dunkirk, Medina, Batavia, Middleport, Alden, East Aurora and many others.

Dick Thoen and Ted Flanigan assumed the responsibility of coordinating committees. Their biggest problem was estimating the number expected because all contact had to be made by long distance and by mail.

Joe Battaglia handled the food; Tony Brick, the park arrangements; Tom Kelly, the publicity, and Jim Fitzgerald, the prizes. Jim had something for everyone whether he earned it or not.

John Nowak was chiefly responsible for many

"aching backs" the day after the outing, since he was chief organizer of a full afternoon of games of all kinds. The most recent graduates defeated the old timers at softball, but Charlie Hanna and Hank Burns made a good showing for the older grads by getting into the finals in the egg-throwing contest. The Classes of '49 and '50 took off with the 50 yard dashes and football-throwing contest: while Doc Burns, '15, and Frank Sweeney, '16, stood high at a horseshoe-throwing contest.

Some of the out-of-towners who were unable to return home the same day were accommodated at a downtown hotel. Their wives were entertained by the Alum-Wives Club of Buffalo.

Besides getting together with old friends, this outing had another purpose—to introduce the new 1950 graduates to the alumni in Buffalo and to help them get acquainted so that they might become established.—Jack Shine, Secretary.

Central New York

With the coming of summer, usually a period of inactivity, the Central New York Club springs into action.

At a meeting of the entire club, E. C. Schonlau and Rev. Frank J. Harrison were elected as directors for a three year period in accordance with the Alumni Association policy of rotating directorships. The Board of Directors met several days later and elected John H. Terry as president for '50-'51. Elected to succeed Terry as secretary-treasurer was Robert E. McAuliffe. Rev. Joseph B. Toomey was elected as vice-president. Daniel A. Kelley, retiring proxy, was then elected to the Board of Directors, following the resignation of Terry. Both meetings were luncheon meetings held in Syracuse at Leonard's Restaurant.

Following their election, the new officers met and planned a tentative schedule for the ensuing year.

July 20th is the date set for the annual Golf-Dinner Party to be held this year at the Tuscarora Country Club. Secret score, putting contest, and other prizes will be awarded. Dinner will be served at 7 p. m. Robert E. McAuliffe and James Manning are co-chairmen of the event.

A "Student Send-Off" is in the offing for August 17th—that's a Thursday. It is hoped that Johnny Lujack and George Connors, both of the Chicago Bears, who will be in town for a professional football game, will be present. Place will be announced later, but the party will feature a buffet dinner, beer, salt potatoes, and a baseball game between the students versus the alumni. Paul W. "Bill" Kelley will chairman the alumni and Edward "Ted" Kelly, will head the student group. Students entering Notre Dame this fall, present students, their parents and the alumni are all invited.

From July 20th to October 11th, Notre Dame men will be busy selling raffle tickets on the N.D.-Michigan State game. The game is a natural for Syracuseans and a large excursion is now being planned to South Bend for the game. The long range raffle activity will be culminated at the raffle drawing 10 days before the game—that's October 11th. Co-chairmen of the raffle and the raffle drawing party are Paul Lonergan and Phil Kelley, of the Alums. Ed Murphy, secretary of the Student Club, is assisting with student support.

Notre Dame men will meet again on the Sunday nearest the feast of the Immaculate Conception and this year the date is December 10th to participate in the Communion Breakfast Sunday for Notre Dame Clubs. John E. McAuliffe and William Dwyer are co-chairmen and plans will be announced were ushers. Richard Kelley, Notre Dame student come September, also ushered for his brother. Club Director Rev. Frank J. Harrison will arrange the participation.

"Football Highlights of '50" will be shown at Haberle's Taproom on a date to be set later during the month of February, 1951. The review of the year's football activity is always received with enthusiasm. Henry M. "Bud" Kirk, Jr., is chairman of this affair.

The club program for the year will be completed with Universal Notre Dame Night on April 2nd, 1951. Negotiations are underway for a prominent speaker to be with us on this occasion. The dinner will be held at the University Club. Guests will be invited and the affair will again begin at 7 p. m. Daniel A. Kelley and E. C. Schonlau are co-chairmen of UND Night activities.

In addition to the regular club activities set forth above, there will be a Golf-Dinner Party sponsored by the Catholic Inter-Collegiate Alumni Association on September 12th, 1950, at the Bellevue Country Club. John H. Terry, club president, is treasurer of the Inter-Collegiate Association.

In the Additions-to-the-family Department—the McAuliffe brothers have both become new fathers. Bob's new son is Kevin and Jack's new addition is Joseph. Joseph is named for an ardent Subway Alum—Joseph Lonergan. Both have forwarded applications for admission—Class of 1971.

Both the retiring proxy and the proxy-elect are on the recent marriage list. John H. Terry was wed to Catherine Jean Phelan on April 15th in St. John the Evangelist Church, Syracuse. After a honeymoon to Florida, the couple are residing at 213 Rich St., Syracuse. Daniel A. Kelley was best man for Jack Terry. On June 21st in St. John the Evangelist Church, Daniel A. Kelley was married to Mildred Rita Hogan. After a Canadian honeymoon, they will reside at 100 Valerie Circle, Fayetteville, a Syracuse suburb. Paul W. Kelley, Jr. and Phil Kelley

Cleveland

A very successful Stag party was held on Saturday, June 17, at Chuck Rohr's ('30) farm in Chardon, Ohio. Nearly 100 Notre Dame men and their sons were present. The affair was ably

"chairmaned" by Pat Canny '28, and Fred Naegle '43. Unusual as it was inspirational was the way the picnic started. The entire group was led in the Rosary by Hon. Pres. Thomas F. Byrne '28 at the lovely Grotto which Chuck has at the farm. Then the Old Timers, with Pat Canny and Tom Byrne as umpires in favor of the O.T.'s, and with six infielders and eight outfielders—lost to the Youngsters (fellows now at ND) by the close score of 11-9. The youngsters were captained by Dick Hilinski. Others pitched horse shoes, rode horseback on the noble steeds that Rhr keeps, or went on a hayride tour of the beautiful country place.

Chuck was then host at a fine picnic dinner, with plenty to eat and drink for all. Chuck announced he would be happy to have the gang back next year, Lord willing. Every one agreed that Chuck Rohr is a perfect host, a gracious one, and all will return in '51.

The ND Golf party is all set for July 27 under the co-chairmanship of Larry Kral '31, last year's winner, and Doc Al O'Brien, '33, runner-up in '49. John Chapla '23 has been able to secure his home Club—the beautiful Elgria Country Club, for the affair, and is arranging for prizes. John usually has enough prizes so even the daffy duffers come home with something. Everybody welcome—also guests. But make reservations, please.

A football year always means a busy time for your Club, the officers, and the committees. It also means a greater opportunity for each individual member to enjoy the activities planned by your Club. Outlined below is up-to-date information, subject to the usual "change without notice."

Food for Thought:

When you say that, Smile! Yes, we've started another luncheon group. But without frills or furbelows. If you're downtown any Thursday drop in at Rohr's, 1111 Chester Avenue for lunch and you'll find 15-20 ND men at the large table in the rear. Order from the menu, pay your own check—very informal.

Coming Summer Activities:

Golf Party—Mid-July—Date and place to be announced.

Family Picnic—Early August, Gilmour of course.

Summer Dance—Late August.

PS: New arrivals or any address changes should be registered at the Club's permanent office, The Arcade, Phone CH 1-2636.

Columbus

The last meeting of the Notre Dame Alumni Club of Columbus, Ohio, was called to order on May 18, 1950. As is the usual practice the monthly meetings will be dispensed with during the summer months. However plans for the golf party at the Columbus Country Club were discussed, and also plans for the annual fish fry that is held during the latter part of the summer.

Both of these events will be held during the summer months and the club has high hopes that both events will meet with success as they have in the past.

Doc Tom Hughes was appointed chairman of the summer activities committee.

Condolence is extended to v-pres. Joe Ryan on the recent death of his sister, Mrs. Mary Daugherty of Columbus.

Dayton

The Dayton Chapter of the Notre Dame Alumni Association held a dinner meeting on Tuesday evening, June 13, at the Miami Valley Golf Club. Thirty members were present and ten present students and graduates of Notre Dame. This meeting was to welcome the latter boys into the Dayton club.

Plans were discussed for chancing off four tickets to the home football games of Notre Dame. This is for promoting a scholarship fund. Discussion was also brought up for having a dance this coming December.

Andy Amon, president, spoke about his past trip to Notre Dame for the Presidents' meeting.

The business meeting was adjourned and the rest of the evening was spent socially.

Fox River Valley (Wis.)

A family picnic, with ice cream and pop and games and prizes for the children, will be held July 30 at Menominee Park, Oshkosh, it was announced by Robert Bernard, Neenah, president of the Fox River Valley Notre Dame club.

Plans for the picnic were laid at a meeting of the committee, which includes Charles Fiss, Oshkosh; Richard Stack, Appleton, and Joseph Fieweger, Neenah. Each family will bring its own picnic basket, but swapping will be encouraged. Parents and brothers and sisters of members will be invited.

Grand Rapids

Our monthly meeting was held on Tuesday, June 13, in the Club Rooms of the Knights of Columbus Hall in Grand Rapids. The Club unanimously adopted President Dunn's suggestion that one meeting a year be held in the City of Muskegon hoping that this meeting would encourage the Alumni in Muskegon to attend the meetings held in Grand Rapids each month. The only alumnus from Muskegon who attends our meeting is Leo Linck, one of our Vice Presidents. November is the month set for that meeting.

President Ed Dunn appointed Joe Moore as Chairman of a committee to revamp our constitution and by-laws with Joe Moore as Chairman, with Joe Deeb, Fred Gast, Robert B. Linsey, Jim McDermott and Tom Reach on his committee.

And Only the Photographer Got Wet

You don't like our Indiana weather? Wait a minute. Father Vincent Brennan, holding umbrella, Alumni President Leo Ward and Conroy Scoggins in the Lyons arch on a visit to the class of 1925.

The annual summer picnic will be held at the summer home of John Prawdzik at Spring Lake Michigan, on July 15. Charles Duffy was appointed Chairman with a committee consisting of Fred Gast, Joe Moore, George Weiss and Bob Woodhouse.

Greater Miami

Faris N. Cowart was elected president of the Notre Dame Alumni Club of Greater Miami today at the annual business meeting held at Betty's Restaurant. Cowart is, also, a graduate of Miami High School. Other officers elected are Henry Keel, first vice-president; Michael Zorovitch, second vice-president; Jules Bercik, secretary-treasurer. Fred A. Jones, Jr., immediate past-president, was elected to the Board of Directors for a three year term. Other directors are Walter D. Rowlands, John Kotte, George Brautigam, I. I. Probst and Jules Bercik.

Fred Jones reported that the possibility of the University of Notre Dame scheduling the University of Miami was discussed during his attendance at the annual Notre Dame Council meeting, June 8, 9 and 10, of all Notre Dame alumni club presidents throughout the nation. It was indicated, Jones reported, that no possibility existed of this game being scheduled for the '51 or '52 season. As a result of this report Cowart appointed Hugh J. McManigal as chairman of a committee, consisting of George A. Brautigam and Walter D. Rowlands, to undertake the necessary negotiations, sponsored by the local alumni club, leading to a definite contract for a game between the two universities in 1953 or 1954. Action on the part of this committee will include the marshalling of all persons interested in this game in the Miami area.

Cowart requests that all Notre Dame alumni in the Greater Miami area, Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale and West Palm Beach and other surrounding areas, who are not registered with the local club, to do so as soon as possible that a directory may be prepared for Southeastern Florida. Friends of the University are cordially invited to send in their names. All mail may be directed to Cowart, 1926 South West 8th St., Miami, Fla. All future meetings of the Club will be held on the last Thursday of each month and the next meeting will be held on July 27 at 6:00 p. m. at Betty's Restaurant.

Fred Jones and Dick Sadowski were appointed chairmen of the Notre Dame annual picnic to be held in August. Jocko Conlon was appointed a committee of one to handle plane and ticket arrangements for the 1950 Notre Dame-Tulane game I. I. Probst was appointed program chairman for the July meeting.

Indianapolis

A marvelous turnout greeted dean James E. McCarthy as we of the Notre Dame Club of Indianapolis celebrated Universal Notre Dame Night. "Big Mac" did a wonderful job as the principal speaker and his travel back through the years at Notre Dame brought down the house. Bill Holland is to be congratulated on the manner in which he lined up the evening's activities at the Hillcrest Golf and Country Club. The "Smorgasborg" as prepared by the club was superb and well received by all.

Harry Scott served as the toastmaster and introduced from the rostrum Archbishop Paul C. Schulte, Brother Regis, C.S.C., principal of Cathedral High school, Father John Dever, C.S.C., chaplain at the Cathedral High school, Father John McShane and two recent athletic luminaries, George Connor and Leo Barnhorst. The Mayor of Indianapolis Al Feeney, who as recipient of last year's "Man of the Year" award presented the 1950 scroll to Trueman C. Rembusch for his stand on the corrective measures to be adopted in curbing immorality in the movie industry. Al also presented a "special award" to P. C. Reilly, president of Reilly Tar and Chemical Co., and member and former chairman of the University Board of Lay Trustees.

The highlight of the evening was the election of officers for the 1950-51 year. The new officers are Harvey Foster, president; Ed Cunningham, vice-president; Jim Carson, treasurer; John Carr, secretary and Joe Beck and Bill O'Connor, new members of the Board. The retiring officers and members of the board are Nick Connor, Eill Holland, Roy Keach, Jr., Joe Gillespie, Bill Mooney and Fred Mahaffey. While the ballots were being counted the movie "Highlights of the 1949 Grid Season" were shown.

New president Foster has already lined up a beer bust for June 15 at Bill Holland's farm. For the next issue of the Alumnus we'll have all of the details of the Annual summer Golf Tournament.

The June Commencement brought the following graduates into the Club: Sam J. Herrington, Frank J. Hurley, George L. Landis, Maurice F. McGrath, Frank M. Maley, John R. O'Connor, Hugh E. Reynolds, Jr., Harry R. Rosengarten, Harold E. Sullivan, Elmer A. Steffen, James C. Welch and Robert L. Wechsler. . . . Congratulations fellows, we are counting on your attendance at our various club functions.

The annual Summer Golf Tournament is in the capable hands of John A. Welch, and is being scheduled for the first or second week of August. . . . Bob Moynahan, Bill Snyder and Ed McNamara are on the committee with Johnny. . . . At the last report the place and tariff have not been decided. . . . According to reports from up north it is safe to say that the University will be well represented again this year.

We feel that it is about time that we put out a new Club Directory, as the old one (1946) is getting rather obsolete. If everything goes according to plans it should be out by the end of August.

John H. Blackwell, another of our faithful club members, passed away in May. . . . we all will miss seeing Harold at the various club functions. . . . Jim Carson has sent a Mass card to the family.

La Crosse, Wisconsin

At the April 27, 1950, meeting of the LaCrosse Chapter the newly elected officers of the Club are as follows: President, David F. Hyde, '40, 230 S. 20th Ct.; Vice-President, William F. Dvorak '43, 1602 Mississippi St.; Secretary-Treasurer, John W. Hackner, Jr., '37, 412 Caledonia St.

On Sunday, May 14, 1950, the Club had the pleasure of entertaining the University of Notre Dame baseball traveling squad at a Communion breakfast. The Mass was celebrated at St. Mary's Church in LaCrosse by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert B. Caudon, D.D. . . . Augie Gramis, the toastmaster at the breakfast introduced Coach "Jake" Kline and Capt. Martin of the squad to the gathering. Msgr. Caudon gave an interesting talk on Notre Dame and its great work in Education, Science and Athletics.

Michigan City

Francis G. Fedder, who retired as president last year, and Dr. C. J. Vojak were elected as members of the Board of Directors for 1950.

Dr. C. W. Kolanczyk lives at 1311 Washington St., and maintains an office in the Lido Theatre Bldg. Yours truly lives at 121 N. Calumet Ave., and my office is located at 416 Warren Bldg.

The Club will hold its third annual Irish Greens Golf Party on Thursday, July 27th, 1950 at the Long Beach Country Club. Tee off time begins at 9:00 a. m. and continues all day. The $5.00 ticket includes the greens fee, all refreshments and a 16 ounce Grade A barbecued steak to be served following the golf matches. The Long Beach swimming pool will be available after 5:00 p. m. and each ticket holder will be eligible for a door award. Over $500.00 in prizes will be awarded for the golf tourney.

Our Club sponsored two successful events this Spring. We held a dinner-dance at the Standard Club, Sheridan Beach, on April 22nd, in observance of Universal Notre Dame Night. Our first Corporate Communion and Breakfast was held at 7:30 a. m.

The Communion Mass was held at 7:30 a. m. at Sacred Heart Church with the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., president of the University of Notre Dame as celebrant. The Communion Breakfast was served at 9:00 a. m. at the K. of C. Hall with over 300 men in attendance. Father Cavanaugh was the principal speaker and his fine address was carried over the Michigan City radio station WIMS. Our Club received many appreciative comments on Father Cavanaugh's splendid talk.

Our Club meets once a month on the third Monday of each month. Our next meeting, however, will be a special one to be held on July 10th, in order to make final arrangements for the Irish Greens Party. Will keep you advised of further developments and special club activities.

Mid-Hudson Valley

At the May meeting, held in Kingston, N. Y., the following men were elected Directors: John Kuhn and John Drumgould (3 years); John Davis and Robert Hugh (2 years); and Robert Deegan and Daniel Cassidy (1 year). Standing Committees were also formed at the May gathering. The film "The University of Notre Dame" was shown.

On June 18th the club held its annual outing at Camp Waukonda, Mount Marion, N. Y. Club members and their families were invited to attend. Francis J. Sanfilippo, club president, gave a report covering the recent Club Presidents' Council at the University.

He brought back quite a few ideas from the panel discussions that should help the club activities in the coming year.

Milwaukee

On Universal Notre Dame Night, April 17, 1950, the Notre Dame Club of Milwaukee inaugurated its new officers. The former President William C. Malaney is succeeded by President Richard S. Balliet; the former Vice President Mark A. Pfaller, Jr., by William C. Dineen; the former secretary Richard S. Balliet by Robert L. Rhode, and the former treasurer Robert G. Sanford by John J. Linnehan.

Robert Ervin, business manager of LOBUND, spoke of the activities of LOBUND and its germ-free life experiments.

The Notre Dame "Man of the Year" award was tendered to Mr. Fred C. Miller for his contribution by civil and moral leadership in promoting the interests of Notre Dame and its various activities.

Frank Leahy spoke to the club and encouraged the club by hinting that the team "showed promise" for the oncoming season, and Johnny Lujack followed with words of praise for Coach Leahy.

A buffet dinner was served after a very engaging cocktail party which was followed by the usual games of skill. The party was a tremendous success.

On May 3 the club met at the Knights of Columbus clubrooms in downtown Milwaukee. The speaker for that evening was Mr. Grimm of Milwaukee Better Business Bureau who told the club of the modern gyp and how he operates. The President discussed plans for a summer dance and golf jamboree. An informal meeting followed over free beer and everyone had a good time.

The Notre Dame Club of Milwaukee extends a cordial invitation to all Notre Dame men to be present at its summer functions. (The dates are not as yet set but will be available upon writing the secretary or any of the officers.)

Golf jamboree is set for July 27, 1950, at the Port Washington Country Club.

Northern California

The Notre Dame alumni of Northern California held its annual Fathers and Sons night at the banquet room of the Marine Memorial Club in San Francisco on Thursday evening, June 22.

Honored guests for the evening were Kevin O'Shea and John R. Forde who graduated from Notre Dame this June. John was in the land of cheese, Wisconsin, but he was well remembered.

Special recognition went to Joe Kuharich, football coach at University of San Francisco; Joe Ruetz, football coach of St. Mary's University; Thomas Foley, basketball coach at St. Mary's University, and Bud Lynn, assistant football coach at the University of San Francisco.

Sitting in between the two independents of the west coast was Dennis Heenan, athletic director at Santa Clara, who acted as the evening's toastmaster.

It was a refreshing and certainly most inspiring scene to see these successful members of the west coast highly competitive independent league expressing their profound appreciations to Notre Dame for the training they received and paying tribute to their fellow competitive Notre Dame men.

Special recognition for achievement went to Don Miller for being admitted to the California State Bar Assn. Don has opened his own law firm in Burlingame and has taken on Bob Tarver, present secretary of the Club, as his associate.

During the meal the roving eye was able to spot such Notre Dame figures as Paul Cushing, Slip Madigan, Fred Peak and Scrapiron Young.

President Bill Daley, just back from a trip to the campus, enlightened the club members on current happenings under the Dome.

Preliminary plans were made on the club's special excursion to the ND-USC game this fall. More will come on this later.

New Jersey

Joseph Abbott of Paterson was elected president of the Notre Dame Club of New Jersey at a meeting in the Military Park Hotel, Newark, on June 12. Other officers elected were: Richard Bevington, of East Orange, vice president; Joseph M. Byrne, III, of Newark, secretary, and Edward Naegle, of Orange, treasurer. J. Norbert Gelson, of Summit, and John Blanda of Passaic were elected to three-year terms on the board of directors.

Outgoing president Thomas B. Hogan of Maplewood thanked the club members for their support of activities during the year. Alumni cooperation made possible the Jersey Club's gift of a thousand dollars to the Notre Dame Foundation this year.

That thousand dollar gift is in a sense symbolic of the club's remarkable rejuvenation. When Gervase Froelich of Newark, became president two years ago, the Jersey Alumni organization was virtually a corpse. There was no money and little spirit. Some even suggested disbanding the club.

Froelich kicked the corpse till it showed signs of life. Under his direction, the Jersey Alumni began to function again.

Hogan picked up where Froelich left off and today the Notre Dame Club of New Jersey is on the way to becoming one of the most important and influential alumni groups in the country.

New Orleans

At the last meeting Tom McMahon '29 was installed as President of the Notre Dame Club of New Orleans. Karl Kachewski '29 retired because he was transferred from the city.

The Club is busy with plans for the Student trip this fall, to the Tulane-Notre Dame game.

Mr. Fred Digby who is probably the most active honorary alumnus in the United States, is the unofficial chairman for the big week-end. He is General Manager of Sugar Bowl and we think very capable in ventures of this kind. He gave us a report on the plans for Student trip: housing the students, a big pep-rally and various parties.

After the meeting we saw the movies of the S.M.U.-Notre Dame game of last fall, narrated by the very busy Mr. Digby.

New York City

The task of reporting the activities of an alumni group such as the ND Club of New York is both an easy and a difficult one—easy because of the tremendous amount of activity conducted—and difficult to know where to give the most credit to a gang of fellows comprising the best anywhere. The above is not written in self-sanctification of deeds done—but in heartfelt appreciation for those unable to publicly express their thoughts.

In sequence—since last reporting—the Club's formal Annual Meeting took form at the Biltmore on January 11 with the night being more or less dedicated to the Missions. Father Joe English '37 brought in a film entitled "The Miracle of the Blue Cloud Country." Acclaimed by Hollywood, this 20-minute on-the-scene documentary film by the Maryknoll Fathers tells the true and amazing story of a veteran missionary in the Blue Cloud Country of China where no priest has ever penetrated before and of how he caused over 12,000 conversions. To the Alumni club looking for attractions to their meetings—contact the nearest Maryknoll priest for a talk and the booking of this film.

Our February meeting at the Biltmore—(the present monthly meeting place until we take over the Empire State Building or build our own) brought about an extremely well versed speaker in former Naval Intelligence Commander Vince Hartnett '37 who afforded the 200 Alumni present a detailed expose of the communist conspiracy to control our radio and television today. Until we complete setting up the mechanism for the proposed action to help combat the exposed practices we will take a rain check on reporting further details.

Herb Giorgio was the Chairman conducting the Annual retreat to Mount Manresa on Staten Island on Feb. 17 and the promise of this activity to expand was gratifying. With Herb at the head of such activity this promise shouldn't be too far off.

Miami Looks at LOBUND

Professor Robert F. Ervin, administrative head of LOBUND, explaining a technical point to members of the Miami Club. The percentage of men looking at something else—in this case the camera—is about par for the course, as compared with classroom doodlers, Ervin claims. (Elmore photo)

Genial Jack Hoyt—a fellow who in our estimation could put over and make a three-legged horse race pay, in February, devoted his efforts to the NYU-ND basketball luncheon and game (we should have stayed at the luncheon). Toots Shor's on Feb. 27 had a jammed house of 400 to listen to Father Hesburgh, Herb Jones, Moose Krause, Hugh Devore and Capt. Kevin O'Shea from the University and Police Commissioner O'Brien, his deputy Pat Meehan, Chief Magistrate Murtagh and Col. Begley of the UN among others from New York. Mr. Ed Scheidt, a North Carolina grad, but a good friend of ND, and head of the local FBI office was on hand at the luncheon for a few words.

Club President Commissioner Jim Sheils was instrumental in affording the consent of a good friend of Notre Dame, U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol, to address us at the March meeting—and our thanks to Jim for his efforts. A gifted speaker, Mr. Saypol, clearly explained the structural and organizational functions of his office, the FBI and numerous law enforcing agencies in addition to various highlights of the important and celebrated trials of Alger Hiss, Judy Coplon and the infamous 11 Commies—all such cases being under the jurisdiction of Mr. Saypol's office.

April breezed in with a flock of activity, highlighted by the annual visit of the Glee Club on April 11 at Town Hall and then a reception at the Biltmore following. In John MacCauley the Club has found a Chairman without a peer when it comes to handling publicity, which is John's line anyway, but he outdid himself on the handling of the publicity and arrangements for the concert. Between 500 and 600 people were on hand to hear an excellent program from Prof. Pedtke and his 40 undergrads. New York took the Glee Club to heart with a recital on Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" television show and the formal concert a few nights later—so much so that the Club has had dozens of requests for appearances on the annual swing East.

Bill Cronin chairmanned the UND NIGHT activities and a right fine job Bill did. The Hon. Joseph Keenan, former Assistant Attorney General and U.S. Prosecutor of the Japanese War Criminal trials spoke to a group of 200 alumni and guests. Mr. Keenan traced the historical events leading to the Russian-German-Japanese pacts and treaties and provided the audience with enough insight to these infamous meetings to leave no doubt even to the most skeptical that the war leaders came to their just end at the various trials. In addition to Mr. Keenan's talk the Club paid special tribute to one of its members, Mr. Louis Reed of the Class of 1900, who this year celebrates the 50th Anniversary of his graduation from ND. Mr. Reed's acceptance of a signifying scroll and subsequent talk was greatly enjoyed by those assembled.

Bob Hamilton was named the Notre Dame man of the Year from the Club and a more deserving fellow is not living in New York right now—a small indication what kind of a Chairman Bob makes is indicated in the figures just released by the Trust Fund of the Club which Bob heads—since 1935 Bob's committee has effected 14 $1000 Scholarships to worthy boys from the East; gifts to the University from the Trust Fund have amounted to $7,086 and contributions to worthy charities in and around New York totalled $3,625—and they still have a balance on hand of $1000—and completely separate from the Club's regular funds. Any other Clubs in the country matching that are urged to write us and we'll doff our hats to them, but right now Bob gets our vote.

The May meeting of the Club was given over to Presidents Night, another "first" of the New York club and it was our pleasure again to listen to Father Cavanaugh report on the University, its activities and plans for the future. A gathering of 250 alumni and guests thrilled to Father's talk and greeting and went away increased in their feelings that the aims and goals of the University are in capable and courageous hands. Our only regret is that distance makes more frequent visits by Father Cavanaugh impossible.

Philadelphia

On Saturday, June 17, 125 couples had a thoroughly enjoyable evening at the Bala Country Club. This was our second annual Spring Party and we are definitely making this a MUST for our social calendar. Cliff Prodehl was especially responsible for a lot of the fun at our party. He awarded the novelties and prizes which was a highlight of the evening. The large number of students and recent graduates played a big part in making the party a success.

Two Generations at the Reunion

Bad Dudley made a very encouraging report on the recent Club Presidents' Council at the University.

Jack Dempsey is chairman of the football raffle for 1950. Jack has already started things moving and assures us that the prizes this year will be right up there along with those of the past.

Don Young is in charge of the new club directory. Questionnaires are being sent all our members with the request they be filled in and returned promptly. Don is going to keep right after this directory until it is in final form and put on the presses.

Although no club meetings are scheduled until September the Board of Governors and several committees are not idling their engines so we expect a full schedule for the fall and winter seasons.

Pittsburgh

The first event of the new club year was the golf party and dinner held Thursday, June 13, at the Churchill Country Club. Even though the attendance was disappointing, fifteen or twenty members had a good day for golf, and another fifteen or twenty came out later for the dinner. It was a fine chicken dinner too, with all the trimmings, and was enjoyed by all. The Pittsburgh Alumni were glad to have Father Charles E. Sheedy, C.S.C., in from Notre Dame, to play golf and spend the evening. Several students and recent graduates attended also, among them Lee and Tom Kirby and Jim Beamer.

The best golf scores were turned in by Jack Sheedy and Father Sheedy; several golf prizes were distributed. After the dinner, excellent sport movies were shown, covering football highlights of the 1949 season, a short on golf, and a short on boxing.

Don Fitzpatrick deserves special thanks for making most of the arrangements for this party, and he can feel sure that all attending were well satisfied. Among those present, not already mentioned, were John Brily, John Reardon, Gene Coyne and several guests, Bob Hagan, Judge Hugh Boyle, Leo Burby from Cleveland, John Hickey, Lou Horning, Bob Chamberlin, Emmet Griffin, Larry Smith, Jack Monteverde, Bill O'Brien, Charley O'Brien, Leo O'Donnell, Jr., and many others.

Jack Monteverde, Club President, spent the week of June 5 at Notre Dame attending the reunion and the club presidents' council. He will report on his trip at a later meeting when future plans of the club year will be discussed.

St. Joseph Valley (Ind.)

(I wish to use this channel to thank personally the members of the Notre Dame Club of the St. Joseph Valley for the wrist watch given to me at the Golf Party in recognition of my Silver Jubilee as Alumni Secretary. I can only repeat that the success of my work rests entirely on the voluntary cooperation of alumni. This response in the St. Joseph Valley has not only been personally most gratifying but has contributed the example from which much of our national program derives. I only hope you are as happy in our mutual efforts for Notre Dame as you have made me. —Jim Armstrong.)

South Jersey

A new alumni group, the Notre Dame Club of South Jersey, has recently been formed. Val Deale '39, club president, tells us that all Notre Dame men residing in Southern New Jersey are cordially invited to attend the meetings, held the third Thursday of each month at the K of C home, 630 Penn Street, Camden.

Other club officers are Joe Dalsey, '32, vice president; Jack Murphy '49, secretary; Lou O'Brien '47, treasurer, and the Rev. Joseph M. Hayden, Chaplain. A constitution is being drawn up by a committee under Bill McCormick '47, and plans are also under way for a Universal Notre Dame Night Dinner. At the January meeting, Jack Reilly '33, and Matt Siedlecki '49 were named to a committee to hold a drawing with the grand award consisting of an all expenses paid trip to ND-NYU basketball game in New York.

The club, a brainchild of Father Hayden, Joe Dalsey, and Dan D. Halpin '31, has been in existence since December, and to date has about twenty-five members. A membership drive has been started to sign up some of the estimated hundred Notre Dame Alumni in the area.

Toledo

F. J. (Jack) Solon, Jr., has been elected President of the Notre Dame Club of Toledo, according to John Malone, outgoing president and now Chairman of the Club's Board of Directors. Assisting Solon during the coming year will be Don Hummer, Vice-President; Bob Kopf, Secretary, and Bud Malone, Treasurer.

In addition to Malone, the new Board includes Pete Fluge, Harry Detzer, Jr., Bob Schramm, Frank Lockart, Art Suder and Ray Tillman.

Immediate Club plans call for a Monte Carlo party early in July with Harry Detzer serving as Chairman. Tentative arrangements have also been made to hold a golf tournament late in July.

More than 900 attended the Notre Dame Glee Club Concert sponsored by the Club and held in the Toledo Museum of Art's beautiful Peristyle last April. The audience, as well as the town's music critics, were enthusiastic in their praise of the group's performance.

Tommy Sexton, honorary member of the Toledo alumni group, attended the concert in his wheelchair. Tommy, who has been a Notre Dame fan since he was old enough to recognize a football, returned from Warm Springs, Ga., shortly before the concert. Tommy has made several trips to the foundation in an effort to throw off the effects of polio.

Assisting Bob Kopf in making arrangements for the Glee Club's concert were: Joe Hillebrand, publicity; Bill Syring, arrangements; Jim Malone, announcements; Bob Schramm, tickets, and George Korhumel, programs.

Tri-Cities

Here's the news from the Tri-Cities:

The Tri-Cities Alumni Club held the annual family basket picnic at the Springbrook Country Club, DeWitt, Iowa, on Saturday, June 15. More than 100 persons were there to make this affair the usual success. Frank McGuire, Picnic Chairman, assisted by Jerry Arnold, Walter Dray, Jim Doyle, and Ralph Ehr handled the arrangements.

Various sports events took place throughout the day. The highlight in the sporting field was a baseball thriller, with the "Wildcats" led by 'Moon' Mullins eking out a narrow victory over George Vander Vennet's "Polecats." Jim Skelley carried off the day's horseshoe honors, followed closely by Raph Coryn.

Tentative plans are being made by the Club to hold a football rally on November 17, the eve of the Notre Dame-Iowa game. Final plans will be announced later.

The Notre Dame wives are still maintaining a full social schedule by meeting on the last Wednesday of each month for lunch and cards. The May meeting, with Mrs. Jerry Arnold and Mrs. Larry Mullins as hostesses, was held at the Blackhawk Hotel, Davenport. The Davenport Country Club was the gathering place for the June affair with Mrs. Richard Swift and Mrs. Ralph Ehr doing the honors.

Tulsa

Immediately upon his election in March, the new club president, Loyd Worley '37, pitched into his new job with vigor. An entertainment committee was selected and they have already made tentative arrangements for the annual Christmas Dance. A chairman for the dance will be appointed in the near future.

On May 17, Coach Frank Leahy '30, was a visitor in Tulsa and was guest of honor at a barbecue at Southern Hills Country Club which was given by Joe A. LaFortune '16. The members of the club who were present heard Coach Leahy express his usual pessimistic outlook for the coming football season. Members of the Tulsa University coaching staff were also guests at the barbecue and Bernie Witucki '34, associate coach at T.U., says that they are going to field a "fair ball club" this year—shades of Frank Leahy!

A very enjoyable picnic took place May 24 at the Tulsa Country Club. Joe A. Moran '30, was in charge of this affair and provided us with swell food, refreshments and entertainment. We had several visitors from surrounding towns, and were particularly pleased to have with us Francis Wallace '23, sports editor of Collier's Magazine and author of the book "Notre Dame Story." He has been visiting in town and was the guest of Bill Sherry '21."

Washington, D. C.

The annual Spring Dance of the Notre Dame Club of Washington was held at the Carlton Hotel on the evening of June 6th. Chairman for the affair was Jack Anderson, '31. As is the custom, students returning for the summer vacation period were invited and attended in gratifying numbers. Many of the local alumni were on hand to make it a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

The Club's Retreat was held at Holy Cross College, Washington, D. C., on June 16, 17 and 18. Father Patrick Duffy, C.S.C., was the Retreat Master and his down-to-earth discourses made all of us who attended feel that we had been enlightened on many things spiritual and generally straightened out on matters on which we may have grown lax. John Kenkel, '33, was chairman of the Retreat Committee.

Among those of the Washington Club on the campus for Reunion Weekend were: Bill Tobin, Lou Reilly, Charles Gainer, Bob Dixon, Pat Gorman, Tom Flynn and Bill Jones. In addition to his reunion activities, club president Tom Flynn also attended the Presidents' Council meeting.

Tom McKevitt, '32, and Mrs. Dorothy McKevitt (nee Dugan, St. Mary's, '33) became the parents of a baby daughter on June 16th. Mrs. McKevitt has three brothers.

J. R. (Pat) Gorman, '40, was elected national vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at their Chicago convention this month.

The engagement of Bob Schellenberg, '48, to Miss Kathleen Kelley has been announced. Miss Kelley is the sister of Regis Kelley, '36.

Youngstown

Francis J. Hopkins, '41, was elected president of the Youngstown Notre Dame Club at the annual dinner, held at the Colonial House.

Hopkins succeeds Clarence T. "Pete" Sheehan, '40, who has been president since 1941. John R. Hagan '34, 1233 Elm street, Youngstown 4, was elected vice president and George Kelley '28, 47 Pinchurst drive, Youngstown 5, was reelected secretary-treasurer. Albert Evans, of Sharon, Thomas Kerrigan and Sheehan were elected new trustees of the club.

Charles B. Cushwa, Jr., chairman of the Foundation campaign, told of the progress of the drive so far, and urged the alumni and former students to support it.

The principal speaker was Chief of Police Edward J. Allen, Jr., who spoke on Our Lady of Fatima and Communism. Chief Allen said that the "peace plan proposed by the Blessed Virgin at Fatima is the only one I believe in." The Communists, he said, are using Christ's own weapons to fight His church, by portraying themselves as friends of the downtrodden. He urged greater devotion to the Rosary.

The club paid tribute to Appeals Court Judge John J. Buckley, its first president, who died last January.

The 50-Year Club

The mid-century marks the formation of one of the very few really exclusive Notre Dame organizations—the 50-year club.

Membership requirements are not too rigid, however; anyone who has been graduated for 50 years can get in.

An award befitting the dignity of such a position was granted this year to 69 alumni. Annually, as alumni reach the 50-year level, the awards will be repeated.

The presentation is a medallion of rose gold, with the name and graduating year of the alumnus on the reverse. The obverse side is pictured below.

Following are comments from some alumni who received the medal, and their own phrases write a much better story of what it means to them.

From William A. Walsh: (all letters sent to the Alumni Secretary, not to the managing editor)

"To use an old-fashioned and yet sincere expression, it is difficult for me to find words to express my appreciation for the beautiful 50-year club medal. The memories which this medal brings back to me are among the dearest of my life. The old days of Father Morrissey, Father Cavanaugh, Father Burns, Father Ill and my old dear friend Father Steiner carry undying memories to me, and the friendships which I made with many of the fellows in my days in the old school have never been supplanted by the friends of after years.

"I have received a number of medals in public and civic life and as much as I cherish them, my 50-year club medal will be the most cherished of all."

From Eustace Cullinan, Sr.:

"It is always a pleasure to hear from you, but particularly when your letter is accompanied by a gold medal. The medal arrived with the letter, and I agree with you that it is beautiful. I suppose it is a merit to have lived for 55 years after graduation and still be going strong, but the only way I know of staying alive is by growing old. Thank you."

From Father Thomas J. Crumley, C.S.C. (St. John's-Hickey Memorial Hospital, Anderson, Ind.):

"Hearty thanks for the medal of the Golden Years Club. You didn't exaggerate when you said it is 'very beautiful.' I don't know which is more attractive, the design or the artistic execution of it.

"The medal is indeed an appropriate symbol of the affectionate esteem in which Alma Mater holds her somewhat annuated sons—I'd rather coin a word than use the detestable 'superannuated'."

From Gene Melady:

"I cannot tell you how pleased I was to receive your fine letter stating that you were forwarding a medal commemorating my membership in the newly formed fifty-year club of the University.

"I don't presume there are many who will register for the number of years I have. It is now 61 years since I left Notre Dame, but in all those years I have kept in touch pretty well with the University. I might add that the happiest days of my life were spent at Notre Dame, and I want to extend to you and all the faculty my sincere good wishes."

From Hugh Mitchell:

"Fifty Years! It will soon be 65 years since I entered Notre Dame, and it is already 55 years since my graduation with the class of 1895, after four years college work under such men as Martin McCue, Maurice Egan, Charles Neill, Father T. E. Walsh, Father James Burns, Father John Zahm—all time greats of the Notre Dame faculty. And Brother Alexander, as fine a friend as a Notre Dame boy could have. It is memories of these and of others which are stimulated by this beautiful gift, for which please accept my sincerest thanks."

From Peter Kunz:

"The medal arrived the other day and the Alumni Association is to be congratulated on its design. It is not only beautiful, but very appropriate. The Golden Dome stands out and that has always been the symbol of Notre Dame."

1915

After 35 years—It was a memorable weekend and any attempt to describe it for our friends and classmates who were not present is sure to prove inadequate.

The informal dinner at the College Inn of the LaSalle was a delight, with the men of the class renewing old associations and bringing one another up to date regarding children, grandchildren and the other news so interesting after the passage of years.

Bob Roach presided and no formal program was followed.

However we must record Al Kuhle's and Joe Byrnes's eloquent tributes to beloved members of the class who no longer can respond to the roll call. Walter Clemens, who is always welcomed to the class although the years he received his two degrees just preceded and followed our class spoke briefly on a project to record stories of old Notre Dame in an ALUMNUS column, and received a hearty response.

Saturday noon at the same place we had the great honor to present Rev. Matthew Walsh, C.S.C., former president of the University who delighted the class with over an hour of his entertaining stories. Rev. Matthew Schumacker, C.S.C., came for a visit before the luncheon and renewed old acquaintances. L. B. Kessler received an ovation when he suggested that we not wait five years for another reunion but make it every year. Dr. John Culligan sent his regrets. He had to attend a graduation ceremony of his son.

Emmet Lenihan, who came with his wife and daughter, from Seattle, Washington, was awarded a copy of "Hooks and Slices," a hilarious cartoon book on golfing by James Igoe, Jr., '32. He made the longest journey to be present at the reunion.

One could mention each classmate several times if any attempt were made to recount the pleasant and rewarding human experiences that go to make up such a weekend. It passed only too quickly but will linger long in memory. We had expected many who could not be present but this disappointment was tempered by the presence of many we had not expected to see. Our thanks to the University for true Notre Dame hospitality and to Jim Armstrong and John Burns whose team work and efficiency were evident in all the arrangements.

Your Class Secretary: James Sanford, 509 Cherry St., Winnetka, Ill.

Danny Coughlin of Waseca, Minn., accompanied a group of Holy Year pilgrims from Winona, Minn., on an airplane trip to Europe. In addition to their visits to Vatican City and Rome, the travelers went to Lourdes, Fatima, Paris, etc., and Danny detached himself from the group to visit relatives in Ireland.

A postcard showing an airplane view of Abbey of Gethsemani (home of author of "Seven Storey Mountain") was received from Frank Bloemer who in "our book" is a Kentucky general instead of a Kentucky colonel. Frank was attending the fifth annual retreat of the N.D. Club of Kentucky.

Those strange noises you hear may be from the buttons popping off the vest of Charlie Werschbuhl who became a grandfather on April 30th. Charlie's daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Drake, is the proud mother of baby Donald Charles. We extend our congratulations to the parents, Don and Marguerite, and to the grandparents Werschbuhls—Charlie and Pat. By the way, he is very sorry to learn of Bill Castellini's death which news he received on the very day he was leaving his native Portland, Ore., for a fishing trip to Southern California and Guaymas, Mexico. Details are lacking as to size of catch. Charlie reports he has heard from Harold McKee recently, also, from Jerry and Marion Jones of Dixon, Ill.

Congratulations to M. Joseph Tierney of the neighboring class of 1921 and to Mrs. Tierney on the recent ordination of a son to Holy Priesthood. Father Tierney said his first Mass at Blessed Sacrament Church, Rochester, N. Y., on June 11th.

Your Class Secretary: Gerald A. Ashe, 39 Cambridge St., Rochester 7, N. Y.

The grandest 25th reunion the Notre Dame Alumni have experienced is now a beautiful memory.

A weekend that surpassed even the optimistic hopes and plans that Armstrong, Don Miller and yours truly had dreamed about in every way—attendance, the seeing and being with all the '25ers, the spiritual lift and last but not least the cooperative contributions whenever and wherever they were asked for. Only you . . . the class of '25 could have done it and for this we, the officers and your secretary, thank you. We know our records will be broken, no doubt by John Ryan's class of '26, but we also know that we set a pace that will help lead Notre Dame Reunions to "Heavenly levels."

For those who couldn't make it . . . we are sorry! Some classmate who did, might in some way convey the feeling and enthusiasm experienced when you see over a hundred and fifty classmates whom you haven't seen for a quarter of a century. They can't quite tell how Jim Armstrong looked when he was told by Don Miller that his classmates had given him a Super Deluxe Commander Studebaker, fully equipped. All he could say was, "Thanks to you men of '25, and modestly added, 'I only fell into the nearest rut after graduation and stayed there.'"

As we all know—"that rut" is (with the aid of Art Haley and Father John Cavanaugh) producing some fabulous returns for the Notre Dame Foundation this past year.

Some might remember the pride and dispatch that Don Miller, our president, conducted the affairs of the weekend . . . especially when he presented to Father John Cavanaugh the nearly $6000 (and it will amount to that) for the John Weibel Fund . . . also his and the President's gracious words of praise when yours truly was presented with a beautiful Hamilton wristwatch, band and all with the inscription, a treasure I will keep as long as I live.

Father John's hospitality and praise of our class was unsurpassed. The Mass, said by Father McAvoy, for those who passed on, was met with devout response. (We have some extra holy cards with our deceased members on it for those who would care to drop me a line.) The humor and stories of Carboy and Jack Sheehan and Judge Casey of Batavia, New York, will be hard to explain to those who were not there.

The class picture will record attendance, and Ray Cunningham's movies shown under the Arch of Lyons, taken at our graduation and every five-year reunion thereafter, is something one had hoped for in reunions but never happened 'til you of '25 did it. These are some of the thoughts I had when you fellows gave me the watch but I was taken by surprise and all I could say was "Thanks fellows!"

Father Ray Norris and saintly Brother Macrie, who has taken care of him, thanked the fellows for their visits to the infirmary and autographs of the class. Father Norris has been in bed for eleven years but still has that optimism and high spirit of the class of '25—we are all proud of him.

I won't attempt to thank you fellows who worked so hard with Don Miller, Bill Cerney (that South Bend Superman), Clarence Harding, Father McAvoy, Jack Sheehan, Ray Cunningham and John Traynor, as well as the fellows who worked behind the scenes. If I went beyond this I know I'd miss some names and you know it took the whole class and Father John Cavanaugh and the other University officials, Dave Ford, the manager of the Dining Halls, and John Burns of the Alumnus to make our 25th reunion the success it was. Letters from grateful members of the class are beginning to come in already . . . let them come.

Your Class has become of age now—we have, in addition to our regular elected officers and class secretary, three "Veeps" Dan O'Neil for the East, Ray Cunningham for the Midwest, Charlie De La Vergne for the "deep South," and Barney MacNab for the West, and Hank Wurzer for Treasurer. Your secretary's getting old and needs this help!

To the Class of '25:

For 25 years I have frankly, if modestly, maintained that the Class of 1925 was the greatest Class in the history of the University. In anticipation of our Silver Jubilee I confidently predicted that new precedents would be set, new heights reached. And on the strength of this long-range defense of our colors, I was instrumental in asking you to create a lovely precedent in the Memorial Room for Johnny Weibel.

Well, all of your response was gratifying. I was sitting at the Class Dinner peacefully minding your business, beaming with a sort of paternal pride in your outstanding vindication of all my most extravagant claims.

Then it happened. Usually I recover my power of speech quickly, if lost. But I am still at a loss to express to you the personal thrill that leaves that overworked word inadequate. The car is wonderful (it came in time to give son Phil a ride on the day before he left for the Holy Cross Brothers novitiate). And it has served as a real tonic for Marion (Mrs.) who had been in bed for a month's rest cure.

But to me the payoff of your generous and completely surprising tribute was the accompanying book of greetings. There are always friends and enthusiasts in testimonial gifts, but usually there are twisted arms. Any fears I may have had in this instance were happily dissipated when I read the treasured greetings from you. Those do not come from twisted arms.

"Thanks"—from Marion, from Jack, Dick, Phil, Gregory and Douglas, who feel more kindly now toward fatherless nights and weekends during the years—is most unsatisfactory. May I simply say that we do thank you, and if the car is an appreciation of the job done between 1925 and 1950, I hope that the job done between 1950 and 1975 will express an appreciation of the car.

JIM ARMSTRONG

Let's fool Hank Wurzer. . . . He thinks he won't have any dough to handle . . . you fellows who didn't have an opportunity to contribute to the various funds, send him your "mite" so from now on in we will have a fund out of which a High Mass can be said for every member "until death do us part." If you could have read the letter of appreciation from Mrs. Ahlering you would really know what it means to the widow. Remember more now than ever—"The buck you give may be for yourself."

Here's a few wires and letters from fellows who sent an extra line along with their Armstrong contribution. Send in your card with greetings for Jim Armstrong. You know besides the Studebaker, we gave him a beautiful green leather-bound book, containing the greetings from the class of '25. The cover was embossed—To Jim from His Class of '25—June 9, 1950. We are starting another 25 years thanks to that old "grad" of 1900 who got the tribute for the fifty-year class. He made us all feel like youngsters.

You can hang up the silver cane and '25 cap (thanks to Ev Kohl for that fine piece of work on getting the canes).

Dr. Joe Evans, Cincinnati, Ohio (wire):

Regret very greatly my inability to join in reunion activities.

Dr. Charles E. Guth, Elyria, Ohio (wire):

Fate decreed twenty-five years ago that I would not be with my fellow classmates at graduation. Now once again she interferes to keep me from attending the twenty-fifth class reunion. Extend to them all my heartfelt best wishes and lets look forward to that fiftieth.

E. P. McCarron, Law Office, P.O. Box 755, Fairbanks, Alaska

How could I resist getting in on the greetings to Jim Armstrong? I am glad that Traynor has my name on the list—it is a very fine gesture.

Mrs. Mac and I took a trip to the States (the old country) over the Christmas Holidays to visit our parents and folks in Wisconsin and she has just returned from another trip to Seattle. When one goes for a visit from Fairbanks it is really a venture—we don't measure the miles except by the hundred, all of which means that it is just going to be impossible for me to attend the reunion no matter how much I would like to. My brother Ward shall undoubtedly show up since he lives in Chicago and he will have to take care of the job of tipping enough for both of us. Going over the list of class members that I received in the mail today, I just can't draw the line in selecting all those whom I would like to shake hands with, including yourself.

I have been practicing law up here in Fairbanks for the past two years and I lived down in Juneau the last five years before moving. There are only two ND men in Fairbanks that I know of—Mike Stepovich, an attorney, and Doug Maddux, a jeweler, both of them younger than I. On my trip outside over the Holidays I spent some time with my old roommate, Lou Cody, in Milwaukee.

Once more let me tell you how unpleasant it is to contemplate sitting at home while such a grand reunion is taking place.

A. M. McMullen, Room 601 Geary St., San Francisco 2 Calif.

Enclosed you will find a check for $25 to present to the "Jim Armstrong Gift Committee"

Don Miller's letter reached me today, advising me of the arrangements, and since my family and I are moving from our address here in Evanston, Ill., to San Francisco, mail has not reached me regularly.

I'm very sorry to be unable to attend the June 9 reunion but since my moving date starts on the 7th and extends to the 15th, it will be impossible to be there.

My Company moved me January 15 to San Francisco, but with children in school I waited until now to move the family.

It will be appreciated if you will give the proper authorities the information that my home address has changed as of June 15, from 1515 Colfax Street, Evanston, Illinois, to 640 Fordham Road, San Mateo, California.

First, let me thank you for the wonderful job you did last week-end. The preparation was proven by the excellent turnout we had. I loved every minute of it. About Jim's car. I spent some time Monday at the plant setting up the delivery. It will be made through the local dealer and all speed is being put behind it, to get it into his hands shortly. I have spoken to and written Jim giving him the balls and strikes of the deal and all should go off well.

Once again, thanks for a great time and may we live to do it again some time.

Henry C. Wurzer, Pres., Blackhawk Hotels Co.,

You left too early Sunday morning for me to get to say goodbye to you. I want to take this opportunity to express to you personally your great contribution in time and effort and energy to the success of our twenty-fifth reunion. Without you and some of the others who worked so tirelessly I know that our reunion would not have been the success that it was. With kindest regards and hoping to see you soon, I am,

Hank Wurzer

Lawrence W. Kennedy, 3441 San Pasqual St.,
Pasadena 10, Calif.

May I inform you that your appeals for donations for the class of '25 reunion have not fallen on deaf ears. Unfortunately, my husband, Mr. Lawrence W. Kennedy, to whom the letters were addressed, is unable to respond at this time. This is due to circumstances beyond his control—he is hospitalized for orthopedic surgery for an indefinite time. I'm sure he regrets deeply not being able to join the '25ers in any material way. Yours truly,

Mrs. L. W. Kennedy

Don Miller, United States Dept. of Justice,
United States Attorney, Cleveland 14, Ohio

May I express my deep appreciation for all of your wonderful work in preparing our successful 25th reunion. I am certain that everyone who returned will be planning for the next reunion. It was a huge success and everyone enjoyed it.

When I returned Sunday night Mae put me to bed and called the doctor. He kept me in the house two days. That cold hit me in the throat and shoulder. I guess I am getting old. Sincerely,

Don Miller

"When I didn't see Dut Griffin at the reunion I meant to give you the enclosed letter which I received from him in April. Somehow or other it slipped my mind and I am passing it on to you now in case you want a news item about a fellow whose name has not appeared in some time.

"I am commenting on the obvious when I say that last weekend was the most satisfying and memorable I ever hope to experience. That seems to be the general opinion of everyone to whom I have spoken, and I, for one, am already looking forward to 1955."

Then John Bartley enclosed the following card and letter he received from Dut Griffin: written from Mexico City, Mexico, on March 28, 1950:

"As my present position requires two South American trips per year, I am at present away from the States for the first one of 1950. I have every intention and expectation of making our reunion by routing my return from this trip via South Bend—and unless something unforeseen occurs will be seeing you and the gang there at the festivities."—DUT GRIFFIN.

George Ward, 4554 Broadway,
Chicago 40, Illinois

Thanks to you fellows for carrying the ball on this very deserving matter. I am chagrined that I will be unable to be present for our reunion. I would certainly like to see everybody. I think the class of 1925 was the best ever . . . don't you?

Kindest regards,

George Ward

Enclosed is my contribution for Jim's gift. If more money is needed, you can expect further contribution from me. Will see you next Saturday at Notre Dame. P.S.: This is the best damn thing the class has ever done. Regards, Traynor's letter and suggestion of a tribute to Jim Armstrong is splendid. Enclosed is my check and I certainly think Jim deserves a "pat on the back." I plan on attending the reunion—however being in the hotel business anything can happen at the last moment to change plans. Hoping to see you as planned and congratulating you on your fine "stewardship" throughout the years, I am,

John A. Elliott

Frank W. Howland, Suite 1680,
National Bank Bldg., Detroit, Michigan

I am pleased to enclose my check with a personal greeting to Jim Armstrong. I think this is a grand idea, and Jim is most deserving of the special gift that the class of 1925 wishes to present to him. I am planning on attending our Reunion, and will look forward with a great deal of pleasure to seeing you at that time. Best wishes,

Frank W. Howland

Ben Kesting

Here's hoping the drive for Jim is successful, and that the reunion will be the best ever had, and that we will be back in another 25 years. Am anxious to see if we look as old as the Class of '00 did when we graduated. See you next week.

Peter P. Dupay, Washington St.,

Am enclosing check toward the gift to Jim Armstrong and I am very sorry I could not make it more. I will not be able to make the reunion. I hope you make the goal. Best regards,

Jos. E. Fitzpatrick, Florida National Bank,
Miami 30, Florida

Upon my return to the city yesterday I found John Traynor's letter of May 23 and Don Miller's of the 31st. If anybody has done a good job, I am sure that Jim Armstrong has and I am heartily in accord with the suggestions that have been made. As stated in my telegram this morning, enclosed is my check to be added to the fund. I had hoped to fly up next Thursday night but some things have turned up which will make it impossible to attend the reunion so it looks like my next trip to Notre Dame will be for the Michigan State game. You fellows have worked hard to get the program together and I certainly hope you have a good turnout. With best wishes, I am, sincerely,

Jos. E. Fitzpatrick

John P. Traynor has been appointed v.p. and manager of real estate mortgages for Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York. Louis W. Dawson, president, made the announcement recently in New York.

He joined the company as manager of real estate in 1943 and in 1945 was appointed assistant manager of real estate mortgages. Before joining Mutual he was deputy superintendent of the New York State Insurance Department for seven years.

Earlier this year he received an appointment to the committee which will select a site for the $11 million research laboratory for the U. S. Army Quartermaster corps.

John Moran is catching the '25 Special Car that Cullinan is starting from Frisco!

(He writes:) Dear John:

I have been reading with much pleasure of the planned reunion of the great class of '25 and have intended to follow up with a letter—but like so many I never get beyond the mental note—until now.

I am enclosing a small offering toward the Mass fund for the deceased members of the class—which I think is a wonderful idea. It is a shock, however, to learn of the large number that have joined the ranks of the "dear departed."

Am looking forward to seeing you and the rest of the '25ers sometime around June 9. It has been a long time since I have been among those present, in fact, it will be my first reunion.

John, Jr., is completing his second year at NOTRE DAME and I have another boy who should be there in 1952—the faculty willing.

Also have a daughter who is still in grammar school but will arrive in the teen-age group in June.

I have been in the private practice here in Denver for the past five years after being in the Legal Dept. of Continental Oil Company for fifteen years prior to that. I have had a nice practice here, limited almost entirely to oil works.

Don't see many ND'ers out here. Most of the talent is in other parts of the country.

Your Class Secretary: John P. Hurley, 2085 Brookdale Rd., Toledo, Ohio.

1926

The 1950 reunions have now become history and the Class of '26 can begin to prepare for its 25th reunion next year.

Your secretary spent the reunion weekend "scouting" the reunion held by the Class of '25 and, as usual, those birds have set a pretty good target for us to shoot at (see John Hurley's report of the reunion). Incidentally, Joe Boland was also "scouting" the '25 boys, two years in advance, for their 25th reunion.

Undoubtedly, you will have read elsewhere in this issue of the new plan which the Alumni Board instituted in respect to permanent officers for the various classes. Those classes which were having reunions immediately put this new plan into effect and elected or appointed officers to serve for the five years until their next reunion. It was suggested by Jim Armstrong that the '26 crowd, having only 12 months to work, get the ball rolling immediately and set up class officers to serve until our reunion in June of '51.

Those of us who were on the campus constituted ourselves a committee to select the officers. We knew of no by-laws that would make our actions illegal. The following were the officers chosen to act for the Class of '26 until their successors are properly elected at the reunion in June of '51:

Ray Durst, Chicago, president; Doc Gelson, Summit, N. J., vice-president (east); Bert Dunne, Salt Lake City, vice-president (west); Chuck Mooney, Cleveland, Ohio, vice-president (mid-west); Izzy Probst, Coral Gables, Fla., vice-president (south); George Hartnett, Chicago, treasurer; and John Ryan, Chicago, secretary.

All of the above have accepted the nominations and plan to give their best efforts during their terms of office.

Incidentally, you probably are interested in knowing who were the responsible parties: at the reunion we found there were five of us present, Jack Adams, Bill Dooley, Art Haley, Gerry Morsches, and your secretary.

This issue of the ALUMNUS called for a rather fast deadline and your secretary was a little slow in getting out the usual 40 cards. As a matter of fact he was "called" for making such a fast deadline. If any of you felt that you could not meet the deadline and as a result just did not send anything in, please remember that it is always available for the next issue.

First on the list is Bud Barr who missed the reunion this year, probably for the first time in many years. Bud says that he has been in the grain business with his father in Chalmers, Ind., from 1926 to 1945 except when he took a sabbatical leave from September, 1942 to January, 1944. During that period he did some world traveling at the expense of the Army. Having graduated in law and spent many years buying and selling grain, the Army decided he was perfectly fitted to be an armorer. They sent him to India and China and while there he picked up malaria and was finally sent home. As a result Bud is more or less retired since his return to this country. Perhaps he is the first of our class to be able to retire. We can put Bud's name down as usual, right up toward the top of the list for attendance at the reunion next year.

On a letterhead of the Detroit "News," Sid Bower writes that he has been with the "News" since April of 1929 after having spent a couple of years with the South Bend "Tribune." Sid is married and has one daughter. He still gets back to South Bend quite often but in recent years has not been so regular. He expects however, to have a space saved for him for the reunion next year.

The Grant Community Hospital at Lancaster, Wis., is under the direction of Dr. Harold Carey. Harold spent several years practicing in Chicago and in 1936 went to Lancaster and recently took over the hospital. His son Jerry was a freshman in pre-med in school last year. He has another son and two daughters. He extends an invitation to anyone passing through Lancaster to stop in and see him.

Al Connolly writes from Washington, D. C., that he will be on hand for our reunion. Al is with the District of Columbia Recreational Department and gets around to most of the meetings that occur in Washington. He says that Danny Culhane is about the only member of the class he sees.

One of the fellows that took a dig at your secretary for the quick deadline was Joe Dienhart. Joe is assistant to the athletic director at Purdue University and from his letter apparently does about everything except cut the grass at the stadium. Married since 1929, Joe has a 17-year old daughter and an 11-year old daughter. He meets most of the Lafayette alumni and recently at the basketball coaches convention in New York saw Pat Canny. He says that Larry O'Connor from '29 is manager of the Sears store in Lafayette and that one of his phy ed students was Clem Pat Crowe who made a letter in football at Purdue last year.

From Charlie Dougherty in Philadelphia, your secretary received a very complete although condensed report of his 24 years. Charlie was married in 1939 to Edna Ryan, a sister of Rev. Harry Ryan, '27, and the Doughertys have one daughter. He has been active in political affairs around Philadelphia and is at the present time office manager for the Federal Housing Administration in Philadelphia. For five years Charlie was Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for the State of Pennsylvania.

Since your secretary has been operating on the job it has become very apparent to him that there are quite a few of us located in Chicago. John Endres has been in banking since graduation and is presently an auditor with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. His letter was written on June 22 which was his 23rd wedding anniversary. John has one son who completed his second year in the House of Studies of the Dominicans at River Forest, Ill., and his other son recently completed his second year at Notre Dame. John plans to be back for the '51 reunion.

Gail Gurnett writes from Depue, Ill., that he is still working for New Jersey Zinc as he has for the past 24 years. Gail lost his wife in 1944 and his son in 1945 but he has four lovely daughters, the oldest of whom is a student nurse at St. Joe Hospital in South Bend. He plans to be back for the reunion.

"Too bad we do not have a directory" is the expression of Art Klise from Wooster, Ohio. Art wrote that he had just arrived in Wooster from Illinois and was leaving the next day for Texas. Being in the oil and gas business since graduation, it appears that he is one of the heavy travelers of the Class. He spends his time jumping around through Texas, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Illinois and Ohio, wherever his company has wells, but he has not seen in all of his travels anyone from N.D. Perhaps, Art, your idea of a directory will bear some fruit. There already has been some discussion of sending each member of the class a roster so that those who wanted could find their classmates. Of course, like always when any project of this kind is thought about, one of the first things that comes to mind is the expense. However, this is being explored and we hope each member of the class will secure a complete roster in the not too distant future.

If the class wanted to do a big promotion job in the way of getting 100 per cent return for the reunion next year, it might be that Jerry McDermott could cover the country with billboards for he has been with the General Outdoor Advertising Co. since 1927. He spent some time with them in Chicago, then Louisville and for the past five years has been in their St. Louis branch. In St. Louis he sees Bert Coughlin, Jim Kennedy, Dan Brady, Frank Klein and has not been able to find Ed Prendergast

1905 Came Back—Only Six Posed

Six members of the 1905 class held still for University Photographer Bruce Harlan.

or Henry Griesedieck. While Joe Shea was in St. Louis he used to see him rather frequently. Jerry says that his older daughter Joan is not desirous of going to St. Mary's presumably because she was not "too impressed with the guy her mother got out of the deal." Jerry does not say he will be back for the reunion but I think we can count on him.

Recently someone wondered who would be the first grandfather of the '26 class. It looks like the question is settled for Lew Murphy writes from Dallas that he enjoys very much his two-year old granddaughter. Lew's son graduated at N.D. and went on to St. Louis for medical school and is now practicing in Dallas. Lew's daughter graduated at Indiana in June of '49. It looks like we give Lew the honor of being the first grandfather. If there are any among you that want to argue this point, please send in the necessary proof.

One of the most difficult jobs that your secretary has is condensing the letters he receives. It would be much easier if he just sent the letters on and told John Burns "here is the dope for the '26 column" but I am afraid that we would be charged space rates for the material we get and space rates is what Steve Pietrowicz deserves for he certainly sent in a nice letter. Steve has been with the Chicago "Tribune" for 24 years and is in the financial advertising division, so any of you fellows that read the "Tribune" and the financial pages will know that Steve had something to do with that material. Steve lives in Wilmette with his wife and three children. His oldest, Sally, 19, finished her first year at Barat College at Lake Forest. The two boys are a little younger and it will be several years before they will be wending their way to N.D. Steve gets around town quite a bit and sees most everybody. There are a number of alumni members of his church in Winnetka and, of course, there are quite a few N.D. fellows with the "Tribune."

That about completes the word received from those who had an opportunity of answering your secretary's cards. Those who did not get a chance to get a letter out can still shoot it in for there is no deadline on these stories.

There are some that have not been heard of for quite a few years. The class roster shows the names of these fellows but no addresses and the Alumni office has not been able to locate any of them. Below is a list taken from the roster (no nicknames shown) and if any of you know the whereabouts of any of these fellows, please drop your secretary a note so that we can get them on the class list:

John Cullen Brown, Lester J. Clarke, Dr. Fred R. Davis, Francis M. Esch, Dwight L. Field, Harold J. Gallagher, Edward J. Bebban, Mansiel Hagerly, Linsung Hahn, Joseph P. Harvey, John W. Keelin, Harold J. Kiley, John B. Lenihan, William D. Minter, Rev. P. Herman Mossman, O.S.B., Leon J. Pallanck, John E. Probst, William J. Regan, Emmett T. Rohrer, Manuel Voldreg Sanchez, Gerald L. Timmins, John H. Wagner, Maurice P. Welsh.

Our Class is now in its year of preparation for our 25th reunion. The 12 months will go awfully fast, as a matter of fact, one of them is almost gone now. As yet there has been no selection of chairmen or committees to prepare the reunion, so if anyone has any ideas about this matter, please send them in. In the meantime each of the 300 of us on the list should consider that we are ex officio members of the committee to get everyone back for the '51 reunion REMEMBER '26—PREPARE FOR '51.

Your Class Secretary: JOHN J. RYAN, 2431 W. Greenleaf Ave., Chicago 45, Ill.

The list of '27 men who checked in for the Alumni Reunion you'll find below this column. I suppose that's the usual practice. Red Hearden (St. Norbert's College, DePere, Wisconsin, football coach) and Christy Flanagan, who belongs elsewhere in these notes by class . . . but who is very much a contemporary . . . whiled away some pleasant hours on the Boland back porch. Flanagan has gone into the menhaden-fishery business, along with his other commercial activities, and his 'play-by-play' from sea to can on menhaden-fishing is something that should be recorded for posterity! Hearden is kept busy with a couple of little blocking backs who at the moment are more interested in baseball than T-formation antics!

Dick Hanousek has joined Jack Adams' Manhattan Warehouse and Storage company . . . in an administrative capacity.

Vince McNally's father—the "Old Captain"—died recently—victim of an automobile accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Quinn, of Rahway, New Jersey, are prepared once more for visiting firemen of '27—and, come the pro football season, I'll be dropping in on them, I hope.

Joe Benda, who began with us, and finished with '28, died June 20 after a long illness. For years, football coach at St. John's University, Collegeville, Minnesota, Joe had made a tremendous reputation for himself in the coaching field . . . in spite of the heavy handicap of illness that hung over him these past several seasons. Burial was from the University Friday, June 23—and Art Sullivan, Frank Maycr, John Wallace, John McNally and your secretary were in attendance.

Red Smith, of New York Herald-Tribune sports column fame, has just published a book called "Out of the Red." It's a wonderful collection of Red's best sports columns—and Red's ordinary efforts put him alone, way out in front of the sports writing fraternity, in this writer's opinion. So you can imagine what pleasure lies in his book. It's published by Knopf and Co., costs three dollars. TIME magazine gave it a wonderful review . . . putting Red in a class with the real giants of his trade: where the little guy from Green Bay belongs!

That's about it for now: drop a line or two this way, please!

From JOE GREELEY:

(Dateline Deggendorf, Bavaria)—"I've just succeeded in getting two Extension clubs in Nebraska—Elk City and Virginia—to adopt four Bavarian children from this district. To say they're underprivileged is selling them short. These youngsters—the oldest 14, the youngest 4—have absolutely nothing but hope.

The clubs will send the children enough food and clothing to care for all their needs in these categories. So far this is a one-man program but I expect a little help with all the pilgrims coming to Europe for Holy Year. When these people see the dire needs of these German children I feel certain they'll want to get into the act too.

I've got an Irish boy coming to Deggendorf and a German boy going to Shannon."

Joe modestly neglected to state that a story on his fine charitable work appeared in the European Stars and Stripes. He is U. S. Resident Officer in Deggendorf.

Your Class Secretary: Joe Boland, WSBT, South Bend.

1928

The Class of '28 will miss Bill Dooley who, as you know, is now Placement Director of the University. Bill deserves a special thanks for the help he gave us in arranging for our 20-year reunion in 1948 and in joining the '28 glee club at the Mass for '28 deceased men that year. You have our best wishes for success in your new position, Bill, and I am sure the '28 men will give you the same help in your placement work that you gave us as Assistant Alumni Secretary in our class activities. We are pleased to welcome John Burns as our new Assistant Alumni Secretary. We are looking forward to working with him on our 25-year reunion in 1953.

I attended the Annual Alumni Banquet at Notre Dame on June 10. There were 10 members of our class present but unfortunately there was not a 1928 table since our class was not a reunion class. Consequently, we did not get together. Our Class President, John Frederick, was there from Muskegon with his son who is registered as a member of the class of 1955. Joe Morrissey, who is always present at ND affairs, came from Cincinnati. Joe will have a son at ND next September. Bob Knox, an architect from St. Joseph, Michigan, was present. Bob has two children. He tells me that his brother, Harold, is farming near Crystal Lake, Illinois. Harold has a daughter at Mundelein College in Chicago. Norb Seidensticker came from Chillicothe, Ohio, for the affair. Norb has five children ranging in age from nine months to 16 years. He mentioned that he sees Al Tahan in Springfield, Ohio, and Ross Harrington regularly. I also saw Pat Canny of Cleveland and of the Erie Railroad and Christie Flanagan of Port Arthur, Texas, on the campus. Pat was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Monogram Club. Ed Quinn, who is doing some fine work in testing and vocational guidance at Notre Dame, was at the banquet. Ed has a daughter 21 years of age. Bill Jones of Washington, D. C., a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, represented the Class of '28 at the head table. I also saw Tom Byrne of Cleveland at the banquet but did not have an opportunity to talk with him.

It was a pleasure to note that a number of precedents set by the Class of '28 at our 20-year reunion had been adopted by other classes during the reunion week-end. The idea of the class caps, which was suggested by John McMahon and designed by Willard Wagner, is now used by all reunion classes. The Class bar that Willard Wagner set up in Morrissey Hall for our 20-year reunion is now standard equipment for all reunion classes at their reunion halls. I am looking forward to 1953 when Wagner and other '28 men will introduce some new precedents at our 25-year reunion.

I met a number of our profs and men from other classes who were close to the Class of '28. I had a good session with Father John Kelley and Father Mulcaire. You will recall that Father Mulcaire was in Ireland at the time of our 20-year reunion but he promised to be on hand in 1953 for our 25-year get-together. It was encouraging to hear from a number of the members of the Class of 1930 that they are regular readers of the 1928 Column.

Stan Grinager operates the Roma Cafe at 410 North Hill Street in South Bend. I stopped in to see him and had a good session. He has three children ranging in age from 6 to 19. Stan and his family have a home near Notre Dame.

John Q. Adams, '26, Chairman of the Alumni Board Committee on Class Activities, is carrying on the work I began when I was a member of the Alumni Board with respect to encouraging more class activities. John hopes to have activities developed by classes in such a manner that Alumni Clubs and the Foundation Program will benefit from the class organization. This integration of class with other alumni work prompts me to note the number of '28 men active in Alumni Association Club and Foundation activities. The Class of 1928 has been represented on the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association for a number of years. Tom Byrne served as President and Honorary President of the Association. Your class secretary completed three years as a member of the Board and as Vice-President of the Association last year. Bill Jones is serving his second year of his three-year term as a Board member at the present time.

Two '28 men were selected recently by Alumni Clubs for "Man of the Year" awards: Bob Hamilton in New York and J. Harvey Daly in Washington, D. C. We have the following '28 men as Alumni Club Presidents: Robert Lamey, Tri-State; Al Schnurr, Sandusky; Leo McIntyre, Eastern Pennsylvania; Augie Grams, LaCrosse; and Paul Fry, Rock River Valley.

Judge John T. Cullinan and John F. McMahon are Foundation State Governors in Connecticut and Pennsylvania respectively. John Robinson served as Foundation Governor in Connecticut in 1947. Leo McIntyre, as chairman of the Allentown, Pennsylvania Foundation drive, was honored last year at the Alumni banquet for having exceeded his 1949 Foundation quota. Ed Dean and Ed McGauley as City Chairman in Monessen, Pennsylvania, and Worcester, Massachusetts, were very near the 100 per cent mark on their 1949 quota on one report I noted. Other '28 men who have done good work as Foundation City Chairmen include: Jim Canizaro, Jackson, Mississippi; Tom Collins, Fall River, Massachusetts; Herbert McCabe, Ashbury Park, New Jersey; Henry Massman, Kansas City, Missouri; John P. Murphy, Little Rock, Arkansas; Augie Grams, LaCrosse, Wisconsin; John Frederick, Muskegon, Michigan; Bernie Bird, Buffalo, New York; John Carroll, Springfield, Illinois; and Christie Flanagan, Port Arthur, Texas. Ed McKeown contacted the '28 men in Chicago last year for the Foundation. Bill Cronin is now working on the Foundation in New York City.

There are, no doubt, many other '28 men who are active in Alumni Club and Foundation activities who should be added to this list as my records are not up-to-date. Let me know of the work of other '28 men in these activities. I would like to urge '28 men in the Alumni Clubs to arrange for '28 tables at dinner meetings as we have done on two occasions in the Chicago Club during the past year. I noted that '28 men participated in Alumni Club programs recently including Father James McShane, S.J., who celebrated a Mass for the Denver Club and Vince Carney, who described his spring visit to Rome in a talk before the Rock River Valley Club.

I had occasion a few days ago to refer to the biographical directory "Leaders in Education" and I accidentally ran across the name of our classmate, Dr. Arthur Stenius. Art received his M.A. degree from Detroit University in 1934 and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 1941. He is now professor of Education at Wayne University. His publications include: "Radio Education in Europe," "Seven, Eleven and Democracy," "European Odyssey" and "The Story of Visual and Radio Education in Pre-war Europe." I was pleased to know of the recognition he has received in the fields of visual, radio and safety education. I also found out for the first time from the biographical directory that Art was born in Sweden. Keep up the good work, Art, and let us hear from you. Art has always responded when I called upon him for news but he has never given us any information about himself.

Jim Cowles wrote from 515 Market Street, Shreveport, Louisiana, where, with the exception of the war years, he has been actively engaged in the private practice of law since 1930. He was in the legal department of a Federal War Agency from 1942 to 1946. Jim married in 1934 and has two daughters. Mrs. Cowles and Jim attended the Tulane game at Notre Dame in 1947, which was the first time he had been back to school in 19 years. I hope we will see you at our 25-year reunion, Jim, in 1953.

I saw Father Mark Fitzgerald recently at the Chicago Conference of the Industrial Relations Research Association. It was the first time I had seen him since he received his Ph.D. from Chicago University in March.

Joe DeBott helped me out with a letter from Geneva, New York, on the stationery of Broderick's Men's Furnishings where he is manager. John Larsen and Joe are the only '28 men now living in Geneva. John is Geneva's Sanitary Inspector. Joe reports that Joe Haney of Newark, New York, is seeking the nomination for District Attorney of Wayne County. Good luck, Joe, and let's hear from you after election. Gene Schlitz, also of Newark, is engaged in the fuel business. Charlie Selanskey is living on Long Island and is working out of the State's Comptroller office. Joe mentioned that he took in the Navy game in Baltimore last year, but like his trip to the Army game in 1947, he failed to see any '28 men. If the recommendation of the Alumni Board made in January is adopted, tickets for at least one game will be distributed by classes thus enabling the classmates to get together. I would welcome some support from you in trying to get this seating arrangement adopted. Joe mentioned that he contacted Art Holton by phone. Art told Joe that Al Mahar, who is with the Merchant Marine, is married.

It was good to get a response from the West Coast for a change. Phil Berthiaume wrote from Portland, Oregon, where he is Regional Group Manager for the Bankers Life Company. He handles employee benefit plans for this Company in the territory of Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Phil is married and has one daughter, age 11. He visited Notre Dame last summer and had the pleasure of chatting with Paul Fenlon. I was pleased to hear that Phil, Norb Kavanagh and Tom McMahon of our class participate in the Portland Notre Dame Club.

John Davis of Oswego, New York, favored me with a letter on the stationery of Browne-Davis, Home Furnishing Specialists. John's brother, Charlie Davis '21 is his partner in the furniture business. John has a daughter who is 14 years old. Charlie, who gave up orchestra leading about 15 years ago, has three daughters, two of whom are married now. Judge Tom McGough, who finished a few years after us, is City Judge in Oswego. Tom is married and has a son. John sees Judge Maurice B. Conley who holds down the bench in Fulton as well as taking care of a flourishing law practice. John reports that the Judge looks every inch the jurist and corporation counsel that he is, and that he has a fine family. It was good to hear that Tom McGough and John Davis have begun to stir up a local interest in the Foundation in Oswego, up a local interest in the Foundation in Oswego. John mentioned that he met Frank Creadon in front of Old St. Mary's Church in Chicago last January. Frank is a member of the famous Paulist Choir and sings there every Sunday. John added for the benefit of Rog Brcalin, Norb Seidensticker and Bob Kirby that his golf game is strictly in reverse. He hopes it will improve by 1953 when he has a golf date with them at our 25-year reunion.

Thank you Phil Berthiaume, John Davis, Joe DeBott and Jim Cowles for your help in giving me some ammunition for another column. How about some others from whom we have not had a letter for some time following their example.

I received two more letters after completing the above column which I want to give to you. My card requesting news reached Botts Crowley in Omaha, via Cincinnati, where he was attending the National College Baseball Tournament and meetings connected with baseball coaching. Botts was present at the Spring Game at Notre Dame and saw there, the commuters to Notre Dame, Pat Canny, Fritz Wilson, Fred Miller and Joe Morrissey. Botts is in his 17th year representing MacGregor Goldsmith, Inc. in sales promotion in Colleges and Professional Baseball. Botts has a daughter age 6. He mentioned that the announcement that Don Crowley of Middletown, Ohio, was awarded the first Cincinnati Notre Dame Club scholarship makes it appear that the later generation will do even better scholastically than the elder Crowleys. Botts said he expected to attend the St. Joseph Valley party at Notre Dame June 27.

Frank David wrote from 2260 O'Dwyer Place, New Orleans 21, Louisiana, giving a good account of himself. Frank started out after graduation as an Inspector with the New Orleans District, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, and had some interesting experiences building up a land ownership map of the Atchafalaya Basin in Louisiana. He then became a Junior Engineer and worked as an Inspector of levee construction. In December, 1940, he went to Jamaica, British West Indies, where he helped open a Corps of Engineers District. He was in service and went to Europe with the Engineer Section, Hq. XXI Corps, landing in LeHavre in December, 1944, and becoming involved in the Colmar Pocket. Since his return to the New Orleans District in July, 1947, he has been Head of the

The class of '25 needed no support — they gave plenty of it, however.

General Reports Section, U. S. Army, Corps of Engineers, where reports are compiled on flood control and on river and harbor improvements. Frank was married in 1939 and has a three-year-old son. They live just outside the city limits of New Orleans. Frank is a major in the U. S. Army Reserve and is Executive Officer of the 387th Engineer Combat Battalion.

Thanks Bott and Frank for the letters and don't wait so long before writing again.

A final letter from Art Denchfield from Caixa Postal 21, Recife, Pernambuco, Brazil. Art has been since January 1945 the General Manager of all Northeast and North Brazil of the Singer Sewing Machine Company. Art is married to a Danish girl and they have four boys. The Denchfields plan to take a Delta boat on July 25 for New Orleans and go on a tour of the U.S.A. by auto.

Art expects to go through quite a few towns where some of the old classmates live and he promises to take an Alumni Directory along to get in touch with you. He will probably be arriving about the same time as this issue of the Alumnus so I am pushing the deadline to get this to you. Art flew to the States last year to visit his mother who is ill.

He also attended the North Carolina game and made a trip to Notre Dame at that time. I was pleased to hear from Art that he expects to return to the U.S.A. for the 1953 celebration of the 25th Reunion of the Class.

Your Class Secretary: Lou Buckley, 4700 West Adams, Chicago 44, Ill.

Jim (Red) Curry (Real Estate—Great Neck, N. Y.) passed along these news items recently. "Dave Fields is in Washington with the Dept. of Justice, Anti-Trust Division. Met Walter Shelly of Polotka, Fla., recently at Daytona Beach. Walt is the city attorney and has a private practice. Also I see Hugh McManigal (Acme Construction Co.) and George Brautigam (Attorney) in Miami every winter. Jerry Ouellette is director of athletics in one of Miami's high schools. Jerry is doing a fine job. Saw Bob Alt in the subway during the North Carolina game weekend.

A number of the '29ers were present at the game: John Nash, Larry Moore, Jim O'Connor, Gaylord Haas, Walt Donnelly, Jack Farr, Ray Hilliard, Con Carey, and Harry Daley. I missed seeing Dr. Jim Tobin, John B. Sullivan and Dr. Frank Kane. Joe Morrell is doing well in legal work in Brooklyn (1821 Fulton St.) Joe was known as the "Squatter" in our days. Saw George Rowan recently from Pittston, Pa. George is the new city manager.

Jack P. Farr is living in Baldwin, L. I., and doing a swell job for the American Tobacco Co. Ray Hilliard of N. Y. has been on Mayor O'Dwyer's Commission of Welfare for the past three years and has done an excellent piece of work. (See recent numbers of the Alumnus.) Jim O'Connor is in Public Relations with the N. Y. Telephone Co. Jim was discharged from the Air Force as a full Colonel. I see Walt Donnelly often in New York. Walt's father was a former Judge and is now associated with Donnelly and Donnelly.

Larry Moore stopped in to visit Charley Colton recently. Charley is business manager for the Taunton State Hospital and the Miles Standish State School at Taunton, Mass. The Coltons (Charley and Mary) have two children, John 3, and Charlotte 6 years of age. Charley is active in the Elks, N. D. Club of Boston, and Stewards Club. Henry Olbricht (Conrad Razor Blade Co.) of New York recently purchased and moved to a large farm at Ancromdale, N. Y.

Had a nice visit with Bob Schulze of Minneapolis and Doc Dougherty of Stuebenville, Ohio, within the last few months. Doc is metallurgical Engineer with Weirton Steel Co. of West Virginia. John B. Sullivan is on the School Board and head of the Board of Education in West Chester County, New York. Harvey Daley is Personnel Director of a large grocery chain in Washington. (Jim Curry was Harvey's best man and Tom Lantry was head usher.) Con Carey is Judge in Massena, N. Y. and attended the North Carolina game. Con is married to Tom and Harry Lantry's sister.

Art L. Denchfield, Jr. '28, representative of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. in Recife, Brazil, flew up to the North Carolina game. Jim and Kathryn Curry recently celebrated their 17th wedding anniversary. Secy. Red Curry, this is excellent. Please do this real often and in the meantime I'll see who is coming up for Honorary Degrees next June.

William (Si) Sidenfaden and wife, Maxine, dropped in for a weekend visit at Notre Dame. The Sidenfadens claim a class record for their nine children. Si is President of Suburban Gas Service Inc. of Ontario, Calif., and is planning to organize a flying party for the 25th Reunion. Si had a visit with Paul Brokhage of Vincennes, Ind., on his trip up. Paul is assistant secretary and treasurer of the Blackford Glass Co. Paul and Vivian have a daughter, Paula, about 7.

Dr. Charles A. Baum, D.D.S. (children's Dentistry—612 Rentschler Bldg., Hamilton, Ohio, and recent president of the Keeley Dental Society) is very active in sports and sports promotion in Hamilton. Doc has been receiving a nice lot of publicity as a civic leader, typical sports fan and chairman of the Quarterback Club. He has received many citations for this work as a civic leader. Doc received his predoctoral training at ND

(roomed with Harry Altman—New Ulm, Minn.), his DDS from Indiana and does research in children's dentistry. He is an active member in ND Club, Xi Psi Chi, Ohio State and American Dental Societies, Elks, K of C's and Lions, and in charge of the Dental Program for the Board of Education. The Baums, Charles and Dorothy (Wulzen) and Charles Jr. 7 attended the Tulane Game last fall. Doc is planning to attend the silver Jubilee Reunion in '54.

George A. Brautigam (Attorney-at-Law, 1215 DuPont Bldg., Miami, Fla.) writes:

"I left the fair city of Chicago in 1941 on an exploration and adventure to find some place that would bring me relief from a skin trouble called psoriasis (don't get it) and have found a haven here in the South. I had planned well in advance to be at the reunion last year but met with an untimely lawsuit in New Orleans that prevented the realization of my plans and anticipations. Perhaps when George, Jr., goes to Notre Dame and Gay Ann and Dyan Marie enroll at St. Mary's I'll have the pleasure of again treading the cinder paths.

During the war I was happy to be interested in the USO program in all Florida and served as the state director for two years, after which I went into the fund raising as executive director of the Florida War Fund. I have had the pleasure of serving as assistant municipal court judge of Miami, am a past president of the Notre Dame Alumni of Greater Miami, and a past Grand Knight of the Miami Council and presently a member of the Board of Directors on the newly formed Coral Gable Council of the Knights of Columbus. During the war years my duties carried me to various parts of the state and I am happy to advise that the State of Florida now boasts of three well organized and functioning Notre Dame alumni clubs; Jacksonville, Fort Lauderdale and Greater Miami. Among the alumni here in Florida that I have met of our class, I am happy to advise that Joe Keefe, Lakeland; Ward Hacker, Miami; Hugh McManigal, Miami, and Jerry Ouellette, Miami, have all been at the 'Fountain' and personally in the best of health."

Dave Campbell (Prof of English, ND) has added a new interest and hobby to his readings of literature and Chaucer. He is now the most rabid Chicago Cubs fan in the entire district. Jim Gallagher, if you ever need a third base coach, here is your man, and Dave always calls them right.

Joseph Whalen (Manager, Savery Hotel, Des Moines, Iowa, sends a fine letter along to sum up the Iowa situation): "In the early part of the month, Ruth (Mrs. Whalen) and I made a hurried trip to the West Coast. We had the pleasure of dropping in on Emmett McCabe and his wife, Sarah, while we were in San Diego. I hadn't seen Emmett since Commencement Day in 1929.

"In our business here we get to see a lot of the former Notre Dame men who stop at the hotel. Larry Mason, who lives in Mason City, Iowa, is down here quite frequently and Jimmy Gallagher, who is associated with the Chicago Cubs, is in Des Moines several times a year. The Cubs own the Des Moines baseball team."

"I had a short visit with Frank Carideo the other day when he was in the hotel. As you know, Frank resigned from the coaching staff at Iowa University when Eddie Anderson left to go back to Holy Cross. Frank is now a district sales manager for the Monroe Co. and has the present job of lining up a sales force for the Iowa territory."

"The Notre Dame Club of Des Moines feels quite proud of the fact that the 1950 captain of the football team is from Des Moines in the person of Jerry Groom. The local Club had a banquet on the very appropriate date of March 17th, but I imagine that the alumni offices will receive a full report from our secretary."

"Our older daughter, Sue, just received her acceptance at St. Mary's College and will be entering there this fall. I suspect I will be seeing more of you during the next four years, or even longer, as we have another daughter who will be ready for college in the fall of '53 and we hope that she will attend St. Mary's also. If you see Father Thornton tell him that we still plan to get over there before the end of the term this year."

Jack Kearns (city engineer, City of Champaign, Ill.) writes this fine letter on his family and N.Ders around Urbana:

"For your column I am city engineer here in Champaign—have been ever since January 1, 1944. I rather enjoy it too, as I think this is a swell town to live in. Of course I am a little of a heretic here among all the "Fighting Illini." Have four children, Johnny, 13; Ann, 11; Jim, 5; and Rosemary, 3. I don't have too many fellow N.Ders here but have been seeing Carl Schubert (class in early 20's) who is a professor in the engineering school at Illinois, every day at Mass during Lent. I also see Paul Hannagan who attended N.D. about one year during the war, he is here in the farm implement business with his father and a brother. I have a boy named Charles Clinard in the office with me who attended N.D. one semester in the Navy, who later finished at Illinois."

"Carl Schubert and I attended a N.D. club meeting in Danville a while back at Father Burke Motsett's, '32, parish house. We are planning on celebrating Universal N.D. night in Danville with Les Hahne and the boys down there."

"Please give my best to Larry Stauder when you see him. Hope to be able to get down for a game this year. I would like to bring my oldest down to see the place. I might have to get Father Lou Thornton to sign him up while there. I had a little correspondence with him lately regarding a prospective student I sent over. The boy and his dad came home singing Father Lou's praises."

"Will sign off for now. Keep up the good work, I always enjoy reading the dope on the '29er."

Emmett McCabe (director of public relations, advertising and sales promotion for Consolidated Aircraft, San Diego, Calif.) sends the following fine letter:

"According to present plans I will be in New York, Washington, Dallas and intermediate points in May and look forward to having a real report for you immediately thereafter. I especially want to see Bill Butler in Dallas (who I located at long last in the most recent ALUMNUS) and Joe Drinan in Englewood, N. J. and Vic Hart in Short Hills in the same state. Also Larry Moore who is on top-side of the Navy Photo Laboratory in Washington. If at all possible, I hope to fly into Cleveland and see how the transplanted Jack Elder and his splendid family are getting along."

"The most gratifying experience I've had in a long time was a visit early this month by Joe Whalen and his charming wife. The first time I've seen him in almost 21 years! Joe is much the same as I remembered him, except he's really filling out that slender frame. It was a thrill to learn he has two beautiful and talented daughters and that one of them is headed for St. Mary's this fall. Joe has clippings to prove she's the outstanding orator in the Corn Belt. Since I'm a sedentary 42, I can only wish well the frosh of N.D. '54 who will be hotly contesting for her glances."

"Tomorrow we're having our Rockne Memorial Communion Mass and among others I'll see again Jerry Bill ex-'29 and Jack McClaren, also ex-'29. Jerry is one of San Diego's leading real estate brokers, and Jack is doing all right in the sales end of International Harvester. Jerry has three sons, all of whom aspire to make a block ND, and I see Jack and a very pretty young daughter at Sacred Heart Church in Ocean Beach. Also present will be Fred Ruiz, '28, who taught most of the '29ers elementary Spanish, and who is now head of the Languages Department of LaJolla High School. Al Stewart, '36, our local FBI man, has done a grand job of keeping the name and traditions of Notre Dame prominent in this area, and as president of our club, is now devoting time and energy toward a real turnout for our annual business meeting on April 17 and our annual dinner-dance on April 21."

"Even as I'm writing this I received a special delivery letter from my old confidant, Father Lou Thornton who says he'll be in L.A. for Universal Notre Dame Night. I'll see him if I have to crawl to Los Angeles on one knee."

Thirty Masses have been celebrated since our twentieth reunion by priests from our class. If you wish to increase the number let me know.

During the Easter season I drove to Washington to see the cherry blossoms and have talks with Dr. Malcolm Ray (National Research Council). I missed John Hinkel by phone, talked with Larry Moore, just missed John Dudas and later had a fast drink with Gaylord Haas and family in Arlington, Va. The Haas' have a fine family and their eye on a new car for a trip to the midwest this summer. Gaylord has plans for our 25th reunion. Recently, I met Dick Haugh at Mass and we later took over a booth in a nearby coffee shop—you guessed it—all plans for the Silver Jubilee.

Here are excerpts from some '29 letters recently received:

Leo Schroll (Baseball and Football Coach at Bradley University) writes:

"I have no family—just my wife and myself. I'm Head Baseball Coach and Assistant Football Coach here at Bradley University. Last year our club won 19, lost 9, playing such teams as Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan State, and Oklahoma A. & M. We won the championship of the Northern Division of the Missouri Valley Conference last year but lost to Oklahoma A. & M. in the play-off. This year we won our Division again—and beat Oklahoma A. & M. for the Championship of the Missouri Valley Conference. We will meet the winner of the Big 7 in June to determine District 5 Representative at the NCAA Finals at Omaha, Neb., June 15-18."

I am Vice President of the Notre Dame Club of Peoria. I am also Honorary President of the Newman Club of Bradley U. A member of the Knights of Columbus. Also one of the originators of the Quarterback Club here in Peoria, and still a Board Member."

Mickey McMahon (Manager of the North American Co., New Orleans) writes:

"As you know I have been in New Orleans for the past three years having come down here from Cincinnati where we had been living since 1935. The Insurance Company of North America, with which I have been associated since graduation, established a Service Office for this part of the Gulf area in 1947, and I was fortunate enough to be chosen to open it."

Ann and I have three children, Tom, 18, Mary, 14, and Judy, 12. Tom is attending St. Aloysius High School, and the two girls are attending Sacred Heart Academy."

Karl Kachewski of our class was recently elected president of the Notre Dame Club of New Orleans, and I see him frequently. I ran into Tom Ryan quite by chance a few months back while he was in the city on business. Bernard Nalty and Leonard Nalty of our class both live in New Orleans and Karl Kachewski tells me that recently, while at the New Orleans Airport he had a chance to chat briefly with Frank Havelick who is Commodore of the Pan-American Grace Airlines with headquarters in Lima, Peru.

We here are looking forward to the Notre Dame-Tulane game in October and understand that the students have voted to make that the game for the students' trip. Plans are underway locally to make it an eventful weekend, and I sincerely hope that you can come down. I know Hugh McManigal will be here although I haven't heard from him since his kind invitation to attend the SMU game in Dallas last fall, which I was unable to do. I am glad you were able to see Bob McVety in New York and trust he is well and continuing to prosper.

If any of the fellows are visiting in New Orleans or going through, I would be delighted to see them. I can be reached at Insurance Company of North America, 624 Gravier Street."

Bob Newbold (U. S. Marshal Southern Dist. of Indiana) writes:

"Upon receipt of your letter Bill Krieg and I had just returned from a week-end outing with eleven Boy Scouts—a Camporee held in Turkey Run State Park. The boys were from our Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish—a new parish in Indianapolis. Bill is very much an experienced backwoodsman and the overnight trip with the boys worked out fine under his management. When Bill is not scouting, or building model airplanes with his two sons, Pete and Fritz, he can be reached at the law firm of Buschman, Krieg, DeVault and Alexander, Circle Tower Building, Indianapolis.

We had a good opportunity on this trip to do some reminiscing about other '29ers—Tom Ryan, my fellow townsman and former roommate, Bud Markey, Manny Vezzie, Jim Brady, Jack Elder and others, including yourself, whom I used to awaken with the cow bell in old Sophomore Hall. I trust I am forgiven.

For the past 11 years I have been chief deputy U. S. Marshal for the Southern District of Indiana. I come in contact quite frequently with another Notre Dame man, Harvey Foster, who heads the F.B.I. in Indiana.

I am looking forward now to some fishing in Minnesota. For the past several years we have returned to my wife's home to visit and to vacation. Our two sons, Mark 10 and George 7, usually catch the big ones despite the supposed ingenuity of their father.

Don, I am sorry I didn't get to remain longer at the 20-year reunion. I certainly enjoyed myself while able to be there those few hours. The fellows I talked to afterwards who were able to stay the full time reported they all enjoyed themselves to the fullest. All of which speaks well for you and the other '29ers who so ably took care of the arrangements."

Father Christopher O'Toole (Assistant Provincial ND) sends this information on members of our class ordained as priests in the Congregation of Holy Cross:

"Father John Molter is Head of Dept. of Biology at the University of Portland. Father Jim Gibbons is Editor of the monumental work in several volumes of the history of the Church in Texas.

This work is sponsored by the Knights of Columbus. Father John Scheberle is Professor of English at the University of Portland and Father Cornelius Hooyboer (whose mother died recently) is Instructor in English and Religion at the same school. Father Bill Coughlan is Professor of Mathematics at the University of Portland. Father George Welsh after a long run as Army Chaplain is now Assistant Pastor at Holy Cross Church, South Bend, Ind. Father Bernie McAvoy is Superior at Moreau Seminary, Notre Dame. Father Ted Mehling is President of the University of Portland and Father Joe Barry after several years of strenuous activity in the Army where he was decorated several times for outstanding bravery and service, is now on the Vocational Recruiting Staff of Holy Cross Seminary, Notre Dame. Father Jim Norton is presently assistant to the Vice President in Charge of Academic Affairs.

Father Tom Lane teaches Chemistry at Stonehill College, Father Joe Garvin, Classics at Notre Dame and Father Regis Riter, Philosophy at Notre Dame. Father Archie McDowell is teaching English and Religion at the University of Portland and Father George Dum, Philosophy and Music at the same institution. Father Lou Thornton is, of course, the well-beloved and well known Registrar at the University of Notre Dame.

Four of our group are doing great work in the Mission Field in E. Bengal, East Pakistan. These are: Father Joe Voorde in charge of a large Mission Station at Mymensingh—the gateway to the Garo Missions; Father Jim McGarvey who was at Golla when I last saw him; Father Charlie Young at Boiabada and Father John Harrington is in charge of the new College that Holy Cross has started in Dacca. Father Walter Marks of our class has transformed a hill top in the Garo Hills to build a Church, Convent and Hospital for the sisters at Boromori.

My own job is that of Assistant Provincial of the Indiana Province. Recently I met Dennis O'Keeffe, Law '33, in Standish, Michigan. Dennis as Prosecutor for Arenac County is doing a grand job and is very highly regarded by the people he serves."

Larry Stauder (Prof. of Electrical Engineering—ND) sends this note north on campus:

"Bernard (Pat) O'Leary, Leona (Brown), Jim and Susan were on campus over Memorial day to take their son, John, home for the summer. John is a freshman EE and had the misfortune of fracturing his leg in a soccer game. This is John's second fracture of the school year (and of his life). Pat O'Leary EE '29 is District traffic Superintendent, Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and lives at 903 Forest, Zanesville, Ohio.

Elmo Mayer recently donated an instrument demonstration panel to the Electrical Engineering Dept. in memory of his uncle Walter Welch, historian of Clearfield County, Pa."

Secy—The Stauders (Larry and Margaret Hassett) have a fine son Larry II about 6, and are active in Catholic Forum, University and Academic circles.

Frank Ahern (General Underwriter, Travelers Insurance, Hartford, Conn.) writes:

"Mrs. Ahern and I had planned on being at School for the 20th year reunion but circumstances were such to prohibit this. I certainly am looking forward to 1954.

We did get out to the Notre Dame vs. Army game at South Bend but our time was so limited and the crowd so large that we had little chance to look around.

I have been active in the Notre Dame Club of Connecticut Valley and served as Secretary. Also, I went through the chairs of B.P.O. Elks, Hartford Lodge No. 9, and served as the Exalted Ruler.

In June of 1934 I married the former Mary Dennehy and we live at 61 Evergreen Avenue, Hartford. Unfortunately, we have no children.

We have a place at the Connecticut shore and I got myself involved as the President of the Old Lyme Shores Beach Club for three years. At present I am finishing up a term on June 1 as President of The Travelers Club, a Club comprised of the male employees of The Travelers Insurance Company located in Hartford.

Since leaving school—the year Wall Street laid its big egg—I have been with the Travelers Insurance Company, starting to work in November of 1929. At present I am a General Underwriter in the Group Department. As you know, The Travelers carries the Group Life Policy on the employees and faculty of Notre Dame."

Dr. Edward J. Lyons, D.D.S. (Prosthetic Dentistry—Spruce Medical Bldg., Philadelphia, and recent president of the ND Club of Philadelphia) writes:

"Your last writeup in the Alumnus brought back many familiar names and pleasant memories. Visited my old friend Joe Lauber in So. Bend last fall. Joe and Agatha have a fine family, three for St. Mary's and one for ND. Dr. Dan Boyle '38 who you taught Anatomy had a baptismal gathering for his fourth recently. Dan '32 and Peg Halpin were the godparents. When the physician arrived it was none other than Dr. Joe Terreri '29

(30 High St., Morristown, N. J.). He is the all-popular medico in that section.

The '29 column is awakening a great desire for that get-together in '54."

Swing ole Adam, swing little Eve—

Your secy. attended a square dance at St. Joe's school recently and had the pleasure of swinging old Adam in an all '29 square. The set was composed of Joe Lauber and wife, Dr. Agatha Wilhelf, Paul and Agnes Bartholomew, Jim and Marcella Keating, and Don and Dorothy Plunkett. John and Marian Skelly stepped in on the second round. John is a Junior executive at Studebaker's, is in charge of the Athletic Association program and is very active in the Management Club.

NEW LOCATIONS

James O'Toole has moved from Los Angeles to 1830 Third Ave., San Diego. Francis Crowe (Personnel Director, Packard Motor Co.) can be reached at 15368 Fairfield, Detroit 21. Tony Kopecky (Lawndale National Bank, Chicago) has moved to 141 Gage Street, Riverside, Ill.

Russell McGrath (Chairman of the Board—First Federal Savings & Loan Assoc., Providence, R. I., lives at 261 Waterman St., Providence, and Seekonk, Mass.), writes:

"My activities since graduation have been for the most part in banking and real estate. In September 1931 I married Mildred V. Brown of Providence and our son Russell Jr. is attending Providence Country Day School. My business interests are director of the Harold Realty Co., Plantations Bank of Rhode Island, Federal Savings League, Real Estate Board, and Ruth Realty Co. (Mass.); treasurer of McGrath & Sons, Medway Realty Co. and O'Keefe Motors, Inc., President of the Phillips Wickford Corp., and Executives club and trustee of Country Day School.

Sorry to have missed the 20th reunion last June. I am looking forward to our silver jubilee reunion in '54. Count me in."

Frank Heupel (Service Manager and Sales Manager—Chicago Electric Mfg. Co.) sends a note on his family and activities:

"My family consists of one wife who was at St. Mary's when I was at ND—although I met her later in the wilds of Eastern Indiana—and one son John Patrick, 11 years old, attending St. Philip Neri's school. We hope to have him at ND in six years.

I have acted as President of the Automotive Credit Group of Chi, Holy Name Society and National Electric Parts Assoc. About the '29ers I'll have some information for you later relative to John Cakley, the Foundation and our classmates.

By the way, Don, do you know my sister, Sr. M. Amadeo of St. Mary's? She has a degree from ND and I expect we are the only brother-sister members of the Alumni Assoc."

Release of the new educational motion picture "The President's Cabinet," produced under the supervision of Paul C. Bartholomew, Professor of Political Science, was recently announced by Coronet Films. "The President's Cabinet" describes the Cabinet's position in the governmental system and its relation to everyday life situations. Dr. Bartholomew worked with Coronet Films' script writers and production crews throughout the film's preparation . . .

"Roosevelt: From Munich to Pearl Harbor" is the title of a new book by Basil Rauch. The book represents a survey of the Roosevelt record and an expose of the distortion of the testimonies of Root and Beard. Rauch is at present Associate Professor of History at Bernard College. After graduation from ND, Basil attended Yale University, L'Universite de Besancon and Columbia University. He is recognized as one of the leading authorities on Roosevelt . . .

Your Class Secretary: Don J. Plunkett, Department of Biology, Notre Dame, Ind.

Some honest, anonymous and unlocated person mailed the Alumni Office a 1929 class pin, which the honest person states was "found." The person further states he cannot locate the owner but is sure we can. Initials on back of pin are JMS. Postmark on the mailing piece was obliterated, but only two men in 1929 class are JMS: John M. Stackpole, of Detroit and Joe M. Sullivan of Waterbury, Conn.

Class Secretary Don Plunkett states that owner may claim pin after sending class secretary one roll of stamps to continue missionary work.—Ed.

Well, it was quite a clambake. The closing sessions of the 20-year Reunion brought forth lots of 5-year plans, looking toward our Silver anniversary reunion in 1955. Everybody agreed to work on the absentees from this year's reunion, and get them here for the big 25-year classic in 1955. Incidentally, Karl Brennan, manager of the W. T. Grant store in Rockford, Illinois, sent in the first reservation for the Silver anniversary affair. Thanks, Karl, for your kind note about this year's meeting. A card from Tim Toomey, also, reveals that he headed straight from Morrissey Hall after the reunion for Massachusetts, to round up the Bay State fellows for 1955. After a visit in his old home town, Fairfield, he promised some news from his regular headquarters in New York city.

Now back to the Twenty-Year Reunion. A great tribute is due Dan Cannon, Bernie Conroy and Father Ray Totten. This trio planned and worked for months prior to June 1950 to insure a big turnout from the 1930 class. One hundred and thirty returnees—from Andy Aman to Dr. Robert Zeis—are an excellent testimonial to the efforts of Co-Chairmen Cannon and Conroy, and Treasurer, Father Totten.

A High Mass for the deceased members of the 1930 Class was sung by Father Ray Totten Saturday morning with some Moreau Seminary choristers singing the responses. Jim Leahy (Chicago) and Larry Mullins served the Mass. Jack Cannon was in charge of the ushering, a difficult assignment in Morrissey chapel. A collection for the Seminarians was taken up by Gus Bondi and Jack Cannon.

The class smoker was held at the Vetville recreation hall on campus Friday night. A buffet supper was served, a short business session held, prizes awarded, a few short speeches heard, and the affair closed with football movies handled by George Strohmeier and Emil Sitko. In the business meeting the former class officers were re-elected, namely, Ray Reardon, Harry Francis, Bernie Conroy and John Quinn. Father Ray Totten was chosen Class chaplain and Devere Plunkett was named Alumnus Secretary. Prizes were awarded as follows: To the class member of most expansive girth, Juvenile Judge Fred Lensing of Evansville, Ind. (Comment from Reno, Nevada ranchman Harry Buscher: "I was robbed"): to the reunion man coming from the farthest point, druggist Louis Berardi of Los Angeles (Comment from Commander George O'Malley, USN, La Mesa, Calif.: "I was robbed"). To the classmate most dandruff-proof, Chuck Lennon; to the classmate we were happiest to see present, Chick Driscoll of Flossmoor, Illinois. A door prize of two ND football tickets for any game next fall was gathered in by Larry "Moon" Mullins with the modest comment: "It couldn't have happened to a better guy."

Ed "Moose" Krause, Director of Athletics, spoke briefly at the Smoker to clarify an incident about which many of the 1930 boys were puzzled. Brief talks were given by Jack Elder, Larry Mullins, Jack Cannon, and Prof. Art Reyniers, head of the ND LOBUND. Recently Clarence "Oonie" Donovan, former mayor of Bedford, Indiana, and appointed parliamentarian of the 1950 Democratic State Convention, delivered a scholarly disquisition on Kentuckians and shoes, using Jack Elder as an example to prove what you can do when you have a Kentuckian shod with track shoes or football cleats.

The Depression Class — 116 Came Back to Morrissey

It may have been the era of depressions but this gang was anything but depressed on Reunion weekend.

These guys took the attendance trophy (?) for the weekend; they're already planning for the 20th.

News picked up around Morrissey Hall headquarters: Jack Sigler arrived at the reunion from Spirit Lake, Iowa, armed with camera and flash bulbs. Jack, send me some of those prints of pictures you took in Morrissey Pub. From here Jack went on to Grand Rapids to pick up his wife, Helen (a swell person) and the Sigler youngsters. John Ramey, Cedar Rapids, also added to the Iowa delegation which included M. H. Ley and Larry Mullins. Texas was well represented at the reunion. We had Father Joe Kmiecik, C.S.C., of St. Edward's University, Austin; Ed Conroy, Commander USN (retired), now exec. vice-president of Planning Board of San Antonio; John Bitter, manager of R. L. White Co., San Antonio. Mrs. John and their 3 children stopped by Sunday morning for a brief chat. One more Texas representative; our bartender, George Strohmeyer.

The South Bend gang of 1930 members was out in good numbers. Fran Messick, treasurer of American Trust Co., was on hand. Lou Chapleau, prominent attorney and former county Democratic Chairman was seen shooting the breeze with the fellows in Morrissey. Lou Hasley, English Prof. and contributor to many Catholic publications, dropped in with Murray Hickey Ley, now residing in Davenport, Iowa. Walt Langford, head of department of modern languages and varsity tennis coach, was on hand to greet everybody. Paul Farmer of the Interstate Glass Co., was at all the sessions. Paul has three fine sons (one in ND) whom he brought out at one session for us to meet. Karl Weigand, former ND prof., attended all the sessions. Ed Cronin, head of some hush-hush experimental project at Bendix Aviation, came in Sunday morning. Vernon "Buck" Slack, safety engineer at Oliver Farm Equipment, was unable to be present, because of a recent operation on his mother. Art Reyniers invited the fellows to visit the laboratories of LOBUND. A large number of the class made the trip Saturday afternoon and enjoyed the expert description of LOBUND activities by Prof. Bob Ervin.

Pennsylvania turned out well for the 20-year reunion. Hugh Gallagher was in town early with his family who visited with relatives in South Bend. Bernie Conroy arrived Thursday night to give a hand with local arrangements. Johnny Roney, Dr. Matt Ward and Dr. Gene Raymond were seen circulating in Morrissey. Don Schettig came, although he was doing a repeat performance, having been here last year for the 1929 20-year Reunion. Two strange characters found browsing in the library stacks for three days were identified as Dr. Richard "The Bard" O'Toole and Bill "The Builder" Steitz. "The Bard" was in search of Elizabethan limericks to fill out his collection, while Bill Steitz was poring over volumes on creative dancing. They have promised to give a joint recital at the 1955 reunion.

Michigan had a good turnout for the reunion. Judge Harold Steinbacker of Battle Creek was here. Steinie has a long record of public service in Michigan, director of the federal census, county prosecutor, City Commissioner, vice mayor, and now Circuit Judge. Grand Rapids was represented by Arnold Levandoski, Jim McDermott and Vassar Rosewarne. My old roommate on the fourth floor Badin, H. Maynard "Mink" Sullivan had a reservation in for the reunion, but last minute Army orders prevented his coming. Mink is a Captain in the Finance department, Olive General Hospital, Augusta, Ga. How about a letter, Mink, on what has happened since you and Louis Kren dissolved partnership? Bill Reaume, Harry Draves and Jim Sullivan came in from Detroit all smiles. They have a baseball team there, and they know it. Jimmy Navarre, beer distributor around Monroe and Adrian, was mighty helpful in keeping the local pub supplied. He promoted a field expedition to Drewry's brewery, calling upon several distinguished hops-and-malt scientists from the 1930 class. Frank Ready was another Monroe representative at the reunion. Joe Deeb '31, U. S. District Attorney in Grand Rapids, dropped in Morrissey after the banquet for a short visit. He brought along Joe Rielly from Muskegon and Joe Morrissey from Cincinnati.

Besides the Illinois fellows already mentioned (Leahy, Driscoll, Brennan, Reardon and Quinn), that state was represented by the following: Charlie Smallwood (Treasurer, Carroll Construction Co., Chicago); Dick Walter, Chicago; Art Petersen (V. P. and Treasurer, Petersen Furniture Co.), Evanston; John Golden, Chicago; Johnny Moran (All-state Insurance Co.), Oak Park; Bill McCarthy, Glenview; Chuck Lennon, Joliet; Tom Keegan, Rockford; Tom Kerrigan, Chicago; Bill Bromann, Oak Park; Joe Butler, Crete; Paul Heidcamp, Chicago; Leo Durlacher, Chicago; Dr. Frank Hetreed, Chicago; Royal Higgins, Chicago. Jerry Holland, Miami Shores, Florida, joined Higgins, and Bill (Basketball) McCarthy in some early golf on the ND course Thursday. Charley Morrison was another Miami resident who came up from Florida for the reunion.

Al Shipacasse and Gus Bondi did a fine job getting the Ohio men here for the Twenty-Year affair. Ed Blatt and Norm Bradley were on hand, as well as Dr. Bob Zeis, Leo Scanlon, Joe Ryan, Jim Leahy (Tiffin), Leo Kennelly, John Heilker and Art Gallagher. Clarence "Kozy" Kozak, Miller's High Life representative, had no criticism as he checked the stock in the Morrissey bar. Frank Miller from Fremont was another Buckeye checking in at Morrissey.

New York had a good bunch of delegates here, and I think we are indebted for that attendance figure to Tierney O'Rourke and Con Carey, state chairmen. Sorry Con was unable to be present. On hand were Dick Bloom, Tom Lantry, Jim Irwin, Ed Dempsey, John McCarthy, Walt Scholand, Dr. Dan Shaughnessy, Ed Ellsworth, Joe Friel, Joe Kelly and Tim Toomey. I just received Tim's post-reunion letter. He writes: "I returned from my vacation this A.M. to find your note and I pray this bit of news reaches you on time to make your deadline. I wished I had known you had to have news earlier because all I did last week was rest."

"Jim Rizer as you know was a native of Sayre, Pa., and prior to entering the seminary was employed as Eastern Sales representative for Laidlow Bros. book publishers. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942 and rose to the rank of major after having served with the 13th Air Force in Italy."

"Following his discharge he entered Mt. St. Mary's Seminary in Emmittsburg, Maryland, and was ordained in Richmond, Va., on May 18. Jim will be assigned to mission duties and can be reached at St. Mary's Rectory, 416 East Marshall Street, Richmond, Va."

"John "Bus" Redgate of Bridgeport, Conn., is still confined to Gaylord Farm Sanitarium, Wallingford, Conn., and will be glad to hear from his friends."

Dr. John Forsee of Louisville, Ky., arrived with a retinue of lackies carrying his immense wardrobe. He teamed with Tom Lantry in a marathon bridge game against a formidable Hoosier team, Lou Stettler of Elkhart and Francis "Bill" Fink of Huntington. Bob Eggeman came up from Fort Wayne for the reunion, as did Larry Fitzsimmons from LaPorte and George Hineman from Connerville. Other Hoosiers who took in all the events were Bob Sloan and Tom Medland from Logansport. We were all glad to see Father Joe Corcoran of St. Patrick's Parish, South Bend, and also Jim Halligan of Muncie, Indiana.

John Motz came from Kitchener, Ontario, to attend the reunion. Gil Prendergast had to represent Maryland as its sole delegate, as did John V. Moran of Boston for the whole state of Mass. I had hoped to see Patsy Hastings, Phil Flynn and Dr. Tommy Ferriter come out to case the joint. Gerald McKay and John Yelland carried Minnesota's banner here, and Bob Hellrung was on hand to speak up for Missouri. The New Jersey caucus included Jim Friel, Larry Cronin, Vincent McCue and John O'Donnell. Also Dr. Phil Provinsiero of Paterson was with us in Morrissey Hall. Bill Sherman was in early from Knoxville, Tenn. He is still with Scripps-Howard.

Tom Frost and Judge Tom McDougal, reunion chairmen for Wisconsin, headed a delegation from that state that included Art Dorwin of Minocqua, Frank Hamilton from Dodgeville, and Ed Redmond of Milwaukee. The Judge pitched in and gave us a big assist at the Smoker Friday night, but he admitted that there was a little less order than prevails in his courtroom in Antigo.

To the men who ordered a reunion picture sent C.O.D.: the order has been placed and the pictures should reach you soon.

Reunion Potshots:

What are we going to do with Pat Canny's IOU? Do any of our class lawyers want to handle a tough case like this? . . . Commander George O'Malley's calm, temperate discussion of sports publicity with Charlie Callahan in the wee hours at the Morrissey Bar. . . . Doc O'Toole unraveling limericks for three days without a repeat. . . . Harry Buscher, a Brahmin steer ranchman, debating cattle with Texas George Strohmeier, a White-Face devotee: no decision. . . . Christy Flanagan and Jack Cannon sizing up Varsity guards Fred Wallner and Paul Burns, and agreeing that they would like no part of them now or even 20 years ago. . . . Father Schreiner, C.S.C., of the Mission Band, doing a swell job on the harmonica and in leading the group singing. . . . The non '30 alumni who joined us at Morrissey and whom we were glad to have with us: Johnny Frederick, Gay Haas, Matt Garrigan, Bob Knox, Al Grisanti, Christy Flanagan, Doc Vaichulis, Onnie Donovan. . . . Please remember in your prayers Justin McCormick, Caspar, Wyoming, who is very critically ill.

I was at the meeting of the Club Presidents and thought that it was most enlightening and I can say that I learned much that can be passed on to the members of our organization. In fact we had a little gathering the other evening and our members present were more than pleased at the suggestion I brought back that the other presidents elaborated upon while I was in attendance.

Brother Martin John, C.F.X., is being transferred from Utica to points unknown by him as of this date. He was most helpful to us and all are sorry to see him go. The Club tendered him a little token of esteem at a party at the Club rooms of the South Utica Post. Brother Martin graduated in 1933 I believe.

Don Fullem, ex-president, had the misfortune to lose his little seven-month son. He passed away two weeks ago. On the other hand he is to be congratulated upon his oldest boy winning a scholarship to St. Francis de Sales High School here in Utica.

The Club is having their family picnic July 30th at Verona Beach, on Oneida Lake. Practically all of the members have signified their intent to attend.

I brought up the issue of having the ND games on television and there were seven members at the dinner for Brother Martin John and they are fully in accord with the policy of the University in having the games televised.

From JIM COLLINS:

Joe Petritz is director of public relations for the New York Yanks professional football team, and has taken time out from his more glamorous duties to report on some of the fellows he sees in that area. Joe's Yanks are in the National Conference of the League and he is confident that they will be the pro champs this fall.

Joe writes: "The only classmate I've heard from recently is Ray Geiger, back from a Florida vacation with his missus of nearly two years, the two of them and their young boy all afflicted with colds. This rich life will soften up anyone."

"Bill Toumey, '36, has recently moved to Sam Goldwyn Productions from Eagle-Lion after a tremendous exploitation job on "The Red Shoes" which is breaking records all over the country. It has run about two years on Broadway."

"I see Frank Wachsmith, '31, the eminent bar-rister, occasionally. His son, Donald, is back in New York after his freshman year on the campus during which he made Prof. Dan Pedtke's glee club. It IS later than we think!"

"I see George Rohrs at National Football League meetings—he is a power with our rival New York Giants, and a big man in the coal business."

"The same meetings also bring pleasant visits with Vince McNally, the basketball-football whiz of nearly 25 years ago who is now general manager of the champion Philadelphia Eagles, and Clem Crowe, coach of the Baltimore Colts, one of Rockne's great captains and the first of the Crowes. He is about to supply ND with another generation—he has 10 sons and daughters who, with their Guardian Angel, he says, gives him a full eleven. Also in evidence are Buck Shaw, handsome and successful coach of the San Francisco 49ers, and one of Notre Dame's greatest tackles, and Wayne Milner, the great '35 end, now end coach of the Baltimore Colts."

Congratulations to Butch DeVault of the Eastern Indiana club and Gene Calhoun of Los Angeles for being named "Man of the Year" by their respective clubs.

Flo McCarthy, recently elected secretary of the Cleveland Club, writes that Jerry Linn, now a consulting engineer living in South Euclid, has ten children. That's right, ten. Mac wonders, justifiably, whether anyone else in the class can match that number.

Hugh Ball, salesman for Cutler-Hammer Co., has recently built a new home at 1519 W. Clifton Blvd., Lakewood, Ohio. Hugh has three sons to help break in the new home.

Dear '33's:

This is another banner edition, gents—your columnist got another letter. Better call it a note—still it came through the mail, and was written by a '33-er, so that makes it at least an inside-the-park homerun in this league. It was from Bob Donovan, or I guess I should say, Dr. Bob. He was in Chicago for the American College of industrial Surgeons convention, and tried to get me a couple of times. It was one of those days when a hard-working P.R. had to be at the printers, so Bob was noble enough to drop a little note in lieu of the phone call. He is aligned with the Ford Motor Co., Somerville Branch—Somerville, Mass., that is—and lives in Arlington, also Mass. Thanks loads for the try Bob, and maybe I'll get a chance to buzz you when I'm in the East—and give you a chance to get your nickel back!

Met Maurie Griffin on the El the other day, and for once it was a pleasant ride to the Loop. Maurie is in the printing business, with offices at 16 West Delaware, Chicago 10, and would love to hear from any old pals in or outside of Chicago. He has two daughters, who are living with his wife in Minneapolis until he can find an apartment and bring his family here. We ran through a long list of names during our chat—let's see if I can recall a few: Tom Monahan, Bob O'Connell, Al Stewart, Frank "Spike" McAdams, Bill Kirby, Louis Brennan, George Spaulding, Frank Leahy and Dick Sullivan.

Speaking of Dick Sullivan brings to mind a long overdue tribute to a great guy and a great writer. In this age of publicentiousness, it's a great comfort to know that there's a man of fine talent among our own generation writing books you can read without having to say the stations as an aftermath. It's perhaps even more amazing that the publishers will take his novels, considering the amount of sin and crime he refuses to depict in his writings. I'm giving you my own opinion for what it's worth, and since we all know how much that is, I will now quote a good authority . . . "America" Magazine. In the issue of June 10, this year, a most observant and articulate critic by the name of Riley Hughes pays deserved praise to our Richard: "In his Baysweep novels—one looks forward to more of them—Richard Sullivan gives example to, and implies a program for, the American Catholic novelist. . . . Surely no time is more propitious than the present for the young Catholic novelist of artistic stature and serious purpose to invest the American scene, by an integrating indirection, with the Catholic mind and temper. Richard Sullivan has shown how the thing may be done." Dick's best-known books are "Summer after Summer," "The World of Idella May," and "First Citizen." One solid way to do your part to increase and assist good Catholic writing would be to invest in one—or three—of these books. You'll have yourself a grand time reading them, too!

Haven't seen many new "old, familiar faces" lately, and since the men I have frequently named in this space are undoubtedly getting sick of seeing their names inscribed, I'll shut this off with another plug for devotion to the Blessed Mother. Vacation time is on us as this is being written—and if the spirit has grown as weary as the flesh, and you feel moved to cut down on the knee-time: remember, the two quickest and most effective prayers are the Our Father and the Hail Mary. Don't forget Her and she won't forget you.

How about dropping us a post card on your trip—we wish we were there, too!

CORRECTION: It was not West Virginia mountain dew! But Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Reishman deserve to have it known that Vince has been around for some time. It was James Michael, the third son, who was the arrival the May-June issue should have reported.

And Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Cahill—your old Class Secretary and the Editor's young ex-secretary—are passing up long-standing social practices with the addition to their family circle of Mary Catherine, a four-months old Miss, who, for the benefit of the above named James Reishman, is a beautiful doll.

Here is a brief report to all you fellows who wondered how we could stage the reunion at ten dollars each for the entire weekend. All the bills are in and paid and we were able to give a donation to our reunion chaplain, Father Thilman, for masses during the coming year for our deceased classmates. Your reunion committee thought that was appropriate and would be your wishes also. In addition we were able to donate a small sum to the Alumni Foundation in behalf of the 1935 reunionists.

The South Bend committee members once again want to thank all those who sent us their donations for our initial expenses. Also, we are very appreciative of the glowing remarks we received from those who were able to attend. We intended to put on a reunion that you would remember and we feel from your expressions that we accomplished that.

We hope to be able to see all of you again in 1955 and at that time to be able to participate ourselves in the carousel.

Bill and Joe

Alumnus Represents Legion in Papal Audience

Alumnus George J. Kelly was among representatives of the American Legion recieved by Pope Pius XII during their tour of Europe to supervise distribution of toys collected by the Legion for European children. Above are Rev. Edward J. Carney, O.S.A., Legion national chaplain; the Pope, and Kelly. Mr. Kelly is assistant director of the Legion's public relations division in Washington, D. C. He graduated from the University in 1942 and was a Navy flier in the war. His group presented the Pope with a scroll.

Secretary _____ Franklyn C. Hochreiter (Maryland)
Treasurer _____ Patrick J. Lynch (Indiana)

Well, gang, the big weekend has come and gone and those of us who were back to the ole campus had one _____ of a time! We came from practically all corners of the world. Truly, Notre Dame and the spirit of her men must have a magnetic force. It may have been the ten-year wait to have one endless bull session that brought us back; and then again, it may have been the urge to return to the University that burned within us a spirit that is our hallmark for life, and we hope for eternity. You who missed it will go through life with a great void which only a return in 1955 will be able to fill.

We were all represented—the retiring type and the aggressive character of that period fifteen to nineteen years ago. We all found our mates. No one was alone for want of finding his companion at his own level of interest. The ham radio operators, the keepers of fish bowls, the devotees of classical recordings, the fire hose manipulators, the waste basket arsonists, the gunmen, the musicians, the varsity stars on all fields of competition, the artists on drawing boards and canvas, the lab maniacs, and the plain ordinary students—all of us were there.

Yes, even the party casanovas returned! And they could not stay away from St. Mary's—this time they used their wives' own reunion as their excuse to visit the "cabin by the pond."

After tabulating both the official University list of returnees and our own Committee's roster, and making changes on both to rectify the standard deviation, we find that 175 men returned for reunion. Some, we are sure, did not register either place, and they would raise our total count some ten or more. We were told that this was the largest turnout ever, but the official tally will have to be the yardstick.

But, the more telling of a total does not tell a total tale! There's much more to it because we came from Hawaii and the Canal Zone; from Washington and Florida; from California and Vermont; and from Utah and Louisiana.

Here is the geographical story—read it and you will know our strength. Arkansas 1, California 2, Connecticut 1, Florida 1, Illinois 49, Indiana 26, Iowa 3, Kentucky 1, Louisiana 1, Maryland 3, Massachusetts 3, Minnesota 3, Michigan 17, Missouri 1, New Jersey 2, New Mexico 1, New York 17, Ohio 8, Pennsylvania 9, Rhode Island 1, Tennessee 3, Texas 3, Utah 1, Vermont 1, Washington 1, Wisconsin 7, Canada 1, Canal Zone 1, District of Columbia 1, Hawaii 1, Unknown 5.

That's it—all 175 of them! We know of 19 more who sent in reservation cards but did not show for one reason or another. Your Scribe tried to talk to everyone, he hopes he didn't miss too many. At first he was going to start taking notes to report to you. But then he decided that all who returned had the opportunity to chat with friends, and besides your Scribe wanted to enjoy the reunion too, so he put away his pad and pencil. He hopes that you will forgive him and grant him this small luxury.

The question that faced us as we began to write this column was whether we should pick out certain individuals and give them a "blow" to the slight of others. This is always a difficult decision to make, but running the risk of calling down the hex of some upon us, we will attempt to at least pin-point a few of the high-lights as we saw them. Thin skins should not redden at what follows because your Scribe dubbed himself at the Smoker "The most repulsive looking character in the class after 15 years." (He has moved from that 130 of campus days to a mere 192 now.)

Here are some things to remember for comparison in five more years: Gene O'Reilly's Smoker prize for the largest family—8 children, and his sharing another prize with Gene Witchger for having the most sons—they both have 5; the distinguished grey hair of John Burke, Linc Wurzer, Johnny Neeson, Tony Scolaro and others; the mustachios of Dick Balliet and Charlie Montgomery; the rotundity of Jerry Molinari, "Josh" D'Amora, Vince Murphy, Bill Guimont, Andy Maffei and Jim McCraley; the gay costumes of Roy Scholz and Bill Mead; the screaming of Bob Henneberger and Don Felts at the Smoker; the political suavity of Tom Proctor, Andy Maffei, "Nicky" Vairo, John Dugan Carbine, "Rocky" Schiralli, Jim Sheils and Pat Fisher to mention but a few; the swell photography of Vic Arcadi and Jim Hamilton; the paper bags walking out of the bookstore in the hands of "Daddies who didn't forget"; the wonderful takeoff on the Molinari talks by Tony Crowley whose stubby hair is now grey; the little surgical job performed by Roy Scholz on Jack Matthews in the infirmary; the rejection of the F.B.I. by both "Bus" Brettn and "lean" Tom Flynn in favor of a law practice, with the utter of the two marrying and remaining in the Islands of Hawaii as a government attorney; the "Passport to the State of Tennessee" being awarded to the chosen few by special agents Jerry Foley, Tom Owen and Neil Farrell; the second main course plates slipped to us at the Alumni dinner by waiters who didn't want to carry 'em back to the kitchen.

The message received by special envoy from the new manager of the dining halls that your Scribe may as well tear up his dinner ticket as a different color will be used in '55 and the '50 ticket will be useless; the prize which Tom Flynn carried away at the Smoker for coming from the longest distance—Hawaii; Bill Otte's Smoker gift for having the most daughters, 4; the prize Jack Edwards took for his enviable spot as the most recent father—he almost missed the reunion; the memory of the "new Notre Dame" that is growing up at the end of the ole car line now converted to busses; and the swell gesture of Jim Cronin in passing the hat for Father Thilman—the proceeds represented the collections of four Sundays at his Negro Mission church in South Bend.

You see we could go on for many paragraphs. We could tell you about the golfers who were torn between the links and the Dillon lounge like Wade Kelleher, Jim Sheils, and others; and the boys who ran down to the lounge to pick up ice for the room parties upstairs. If we ever got into the private parties in the rooms of Dillon we might never stop.

And so to the program that our South Bend Committee arranged for our enjoyment. To them we can never pay sufficient tribute or give sufficient thanks. Bill Ryan and Joe Lynch did a magnificent job of whipping things into shape. But without their swell committee they would have been helpless. Let's tell you who they were and what they did. Paul Fergus handled publicity and shared the registration desk with Dan Youngerman and Fal Harris. Dan was the reception chief and kept the beer situation and a lot of other things in hand all weekend. Fal took care of the cocktail party details.

Kurt Simon did an outstanding job with the food—it was endless—and you should have tried those marinated herring prepared by Kurt's wife. Frank Maxwell handled a number of University details and Chet Chlebowski selected the prize. Ed Smith and Hal Goebel were always around to lend a helping hand. Father Vince Thilman, C.S.C., attended every activity, said our Saturday morning Mass for the deceased of the Class, and was generally the "mascot of the troop" because of his mission church.

How the South Bend Committee accomplished what they did at $10 a man your Scribe will never know. Food and drink was served constantly from Thursday evening until Sunday afternoon. Many of us ate only breakfast in the cafeteria and snacked constantly the rest of the time in the Dillon lounge.

The informal gathering of Thursday night broke up around 3:30 a.m. Friday morning found us registering in the Law Building for the University. This brought us our green caps with the white '35 numerals, our room tickets and the Alumni dinner slip. Once we returned to Dillon the Committee was there to greet us and to put on the shoulder tap for the Class fee. Throughout the day the lounge was crowded as men came and went. There were tours of the campus in groups and in pairs—we all relived those happy (and sometimes insecure) days of '31 to '35.

Friday evening came the Smoker in the Rockne Memorial lounge. And there again were the waiters, the food and the beer. But this time the prizes were added as was some music. Through the evening we had visits from some of our former priest teachers and prefects. Some of them and some of us made short speeches but we think the prize went to "Moose" Krause.

At the Smoker your Scribe received the surprise of his life. In the name of the Class he was presented with a beautiful Gruen, veri-thin, curvex wrist watch. It is engraved "To Hoch, in appreciation, Class of 1935, 1950 Reunion." We pride ourself in not being given to emotion, but frankly and honestly we tell you now that we came close to an expression of emotion at the moment of presentation.

It is difficult to say "thank you" to all of you in this fashion. We tried, at the Smoker, to tell you of our appreciation, but again we want each and every man in the Class to know of our very deep gratitude for your thoughtfulness.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock the Dillon Hall chapel was filled with living '35ers who came to remember their 20 deceased classmates. Their pictures hung in the Dillon lounge during the weekend, but for Mass they were transferred to the Communion Rail steps. You all received their pictures in the last mailing before reunion. For those of you who could not participate in their Mass, as well as for those present, we recommend a remembrance in your prayers daily. Our departed '35ers were the subject of many a quiet conversation during the weekend.

The "athletes" worked up several sweats during the hot hours of Saturday and some never made the Cocktail Party at 5 o'clock or the Class picture in front of Dillon at 6. As a matter of fact they nearly missed the turkey dinner served at the Annual Alumni banquet. But for the most part the tattered and torn found fresh linen and pressed suits and looked fairly respectable for these formal affairs.

After the banquet we retired to the Dillon lounge once more and then "up to the room." Your Scribe turned in around 3 a.m. and the din was just getting into stride.

Sunday morning brought the Alumni Mass at 10 o'clock in the campus church and then the stragglers began to leave with their bags of dirty clothes and legs feeling like a combination of iron and rubber.

At this reunion the University inaugurated a new policy regarding class officers. It was suggested that each reunion class elect a president, four vice-presidents (from the four parts of the country), a secretary and a treasurer. We appointed a nominating committee of Roy Scholz, Vic Kurzweg, Art Conrad and Phil Purcell. They brought in a double slate with a slight twist on our instructions from the Alumni Office. They selected their vice-presidents from the four undergraduate colleges of the University as well as from the four points on the compass. It was the committee's feeling that such a plan might bring greater participation from all in the class.

We are asking the University to print up a ballot and submit it to you for you to select your officers for the next five years. One name appears for the same office on both slates. It seems that the committee took the expression of the Smoker crowd literally—your Scribe was nominated to carry on for another five years. We accept the nomination—what else can we do, there's that wrist watch which has to be earned somehow! We urge you to return your ballot immediately after you receive it. Let's be among the first to accept the plan.

For those of you who want Class pictures, they may be had for $1.00 each in any quantity. Just write your request to Bruce Harlan, the University photog. Whatever you do, check off your officers.

Here Is Where the Former Alumnus Editor Is Hiding Out

PLACEMENT OFFICE AT NOTRE DAME
Left—Joseph Hickey, '50, of South Bend and Ted Schmidt of U. S. Rubber during interview in Placement Office. Five of Hickey's brothers preceded him through the University. They are Tom, '35;

If you wish a cap, they may also be purchased for $1.00 if we order a dozen or more. If you wish one for yourself or the kids, send your dollar to me along with the size (small, medium, large) and we shall order them all at one time.

And so we wrap up the 1950 Reunion of the Class of '35. Again we want to thank all those who contributed so much to make it a success. Particularly do we want to mention Father Lawrence Broestl, C.S.C., Rector of Dillon Hall who was a brick about having us, and to him goes our sincere appreciation. And to Jim Hamilton we owe a debt of gratitude for those tag-along tables and ash trays, not to forget the pictures.

Since our return we have received letters from Tom Owen and Neil Farrell. We'll save their notes till next time as we are already running a long story. But this we want to pass along. Neil enclosed letters from some of the men who could not attend the reunion. They were Al Lawton whose daughter graduated that weekend from the 8th grade; Tom Graves who is with the Joint Military Mission for Aid to Turkey in Ankara; Phil Jacobs who was in the East on business; Tom Walsh who was on the West coast for medical care; Jim McDevitt who was sweating out law school exams; and Father Jim Corrigan, S.J., in Theology at St. Mary's College, Kansas. About these and others we will tell you next time. Keep those letters coming!

Members of the class of 1938 will be neutral next fall when the University of San Francisco clashes with St. Mary's in football on the west coast. Joe Ruetz, appointed this spring, is the bossman now at St. Mary's. Joe Kuharich has already had two successful seasons at San Francisco. It really is remarkable how these two fellows were rivals in high school (South Bend Central and Riley High schools), played together at the opposite guard positions while at Notre Dame, and now once again are rivals. Trust they both go undefeated and have a tie game with each other.

This spring I showed a movie and gave a talk of sorts at Bay City, Mich., and afterwards spent the evening with Frank and Hub Kirchman, staying at the latters' home. They are in the restaurant and club furnishing and supplies business and doing very well. Hub wants everybody to know that after first being the father of three girls, he now has a son.

Here at school, Father Bill Botzum and Ed Cronin are among the top professors and John

Black George

A fast-stepping racehorse, named for Father George Holderith, C.S.C., and owned by Mr. William Veeneman, Louisville, Ky., a staunch friend of the University. Black George was entered in this year's Kentucky Derby.

Los Angeles Has a Luncheon

Plouff continues in his capacity as assistant to the Business Manager of the University.

As for '38ers in South Bend . . . Charley Sweeney, an oil sales executive, was on the campus at reunion time to attend the Monogram Club luncheon. Chuck lives right near Jack Moulder, the Chrysler-Plymouth man. Charley Borowski is still operating in his efficient manner to see that all local laws are well enforced. The Charley Dukes recently had a second child. Charley is the manager of the South Bend airport, one of the best of its size in the country. Don Fisher continues as a leading insurance salesman (Union Central Life) and Don Hickey has one of the more popular spots in town, Don's Fiesta. (Inasmuch as I've purchased two Plymouths from Moulder, get insurance from Fisher and from time to time eat at the Fiesta, it can't be said that I'm not trying to trade with classmates.) Jack Leadbetter is another whom I believe is still in South Bend, but I haven't seen him for months. Louis Anderson is still another. He's a legal-eagle and teaches a couple of courses at school.

Way back at the 1946 Army game, ran into George Belanger, Dick McCutcheon and Gene Dolan, but have had no word on any of the three since.

Pat McCarty, coaching at Central Catholic, or is it Catholic Central, in Toledo, was in for a couple of football games last fall. George Schlaudecker, another who now lives in Toledo, was a campus visitor this spring. George has left DuPont and is now in business for himself.

Bill Costello was a visitor over graduation weekend. He stayed at our home and we were up rather late discussing "old times." Bill has recently taken over a very good advertising spot with the Capehart concern (television and radio sets, record-players, etc.) in Fort Wayne and expects to make all the football games come autumn.

Nick Lamberto, on the sports staff of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, received an award during the past year for excellence in sports writing.

Here and there: Met Ed Flanagan, and wife, at the Canisius basketball game, in Buffalo, last January. The year before, at the Canisius contest, bumped into Dick Danahy for a moment. Walt Duncan, down from his oil business in Tulsa, was at the SMU game. So was Bill Castleman, the old golfer, now an oil tycoon (in partnership with Joe O'Neill, '37) at Midland, Tex. Also at the Dallas game was Joe Cole, down from Nevada, Mo. Very prominent in making it a fine weekend for all Notre Dame visitors, players, officials and alumni, at the SMU contest was Ed Haggard, President of the Dallas Notre Dame Club. My wife and I spent much time in the company of Ed and his gracious wife Patty. Ed is now the president of the Haggard Company, in Dallas, and a big man in town. Ran into Ed Brower, a good while back, in the lobby of the Commodore, in New York. If memory is correct, he's in the advertising business in Chicago. Another Chicago adman is Eddie Brennan. Early in June, standing on the corner of Randolph and Michigan, in the windy town, a car went by in the swirling traffic with the driver honking frantically. It was Eddie, the old infelder. Joe Callahan, who was at the luncheon held by the New York Club at the time of the basketball team's visit east to play NYU, is now a detective on the New York City police force. Bob Garland, a successful attorney, was around the Palmer House the night of the Chicago Baseball Writers' Dinner. Going back a bit, Mel Dark came up from Arkansas (or maybe it was Missouri) for the Nebraska football game, at Lincoln, two years ago. Tom Fitzgerald is doing well in the beer business in Indianapolis. Recently, while in Cleveland helping make early arrangements for the Navy game, which will be held there this fall, I ran across Dr. Tom Hughes, up from Columbus for a medical convention, and talked to Tom Mulligan, now a lawyer, on the phone. Both lads reported everything fine. Paul Kizeli, a high school coach in Muskegon, Mich., was a visitor at the Varsity-Old Timers football game. Don't expect to get back to my old home in Lexington, Mass., this summer, but would like a word on Boston goings-on from Chick Gallagher, Joe Corcoran or Jim Blunt.

From the mail bag . . . Vince Duggan writes from 6241 B Palaska Ave., Huntington Park, Calif., to announce the birth of a son, Patrick Nelson, born May 5. Vince works for the "7-up" folks in the Los Angeles district . . . and from the same area, 3320 Castle Heights Ave., Los Angeles 24, Calif., to be exact, Gene Vaslett, the old Scholastic editor, writes that he is "hard at work with Bryan Brandenburg Co., a graphic arts subsidiary of Foote Cone & Belding, the advertising agency." Gene adds that he and his wife are "expecting their first offspring any moment." (That was written on May 21.) Gene states that he sees Tom Shiels, who is in the music business, once in awhile and that he understands Nevin (Bunny) McCormick is still in his home town of Livermore, Calif., as a teacher-coach. Ed Haggard, mentioned before, was another of the faithful few to come through with a letter. To the list of those who attended the SMU game in Dallas, Ed adds Frank Winters, Tom Copeland, Ken Fox, Paul Hughes and Babe Kelley's brother, Don. The latter, I believe is from the '37 contingent. Ed also mentions that he has written his old friend, Pape Veeneman, in Louisville, but has had no answer . . . and from Hal Williams, senior, I have a clipping about the lad who formerly wrote this column. It seems that our Hal had some trouble with the Communists during his foreign-corresponding work for the Baltimore Sun in Germany. It involves the Commies admitting they made an error. I quote in part from the Baltimore Sun, of May 26: "Williams had been discredited and banned from the five-day Communist Youth rally on the ground that he had taken photographs

'designed to falsify the sense and purpose of the meeting.'

"Williams protested at the rally's press headquarters that he did not even have a camera with him."

"There's no use objecting," a Communist official replied at first. "We already have your confession."

"Later, however, the Communists confessed they had no confession and returned Williams' credentials, discrediting instead a New York Daily News photographer."

Only three members of the class signed up at alumni headquarters on reunion weekend. They were: Johnny Buckley, Oak Park, Ill.; Chuck Sweeney, South Bend, and Paul Kiszeli, Muskegon, Mich. Harvey Foster, the FBI man, who is now a director on the Alumni Board and who is President of the Indianapolis Club, was also on the premises.

That is the end for this issue. But please leave us have some letters. It would be so much easier that way. Also, get your football ticket applications in. I can't help you at the last minute when the games are sold out.

Your Class Secretary: Chas. Callahan, Athletic Publicity Office, Notre Dame, Ind.

The news for this period would have been almost a complete blank had we observed that dangerous old custom of observing deadlines. Just today came through the mail the only epistle, message, gossip, or what-have-you of the month—and here it is already a week past the time of going to press. With the forbearance of our new editor however, we trust that this will see the light of day.

Dick Anton, who starts out on a high plane by referring to "my good class secretary," drops the news that Ray Schleck (who will probably be forwarded a card begging for news from somewhere else) is now with Hotpoint as Business Manager—Marketing Department. Dick is of course manager of Labor Relations for the same outfit, and doing quite well too.

But Dick had news of others as well—Jim Walsh, still with Marshall Field, is being transferred to New York with his whole tribe, now numbering a cozy six. "Red" Neumann, Dick and Jim had lunch before the mass emigration.

Don't remember for certain whether the other Jim Gorman's whereabouts have been reported, but he's with the Creole Petroleum Corp. down at Maracaibo, Venezuela, and has been there for the past three and a half years in the Marine Department. Last summer Jim and his wife and three youngsters spent three months alternating between Chicago and Sheboygan before returning to the old grind.

Other than the above we must report a great lack of news. How about some of you answering those postal cards, or just take it on yourself to sit down and drop us a note. The rest of us will be glad to hear from you.

Your Class Secretary: Vincent DeCoursey, 1917 Elizabeth, Kansas City 2, Kans.

From JACK WIGGINS:

To our rescue this time came Paul Weber, Joe Kresock and Bill Middendorf with letters. Our batting average on the proposal to the thirteen addresses published last issue was .000. I believe Minnesota's Coach Bernie Bierman has a similar record against Notre Dame football teams. Arch Ward's extortion printed daily in the Chicago "Tribune" that the "Wake depends upon its friends" certainly is applicable here—this has not only been reiterated by this class secretary, but practically all others attempting to compile representative class columns. To those who have cooperated with letters, our sincere thanks—and a plea to all others to take a spare two minutes about every year to drop us a line.

From Paul Weber (835 Washington Ave., Albany, N. Y.) "I will try to bring you up to the present, Jack, but I don't remember where I left you off last. I believe our last bit of correspondence was years ago while I was still in the Army in Washington. I'll never forget the big party Ed Hanrahan invited me to in Washington. He must have told you about it while you were still in Chicago. From Washington I went to Germany and, as you probably know, spent two years with the War Department as a civilian with the Military Government. I had a wonderful job—the world by the tail—and it was a great experience.

"While in Berlin we were well represented by Notre Dame. Father Maurice Powers, '33, Major, AUS Chaplain's Corps—his picture was in the Jan.-Feb. ALUMNUS was our chaplain. He did a wonderful job over there and got the N.D. fellows together once in a while for a bit of a reunion. I was married in Berlin by Father Powers and spent a wonderful honeymoon in the German Alps in Bavaria.

"We returned to the States late in '47, took a short vacation and then made my bid for a foreign assignment with International General Electric Co. I have been working with I.G.E. ever since, but I find that I like home life better than being a globe trotter. The work is very interesting; we are in constant touch with all the various countries to whom we export. My particular phase of work at present deals with the obtaining of Import Licenses from the foreign governments; the export licenses from our Uncle Sugar; credits and manner of payments. Things are shaping up slowly but surely. So much for that.

"We soon had an addition to the Weber family, Karin Susan (2 years old this May). I was surely glad to read that Julie Durbin was going to take the long walk. I assume, of course, that he is now married and I wish them all the luck and happiness in the world.

"That's all for now, Jack. One thing I promise: my next letter will not be five years away."

From Children's Hospital, Pittsburgh 13, Pa., Dr Joe Kresock sent the following:

"This letter is more apt to be a letter of apology since this is the first time I am writing you. At any rate, I promise to be a better correspondent in the future. That is, if I can be assured that you can read my writing!

"From the address above you can probably guess that I am preparing to become a pediatrician. I am now in the final stages of my pediatric training, finishing up December 31st. Incidentally, maybe some of my alumni brothers may know where a good pediatrician is needed, because as yet I have not decided on a location. My services can be had if the location is right.

"Before I go any farther I must tell you that my wife, the former Ann McDonough of Carbondale, Pa., gave birth to a 7 lb. 6 oz. baby boy on April 19th. Looking at my wife's maiden name you can see where we got his name, Kevin. And you guessed it, he is going to Notre Dame.

"I don't have much to report on our classmates because I don't run into many of them. At the N.D. banquet held here in Pittsburgh in April I ran into Bill Murrin. I believe we were the only ones from our class in attendance. In New York last fall at the North Carolina game I saw Bill O'Connell, Ed Neagle, Ray Kelleher, and Ralph Carabasi.

"Have some information about some of my old roomies. Bob Walsh is coaching in Atchison, Kans. Bob Gardner is in Buffalo. He has visited my parents on several occasions when he has been in Carbondale. The last I heard Bill Costello was working with his father in the lumber business.

"One of the most amazing reports I've seen in The ALUMNUS was the one which said that my old chemistry lab partner, Ralph Onofrio is out in California. That's a long way from Newark Valley, N. Y.

"That's about all I can contribute for the present, but I'd like you to pass the word along that I'd like to hear from my old cronies. They can't all be too busy to drop a few lines—even if some of them are in the medical profession."

Bill Middendorf, seller of Candles of Character, writes from 2305 Westbrook Drive, Fort Wayne 3, Indiana: "A lot of water has gone over the dam since I last wrote to you but these traveling jobs, as you well know, keep one occupied. Now a little news concerning some of the fellas from '43 that I have run across in my wanderings.

"I believe the best place to start is way back in January. I was in Terre Haute and happened to notice a sign "Christian Plumbers." Knowing this to be Freddie's hometown I dropped in, and there he was, big as life. Quite happy, too, for the previous evening his wife had presented him with Fred, III. That date I believe was January 10th. Then, sometime in April I was in Terre Haute again and Fred and I had lunch together.

"From there I'll skip over to Indianapolis and the happy new home of Jack F. Reis. His wife, Margaret, presented him with Miss Nancy on February 26th. She is their first born. From the looks of their new home, Jack must be peddling lots of wood products.

"While driving on U. S. 40 I came upon the prosperous metropolis of Knightstown, Ind. In this fair city Bob Rihm and his father operate a large self service market. They had some tough luck not long ago when a fire completely destroyed the building they occupied.

"Not too long ago I broke bread with that legal eagle from Goodland, Sam Moulder. I wonder if the Olds he had ordered ever gave the satisfaction of his reliable Stude. (Gotta get that plug in for Stude, my father-in-law toils there). (Secy. note: Now you explain to me, Willie, "how come" you drive that Chev?).

"Went to Chicago for a sales meeting about a month ago and saw Jack Barry hustling for the elevated. Jack is a proud father and lawyer.

The last time I was in Evansville I talked to Steve Essner on the phone. Steve, Frankie Hildebrand and I are supposed to have lunch together when I return.

"Bob Hargrave and I got together for a meal in February and we discussed the possibility and amount of the GI Insurance dividend that was then being noised about in the press. It's been a long time but I still haven't seen hide nor hair of mine. Bob is in the Trust Department of a bank in Evansville.

"I was in South Bend the weekend of the reunion and thought I'd drop out to the campus to see if any '43ers were about. I thought possibly that Leo Lewis, Bill Warnick, or Frank Kaiser would show up, but they didn't. Guess the St. Louis Cards are doing too well and they are afraid of missing a game.

"The obediences for the Holy Cross fathers came out this week and Father Bob Pelton of our class is going to Rome to study for the coming year.

"Do you remember big Jim Byrne who used to prefect on first floor Dillon during our Junior year? He is teaching English at Northwestern and will have his doctor's degree by next year, I saw him at the reunion. Saw Bob (Gunga) Dinn at St. Philip Neri Church in Indianapolis some time ago. His sister-in-law, I believe, was being married. Bumped into Bob O'Reilly, his wife and four of his five kiddos at a church festival here in Fort Wayne. I also see Eddie Hoch now and then.

"Sometime in April Paul Toland was waiting for a plane out of Cincy and stopped by dad's office to see if I were still there. Paul is with some large warehousing outfit. Sorry I didn't get to see him."

Tom Shellworth follows up Earl Enzler's information of the last issue: "I am working for Frigidaire Division, General Motors, in sales promotion work in Northern and Central California. Jim Rowland, '45, and I have a house on Russian Hill—very run-down, but very Bohemian.

"I attended ND night here—saw Mike Frawley who lives in Burlingame (on the Peninsula), salesman for N.C.R., and father of 2, I believe. Mike looks very trim—got to drop in on him. Often see Jim King, '45, who is finishing at U.S.F. Hit the beach every week with John O'Connor, Santa Monica lad, N.D., '48, now a graduate student at Stanford. Where and how is John Van Bente?" Answer to the first question: 4438 Ralston, Indianapolis 5. How about an answer forthcoming on the second question, John?

Shellworth's new address is 1173 Vallejo St., San Francisco.

From Bob Carpenter: "Hope what little news I have will help you. To wit: After being discharged from the 8th Air Force, I returned to Fall River (Mass.) and started working for my dad in his furniture business. I am now running the business alone, my father having passed away in 1948.

"I was married in May, 1947. My wife, Alice, and I own our home, and we have a daughter, Roberta 'Lynne.' She'll be two in July—pretty cute, too.

"We were in New York for the game in November, spent an evening at the Mike Malloy's, and saw their two sons. Got together again after the game, and spent a little time at the Reunion before going to the Commodore where we saw Tony Malony and McCloy and his fiancée. Together we made a tour of several places, and ended up eating hamburgers about 4 a. m.

"Saw Ed Keenan last year at Ragnham Dog Track where he held an executive position. Evidently it wasn't peanuts."

An announcement of good news from John H. Adams: "I was married June 25, 1949, to the former Phyllis Tack of St. Mary's College, and on May 21, 1950, a baby girl, Gail Christopher, was born." John's address in Shaker Heights, Ohio, is 25601 Lake Shore Boulevard.

Vince Bitter, Jr., has come through with some lengthy copy: "First off, Jim Crowley, who is living down the block, just got back from a two-week training stint at the New London sub base. He belongs to the Reserve sub unit at the Brooklyn Navy Yard along with Bill Dougherty and Bernie Carlson. Actually Bernie was the only submariner in the NROTC class of '44. Jim's an instructor in Navigation. He and his wife, Eileen, are sporting a beautiful little daughter.

"Bernie, by the way, is practicing law in New York. Bill is working for Liberty Mutual Insurance in New York, and Jim is a freight agent for Moore-McCormack.

"Ran into Charlie Montrie on lower Broadway one day. He's going after another degree at Yale, this one in Economics.

"Pete Belmont ran a close second to Joe Byrne for the office of secretary of the New Jersey Alumni Club last Monday night. Pete's in the Personnel Department of Prudential Life in Newark. Bob Larkin was there, too.

"'Little Joe' Sansone surprised everyone by announcing that he was married last April to a South Bend lass whom he met in Burlington, North Carolina. Both had been working at the local broadcasting station. Joe's now back at school taking up law.

"John Mann, my old roomie, long since a married man and poppa, has settled down to being the Lawrence, Mass., area salesman for Lever Brothers. He tells me Jim Gower is at St. Phillips Seminary in Boston studying to be a Padre. Ed Ghigliotti is coach of the baseball team at New Dorp High on Staten Island.

"As for me, took a sojourn at the Harvard Business School with Frank Eck, Art Connors, Jack Painter, Jack Alexander, Paul Ames, Vince Oppenheim, John Hickey, Frank MacCauley. We graduated as a crew last June. I'm now a staff accountant for Touche, Niven, Bailey and Smart in New York. Other N.D. men here are Joe Rizzi and Pete Brady in the New York office, and Dan Shouvin in the Boston office."

A highly interesting letter from Brother Carlos Dolan, C.S.C., who is assistant director of Boysville in Michigan. But it's his story, so we'll let him speak for himself:

"Brother Hilarion Brezik, C.S.C., '37, directs Boysville, the school which deals with 'Boys with a problem—not problem boys.' Brother Alexander Buckley, C.S.C., '30, teaches and coaches.

"Maintained by the K. of C. of Michigan, Boysville uses the preventive system of Don Bosco for building useful men. The aim of Boysville is to help keep boys, whose environment may be temporarily unhealthy or insecure, on an even keel. The ones who come to this school have never been in court, but they are in need of guidance, understanding, and training to prevent the possibility of their taking the wrong turn. They come from homes disrupted by death, divorce, desertion, or incompatibility. "So at their own request, or through the K. of C., they come to Boysville, where a 10 months school is operated with a four year course available. They are taught trades and crafts in addition to the regular academic courses. My schedule includes everything from typing to horsemanship.

"Located on the site of the old Edison Institute, started by Henry Ford, the school operates a 130-acre farm. The boys help with some of the work, but it is not primarily a 'working' schedule. We have a swimming pool, which becomes an ice-skating rink in winter, and Brother Alexander conducts a fine athletic program.

"You asked for a few words, Bill. I can't tell you about this project in a few words. I'm enthusiastic over the work being done here with 68 boys; this place is not 2 years old. There should be more of these fine 'preventive' schools, to offer a helping hand to a boy before he has become delinquent."

I'm sure your enthusiasm is shared by your classmates, Brother Carlos, and many of them, especially the Knights of Columbus, will be interested in contacting you or the Michigan K. of C. to learn more of your program. The address for Boysville is Clinton, Michigan.

And finally we have a long and interesting letter in the neat hand of Marc Augremann. He writes:

"It seems that I was the first one from Notre Dame to start working for Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., here at their central engineering laboratories. (N. Y.) Since then two more Notre Dame men have arrived. Dan George, who was in several graduate math classes with me in 1946-47, is now in the Electronics section. Dr. Buck, formerly of the Physics Department at school, now heads a section in thermionic research. So Notre Dame is well represented.

"Just this past week I received a wedding announcement from Bob Meuleman, '44, whose engagement was announced in the last issue of THE ALUMNUS. He is working for the General Electric Company in Syracuse. When I visited him about a month ago, he told me that 'Chuck' Theis, '48, also with G.E., was down in Texas for a while but would be back in Syracuse after the work down there was completed.

"Since my start here I've been in the Circuits section, and last year was largely responsible for the design of Sylvania's new television-FM Sweep Generator currently being advertised. At present I am doing further circuit work in TV.

"Just three months ago our family increased by one. We now have two girls, Jeann Marie and Marcella Anne. I hope that some day we have a boy so that we can send him to Notre Dame.

"We expect to be in Clarksburg, West Va., next month visiting both of our families. By the way, my brother Camille, '42, is still in Clarksburg with his family. They too have had a new addition. A daughter, Stephanie, arrived there this past May 18th. I thought I might pass this on for the benefit of his old classmates.

"I wonder how many of the E.E. boys of the class of '44 are around this section. I would like to hear from them. You might pass on my address to the column." With much pleasure, Mark—18 Whitney Ave., Floral Park, L. I., N. Y.

That's all. Wrap it up.

Let's start off with a report from Bill Russell. Bill is still with Foley Bros. in Houston and is sharing an apartment with Tom Brennan. Bill sees Dave Murphy occasionally. Bill is looking forward to that Minneapolis vacation come August.

Ed Aylward just graduated from the Kansas City University Law School, passed the Missouri Bar in April and since March has been serving as Law Clerk for the Federal Judge in Kansas City. Ed is joining the Holy Cross Fathers in August. Best

The Alumni Board and Some of the 105 Club Presidents

It was an all-star program casting the Alumni Board and representatives from 70 alumni clubs throughout the nation and abroad.

of luck Ed. Ed also reports that John Trave is Public Relations Director for the Kansas City Blues Baseball Team. Ed heard Jack Quinlan broadcast the Bradley-CCNY game this spring. Jack received high praise in K. C. for the fine job. Jack broadcasts for a Peoria station under the name Jack Quinn and follows Bradley everywhere. Ed also reported that Russ Farrel works for a milk distributor in K. C.

I received a graduation invitation from John and Pete Kane. Both got their M.D. degrees from Wayne University on June 15.

Saw several '48 men at Reunion time — Earl Bushman from Providence and Jim Ferstel from Wilmette. On campus for the Club President's Council were Bill Daly, Frank Sanfilippo, Oscar Quoidback, Fred Jones and Joe Sargus. Joe Conerty was down for his brothers' graduation. Joe is plugging for that Illinois Bar Exam. Bob Logan stopped in the office the other day. Bob had his wife and 2 children with him in South Bend.

Bob Burke, the Cincinnati Club President, reported that Jim Burke was getting married on June 17. Bob Hennessey and Dick Zawlocki were married sometime in June. Joe O'Reilly was married on January 14 to Elizabeth Ann Tubman of Lakewood, Ohio. After having served with the FBI in Washington and Cleveland, Joe is now stationed in Portland, Ore. Joe has worked with the following Notre Dame men: Cecil Jordan, Paul Kelly, Jack Donaghue and Joe O'Hara.

Joe Quill is connected with the Prosecutor's office at Indianapolis as Chief Trial Deputy in Criminal Court No. 2. Frank Hicks is associated with another Notre Damer, Tom Jones, '29, in law practice in Boise, Idaho. Frank Robinson is associated with the same Naval Reserve Battalion as I am.

Jack Randall was married to Pat Crowe, sister of Fred Crowe, '49, on June 17. Notre Dammers present for the wedding were Bill Voll, Bart O'Brien, Jim Griffin, Callix Miller, Maury Mahon, John McShane, Jim Ledwith and yours truly.

A card from Bill Hunthey—Bill and Carol Creighton were married April 12 in Charlotte, N. C. Jack and Carol met Jack Rousseau and his new bride while honeymooning in Bermuda. Bill and his wife are living in Daytona Beach, Fla. Tom Dorr paid them a visit recently.

Steve Pavela is back at Notre Dame this summer for a few Education Courses. Steve is coaching at St. Mary's, Michigan City, while teaching History besides. Steve said that Joe Yonto has just been appointed Head Football, Basketball and Baseball Coach at St. Stephen's High School, Port Huron, Mich. Steve paid Don and Jenna Weibel a visit recently when his team was up in Kenosha. The Pavelas are pretty proud of 14-month-old Junior. Steve said that Tom Kerrigan is a detective in Michigan City.

A note from Bernie Lynch announced that their first child, a son, Bernard John, was born on April 16. Bernie's roomie, Bob Schirmer from Syracuse was the godfather. Bernie is working for the Duquesne Light Co. in Pittsburgh doing lighting and wiring design for the commercial sales department.

A card from Barton Johnson in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., announced the birth of a daughter, Mary Stephanie, on May 23.

Jack (John H.) McCormick has recently shifted jobs and is now associated with Remington-Rand at Lima, O.

Your Class Secretary: Herman A. Zitt, Foundation Office, Notre Dame, Ind.

I notice that our class is doing quite nicely for itself in the Foundation statistics and, in that connection, I have received a letter from the Director, John Cackley, extending the University's warm appreciation for our efforts. Just thought I'd pass the good word on to you.

Spent a weekend in South Bend not so long ago and saw Bud Condron, editor of the '48 "Dome," who was also there for a visit. Bud is with the Pflaum Publishing Co. of Dayton, Ohio.

I told you once that I keep running across '49ers in the Union Station here in Chicago. The latest discovery was Paul Kennedy, product of Dean McCarthy's College of Commerce and now with the insurance brokerage firm of Marsh & McLinnon. Before going to work Paul and his brother Tom (ND, '50) spent the summer touring Europe.

Last ALUMNUS we managed to get Mary Agnes Riley and John Marget married on June 18, 1950. Well, the joke is on us because Mary and John were married on June 18, 1949, and were celebrating their first anniversary. Our slip is showing and we offer apologies.

Tom McQuire writes to tell us that he is working with the Fidelity and Deposit Company's Milwaukee office and that he has become engaged (on the 12th of May) to Miss Peggy Collins of St. Louis who attended St. Mary's in '45 and '46.

From the Old Southwest comes this pleasant note from Jack Sweeney: "Before I continue any further I think it best to pass on to you the news of my engagement and approaching marriage (June 3rd) to Marilyn Frances Barrett of Fairmont, Nebraska. Marilyn graduated from St. Mary's last June. Since my departure from ND I have been employed by the University of California Scientific Laboratories at Los Alamos, N. M. I'm with the accounting department and so far I have been progressing along nicely. . . ."

Phil Reilly stopped at the agency the other day for a chat. Phil is doing sales work for the Reilly Printing Company of Chicago and lives out in Crystal Lake.

Bob Cianchetti writes from Brooklyn that he is doing work as a Social Investigator with the New York City Department of Welfare. He was married to Rose Guarine also of Brooklyn March 15. Greg Halpin and Joe Fahey came in for the wedding.

Tom Landgren and Harry McDonald are doing engineering work for the Automatic Electric Co. of Chicago.

Paul Reidman is with International Harvester in Rochester, N. Y.

Carl Eilers is with Garver Tank over in East Chicago.

Bill Casey was married to Rosemarie Hessberg, June 16.

Jack Evans is an architect in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Karl Ackerman is with the United States Embassy in Rome.

John McKinley is with the Great American Insurance Co. of New York—Chicago office.

Jerry Specht works for Mitchell-Hutchins, investment brokers, here in Chicago.

Edward M. Jordanchik is working for the Standard Oil of South Bend on a full-time basis in the Accounting Department.

Charlie Cain has recently left Kansas City, Mo., to accept a position with Koret of California, where he is undergoing a training period in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Richard S. Brosk is working at the State Hospital for Crippled Children in South Bend. Dick lives at 237 Tonti Ave., South Bend.

Norman Kopeck, of South Bend, has been elected president of the Student Law Association. He is a senior in the law school.

Bob Connelly, wrote that he is working for the Hoffmaster Paper Co. of Oshkosh, Wis., with the sales department.

Joseph J. Soldo, has a position with Penn State, at State College, Pa., in internal auditing. He was married June 17th. His home address is 226 S. 39th St., Philadelphia 4, Pa.
