THERE'S A NEW WORLD COMIN'

Happenings

As this issue of the ALUMNUS makes its way around the country and the world to the Men of Notre Dame, we here are quite thankful to be emerging from the grip of another long, cold Northern Indiana winter. The icicles have begun to drop from the eaves, the rippling waters of the Lakes St. Mary and St. Joseph are visible again, save on the days when Old Man Winter decides to pay a fleeting curtain call. Small buds are beginning to appear on bare branches and that slight hint of green is returning to nature's carpet.

Though it has been cold and snowy much of the time here, in recent months, life under the Golden Dome has been happening at a rapid pace. Much of that life and what its implications have been is reflected on the pages within.

We have taken our turn at discussing the environment with the able assistance of Jean Horiszny of the Information Services Office. Jean's bag is science and technology and she adroitly explains in our feature article what ND's scientists and technicians are attempting to do to save our environment.

Ticket Manager Don Bouffard takes his first turn at explaining football ticket priorities and policies for the upcoming season. Don indicates that athletic department personnel learned a lot from the trip down Dallas way, a few months back. Here's hoping we all get a chance to find out just what it was they learned — say in a place like Miami, about Jan. 1, 1971.

We also offer an interesting discussion of the merits and shortcomings of the ROTC program, particularly as it relates to life in a university. Ed Smith, a senior ROTC cadet, and Bill Mitchell, a junior theology major who doubles as a staff writer for this magazine, present two views of the situation.

In addition, there's the usual fare of campus news, sports, Class Notes, and a good serving of Alumni Ask.

In closing let me say that we were somewhat surprised at the return on our special enclosure in the last issue. Alumni Association President Don O'Brien gave the alumni body an opportunity to speak out on any issue that suited you. So far our returns have not yet reached the .002 of a per cent mark. Wouldn't you be surprised too?

Peace.

Solving the problems of the world is traditionally an "ivory tower" pursuit, scoffed at by the pragmatists and doers of the world. But as wars, overpopulation, pollution and depletion of resources threaten to destroy or radically alter life on earth, many are turning to the universities for leadership in meeting the ecological crisis.

Scholars at ND have been working quietly for as long as 10 years to combat phases of air and water pollution; to improve family planning programs; and to provide basic knowledge necessary for new approaches to the environment. ND's three-pronged program of research, education and social action encompasses ecological abuses from the campus itself, to the South Bend community, to national and world concerns.

Drs. Mark W. Tenney and Wayne F. Echelberger, associate professors of civil engineering, have demonstrated that a common air pollutant produced by burning coal can remove organic materials and nutrients from polluted lake water. Working with an isolated column of water at Stone Lake in Cassapolis, Mich., the two engineers showed that fly ash could reduce the concentration of contaminating nutrients in water. In the laboratory, at least, the ash was able to form a seal over the bottom muds preventing the pollutants from reinfesting the water.

Although the preliminary results are encouraging, the two engineers are not offering fly ash as a panacea for all polluted bodies of water. In any ecological problem, they explain, a cure must not only correct the immediate ill, but prove safe for the entire environmental system. With Drs. Thomas C. Griffing, assistant professor of biology, Francis Verhoff, assistant professor of chemical engineering and Philip C. Singer, assistant professor of civil engineering, the two researchers are now trying to predict the probable effects of fly ash on the general chemistry and ecology of Stone Lake. Before actually dumping large quantities of fly ash into the lake, Tenney, Echelberger and Singer will study the chemical environment; Griffing will provide ecological information; and Verhoff will prepare a computer-programmed systems analysis of the lake, which will allow the group to predict theoretical results of fly ash on the total lake system.

Thermal pollution, which threatens to render even large lakes like Lake Michigan recreationally dead, has received scientific attention only in recent years. Albin A. Szewczyk and Steve Piacsek, professors of aerospace and mechanical engineering, are particularly interested in studying the possible effects of locating power plants around the Great Lakes. Their research will form part of a coordinated study of thermal pollution by scientists at Argonne National and perhaps even produce some beneficial effects, such as opening the lakes' cold northern beaches to bathers.

Underground water pollution presents a little-discussed problem of serious proportions, Dr. Erhard M. Winkler, associate professor of geology, believes. He points out that large quantities of precious fresh water are held in reservoirs underground, and can be the major source of clean water for many cities and towns. When poisonous wastes are pumped into the ground for disposal, the possibility exists that the poisons will reach the freshwater reserves, creating

It is estimated that Americans pour some two billion tons of pollutants into the atmosphere annually.

Laboratories.

The two researchers are using the computer to predict the complicated behavior of thermal "plumes"—the widening cone of heated water that spews forth from power plants. They hope that their program will allow scientists to predict the behavior of plumes under varying conditions of wind, plant size, currents, bottom structure, temperature differences and general lake circulation. Such knowledge can help power plants choose locations which minimize the undesirable effects of thermal pollution, a pollution problem impossible to clear up. Although the poisons are supposedly deposited in areas which are not connected to freshwater supplies, Winkler explains that the material can travel along faults and cracks in the rock structure to active or potential water reserves. No one knows the rock fault patterns in enough detail to assure safety, he adds, and earthquakes may develop which can easily alter the existing patterns. In fact, he says, the very pressure of pumping poisons into the earth can open up channels which allow seepage.

The team of Singer, Tenney and Echelberger conduct pollution research on the St. Joseph River.

As a geologist, Winkler is also concerned about the effects of pollution on the soil, rocks and building materials of the earth. Pollution can exhaust the purifying ability of clays, can corrode rocks and stone buildings, and can alter the soil and atmosphere on which all life depends.

Verhoff is the generalist of the environmental researchers, taking a broad, "systems" approach to the variety of factors affecting the environment. His major work is with computers and mathematics, and his basic premise is that every facet of the environment affects every other facet. While ecologists might identify an oxygen limit or heat limit in guessing at the reasons for a fish kill, a systems approach might show that an interaction of many factors was the cause. Rather than studying a single pollutant in air pollution, a systems expert would attempt to look at the whole soup of chemicals, taking into account how each pollutant interacts with others, and with natural components of the air.

Verhoff believes the catastrophic tone of much environment news to be scare tactics, and personally expects the adaptability of man to find answers for the coming problems. He regards the much-publicized population bomb as a scapegoat for other political, economic and social problems. Considering the present rate of scientific development, he expects new and as yet unconceived methods of population analysis and control to be available, when and if, sheer numbers of people become a problem.

Dr. Donald Barrett, associate professor of sociology and a member of the former Papal Birth Control Commission, is gravely concerned about the massive populations and awesome growth rates of developing countries. His research in Colombia, Peru and Brazil has convinced him that a lower population in these countries is the only road to a life with human dignity for millions of impoverished Latins. He explains that a population explosion caused by lowered death rates and stable birth rates places an intolerable strain on the government's ability to supply the minimum necessities of food and housing, let alone its ability to provide education, health and welfare. However, he adds that "strings" attached to U.S. aid can only strain relations with friendly governments, and often leads to the suspicion that the U.S. is only afraid of being outnumbered by other races.

Barrett, however, does not believe that the U.S. has a population problem and has little patience with Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Finch and others, who imply that the country's major problems stem from population. Barrett calls the major problems redistribution of people away from crowded urban centers, and a more sensible attitude towards reusing wastes.

Griffing shares Barrett's concern for the developing nations, but also fears a serious population problem in the U.S.—not from sheer numbers, but from numbers of people with prosperous and wasteful life styles. He points out that each American produces more than 25 times more pollution and requires 25 times more food, resources and power than an Indian or Latin. Presently, he points out, America can maintain her current affluence only by consuming one-half of the world's food and producing nearly two-thirds of the world's pollution. Increased population of Americans, each demanding an affluent life style, may actually damage the earth more than increased populations in developing countries, he believes.

Professor of sociology, Dr. William T. Liu, concurs with Griffing that the answer to the population problem is not technological, but personal and social. Liu, director of the Institute for the Study of Population and Social Change, is convinced that there is indeed a pressing threat of overpopulation. The question is, he says, what are we going to do about it? He is frankly pessimistic about the success of presently conceived family planning programs, and is working with his staff to sort out the many complications and problems associated with effectively reducing birth rates.

Birth control, Liu explains, is in the middle of man's most contradictory dreams and values. Some will not accept "unnatural" methods for religious reasons, while embracing the artificial medicines which keep them alive longer. Others dream of "growing communities" and countries, while also clinging to the desire for wilderness and space. The idea of contraception may be completely foreign to people who could never afford the luxury of planning a day in advance and it often runs counter to nationalistic aims and racial pride.

Liu is hopeful that intricate understanding of family, societal and personal relationships in developing countries will yield some clues on introducing family planning. His major fear is that biologists will place their faith in a technological gimmick, rather than in the patient, careful work of social planners.

Drs. John F. Santos and B. J. Farrow, chairman and assistant chairman of the department of psychology, are also seeking new and better information on the psychological factors which determine why people accept or reject family planning services. Their extensive research plan titled "Psychological Studies Relating to Family Planning" proposes to investigate psychological, religious and cultural factors which influence involvement in family planning programs in this country and Mexico. In addition, they propose to assess the psychological impact of family planning on interrelationships and well-being within the family unit.

This spring, Griffing introduced a popular course on "Biology and the Population Problem," explaining the intricate relationships between living organisms and their environment. His premise is that the resources of the world are finite, unequally distributed and already heavily exploited. Therefore, he believes, continued unplanned population growth will aggravate human misery and suffering; lessen the value of human life; further disrupt critical ecosystem interactions; further deteriorate man's physical and psychological environment, and ultimately risk survival of the human species. Man must accept the responsibility of regulating his own birth rate, Griffing believes, to achieve a stable population density in harmony with the wise use of his environment and its resources.

Tenney, Echelberger, Singer and Verhoff are teaching a course called "Man and His Environment." Like Griffing's, the course is open to any ND or St. Mary's student who wants to learn more about the environment, and about the difficult technical problems presented by pollution and population.

The department of architecture created a new graduate program two years ago, built around the idea that design should consider human beings and their needs, as well as the environment and its imperatives. Called "Environics," the new program stresses the interrelationship of human life and the environment, and is dedicated to training new leaders in urban design, pollution control, and other areas.

The psychology department is venturing into the opening field of "ecological psychology." Farrow and Santos are beginning preliminary work on the effects of air pollution, malnutrition and cultural deprivation on the psychological functioning of both children and adults. They are particularly concerned with the influence of pollution and malnutrition on the learning and adaptability of children, and the extent to which these factors may hasten the psychological symptoms of aging.

The faculty of the biology department passed a resolution asking the ND campus to lead the way in cleaning up its own environment. Recently, ND hired Edward A. Riley as environmental health and safety manager, to oversee food preparation, test equipment, enforce radiation standards and test water in the wells and lakes. In addition, the University purchased a new boiler for the power plant which has an electrostatic precipitator to remove black particles from coal smoke. Presently, it dumps no sewage into St. Mary's or St. Joseph Lakes, but sends its wastes to the South Bend sewage treatment facilities.

Presently, most social action programs center around the coming Environmental Day of Concern, scheduled for April 22. Two graduate students in civil engineering, Joe Pavoni and Dick Murley, recently organized the Michiana Forum on the Environment, a community-wide group concerned about local pollution problems. The forum is the primary organizer of the coming day of concern, and plans to take the teaching to the South Bend schools and community groups. Forum members are particularly concerned about air pollution from industry and power plants in South Bend and on the campus.

Griffing applauds these efforts, but notes that the chimney of the power plant still spews forth sulfates and other noxious chemicals which decay stone, rot paint, kill plants and may be a health hazard. He also points out that heat pollution from the power plant has endangered aquatic life in St. Joseph Lake and has stimulated algae growth which is killed by applications of copper sulfate crystals. The crystals can be considered pollutants in themselves, he adds. Griffing is optimistic about the success of a planned cooling tower and about coming strict standards for radiation safety, and he hopes that tight funds at the University will not slow progress toward pollution control at ND.

Mr. Riley will be the lookout.

UNIVERSITY

Academic life at ND continues to take on new aspects.

A new twist

Major modifications in ND's varied academic curricula will take effect next year as a direct result of the Curriculum Revision Committee report recently submitted to and approved by the University's Academic Council.

After two years of study, the committee, which included students as voting members, recommended increased flexibility and more student control in curriculum, a personalized approach to education, and the dovetailing of living and learning experiences.

One of the main thrusts of the committee's 11 recommendations involves increased cooperation with St. Mary's College on many fronts. The committee received three separate proposals for an experimental college during its deliberations, and subsequently recommended the appointment of a coordinator and an advisory board to plan "a residential, co-educational, cross-college program in the sophomore year to experiment broadly in innovative academic methodology and to test new educational departures." The earliest possible date mentioned for implementation was the fall of 1971.

In other instances of increased cooperation with SMC, the committee adopted a common schedule and grading system as well as a new, joint academic calendar which includes an earlier beginning and conclusion to the academic year and eliminates the "lame duck" session between the end of Christmas vacation and the end of the first semester.

The committee recommended placing increased freedom and responsibility on the student to plan his own education, while at the same time encouraging more active faculty counseling, especially in the transitional sophomore year when students leave a Freshman Year Program and have yet to establish a firm footing in a major field of study.

In the area of required courses, the University-wide 12 hours in theology and philosophy were reduced to six hours each and a three-hour fine arts requirement was added in the College of Arts and Letters. The reduction of the theology and philosophy requirements is an attempt to achieve higher levels of quality by reducing the departmental commitments in total number of hours offered. The fine arts requirement grew out of student complaints about insensitivity to aesthetics on campus.

Other ND colleges also revamped their curricula with an eye toward innovative and student-centered education. One recommendation of the committee specifically endorsed "an increasing diversity of academic programs."

The curriculum revision includes stress on more community involvement and work-study programs. The report favored increased community involvement both on the University level and on the individual student level. The possibility of alternating periods of study with periods of work was broached, with detailed programs left up to the individual colleges.

Attention was given to ND's use of educational media. The commingling of contemporary educational media with individualized education was given a high priority, with emphasis placed on the use of media to improve the quality of teaching, not to increase the quantity of learners.

The report also gave a solid vote of confidence and a mandate for expansion to include students from all colleges to ND's foreign study programs, which now include Innsbruck, Austria; Angers, France; Tokyo, Japan, and Cali, Columbia.

The report also stresses the need of imaginative approaches to the residence hall as a learning environment, including the scheduling of seminar discussions in dormitories. It further recommends active participation by students in "appropriate academic committees and councils," excluding a few such as those involving admissions, faculty appointments and promotions, and student fellowships and scholarships. The report makes it possible for juniors and seniors to select one non-major course each semester on a pass-fail basis.

"Any curriculum," the report commented, "is a changing and partial arrangement. Probably the most successful curriculum is the one which has motivated its students to a high proportion of independent study."

Arty concern

The old familiar fieldhouse has a new name, the University Arts Center. A newly formed faculty-student University Arts Council decided that if there was to be real participation in the arts, a place was needed for the students to experiment, to display, to gather and hear the criticism of their peers. When the news spread on campus that the fieldhouse was doomed for a Thanksgiving 1969 destruction, the Council began to act. A rally was held in November in an attempt to save the building and ultimately Father Hesburgh gave a six-month reprieve.

The finance committee of the Council estimated that 1.6 million dollars would be necessary to make the building workable and proposals have been sent to several foundations throughout the country requesting financial assistance.

Meanwhile, the Council's program committee drew up the philosophy of the project "An appeal to the whole man, that he learn to relate to himself and to society through the medium of the arts." To encourage a bringing together of all the arts the Council sponsored a week-long "Festival Mixed Bag." From March 1-5, the festival presented student poets, classical and pop musicians, interpretive dancers, film makers and playwrights, all performing against the background of the largest student art exhibit in the history of the University. Three hundred pieces were viewed by more than 1,600 visitors, and if student participation was the goal, the festival certainly succeeded with more than 2,000 from ND and St. Mary's sharing in the event.

The festival took place entirely in the fieldhouse and helped to make the plans for its reconstruction more plausible. The renovated building would house the entire art department, faculty-student conference rooms, a speech and drama unit, rooms for film making, music centers, and lounges where students could gather for critique sessions.

The fieldhouse takes on a new look.

Early summer will find the Vice-Presidents' Council deciding the fate of the fieldhouse. The University Arts Council invites Alumni to help insure the salvation of that historic campus landmark.

Biafran relief

Students for Biafran Relief, an international movement conceived and headquartered at ND, has spread to colleges and universities across the country and is currently channeling funds to the Nigerian Red Cross in an effort to stem the tide of death and starvation in the former African secessionist state of Biafra.

Thomas S. Hamilton, a freshman and one of four brothers to attend the University in recent years—the other three graduated in 1962—returned from Christmas vacation intent on making a personal donation to the Biafran cause. After he decided to expand the idea in an attempt to involve more of the ND campus, the effort has mushroomed into a nationwide, student-oriented movement.

In the course of organizing and soliciting some $5,000 from the ND-SMC community, the group has contacted some 1,300 educational institutions in all 50 states and two U.S. territories in its attempt to raise $1 million for relief of the Biafran people. According to Hamilton, the idea seems to have taken hold on a great many campuses and he is optimistic about the eventual outcome of the drive. It may be impossible to compute a final tabulation of the results, however, since many of the splinter groups are operating independently.

In addition to soliciting support from students across the country, Hamilton has spent some time in New York and Washington seeking the endorsements of government leaders and media men. To date, such notable politicians as Senators George Murphy and Alan Cranston of California and Vance Hartke and Birch Bayh of Indiana have supported the drive. Other groups to approve the movement include the United States National Student Assn., the Young World Development Program, the 4-H Clubs of America, United Press International, the Associated Press and the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.

Many ND faculty, administrators and students have also been active in the movement, which accepts contributions through P.O. Box 516, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

Asked why he initiated such a movement, the California resident answered, "We organized the group because, aside from the humanitarian aspect, which is of course primary, we wished to make it appear as a constructive form of student activism." Hamilton pointed out that the money obtained will be used for food, medical supplies and transportation costs. He also commented that the group is operating strictly for humanitarian reasons and does not or never has supported the resurgence of the conflict.

The 1970 Laetare Medal, ND's highest honor, has been awarded to Dr. William B. Walsh, a Washington, D.C., physician who founded "Project HOPE" and launched a hospital ship on mercy missions around the world.

In announcing Dr. Walsh's designation on the eve of Laetare Sunday, Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh CSC, University president, commented, "In the very decade in which our technology took us 240,000 miles to the moon, Dr. Walsh's S.S. Hope, the world's first peacetime hospital ship, traveled an equal distance healing the sick of a vast and varied human family. He has shown us that nothing makes the traditional Christian virtues so contemporary as simply putting them into practice. ND is proud to add his name to its list of Laetare Medal recipients."

Dr. Walsh is the sixth holder of a medical degree to receive the award, which is bestowed annually on an outstanding Catholic layman who has distinguished himself in his chosen field of endeavor and who has led an exemplary private life. Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. received the 1969 medal and other recent recipients include R. Sargent Shriver, diplomat; J. Peter Grace, industrialist; Phyllis McGinley, poet; George Meany, labor leader; and former President John F. Kennedy.

A Brooklyn, N.Y., native, Dr. Walsh received his B.S. in biology from St. John's U. in 1940 and his M.D. from Georgetown U. three years later. After his internship and residency, he served as medical officer aboard a destroyer in W.W. II's Pacific Theater. The poor health conditions he witnessed in the South Pacific inspired an idea of returning to the area with a floating medical center. After 12 years in private practice, he founded the People-to-People Health Foundation, Inc., and "Project HOPE" (Health Opportunity for People Everywhere).

The physician now divides his time between administrative duties in his Washington headquarters and sojourns aboard the 15,000-ton hospital ship that has visited numerous foreign lands. Much of his time is devoted to raising the $5 million a year it takes to keep his medical center afloat. He is currently gathering support for a second ship.

Dr. Walsh sees a direct tie between the S.S. Hope and world peace. "There is nothing more miserable or hopeless than a man who is too sick or despondent to work. It is people in such a state of despair who are most susceptible of being persuaded to violence." Dr. Walsh is married to a nurse and is the father of three sons, all of whom have worked aboard the hospital ship.

Chancellor-president idea pushed

About 1,000 ND and SMC students and teachers have signed a petition supporting the creation of a chancellor-president structure in the University administration. In a campaign that began in February, a group of about 60 students have proposed that Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh CSC, who has served as president for 18 years, be made chancellor, and Dr. Willis Nutting, who has taught at ND for 35 years, be made president.

The division of labor would relegate responsibility for representing the University in national and international affairs to the chancellor, while the president would be responsible for the internal affairs of the University.

Steve Raymond, a senior from South Bend who helped initiate the campaign, said, "In four years at ND, I have come to two realizations. First, a community of 'students,' i.e., faculty and students, is necessary for real learning. Second, our administrative structure is the major barrier to such a community. Thus, my objective in this campaign is to restructure the administrative structure to allow the president to be a resident teacher. To emphasize this objective we have advocated our greatest teacher, Dr. Nutting, as the man to fill the presidency in our new structure."

The group has sent explanatory letters to Fr. Hesburgh and the 42 members of the board of trustees. Fr. Hesburgh responded with the explanation that "any change of governance here at the University would come from the board of trustees, not from me." He said he thought it inappropriate to comment on the campaign, but said, "As far as I am concerned, your group or anyone else is perfectly entitled to make whatever efforts you wish in these matters." None of the trustees has answered the letter.

The group has stressed the need for a president to be "a permanent resident, always in direct (teaching) contact with the students." They are seeking comments and criticisms of the chancellor-president proposal and ask that they be sent to The Nutting for President Headquarters, Box 813, St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

1969 ANNUAL ALUMNI FUND

Support by Alumni continues

More alumni than ever before contributed one of the leading amounts to the 27th Annual Alumni Fund of the University of Notre Dame during 1969.

Almost half of the University's graduates (49.2 per cent) participated in the program and they contributed $1,810,012 in cash gifts. Honorary alumni (17) added $953,340 for a total of $2,763,352. Only twice before, when individual gifts swelled the total contributed, was a higher figure recorded.

The Alumni Fund is the largest source of unrestricted gifts needed for current operating expenses of the University. Other sources include friends, corporations, foundations and bequests.

The total of 14,667 contributors during 1969 was an increase of 485 over 1968's 14,182 when 49 per cent of those contacted responded. Gifts recorded in 1968 totaled $1,758,558 for alumni and $62,593 for honorary alumni.

Classes of 1928 and 1954, each with individual gifts totaling $100,000 or higher, placed first and second in the accounting of more than 60 classes participating in the program. Bill Dwyer, Chicago, succeeded Pat Canny, Beachwood, Ohio, as class agent for 1928 and maintained the high degree of participation recorded in previous years.

The Class of 1915, with Albert A. Kuhle as class agent, led all classes in participation with 59.4 per cent of its members responding to the annual appeal.

Previous highs in the history of the Annual Alumni Fund were recorded in 1964 when single gifts totaling approximately $800,000 produced a total of $2.1 million, and in 1966 when individual gifts totaling more than $1 million were credited for a total of $2.2 million.

The Annual Alumni Fund will play an increasingly important role in the life of ND with SUMMA, "Notre Dame's Greatest Challenge" nearing its $52 million goal.

GP prospers

Once upon a time a few years back an ad appeared in the Scholastic. It read in part, "Do you have what it takes to be a philosopher king? If you do, don't settle for less" . . . than the General Program of Liberal Studies. In the past two decades some 400 ND men have refused to settle for less and by simple virtue of that fact are alumni of the General Program.

The GP, which this year is celebrating its 20th anniversary as part of the ND curriculum, is a course of study revolving around the great books of history. It began, through the impetus of former president Rev. John Cavanaugh, as a four-year program but in 1955 was modified to a three-year course. Students participate in seminars and tutorials treating the great philosophies and authors of human history.

"The GP was initiated," according to Michael J. Crowe '58, associate professor in and director of the department, "to create an academic program with the objective of integrating various branches of learning with significant student involvement. It provides students with a unique opportunity to learn many things." In addition the GP is the first ND academic program treating the eastern writings and it is the first department to introduce the study of the history of science.

Eleven faculty members serve the department and, according to Crowe, who is the youngest department chairman on campus, they represent various points of view and philosophies and tend to be much more interested in the teaching experience than in research. The program has grown in enrollment to a total of some 110 majors and in recent years has been graduating about 30 per class.

Crowe points out that approximately one-third of all GP graduates end up in the practice of law, but is quick to add that they have distinguished themselves in many specialties. At least 11 ND graduates of the program have served or are serving on the University faculty.

The GP is an unusual program patterned somewhat after the great books curriculum of St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., and Santa Fe, N.M. St. Mary's of California also has a similar program. In an alumni survey conducted in the early 1960's, results indicated that GP graduates were more pleased with their major at ND than the graduates of any other department.

Now concluding its second decade, the General Program of Liberal Studies will celebrate a 20th anniversary reunion this June concurrent with the regular ND Alumni Reunion. Friday, June 11, has been set aside for all GP graduates to return. Great Books seminars will be featured throughout the day and the festivities will be topped off with a dinner honoring Professor Willis Nutting who retires at the conclusion of the academic year. Former faculty and students are welcome, according to Mr. Crowe, and anyone interested should contact his office.

ROTC on campus --- two views

"ROTC Under Fire" blaze the headlines across the country. At Columbia and Harvard, the ROTC units are being discontinued. Puerto Rico U. conducted bloody riots over the question of ROTC on campus. ND discussed the issue last May, but did so while the students were occupied with spring exams. Since then, the campus ROTC has been labeled a "killing school" by one ND professor. This kind of attitude has led one officer from another college to compare ROTC to an embassy on foreign soil.

This attack originated, partly, from the antiwar sentiments in colleges across the country. Indeed, leaders of the Student Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam met recently to decide how "to run the ROTC off every campus from the Atlantic to the Pacific." On another level, the attack directed against ROTC is an academic argument, one which I believe is justified. Finally, at ND the question has arisen as one of the compatibility of ROTC with Christian ideals. These matters deserve serious consideration.

The original purpose of connecting ROTC with the Vietnam war was to force a reduction of officers available for service. To my mind, however, connecting ROTC with the war in Vietnam has the effect of blaming our collective mistakes on the military. Nothing could be more dangerous. This war has divided the country enough already without looking for a scapegoat in the military. It is also a serious mistake for the reason stated in a special report to the president on ROTC "If ROTC were to be removed from the nation's campuses, there would be grave danger of isolating the services from the intellectual centers of the public which they serve and defend."

The question of the academic credibility of ROTC is justified in light of interviews of ROTC students themselves at the U. of Illinois and other schools. It is their belief, as well as mine, that ROTC, as it exists now, is academically inferior to other courses. The solution, it appears, would be legislation providing greater autonomy to participating institutions, perhaps even to the point of making ROTC a program and not a department. This is not to say that ROTC should be eliminated from the university. But the decision to retain ROTC and the question of its relationship to the university should be decided by the entire community.

At ND, the ROTC has been attacked as incompatible with Christian ideals. The underlying assumption is that those students in ROTC are either un-Christian, anti-Christian or to be pitied. To me, this represents an attitude which itself is incompatible with the Christian message. We should always guard against making ourselves the embodiment of absolute good. As long as the university is involved in the real world, it will find that evil cannot be eradicated from the human condition. The Christian community has always recognized this. The Christian university is a place where one should learn to face the reality of the world in the light of Christian ideals. Perhaps then some of the world's cruelties will be softened. So ND does, I think, contribute something to ROTC. But it is not a one-sided affair. ROTC can and does contribute something to our campus: a sense of fraternity, honor, integrity, respect, responsibility, service—all of which we have trouble communicating to each other in our world today.

Edward M. Smith '70

The most popular rationale for keeping ROTC on campus—it serves the needs of both students and society—is of course not by itself convincing. The university is not primarily a student ombudsman service, nor is it a farm team for society. Among the problems facing universities today is the clichéd but real identity crisis. The men who direct the university have a hard time knowing what it can do because they are not sure what it ought to do. The university cannot determine what needs it should fill until it knows what it is itself.

Much money and energy is invested these days in seeking relevance. Perhaps, partly, because many governments have become so irrelevant to society, institutions such as the Church and the university feel as if they must pick up the slack and be relevant. What has resulted, of course, is increased role confusion among all three institutions. The extent of that confusion among universities can be seen best in the light of the campus before the storm, the traditional view of the university.

According to that tradition, a university is concerned first and finally with the learning that goes on among teachers and students. It is not the same kind of teaching that is pursued at a technical school. A university professor is distinguished by the respect he holds for the integrity of the words he speaks and the students he addresses. The teacher strives to inspire his students, moving them to realize their own capacity for learning what is true. He seeks critical understanding from his students, and discourages passive acceptance of what anyone says. The teacher assists the student, most of all, in the latter's becoming what he is to be.

Pragmatists will argue, and rightly so, that a man must do as well as be, that he must have training as well as learning. The question for the university is one of priorities. Is its focus to be teaching or training, and can it afford to dabble in both? First of all, the contradiction between the two must be acknowledged and dealt with. A teacher asks a man to think for himself; a trainer does a man's thinking for him. A teacher asks a man to struggle with the decision and if and/or under what circumstances he is willing to take another man's life. A trainer does all he can to relieve the student of the agony of that decision. A trainer presumes a resolution of the "if and when" problem and simply directs the student in how to do it.

If the university is to be a place of questioning learning, it cannot be a place of unreflective training. It is in the nature of a university to ask the most fundamental questions about whatever it studies. ROTC does not ask questions about killing in national defense; it simply shows students how to do it.

In April of 1969, the New York Times said this of Harvard's decision to eliminate ROTC's academic standing: "That step reflected a recognition that military training has no appropriate place in a liberal arts curriculum and that instructors whose professional accreditation and rank derive from a nonacademic outside authority fit poorly in a self-governing faculty." All of which, it seems, is both true enough and academic enough for Harvard and the Times. At ND, the academic credit issue is finally itself academic. The question more accurately is this: does the training-obedience process of ROTC have any place in the teaching-learning atmosphere of ND?

A ROTC officer once explained to a ND student that "The only good bayonet has guts on both ends." An unfair example? Probably not. Military training is founded on the premise that it can make a man kill or die for his country. However noble many may consider that objective, the training that leads to it is grossly out of place in a university dedicated to the integrity and dignity of its students. To mix military training with real teaching is to deny that integrity and dignity. ROTC's place on the ND campus is finally destructive of the traditional beauty of learning at a university.

SPORTS

The "bridesmaid" role befell ND once again this year, this time on the basketball court. The Fighting Irish made it to the foot of the altar — the Mideast regional — but stumbled on the second step and thereby forfeited an opportunity to tie the knot with the national championship.

It was a season of surprises and records, most of which turned out to be quite pleasant. Coach Johnny Dee's cagers capped the University's 65th basketball campaign by earning their third straight postseason invitation and completing an awesome schedule with a sparkling 21-8 record. Niches in the wire polls' top 10 also came as rewards for an outstanding year. UPI had the Irish eighth in its final ballot while AP ranked them ninth.

All of this transpired in a year that was questionable at the outset because of graduation losses and because Dee could point to only one returning regular in forward Collis Jones. Austin Carr had missed much of his sophomore season with a broken foot and various other injuries had hampered Jackie Meehan, Mike O'Connell and Tom Sinnott.

The junior-dominated team responded in fine fashion to Dee's concepts of the double-post offense and the matching zone defense to produce the Irish mentor's third successive 20-win season. The loss of key personnel at various times during the year and a general lack of consistency at center hurt the Irish against much of the top opposition they faced and was undoubtedly a stumbling block at tourney time.

The Irish opened the campaign impressively by reeling off five straight wins before taking a murderous road trip in which they lost to the nation's three top teams — Kentucky, South Carolina and UCLA — in one week. Losses to old rival Michigan State and Dayton, coupled with an earlier defeat by Kansas, were the only other mars on the ND record prior to NCAA tourney time. In Dayton, they rolled over Mid-America Conference champ, Ohio U., 112-82, before advancing to Columbus and successive losses to Kentucky and Iowa.

The most pleasing aspect of the season from many points of view was the development of Captain Austin Carr. The junior from Washington, D.C., did just about everything but sell tickets for home games and was recognized at the conclusion of the year as a genuine All-American, although he was conspicuously absent from first-team berths on many of the honor teams named.

Irish Captain Austin Carr clicks for two at home against West Virginia.

New Carr?—no thanks!

A close look at the stats reveals that Carr is truly a complete basketball player. He led the team in scoring in every game but one this season and has rewritten the ND record book and added a few pages to the NCAA edition as well.

Some of Carr's particulars include: a 38.1 scoring average for 29 games; a 55.6 shooting percentage; an 82.6 foul shot percentage; an average of 8.3 rebounds per game; an all-time NCAA tourney record of 61 points against Ohio U.; and MVP designation in the NCAA Mideast regional and in the Sugar Bowl Tournament against some of the top talent of the nation. There is much more that can be said of his individual feats but perhaps the most important contribution the quiet black man makes is his leadership.

While much of the attention focused on Carr, there were others without whom the Fighting Irish would have been hard pressed to succeed as well as they did. Junior forward Collis Jones was a strong, steady performer all year, averaging 18.6 and rebounding at a 12.4 clip. Floormen Jackie Meehan, Mike O'Connell and Tom Sinnott provided much of the zip for the ND attack when it was desperately needed. Sophomore Doug Gemmell provided hope for the future, and seniors Jay Ziznewski and John Gallagher picked up the slack when they were called upon late in the season.

It was an enjoyable year for ND basketball fans and prospects for next year look equally bright. But after that, there might be trouble — new Carrs aren't the easiest things to come by.

Good year for icemen

The Irish hockey team prepared the way for its entrance next year into the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. by fashioning an admirable 21-8-1 record in its second season of varsity competition.

Coach Lefty Smith's charges took on opponents from the powerful WCHA, as well as independents from throughout the East and Midwest in completing a 30-game slate. At one time during the season, the Irish were ranked ninth in the country by the WCHA coaches' poll, and the team finished in the 10th spot.

Paced by Canadian freshmen John Noble (59 pts.) and Paul Regan (47 pts.) and by old reliable junior Phil Wittliff (48 pts.) from Port Huron, Mich., ND enjoyed victories over the likes of Ohio U., Hamilton, Penn, Ohio State, Air Force, Colorado College, Bowling Green and St. Mary's of Minnesota. Boston College and Wisconsin were two opponents with a little more ice savvy than the Irish.

Wittliff led the team in goals with 29 and Noble was tops in assists with 35. Dick Tomasoni, a sophomore from South Chisholm, Minn., had a good year in the nets, garnering 587 saves, an .892 goals against average, and a 3.5 goals against average. Other Irish skaters of note include Kevin Hoene (39 pts.), Bill Green (35 pts.), Jim Cordes and Gary Little (27 pts.), John Roselli (26 pts.) and Joe Bonk (23 pts.)

ND and the ACC hosted the 1970 NCAA Fencing Tournament. Some 46 teams from around the country participated.

At home, the Blue and Gold played before an average crowd of some 2,500 for each contest and came up with a 12-1-1 mark against a 9-7 tally on the road. The Irish outscored their opponents 186-108 and were strongest offensively in the third period, edging the opposition 73-40.

Next season ND will join the WCHA, which includes Minnesota, Michigan Tech, Michigan, Michigan State, North Dakota, Denver, Minnesota at Duluth, Colorado College and Wisconsin.

1970 is here

by Donald E. Bouffard Jr, Director of Ticket Sales

It doesn't seem possible that 1970 football is upon us already. Some of us are still cleaning the cotton from our ears—not from the Cotton Bowl, as you might expect; rather from the loud Convocation Center concert appearances over the past year of The Fifth Dimension, Grand Funk Railroad, Johnny Cash, Blood, Sweat and Tears, etc., etc. We're not sure whether the ever-present smile on Bob Cahill's face stems from no longer being in this ticket rat-race, or from not having to meet the deadline for this article for the first time in many, many years.

At its January meeting the board of directors of your Alumni Association requested that the Football Ticket Committee implement further changes (we have not sold any new season tickets since 1966, the parent and visiting team allotments were reduced in 1968) that would make additional seats available to the individual alumnus, particularly for high-interest games. To accomplish this it is necessary that we eliminate the parents of ND students from our distribution priority. (Parents will receive a ticket application for one home game for which we expect to have a public sale.) The 3,000 tickets formerly allotted to parents and the attrition of 500 season tickets since 1966 will increase the Alumni allotment to 16,000 tickets per home game. This quantity will hopefully eliminate the necessity of a lottery for home games with Purdue, Michigan State, etc.

HOME GAMES: We are certain there will be no public sale of tickets for Purdue, Sept. 26, or for Army, Oct. 10. Also, there is a possibility this will hold true for Louisiana State, Nov. 21. However, if alumni clubs are interested in a bloc of tickets for the latter game, or for Pittsburgh, Nov. 7, or Georgia Tech, Nov. 14, we will make tentative reservations if you contact the ticket manager before June 30. No firm commitment can be made on any game for an alumni club bloc until the advance sale closes July 15. Because bloc orders are filled after all individual orders have been assigned, they are invariably end zone seats.

AWAY GAMES: The site of our Oct. 17 clash with the U. of Missouri has been switched from Busch Stadium in St. Louis to the Missouri campus at Columbia. This change was necessitated by the possibility that the St. Louis Cardinals may be playing the seventh game of the World Series in Busch that same afternoon. While this may seem remote to some of you non-Cardinal fans, remember that last fall's ND-Army game was not scheduled in Shea Stadium because of the "possibility that the Mets might be in the series." Need I say more!!

Our policy of allotting only 5,000 tickets to the visiting team when it plays in ND stadium will boomerang twice this year—Michigan State at East Lansing and Missouri at Columbia. Hence ND will receive only 5,000 tickets for each of these games and will have to limit geographically the distribution of applications in each case. Contributors in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois will receive applications for Michigan State. Missouri applications will be limited to contributors in Missouri, Kentucky, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois. However, please understand that receipt of an application is not a guarantee that you will receive tickets. It is certain that we will have to conduct a lottery of applications on the opening day of the advance sale (June 20).

Ticket supplies for our games with Northwestern at Evanston, Navy at Philadelphia, and Southern California at Los Angeles should be sufficient to accommodate most individual applicants and perhaps some alumni clubs in those areas.

Don Bouffard, the ticket man.

BOWL GAME?? That question will not be answered until mid-November. However, based upon the experience of this year's Cotton Bowl we have established the following procedures: all contributing alumni who were eligible for applications for the regular season will receive a Bowl application for a maximum of two tickets. The applications of contributors in a geographic area surrounding the game site, and dictated by the quantity of tickets available, will be specially marked and filled first. If the ticket supply is not then exhausted, those from outside the stated area will be accommodated. This seems to be the fairest method and the one most often suggested by those of you who make your views known to us.

The mechanics of the advance sale are the same as the last several years. They are listed for you here and we remind you that only by your adherence to them can we serve you efficiently and effectively.

Advance Sale Procedure. 1. Contributors to the 27th Annual Alumni Fund in 1969, religious and honorary degree holders plus the June Class of 1970 are eligible for Advance Sale order forms for the 1970 football season. A contribution recorded after Jan. 1, 1970, affords ticket priority for 1971 season but NOT for 1970.

2. Alumni Advance Sale opens June 20. Advance Sale forms are limited to TWO tickets per game, are not transferable and will be honored until July 15, or until the ticket supply is exhausted, whichever occurs first. Any order arriving after that date, regardless of category, will receive General Use treatment. Moreover, an order filed before July 15 is not guaranteed a preferred location (see Point 5 below).

3. In order to be seated with a fellow alumnus you must send your applications together in the same envelope. Because of our large volume of mail we cannot seat you together unless you follow this procedure.

4. The Alumni Advance Sale order form is designated as such in bold type on its face for ready identification. Eligible alumni should receive these before June 20. If you have not—and you're certain of your eligibility—notify the ticket manager at once. Our envelopes are addressed by the Alumni Association but filled and mailed by the ticket office. Omissions are usually caused by address changes. So, if your address differs from that used for this issue of the ALUMNUS, forward that change at once to the Alumni Office.

5. Seats are allotted in accordance with date received, modified only as follows: ORDERS ARRIVING BEFORE OPENING DAY (JUNE 20) ARE INTEGRATED WITH THOSE RECEIVED JUNE 20. AT CLOSE OF BUSINESS JUNE 20, ALL APPLICATIONS ON HAND AT THAT POINT ARE THOROUGHLY SHUFFLED, DRAWN BY LOT AND ASSIGNED A SEQUENCE NUMBER TO ESTABLISH THE ORDER OF SEAT ASSIGNMENT FOR EACH GAME. As many as 8,000 orders for each of the more popular games may arrive for processing June 20 (accounting for 16,000 tickets). Obviously, even a first-day order could be on the 50-yard line or beyond the goal line, depending on the luck of the draw. This is the answer to the alumnus' question as to why, although he ordered for all games on the very first day, he received fine seats for one game and poor ones for another, or fine or poor seats for all—or none for some games!

After Monogram and Season Ticket orders (more about Season Tickets below) are satisfied, ONLY 4,000 TICKETS ARE AVAILABLE IN ND STADIUM BETWEEN THE GOAL AND 50-YARD LINE FOR ALUMNI. Hence, for the more popular games it is readily seen how a first-day order could fare poorly. An alumnus who files his order even two or three days after June 20 can expect nothing but seats behind the north goal, or no seats at all (see diagram).

General Sale: 6. If tickets remain for general sale for any games, General Use ticket applications will be mailed annually to ALL alumni the latter part of July, prior to the Aug. 1 opening of public sale. It is entirely possible in 1970 that Advance Sale described above could claim our entire ticket supply. The alternatives will definitely be established by July 15. General Use forms are transferable and the contributing alumnus who had already used his Advance Sale form for two tickets may place additional orders via the general form. These General Use forms carry no locational preferences as all such orders are filled after Advance Sale purchases.

7. Alumni clubs frequently ask for two or more seats in "choice location" for raffle or fund-raising awards. With our present critical situation this could be accomplished only if a contributing alumnus were to purchase the tickets in his name for whatever fund-raising gimmick the club has in mind. The location of seats so purchased will be exactly in accordance with the date this order is received. We don't feel we can guarantee a choice location for a raffle at the expense of the individual alumnus.

The Season Ticket Situation. For the FOURTH year in a row our Season Ticket sale has been frozen at 1966 figures. Again, any Season Tickets not renewed will be used to help relieve the pressure from contributing alumni on an individual game basis. They will not be offered again for sale as Season Tickets.

Regan adds territory

Brian C. Regan '61, a regional director of development for the Notre Dame Foundation in five midwestern states, has assumed responsibility for the entire Area Three region. This territory reaches from Indiana to the northern tip of Maine and all down the eastern seaboard to Virginia with the exception of metropolitan New York.

Originally from Joliet, Ill., Regan

now lives in South Bend with his wife, Sharon, and their three children. Following his graduation from the University, Regan spent four years in the Marine Corps and now holds the rank of captain in the Marine Corps Reserve. He is on the board of directors for the St. Joseph Valley ND Club and has been with the foundation office for the past two years.

Krashna in as SBP

The junior team of David M. Krashna and Mark E. Winings swept to a decisive victory in the ND student body elections held on campus last month. Krashna, an English major from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Winings, a government major from Elwood, Ind., received more than 63 per cent of the student vote in winning the presidency and vice-presidency, respectively.

Krashna, the first black man to be elected SBP at ND, and Winings, a Protestant in a University community that is 96 per cent Catholic, said they believe they won because they campaigned on a personal level and emphasized positive student government reforms that would bring campus politics down to the individual level.

Especially concerned about the status of the arts at ND, Krashna had promised during the campaign to help establish an arts center if elected. He is a former Student Union Academic Commissioner and has been especially active in the black recruitment program and the Afro-American Society. Both he and Winings have been active on the Alumni Student Relations Panel, a student group involved in communicating with alumni.

Visitors of note

The ND community in recent weeks has had the opportunity to listen to some of the more notable headline-makers in American society.

Dr. Benjamin Spock spoke on campus Feb. 20 discussing dissent and social change. The physician, who in 1969 was acquitted of federal charges in connection with anti-war counseling, told his audience not to expect to share in the establishment's power "if you only ask politely."

Richard G. Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind., told a March 6 ND audience that while the gross national product continues to reach record levels, the black and minority communities are finding conditions getting worse instead of better.

Dr. James P. Shannon, former auxiliary bishop of the Catholic diocese of St. Paul-Minneapolis, made his first public appearance in more than a year March 15, telling an ND audience that he saw an analogy between the problems facing government and the universities and the troubles the Church is experiencing.

A capacity crowd of more than 3,000 turned out March 22 in ND's Stepan Center to hear William M. Kunstler, defense attorney for the famed "Chicago Seven." Kunstler said the conspiracy trial symbolized a transition in eras for the forces of dissent in America, ushering in an era of "resistance" to replace the era of "protest" that had characterized the '60's.

Festival '70

Sophomore Literary Festival '70 has a new note. Guest speakers are visiting ND classes and meeting informally with the students. Theodore Solotaroff, editor of the New American Review; Claude Brown, Manchild in the Promised Land; pop-journalist Tom Wolfe; and Gary Snyder, beat movement poet, headline the program. This year's festival focuses on poets, including Ishmael Reed, Stuart Montgomery, Lee Harwood, Nathaniel Tarn, Anselm Hollo, Michael Anania and Allen Planz.

Forum meets

The All-University Forum spent March 17 in an open "information gathering" before convening privately. Student life and government, the lot of the graduate student in the ND community, efforts of the University Arts Council to renovate the fieldhouse, the chancellor-president movement, resident hall life and the campus ministry were topics discussed.

Elect educators

ND's Institute for Studies in Education announced the names of 24 newly elected members to its National Advisory Council. John Gardner, head of the National Urban Coalition, Francis Keppel, chairman of the board of the General Learning Corp., and Rev. Michael P. Walsh SJ, president of Fordham U. were among those named. The institute encompasses the education enterprises of ND and St. Mary's and includes graduate studies, teacher preparation, educational research and a counseling center.

Awards received

Awards totaling $519,481 were accepted at the University during February. The funds for research and sponsored programs included three grants from the National Institutes of Health and one from the U.S. Office of Education for graduate education fellowships.

The National Scene

Reporting on civil rights . . . tuition hikes . . . forecasts of disruption . . . dissent and justice . . . educators and politics

■ Turning Point? Over the past two years, the federal government increasingly put pressure on individual colleges and state college systems to end racial bias and provide greater opportunities for minority groups. But then: The top civil rights official in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare resigned under fire. Congress showed a strong inclination to strip the department of its major administrative weapons against segregation. Vice-President Agnew denounced racial quotas and "open admissions" in higher education. Suddenly there was much uncertainty about how vigorously the Administration would enforce the Civil Rights Act of 1964 on the nation's campuses.

■ 'Universal Access': Everyone with a fair chance of academic success ought to be able to go to college if he wants to, says the prestigious Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. "Inequality of opportunity must not continue to sap the strength of our nation," the commission asserts in a special report. It calls for "universal access" to higher education and sets a deadline: 1976.

■ Rising Tuition: The pressure of inflation on education costs is forcing many colleges and universities, public and private, to raise tuition once again. "We must plan on regular annual increases in student charges over the foreseeable future," says an administrator in the Ivy League, where tuitions are heading for $2,500 and more a year.

■ Research First: President Nixon wants to be sure education programs work before he seeks large outlays of new funds. He has proposed a National Institute of Education "as a focus for educational research and experimentation."

■ Troubled Science: American science needs a lot more money to escape mediocrity, warns the National Science Board. It says that a lack of funds, especially from the federal government, is making it difficult for scientists to "respond to new ideas and new opportunities."

■ Turbulence Ahead: Amid increasing reports of renewed violence on a number of campuses, many college educators sense that the 1970's will be no less disruptive than the previous decade. "The peak of activism has not yet been reached," one university administrator told colleagues at a national conference. Others agreed. They said they expected urgent social problems to involve their institutions more deeply in off-campus affairs. Conversations also turned to such issues as the effect of open-admission policies on higher education, the financial plight of institutions, and changes in campus governance and the academic job market.

■ Campus Dissent: Colleges and universities have to maintain order; they cannot tolerate "the number and kinds of disruptions that have become commonplace." In making that observation, however, a special panel of attorneys and academic leaders also cautioned that "there is a risk that certain efforts to maintain order may themselves be excessive and may indirectly contribute to disruptions." Institutions should seek "order with justice," said the panel, a commission of the American Bar Association, and guarantee their students the right to dissent.

■ Recruiting Slowdown: Business firms are not looking for as many new college graduates as they used to. After a decade of expanding job opportunities, reports the College Placement Council, industry has reduced its campus recruiting this year by 16 per cent for bachelor's degree candidates, 26 per cent for master's degree candidates, and 14 per cent for Ph.D. candidates.

■ Private Support: Corporations gave $340-million to education in 1968, the Council for Financial Aid to Education estimated after a survey of 795 companies. Contributions were 13.3 per cent higher than those of 1966, although the rate of increase showed a decline. Still, said the council, "there has been no lessening of the business community's commitment to underwrite an important share of the voluntary support of higher education."

■ Campaign Fever: "We who have been in higher education have a feeling for . . . why there is such a degree of impatience among many in the country," says Edwin D. Etherington. He has decided to give up the presidency of Wesleyan University and seek the Republican nomination for U.S. Senator in Connecticut. Other college administrators and faculty members in several states also are seeking political office this spring.

CLASSES

Three very "in" fellows

You begin the day by breakfasting with the President. During the morning, you meet, perhaps, John Mitchell and tell him what you think should be done about school desegregation. In the evening you attend a cocktail party with Gunnar Myrdal.

Sound a bit unusual? Not if you're Paul F. Anderson '59, Joseph Freitas Jr. '61 or Percy A. Pierre '61, MS '63.

These three ND graduates have been in the inner circles of national government, not as observers, but as participants. And they aren't governmental career men or politicians, either. The three are among those in the past six years who have been selected White House Fellows, and have not only seen the inner workings of government and national leadership, but have made their unique contributions to society in ways few individuals today ever dream would happen.

The White House Fellows Program was begun in 1964 by President Lyndon Johnson, who was looking for a way to more actively involve people, regardless of their vocations or political philosophies, in government. John W. Gardner, then the president of the Carnegie Corp., came up with a suggestion — that a group of 15-20 highly motivated and outstanding young people be brought to Washington each year to gain firsthand experience and personal involvement in the governing of the nation. That suggestion was the basis of a program destined to be characterized by unique opportunities of service and association.

The three ND men who were selected as fellows all served in three different years. Joe Freitas, the publisher of the Washington Monthly, was a fellow during 1967-68; Paul Anderson, associated with Booz, Allen and Hamilton, Inc., in Chicago, was in Washington as a fellow during 1968-69; and Percy Pierre, a research engineer for RAND Corp., and an instructor at UCLA, is currently serving as a fellow.

During their year of tenure, the fellows are assigned to a governmental office, usually under the direct supervision of a cabinet officer or council head. Anderson started his year on the payroll of the President's science adviser, Donald Hornig. But in January, when the new team came into office, he began to work directly with Pat Moynihan on public transportation bills, urban development and even served as Moynihan's man in the defense department. In May, Anderson, at the request of Moynihan, devoted some of his time to the Office of Economic Opportunity and helped restructure that agency.

Joe Freitas was assigned as a fellow to Robert Weaver, then secretary of the department of housing and urban development. As one of Weaver's special assistants, he had the unique opportunity to survey operations and the policy-making processes of the department. He also was assigned special responsibilities with the undersecretary, including speech-writing, press relations on trips and working in the model-cities program. Freitas was Weaver's representative at various conferences and on the departmental task force that implemented those sections of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 under HUD's jurisdiction.

The program is made more unique and valuable because while the fellows themselves are gaining new insights into governmental problems and processes, they are also contributing to the solution of those very problems. Then, when their year as fellows is complete, they return to communities and jobs with deeper understanding of the workings of a nation — and, as the program's statement of purpose reads, "a sense of personal involvement in the leadership of the society, a vision of greatness for the society and a sense of responsibility for bringing that greatness to reality."

CLASS NOTES

'15 HAPPY QUOTING

Happy is my opportunity to quote from a letter received from Rev. PATRICK QUINLAN '15, who is pastor of Our Lady of Fatima Catechumenate, 300 Ashton Ave., Kingstree, S.C. 29556. "A broken arm prevented me from writing sooner. My catechist is writing this for me. The enclosed literature will give you some idea about the activities of this mission for the past 23 years. Prior to that, I gave my energies to the Hartford diocese and the Rural Life Conference." I would like to accept his warm welcome to visit the mission, and I'm sure Fr. Pat extends that invitation to all ND men and their families.

Our good friend WILLIAM E. KENNEDY '15, who resides at 1589 Oak Park Dr., Owensboro, Ky. 42301, sends the following news: "I would like to attend the ND reunion next June, but suffered permanent eye damage two years ago, which makes it rather hard for me to get around, especially in large groups. So I regret to advise that I doubt my attendance. My disability is such that I can still walk around and remain active in business and civic affairs, although I cannot read, drive a car or recognize people unless they are very near me. I think you should know this, so you will not get the impression that I have lost interest in ND or the fine group of fellows that I had the privilege of meeting there."

Just received this report on a happy occasion Nov. 16, 1969. Mr. and Mrs. JOSEPH FLYNN LL.B. '17, 405 Parkway Dr., Cary, Ill. 60013, celebrated Joe's birthday by inviting eight friends to their Pompano Beach apartment. BILL REDDEN '14, 125 N.E. 10th Ave., Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES W. BACHMAN, 11 Sunset Lane, Pompano Beach, Fla. 33062, were present. We extend our belated good wishes for good health.

The many ND friends of JOSEPH H. FARLEY LL.B. '22 will be saddened to learn of his death Jan. 7. He is survived by his widow, two daughters and three grandchildren. Mrs. Farley resides at 721 N. Barnsdale Rd., LaGrange Park, Ill. 60525. The funeral Mass was said at St. Francis Xavier Church, LaGrange.

I regret the belated mention of the death of FLOYD W. SHAFER, 911 Clyman St., Watertown, Wis. 53094. He is survived by his widow, who still resides at that address. May the souls of these ND men and the souls of all the faithful departed through the mercy of God rest in peace.

Class reunion, 1970: This, the decade of the 70s, is also the 55th year for the Class of 1915. At the outset, I must correct an error in my notes in the January-February issue. Instead of June 8-10, the correct dates of the 1970 reunion are June 12, 13 and 14. This should, indeed, be a memorable occasion for members of the class of '15, with a class dinner, the reunion banquet, campus tours and everything else to make this weekend an occasion to remember. There is a surprise in store for you, especially if you have not been on campus in recent years to see the tremendous growth and academic progress of ND and to get firsthand information as to why your Alma Mater ranks high among the top universities of the world.

So resolve now to attend the 1970 reunion, June 12, 13 and 14. Your classmates will be disappointed if you are not there.

'17 THEY SURE ARE!

Deadlines are funny things to understand by persons who do not deal with them. We are preparing our material today, Jan. 15, for the April and May issue that closes on March 9 and will be mailed to you on April 13; why that's springtime!

Was BILL GRADY the only '17er at the Cotton Bowl? Thanks again, my good friend, for the Dallas papers, which are going the rounds now of the '17 Floridians: BACHMAN, PAUL FOGARTY, JOE FLYNN, etc.

JOHNNY REYNOLDS, alias Rev. M. Simon OCSO, who is a Trappist monk and resides in Our Lady of Guadalupe Trappist Abbey, Lafayette, Ore., reports that they have a new abbot out there. Let us hope that he will loosen up on some of those medieval regulations and make life easier for that great little old two-miler.

Personal to Joe Flynn and HUGHIE O'NEILL: Do you know that the '17ers have a rule that golf carts cannot be used until you break 80, and we mean years, not strokes. Say, why not a Florida foursome—he's nuts about alliteration—with Charlie Bachman and Paul Fogarty?

Speaking of alliteration—well, look it up in your dictionary—how lucky we were to have such wonderful English teachers as Fr. Gene and Tom Burke, Leonard Carrico, Tom Crumley and Charles L. O'Donnell. Did we miss any? They were all good.

JOHN URBAN RILEY, our distinguished class poet, is relaxing in Grenada, West Indies, and will return to Maine by way of Florida, the long way around. Leave it to the Duke to pick a different spot. We thought Grenada was the name of a South Bend movie theatre. Say, wouldn't it be great to hear from some of the Old Guard? How about it, Charlie Bachman, HARRY BAUIAN, DUTCH BERGMAN, JOHN CASSIDY, OSCAR DORWIN, BILL HYNES, HARRY KELLY, FRANK KIRKLAND, JIMMY PHELAN, GEORGE SHANAHAN and LEO VÖGEL? Well, we can dream, can we not? Let's have a count now for the class reunion next June.

This episode happened more than 25 years ago, so it's time to tell about it again. During W.W. II we played Michigan at home in 1943 and many Chicago fans who came down on the South Shore specials, because of gas rationing, rushed over to Sweeney's Shamrock Cafe to pass away the time before the game. It seems that the jukebox would play only two pieces, regardless of the number a patron would punch. They were the ND Victory March and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." Persons who wanted to hear "My Wild Irish Rose" or "On Galway Bay" complained to the bartender who told them he was sorry and had reported it. It turned out that big FRANK HOGAN had plugged the box when he stopped by for an eye opener. How about that?

You have all heard about scare advertising and we are not going to tell you that this is your last chance to attend a class reunion and see some of your old college chumps and classmates. But the one coming up in June is the next one and the dates are 12, 13 and 14. Please remember TOM HOLLAND, who passed away recently, in your prayers.

'18 YOU'RE ALL SET UP

Hope your plans are all set to return to campus June 12, 13 and 14. Remember, you are a member of the 50-Year Club. The University thinks you are an important person and hopes you'll attend. They have "set up" a table right up front for you at the alumni dinner. That proves to me that your presence is really appreciated, so let them know now that you will be there. Reservations will be made for you at the Morris Inn, and, sure, bring the wife.

Send birthday greetings to: April 25, EDWARD J. McOSKER '17, 525 N. Melrose Ave., Elgin, Ill. 60121; April 26, NEIL J. "WHITEY" WHALEN M.D., 1020 Cadieux Rd., Grosse Pointe Park, Mich. 48236; April 28, WILLIAM H. KELLY, 1950 Reeveston Rd., Richmond, Ind.; and ALLAN W. FRITZSCHE, 575 Washington Ave., Elyria, Ohio 44035; May 1, GEORGE D. HALLER '19, 11030 Hubbard, Livonia, Mich.; May 10, RICHARD J. MONROE '12, 845 Irving Park Rd., Chicago, Ill. 60613; May 24, HARRY C. BAUIAN '17, 2069 Rustic Rd., Dayton, Ohio; May 24, Rev. GEORGE L. HOLDERITH CSC, University Infirmary, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556; May 28, DANIEL E. HILGARTNER '17, P.O. Box 75, Harbert, Mich. 49115.

Wedding anniversary: June 7, Jeanette and JAMES P. LOGAN, 2951 S. Fillmore Way, Denver, Colo. 80205. Ordination day: June 10, REV. CHARLES J. WILLIAMS CSC, St. Malachy Rectory, 311 E. Grove Ave., Rantoul, Ill. 61866.

It's reported that JOHN P. DANT JR. '11, 1618 San Helen Dr., Dundon, Fla., is contemplating a return to the campus for reunion festivities—his first visit in more than 20 years.

Looking forward to seeing you this June. Wishing you loads of good health. May you live to be 100.

'20 ONLY 3 MISSES IN 49 YEARS

WALTER MILLER writes he has missed three home football games in 49 years—a real record. However, the athletic office is shortsighted by sending men like Walter tickets that are back of the goal posts. He reports that JOHN PATRICK MURPHY, who died recently, roomed with Walter. Originally from Boston, John spent a greater part of his life in Cleveland as an attorney. He was a member of the board of trustees of ND. An interesting story is told of him as manager of athletics. He was tapped on the shoulder by a little fellow who wanted a pair of football shoes with cleats on them. John looked down at the little fellow and said, "You're too small to play football and besides they don't make shoes that would fit your small feet." The request was repeated day after day until finally the shoes were given to him—Knut Rockne. Walter's oldest brother, RED MILLER, on Walter Camp's All American and father of Creighton and Tom, died recently. The only instance in American football where father and son were All American. Red was president of our national ND alumni.

EUGENE O'TOOLE, known as the "Merchant Prince" of St. Joe, Mich., came to Brownson Hall in September, 1916, after a year at St. Peter's College in his home town of Newark, N.J. He wanted to be a chemist and really worked at it, together with JIM BAILEY, and earned a B.S. in chemistry. Like many of us, he entered the armed services for chemical warfare service but returned to Corby Hall and then Sorin Hall. He was a brilliant student, as our engineers had to be to stick it out. He was admired by all who knew him for his cheerful, pleasant personality. He never became a chemist because of a young lady. He could not resist her charming personality. So, after the wedding, he joined her father's large department store at St. Joe, Mich. He contacted Bright's disease some years ago and could not attend our last reunion although he was secretary of our class. He suffered a long time, and death came on Feb. 25.

SHERWOOD DIXON will send out a letter to all of you in April. He mentions four sons graduated from ND and he will go to ND early in the week of our reunion. JOHN BALFE and LEONARD CALL have reservations at Morris Inn for June 7 through 14. Stories exchanged during the reunion will recall many thrilling events and occasions, perhaps forgotten. It will thrill all of us by recalling them.

I called the Alumni Office and TOM SULLIVAN will contact ED DORAN to help in local assistance in making arrangements for a great reunion. He has welcomed members to bring their wives and come early but make reservations for the Morris Inn. They will be guests of the alumni during the 12th to 14th. Earlier arrivals at members' expense. Your wives will enjoy the atmosphere of the campus—make no mistake about it.

22 SAD REPORT

Two more fine classmates have been called from this life by God: MICHAEL E. FAHEY JR., of 2810 Crosby Ave., Dormont, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Dec. 22, and JOSEPH H. FARLEY, of 721 Barnsdale Rd., LaGrange Park, Ill. 60525, on Jan. 7.

JOHN "RED" REARDON, who resides at 112 S. Homewood Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15208, wrote us about the death, as follows: "Mike was complaining of chest pains. His good wife suggested a visit to St. Clare Hospital for a checkup. He died while undergoing an examination—apparently from a massive cardiac arrest. Mike retired some time ago as design engineer for the Kappers Co., and until recently, he had been doing some instructional work with a Pittsburgh Technical Institute. Besides his widow, he leaves one married daughter, an unmarried daughter and one son, also unmarried."

TOM S. McCABE, Elmhurst, Ill., and JERRY DIXON, Evanston, Ill., both wrote in connection with the illness and death of Joe Farley. Too, we received a very sweet note from Joe's widow, Alicia Farley, who wrote this letter: "Thank you for your kind and consoling letter. Joe was sick only four days—a heavy cold progressing into pneumonia, which he was not able to fight off, due to the many kinds of medication he had been taking the last few years for rheumatoid arthritis. He was slowly getting more crippled up with this, and was worried he would become a bed-patient and helpless. Our dear Lord took care of that and called him before that condition became a fact. He suffered greatly—constant pain the last two years and I am sure he is in heaven now relieved of all care and sorrow. He held you in great affection, always."

Shortly after Joe was graduated from law at ND, he joined the FBI organization and was assigned to the Buffalo office. He was with them for a five-year period. Then he signed with the Veterans' Administration Chicago office, and served them for a period of 25 years until his very recent retirement due to ill health. Besides the widow, Alicia, the survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Lucille Fisher and Mrs. Colette McConnell, and three grandchildren. We extend our prayerful sympathy to the widows of the deceased, and to all family members, also to our neighbors of 1923 who lost by death recently their beloved LOUIS V. BRUGGNER, class secretary extraordinary.

We received a most welcome note from SYLVESTER "LEFTY" STEINLE, of 1183 Juniper Ave., Akron, Ohio 44310, telling of his recent retirement from General Tire and Rubber Co. He says he would be very pleased to hear from some of his '22 classmates, and that he hopes to be present in 1972 for our 50th anniversary class reunion.

VINCE HANRAHAN, Chevy Chase, Md., very kindly sent us a Christmas report he received from JOHN HILKERT, of Phoenix, Ariz., which we quote in part: "My greetings may come a little late to you this year because I am on a jury panel now in Maricopa County Superior Court. When I came to Phoenix, there were only two divisions of superior court; now there are 24. In the course of my law practice, I have tried cases before juries, so now I find it a rather novel experience to be on the listening side.

You can readily see that John Hilkert's life has not been a dull one. We almost forgot to mention that he was the first dean of commerce at the U. of Arizona.

JOHN PAUL CULLEN became a grandfather on Nov. 19, when daughter Mary Alicia gave birth to a son, Christopher. J.P. also informs us that his son, Peter, is now at home with him after four years of Naval service aboard aircraft carriers in Vietnam waters. Peter attained the rank of lieutenant.

There is a letter addressed to Rev. GEORGE B. FISCHER CSC and the class of '22 by Mrs. Raymond (Florence) Black, 1001 S. Pittsburgh St., Connellsville, Pa. 15425: "We thank you for offering the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass for the repose of Ray's soul."

'23 '23ers RECUPERATE

Recuperating, we hope, after recent hospitalizations are ED SHEA (three-week bout in January with pneumonia), ART DIEDRICH (afflicted since before Thanksgiving with a sprung disc in his back) and HI HUNT (merry surgery at Christmas in Mayo Clinic and perhaps a happy come Easter). He and TOM LEE have it that the New Hampton KENNEDYS, RUSTY and WILLARD, are now semi-retired from the banking business and are spending that high interest in California and the Southwest.

PETE SWANSON sends a clipping regarding the LIEB's daughter, Mary Jane's, engagement to James A. McKay, a geophysicist in California, which is where HAROLD FABIAN HAYNES says he is semi-retired from the family enterprises. He is a Navy captain (retired—'62), who swims, plays the piano and collects limited editions to be someday set up at ND where, according to the Alumni Office, he visited at last year's graduation and where the new library is set up to absorb "volumes."

Some of you may remember the "Lilacs" (last house on the east side of Notre Dame Ave., at Napoleon St.) and recall meeting Louise Peterson, widow of GROVER MALONE, and whose father was director of the ND band about '00 as a teacher of music. She has moved from South Bend after a half-century to Jackson, Miss., nearer her sister, Florence. Their mother, affectionately known by the students as "Ma Pete," remodeled the upper floors of the old yellow-brick house into a dorm for about a dozen fellows, probably the first private South Bend home to attain off-campus status due to increased enrollment following W.W. I.

Perhaps the many friends of LOUIE BRUGGNER among the alumni of other classes might have more than a passing interest in the events leading to his death. During a more than 10-year period recently he had been hospitalized many times for illness and surgery, including a very serious heart attack. But he always managed to come up smiling, giving no indication that he was anything but hale and hearty afterward. However, those close to him knew it was only the facade he put on for the ones he met less frequently.

His 69th birthday on Dec. 27 was spent with a few close friends and neighbors. On the following Monday, while at his downtown store directing and helping with the rearrangement of office furniture to be used in the anticipated rush of the '69 tax season, he suddenly became ill. Despite a quick ambulance trip plus immediate efforts of several doctors, the end came some five hours later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Rev. LEO R. WARD CSC '23 represented the University at the white vestment Mass, and gave his eulogy as a friend and classmate, while Rev. WILLIAM NEIDHART CSC of Holy Cross parish celebrated the Mass and gave the homily. Among those honored to be his bearers were E. WHITE, JOE NYIKOS, ED

KREIMER, LEONARD MENNUCCI, JOE WOODKA and a cousin, Gene Futter. "He gave unselfishly of himself whenever requested" might well be his epitaph.

It should mean something to all of us that since last July, our class has had more than its share of losses and we can now add the name of WILLIAM H. HASKINS to the list of the ones who will not make it in 1973. His widow, Gertrude, notified the Alumni Office that Bill died Feb. 25. He is also survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joan Ripp, and five grandchildren. Arrangements have been made for the customary Masses and the family may be contacted at 3534 84th St., Jackson Heights, Long Island, N.Y. 11373.

'24 FUN IN THE SUN

A letter from JEROME C. ARNOLD '24 (just a fraction late for previous issue) advises that Jerry is now sunning himself at a permanent home at 5858 Midnight Pass Rd., Sarasota, Fla. 33581. He still maintains his home back in Davenport, where he will keep in touch with old friends in the good old summertime. He would like to hear from fellows in TV distance of Sarasota. Jerry is the father of four. The two boys went to ND and Tom graduated in '56. A daughter, Sr. Mary Ann Arnold, is a Daughter of Charity nun in Saint Louis. The other daughter is Cathy Curran, a graduate of Marquette U., and now a practicing speech therapist. Jerry's letterhead carries the Lincoln Life Insurance Co. imprint. With a family like that and a business like that, Jerry is insured on both sides of the River Styx.

Old Texas friends of Rev. JOE RICK CSC '24 will be pleased to know he is now at St. Edward's U. in Austin, Tex. 78704. LAWRENCE W. SPULLER '24, formerly of Chicago, is now receiving his mail at 1951 N.E. 39th St., Light House Point, Fla. 33064. Is that a permanent home, Larry? WALTER G. NOVESKY '24, migrated from Evanston, Ill., to 846 Kerry Hill Dr., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15234. Hon. HUGH BOYLE '24 and other Pittsburghers could offer Walt a welcome. They just cannot retire some people: Most Rev. LAWRENCE GRANER CSC '24 is now in old Corby Hall and Bro. THEOPHILUS MACHEL-INSKI is at Archbishop Hoban High School in Akron.

Had lunch with our synthetic classmate, federal judge JOHN KILKENNY '25 (sometimes '24). As usual, he was currently involved in making the public more aware of ND. He was supplying background material about DON MILLER '25 (Four Horsemen) and classmate of John's. Next day a feature column in the sports section of the Portland Oregonian publicized his recent selection to the football Hall of Fame. The Judge also nostalgically reminisced about the pre-air-travel days when West Coast students stayed at South Bend from September to June because a fast train took three and one-half to four days, one way, to travel home, and vacations would be spent mostly on the train if they had the money to buy the tickets. (Reminds me of the stories of early football prospects who arrived at ND from far corners via cattle-car hitchhike.) Another memory was BILL DEFFARARI, whose whereabouts were inquired into by ED MILLER '24 in the last issue. Kilkenny was making his first Homecoming appearance back at South Bend in 1929. He, Deffarari and some others were visiting the wrong end of town for kicks when Deffarari ran afoul of the police, who in those days retained some authority. Kilkenny told the cop he was a lawyer and wanted to speak for Deff. The officer told him to shut up or he would be with him. John's judicious future was evident even then, so he meekly followed to the station house where he put up a check for bail. Deff wanted to pay him back but Kilkenny, injudiciously, told him not to worry—he would stop payment on the check back in Pendleton, Ore., a far piece away in those days. But the police were heartless in those days, too, and didn't let it die there. In case that is why Deffarari is hard to locate, he can be told that all is well—he can go home; John decided to make the check good in preference to a reunion he hadn't planned with the South Bend police. The Judge really enjoyed the telling of this "true confession." We live and learn, he says, and adds that he hopes the present generation will do the same. That is what a rounded-character education did at ND in the early '20s. Look what happened to Kilkenny . . . our honorable federal district court of appeals judge with a letter from President Nixon to prove they are friends.

On a sadder note, we grieve with the family on the death of JOHN N. STANTON LL.B. '24 who died Oct. 26, 1969. His son is chief trial deputy, Office of the Prosecutor, Criminal Court Building, Crown Point, Ind. 46307.

'25 LET'S TRY AGAIN

This item was supposed to go in the last issue so I place it first. Our class will be together in one hall this June. We will be housed in the newly constructed Flanner Hall, one of the high-rises. We will be on lower floors with elevators available. The '25ers will have use of one of the hall's beautiful lounges for our hospitality suite. Tell your wife she "can come along" for your 50th with accommodations at Morris Inn. Pick yourself a roommate and write him so you will both be there. You will have a letter with more details before you read this.

BERNIE LIVERGOOD writes that he's looking forward to seeing us June 12, 13 and 14. He said these reunions always give him a lift—he looks so much better than everyone else.

BILL KRIDER sent a nice check for our Mass fund, which I forwarded to HANK WURZER. Bill is in charge of the bonding department in the district attorney's office in Pittsburgh. He hopes to make our reunion and sends regards to the class. Thanks again, Bill.

LEO POWERS is taking care of the Chicago area contacts and will write or call the '25ers. Leo says, "While looking over the list of the class, I reviewed the names of the deceased members. It forcibly occurs to me that those of us who still survive should be grateful for having so long enjoyed the blessings of this world."

You are so right, Leo!

Traveling retired Sears executive VIRG FAGAN writes from Singapore that he and Dorothy are on a three-month trip to the South Pacific, Orient and Hawaii. He will be back for our reunion June 12, saying, "May it be the best in our 45-year history."

I am sure the class was happy to hear about DON MILLER, our president, being elected into the football Hall of Fame. No class in the country but ours can say that four of its members have had this honor bestowed on it. Congratulations, Don. That's more to celebrate at our 45th. Be with us June 12, 13 and 14!

'27 EASTERN NEWS

The news this time is mostly from the East. I received a chatty letter from ART MONACO a few weeks ago. It is worth repeating in full: "Saw JOE NULTY and his wife about a month ago. As you know, he is a retired probation officer from Elizabeth, N.J. About the middle of February, he and his wife, Eily, planned to go to Florida for a vacation.

"CHARLES BERETZ retired about six months ago from the automobile industry. He has moved from White Plains, N.Y., to the sunny south—Stuart, Fla. I understand fishing is great down that way.

"BILL DEGNAN is semi-retired from M. W. Kellogg Co. You know, Bill is one of their top engineers. Once in a while we lunch together and kick it around. As a matter of fact, he and his wife have been exploring the USA recently.

"Spoke to DAN CUNNINGHAM not long ago and he is much, much better. He is up and around and working again. He was in Chicago to visit his daughter and grandchildren for the holidays.

"See JIM QUINN once in a while in Rahway, N.J. He is practically out of town most of the time. Someday next week he and I, Joe Nulty and Dan Cunningham expect to meet for lunch and have a ball. You can imagine the session we are going to have. PAUL FENTON's blarney wouldn't even come close."

I also have heard from Dan Cunningham. His health is returning, he expected to spend about three weeks in Jamaica in late February and early March and thought that would put him back on his feet. He says that MARK NEVILLS called before Dan left New York City. Mark is fine and getting ready to retire in the near future, but his plans are still a bit up in the air.

I saw ED McLAUGHLIN in Chicago the other day. He is still actively engaged in the practice of law. Few lawyers are thinking of retiring at this stage; Ed is no exception.

'28 TWO MORE RETIREES

Add AUGIE GRAMS and JOHN FORGE to our retired list. Augie retired from his milling and wholesale distributing business in LaCrosse, Wis. Although he and Margaret keep their home in LaCrosse, they have an apartment at 1930 Gulf Shore Blvd., Naples, Fla. 33940. JOHN FORGE is enjoying golf, bowling and fishing

Congrats

EUGENE FARRELL '28 has retired as editor of the Jersey Journal (Jersey City, N.J.), after some 40 years in the newspaper business. He will remain on the staff as executive editor, however.

PAUL A. HOST '33 has been named director of development and public relations at Viterbo College, La Crosse, Wis. Host, the captain of the 1932 ND football team, is the father of four children and resides with his wife in La Crosse.

A. M. GRIFFIN '29 has been appointed manager of patents in the research department of Bethlehem Steel Corp., Bethlehem, Pa. Griffin joined the firm in 1934 as a patent engineer. He resides in Bethlehem with his family.

RICHARD S. SMITH '37 has been appointed western chemical sales representative of Phelps Dodge Refining Corp., El Paso, Tex. Smith, who joined the firm in 1946, will assist in the marketing of copper chemicals in the West Coast area.

BERNARD T. HEITZ '32 has retired after 26 years with the United States Steel Corp., where his most recent position was assistant superintendent-alloy bar mill. He and his wife have moved from Homewood, Ill., to Clarksburg, W. Va.

JOSEPH B. MOORMAN '39 has been promoted to marketing director for the L-500 commercial super-freighter program at the Lockheed-Georgia Co. Before joining Lockheed, Moorman was associated with General Electric. He, his wife and their four daughters reside in Atlanta.

in retirement in Big Stone City, S.D., after 40 years with Goodyear. Also add PAT CANNY to the list I sent to you in February on '28 men at the Cotton Bowl.

Although ORVILLE MURCH retired in 1966, he found he could not take inactivity, so became a real estate broker in Alpena, Mich. ED McCLARNON, who retired from insurance a few years ago, is practicing law at 70 Pine St., New York, N.Y. 10005. GLEN HATCH is enjoying his post-retirement venture in "Hatch Ventilators" for the boating fraternity, with addresses at P.O. Box 28, Abington, Pa. 19001 and P.O. Box 2603, Delray Beach, Fla. 33444.

LES FLEWELLING had an article in the January, 1970, Dental Laboratory Review on trade associations. Les is consultant to the Southern California Dental Laboratory Guild. JIM CONMEY is a director and vice-president of Tobin Packing Co., Rochester, N.Y. His son was graduated from Marquette Law School in 1968.

DICK GREENE and Mildred are planning to visit Japan, the Philippines and Hawaii in May. Last year they visited Panama and eight countries in South America. VINCE CARNEY and Mary sent me a card from Mexico City. Please drop me a note when you travel. I expect to be in London in August at the London School of Economics and in Geneva in September for the Second World Conference of the International Industrial Relations Assn.

A friend of mine from Cincinnati showed me a clipping in the Cincinnati Post and Times Star which carried the name of JOE MORRISSEY and his wife, among others, who welcomed black families as their neighbors in Hyde Park-Mt. Lookout.

I am sure many of you joined me and others in the class in the corporate Communion for members of our class for the intention of our living and deceased classmates and their loved ones on Feb. 22. This program was suggested by GERALD SHEIBLEY and was carried out last year by many classmates. Incidentally, Gerald is financial secretary of the local K of C in Fostoria, Ohio. He is with the Defense Supply Agency based in Toledo. Our class treasurer, JOE LANGTON, arranged for two Masses at ND, one for the deceased and another for the living members of our class.

GENE FARRELL, editor of the Jersey Journal, accompanied the St. Peter's basketball team to ND again this year. RALPH GARZA is with Calculadoras Electronidas, S.A., at Saltillo, Coah, Mexico. Rev. GEORGE BENAGLIA CSC is now located at 301 Taylor Dr., Sienna Vista, Ariz. 85635. KEN POWER is commissioner of the board of elections for Monroe County, N.Y., in Rochester.

The interest in our 15th annual post-game cocktail party after the Purdue game on Sept. 26, 1970, seems to be generating earlier than usual. The following have already indicated they will be with us: G. Sheibley, J. SHEEDY, J. Morrissey, A. MILLER, A. Grams, J. Conmey, V. WALSH, P. Canny.

Since I covered the sad death notices in some detail in my February, 1970, newsletter, I will merely mention again how much we will miss MARION HEFFER-

NAN, Dr. PAUL TOBIN and Dr. EDWARD J. CONLIN. Please remember them in your prayers. May I ask you also to pray for LOUIS BRUGGNER, the truly great secretary of the class of '23, who died in December, 1969. Lou and I exchanged ideas regularly on the functions of a class secretary and he was most helpful and always ready to be of assistance to me and to our class.

I mentioned in the last ALUMNUS that JOHN GAUGHAN and Blanche are back in the U.S. in Hot Springs, Ark. They stayed in the Dominican Republic during the revolution and watched the fireworks from their hotel roof. They enjoyed their years in Spain. They have two grown children.

FRANK DONOVAN and Louise liked it so well in California that they will locate there permanently soon at 1520 San Pablo Ave., Lake San Marcos, Calif. 02969.

JOHN FAGAN and Mildred met TIM TOOMEY '29 on the train on their return from the Army game. It was good to hear from John again. He is still in Warwick, R.I. Tim Toomey is now in Boston with the U.S. Department of Labor.

'29 AND ALASKA MAKES 50

Prof. PAUL BARTHOLOMEW was on leave last spring to lecture and do research in and near Dublin. He was joined there by Agnes in May and sent in the following account of his trip:

"We left Dublin the first part of June and went to London and from there to Geneva, Zurich and Vienna. In Geneva, it was raining, although one day the sun did shine, but in Vienna it was pouring. Two nights we were there we went to Strauss concerts and on the Sunday we went to Mass where the Vienna Boys' Choir sang, so it was not a total loss. We then went to Athens, found the sun shining there and really enjoyed our visit. It was in Athens one day, while sitting in a sidewalk cafe on Constitution Square, that I heard my name called and saw a former student of mine, MICHAEL ALBIN '64. He had been in Afghanistan with the Peace Corps and was on his way to France where he planned to go to school during the summer and then back home. From Athens we flew to Tel Aviv, and I must say that my impression is that the Arabs are simply envious of what the Israelis have done. Israel is simply an oasis in the desert. It is really a very pleasant place.

"From there we flew over Cyprus, Turkey, then south of Tehran to Bombay, where it was really warm, and then on to Ceylon. That gave us a real touch of the tropics and I shall never forget that 23-mile drive into Colombo through the palm forest and through seemingly millions of natives all over the road with the driver of the rickety airport bus seeming to drive only with the accelerator and horn. As we came around one curve, there in the middle of the road stood an elephant. That had to be a high point of the tour. We went on to Bangkok and there were given a big welcome with a car from the embassy waiting at planeside when we stepped down. A former student of mine, KARL ACKERMAN '49, is number two man there in the embassy so he arranged for that and for a subsequent VIP reception at the hotel. It was all very nice. Karl invited us to his home for dinner one evening and we met his wife and family. His wife is a beautiful blond and certainly does much for Karl in his official capacity there in Thailand. His children are likewise a real asset to him.

"In Thailand I had arranged to meet some judges and lawyers as well as to observe some courts in operation since I want to do a comparative judicial study of some sort. The same thing was true in Hong Kong on our next stop, where I was able to meet some law people and to observe the courts in operation. We enjoyed Hong Kong very much and went up to Red China's border to take a look across the bamboo curtain. In Tokyo, I met another former student, PAUL CHANG McCULLOCH who got his Ph.D. here in 1953. He is teaching at Sophia U. and drove us around Tokyo and then with his wife, Mary, went with us to Kyoto on the super express, the 'Bullet Train.' His fluent Japanese and his knowledge of Japan were obviously of tremendous assistance.

"Leaving Tokyo, we flew across the International Date Line to Honolulu and got some more sunshine and a bit of rest as well. Then on to Portland and Seattle back on the mainland of the U.S. and from there to Juneau, Alaska. We went there chiefly because we wanted to get that last of the 50 states on our record but we again thoroughly enjoyed our visit—partly because it was such a change from the sun and sands of Honolulu to the snow-capped mountains of Alaska. From there we went back to Seattle, caught a plane to Chicago and then on to South Bend and we were in a position to argue with the members of the Flat Earth Society. It was really a fabulous trip and we enjoyed it more than I could possibly say."

Class President BOB VOGELWEDE writes, "We are leaving Feb. 23 for Mexico and expect to return the week before Easter. I have a brother in Mexico City who has two sons at ND and we will spend some time with him. We haven't been there before and are looking forward to seeing the country."

The annual Class of '29 football game get-together will follow the Purdue game Sept. 27.

'30 LIFE BEGINS AT THE 40th

Bishop VINCENT J. MCCAULEY CSC wrote to the class from Fort Portal, Uganda, East Africa, to express his disappointment at missing the 40th reunion: "Fort Portal, Uganda, is a 'far piece' from the campus and sometimes the equatorial mail-bag is slightly delayed . . . like the arrival of the November ALUMNUS on the 27th of February. With 45 CSCs (priests, brothers and sisters) in our mission we do, of course, get news of ND but the ALUMNUS is still a must.

"When TIM TOOMEY's 'come-all-ye' arrived recently to alert the class of '30, I really wanted to respond positively. The best I can hope for, however, is to join all of you in spirit as I have the past 39 times. I've already marked my Mass calendar for June 13 (a Mass for the deceased members) and June 14 (for the living members). My Spiritual Secretary, Our Lady, will take care of the details, such as remembering all of your names and your needs, and of including me and other expatriates among the concelebrants at the campus Mass.

"Rev. RAY MASSART '27 is the only other old-timer over here. The rest are 5-15-year graduates. Nevertheless, all of them join me in prayerful good wishes to you and to the returning members of the class of '30."

GORDON COPPS plans to be at the reunion with HAD MANSKE, both from Stevens Point, Wis. He said he saw JIM SKAHAN in Boston last fall. HENRY FREY, convalescing from a hernia operation, says he will be at the reunion in June. JOHN MANNING, now living in Silver Spring, Md., expects to be at the reunion. He has been engineering officer at the Naval Research Lab since 1947 after a 25-year stint in the Army. He expressed his sorrow over the news of PINKY CASSIDY's death. GEORGE O'MALLEY is now senior judge, U.S. Navy Court of Military Review. We assume he will be at the reunion. JOE DILLON was hospitalized for a while with a heart condition, but is in good condition now.

An earlier column mentioned a VERNON "BUCK" SLACK scholarship fund created by his business associates at International Salt, and other friends. The money for this fund goes directly to the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships at ND, directed by Bro. KIERAN RYAN CSC.

Dr. NICHOLAS MAURIELLO of Philadelphia will be on the campus this summer. He was recently cited in the International Who's Who for international rehabilitation medicine.

Tim Toomey, national and global chairman of the 1970 reunion, already reports that he has favorable responses from BILL WALSH (just retired from the Navy Department), BILL REAUME, AL SHIPACASSE, JOE ABBOTT, DICK BLOOM, KARL BRENNAN, BOB COONEY, Rev. JIM RIZER, VINCE MCCULE, JOHN V. MORAN (Washington, D.C.) and TOM BRADLEY.

Judge TOM McDOUGAL reported that he had seen JOHN VOSS at several judges' meetings and learned of the illness of his brother, Don Voss, who is in the Veterans Hospital at Woods, Wis. Tom will be at the reunion. Karl Brennan stated that TOM FROST and ED REDMOND will be at the reunion with him. Next he hopes to contact TOM KEEGAN and AL MONTI to assure their attendance.

We have been promised more details soon about the reunion program by the Alumni Office. This information will be sent to you at once. But right now the big push on attendance should continue and the regional committeemen should be contacting every class member in their areas.

BOB HELLRUNG was on campus in December and took in the ND-St. Louis basketball game in the ACC.

FRANK X. O'NEILL must miss the reunion as he will be supervising a students' European tour at that time.

This is the last ALUMNUS call for the reunion. You will be receiving other direct mailings about its details. Continue the roundup drive now in progress to insure the best attendance ever.

Old faces . . . new places

For a "those-were-the-good-old-days" session you can hardly do better than to spend an hour or two with Eddie Mahon, who retired in 1963 as manager of the chemistry store in the college of science. It was not only there that he spread his Irish charm; but with two of his daughters he and his songs and dances were the hit of many a campus club entertainment and stage show. Having spent 52 years in the service of the University, Eddie, now 81, lives with his wife, the former Ann Monahan of County Galway, in a small white home in Roseland, a couple of miles north of ND. His son, Joe, assistant director of administration in Lobund, has a home just two doors away. Eddie has "slowed up a bit," he'll admit, and his smiling Irish eyes now peer out at you from behind thick glasses. But his two years as head of the department of education at St. Mary's College (ND) and two years "in research efforts in gerontology at Mt. Angel College in Oregon." Dr. Kuntz is active in church affairs, having recently been elected to membership on his parish council. For recreation, he enjoys outdoor activities on the foothill ranch of one of his four sons, cutting wood, repairing fences and roads, hunting and fishing. By way of a tragic ending to this otherwise happy item about a well-known ND man's vigorous postretirement life, word was received not long ago of the death of Dr. Kuntz's youngest son, Dr. James Kuntz, and two of the latter's sons in the crash of a private plane near Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Among Holy Cross priests once in teaching and administrative posts at ND and now stationed at the U. of Portland are the following: Rev. Frederick Barr, teacher of theology and prefect from 1954 to 1963, assistant at St. Mary's Cathedral, Austin, Tex., for a year, teaches theology; Rev. Thomas Kelly, professor of classics, prefect and rector for most of the years between 1929 and 1954, teaches classics; Rev. Bernard McAvoyn spent many years in the '30s and '40s teaching philosophy and rectoring, prior to terms as superior of Moreau Seminary and then of Holy Cross College in Washington and his 1965 appointment to the faculty at the Oregon school; Rev. Joseph Powers, executive vice-president at Portland, taught history and prefected in the early '40s.

Dr. Richard R. Vogt, B.S. '15, M.S. '16, Ph.D. '20, a student and then a teacher at ND from around 1910 until his 1956 retirement, lives in Dundee, Fla., with his son, with whom he is still associated in his long-time interest in real estate and construction. He was one of Rev. Julius Nieuwland's first students and later became his professional associate and close friend. In his early days, Dr. Vogt taught classes in pharmacy and agriculture. After their discontinuance, he remained in chemistry until retirement.

'31 NEWS, BUT ABOUT WHOM?

With spring here I am hopeful that the geriatric members of the Class of 1931 will experience a thinning of the blood and a return to more active participation in their class news. A few replies were forwarded in connection with the checks sent in for the current alumni fund. Being short on news I cannot let anything go by. One from Charlottesville, Va., said: "Eileen and I have three daughters, Joan, Sue and Betsy, and nine grandchildren. Our family is scattered from Ft. Benning to Belgium." No return name was on this envelope!

TOM COUGHLIN is now associated with Paul D. Speer and Associates, municipal financial consultants in Chicago. JOHN ANDERSON, Lanham, Md., expects to attend the 40th class reunion in 1971 and requests prayers for his mother, who died in November at the age of 92. GENE VALLEE stopped at my office recently for a pleasant visit. He reported that he saw JOE DUNNE not too long ago. Gene's father died in Chicago in February. The Alumni Office advises that PHIL PENDERGAST, Cleveland, Ohio, suffered a stroke several years ago and is confined to his home. I do not have his address, but if some of you have it, I am sure a note to Phil would be appreciated.

Word of the death of RAYMOND S. DISCO arrived, but no details as to date or cause. EDDIE RYAN died Jan. 11 at Rochester, Minn. He had been bed-ridden for some time with cancer and went to Mayo's as a final hope. He is survived by his widow, Betty O'Hara Ryan SMC '31, a daughter, Betty Anne Lawler, and a son, RICHARD E. '59. Eddie will certainly be remembered by many and will be missed at our next reunion. His cheerfulness and wit no doubt served to cover the pain he experienced for so long. Among those attending the funeral were BERT METZGER, CARL CRONIN, Dr. FRANCIS HETREED '30, PAUL O'TOOLE and JOHN DORGAN. I am sure there were others, but the above were the only ones I happened to see. Please remember our deceased classmates and their relatives in your Masses and prayers.

FRANK LEAHY was elected to the football Hall of Fame. More about that in another section of the ALUMNUS. It is not too early to start making plans for our 40th reunion in June, 1971. As F. X. MURPHY says, we will soon be the first class column in the ALUMNUS, so before we get there let's have a big turnout in June, 1971. Don't forget our class reunion cocktail party following the Army-ND game Oct. 10. Best wishes to all, and, please send news.

'32 LOTS OF NEWS TO REPORT

News was good these past two months. Glad to learn that BERNARD T. HEITZ has won retirement after 26 years. He was assistant superintendent of U.S. Steel Corp.'s South Works Alloy Bar Mill. A letter from LEN CONDON, Rockford, Ill., states, "I don't think we did too bad after reading it over. It seems as though we are keeping most people going from our graduating class. I'm sorry to hear about the boys that passed on. I do appreciate the MARLEYS' Christmas cards. I get them every year, and they are beautiful. I have two sons and two grandsons. Both of my boys went to ND, as you know: TIMOTHY J. and LEONARD W. I do hope that one of the two grandsons might be qualified mentally to get in, but I doubt it the way things are going now. This is just a note to let you know that I do read the articles. You can tell that to Fran and DICK OELERICH, who are personal friends of mine and every now and then we get together just to—well, you might be surprised what we get together for."

Then out of the blue a letter from JOE KENNY, 728 Waldo Blvd., Manitowoc, Wis. 54220. "This is a letter of courage to all classmates, especially to those who have been retired involuntarily as I was at the end of 1967 by 'merger.' When in the past I have found myself reading obituaries and thinking dark thoughts, I dispel them by getting myself to the nearest school. It worked in 1934 in the depression; it worked in 1942 in the war and it worked again in 1968. In September, 1968, I packed me off to Madison to study a year. To make a long story short, I am presently teaching business management, after 38 years in the business world, at St. Norbert College, DePere, Wis., near Green Bay. "IKE" TERRY, distinguished farmer and legislator of Baraboo and Madison has two sons in my classes, Dennis and David. I do not have to favor them because they are substantial students and citizens of the campus—like father, like sons. Regretfully, I am out of touch with ARTHUR CLINE, JIM MEEHAN, JACK SHEEHAN and BOB BRIGGS. I either see or hear from TED HALPIN, THAD XELOWSKI and BOB GORMAN occasionally but not often enough to satisfy."

There was a great column in the Miami Herald last November sent along by I. I. PROBST about our own ART HIMBERT. Headlined "The Indispensable Man," the story by columnist Larry Thompson tells of his start in 1945 when he was introduced to Art and told "Here is the man to answer all your questions." To this day, says Thompson, Himbert still is the man to see to learn anything.

EURON R. REINBOLT of Santa Barbara notified us that our great friend, TOM GATELY, died Jan. 8. We are also grieved to learn of the death of Paul Belden Sr., father of our PAUL BELDEN and WILLIAM BELDEN '36. Masses will be offered on the campus for the repose of their souls.

A last-minute note from WILLIAM C. BROWN, Toledo: "Have only attended one class reunion (1937) but intend to be there in 1972. I will retire from federal government service next year. Remember me to all classmates of '31 and '32."

ROBERT HURLEY has moved to 118 Riley, East Aurora, N.Y. 14052. WILLIAM LAUGHLIN to 257 Point Clear Dr., Conroe, Tex. 77301, and BOB BURG-HART gives his address as 15 West Burton Place, Chicago, Ill. 60610.

One more came in. RAY GEIGER, secretary of the ND Alumni Assn. of Maine (he doesn't have enough to do) relates: "While I was in Los Angeles, I was able to contact good classmate ED MELCHIONE, who is now a real fine legal beagle in that area. One of his clients is TERRY DILLON. Ed tells me that even though he had to go through a couple of operations of a rather nasty kind, he is in good health and expects to live to be 112. I also had an opportunity to chat with GENE CALHOUN, who with his wife, Victoria, just arrived back from Europe a while ago. I find that RAY FOX is now in Palo Alto working with his son on a very fine beer franchise which probably gives him more time for golf anyway and beer drinking."

That's all for now. Right? Write!

'33 BILL, THE FUGITIVE

Dottie and BILL KENNEY send greetings from Charleston, W. Va. They have four children, Cathy, Nancy, Maureen and Bill Jr. Bill is a fugitive from our class, having entered old Brownson Hall with me in '29. Phyllis and JACK SOISSON tell me in a note that their daughter is residing in my neighborhood, Havertown. Thanks for your help, Jack, on the reunion.

Louise and LARRY SEXTON wrote they were heading for Dallas and would meet us at Gate 8. They sent beautiful color photos of PETE CONNELLY, GEORGE ROHRS and JACK HOYT enjoying our October reunion. If Larry gets glossies made, he promises to send them to the ALUMNUS. Peggy and DON WISE report they returned safely to Joliet after being with all of us at the '33 reunion in New York.

Emily and TOM BLISARD left Philadelphia, crossing the Delaware River to Merchantville, N.J. Now Tom must pay a 50-cent bridge toll to visit his old haunts—but it's worth it, eh, Tom? JACK KENNEY (no relation to West Virginia Bill) is teaching at St. Joseph's College (Philadelphia) and practicing law in Media, Pa. SAM HYDE wired a Christmas greeting while passing through Austin, Ind. Marjorie and RAY BRODERICK '35 sent a picture of their lovely family. Ray, now lieutenant governor, is a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania. Good luck, Ray!

Our class president, Judge MAURICE W. LEE, will consult with JACK O'SHAUGHNESSY and Larry Sexton as to the proposal to hold a '33 class reunion on the ND campus after the Purdue game, Sept. 26. In addition to his other activities, Maurie has the honor of being the Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight for the B.P.O. Elks. When are Eva and you coming to visit our local Elks, Maurie?

Now that he got ED ROXAS to write, KARL VOGELHEIM promises to get LUCIO MUNIAN's address. Karl deserted frigid upper Michigan to visit his son in Houston and the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. His daughter, who attends the College of the Holy Names, Oakland, Calif., was with them.

JACK CUNNEA discovers evidence of moral decay at the University, as he didn't get an application for the Cotton Bowl but did get one for the fencing match with Ball State and Ross Poly. Jack sent a photo from the Rhinelander, Wis., newspaper of our classmate, MELVIN ELLIS, who is a nature columnist and author of Run, Rainey, Run, Softly Roars the Lion and Wild Goose, Brother Goose. The photo depicted Mel chatting informally with members of his article-writing class at the Rhinelander School of Arts.

Shortly after sending in the last copy to the ALUMNUS, I received the sad news of the death of our classmate, FRANCIS W. DONALTY, on Nov. 24, 1969. A Mass, expressing condolence, and in proper remembrance, was said on the campus Dec. 21, 1969. Our sympathy is offered to Francis' family. He resided at 109 Harter Place, Utica, N.Y. 13512.

Rev. JIM DONNELLY has been kind enough to remember our deceased classmates in his Masses. He also paid the Conleys a great honor by flying from Copperas Cove, Tex., to attend the funeral Mass for Irene's mother. Fr. Jim's phone number is (817) 547-3735.

Rita and PHIL FAHERTY brought their friends, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Losch, who attended our reunion with the Fahertys, to New York on Feb. 19 to see the ND-NYU game in the new Garden. I was there with TIM TOOMEY '30 and BILL CAMPBELL, the president of the ND subway alumni. The Fahertys' son, Phil, also an ND grad, is getting back from Vietnam and will put some ginger in the law firm of Hunt and Faherty, Lambertville, N.J.

CHUCK HAFRON attended the ND-UCLA basketball game in Los Angeles but couldn't manage a victory. I saw that game on TV, Chuck, and Wooden threw everything at the Irish but Hoagy Carmichael and "Stardust!"

I'm preparing this article early, as my son, the Navy flyer, is being married in Puerto Rico on March 7. Although the bride is from Altoona, Pa., they decided to have the ceremony in the base chapel. The Conleys will be coming from Connersville, Chicago and Havertown to see Lt. Marty properly started in connubial bliss.

'34 NEWS ABOUT FR. JIM

Our Very Rev. Monsignor JAMES V. MOSCOW celebrated the 25th jubilee of his ordination Feb. 15, with an anniversary Mass. The Mass was said in Stagg High School, Palos Hills, Ill. Fr. Jim is assigned to a mission parish and does not have a church yet. Monsignor can be reached at Sacred Heart Church, 8245 W. 111th St., Palos Hills, Ill. 60465.

Dr. JOHN DORSEY has been promoted to brigadier general of the Army. Jack attended Georgetown Medical School after graduation from ND. Dr. Dorsey, assistant attending in plastic surgery at the Hospital for Special Surgery in New York, is also associated with St. John's Queen's Hospital and St. Joseph's. Jack's son, Corporal William Dorsey, was killed in Vietnam in 1966 while serving with the Marines. Cpl. John Dorsey and Pfc. Robert Dorsey are now serving in Vietnam. FRANCIS is a 1969 ND grad.

I do believe our classmates move more than average people in the United States. This month we have 14 changes to note. ROBERT L. CLARK can be reached at Sorry to report the death of Charles L. Huisking Sr. on Jan. 17. Mr. Huisking was the father of CHARLES L. JR. and WILLIAM W. DAVE FROEHLICH received a letter from Rev. DOWNEY, with a mission group in Taiwan, China. A visitor to the mission was talking about the crap games at ND in the 1930s. Fr. Downey asked the visitor if he knew Dave Froehlich, and he almost choked on the olive in his martini! The visitor did know Dave. I suspect the visitor was Rev. EDWARD L. O'MALLEY of Albany, N.Y. Dave, your reputation with the dice has now spread to China.

The ND Alumni Office has notified me of a $1,000.00 donation from JAMES J. O'BRIEN. Jim lives in Pittsfield, Mass. His son, JIM JR., graduated from ND in 1965.

While in the hospital for a checkup, the sad news came to my home about JIM FAGAN's death. It is so hard to believe because he was one of the delights of our reunion. I also had a lovely chat with Jim when in New York for the Army game. I want to thank RAY TROY for his call from New Jersey, and the newspaper clipping he sent. BOB McDONOUGH also sent a note and newspaper clipping. Dave Froehlich also called to advise about Jim's passing.

BERNIE HENNESSY tells about his son, DAVID '69, calling collect from Malacca in Malaysia on New Year's night. David wanted to know how ND did in the Cotton Bowl. Bernie sent on a copy of the death notice of GERRY ANDRES. He is survived by his wife, Muriel K., and four sons. Bernie was out of town that week, and did not get to visit with the family.

CLIFF SAUSVILLE-BARCH, South Orange, N.J., is manager of building services, Sea-Land Services, Inc., P.O. Box 1050, Elizabeth, N.J. 07207. Cliff has three children and three grandchildren. Anyone wanting to see a fantastic operation should visit him in Elizabeth, N.J. They have 37 ships—all "Containerization"—a world-wide operation. Cliff saw RAY TROY at the Glen Ridge Country Club, Bloomfield.

'35 THE TIME IS COMING

As I write this column on March 5, several days before the deadline, my calendar tells me it is only 14 weeks before the big weekend, our 35th reunion on June 12, 13 and 14. Although definite confirmations haven't been pouring in to South Bend, we are encouraged by our treasurer's latest report of classmates who have recently sent in a check to help our "kitty." Optimistic chairman DOC McCRALEY concludes that those who have responded recently, in addition to the ones who have done so over the past few years, will be on hand for another great reunion. If Doc is correct, the count is now 81. At our 30th reunion, 136 classmates were in attendance, and we would like to equal or, better still, exceed that record.

Just to mention a few on our list whom we expect to return once again: ANNAS, BERNARD, BERNBROCK, BOWDREN, BRAYMER, BRACKEN, BREEN, CAREY, CROWLEY, DEMERS, DEMETRIO, DUFFEY, FAIRHEAD, FLYNN, GRAVEL, HAMILTON, HENNEBERGER, HOLAHAN, JENNINGS, KEATING, KEEFE, KENNEDY, KILMURRY, KIRLEY, KREBSER, KURZWEG, LA LONDE, LAWTON, MacDEVITT, MAFFEL, MAROHN, MATAVOSKY, McGUIRE, OTTE, OWEN, PORCORO, PURCELL, RAVARINO, SCHRODER, SHEILS, VEE, WACKERMAN, WEIDNER, WELCH, WILLIAMSEN and WURZER.

Before this issue is published, you will have received a letter from Doctor McCraley outlining the plans conjured up by the committee for your comfort, enjoyment and relaxation for three days. We hope by now you have definitely decided to attend, and have indicated your intentions to Doc or someone else on the committee. If you have ever been on a committee planning an affair where at least a fairly close count is necessary to do the job right, I am sure you will understand why we would so much appreciate hearing from you. If you plan to attend and haven't let your intentions be known by this time, won't you please do so?

Congratulations from the class to Jim MacDevitt for being elected to the Alumni Board, the first one from the class of '35, and a worthy selection.

We received word recently that Frank McGuire, who moved to Germany several years ago representing John Deere as vice-president and general manager of their European operations, is returning to the States and will reside in Moline, Ill. Frank has been elected senior vice-president, and will be in charge of the farm equipment and consumer products division overseas.

Via the Alumni Assn., I picked up some information regarding a few more '35ers. JOE BEACH is now associate director for alumni and development at Holy Cross School in New Orleans. Fred Weidner has been with Sears Roebuck in Chicago since graduation. He has a daughter at the U. of Dayton, and expects that a son will be at ND next year. Another son graduated from ND in '64, and a daughter graduated from Mundelein College. Fred's wife died last summer. Frank Vee wrote that he is with the Defense Department in D.C., is a grandfather four times and intends to be back for the reunion.

Since the last issue we have received word of the deaths of two more of our classmates. JOHN CARESIO sent me a note that JOHN FITZPATRICK died in Chicago Feb. 10, as the result of a heart attack. Through the Alumni Assn., news was received of the death of BEN BEYERER last November in Manchester, Conn. Masses have been offered by our class for both John and Ben.

As a final word, remember the dates June 12, 13 and 14. See you on campus!

'38 NEWS VIA ALUMNI FUND

The alumni fund has brought in some news from several '38ers. Dr. VINCE SHERROD, Odessa, Tex.'s finest, noted on the back of the oil well check he mailed that he will visit us when he brings his son, Mike, to ND as a freshman next fall. FRANCIS SMITH, the old La Portean, sent his first note ever from 9137 Garnish Dr., Downey, Calif., and wouldn't mind hearing from LEN SKOGLUND, CHARLIE DUKE, CHUCK SWEENEY, Rev. JOE RACE, JOHNNY MOIR, PAUL NOWAK and others of "the mob." Another Smith, DONALD L. SMITH, who hasn't been back to campus since 1940 or seen a classmate since W.W. II—a mighty long stretch—sent belated New Year's wishes to all for "health, happiness, peace and prosperity, and, as the Spanish say, 'time to enjoy them.'" Don has been city traffic engineer for Colorado Springs for the past eight years, still has his "hair, teeth, wife, and fondness for martinis, fast autos and slow horses." He also has a vivid recollection of going squirrel hunting with Fr. Joe Race, on Thanksgiving Day, 1936. With Joe that would be vivid! Probably just shook them out of the trees, eh?

Another of our good Fathers made the news. The "Deacon," Rev. JACK ANTON, drove down from his St. John the Apostle parish, Villa Park, with Len Skoglund to join JOHN PLOUFF and his tour to the Cotton Bowl. "TEX" ED HAGGAR and wife, Patti, established themselves as all-time hosts, the Deacon reports, during the four great days. Tex helped with the night-before rally, had a Hagggar brunch at the Sheraton before the game and a '38 rally at their home afterwards. BUNNY MCCORMICK was there from Livermore, Calif., and JOHNNY KELLEY from Maine and almost everybody else between those two states, including ANDY PUPLIS, from Chicago, JOHN O'CONNOR, Indianapolis, BOB WHITECOTTON, New Ross, Ind., JOHNNY POORE and GEORGE MORRIS. The Cotton Bowl trip made up all the games the Deacon had to miss last fall because of illness. But Mayo's and prayers—for which Fr. Jack wants to thank all—got him well.

JOHN WALSH was appointed creative director of Fred Wittner Co. advertising agency. John and wife and four children live in Westport, Conn. A sad letter from EDWARD "NED" FISHWICK told of the death in his sleep of DAVE (HOWARD DAVID) BILGER, Jan. 5, at his home, 26 Sea Park Dr., Saint Augustine, Fla. Dave is survived by his wife, Jean, an English girl he met while stationed in England, a son, Howard, a daughter, Stephanie and two sisters.

Dave retired from the Air Force in 1965 as a colonel and was working with Neighborhood Youth Corps in Jacksonville, Fla. He was buried in Arlington National Cemetery very near President Kennedy. Dave and Ned were the first two boys from Saint Augustine to attend ND. They and ED CRONIN and JOHN DONNELLY, I recall, were great friends on the campus. Ned, on behalf of our class, sent blue and gold flowers to Dave's funeral, the only flowers that were on his grave. I shall ask Fr. Joe Race to say a Mass for Dave on behalf of the class.

Ned, single, is with U.S. Information Agency and lives at Seminary Towers West, 4801 Kenmore Ave., Alexandria, Va. Ned visited Ireland and England and 23 cousins with his nephew last summer. He almost went back over Christmas at his doctor's suggestion to overcome high blood pressure which has troubled him, but is better now. Phone him at 755-4128 when in D.C.

My primary interest from now until election day in May will be to get nominated to the State Senate which I'm attempting after three terms in the Indiana House. In the meantime, you write.

'39 MUCH BELATED, BUT

A much belated happy and blessed new year to the men of '39 from your oft silent secretary.

Long-lost AUGUST "AUGIE" BOSSU pens from Benedictine High School, Cleveland, Ohio: "I read with interest all news of ND and our class. Job responsibilities have so far curtailed any thoughts of active participation in reunions. This is my 15th year as football and basketball coach . . . 1969 brought championships in both sports, making it 12 in football and 11 in baseball in the past 15 years. Frank, our oldest, is a junior and on the football squad at ND. Steve, a junior here at Benedictine, and Frank both played on championship football teams for their Dad. Only wish I had more athletes who could qualify for ND." Congratulations and continued best wishes, Augie, from your fellow '39ers. You're a credit to our Alma Mater.

Another of the coaching fraternity checked in as MAX BURNELL writes: "My wife, Kay, and I moved to East Moline, Ill. I am head football coach at United Township High School and teach physical education. My new address is 5620 C—34th Ave., Apt. 2C., Moline, Ill. 61265."

Frequent contributor PAUL TULLY states: "ALUMNUS is one of my most entertaining readings even after 30 years. My thanks to you! Members of '39 lunched in Manhattan in early January. ED VON HOENE's son returned from Vietnam safely in spite of perilous flying missions. FRED HONERKAMP's son has also made a safe return from Vietnam after having been shot down and missing for some time. Fred's lumber business is surviving a second and perhaps a third generation. CHARLIE METZGER's sons both graduated from ND. Charlie now travels to his home in the Florida Keys rather than back to the campus. A DICK ANTON daughter married last fall and two others are graduate nurses. His older son is to receive a mathematics doctorate this spring from Brown U. Another daughter entered Boston College this year. JIM MCGOLDRICK pursues his legal endeavors in Manhattan and mysteriously maintains his youthful appearance."

From the grapevine: PETER J. FLUGE, general manager of box plant operations in the forest products division of Owens-Illinois, Inc., is vice-president of the forest products division, and most recently served as manager of sales and marketing for the division. JOHN GUTOWSKI will be on campus this coming June for son David's graduation. (Secretary's comment: A gathering of the clan might be arranged if several more '39ers have similar plans for either ND or St. Mary's. Let's hear!)

Word was received recently at the Alumni Office of the death of our classmate, CHARLES F. "BUD" O'MALLEY. Our sincere sympathy to THOMAS E. and members of the family and also to the family of ROBERT DIECKELMAN and the father of NORBERT ALEKSIS (Major) whose passing was reported in recent issues but not your column.

Reunion past: You should all have received your copy of our 30th reunion colorful brochure compliments of Prexy JIM MOTSCALL. A special word of thanks to you, Jim, for this so very thoughtful expression of your regard for all of your classmates. If you have not received your copy, please drop me a note, with your correct address; the omission will be corrected.

'40 40, 30, 70—HIKE?

Repeat: 40-30-70! Remember June 12, 13 and 14! This, our 30th reunion, will be our greatest. JOHN MCINTYRE has indicated that there might be enough men of '40 returning from the Arlington area in the East to consider chartering a flight. Others have indicated much interest in various sections of the country.

I have a fair amount of news to report, so am unable to quote all the messages in their entirety. The ordination of Thomas Schmied, son of FRANCIS "TONY" SCHMIED, as a priest of the Capuchin-Franciscan order was reported by his mother. Remember that we have a class memorial Mass for all of our deceased classmates during the reunion, so all of the men of '40 with Tony are a part of our reunions.

We have good reason for a great reunion with special representation in the Alumni Office. CEC JORDAN's son, MICHAEL E. JORDAN '68, is assistant alumni secretary. Cec will be at the reunion. Sons or daughters of AL MOONEY, PAUL FLOOD, DAVE HYDE, BUD LINNEHAN and JERRY DONOVAN, JIM CASPER's nephew, and a young friend of FARRIS SAFFA have all contacted me on campus to let me know that these men will make the reunion.

BOB TIERNAN's daughter from Des Moines, Iowa, is one of our cheerleaders from St. Mary's. With all daughters in his family, Bob is very pleased to have representation on the gridiron and on the basketball floor. EDWARD J. NEALE is administrator and professor at California State in Los Angeles. He received his Ph.D. from the U. of California (Berkeley) in 1949. EDWARD J. HART has been promoted to division vice-president, commercial communications systems department, RCA commercial electronic systems organization, Camden, N.J. Ed has been with RCA since 1953 and lives in Moorestown, N.J. Any more titles like that and our copy will be cut.

No doubt there will be much conversation about the Cotton Bowl game at the reunion. It seems as if there was a "mini-reunion" in Dallas. GERRY SAEGERT, DON GILLILAND, TOM FLAD, JIM DANER, JACK BRODBERGER and WALT FLEMING are those who have already been identified as being present.

Wish all of you could read JOE CALLAHAN's letter in which he did a great deal of reminiscing. He lived in Badin Hall and has been in Phoenix, Ariz., for the past 10 years. He works as a mechanical designer for G.E. in the information devices department. Joe mentions many names and recalls many happy memories. He is unable to make the reunion, but his letter will be there for all to enjoy. He mentions MIZE MORRIS, NORV HUNTHAUSEN, JERRY FLYNN, JOE HALPIN, TOM HUGHES, JIM PALMER, MACK GUDENKAUF, TOM LE STRANGE, ROY PINELLI, ED REPETTO, CHUCK RISDON, TONY CELLA and VIC VERGARA. As he adds "I can still read and would like to hear from all of them," Joe's address is 5331 E. Verde Lane, Phoenix, Ariz. 85018.

Please make immediate arrangements to attend the reunion and if you have neglected to sign up in advance, send your class remittance of $15.00 to me right now. Make the checks payable to me and your committee will have some funds for more advance planning.

Remember 30-40-70!

'42 VISITING PROF

DONALD P. CASEY wrote a nice note advising that he is now living in Oakbrook, Ill., and is currently a national accounts executive in food packaging for the American Can Co. Don has four sons and the eldest is working for Westinghouse Electric in Dallas. Another son is on a fine arts scholarship at Rhode Island School of Design, and two more are at home. Don visited ND on Dec. 4 and addressed two senior classes in marketing, and says he had a ball. While there, Don ran into JOHN MALONE, assistant dean of the MBA school. Don says it was great to be back there.

People are still talking about that great Texas game. TOM CARROLL advises he attended the game and sat on the 50-yard line with all the great Texans. Tom's daughter, Sister Susan Carroll, is now teaching at Loretto Academy here in Chicago. His brother-in-law, EDWARD ROBERTS (also an ND alumnus) has received his doctorate in mathematics from the U. of Houston, and their entire family is very proud of Ed.

THOMAS E. HORAK, his wife and five children are now living in Wheaton, Ill., and Tom is manager of the Illinois state office for Lawyers Title Insurance Corp. in Chicago.

JACKSON CHUNG has been advanced from chief engineer-drives to director of engineering for the Dodge Manufacturing Corp., Division of Reliance Electric Co., South Bend. THOMAS J. SUELZER has assumed the post of manager of Soybean Processing, Fort Wayne, Ind.

STEVE GRALIKER reports that he had a nice vacation in Nassau with JIM McNULTY and Mel in the cold part of January. Steve also talked to WALTER MCCOURT, who is proud of the fact he has now slimmed down to 210 pounds. Walt is in Omaha as Nebraska distributor for Cooper Tire Co.

'44 A REAL POTPOURRI

This column will be a real potpourri—a little of this and a little of that. It's the middle of everything—not quite spring enough for the annual outdoor chores and not enough winter left to make winter sports enticing.

There was a letter from OZZIE DOLAN, Dubuque's gift to ND. He lamented the sudden deaths of two ND men prominent in his area, THOMAS J. CODY and ROBERT EMMET MURPHY. Usually Ozzie has good news to report but, unfortunately, this time it was a sad letter because of the untimely deaths of two of his close friends.

A note came from BILL WALDRON from Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, where he was trying to recuperate from a three-week bout with pneumonia. He felt he was making good progress but realizes it takes longer to get better than to become sick.

BOB ROHDE, Sheboygan lawyer, was in Green Bay to present his niece, Nancy, at the annual Charity Ball. Even though the two of us are less than 70 miles apart, we see each other so seldom. It was good to have had the visit with him.

WALTER ROMITO, Ravenna, Ohio, recently was elected to the board of directors of the First National Bank of Ravenna. Wally is president of Romito Donnelly Corp., manufacturers of furniture; vice-president of the Rand D. Seating Co. of Tupelo, Miss. and a partner in the Riddle-Romito Oil Co. in Spencer, W. Va. He and his wife have three children.

LEO LARDIE still reminisces over the great 25th, almost a year ago, and is determined to make every one in the future as long as his health permits. That should be at least 10 more, shouldn't it, Leo?

DAN HECHT, Chevrolet dealer in Effingham, Ill., and his wife are the parents of eight, four boys and four girls. He was one of the fortunate ones to attend the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. JACK KOESTER, Moberly, Mo., didn't have news about himself but wrote that his son, a '64 ND grad, recently received his Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology in applied dynamics and physics, and currently is assistant professor of aerospace engineering at the U. of Tennessee Space Institute at Tullahoma, Tenn.

FRANK STUMPF has been named an associate in the corporate finance department of Scott and Stringfellow, Richmond, Va., investment bankers and brokers. JOHN A. SCHROETER has been promoted to division vice-president of Fieldcrest, makers of bed and bath fashions. He lives in Dallas and is in charge of the Southwest region.

JAMES R. KELLY recently was named director of the Delaware River Port Authority's world trade division, headquartered in Philadelphia. He resides with his wife and five of his six children in Winchester House, a hotel he owns in Longport, N. J.

FRED EICHORN, Dallas, sent in details of what ND's finest did in extending Southern hospitality for those attending the Cotton Bowl. Six of the class of '44, SAM WING, FRANK CROWLEY, JACK SCHROETER, DAN FOLEY, CLEM CONSTANTINE and he, more than outdid themselves together with the other Dallas ND alumni. There was a rally for 2,000 at which green derby hats with leprechaun decals were given out the night prior to the game; players were met at the airport and were hosted at a barbecue at the McClendon Ranch; and hospitality suites were maintained at the Fairmont Hotel. Among some '44ers from out of town were Dr. PHIL CLARKE, Denver, EARL ENGLERT, Louisville and LEO DONATI from Saint Louis.

A long letter was received from regional vice-president JOE GALL, Nashua, N. H. Recently he was at ND and saw his first basketball game in the new athletic plant. His son is a freshman at ND. He noticed an article in the South Bend Tribune, which stated that JOE DILLON had resigned his general manager position but it didn't state what his new venture is. Last fall after the Army game, Joe Gall saw a flock of '44ers at the after-game reception, among them JOHN MURPHY, FARRELL QUINLAN, Rev. JOE GALLAGHER, FRANK STUMPF, Joe Dillon, TOM ROLFS, FRANK BRADY and JACK WHITELY. On one of his recent New York jaunts, Joe had a telephone visit with ED DOWLING, chief purchaser for Pan American Airways.

'45 THE GALA 25th IS COMING

I hope all of you have your plans made for our gala 25th class reunion, June 12, 13 and 14. The Alumni Office, with our committee headed by HARRY WALTHERS and our class President BILL KLEIN, living in South Bend, are all working hard to make it the best ever. All we need now is YOU.

As the result of my last column, I received a nice letter from Bro. "PAT" CAIN CSC, former rector of Brownson Hall. Those of you who lived in the "Hall of the Sheets" remember Brother. He is at St. Edward's U., Austin, Tex., and is planning to be at ND for the reunions. See you there, Brother.

PAT MAZZA, the Reading, Pa., M.D., is planning on the reunion. June will be a busy month for the Mazzas, with a son graduating from Malvern Prep. Pat had a coronary a few years back but is going strong.

JOHN VAUST, Zionsville, Ind., has recently been appointed consulting actuary for the state of Indiana. Their oldest boy is on a pre-med academic scholarship at Xavier U.

Fellow Southern Tier New Yorker, HANK FRAILEY, was elected a vice-president, Corning Glass Works, and appointed general manager-television products division, headquartered at Corning, N.Y. The Fraileys have three daughters at St. Mary's. See you at the reunion.

'46 A BRIEF BRIEFING

JOSEPH LATORRE took time out to notify his class that he has been elected vice-president, Midland Construction Co., Inc. Joe and his wife, Helen, have a daughter, who is a freshman at Pennsylvania State, and a son attending State College High School. They now reside in State College, Pa.

A brief note from Dr. ED DENEFE of Ottumwa, Iowa, informs me that his oldest daughter, Mary Beth, is a freshman at St. Mary's College.

That's it!

'49 WHAT TV MAGIC!

Isn't it great to find the Irish continuing to command headlines and TV coverage? Rupp and Wooden, move over! Johnny Dee and his round-ball machine of "Awesome Austin" Carr, Jones, Meehan, etc., certainly have emphatically established ND as a basketball power. Just ask Marquette or Detroit or Ohio. What TV magic they saw (and happily, we also!).

Before launching into happy news of promotions, family additions, etc., let me first ask your prayers for these departed friends: JOSEPH P. ORSI JR., who died suddenly at his home in Taunton, Mass. This was reported to me by JOHN C. SULLIVAN of Quincy, Mass., also a '49er. FRANK A. ZIMMER, who died of cancer on Oct. 20, 1969. Frank had been director of art and structural design for the Packaging Corp. of America. He leaves his wife, Margaret Mary, four daughters and two sons, all living at home in Wadsworth, Ohio. PETER KERNAN brought this sad event to my attention. Then, Mrs. THOMAS ROUGEUX (Norma) wrote a very touching note to the Alumni Office in which she told of the passing of Tom on June 28, 1969, after heart surgery, a bout with hepatitis and finally a stroke. Norma sent a check to the office requesting that the alumni magazine continue to be sent to their only son, 17-year-old Tom Jr. (Boy! That has to make you think a little!)

Alumni Secretary JIM COONEY sent me a memo telling of the death of the mother of Rev. THOMAS McNALLY CSC and LAWRENCE McNALLY '54. The note from Jim mentioned that a special remembrance for Mrs. McNally and all departed alumni and friends would be made at Mass on March 1. Let us also add our prayerful tribute, as the '49er list grows.

A picture showed up in my mail last week. The very distinguished gent was N. WILLIAM ORMSBY, who was recently named corporate controller of Hamilton Cosco, Inc. Bill has been with Hamilton since 1954, holding a number of accounting and managerial positions, the latest being division controller of the office furniture division in Gallatin, Tenn. Bill, the men of Walsh salute you!

A short note came out of Colorado to tell me that Maj. WILLIAM H. CARNAHAN of the U.S. Air Force Academy was promoted to lieutenant colonel in September, 1969. Wait! There's more. In January, 1970, Bill was promoted to academic rank of associate professor in the department of law at the Air Force Academy. Now, perhaps we can come up with an acceptable solution to Vietnam and Laos. Bill, we salute you, too!

Room for a couple of short bursts: ROBERT P. KANE has been made division head of the urethane foam and coatings department for DuPont in Wilmington, Del. Bob's card says, "kids—eight, from Kathleen (14) to Kevin (3); next visit—Purdue game, 1970, if you'll save me tickets."

GEORGE PFAFF has been promoted to vice-president and general manager of Huyck Corp., Albany, N.Y. After ND, he received his master's in business administration and has resided in Albany. Must have lunch occasionally with Sen. JOHN CAEMMERER of Nassau County, N.Y., who is continuing to press for his "truth in credit reporting" bill which he introduced in 1968. John has had hearings on the bill throughout New York state and has gained widespread attention.

As Dean Martin so often says, "Keep those cards and letters coming, fans." (Memo to N.Y.C.: Those Cardinals are coming, Met fans!) See you next issue.

'50 CLEAR YOUR CALENDAR

By the time this letter reaches you, I hope you will have been able to clear your calendar so that you can attend our 20th reunion, June 12, 13 and 14. We are looking forward to all of you doing your best to arrange to be there.

We had a fine get-together at my home with Kathy and RUSS SKALL, Norah and PAUL SCHAEFER and Marcia and LARRY COUTRE. Russ not only operates his famous Appleton Colonial Wunderbar Restaurant, but is now in the Bell Captain North Central, Inc., which puts handsome cabinet-type dispensers of beverages, etc., in hotel and motel areas. Paul Schaefer is doing well as an executive assistant in the Deltona Corp., with the Mackle Brothers, who are building Marco Island and other areas in Florida. Larry is our Miami FBI stalwart, and looks as young and healthy as ever.

JOHN KELLY, vice-president of Mutual of New York, is reported to be projecting a fine image in his profession. The DON BUSECKs and their four boys are a handsome-looking family with skis in hand, and plenty of snow around, in the Christmas greeting received. Rev. DON KUNKEL, my Ozark Mountain contact in Huntsville, Ark., reports he is doing well and almost had a conflict of interests last winter, before Arkansas lost the right to meet ND in the Cotton Bowl. Doty and JERRY RAMSBERGER report from Saint Petersburg, Fla. Their Kerry is to graduate from the U. of Florida in June. Katie is a college freshman; Peter had a good season quarterbacking at Boca Ciega High School; Rebecca is a cheerleader at Tyrone Junior High School; and Thomas and Timothy are full of life. Jerry teaches at the Clearwater campus of the junior college, and as all of us, is looking forward to our 20th reunion in June.

JOHN "RED" LUCAS comes through Miami on business often. Had a pleasant renewed contact from JIM QUIGLEY. My old friend and co-philosophy major, Rev. DAN CLARKE, pastor at St. Patrick's Church, Cumming, Iowa, and also editor of the diocesan newspaper, is hopefully going to be able to make the reunion. Had a nice note from Sarah and RODNEY FORBES, College Park, Md., reporting on their Rosemary, Teresa, Cecilia, Carol and Jennifer, ranging from the fifth grade down. Sounds like a grand family. You may wish

Congrats

PHILIP J. LUCIER '42, president and director of the Continental Telephone Corp., was elected chairman of the board of trustees at Fontbonne College, Saint Louis, Mo. Lucier resides in University City, Mo.

JOSEPH E. JACOB '43 has been named vice-president of manufacturing of the Everett Piano Co., South Haven, Mich. Prior to joining Everett as plant manager in 1969, Jacob was on the staff of the Torrington Manufacturing Co., Rochester, Ind. Everett is a subsidiary of the Hammond Corp.

WILLIAM D. MANLY '47 has been appointed vice-president of Cabot Corp., and will continue to serve as general manager of the Stellite Division, which was purchased by Cabot on Jan. 1, 1970, from Union Carbide Corp. Manly is a resident of Kokomo, Ind.

C. CARROLL CARTER '49 has been appointed assistant administrator for public affairs of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe. Carter is a former president of the Somerfeld Machine Co., a Pittsburgh manufacturer of steel mill replacement parts.

DR. HAROLD R. IMBUS '50, former deputy director of medical services at the Kennedy Space Center, has been appointed director of Burlington Industries' medical services in Greensboro, N.C. In his new position, Imbus will administer the company's program of medical and occupational health services.

JOHN J. HARFORD '51 has been appointed manager of the production department of Alexander and Alexander, Inc., a Pittsburgh insurance firm. He and his wife and their seven children reside in Pittsburgh.

to try their midsummer family vacation retreat at the Carmelite Seminary, Hamilton, Mass.

FRANK KELLEY has consented to be our 1970 local reunion chairman. RICHARD GAGNON is executive vice-president and secretary of the Sollitt Construction Co., was elected a director of the National Bank and Trust Co., South Bend, is board chairman of Semi-conductor Industrial Leasing Corp., secretary of the Sollitt Foundation, Inc. and vice-president of the Fairbault (Minn.) Daily News. He is a director of the Wells Electronics, South Bend, and the Benicia Industries, Inc., Benicia, Calif., as well as former director of Wells Aluminum Corp., and president of the Industrial Foundation, Inc. RICHARD MCGOLDRICK, vice-president, consumer foods, Bay State Milling Co., Boston, is also director of the Woodland Golf Club and Northeast Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

JOHN LONK has been appointed trust officer of the Continental Bank, Chicago. Rev. KEVIN O'ROURKE is serving as president of the Aquinas Institute, Ecumenical School of Theology, Dubuque, Iowa. ED MCCARTHY is vice-president of the Louisiana Land and Exploration Co., and manager of the company's real estate department. The ANTHONY PANZICAS have six sons and two daughters, not too far behind the JOHN G. KELLYs, with 10 fine children. I do not know which classmate will win the prize for the largest family. Rev. RICHARD J. DOWNS is assistant to the president of St. Mary's College. I had a nice note from Pat and JACK COURTNEY, reporting on their Katie, Colleen, Susan, Anne, John and Bill, with some news about Nancy and BILL EGGERS, Pat and HUGH MULLIGAN (Hinsdale), Dolly and BUD ROHLING (Omaha), Barb and JOHN NEIS (Walled Lake, Mich.), Mary and JACK DONELLY (Dayton), JIM HOLWAY, (Washington, D.C.), Fran and JIM NOONAN (Saint Louis) and Shirley and BILL KENNEDY (Oak Park). Speaking of Saint Louis, I have received permission from Dean Lawless of the ND Law School to have an official luncheon in Saint Louis next August at the American Bar Assn. meeting, in case any of you are in the vicinity at the time.

'52 GOOD NEWS THIS TIME

Good news is coming in from two of the most productive men in the class of '52. WILLIAM J. VANDEVEN has joined the Bank Administration Institute as a principal research associate. He will work in the automation section of the research division. Married, he resides with his wife and nine children in Mount Prospect, Ill.

CHARLES M. LINSSENMEYER M.D. is the chief and only orthopedic surgeon at St. Joseph's Hospital in St. Charles, Mo. Chuck just celebrated his sixth wedding anniversary by welcoming his fifth child. To say both of these guys are a little apprehensive about the future is really putting it mild.

PETER J. GARVEY, Omaha, Neb., writes that he received his M.B.A. degree from Creighton U. in January. He dropped in for the Air Force-ND football game. Don't let those student antics rattle you, Pete, they often get carried away.

Back to the production line. THOMAS

J. DESSER is working for General Motors Corp. as a supervisor in cost analysis at the Fisher Body Plant. He has increased the population of Flushing, Mich., by 13, six boys and seven girls, and that takes a lot of analyzing.

RICHARD BORZILLERI writes in from Setawee, N.Y., that he is under consideration for a Sloan Fellows Program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It would be a great feather for Dick to travel to New England and get into that great academic atmosphere.

LEO M. STEPANIAN is living in Butler, Pa., and is a member of the law firm of Brydon, Stepanian, O'Brien and Cook. After marrying Patricia Lancaster of South Bend, he has been pursuing the law route. Leo has three children, ages 5, 11 and 12. He sees quite a few of the ND grads in the Pittsburgh area. Check with GEORGE BROWN for a fast trip to ND this fall, Leo.

From Chattanooga, Tenn., PATRICK J. CROWE JR. tells us he is now executive vice-president of the Sewanee Supply Co. For 13 years, he has been working in the retail lumber, millwork and ready mixed concrete business. Right after graduation, Pat spent four years in the Marines as a dive bomber pilot and later as a flight instructor. Pat married the girl he went with all through ND, Jeannine.

JUD CASSIDY has moved to the land of milk and honey. Edie, Jud and the four children are now in Sacramento, Calif., where Jud is the general sales manager of TV station KXTV. They left behind a beautiful home in Wilmette, Ill., which he is willing to sacrifice to any old friend who has the ready cash. A very small commission will be involved in the sale—and, of course, contributed to Challenge II.

F. G. SHINSKY has been named controls systems consultant for the Foxboro Co. His book, Process Control System, is being translated into Italian, Rumanian and Japanese.

JOHN ENGELS, author of The Homer Mitchell Place, (poems) and A Guide To William Carlos Williams, is now editing Studies in Paterson. He is associate professor of English at St. Michael's College, Vermont.

'53 WELCOME BACK, '53ers

By virtue of geographic proximity and offensive persistence, I have been assigned the task of writing the column. For all the editors of this magazine and our class know, BUD STUHLREHER never got home from the reunion in June of 1968; he hasn't been heard from since. ED MCCARTHY promised to help with information, as did JERRY O'CONNOR, Chicago, who visits with us in South Bend from time to time, in engineering his housing project. The Alumni Office also indicated a willingness to send out a more extensive biannual report on our class due to the severe length limitations on this column. JIM COONEY, alumni secretary, also agreed to publish a current class directory if the need and interest were evidenced. Drop me a note and let us know your wish on the class directory.

A Mass from the fund collected at the 15th reunion for the repose of the soul of HUGH SWEENEY was recently said. His death was noticed in the January-February issue of the ALUMNUS.

No details available. TOM "SEED" MCKEON has returned to South Bend to sell insurance with his brother-in-law, ED MCCARTHY. Tom is a good friend of assistant basketball coach GENE SULLIVAN, who should be able to help with information about classmates during the course of his team and recruiting travels. BILL WUETCHER is a dentist in Louisville, enjoying the good life; GEORGE FARRELL is now back running the Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, after an extended overseas tour with that organization; BILL MAUS and DON DORINI both reside in Fort Lauderdale and bless us with occasional visits to the ball games; the father of GEORGE MCCOURT recently died in Grand Rapids. George is living and working in Detroit. I see ROGER NOLAN, lawyer-engineer for Bendix's South Bend division, about once a month. He, too, is going to help with the information on our class. I literally ran into CHARLIE RITTEN on the street in Chicago, and he is enjoying his seat on the grain exchange.

DICK WAGNER and JOE BUCKHEIT came in for the MSU game with their spouses. Dick is a lawyer in Buffalo, and Joe just left Buffalo with a transfer as tax manager to the Indianapolis Price, Waterhouse office. They report JACK ENDERS is still hawking insurance and RALPH ARGEN is still a grumpy doctor in Buffalo. You all know that GEORGE KELLY is defensive line coach and that Rev. ERNEST BARTELL is now chairman of the economics department at ND, with the title, too. JOHN W. HOUCK, who is teaching in the commerce school, will also keep informed on his friends like DAVID SCHEIBER and JACK HOWLEY who call him when in South Bend. GEORGE SCHILLING is the proprietor of a family photo and printing business in South Bend and we get together fairly frequently. BRIAN DUFF is running for the Illinois House of Representatives from the North Chicago area and AL HANEY is campaign manager. Give us a report on the results, men.

Talked with BILL FRENCH, Phoenix attorney, about nine months ago and I see BOB BENSON, Grand Rapids attorney, about once a year. All was well with both. Rev. GENE GORSKI CSC is still in Paris working on his 28th degree and may return home to the campus in time to retire from the active priesthood. BILL KEANE, Fort Wayne ex, is teaching accounting and will soon be the recipient of a doctorate in economics to accompany his C.P.A. entitlement.

You can see that this column is based almost exclusively upon limited hearsay information and what few friends I have left. Send the information, and don't get discouraged if it isn't used immediately because the deadlines and word limits on the column are both difficult. The material will be saved and put in the more expansive periodic supplements during the course of the year. Let me hear from you on the class directory. I took this job on the promise that something should be better than nothing and hope you agree.

'55 COME SEE THE AGED ONES

Before you forget it, mark down June 12-14 on your calendar. Those are the dates you will be on campus to see how all the other guys have aged while you have breezed through in such perfect shape. Get the vacation slotted and the other '55ers in the area tuned in for Reunion '70.

Letter of the cycle goes to JOHN CONNAUGHTON, who is practicing law in Wapakoneta (that's right!), Ohio. After leaving the Marines, John received his law degree from Michigan. Last April, John married a most beautiful gal, the former Joanne Puka (a picture proved his point). He is leaving the "joys and freedoms of bachelor existence" to ED KELLY, who is practicing in Lafayette, Ind., after getting his law degree at Wisconsin. JOHN MORRISSEY was an usher at John's wedding. He's an engineer with Humble Oil in Cincinnati and has four children. John also hears quite regularly from BOB RUSSELL, who is with Bache and Co. in Chicago. Bob has two little girls. Rev. JIM SCHERER stopped by the Connaughton residence on his way back from Pakistan to Washington, where he will be doing graduate work at Johns Hopkins while living at the Holy Cross Foreign Mission Seminary.

If you want to feel old, gang, CLARENCE HODGES is a grandfather! While you pick yourself up off the floor, I will admit that Clarence is a few years older than most members of the class, but! He completed his master's at ND and received an educational specialist degree from M.S.U. (boo!) and is now completing his fourth year as principal of the Morton School in the Benton Harbor, Mich., system. Clarence has five children and his son-in-law is the Don Highsmith who carried the mail for M.S.U. against the Irish.

JIM EHRET has been promoted to Navy commander and has earned the sixth and seventh flight awards to his Air Medal for "meritorious achievement in aerial flight" in combat in Southeast Asia. Air Force Maj. BILL STAHL has been decorated with the U.S. Joint Service Commendation Medal at Osan AB, Korea.

BOB MALLON of Tacoma has been named Time magazine quality dealer award winner for 1970. After graduation with a B.S.C. degree in marketing, he returned to the dealership as vice-president. He has two children. Speaking of Time, I hope you caught RAY KENNEDY's tongue-in-cheek story on the California health spa. FRANK MAIER is out to give Ray a little competition, having joined Newsweek's Chicago bureau.

BOB PHILLIP (2411 Webb Ave., New York) now is associated with the Rinfret Management Co. Quite a change from chemical engineering! JOE DALEY has been elected a partner in the Manhattan law firm of Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander.

JOHN LOCHTEFELD wrote to straighten me out on his whereabouts. Seems I wrote that he lived in Nantucket. He has a studio and a small art gallery there, but the school year finds him in Peekskill, N.Y. (72 Oregon Rd.) as an associate professor of art at Marymount College in Tarrytown. John passed along some other news. DICK SCHERPEREEL is chairman of the art department at the U. of Texas at Kingsville. He has two children. JOHN RUSSO has his own law office in Toms River, N.J. DICK CONNELLY, who is public relations director for ABC, lives in Plainfield, N.J. PETE WALSH, of Glee Club fame, is a partner in a law firm in Albany. Pete, who has two girls and a boy, lives in Delmar, N.Y. GORDON GOETEMANN is a professor of art at Chicago's Mundelein College.

Congrats

ROBERT G. FINNEY '53 of Franklin Lanes, N.J., has been appointed a vice-president of Western Union, in charge of the company's planning and engineering operations at the Mahwah, N.J., technology center.

ODILIO M. DIAZ '54 was recently appointed president of the Aviation Associates of Puerto Rico, Inc., and is responsible for the administration of all phases of the company's operations. Diaz resides in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

JOHN R. GRINDEL '54 has been named vice-president of construction and engineering for the Simone Corp., a Detroit-based company involved nationally in the financing, designing, engineering and building of commercial and industrial real estate. Grindel and his wife have moved to Detroit.

C. KEVIN BURKE '59 has joined the Chicago Corp., an investment firm, as a vice-president. Burke, who resides in Chicago with his wife and son, was formerly associated with Eastman Dillon, Union Securities Co.

PHILIP S. ALLEN '60, manager of over-the-counter trading for the Midwest division of Walston and Co., Inc., has been elected a vice-president of the nationwide investing firm. Allen, his wife and their five children reside in Chicago.

JOHN J. McKENNA '60 has been appointed director of personnel for the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene, Albany. McKenna has been affiliated with the state of New York since 1960, and joined the department of mental hygiene in 1967.

BOB McGRATH lives in San Francisco and is enjoying life as "a rich millionaire playboy businessman." Those are John's quotes, Bob!

Ran into a couple of out-of-towners at the organization '55 meeting held during the housewares show. TOM ARMSTRONG is supervisor of refrigerated appliance products for Owens Corning Fiberglas in Toledo. TOM GALLAGHER is a New York (230 Fifth Ave.) manufacturer's representative. WALT KACZMAREK is Midwest sales manager for Stouffer Foods. He mentioned that ED COOK, who toiled for the Atlanta Falcons until last season, is back in Philadelphia.

DON LANSPA has been appointed metropolitan director of the National Alliance of Businessmen in Kansas City, Mo. Don is on leave from Western Electric. JIM OWENS (2315 Virginia, Springfield, Mo.) checked in with a new addition, Michael Joseph. LOU MONTEEL (3517 Phelps Rd., Independence, Mo.) continues to remain single and expects to lead the singing at the reunion.

While on the subject of reunions and their aftermath, let's talk about doctors. BILL WAHL, who reached the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army, has resigned and is practicing internal medicine. Bill has three children and lives at 9504 N.E. 30th St., Bellevue, Wash. BILL TUNELL was slated for a Feb. 1 discharge and ready to join the faculty of the Children's Hospital of the District of Columbia. JOHN HACKETT is practicing in the Chicago area and living at 348 S. Park Rd., LaGrange, Ill.

While marking your calendar for the reunion, block out the Purdue weekend for the spirit-fest at the Morris Inn.

'55L REMEMBER REUNION

Let me remind you that our 15th reunion is coming up in June of this year. If you have not already made plans to attend, please set aside the first week in June for this important event. The ALUMNUS will announce the dates of this year's reunion. Since you may not be on a reunion mailing list, I urge you to write directly to the University and request that space be set aside for your individual needs. DICK MILLER has agreed to bring his films of the 1955 graduation exercises. These films were shown three or four years ago at KENT ROWE's home in South Bend and were quite amusing. Some of us will be surprised at the changes since that date long ago in 1955. Again I urge you to attend this year's reunion.

After graduating in 1955, JOE STRAUB passed the New York Bar and worked as a claim adjuster with U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty. In 1958 he moved to Algona, Iowa, and became an associate in the firm of Linnan and Lynch, in which he became a full partner in 1960. He was elected county attorney in 1968 and opened up his own office in early 1969, where he maintains a private practice in addition to his duties as Kossuth County attorney. Active in politics, Joe has served as Democratic county chairman for the past five years and as a delegate to several Democratic state conventions. He was finance chairman for the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor of Iowa in 1968. Married in 1951, Joe and his wife, Mary, are now the proud parents of 11 children. Wow, this must be a record for our class! In recent years, Joe has become active in parish and diocesan affairs, serving as a member of his parish school board, and testifying on several occasions on matters connected with school bus legislation. For two years he served as chairman of the county advisory board of the Office of Economic Opportunity. A recent convert to the cursillo movement, Joe has served as diocesan lay director to the diocese for the past several years. Of interest to Clevelanders, he expects to be in that city in July of this year at the national convention of the cursillo movement. Be sure to look me up, Joe, when you arrive.

From Beckley, W. Va., CONNIE HIGGINS informs me that he has been in practice in that city engaged in federal and state taxation matters. He formed a partnership in 1958 with JOHN H. GORMAN, a law graduate of 1954. His principal dealings are with the coal mining business and tax evasion cases. Connie points out that many individuals in West Virginia have their own peculiar methods of accounting for federal tax purposes, many of which are not approved by IRS, thus leading to some interesting tax cases. Married in September, 1957, to Mildred Frances Svehlak of Derby, Conn., he is now the proud father of six boys and three girls. For the past four years Connie has been the West Virginia delegate to the Notre Dame Law Assn.

DICK SHIPMAN was admitted to the Bars of both Illinois and Indiana after graduation in 1955. In August of that year, he joined the legal staff of the U. S. General Accounting Office in Washington, D.C., with which he is still associated, specializing in commerce law. In this field he represents the interests of the United States as a consumer of public transportation. Dick is also a member of the Bar of the U. S. Supreme Court and of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In 1964, he married the former Avril Elizabeth Quiggin of the Isle of Man, Great Britain, and is now the father of a three-year-old son. In November, 1965, he purchased a two-unit 100-year-old house on Capitol Hill at 5th and East Capital Streets, N.E., in Washington, D.C., situated three blocks from the Supreme Court. Not content with a historical house, Dick is now in the market for a small apartment building and a 100-acre farm in Maryland. As you may remember, Dick was a fencing buff during his law school years and has continued in the sport since graduation. He turned professional last year and presently teaches fencing in a Washington, D.C., school of theatrical arts and also does coaching for local theatrical productions. In previous years, Dick taught karate and taekwon do, in which he earned a colored belt. I guess in Washington things are so bad that to get around you must be both a karate and fencing expert. Active in parish matters, Dick is president of the parish St. Vincent de Paul Society, and a daily and Sunday lecturer at his parish church.

'57 96 HOURS OF CELEBRATION

The highlight of the year has to be the Cotton Bowl Game and the festivities that surrounded it. The class of '57 was well represented in Dallas. Among those I personally had a chance to visit and bend an elbow with were DOUG McKAY, JOE NEUHOFF, BILL WATSON, JIM MORSE, BOB CALABRESE, PAT SHEERIN and my roommate for the stay, BOB SALVINO. I am sorry not to have met GEORGE STRAKE and MOORE McDONOUGH, who also were reported to have made the game. Besides having seen a wonderful game, we all were treated royally by our Dallas hosts and, of course, all of us had to make a pilgrimage to Neiman-Marcus for purposes of buying something for our wives, keeping them on the good side. I don't believe you could have walked half a block in the area of the hotels without running into somebody in your class or a friend from another class in our era. As I told my friends, it was the longest New Year's I have ever spent, which came out to be about 96 hours of celebration.

Big congratulations to class President JOHN McMEEL and wife, Susan, on their June addition of daughter, Maureen Anne. Also, Susan advises that John is board chairman and president of Universal Press Syndicate, New York. Great going, John.

TOM "TIGER" MULCAHY led a contingent of the Milwaukee Brewmeisters to New Orleans for the Tulane game and saved LARRY BEDFORD from the Bourbon Street crowd. He later stumbled into TOM "GUNNER" GUNNING in from Atlanta. Tiger is now general sales manager for the Milwaukee Co., an investment firm.

Did you know department: That MIKE HAYES is the father of three sons? Mike, his wife, Phyllis, and family live in Middletown, N.J., and he's the national sales manager with Personal Products Corp. JOE MOCARSKI as of Jan. 1, 1970, is new products manager for Gillette Safety Razor Co., in Boston. HARRY McKEE is district manager for Andrew Corp., manufacturer of transmission lines and antennas. Harry lives in Altamora, Calif., with wife Betty and three children.

One evening some weeks back, I was pleasantly surprised by a phone call from my old blocking partner, JOE BIHN, a poultry and egg king out of Oakland, Calif. Joe's business is thriving and is international in scope—make sure you buy only West Pacific Poultry Corp. eggs. Joe promised me a martini for that plug. Joe claims that DEAN STUDER and his lovely wife, Connie, out of the wild west of Montana, are the proud parents of nine little Studers. I questioned Joe thoroughly on this point and he claims it's the gospel truth. I always knew Dean to be quick but not that quick. Is there any rebuttal to this information?

BOB SCANNELL is now dean of the college of health, physical education and recreation at Penn State U. Good going, Bob. I could use a course in health, right about now. I had a great lunch with FRANK HENNESSEY, CY FRIEDHEIM, BOB ECKLAND and PAT SHEERIN at RAY CAPITANINI's Italian Village in Chicago. The Chicago crowd is making plans to make the Missouri game in Saint Louis this year and we hope we can interest many of our class to hit Saint Louis for an unofficial reunion.

THOMAS P. MEIRINK M.D. was guest speaker at the second western hemisphere congress of the International College of Surgeons in Montreal last fall. Dr. Meirink was associated with Drs. Fritsch, Hurd and Meirink, 8601 W. Main St., Belleville, Ill., and is an instructor at St. Louis U. School of Medicine.

BOB BERTA has for the past six years operated the AAMCO Service Center in South Bend and recently opened another center in Mishawaka. He has added a line of classic cars to his organization, such as a 1914 Stutz Bearcat, a Model A Ford and a 1970 Cord. RONALD FARROW placed second in an Indiana state fencing meet last fall and is currently vice-chairman for the ALFA in Indiana. Ronald has five daughters. JOSEPH P. EMMITZ M.D. is now a partner in the new Dickinson Medical Clinic, Dickinson, Tex., practicing internal medicine.

ALLAN PRAUGHT received the degree of juris doctor from Suffolk U., Boston, Mass., June 15. GUY E. WEISMANTEL is western regional editor of Chemical Engineering, based in Los Angeles.

MARTIN J. ALLEN JR. is vice-president of marketing, Old Kent Bank and Trust Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., and is responsible for the bank's public relations programs. The bank won an award for its continuing efforts in establishing constructive communications between black and white segments of the metropolitan area following racial disturbances in 1967.

'59 '59ers' AFFAIRS

JOHN P. BURDICK is in sales with International Paper Co., Chicago. Allison Lee is the name of the daughter born (Nov. 12, 1969) to Carol and GREG DEVERS. All three can be found at 143-39 84 Dr., Briarwood, N.Y. 11435. BOB HASSENGER of the ND faculty "ran into" MARK SHIELDS at O'Hare in early December and BILL McCULLOUGH at the same airport later in the month. (Bill is still in Monroe, La., managing a plant for International Paper, after being with them in New York City and Los Angeles. After the Navy, Bill took his M.B.A. at Harvard.) Bob married Nancy Orloff on Dec. 27 in Brownsville, Tex., and the Hassengers spent part of their honeymoon in Dallas, rooting for the Irish in the Cotton Bowl Classic. Also in Dallas were the CARL EDMUNDSONS (whom I had seen earlier in San Jose, Calif., where Carl has an insurance agency), DON HANIGAN, the DICK TRANTS (still prospering in Boston), the JIM COONEYS (from the campus, and joined by many of their Albuquerque relatives) and the DAVE KELSEYS (the successful barrister from Albuquerque). Dallas classmates were responsible for the very successful ND hospitality room at the Fairmont Hotel and the New Year's Eve party at the Municipal Auditorium. Special thanks go to the JIM JUSTS, the JAY JONESes, the CHICK MARTINS and the Dallas bachelor who chaired the New Year's Eve blast, ROBERT S. WILLIAMS.

THOMAS E. KRISTOPEIT has formed his own development company, THK Associates, providing services in city and regional planning. JIM PIOWATY has finished the requirements for his Ph.D. in physics, and is currently an assistant professor at DePaul (Chicago). TOM PLOFCHAN is the director of admissions at Marygrove College, Detroit. Tom has an M.A. from the U. of Detroit and is a Ph.D. candidate at Wayne State. Tom and Paula have six children. JERRY TRAUTSCHOLD is manager of Mobil Oil Caribe, Inc., and the father of two sons. MARTIN W. MCGINN has been named marketing coordinator for agricultural chemicals of Atlas Chemical Industries, Inc. He was formerly with D.F. Collier and Son, Milwaukee, after serving two years in the Army Medical Corps. JAY CALDWELL was recently honored for outstanding salesmanship by Johnson and Johnson Baby and Proprietary Division. Jay is an account manager in Washington, D.C. GERALD ANDERSON, program manager at IBM in Des Plaines, Ill., was cited for his outstanding contribution toward an advanced computer program by IBM. Gerry and Marilyn and their two children live in Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Judy and BO BROEMMEL are the parents of a girl, Barbara Renee, born on July 16, 1969. They have two sons, Brad (6) and Jeffrey (3). JAMES R. BIELEFELD practiced law in Crown Point, Ind., for six and one-half years and last October opened his own firm in Loogootee, Ind. Jim and Marilyn have four sons: James Jr. (5), Gregory (4), Thomas (3) and David (Nov. 14, 1969).

The condolences of the class are extended to BRUCE MacINTYRE (2512 Irving Place, Billings, Mont.) whose father died last September. Nancy and STEVE DORNBACH have four children: Monica (8), Michele (6), Melissa (4) and Stephen (2). Steve has been in the field of corrections since grad school here on campus. He is now located in St. Paul, Minn., and is a supervisor with the Ramsey County Probation Department, juvenile division. Steve has maintained frequent contact with his old roommate, BILL CASEY. Bill, still teaching and coaching at Notre Dame High School, Niles, Ill., missed the reunion because of a trip to Europe.

DICK SELCER is the new head football coach at Xavier U., Cincinnati. Dick has been at Brown as an assistant coach. Joining Dick will be DON COSTA. Don will take over the backfield coaching position at Xavier; he has been head coach at Ellwood City (Pa.) High School for the last few years. Coming to the state of Ohio is MARK SHIELDS, former director of campaigns for the Democratic National Party. Mark will be the campaign manager for JOHN J. GILLIGAN, ND grad and candidate for the governorship of Ohio.

'60 COME BACK, COME BACK

Come back Shane, come back Flor, come back Dreska, back Boz, Mason, Mac, J.C., one and all. The time is now. Return to the St. Joe. See the old sights and learn about the new. Enjoy a seminar or sip a beer. Better yet, try both. It's can popping, divot flying, camera clicking and conversation time. Bring a round ball—stomach, head or golf!

They're coming: BILL WHITE, Dubuque, Iowa, is an industrial engineering supervisor for John Deere Tractor. He and Fran have Bill (8), Wendy (7), John (5) and David (3). SAHAG OXIAN, South Bend, is teaching French in the Brandywine schools, Niles, and spends some time playing cello in the Elkhart Symphony. JOE JANSEN, Indianapolis, is the father of a sixth child, Stephen Christopher, born last spring. DAN REYNOLDS, Pittsburgh, and his wife, Joan, have two children, Laura and Thomas.

Dan has been with the Highway Equipment Co. since 1961 and is looking forward to seeing some old(er) faces. KEVIN WHALEN—oh, how the mighty have fallen—was married in April to Barbara Lucas, Buffalo, N.Y. DAVE ROLLER received his M.B.A. in 1969 from the U. of Chicago and is now project supervisor at Teletype Corp., Skokie, Ill. His wife, Janie, teaches piano students and is the busy mother of Kathy (6), David (5) and Christopher (3½). DEE STEVENSON, Niles, Mich., has a new son, Grant, to go with his two daughters. TOM KANE is now the budget director for Diamond Red Trucks in Lansing, Mich. He and wife, Susan, have twin girls and one son, Timothy. FRED (PETE) DEUTSCH and his wife, Jan, are the parents of three daughters. Fred is the chief product planning analyst for Lincoln. JIM CURCIO is with Gary Steel Products Corp., as an office manager. Jim, the father of two sons, recently was elected to the board of directors for Phillips McColley, Inc., a wholesale plumbing company. JIM DOMINELLO JR. and his wife are the parents of a new son, Vincent. Jim is working as an account executive for Jeehl Advertising Agency, South Bend. JIM PETERS is a fiscal officer at the Cornell U. Medical College. Jim had previously been at Rutgers U. for two years as business manager of the medical school and had spent two years with the U.S. Public Health Service, and three and one-half at the American Embassy in Tokyo. Jim has two girls and two boys. WALT RUSSELL JR. has moved from Dallas to Bozeman, Mont., to teach history and coach football and track at Bozeman High. His wife, Jan, and children, Mike, Danny, Tom and Mary Maureen, are enjoying the mountains.

Some maybes: ED KEARSE is the corporation counsel for Syracuse, N.Y. Prior to that, he was a staff attorney for Bristol-Meyers Co., and on LBJ's White House staff. MIKE KELLY is attorney and vice-president of Victoria Bank and Trust Co. in Texas. He and Kathryn have three children. TOM ADAMSON and wife are living in Fair Oaks, Calif., with Ryan (3), Keven (1½) and Marisa (4 mo.). PETE CYBULSKIS is a research engineer with Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus. He is a registered professional engineer and is engaged in research on a broad spectrum of nuclear engineering problems. D.B. SWEENEY is an engineer with Sweeney Brothers Tractor Co., Fargo, N.D. He and his wife, Anne Elizabeth, and their four children love the skiing. BOB FINDLAY, Silver Springs, Md., is assistant corporation counsel for the D.C. government and was married last June to Pat Pierlott. JOHN GUNDERMANN is the father of four sons and is employed as an assistant to the superintendent in steelmaking at Johnstown plant of Bethlehem Steel. JIM THOMPSON and wife, Jill, moved from Fresno to Palm Springs when Merrill Lynch opened there. JOE REYNOLDS is now the Clarence Danow of Reno. DENNY NOLAN is back in San Francisco and DENNIS KIDDER, after four months in Harvard's management development program, was recently appointed director of American Can's technical service lab in Batavia, Ill. Dr. JOHN O'BRIEN's first child, Kevin, was born in November at Colorado Springs. GEORGE KENT WELDON was married in October to Irene Endres of Watertown, N.Y. BILL WELDON '56 was best man, and JOE BOCK JR. was an usher. ED MEYER JR. was recently elected to the board of directors of the American National Bank of Green Bay. JIM HOLZBACH is serving with the officer in charge of construction in Saigon. He's involved primarily with the fixed-price contracts for facilities which are being built by contractors other than the RMK-BRJ combine. These are generally in the outlying areas. ANTHONY MACIOCE and wife, Jacqueline, are living in Warren, Mich., where Anthony is the executive art director and vice-president of Ross Roy, Inc., a Detroit ad agency.

'66 PATIENCE, MEN

Your response to my call for information has been tremendous! I'll try to get as many of you in as possible but if you don't see your name this month, please be patient. It will show up in my next article. Meanwhile, keep up the good work.

As always, there is much news from our classmates in the armed forces. Lt. MELVIN RAY DANYSH is presently in Germany as projects and plan officer for the District Engineer Office, Wuerzburg. He received his M.S. in civil engineering from ND in 1968. Ray and wife, Carolyn, became the proud parents of a baby girl, Heather Rae, last August. Capt. DENNY O'CONNELL was married in August after graduating from Saint Louis U. Law School. Denny and his wife, Sherry, are now stationed in New Orleans with the Judge Advocate Corps. Second Lt. MICHAEL DOBROWOLSKI is in flight school at Ft. Stewart, Ga., where he and his wife, Joyce, became the parents of a girl, Deanna Marie. Lt. JOHN HALE is assigned to Cam Ranh Bay AB, with an aeromedical evacuation detachment involved in flying battle casualties back to the states.

Capt. JOSEPH JANSEN was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service while engaged in an armed conflict in Vietnam. Joe and wife, JoAnn, are the parents of a handsome son, Joseph. Lt. ROBERT DOWNS is stationed at the Navy hospital in Guam after receiving his master's from the U. of Minnesota in hospital administration. Bob did his residency at St. Mary's Hospital in Minneapolis.

MICHAEL RUSH is assigned to the 5th South Vietnamese Division as an adviser from the 1st U.S. Air Cavalry Division, located about 20 miles northwest of Saigon. Upon Mike's return to the States, he is planning a September wedding and the commencement of grad school in business administration at either Harvard or Stanford. Second Lt. DAN GULLING is stationed at the Pentagon in the office of the defense secretary. In October, Dan's wife had their second child, Scott.

With the reporting of news from Vietnam, it is with great regret that I must sometimes announce the death of one of our fellow classmates. RICHARD J. ROUGHGARDEN was killed in Vietnam, Sept. 14. Also at this time, I regrettably relate the news of another classmate of ours who has died. ALAN W. VALKENAAR was killed in an auto accident, Dec. 14. Your prayers are requested for them both. Your prayers are also requested for the eternal repose of the soul of my mother, who died Dec. 17 after an extended illness with cancer. Those of you who had the privilege of meeting her know how much ND meant to her. Please let us keep all three of them in our thoughts and prayers.

Our class President JOHN BUCK writes with news of several of our classmates. TERRY GOLDEN, John's roomie, is living in Boston where he is about to complete his M.B.A. at Harvard this spring. TIM BARD, who recently got out of the Navy, matriculated in the Wharton M.B.A. program this January. JOE BODELL and wife, Dee, are in Philadelphia, where Joe is in his second year at Villanova Law School. MIKE CARROLL is in Philadelphia also, where he is working with Burlington Industries. BILL FOSTER and RICH LA PORTE just obtained their law degrees. Bill got his from Rutgers and Rich got his from Duke. Rich is teaching political science at Wilberforce U. in Ohio. DENNY DUNIGAN and PAT GREEN are currently studying law at the U. of Texas Law School. DREW KERSHEN recently graduated with honors from Texas Law School and he and his wife, Kathy, are living in Columbus, Ga., where Drew is in the Army. BILL SCANLON is working on his Ph.D. in economics at the U. of Wisconsin. JOE PETE WILBERT received his M.B.A. from the U. of Texas and he and wife, Mary, are living in the New York City area. MIKE CAOLO and his wife, Patty, are living in Dallas, where Mike is practicing law after graduating from ND Law School. Our class president himself obtained his J.D. from the U. of Texas and worked for a year with Southwestern Bell. John and his wife, Carry, and their two sons, Patrick and Daniel, are in Philadelphia, where John is starting Wharton's M.B.A. program.

KEN MEYER, who was married last April, is now serving as an investment manager at the Harris Bank in Chicago. TOM WEBER was married to Stephanie Anthony in August, 1968, and is studying for his Ph.D. in theoretical chemistry at Johns Hopkins U.

Congratulations to all the '66ers who are excelling in so many different areas.

'66L SORRY 'BOUT THAT

My apologies for missing the deadline for the last issue.

Cookie and I send our thanks to all who sent Christmas cards and particularly to those who enclosed notes. We received cards from: JOHN GOTTLICK, Pat and JIM HAKES, BOB SIEBERT, Joan and PAUL POLKING, Terri and BOB KRAUSE, Susan and PAUL NIEMEYER, Etta and SCOTTY MAXWELL, JAY DOUGHERTY, Julie and TOM KENNEY, Wendy and AL MCKENNA (new address: 324 Dennison Court, Gahanna, Ohio 43230), Maureen and BOB MURPHY, Pat and MARTY CONWAY, TOM HARVEY (address: Capt. T. E. Harvey, 309-42-1180, ABN. ADV. DET (TM No. 162), APO SF 96301), Madge and RAY STARMANN, Bonnie and STEVE SEALL and Anne and NORMAN MANDEL.

DENNIS DEE plans to specialize in real estate law and estate planning. He became associated last January with the law firm of Lipsitz, Green, Fahringer, Roll, Schyler and James, Buffalo, N.Y. He served with the Army in South Vietnam (as a captain), and while there he was adviser to the South Vietnamese concerning both military affairs and the pacification program.

Ray Starmann is an investment banker now with Halsey, Stuart and Co., Inc., Chicago. He writes that his work is very interesting. Marty Conway is now back from Vietnam, and he is stationed with the Marines in California.

Tom Harvey called on his way to Europe. He has served one year with the Army in Vietnam, six months as a volunteer adviser to a South Vietnam battalion and he has volunteered to go back for a second six months. On his second tour, he received a Purple Heart for what he describes as a superficial wound in the arm. He will be spending the next tour on the Cambodian border.

We received a nice note from Diane and MIKE MORUCCI. They have a boy and two girls now, and Mike is teaching at Wheeling College and studying for his Ph.D. at Pitt. Kelly and Rachel HAUGH were born Feb. 17. Phyllis and JOHN now have two boys and two girls, and I am willing to stand corrected, but I think they now have more children than anyone in the class.

Bob Murphy spent two months in Detroit trying the Algiers Motel case for the government. The Mandels have confirmed their intention to stay in Washington area by purchasing a new townhouse in Manassas, Va.

Don't forget your new year's resolutions and send me a note.

'67L FORM LETTERS—BAH!

A form letter from my editor indicated that the following was cut from last month's column: Maureen and JACK HARTY are living at 531 S. Gunderson, Oak Park, Ill. 60304. I reported the birth of a girl to this couple but Jack writes claiming a boy, Brian Conan, on July 25. My information came from a reliable source—are you sure, Jack? The KIRBYs are living at 122 E. Broadway, Staten Island, N.Y., with their two boys, John Patrick (4) and James (2). They report having seen MIKE SMITH after his tour with the Peace Corps. A card from JOHN BLASI indicates that he is still at the Great Lakes base and is the staff officer to the recruit training command. He also acts as a military judge once a week.

Rather than run the risk of printing scurrilous rumors, I quote from J. SEAN KEENAN's letter: "I take off for Saint Louis at 5 p.m. Going to see my 'girl friend' and her family and possibly make a few plans for the future—May to be exact." Sean will finish with the Navy in early '71. He's enrolled in American U.'s M.B.A. program as of this spring.

Capt. JOHN HARGROVE is stationed outside Da Nang and is presently handling a first-degree murder case. He saw DICK MUENCH around Christmas. Dick had just returned from R and R in Australia. Although it meant getting up at 3 a.m., John heard the Cotton Bowl game over armed forces radio. He now regrets the loss of sleep.

GREG NASKY had some good news from Nam. He'll be coming home at the end of this month. I should print his new duty station but my son ate the letter. The HEINHOLDS moved into their new home in February. I figure we'll be settled and have everything in tip top shape in about six years. Note the new address below.

Apparently it is either feast or famine with respect to receiving info on the class. As you might expect, I received many cards and letters around Christmas but it has been famine ever since. Please write and don't feel slighted that you don't get a response. If mention of it doesn't get in the column, then complain. If any of you come East, don't forget to give me a call. 203 468-0537. Thanks.

'68 TWO MEN DIE

On behalf of the members of our class, I would like to extend our sincere condolences and prayers to the parents of FRED SCHWARTZ, who was killed in an automobile accident while with the Peace Corps in Swaziland, Africa. While at ND, Fred was president of the Blue Circle in his senior year.

Our sympathy and prayers to the parents of STEPHEN CHANEY, who attended ND in 1964-65 on a football scholarship. Steve was killed in September while on combat operations with the fifth special forces airborne group in Vietnam.

First Lt. JOHN MEANY reports from the rice paddies of the Delta that he is with an advisory team in Kien Phong Province while 1st Lt. DAVE VECCHIA is with an advisory team in the Binh Minh district. John has some newsworthy notes from back in the world. He reports that 2nd Lt. PAUL SWENSON is stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla. PAUL STULGAITIS is in his second year at Wharton Business School while KEN LARSON has passed two parts of his C.P.A. exam and is with Haskins and Sells. TOM SCHENK has finished his National Guard training at Ft. Sam Houston and is working toward his M.B.A. at Adelphi U.

Some other members of the class serving in the rice bowl are 2nd Lt. CLIFF TOMASZEWSKI, 1st Lt. TOM RYAN and 1st Lt. BOB NOONAN. Tom writes that TOM HOLSTEIN and JOE BLAKE were in the Marine Corps OCS program, but he doesn't know where they are stationed.

And now some items from back in the world. Congratulations to Mary Ann and ED LIEBLER on the birth of Jill Ann on Nov. 10, 1969. Ed is with Peat, Marwick and Mitchell in Indianapolis. Also congratulations to FRED FRANCO and his wife on the birth of their son, Dec. 27, 1969. Fred is in his second year at Seton Hall Law School.

DENNY WITHERS reports that CHRIS MURPHY and JOE DERRICO are in their second year at the U. of Virginia Law School. Chris and his wife, Carmi, expected their first child in February. JIM HOFFMAN is also in his second year of law school at the U. of Oregon.

Denny also reports that while he was at the Cotton Bowl, he ran into KEN DiLAURA, MIKE COLEMAN and JOE STARK. Also at the game were MIKE STERLING and his wife, Sheryl. Mike is stationed with the Air Force at San Antonio. At ED HAGGAR's New Year's Eve bash at the Fairmont Hotel were FRED FERLIC, from Cornell Medical School, and BILL SWEETMAN, who is serving in the Navy and is stationed in Virginia. MIKE JORDAN, now with the Alumni Office, and RUSS BELLAMY, who is associated with Goldman and Sachs in Dallas, were on hand for all the festivities.

BUD ROBARDS is finishing his work on his master's at the U. of Minnesota and counseling at Hopkins High School. JOHN MILCETICH has received his M.S. from the U. of Michigan and is an instructor of mathematics at Federal City College, Washington, D.C. BOB WIORSKI was released from the Army after six months at Ft. Polk, and plans to return to law school at Loyola U., Chicago.

BRUCE BARTLEY writes that he is in the 13th finance section at Qui Nhon, Vietnam, while 1st Lt. PAT BARTH is with the 5th infantry (Mech.) near the DMZ. Lt. (j.g.) DAVE PIERMAN received his Navy wings and is assigned to training squadron seven at Meridian, Miss., as a flight instructor. JOE PETRO was tapped by Uncle Sam and is a second lieutenant stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla. Second Lt. STEVE SULLIVAN, of the Air Force, is with the 916th air refueling squadron, a unit of SAC. Second Lt. CHARLES DUGAND and DON HARPER are also in the Air Force. Don is on temporary duty at Mildenhall Royal Air Force Base, England, while Chuck is a navigator at Mather AFB, Calif. Second Lt. DAN PARACCHINI is assigned to Sewart AFB, Tenn., after receiving his pilot wings upon graduation from Laredo AFB, Tex.

Army 2nd Lt. JOHN O'BRIEN is with the 2nd infantry division in Korea as executive officer of headquarters troop, fourth squadron. TOM SCULLY and JOHN McSHANE, Army first lieutenants, are also serving in Vietnam. Tom is at Tay Ninh and has been awarded the Army Commendation Medal. Tom was married to Miss Maureen McCaully of Louisville last July 26. John received the Bronze Star while on duty.

68L BLAME THOSE EDITORS

My apologies to those who wrote to me over Christmas and were not mentioned in my last column. The editors cut a big piece out of it, which will be included in this one.

I received a long letter from BOB BELLUOMINI, now Capt. Belluomini, who, as previously mentioned, is in Vietnam. After mistakenly being sent to Dong Ha, just a mortar away from the DMZ, he was transferred to Da Nang, where he is now with the legal office for the III Marine Amphibious Force. Bob has gone from defense counsel at court martials to legal assistance work, which involves everything from domestic relations to personnel claims. The workweek is long and he loves to relax by watching the month-old Ed Sullivan shows. Bob rarely gets into town because he does not like to carry his .45 around with him. Bob is soon scheduled to be transferred to a new location.

On Jan. 4, Molly and Meg WILCZEK flew to Hawaii to spend a week with BOB (her Bob), who was on leave. They loved the place and hope to go back. It won't be too long now before Bob comes home. JOHN COYLE is stationed in Bien Hoa, a little bit outside of Saigon. The VC must have known he was coming, because within a week of his arrival, Bien Hoa, a relatively safe place, was hit with two rocket attacks. One rocket hit within 100 meters of J.C.'s hooch. J.C.'s duties are that of supply officer and legal counsel for the First Cavalry Division. He has tried several court martials and has won every case. J.C. has also acted as liaison officer and has seen a great deal of the country. Although he doesn't profess to have a solution to the problem, he does feel that an immediate U.S. withdrawal would lead to a North Vietnam takeover within six to eight months.

Enough from the war zone. Carol and TOM WARD added Jill Meredith to the Ward household in September. The Wards are still in Vermont. Since finishing work on his LL.M. and his teaching job in August, Tom has been clerking for Chief Judge Bernard J. Leddy, U.S. district judge. After completing his clerkship, Tom will work for a firm in Burlington. TIM WOODS is now stationed at the Naval Air Station, Whidbey Island, Wash. Tim attended Naval Justice School in November and December and met Barb and ERNIE ABATE while there. The Abates are now in California. Tim anticipates staying in Washington for his two-year stint and seems to like the place. He reports that he and Janice are still happily married. She must have the patience of a saint.

Mary Kay and JIM WIRTZ have had both a little good and bad luck in the last few months. After being involved in a collision, which resulted in a slight whiplash for Mary, their home was burgled and Jim lost several pairs of pants, among other things. The good news was that Jim and Mary moved into a new house last August and have bought a new car to replace the old Valiant, which had been totaled. Jim has now passed the Pennsylvania C.P.A. exam and has been promoted to the position of "senior" with Price Waterhouse. That is the second of four levels in an accounting firm. LANNY BONENBERGER is teaching part time at Wheeling College; he teaches a course in business law. The Bonenberger political career is soon to be officially launched. Lanny has filed for the state legislature. The primary will be in the spring and the election in the fall. More news on the TOM CURTIN wedding. The bride-to-be is Sue Bradley. Tom and Sue became engaged over Christmas and will be married Sept. 19 by Fr. Lewers. From the way he writes, Tom is really happy.

Please keep those letters coming.

69 M.B.A. WELCOME!

Greetings and welcome to the first edition of class notes submitted by the Graduate School of Business. A great deal has happened to the charter class of M.B.A.s since they were set loose on the business world last June, so I will get right down to reporting.

NICK WALZ and his wife, Sara, have been in touch regularly. Nick has taken a position with TWA and has been subjected to such trying assignments as a trip to the airline's Paris office. Nick and Sara hosted a victory party after the Army game in October. Fifteen of the '69 M.B.A.s attended and the degree of celebration was commensurate with the margin of victory. Nick shared in the frustrations of the Cotton Bowl in person on New Year's Day.

After some minor moving problems (caused mainly by the failure of their moving van to avoid a mountain), KEN CULLUM's family settled in Bluff City, Tenn. Ken is with Bristol Iron and Steel and is learning the steel fabricating business.

WILL MCGUIRE has a new position and a new address. Writing from No. 2 Chase

St., Bellingham, Mass., Will reports that he is now representing Creative Packaging in six New England states. RICH LYMAN is touring the corporate marketing activities of Smith, Kline and French, and is waiting for his first opportunity to make a strategic top management decision. Our representative in the banking industry, XAVIER MONGE's postgraduation trip through the Southern U.S. and Central America was interrupted by the hostilities between Honduras and El Salvador. Xavier is employed by ECL Industries in Guayaquil, Ecuador. JOHN KNITTEL has moved into a production position with the photo products department of Dupont in Parlin, N.J. WILLIAM FONG is employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance in New York. He finds that New York living is expensive, but enjoyed the miracle of the Mets last summer. BERNIE BIEG is currently an assistant controller for Rohm and Haas and hoping that Philadelphia can trade the Phillies to Seattle in an even swap for the Pilots. Bernie had a back operation in February and we would like to wish him and his golf game a quick recovery.

Several more M.B.A.s have joined the merger movement by taking wives since graduation. Congratulations to Maria and TOM GILL, who were married in June and honeymooned in Canada. The question now is whether they ever came back. Your secretary was privileged to witness the greatest upset since the N.Y. Mets won the World Series when DENNIS MCCARTHY fell from the ranks of bachelorhood in December. Best of luck to Denny and his bride of Dec. 13, Beth Brown. Two M.B.A.s marched down the aisle in February. Congratulations to GENE DIXON and his bride, Chris, who were married in Detroit on Feb. 7. Gene is now working in marketing information services for DuPont in Delaware. The Dixons' new address is 2901 Cross Fork Dr., Apt. 1-A, Wilmington, Del. 19808. Best wishes are also in order for JOE MCCOURT and his February bride, Peggy Murphy. Joe is now representing American Hospital Supply and living in Milwaukee.

Now for the military report. After two months of training in Biloxi, Miss., FRED DENNY is now serving as a second lieutenant in the USAF Security Service in San Antonio, Tex. DAVE DAY is fulfilling his Army reserve requirement and wondering where Denny McClain went wrong. CHRIS ODENBACH was awarded a direct commission by the U.S. Army in January. At last report he was stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va. FRANK DUNN is also currently employed (although somewhat less than willingly) by the U.S. Army.

On behalf of all his classmates, I wish to extend deepest sympathy to Rev. HUGH KEEFER on the death of his father. Fr. Hugh is now fulfilling budgetary control functions at St. Benedict's Abbey in Atchison, K^{an}. Father is also active as assistant chaplain at St. Benedict's and, as usual, enjoys working with the college students.

This column covers much ground and some of the information may be somewhat dated. That situation can be easily remedied by your correspondence. Be sure to keep us informed.

GRADUATE SCHOOLS

AEROSPACE AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

The change in department name is one among many changes over the last few years in the engineering college. Old grads (of '65?) would hardly recognize us. In September, 1969, the departments of aerospace and mechanical engineering were merged into one department. Several of the engineering science department staff also joined us, so that the new department faculty numbers some 32. Dr. K. T. Yang is chairman.

Our industrial engineering program is active and we have the following to report: The hospital projects begun as a part of the lab work for M.E. 82 in 1966 have progressed to the point where the Indiana Hospital Assn. has granted support for one graduate student, JOHN BOLIVAR M.S. '69 and is considering support for another. The technique of work sampling as modified by the self-study idea has been used for several data gathering projects. For his M.S. thesis, John Bolivar took the same type data gathered during a study of ward clerks in several hospitals and mathematically modeled the activities of this nursing skill. The results will appear in the Industrial Engineering Journal in April, 1970, and may also be published in one of the hospital management magazines to which a less numerically oriented article has been submitted. The Indiana Hospital Assn. has modified and justified several of their management and personnel training suggestions for hospitals subscribing to the service. John Bolivar, incidentally, has since been drafted and is now in OCS and is scheduled to be sent to the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army.

For those engineers who had projects at Memorial Hospital, we are still a part of their study staff and doing well. For those who worked on the nursing projects, one piece of sad news is the recent death of the director of nursing, Miss Florence Young. She was killed in a head-on auto crash near Niles, Mich. We were all sad and shocked to hear of this loss to both the hospital and the South Bend community.

The continuing association with Memorial Hospital has included a preventive maintenance study with the maintenance department and a study of cafeteria and dish washing areas. The hospital administrators have indicated a continuing interest in associating with our industrial engineering students. We are most pleased to join with them in continuing the program to educate good I.E.s.

In conclusion for this issue, the new department hopes to make this column of interest to all graduates of the mechanical engineering programs and of the aerospace program. We, in turn, would like to keep the "loop closed" and hear from you—your work, your thoughts on our curricula and so forth.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Greetings from the faculty and staff of the Members of the MBA school present a case analysis in the Workshop. In the class a team of students is responsible for the thorough analysis of a case problem in American Business, as well as for recommending a solution to the problem.

MBA program. As usual, the year is rushing by with discussions already under way for the graduation banquet for the Class of 1970, under the able leadership of Jim Slowinski, president of the Executive Club. We have heard from a number of the Class of 1969, but not all. JOE CAVATO is anxious to have your addresses and news about your activities—business, social or otherwise. Joe is hoping to build a regular column of news items for the MBA group.

From the vantage point of the school's position, there are a number of interesting items to report. Prof. Powell is on leave of absence during the present school year, serving as an executive intern with Ernst and Ernst in Chicago. He and his wife are living on N. Lake Shore Dr. and enjoying their "sabbatical" very much. He will be returning to the staff next year.

The MBA program was recently given major publicity in the world-wide editions of the Army, Navy and Air Force Times. The article featured a full-page picture of the campus along with a long article about the program. The MBA Magazine has chosen ND to be one of its participating schools. Rich Johnson is serving as contributing editor for ND.

Dr. Dow has initiated a special self-development project among a group of second-year men involving the economic problems of the Sioux Indians. The "industrial adviser" is Chief Redbird.

Our Executive Lecture Series this year featured two outstanding speakers—Fletcher Byrom, president of Koppers, Inc., of Pittsburgh, and Donald Perkins, president of Jewel Companies, Inc., of Chicago. Both were outstanding, especially in the press conference session which we have switched to the afternoons, using the evenings for the formal public lecture. Don Perkins spoke on ghetto retailing, a talk that is being reproduced by the company under the ND banner for wide distribution in both business and academic communities.

We have announced an MBA/JD program to go into effect in September, 1970, making possible the completion of both degrees over a four-year period.

Col. Frank Yeandel, retired from the Air Force last summer, has joined our group and is working closely with me in the first-year workshop, along with his teaching responsibilities in the undergraduate division.

The contractor is completing work in Room 120, permitting both transmission and reception of television programming. The equipment will include on-line capability through WNDU with commercial television, educational television, hook-ups with major universities in Indiana and taping and replay facilities.

We now have four computer consoles in Room 27—one on-line and three off-line machines, as well as a Bunker-Ramo teletype machine providing live connection with all the major stock exchanges and a leading commodity exchange.

All the faculty join me in sending our warmest regards to you and your wives. Let us hear from you and keep Joe Cavato up to date on your activities and location. By the way, Joe's introductory '69 MBA column is featured in the class section of this issue.

CHEMISTRY

Prof. William N. Lipscomb from Harvard delivered the Nieuwland lectures in January. Reilly lecturers for May are Prof. Roald Hoffmann from Cornell and Prof. Steven J. Angyal from the U. of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia. During the month of April, Prof. Owen S. Mills of Manchester U., England, lectured on x-ray diffraction. Dr. Francis J. Castellino, from Duke U., joined the biochemistry faculty in February. Dr. Marino Martinez-Carrion is researching at the medical school of the U. of Puerto Rico during the spring semester.

The Radiation Laboratory collaborated in the organization of an International Meeting on Primary Radiation Effects in Chemistry and Biology held in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in March. Prof. Milton Burton served as chairman of the meeting, many of the members of the laboratory participated and Dr. Robert R. Hentz delivered one of the plenary lectures.

The following completed the requirements for the Ph.D. recently: JAMES CAVANAUGH, with Kordell Industries in Mishawaka; KEN CHANG, with the National Aerodynamics and Space Administration, Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.; RAYMOND GERMONPREZ, with Du Pont in Richmond, Va.; RICHARD HAROZ, at the Max Planck Institute for Experimental Medicine in Gottingen; WILLIAM IRWIN, with Miles Laboratories in Chicago; MOSES KALOUSTIAN, postdoctoring at UCLA; HENRY KIEFFER, with Celanese in Charlotte, N. C.; DAVID O'BRIEN, at Celanese Research Co., Summit, N.J.; R. D. RAO, researching at Vermont U.; CHRISTOPHER RHODES, postdoctoring at ND with Dr. D'Alenio; Bro. DePORRES RASPITHA OSF, teaching at St. Francis College, Brooklyn; LAWRENCE LILLWITZ, with Quaker Oats in Barrington, Ill.; JOHN SEVENAIR, postdoctoring with Prof. GENE ASHBY '57 at Georgia Tech; and MARTIN SHOEMAKER, with Witco Chemical Corp., Sonneborn Division, Petrolia, Pa.

Sr. MARGARET BRAULT RSM M.S. '65 received the Ph.D. in chemistry from Vermont U. last October. She is teaching at Trinity College in Burlington, Vt., and continuing some research at Vermont U. JOE DURKIN '64 was recently promoted to research chemist at the Beacon research labs of Texaco. BILL JOERN '67 is teaching at Wisconsin State U. at Whitewater. TOM HUERMER M.S. '66 is director of research for O'Brien Paint Co. in South Bend. TOM MIRANDA '59 is with Whirlpool research laboratories in St. Joseph, Mich. JOE MUCCINI M.S. '57 was recently appointed analytical group leader in Ashland Chemicals' R & D department, Ashland, Ky. BRUCE ROBERTS M.S. '68 is a captain in the U.S. Army Chemical Corps, engaged in surface chemistry research at Edgewood Arsenal, Edgewood, Md. WALT WELNA '68 is with 3M in Minneapolis.

ENGLISH

At the U. of Michigan, BERT G. HORNBACK Ph.D. '64 has received one of the five Distinguished Service Awards (with a purse of $750) presented to junior faculty members. Ohio U. Press has accepted for publication his book, The Metaphor of Chance: Vision and Technique in the Works of Thomas Hardy. And his play, A Game of Chess, was produced by a little theatre group, the Lord Chamberlain's players, in Ann Arbor last December.

Sr. MARY PETRUS SULLIVAN Ph.D. '64, president of Catherine McAuley College, Rochester, N.Y., from 1965 to 1969, has used her talents in many ways. In addition to fulfilling a teaching assignment at Marymount College, she has participated in a Head Start program in Harlem and taught at a rehabilitation center for drug addicts. Currently she is on the English faculty at Rochester Institute of Technology.

PAUL JOHNSON, now teaching at Old Dominion U., Norfolk, Va., was the first of what promises to be an impressive number of candidates to "defend" a Ph.D. dissertation for June graduation. Now a member of the speech department at Kansas State U. is Sr. EUSTASIA MYERS CSJ M.A. '59. JAMES FLANAGAN Ph.D. '69, has moved from St. Mary's College to Monmouth College in New Jersey. At Purdue, MICHAEL YETMAN Ph.D. '67 received a faculty research grant from the Purdue Research Foundation. EDWARD E. POTTER M.A. '38, is professor of English at Eastern Michigan U., Ypsilanti.

"Contemporary Relevance and the Teaching of Literature" will be the conference topic for the national meeting of the College English Assn. to be held jointly with the Indiana CEA at ND. Sessions will be in the Center for Continuing Education on April 24 and 25. Prof. ANDREW SMITHBERGER M.A. '27 is local chairman of arrangements, and Prof. LOUIS HASLEY M.A. '31 is program chairman. Prof. Hasley's recent publications include a poem, "Seminary Mass," in the January, 1970, Catholic World and an article, "Humor in Literature: A Definition," in the CEA Critic, February, 1970.

To keep this column alive we need news about the professional and personal activities of our alumni. You, the readers, are therefore encouraged to send in items for the next issue. We at ND think that this column serves a useful purpose. We hope that your response will indicate your thoughts.

HISTORY

Recent graduates will be sorry to learn that Mrs. HELEN CRIFE's husband, Herbert, died suddenly of a heart attack in January. Our condolences to Helen. She would be glad to hear from some of you who have recently been her classmates.

RALPH WEBER from Marquette was down for a few days in January to do research in the ND archives on the correspondence of Joel Poinsett, an early 19th century American ambassador to Mexico.

DAVID GARIBALDI, recently returned from England, has been living in South Bend for some weeks. He has completed his dissertation on late Victorian English educational legislation and hopes to receive his Ph.D. in June.

LEE SMITH, one of the many stars of last summer's history department softball team, is at Georgia State College this year.

Congratulations to CHARLES POINSETTE, head of the history department at St. Mary's, whose book, Fort Wayne During the Canal Era, 1828-1855, has been published by the Indiana Historical Bureau. It was that organization's 1969 selection as best book of the year in the field of Indiana state history.

Some time ago I received a letter from BERNARD LALOR, formerly of ND, Chicago, Michigan and Turkey. Bernard is now back in Chicago working on the second draft of his dissertation on the administrative structure of the Ottoman empire in the early 19th century. He is president of the Middle East Center Student Assn. of the U. of Chicago, and read a paper at the annual meeting of the Middle East Studies Assn. in Toronto last November. He reports that EDWARD HACKETT has been teaching and counseling in Michigan City, Ind., this year and that BUD CHAPPIUS is at Chicago State College. When he last saw Bud, the latter was attempting to prepare a course bestowed on him at the last minute. Most of us have heard that song before.

A year ago Profs. LEON BERNARD and FREDRICK PIKE were on leave in Europe doing research. Prof. Pike in Spain and Prof. Bernard in Paris. Both have returned this year. In the present year, Prof. JAMES CORBETT is on leave. In the fall semester, Prof. RAIMONDO LURAGHI from the U. of Genoa was here to offer courses in Italian history. In the present semester, Msgr. JOHN TRACY ELLIS is a visiting professor in the department, offering courses in American and general church history. Prof. JAMES SILVER, also on leave this year, is teaching at the U. of South Florida at Tampa, Fla.

The history department basketball warriors finished the season by smashing five opponents. Though we were edged out by a few others, a computer predicted that we would make it to semi-finals of the NIT. Unfortunately, the selection committee was entirely from the East Coast, so we didn't get an invitation. Coach RICHARD WALTERS did not have to fine or suspend anyone during the season, although he did threaten to trade several of us for future draft choices.

A new book by your correspondent has just appeared: Timeless Problems in History (ND Press). It settles those global questions not disposed of in my last book, Towards a Better Understanding of History. Those of you who are teachers should make it required reading in all your classes. Others should immediately storm the nearest bookstore, buy as many copies as you can carry and give them to all your friends.

LAW SCHOOL

Robert P. La Russo (N.Y.; B.S., Iona) won the final round in the Moot Court competition; Robert J. Quinlan (Wis.; B.A., St. Thomas) was second. The finalists argued before Chief Justice (retired) Roger B. Traynor (Supreme Court of California), Judge Henry J. Friendly (Federal Court of Appeals, New York), and Judge LUTHER M. SWYGERT '27L (Federal Court of Appeals, Chicago).

New additions to the faculty include DAVID T. LINK '58, '61L, presently a tax partner in a large Chicago law firm; and Regis Campfield, an associate in a large Cleveland law firm and a graduate of the U. of Virginia School of Law. Link, who will be professor of law, was an attorney and administrator in the Internal Revenue Service for five years. He is an expert in computer technology and chairman of the A.B.A. committee on law and technology. He was an editorial assistant on the 1960-61 Lawyer staff. Campfield, who will be visiting assistant professor of law, is an expert in estate planning and related areas; he formerly taught at the U. of Virginia.

Mrs. Helen White, administrative assistant to the dean, retired from the Law School staff during the vacation; she will be in South Bend and with her family in Florida, learning, she says, for the first time in her life, to be "just" a housekeeper. Mrs. White has been replaced by Miss Marianne Hopkins, who was until recently administrative assistant to the vice-president for academic affairs at St. Mary's College. Placement duties will be handled by Miss Monica Jeffers, executive secretary of the Alumni Assn.

Miss Judy Sailer is Dean Lawless' new secretary; she has been working elsewhere on the campus. Mrs. Carol Berkowitz resigned from the Law School staff to become a full-time wife and mother. She and her husband, Ed, adopted a new baby boy early in January.

Christmas news from Prof. Robert E. Rodes Jr. in England was that his work on his three-volume history of Anglicanism is progressing well (at Oxford, with which he is affiliated this year). The Rhodes family was reported to be impressing their characteristic good example on subjects of Queen Elizabeth II.

James Bernard Flickinger (Michigan, A.B., Aquinas College), is the new editor of the Notre Dame Lawyer; and Louis Anthony Stahl (N.J., B.A., Wheeling) is president of the Legal Aid and Defender Assn. Both were elected in March.

JOHN J. HAUGH '66L, who practices in Portland, is the author of "Comparative Negligence: A Reform Long Overdue," in the December, 1969, Oregon Law Review. "Notes on Selective Service Reform: A Rough Draft," by Professor FRANK P. CIHLER '67L, of the St. Louis law faculty, was in the Fall, 1969, St. Louis U. Law Journal. Dean William B. Lawless will be the speaker at UND Night dinner April 22 in the ACC on campus.

In the Winter, 1970, Notre Dame Lawyer William E. Boyd, The Federal Consumer Credit Protection Act—A Consumer Perspective

Thomas L. Shaffer '61L, Undue Influence, Confidential Relationship, and the Psychology of Transference

David B. Saxe, Psychoanalysis, and the Credibility of Witnesses

A comprehensive student note on municipal fair employment ordinances and commissions.

Case comments on corporate insider liability (two comments); the California abortion decision; right to counsel in municipal-ordinance-violation cases; free speech and the federal anti-injunction act; and private conspiracies under the civil rights act.

JAMES W. WILSON M.S. '65, who did his course work at ND in 1960-61, is now head of the department of mathematics education at the U. of Georgia. Before going to Georgia, he taught at Kansas State Teachers College, went to Stanford U. where he received his Ph.D. in mathematics education and also worked on the research staff of the School Mathematics Study Group. In a short note he sent me he also included the following information about other alumni.

JERRY P. BECKER M.S. '61 is assistant professor in the Graduate School of Education at Rutgers U. He received his Ph.D. in mathematics education at Stanford U. JAMES REEVES M.S. '63 is associate professor at Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga. He received his Ed.D. at the U. of Florida.

ROBERT RICHARDSON M.S. '61 received his Ph.D. in mathematics from the U. of Florida. He is now assistant professor of mathematics at the Appalachian State U., Boone, N.C. DONALD SHRINER M.S. '61 is on leave from St. Joseph's College in Emmitsburg, Md. and is doing graduate work in mathematics education at the U. of Maryland. CONRAD MARQUARD M.S. '61 is at

PHYSICS

For a slight change of pace in this column, here are a few news items to start things off.

ROBERT C. JACKLEVIC '60 (physical electronics), of the Scientific Laboratory, Ford Motor Co., gave one of our recent physics department colloquium talks. Bob's talk, entitled "Inelastic Electron Tunneling," was an excellent one. Incidentally, the experimental technique employed by Bob and co-workers in their inelastic electron tunneling studies proves to be an extremely sensitive method for the detection of trace amounts of impurities (inorganic and organic) in the laboratory atmosphere. Bob, wife Mary and two children, Mary and Peter, live at 31345 Old Cannon Rd., Birmingham, Mich. 48010. Bob received his B.S. degree from Rockhurst College in 1956, and then came to ND for his graduate studies in physics. He joined Ford's Scientific Laboratory staff as a research scientist in 1960 after completing work for his Ph.D. degree at ND.

RONALD A. THIEL '60 (high polymer physics), of General Dynamics' Convair Division, was a recent visitor to the department. Ron was actually on a recruiting assignment, but managed to spend considerable time visiting and renewing acquaintances in the department. Ron, wife Dolores and three children, Paul, Michelle and Peter, live at 6212 Capri Dr., San Diego, Calif. 92120. Ron was one of our own undergraduate physics majors. He received his B.S. degree in '54, and stayed on at ND for his graduate work in physics. After completing requirements for his Ph.D. degree in '60, Ron joined General Dynamics/Convair as a design specialist. His current interest is in the preparation of, and work with, thin film devices.

FRANK E. JAMERSON '52 (nuclear physics) was recently named head of the 75-man physics department at General Motors Research Laboratories, General Motors Corp., Warren, Mich. 48090, according to the February, 1970, issue of Physics Today (page 97). Frank joined General Motors as a senior nuclear physicist in 1957.

Now back again to the regular business of this column.

DONALD J. SCHEIBER '57 (high polymer physics), wife Maxine and eight children, Michael, David, Susan, Victoria, Dona, Joseph, Elizabeth and James, live at 7419 Illinois Rd., Fort Wayne, Ind. Don received his B.S. degree in '53 from St. Procopius College, and came to ND to continue his studies in physics. After receiving his Ph.D. degree from ND in '57, Don joined the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C., as a staff scientist in the electricity division. He left the Bureau of Standards in 1962 to accept his present position as senior staff scientist with the Magnavox Co., Fort Wayne.

BERNARD J. WEIGMAN '59 (high polymer physics), wife Joan and four children, Mary Joanne, Mark, Jane and John, live at 2709 Beechland Ave., Baltimore, Md. 21214. Bernie received his B.S. degree from Loyola U. (Baltimore) in '54 and began his graduate studies in physics at ND in the same year.

After completing work for his Ph.D. degree, Bernie returned to Loyola (Baltimore) where he is now professor and chairman of the department of physics.

The editor says that's all!

SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

Kudos to Rev. GORDON M. IRVING OMI for sending us two applicants from Carleton U., to BOB AMUNDSON for referring one of his former students at Loretto Heights and to JACK ANGUS, chairman of the department at Creighton U., for encouraging a priest friend to make application for our graduate program. Competition for admission in September promises to be the keenest in many years. Owing to cutbacks in federally financed fellowship programs, low turnover in our student body and requests for additional assistance from incumbent students, monetary and tuition awards for incoming students will be scarce. At present it appears that we will accept about 10 of the 60 applicants seeking admission, although the acceptance figure is necessarily tentative. The funding of any of several research proposals, which usually provide for graduate assistance, could result in a larger number of awards for first-year students.

FRANK CIZON, head of the department at Indiana U.'s burgeoning Gary campus, paid us a visit in early March to try to recruit one or two of our outgoing students for his staff. Reputedly the Gary Supplemental Income Project Frank is directing involves the highest sum of money ever awarded to a Polish sociologist, including Florian Znaniecki. His recruitment efforts, we are happy to report, were not hampered by student protesters. Another alumnus, Rev. PHILIP HAMILTON, is still trying to land a young sociology Ph.D. for Loras College. The position should prove most attractive to someone more committed to teaching than research and publication.

Our chairman, Dr. WILLIAM D'ANTONIO, has just begun a one-year stint as executive secretary for the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion.

FRANK FAHEY was recently named head of ND's Office of Education Research. Previously he was associate and acting director of our Social Science Training and Research Laboratory. Prof. WILLIAM T. LIU, after a year's absence to supervise his AID-sponsored research project in the Philippines, has resumed command of the training lab. A special issue of the lab journal, Research Reports in the Social Sciences, is devoted to what is in these days a highly volatile topic—student participation in the governance of academic departments. The issue consists primarily of papers written by Indiana, Purdue and ND graduate students for the 1969 Hoosier Sociological Weekend, but also contains faculty-student comments on the papers. For a modest fee that will help cover printing and mailing costs, those readers interested in the issue may obtain copies by writing directly to the lab.

CLUBS

Bob Sincavich '50, Francis Wallace '23, Lou Yeager '35 and Bill Mitsch '33 greet patrons before the ND Glee Club Concert in Wheeling, W. Va. The concert was sponsored by the OHIO VALLEY NOTRE DAME CLUB.

BOSTON

The Boston club hosted the New England Alumni Seminar at the Sheraton Boston in late November. Representing the club were CHUCK PATTERSON '47, BILL PIETRUSIAK '58, JACK CURTIN '62, JOHN McCULLOUGH '63, ART MURPHY '59 and MIKE O'TOOLE '55. The club was cited by the representatives of the University for its progressive programs in recruiting and social action.

The schedule for the social action program at the Norfolk County Prison has been set up through December, 1970. Under the leadership of DAVE FAY '60, regular participants are GEORGE WILLIAMS '62, Bill Pietrusiak, JACK BAKER '53, JOE O'NEILL '67, ED GOGGIN '59, Jack Curtin, BILL REAGAN '58 and Art Murphy.

The ND-B.C. hockey game was well attended by over 300 ND alumni and friends. JACK KARLE '56 and his committee did a fine job, as did the Irish skaters against a more experienced B.C. team.

Over 200 ND families turned out at the Marriott Motor Hotel to attend the annual Communion breakfast. Rev. JIM BURTCHAEHL CSC '56 and Rev. JACK FITZGERALD '55 concelebrated the Mass and Lynn McCauley and her group provided the folk music. NICK BUONICONTI '62 of the Miami Dolphins joined Fr. Burtchaehl as the speakers for the program. Jack Curtin '62 and DICK MURPHY '58 did a fine job on this one.

The annual business sports meeting will be held in April and the UND Night at the Pops is scheduled for June.

Mike O'Toole '55

BUFFALO

Much has happened over the past three months. The new year saw our exciting ND hockey team skate off with the championship of the Fifth Nichols School Invitation College Hockey Tournament at Dann Memorial Rink in Buffalo, Jan. 3. Prior to the victory, our alumni club hosted a luncheon at the Buffalo Athletic Club. JACK ENDERS '53 was M.C. and Fred Shero, coach of the Buffalo Hockey Bisons, was the guest speaker.

Our general meeting on Feb. 4 was conducted by Dr. MARV LAHOOD '57. His two guests from Buffalo State, Dr. Henry Richards, head of Afro-American studies, and Robert Hawkes, head of the S.E.E.K. program, gave those in attendance new insight into the black studies question.

On March 1, our club received special recognition by being on a phone panel for the annual telethon for the Crippled Children's Rehabilitation Center in Buffalo. Local television coverage was complete for over 24 hours and the total contributed was over $270,000.00.

Thanks also go out to ROBERT DRAJEM, Dr. DAVE VALAIK and JOHN LADUCA for their handling of our first annual student information night. They made sure that everything ran smoothly for JOE MULLIGAN from Admissions, as we had our first concerted effort to sell our University to the juniors in Western New York.

CHICAGO

ZIGGIE CZAROSKI and GEORGE CONNOR were co-toastmasters at a testimonial lunch for Coach FRANK LEAHY at Johnny Latner's Restaurant, March 12. The lunch was held to honor the coach for being selected to football's Hall of Fame. KEN SCHUSTER, president of the club, presented a plaque to Coach Leahy on behalf of all the members of the ND Club of Chicago, congratulating him. JOE McARDLE, BERNIE CRIMMINS, WALLY ZIEMBA and BOB McBRIDE, all who coached under Frank Leahy, were present at the lunch, as were Ara Parseghian, Joe Yonto and George Kelly from the present football staff. Many of Coach Leahy's former players were in attendance. The principal speaker was Pat O'Brien.

The next club function will be the Communion breakfast. President Holz has been selected chairman and plans to hold the breakfast in the latter part of May or early June.

Thomas F. Carey '55

CINCINNATI

The relative closeness of Dayton and Columbus permitted several of our members to see the Fighting Irish in action against Ohio U. and Kentucky.

TOM RHOADS '67 was again named titular head of the ND participants for the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade. This event is fast becoming a tradition for many of our members, evident from the large turnout over the last two years.

I forgot to mention in the last issue that we presented Moeller High School of Cincinnati with our annual football trophy. Moeller posted an undefeated season and ranked near the top in every state-wide poll.

Our March 31st meeting was held at the Burger Brewery; following the regular business meeting, the 1969 football highlights were shown.

Future events include an April dinner meeting, presentation of the annual Man-of-the-Year award in early May, and an election meeting the first week of June.

Officers of the ND CLUB OF DALLAS present Alumni Secretary James D. Cooney (center) with the 20' x 30' ND banner that graced many of the club's functions during the Cotton Bowl festivities.

DAYTON-SPRINGFIELD

The ND alumni in the Dayton-Springfield area were treated to several opportunities to view the Fighting Irish basketball team in live action in late February and early March. After the ND-U. of Dayton game, approximately 500 ND alumni and friends attended a "non-victory" party sponsored by the club in the VIP Room in the U. of Dayton's new arena. Representing the University at the party were BRIAN REGAN, MIKE JORDAN, ROGER VALDISERRI and JOE MULLIGAN. Later in the evening, Johnny Dee stopped by to chat with a few of his Dayton friends. Despite the results of the game, the party proved to be a great success. In addition, the proceeds from the sale of the game tickets added over $900 to the scholarship and loan fund.

The initial response of club members concerning the publishing of a local ND alumni directory has been very encouraging and additional preliminary work has been authorized on the project.

JOHN NEALON, newly appointed chairman of the club's recruitment committee, reported that Joe Mulligan recently spent an entire day in Dayton discussing ND's recruitment procedures with JIM BRITT, BILL MCGUIRE and John, and laying the proper framework for an effective recruitment program in this area. Once additional plans and guidelines have been established, this project will attract large recruitment of qualified high school students from this area.

Present plans now call for the UND Night Communion-Dinner to be held on the last Saturday in April or the last Saturday in May. Members are encouraged to attend a specially scheduled Mass preceding the traditional ND celebration. Other plans for the event are still being formulated at the writing of this report.

Likewise, the arrangements for a garden cocktail party for all club members without charge are still in the planning stages. It is expected that this latter function will take place during the last two weeks of June.

Details concerning these two activities will be furnished to club members by mail.

William Seall '68

DETROIT

This fall the first recipient will be named to receive assistance from the Detroit alumni club's scholarship fund. The partial expense scholarship will be awarded to a Detroit area student, based on recommendations received from the University Office of Financial Aid.

The new recruiting committee, chaired by TERRY KEATING, has started to interview Detroit area high school students for future enrollment at ND. The whole program is being conducted in conjunction with the University's Admissions Office.

On April 20, at the Raleigh House, Detroit area alumni and friends are in for a real treat. Dr. Kenneth McFarland, General Motors' famed public speaker, will highlight UND Night. LOU BASSO, chairman for the night, reports that over 500 are expected for this annual stag outing.

Gary W. Dillon '65

FAIRFIELD COUNTY

On Dec. 12, we gathered together 135 strong at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Greenwich for our annual club Communion breakfast. Co-chairmen BILL REIDY '44 and JACK LAMBERT '52 were responsible for excellent accommodations. Rev. Joseph McCarthy from St. Mary's parish in Greenwich provided the homily.

On March 15, more than 100 club members and their wives attended our club's St. Patrick's Day party. SANSFIELD FORD '55 handled all the arrangements. It was good to see GEORGE SCHWIND '51, the Hon. JAMES E. MURPHY '22 and R. JOHN CUNNINGHAM '50.

JACK SLATTERY '49, LLOYD FORRESTAL '59 and BOB SINGEWALD '64 are heading up our committee on by-laws. These fellows are making an excellent contribution to the future success of our Fairfield County alumni club. We shall soon be sending out our big announcement on UND Night for Fairfield County. The club will be honoring its "ND Man of the Year." ROY JANN

'48 heads up this selection committee and Bill Reidy and DON LEIS '44 are in charge of all arrangements for our UND Night dinner.

Peter M. Hearnden '37

FLINT

The 14th annual Communion breakfast of the ND Club of Flint was Dec. 7, 1969. Holy Mass was said by Rev. Godsil at St. Matthew Catholic Church. Breakfast followed at Higgins Restaurant on Corunna Rd.

JOSEPH P. MULLIGAN, assistant counselor in the Admissions Office at the University, spoke to 90 people about the University procedures of screening and scholarships. It was very informative and everyone enjoyed his speech.

The highlights of the breakfast were the arrival of Santa Claus, played very effectively by Harry McAra, a local attorney and the father of an ND student, and the drawing for the stadium blanket, in which only children could participate. The winner was Master Thomas Hill, a nephew of Victor George.

The chairman of the Communion breakfast, FRED MANSOUR, assisted by JACK KEAN and PAUL HUGHES, handled the affair in excellent fashion.

William F. Minardo '32

GREATER MIAMI

The club held its first meeting for 1970 on Feb. 12, and the first order of business was the presentation of trophies won at the club's Christmas golf tournament Dec. 27, 1969. The tournament was open to alumni and friends of ND. Trophies were presented to FRED BERGER, BILL STREETER, TOM GORMAN, JIM SWEENEY, TOM HIGGINS, DENIS TURNOCK and JOHN KANE.

The next order of business was the election of three directors to fill vacancies arising at the end of 1969. Denis Turnock and DON MURRAY were elected to three-year terms and John Kane was elected to a two-year term.

The club held a St. Patrick's Day party at Denis Turnock's house March 22, where films of the 1969 Fighting Irish football team were shown.

Charles P. Sacher '61

INDIANAPOLIS

Over 450 people attended the scholarship ball on Feb. 13 at the St. Pius X K of C. Ralph Flanagan and his band provided the music for this successful and enjoyable event. As a result of the dance, over $1,000 was generated for use in the Indianapolis club's scholarship fund.

A capacity crowd of over 15,000 was on hand Feb. 23 for the ND-Butler U. basketball game at Hinkle Field House in Indianapolis. This was Butler Coach Tony Hinkle's last basketball game after 43 years at Butler. ND Athletic Director MOOSE KRAUSE presented Coach Hinkle a monogrammed blanket and an honorary membership in the ND Monogram Club. Many of the local alumni contributed personally to a substantial gift which was also presented to Tony. ND won the high-scoring contest and Austin Carr broke the fieldhouse record with 51 points.

Lawrence A. O'Connor Jr. '65

JERSEY SHORE

At the UND Night in early April at the Shadowbrook, in Shrewsbury, new officers will be installed and the man-of-the-year award will be announced.

The first club activity for 1970 was a Super Bowl cocktail party at the Holmdel Motor Inn. Following a short business meeting, about 30 members and guests enjoyed watching the game on color TV, while feasting on a buffet provided by co-chairmen BOB GIUNCO '57 and JOE MCGOWAN '64.

The third annual bus trip to Madison Square Garden for the ND-NYU basketball game was Feb. 19. Co-chairmen JOHN BOGAN '55 and JOHN WHITE '48 were aided by Bob Giunco and Joe McGowan, a busy pair.

President CHARLES HESSE '57 and Past President DICK CORDASCO '50 hosted the annual freshman sendoff in September at the Red Bank Catholic High School. JIM GIBBONS was the campus speaker.

The club is in the process of updating its roster. Members of the alumni in the area are urged to contact the club to be added to the mailing list. The club's official address is P.O. Box 286, Asbury Park, N.J. 07712.

Charlie Keller '54

LANSING

The Lansing club kicked off the new year with its annual business meeting and smoker on Feb. 27. The main item of business was election of new board members to replace MIKE BYRNE and DICK SCHNEIDER, whose terms had expired. Elected to two-year terms were JIM BOYD and C.J. HESS. Reelected to additional two-year terms were BILL DOTTERWEICH and PAT NAKFOOR.

The second item of business was the election of club officers for the coming year. Retiring president DAVE O'LEARY announced the election of FRANK SIERAWSKI as president, PETER HASBROOK as vice-president, Bill Dotterweich as secretary and Jim Boyd as treasurer. The new officers assumed their duties on UND Night, March 30, at the Knights of Columbus hall.

The major event of the coming year will be the pregame party hosted by the club every two years on the eve of the ND-MSU game played in East Lansing. All alumni and friends are welcome to the event, traditionally held at the Jack Tar Hotel. If you are coming for the game, make plans to come in Friday night to help us prepare for our Saturday afternoon victory.

Peter Hasbrook '60

MILWAUKEE

On March 11, the board met to outline the events calendar for the next few months, as well as to discuss and finalize various other matters. Coming events include a family sports night in May, the annual golf outing in July, a family picnic in August and the annual fall smoker.

In addition, information for the directory was finalized and it should go to press shortly.

David L. Roemer '60

NEW ORLEANS

The New Orleans club sponsored a seafood supper at the city's famous Fitzgerald's

Seafood Restaurant Feb. 26. A few of the alumni on hand for boiled crabs and shrimp were JOE BEACH '35, AL VITTER '37, MIKE SMITH '40, ANDY PILNEY '36, ADOLPH FRANSEN '24, LARRY HENNESSEY '57, M.O. MILLER '66, WALTER BABST '66, LANCE BABST '64 and LEON REYMOND '64. Members, their wives, and guests were treated to tasty Louisiana seafood and an entertaining film on the history of professional football.

The club is looking forward to UND Night and a smoker is scheduled for early summer. Plans for the trip to South Bend for the LSU-ND football game (Nov. 21) are now complete. The New Orleans contingent will stay at the new Ramada Inn in South Bend.

Members continue to meet monthly for a luncheon on the first Wednesday of each month at 12:00 noon in the Bavarian Room of Kolb's Restaurant, 125 St. Charles Ave. Out-of-town alumni and guests are more than welcome to just drop in if they happen to be in New Orleans.

The new admissions committee appointed for the New Orleans area is now in full swing. Members include ED SPORL '34, chairman, JOE DROLLA JR. '63, HARRY CLARK '63, WALTER M. BABST '66 and M.O. MILLER '66.

F. Joseph Drolla Jr. '63

OHIO VALLEY

On Jan. 28, the Ohio Valley ND Club sponsored the University Glee Club at the Capitol Music Hall in Wheeling, W. Va. The concert was well received by an enthusiastic audience, consisting of ND alumni and boosters and local high school students. Three curtain calls were made for many of the numbers. After the performance, plaques were presented to BILL BUCH '60, club president and BOB SINCAVICH '50, chairman of the arrangements committee, by the Glee Club. The members of the Glee Club were then treated to refreshments at the Fiesta Room of Carroll Council No. 504, Knights of Columbus, and gave another impromptu concert. After spending the night at the McLure Hotel, the Glee Club left for the remainder of its tour.

The performance and conduct of the members of the Glee Club did much to dispel the pessimism which existed in the minds of the "silent majority" about the younger generation. We hope we can sponsor the Glee Club again.

The Glee Club concert was part of a campaign to raise funds for educational scholarships and laboratory equipment for Central Catholic High School. All proceeds above expenses were donated to the school.

Bill Mitsch '33

OMAHA

The highlight of our events calendar for 1970 was April 2—UND Night. Coach FRANK LEAHY made the evening especially great with his accounts of life at ND.

Plans are being made with the Kansas City Club to give ND tremendous backing at the Oct. 17 ND-Missouri game at Columbia. Out here in Big 8 country, the Irish will be in the limelight. If the team is able to handle Missouri (we know it will), it might try the Big Red of Nebraska in a few years. Excuse the allegiance to Nebraska, but we do like to see the Cornhuskers as high as No. 2, provided ND is No. 1.

Our new slate of officers for the 1970-71 year is as follows: BOB BROWN, president; JIM BEMIS, vice-president; SKIP O'KEEFE, secretary; and MIKE DUGAN, treasurer.

Tom Fortune '57

PHILADELPHIA

Election of the new officers and board of governors took place at our club meeting Jan. 27. The following were elected: GEORGE V. MITCHELL JR., president; THOMAS J. SHALLOW, vice-president; EDWARD B. BRODERICK, assistant vice-president; JOSEPH M. HILGER, treasurer; and FRANK CARVER, secretary. The new members of the board of governors are ROBERT J. MITCHELL, JAMES KELLY, JOHN P. DONOHUE, PATRICK W. KITTREDGE and THOMAS J. SHALLOW.

Plans are under way for our 1970 UND Night, set for late April or early May.

At the March 3 club meeting, LEN TOSE, our regional representative on the national board of alumni, gave an enlightening talk on the most current problems confronting the ND campus. About 40 club members attended this meeting, which proved to be interesting and most informative.

Frank Carver '64

ROME

As this goes to print, we will be doing a spritely sprint out to Rome's airport to welcome and assist the arriving alumni Rome Escapaders—all 180 of them—led by Lord JIM and Lady Marion ARMSTRONG.

During a very "civilized" Roman Holiday of nine days, (to do Holy Week penance for the uncivilized who "do" the Eternal City in a sacrilegious two days) we will have the opportunity to orientate and entertain the lovely lot. In our next dispatch, we will report on all "happenings" that happened, save the scandalous.

These sons and daughters of ND have come, enjoyed and departed Rome during the winter months: TOM COOKE '24 and wife, Jim Crowley '72, ED HARGAN '26, JERRY BERTHOLD '67 and wife SMC '67, JAMES CLAUSSE '48, nephew of Rev. GREGORY LOMBARDO CSC, WILLIAM FOSTER '65, sister of LARRY MURCHAN '66, JERRY MCKEEVER '31 (son Jerry '70) and wife, GEORGE SAVAGE '43 and wife, JOHN KUMINECZ '66, DOMINIC MOFFO '48, EUGENE TULLY '66 and wife, parents and grandmother of RANDOLPH SUTLIFF '67.

Papal point: PAUL VI '60 holds public audience each Wednesday at 11 a.m. Tickets are not required, but are available at North American College, Via Dell'Umilta 30, upon arrival. The Holy Father also appears in public at his window in St. Peter's Square each Sunday noon to bless and speak.

Roman ND hospitality: Our ND hospitality pad is open weekdays, noon to nine, at 82 Largo Brancaccio (tel:730.002), near the central air-train terminal. Welcome!

Vince McAloon '34

SAN FRANCISCO BAY

The monthly luncheon of the San Francisco Bay Area ND Club was at the St. Francis Hotel, Feb. 13, and was highlighted by the appearance of FRANK LEAHY as guest speaker. Introductions were handled by PAUL LIMONT '48, who played on Coach Leahy's 1941 and 1947 teams. Coach Leahy reminisced with the more than 60 members and their guests about his years at ND. The club extends its sincere thanks to Coach Leahy for his generosity.

The club's admissions committee reports that it has been making an active effort to assist eligible high school students from the Bay Area in gaining admission to the University. JIM DONOHUE '48, chairman of the admissions committee, informs us that, to date, several qualified boys have been admitted for the fall semester. An information night for all interested high school students was scheduled for April 7, at the St. Francis Hotel.

JOHN HALTER '50 acted as chairman of this year's UND Night. This year's dinner was at the Olympic Club Lakeside, April 9. A panel of speakers, including Rev. Uhelan, Don Komers, professor of world government and a University student, participated in the planned portion of the evening program.

Gerald C. Smith '61

VIRGINIA

The ND club and its officers were very pleased to host a reception Feb. 28 in honor of Joe Theismann. The ND quarterback's visit to Richmond was prompted by a desire to visit a hometown chum, who currently is matriculating at Virginia Commonwealth U. The reception was held at the exclusive Chalet Barn in the Bull and Bear Club atop the Fidelity Building. The reception followed a special dinner attended by Joe and the local club officers, and was open to all friends of ND, as well as the club members.

On the following morning, the annual Communion Mass and breakfast was held at St. Paul's Church and school. The guest speaker was Joe Theismann, of course, and this insured another fine turnout to cap off the weekend of events. The good fortune of the ND club in obtaining such a distinguished speaker was due to the efforts of EDDIE ECK and FRANK WALL-MEYER, our club president. An excellent time was had by all at both events, especially the youngsters, and particularly the young lady who won the coveted door prize—a football autographed by the scrappy Irish quarterback himself.

Our sincere thanks to Joe for taking the time from his personal trip to share a portion of contemporary ND life with us.

Frank Carpin '62

WESTERN WASHINGTON

Club members gathered at the home of Dorothy and DICK NEIMER on March 14 to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. The event was sponsored by the wives' Auxiliary Club.

Thanks go to outgoing auxiliary President Rose LYONS, officers Dorothy Neimer and Kathy MAY, and the phone gang, Jackie BERG, Helen SMITH, Sheran O'BRIAN, Joyce ROGERS and Fran FLOR.

They will be succeeded by newly appointed President Brenda ADAMSCZAK, Vice-president Mary DAILEY and Secretary Fran Flor.

Due to unusual production delays caused by the monumental task of producing the National Notre Dame Alumni Directory, the contracted firm, Rockwell Clancy Co. of Chicago, advises that purchasers should receive their copies shortly after the June 25 production date. Apologies are offered by both the firm and the Association for this delay.

ALUMNI SPEAK

Everybody's getting into the act

By James D. Cooney
Executive Secretary, Alumni Assoc.

An old New Yorker cartoon depicted a harried secretary rushing into a '20's board room to announce: "Sir, a man has just flown the Atlantic alone!" "So?" said the dour chairman, "Let me know when a committee's done it!" Perhaps no human enterprise has been more maligned than the committee, ad hoc, pro tem, or standing. Its only significant contribution to the history of man has been compromise. But perhaps like work and play, it has its place . . .

When the governance of the University was revised in May of '67, granting legal title and control of Notre Dame to a reconstituted Board of Trustees, some considered the action a C.S.C. sell-out; others welcomed it as a move away from the century-and-a-quarter tradition of autocracy at ND. Whatever it was deemed to be at the time, the era of authority dispersion had hit ND. A new faculty manual was approved that same weekend, and that document gave birth to the Faculty Senate. Both events presaged a larger measure of faculty self-determination and "voice" at ND. The Academic Council was enlarged and re-charged, seating elected members of the faculty. The Student Life Council came into being a short year later. That revolutionary concept (for ND) enables a body of students, faculty and administrators to legislate program and policy in matters affecting students' non-academic life.

Even the Alumni Board expanded, creating full representation on the Association's governing body for the first time. Establishment of the Alumni Senate brought hundreds more alumni into intimate contact with the University. And, this year, the University Forum was convened. Composed of four members each from six constituencies: trustees, administration, faculty, students, graduate students and alumni; the forum is still formulating its identity but suffice to say, the body will concern itself with issues of vital concern to the constituency.

The residence halls now possess separate constitutions, their own governments and judiciaries, charged with the establishment and maintenance of hall rule, regulation, program and order. Without exception, all of these groups feel entitled to a piece of the ND pie. Each of them expects its voice to be heard. Most of them have fairly effective articulation. But all seem, at the moment, to be searching for their identities—for the precise role they are to play in ND's growth and development. It's an agonizing process, but a necessary one, if the inevitable trends set in motion a few years ago are to achieve perfection.

This dispersion of authority, control, and voice is native not only to ND. Most major universities are undergoing the same experience, with varying degrees of success. College presidents today are the men caught in the middle of these diverse forces. Some have found the heat unbearable, and at least 30 presidents of major institutions have gotten out of the kitchen the past three years. A recent New York Times article (March 15) indicates that "Last year, the average tenure of presidents among the 48 institutions that are members of the Association of American Universities—generally accepted as the academic leaders of the United States—was 5.9 years. In 1960 it was 7.4 years." The Times points out that a president who has two years experience in office now has greater seniority than half his colleagues in the Association. That fact probably accounts for the reason why most students (and faculty, and alumni) think they can run universities. There are more job openings in the field!

One wonders at the raison d'être of these departures. While student dissidence is an obvious thorn in every administrator's side (and, you can include the sides of most faculty and many students), it seems implausible to suggest that distinguished educators have turned tail and run because of long hair, placards, and buttocks on administrative carpets. The extremity of dissidence in isolated cases has been the cause, agreed. But there is something deeper here. Clark Kerr, ex of California says "there is a lot of negative power on the campus." James Perkins, ex of Cornell says "Everyone wants to talk, talk, talk," and, that the modern day university is "anarchic at heart." Others claim they have been emasculated of their power.

There are those who considered the presentations and discussions at the recent University Forum meeting as critical of and affrontive to the University administration. We didn't see it that way. We did hear graduate students argue for first-class citizenship at ND, a faculty member plead for a restoration of the University's Catholic character, a student call for a restructuring of the top leadership into a chancellor-president arrangement, allowing for a sharing of administrative burdens, other students urge an emphasis on the fine arts here, and alumni asking for priority attention to the quality of residence hall life and the role of the priest at ND. Perhaps some lusty language was used, and some facts were out of focus. And granted, ND's leadership is concerned about and moving in some of these areas. But to suggest that the whole affair was an exercise in polemics and negative criticism bares some real hypersensitivity in the upper echelons here.

When you open the floodgate, you've got to expect a little spray.

COLUMN

Free city?

By Richard W. Conklin
Director of Information Services

"Nutting for Rector of an Experimental College. Hesburgh for President."

That's the way my button reads in the chancellor-president debate described elsewhere in this issue.

My personal knowledge of Dr. Willis Nutting is limited to a weekend student-faculty-administration dialogue, where I was impressed with his openness and thoughtfulness. So I read The Free City, the book in which he outlines his "radical proposal for overhauling the machinery of liberal education."

The book has a number of antecedents, ranging from the author's own experience with Oxford's tutorial system (a debt acknowledged in an "Afterword") to Robert Maynard Hutchins' innovations at the U. of Chicago's president between 1929 and 1945 (a man curiously never mentioned). There are other influences, such as an unmistakable touch of the 19th-century transcendentalist commune in the author's learning community and a kind of Platonic philosopher-king attitude toward the way a democratic technocracy makes decisions.

I am sympathetic to many notions in Nutting's Free City. Its defense of the generalist scholar against inroads of the narrow specialist, its distinction between schooling and education, its student-centered, personalist emphasis, its reservations about lock-step, course-credit curriculums — all are attractive positions.

But to make this book bear the burden of the Nutting-for-President case is a misreading. Nutting himself admits that his proposal must be fashioned from scratch and carries with it a definite numbers restriction—he uses the maximum figure of a 200-member learning community. And numbers are crucial. The Oxford-Cambridge tutorial system is enticing, until one realizes that the United States has more blacks in higher education than England has total citizens in universities. The analogy is instructive, because minority applicants might well be the first denied admission to the Free City simply because they come without the sophisticated reasons necessary for membership in this self-determining intellectual community. Minority group members view higher education, at least initially, as a vehicle of upward-social mobility (as did representatives of lower middle-class white ethnic groups who preceded them in the matriculation line). The Free City concept of education is of necessity elitist.

ND has attempted to incorporate some of the best proposals of Nutting's Free City in the creation of options within the traditional system, including Nutting's own General Program, the Collegiate Seminar, the Collegiate Scholars and the Committee on Academic Progress. Even at that, the University should be willing, finances permitting, to set up an experimental college, where a self-selective group of teachers and students could attempt to create something like Nutting's Free City. The Academic Council has endorsed this experimental program in principle, and it is where Willis Nutting can do the best good — as a leader and teacher in as unstructured a teaching dialogue situation as possible.

Two last observations:

1) The whole chancellor-president idea has been tried, and presumably found wanting, by at least a few of the nation's best universities. Hutchins himself was not replaced in 1951 when resigned as chancellor of Chicago. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology stands out as the only first-rate university currently using the double-leader system, and it is interesting to note that none of the five Ivy League schools which recently replaced presidents (Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania) followed the MIT model.

2) Dr. Michael Novak, who has tried to implement some Free City-type ideas at the State U. of New York's cutting-edge campus at Old Westbury, recently opened a Commonweal article with these remarks: "The words 'education reform' are everywhere in the air. But the radical movement, if it has not disintegrated under its own passion for purity and in its own moral self-righteousness, may well contribute far less to education than anyone had dreamed. It seems clearer now that many young people among these bright and sensitive ones in whom so much hope was placed, do not want to reform education but to escape from it."

STUDENT VIEW

The impossible task

By William J. Mitchell '71

The current state of the presidency at ND is at the same time a tribute to a man and an indictment of an office. More so than any other man, Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh CSC has given of himself to make the term "great Christian university" more than a cliché to be tossed around academic circles. In his 18 years in office, he has focused his efforts on making ND academically respectable and socially prophetic to the secular society it shares in. The words "great Christian university" remain a cliché at ND, though, because Fr. Hesburgh is finally incapable of the impossible. The attempted marriage in one man of teacher and ambassador demanded by the present structure is on the rocks.

Through his national leadership in education and civil rights, he has made the public life of the University an impressive one. It is a life that must now be reassessed in terms of life on campus. "A life spent entirely in public," Hannah Arendt has written in The Human Condition, "in the presence of others, becomes, as we would say, shallow. While it retains its visibility, it loses the quality of rising into sight from some darker ground which must remain hidden if it is not to lose its depth in a very real, non-subjective sense."

As is evidenced by the $800,000 annual deficit, ND pays a high price for its status as a private institution. ND is private because its reason for being, i.e., learning, is essentially a private activity. It goes on among students and teachers who share their lives together. It is the most important thing that happens at ND and Fr. Hesburgh has not been among the participants. He is in the position of leading and directing a group of persons with whom he shares almost nothing concrete. Fr. Hesburgh has been an admirable ambassador, but it is too much to ask of any man to be a good president as well.

The morale of students and teachers continues to decline in the directionless state of an abstract and absent presidency. The presidency at ND is a self-created monster; Fr. Hesburgh has said many times that he has nothing but pity for whoever might succeed him in the job as it is. Is it reasonable to expect that the office as Fr. Hesburgh has defined it (a multi-rolled round-the-clock dedication) would or could be filled by any other man? Structures become dangerous to institutions when they become finally dependent on present personnel—which is currently the case with the presidency at ND.

The time to change things is before the campus community crumbles any more. This is a learning community that needs a teacher for a leader. Willis Nutting, recognized by students and faculty from left to right as ND's best teacher, is the best man for president. Fr. Hesburgh, acknowledged internationally as ND's best ambassador of liberal education, is the best man for chancellor.

ALUMNI ASK

JOIN THE CLUB

For the first time since I have been receiving the ALUMNUS, I am proud to say I am part of the ND alumni. It is especially gratifying to read such openminded letters from the "old" alumni of 1914 and 1928.

Unfortunately, there still are those alumni who insist on remaining narrow-minded. All seem to scream about how un-Christian and un-Catholic ND and her students are—perhaps they should look these words up in a dictionary!

As my good friend, Gordon Hunt, said in his letter in the January-February issue, these old grads "are doing an excellent job of turning hope into hate." And, lo and behold, Rev. Charles Minck '54—a member of the cloth—is at the forefront. How can any human being in good conscience say that a participation in the Mass by one who has renounced his faith is a "far worse crime in the eyes of God . . . than the mere bodily death of 500,000 soldiers and civilians." Mere bodily death? Do not these people have souls in your theology, Father? Is God so evil and cruel as to weigh a renouncer's Mass participation as more evil than killing? Father says he is not condoning "mere bodily death"—but he sure is trying awfully hard. It is all especially sickening to realize he is a priest allegedly preaching love and Christianity.

If this is what ND turned out in 1954, can alumni really feel justified in being sick about today's ND? Perhaps they should think more about the old ND and be thankful for the new!

IRISH THEOLOGY

It's a sad, sad day when a Murphy has to ask a Sullivan to please take down the cross of Anti-Christ and put back the cross of Christ in its rightful place. Your forefathers and mine starved and died for that cross and for 700 years struggled to save it for what it means to all mankind.

I almost had a heart attack when I saw ☺ displayed on the back of the ALUMNUS, the magazine with a Tom Sullivan, managing editor. It wasn't bad enough to read the account of the horrible prostitution of the Mass that occurred on the campus of Our Lady in your last edition.

You must have been very short of material when you stooped to photograph that stamp someone took the trouble to make in the snow and added "Jack Frost leaves his mark?" when it should read, Satan was here and is here.

For God's sake do something in reparation and do it quick. How saddened ND must be.

RECALL '48

As one who has been proud to be a member of the "silent majority," I would like to momentarily leave this group to voice my objections to a January, 1970, ALUMNUS letter by one Joe Wilcox '48.

I resent the fact that he so readily attacks the ND priests of the forties and winds up his statement with a preference for a Bayard Rustin over a Rev. Hugh O'Donnell.

If the men and University life of that era were so unbearable to his delicate sensibilities, why didn't he leave? To my knowledge, no armed guards patrolled the campus to prevent a disgruntled malcontent from leaving permanently.

I do recall the rules and regulations and admit that obedience was trying, but on the other hand, it was perfectly clear that the New York Central left South Bend daily and the choice was mine. In my book, Rev. Joe Kehoe CSC was a perfect prefect of discipline. But then again, I even admire J. Edgar Hoover. I always thought part of the pride of being a ND man was to "take it" as tough as the going may get.

The priests of those years, living and dead, need no defense by me. However, I am proud to have known a Father Hugh O'Donnell, Tom Brennan, Joe Kehoe and countless others to whom I will always be extremely grateful for their guidance and help.

My classmates were a fine group of men who accepted their draft calls without burning cards. We had the pleasure of being inducted and serving overseas with a half dozen such men in the early postwar years. Our time in 1945 and 1946 saw the return of ND's real men from Europe and the Pacific whose example made our impending draft a small thing.

These classmates of mine thought so much of ND's Inquisition (as Mr. Wilcox puts it) that we sat down and wrote our readmission requests from a military transport enroute to San Francisco from Manila.

As a closing remark, I am sorry that Mr. Wilcox did not enjoy his ND years and that now in middle age he is amused at how old his classmates of 1948 have gotten. Could it be that this particular gent has never matured or is it that he is experiencing a second childhood?

A GOOD QUESTION

May I ask a question? Where are the wives of the alumni? I found it most amazing and somewhat frightening that not one woman aside from nuns felt compelled to comment on the controversial and extremely important issues presented in the last copies of the ALUMNUS. Perhaps they, like I, wrote the letters that were never mailed, but somehow from the tone of many of their husbands' letters, I fear they never even reached that point.

It is very difficult for me to understand how men—any men—can fail to see the terrifying implications of the problems and injustices that go unanswered in this society because of twisted, conditioned priorities; but it is impossible for me to understand how most women agree blindly with their husbands, or worse yet, not even think, let alone speak, about basic issues. We are the ones who will bear the children who will attend ND in the coming generations—if nuclear war or man's insane greed does not destroy us all before that point. Women are vitally involved with ND and this world, like it or not! Why then do women not respond to the problems and propositions of the University that educated their husbands and may someday do the same for their children?

I've had doubt upon doubt, but I feel that for the first time since my husband graduated in 1965, I would like my children, if they choose, to attend ND. Either a little bit of the real-live world came to Notre Dame or Notre Dame came out from behind her Catholic, moneyed tradition and found out things have changed. We are at a crucial stage and there is not one of us who can afford the luxury of denial, whether it suits our particular life-style or not. The stakes in this game of racism, war and the University's role in a changing society are a bit higher than the coins you'll withhold if offended and feelings about tradition!

MARINE MESSAGE

I have just finished your December issue and wish to add my agreement with the large number of alumni who expressed dissatisfaction with the October issue. I found Dean Thompson's remarks outstanding and quite to the point.

As to Father Hesburgh's remarks, they are rather typical of a man who has forsaken his character for what is in vogue. I am sorry to say so but his reaction to the Moratorium Mass was grossly irresponsible. At the time of the issue, I was moved to write a personal letter which I did not send. However, I wish to express total disagreement with his remarks which are at best patronizing to certain elements of the student body.

To the alumni who express total disaffection with the school, I might say they are making unfair conclusions. One need only refer to student reports for the dismissal of the Dow demonstrators. Most of the students still maintain a modicum of good sense not always evidenced by the University president.

ARMY ANSWER

The hysterical reaction of many ND alumni to your October-November coverage of the campus Moratorium Day activity is distressing to say the least. One wonders where these indignant correspondents have been for the last ten years. On retreat?

In this era of the silent majority it is easy to overlook the fact that it was demonstrations of the Moratorium Day variety that, early in 1968, finally awakened the nation to the utter insanity of the Vietnam debacle. As late as March of that year, Secretary Rusk, in testimony before the Fulbright Foreign Relations Committee, made it perfectly clear to all that the Johnson Administration had every intention of expanding the very policies that were the cause of the sorry situation that was then commanding the center of our attention. The political clout of McCarthy's New Hampshire triumph and Robert F. Kennedy's belated candidacy hastened Johnson's collapse and the subsequent American peace overtures but few knowledgeable observers would discount the impact street and campus demonstrations by concerned patriots, had on this policy reversal.

Equally lamentable is their unctimonious disgust with the alleged "use" (sic) of the Mass to lend legitimacy to the draft card rending. One would imagine they were trying to preempt the transubstantiation. The Offertory of the Mass has long been regarded as the time to offer oneself with the Christ to the Father. By offering their draft cards at Mass the ND Seven merely added liturgical significance to a sacrifice they are presumably prepared to make, to wit, three to five years in prison with all of its attendant stigmata. Few communicants are willing to make a sacrifice of that dimension.

The Moratorium Day activities did nothing to degrade ND, the Church or the Mass. If anything, these latter added much to the meaning of the Moratorium.

COVERAGE CRITIQUE

I just cannot let this last issue of the ALUMNUS pass without sharing with you some of my thoughts as a student recipient of the magazine. In addition, because of my involvement in the CIA-Dow debacle of last November as one of those ten suspended, I have specific comments on the coverage of that episode.

A simple physical accounting of space allocation makes me wonder about the priorities and thrust of the magazine. Besides the cover spread, there were five and one-half pages on the recent trip to Dallas, and only one column on the suspensions and a student article by Bill Mitchell (which, incidentally, was an excellent one). Why so? I know that football is the greatest cohesive force and selling item for the University alumni, but, my God, do they not even care about the serious and important problems concerning the future of this place? If the purpose of the ND ALUMNUS is to bridge the gap of communication, then I suggest more pertinent information than the social calendar of the Cotton Bowl week.

The coverage of the suspended students left much to be said. In an attempt to be objective, you quote both the Appeals Board and Rev. James Riehle. But you neglect to mention that Father Riehle did, in fact, overrule and overturn the recommendations of that Board. Also, if you have the guts to quote him talking about "ND Christian University" then why not mention his and the Administration's inability or unwillingness to answer any one of the related issues which were brought up in the defense appeal? The most acceptable way of being objective is to tell the whole story.

Of the six campus "Briefs" there were four which aroused my serious concern: a) While you proudly cited Rev. John L. McKenzie for his recent award, I must say I have never seen any mention of his public rally address of Nov. 24, 1969, in which he castigated the University administration for its ignorance of the most obvious issues to be faced concerning both University complicity and morality; b) The sports camp note was another evidence of ND's placing her typical "best foot" forward: athletics. Isn't there something else we can offer the world, and our ALUMNUS-reading alumni, rather than this pay-supplementing program for our varsity coaching staff? c) The prestige-building citation of the number of foreign students on this campus seems a bit absurd when you consider that we have less than 30 per cent of that number as a black student enrollment. I think that fact would make us second-think such boasting; d) My last suggestion concerns your publicizing the Engineering Council's opposition to the CIA-Dow incidents. Fine, but once again you seem to have ignored the other side, which in this case is a University Committee on Human Rights with a membership of over forty faculty members, all of whom have "publicly gone on record" in unequivocal opposition to the administration's actions both concerning the Placement Bureau and the November demonstration. Why so?

TAKING ISSUE

In the last issue of the ALUMNUS, the Rev. Charles J. Minck ordered his name stricken from your mailing list, announced his shame at being an alumnus of ND and pulled shut the trapdoor of his pietistic mind. I regret Father Minck no longer is among your readers, for I take issue with his letter, although judging by his tone I doubt if he is much interested in opinions that differ from his own.

Father Minck was "sick at heart" about the Moratorium Day Mass at the University. He was particularly shocked because one who "had formally renounced his faith" had participated in the Mass. ("And who knows if there might have been others, too." Horror of horrors) To Father Minck, their participation in the Mass was "sacriligious" and "a far worse crime in the eyes of God and of God-fearing men than the mere bodily death of 500,000 soldiers and civilians."

Now, I'm sure Father Minck is in a far better position than I to see things through the eyes of God. And I don't qualify as a "God-fearing" man because I honestly never think of God as someone to be afraid of. But, somehow, I have the feeling that God doesn't mind at all having agnostics or atheists or even some of us sinners participate in the sacrifice of the Mass. And, somehow, I have this strange feeling that the "mere bodily death of 500,000 soldiers and civilians" (many of them innocent children, Father) is an enormous blasphemy against the Creator of life.

Father Minck's outrage over these unworthies participating in the Mass reminds me of the indignation of the Pharisees who criticized Christ for eating with Publicans and sinners, or of that reknowned man of God who stood before the altar congratulating himself on not being "like the rest of men." It's clear that Mary Magdalen never would make it into the Altar and Rosary Society at Father Minck's church.

The only bright spot in Father Minck's letter was his acknowledgment that he might be "a lone voice in the wilderness." Would that this were so. I would have been sick at heart after reading the letter of this clerical technocrat were it not for some of the other letters in the same issue from alumni who have not closed the trapdoor of their minds, such as the Rev. David F. Monahan '63, and Louis F. Buckley '28.

Father Minck said: "I am ashamed now to acknowledge being an alumnus." It should be just the other way around, Father.

CATALYST?

I must tell you how pleased I am at the flood of comments on December's "Alumni Ask" column. I could almost accuse you of having made up some of the Neanderthal remarks in December just to shake the true believers out of their lethargy. The response—and not just from "liberals"—has made the two issues a genuine sounding board of Alumni opinion. Your efforts to engage us in ND's problems are eminently successful.
