Senate filibuster may take place over war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican senator who often speaks for the White House hinted yesterday the Senate may be filibustered by opponents of legislation intended to force an end to the U.S. Cambodian incursion.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, (R-Kans.), spoke in terms of keeping the debate going for "three or four weeks" or more. That would put off a vote until mid-June or later.

President Nixon has pledged to pull all U.S. troops out of Cambodia by June 30, so the delay would make it impossible for final action on the legislation before then.

If the troops were out by time the matter came to a vote in the House of Representatives, it appeared unlikely the proposal would find much support.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, testifying before a Senate subcommittee Monday, renewed assurances U.S. withdrawals from Cambodia would be completed at the end of June.

He also contended there was "no question" a majority of Americans support Nixon's action.

The debate in the Senate over Cambodia concerns an amendment to the bill authorizing arms sale abroad. Proposed by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, (R-Ky.) and Frank Church, (D-Idaho), it would deny funds for "retaining" U.S. forces in Cambodia beyond June 30.

The measure has considerable Senate support.

This was acknowledged by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, (Pa.), who told reporters he had been in touch with the White House every three or four hours in his attempts to iron out a compromise.

Although the administration would prefer to see no legislation — arguing any action would tamper with the President's powers as commander-in-chief — Scott said he advised the White House that the Senate wants to be heard on Cambodia.

Advisers enter Laos

Laird testified shortly after the Florida White House said there are no American ground forces in Laos and "no change in our activities in Laos."

That statement followed the disclosure by South Vietnam Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam at a Southeast Asia conference in Jakarta that his country's forces periodically have pursued Communist troops into Laos.

Laird said that if South Vietnamese forces having American advisers went beyond the present limited scale of forays into Laos, that would "not be in accord" with a prohibition passed by Congress last year against use of U.S. ground combat forces in Laos and Thailand. But he indicated that had not occurred.

The present crossings are rare and last only a few hours, Laird said.

Earlier, Defense Department Spokesman Jerry W. Friedham acknowledged U.S. advisers may accompany South Vietnamese troops who enter Laos to "take protective reaction."

Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the use of South Vietnamese troops in Laos "violates the spirit" of a congressional ban on use of U.S. ground forces in Laos and Thailand.

"We are going in there by proxy," he said. "The purpose of the amendment was to avoid further involvement in Laos or Thailand, but now our clients are going in there." He said it was clear South Vietnamese troops could not mount attacks in Laos "without our assistance and our backing."

The White House statement did not touch on the question of possible use of American advisers in Laos. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren told newsmen at Key Biscayne, Fla., where President Nixon spent a long weekend, that he did not know the extent of South Vietnamese operations in Laos and said: "We do not have American ground troops in Laos and there is no change in our activities in Laos."

Friedham also said "there are no U.S. ground troops in Laos."

Fear Nixon Campaign

Kommers supports proposals

by Rich Smith

Professor Donald Kommers of the Government Department said yesterday that he supported the Cooper-Church amendment which would prohibit future Cambodian invasions currently before Congress as an appropriate means of "bringing the President to heel without curtailing his power."

Speaking in the LaFortune Student Center, Kommers expressed the fear that if the amendment was passed, Nixon would mount a campaign in the coming elections against those senators who voted for it.

"The President could play demagogue. It wouldn't take much to organize the workers behind him and keep the protestors at bay. But if he sees himself as an instrument of national unity he could forego this momentary victory. He can use his position to heal or to pour salt into the wounds," Kommers said.

In reference to the Harfield-McGovern bill, which calls for complete withdrawal from Indochina by June of next year and cuts off appropriations for the war as of this December, Kommers said that he believed that it was "too broad in scope."

Kommers said that he would ordinarily be against any curtailment of Presidential powers in the area of foreign and military affairs, and that there was a "serious question about giving Congress more powers," since that body had in the past proved to be "awkward and clumsy."

Also, Kommers pointed out, most of the expertise in those fields is lodged with the President and his advisors.

In citing the traditional conservatism of Congress in the areas of military and foreign affairs, Kommers said "Congress is likely to be wrong. It had been the great villain in the past, as when it refused to go along with Wilson and join the League of Nations."

Kommers suggested the existence of "two majorities," with Congress mostly representing the South and rural areas while the President "as the only representative with a true national constituency. The President has usually been the more progressive, liberal and enlightened."

Pointing out that the modern era was one in which decisions were often made "instantly", Kommers said that he would oppose any curtailment of Presidential powers. He specifically cited the Middy East, where, he said, if Israel is attacked by the Arabs, "the United States, in my opinion, would have the right, the moral duty, to ship arms, material and even men to her aid."

Referring to the Cambodian invasion, Kommers called it a "colossal diplomatic error," and said that it was made against a "backdrop of a national consensus against any further widening

Committee for New Congress plans to involve students in elections

The Notre Dame Committee for a New Congress met in an organizational meeting Monday afternoon in the Academic Commission offices. The Committee is part of a national organization attempting to involve students in key Congressional and Senatorial races during the summer and fall.

The group has already received commitments from over 175 students to work for peace candidates during the summer. These students will be placed in campaigns through a national clearing house at Princeton University.

Chairman John Roos, of the Government Department has scheduled a general training session for potential workers Thursday night at 7:00 in Room 104 O'Shaughnessy. The purpose of the session is to "Give the students a feel for the problems they will encounter in helping to organize a political campaign."

Roos also assigned a research team to study the voting patterns in Indiana's eleven Congressional Districts since 1958.

This project is in preparation for the role Notre Dame will play in the Indiana state organization.

Vice-chairman Pat Dowdall and office manager Pat McDonough announced that the Committee's permanent office would be in the Academic Commission offices, fourth floor LaFortune. The office will be staffed daily from 10 to 4. The Committee's goal is to get commitments from 2000 Notre Dame students for political work in the summer or fall for peace candidates.

Hold referendum on McGovern-Hatfield bill

Tomorrow, a campus-wide referendum will be held concerning the McGovern-Hatfield Amendment to the Military Procurement Authorization Bill, announced Steve Azzarelli, an organizer of the referendum. This referendum is part of a nationwide student referendum which was initiated at Harvard University and of which Notre Dame is State Coordinator for Indiana. The amendment is designed to "starve the war" in Southeast Asia by providing that "unless Congress shall have declared war" no further funds will be used for military purposes in Laos, Cambodia or Vietnam after December 31, 1970 except to finance troop withdrawal and operations related to withdrawal.

"As an attempt to bring direct political pressure to bear on those who are in a position to control American actions in Southeast Asia, it is essential that a large block of student support be demonstrated for the amendment," Azzarelli stated.

There is an excellent chance that the referendum will pass the Senate is enough general support for it can be demonstrated. As a large and easily polled block of the present and future consti-tents of the 100 Senators, students can have a decisive influence on the way in which they will vote on this amendment."

According to a newsletter from Senator McGovern's office, he and Senator Hatfield reject the notion that the war in Indochina is "President Johnson's war" or President Nixon's war" and assert that it is Congress' war "so long as it fails to assume its responsibility." They continue, "We believe that today a clear majority of the Senate is convinced at least that U.S. involvement in the war has been a military, political and moral mistake."

They reject the idea that an error can be rectified by perpetuating and expanding it, and state, "we believe it is time to abandon the policy of saving face and to launch a policy of saving lives."

Describing the state of many in America today, on college campuses and elsewhere they say, "It must contribute greatly to the frustration and outrage among those who have no direct power over policy when they see that we who do have power under the Constitution are refusing to use it."

The activities preceding Wednesday's vote began yesterday in LaFortune Student Center with a Commiversity event, a debate between several professors concerning the amendment.

Today the Student Union Academic Commission has arranged for professors to be in the halls for discussion groups, with the hope that the referendum will be a widely discussed topic. The referendum itself will be held tomorrow in the individual halls during the lunch and dinner hours with the results from Notre Dame and other Indiana campuses being forwarded to Harvard for inclusion in the national tally.

Calls invasion colossal error

(Continued from page 1) would be the first time since 1812 that a Presidential move in a foreign country will be curtailed. It would be a tremendous symbolic and psychological defeat for the President and he will use every tool he has to stop it."

Saying that in his "candid opinion" the measures would not pass, Kammers said that there were "some people in the Senate who disagree with the President, but who will fail to go along with the resolution because they don't want to chain the President."

Kammers also said that Nixon would use his cabinet members as liasons to bring congressmen with strong ties to the various government departments into line.

of the war." Kammers said that even if one of the amendments to restrict future military action in Indochina were passed, Nixon could circumvent it. "Its significance is in its symbolic importance. It

Kappa Gamma Pi nominees chosen

Fifteen members of the Class of '70 of St. Mary's College have been named to Kappa Gamma Pi, the national honor society of Catholic colleges for women, it was announced by Sister M. Jeanne Finske, academic dean. Kappa Gamma Pi nominees are chosen from among graduating seniors on the basis of their academic distinction and their outstanding service and leadership to the college community.

Named to Kappa Gamma Pi are:

Rosemary C. Anderson, a history and humanistic studies major from Cleveland, Ohio.

Kathleen M. Carbine, a humanistic studies major from Shorewood, Wisconsin.

Frances M. Carroll, a mathematics major from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Katherine A. Dent, a music major from Kansas City, Kansas.

Eileen F. Donoghue, a mathematics major from Michigan City, Indiana.

Marilyn J. Fisher, a psychology major from Woodbridge, Virginia.

Sister Frances Teresa Guldberg, C.S.C., a mathematics major from San Mateo, California.

Kathleen A. Kelly, an English and humanistic studies major from Akron, Ohio.

Barbara R. Kolvas, a history major from South Bend, Indiana.

Scott hints at growing desire for compromise position on war

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.) said yesterday there is a growing desire for some kind of position on the Indochina War which could command overwhelming support in the Senate.

Scott, Senate Republican leader, told reporters he was searching for language to broaden a pending amendment calling for a cut off of funds for retaining U.S. forces in Cambodia after June 30, the time set by President Nixon for withdrawing GIs sent in to wipe out Communist sanctuaries.

Scott said there was a "growing desire" to reshape the so called Cooper-Church amendment so it might win 75 to 80 votes rather than the "close division" anticipated if it reaches a vote with existing language.

Scott declined to give any details of language changes which he indicated were the subject of discussions during the weekend. Scott said he has been in touch with the White House frequently.

He said he had advised the White House that the Senate wanted to be heard on Cambodia. He added that he personally wanted to "make clear the Senate's will without destroying the President's options as commander-in-chief."

"More people are now favoring some readjustment of the wording," he added.

Earlier, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced he would join in sponsorship of a stiff resolution to cut off funds for U.S. military involvement in Indochina starting Dec. 31, 1970 and to require pullout of all American forces by June 30, 1971.

Mansfield said he had no idea when a vote would come on that measure or the more limited proposal now before the Senate to cut off funds for the Cambodian operation sponsored by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Allen commencement speaker

Dr. James E. Allen, Jr., U.S. Commissioner of Education, will be the University of Notre Dame's commencement speaker June 7, it was announced by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C.

Father Hesburgh also said that John Cardinal Willebrands, head of the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity, will be the celebrant of the traditional baccalaureate Mass scheduled for 9:00 a.m. in the Athletic Convocation Center arena. Preaching the homily at this Mass will be Archbishop Denis E. Hurley of Durban, South Africa, a staunch foe of his nation's policy of racial separation.

Allen, who received his doctorate in education from Harvard University in 1945, has spent almost four decades as either an educational administrator or university teacher. Prior to his appointment by President Nixon to head the nation's Office of Education, he was for 13 years commissioner of education for New York State.

Allen, Cardinal Willebrands and Archbishop Hurley will each receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at graduation ceremonies set for 2:00 p.m. in the Athletic-Convocation Center arena. Other recipients of honorary degrees will be announced later, Father Hesburgh said.

Irish assure winning season record

by Jim Donaldson
Observer Sportswriter

Rob Voitier made his last appearance at Cartier Field Monday afternoon against the Northwestern Wildcats and his performance was one Irish diamond fans will long remember.

The slim six-foot senior hit for the cycle, rapping a single in the fourth inning, a double in the first inning, a triple in the sixth stanza and capped his outstanding effort by clubbing his first homerun of the season in the eighth frame, as he led the Irish to a 6-5 victory. The win was Notre Dame's eleventh of the year at home without a loss and marked the first time in 36 years that the Irish were able to post an unblemished slate on their own diamond. Notre Dame now has a 15-12 mark on the season while Northwestern is 6-24-2.

While Voitier was performing his heroics at the plate ND coach Jake Kline went with three senior hurlers on the mound for the Irish and the trio responded by making their final home appearances a success. Southpaw Jim Phelps started and pitched the first four innings before giving way to Dan Curran. Curran lasted but an inning and a third and had to be bailed out of a jam by Bob Jaeger. Jaeger finished the game for the Irish and earned credit for the win, his second of the year without a loss.

The Wildcats put the first marker on the scoreboard as George Greenfield clouted a solo homerun with two out in the first inning.

Northwestern's lead was short-lived however as the Irish pounced on Wildcat starter Gus Prochazka for a pair of tallies in their half of the first frame. Voitier led off for the Irish and gunned a double. A single by Nick Scarpelli and a walk to Rich Lucke filled the bases with one out. Chuck Horan then put the Irish out front by slapping a single to plate Voitier and Scarpelli.

Notre Dame added another run in the second inning as, after two were out, Scarpelli walked, stole second and scored on Joe Keenan's single.

The Wildcats tied the score with a pair of runs in the fourth inning off Phelps. Greenfield beat out a bunt single to start the rally. Gary Berman laid down another bunt and both he and Greenfield were safe when Keenan elected to try for a play at second but threw wide of the bag. A third straight bunt, this one laid down by Bill Bauer, filled the bases for the Wildcats. Bob Artemanko plated Greenfield and Berman with a single but Phelps worked out of trouble before any more runs scored. Northwestern grabbed the lead in the fifth inning as Cliff Tweedale drew a walk, moved to second on a wild pitch by Curran (on in relief of Phelps) and scored on a single by Roger Simpson.

The Wildcats added another run in the sixth stanza to take a 5-3 lead but the Irish tied the score with a pair of tallies in their half of the sixth. Bob Jaeger doubled to left center and scored the first Irish marker of the frame on Voitier's triple to right center. A sacrifice fly by Scarpelli sent Voitier across the plate.

Voitier's solid roundtripper in the eighth was the winning run for the Irish.

The Irish are still hopeful, although not optimistic, of obtaining an NCAA tournament berth on the strength of their second half record. After a horrendous start in which they lost 10 of their first 11 games the Irish have bounced back and won 14 while losing two, an .875 percentage, since April 18. The team has shown marked improvement since the outset of the season and if they can close out their schedule today with a win at Valparaiso the season must be considered a success.

Soccer team is undefeated

The Irish booters had another great weekend. This time the soccer club shutout Valparaiso 6-0. The game was played Sunday afternoon on the Stepan Center field.

Four different players scored goals in this contest in which the ND squad vastly outclassed the Crusader kickers. Those who scored for the Irish were Kevin O'Brien who booted two past the Valpo goalie and Tom Shriver who also had two tallies, Dan Burke and Chris Hanlon added one apiece.

The improving O'Brien also had two assists in the Irish rout.

Three different goalies held the Crusaders scoreless. Maury Bric who already notched one shutout this spring, held the Valpo players at bay in the first part of the game. After him came Tom Makielski who also has a scoreless game to his credit and Phil Michaels in his debut at the watchman spot.

The Irish are having a tremendous spring season. So far they are undefeated, untied and unscored upon in three games.

Netters finish strong

The Notre Dame tennis team completed an extremely successful season this past weekend with two more victories. On Friday the Irish defeated Bowling Green eight to one. Saturday the team closed the season by downing Ball State by an eight to one margin. Thus the Irish finished the year with a record of fifteen wins and only six losses. It has been a very good year, especially when it is noted that there was only one senior on this year's starting team, co-captain Bob O'Mally, who closed out his career with a come from behind victory on Saturday.

USMA sprints past Irish

by Steve O'Connor

Observer Sportswriter

The Irish track team closed out their short dual meet season last Saturday in New York by losing 90-64. Army swept four events and Notre Dame swept two on a cold afternoon that kept performances subpar.

Army won ten events and most of these were the shorter distances to middle distances on the track and the sweeps they pulled off in the field. These sweeps came in the Hammer Throw, Javelin, High Jump, and Pole Vault. Their runners took the 100, 220, 440, 880, Mile Relay and 440 Relay.

The Irish were again led by Paul Gill who set a field record for the third week in a row in the Discus. Gill's toss this week was 182'9" which also qualified as a Notre Dame-Army meet record. Elio Polselli was second in the Discus for ND and first in his specialty the Shot, which he won with a 52'6" effort. Also in the field Mike McMannon won the Long Jump at 23'2" and Kevin McAuliffe placed first in the Triple Jump with a 46'11" leap.

The two Notre Dame sweeps were in the Mile and the 120 yd.

High Hurdles. Mike McCann and Joe Quaderer tied for first in the mile with a time of 4:13.1. Kevin Robinson grabbed third to complete the sweep. In the High Hurdles Joe Utz's 15.0 clocking took first and Irish teammates Tom McMannon, and Dave Stickler took second and third. Dave Stickler added a winning performance in the Intermediate Hurdles to finish a fine afternoon and Joe Quaderer took his second win later, in the Two Mile with a time of 9:11.2.

This meet left the Irish with a 1-2 dual meet record for the season. Occurring now is a long layoff from competition before the Central Collegiate Conference meet in three weeks on June 5-6 and the NCAA meet June 18-20, in Des Moines.

Sailors go on to nationals

The Notre Dame Sailing Club has just completed a most successful weekend. The sailors managed to work their way to the National regatta for the second year in a row. The Irish did this on the strength of their performance in the Midwest Regional Championships at Bloomington, Indiana.

Notre Dame placed second out of the top nine teams in the Midwest to earn a trip to Madison, Wisconsin on June 17 for the National championships. The University of Michigan Wolverines won the Midwest finals but they just managed to edge the experienced Irish. Ohio Wesleyan placed third in the event.

Individual standouts in the regatta for ND were Rich Doyle who skippered the "A" boat and his crew of Gerry Mohm. Dolye was the low point man in the regatta after the first day (in sailing the low score is best) but he ran into trouble on the second day of action and was disqualified in one race. It was here that "B" skipper Mike Morrissey showed his true value by coming through with a tremendous clutch performance to insure the runner-up spot for ND. Morrissey had two men alternate as his crew, Will Donegan and Kevin Hoyt.

Rich Doyle will not be traveling to the Wisconsin campus for only one championship. Two weeks ago he won the single-handed sailing championship, also at Madison. Doyle was the best sailor in the Midwest and he will go back to Madison to try to attain national recognition. Besides Doyle, Tom Salack, team captain, also competed in the single-handed event and he placed 7th in the 27 team field. In these races with only one person sailing there was considerable trouble with the elements. After the first day there was a number of capsizings so the matches were halted. Rich had managed to come out on top despite the poor sailing conditions.

The outlook for the national regatta is good. Since ND placed seventh in this same meet last season and have a number of experienced hands returning they will be a definite threat for the title.

Ruggers beat champs

Senior captain Mike Paterni scored his last six points for the Notre Dame Rugby Club on Saturday, and it was all the Irish needed in order to upset Chicago Lyons 6-3 this weekend in Chicago. Paterni's points came on two penalty kicks, one in each half, to give the ruggers a thrilling victory over Chicago Lyons, the "Midwest Champions" as a result of their victory two weeks ago in the Midwest Rugby Tournament.

The "Midwest Champions" were held scoreless in the first half and scored on a try in the second half. During the last three minutes of the game Chicago Lyons was threatening deep in Irish territory, but the Notre Dame ruggers held on bravely, finally kicked the ball back to midfield, and secured the victory. Outstanding for the ruggers were Jim Hagenbarth, Pete Hartney and Tom Herlihy all of whom are juniors and will be back next fall. Besides Paterni, Bob Monaghan, Gary Gleason and Jim Butler played their last rugby game for Notre Dame.

The rugby club closed their season with a fine 9-3-1 record. The ruggers have beaten the best teams in the Midwest and finished second only to Brown in the Commonwealth. Without question, the Irish ruggers are one of the best, if not the best college rugby team east of the Mississippi River. And with eleven starters returning as well as a strong "B" team, the Notre Dame Rugby Club is looking forward to another outstanding season in September.
