Senior faculty members refused full-time work

by Maureen Flynn
Senior Staff Reporter

The Faculty Senate has refused to recommend to the Administration that all capable faculty members be allowed to continue full-time employment past age 65.

In approving the report of its Special Committee on the Retired, the Senate last night voted to delete the following recommendation:

That the Administration "extend to each faculty member who has reached his sixty-fifth birthday the opportunity to continue in full-time employment, if he wishes to do so, provided that he is capable of discharging his duties, subject to annual review. Additionally, provision should be made for part-time teaching, for those who wish it."

The Senate substituted for the deleted passage a recommendation that the Administration "afford to each retired faculty member the maximum possible opportunity for part-time teaching."

The approved recommendation was proposed by law professor Robert E. Rodas after debate concerning the University's current retirement policy. At present, a faculty member is automatically retired at age 65, unless an exception is purposely made. The Senate noted that no definite statement of policy for exceptions exists.

Objections to Mandatory retirement

Several faculty members argued that mandatory retirement insures a healthy rate of turn-over within departments and provides openings for young educators in a tight job market.

Professor John Lyon, chairman of the general program of liberal studies, told the Senate that several older faculty members of his acquaintance have expressed a preference for an absolute mandatory retirement age.

Following an inconclusive discussion of the present mandatory retirement policies, the Faculty Senate approved a recommendation that would maximize part-time teaching opportunities for retired faculty members.

SLC to concentrate efforts on COUL report during '75

Sue Carey
Staff Reporter

At the first meeting of the Student Life Council this year, Chairperson Ed Byrne said the organization will base most of its discussion this year on the report prepared by the Committee on Undergraduate Life (COUL).

"We are concerned right now with structuring committees to deal with current issues on campus," Byrne told the meeting. "We've got a lot of issues that need to be acted on right away."

The COUL report, which was submitted to the University Board of Trustees last May, dealt with several aspects of student life which come under the jurisdiction of the SLC. "The COUL report will eventually filter down into our committees," SLC member Prof. Carole Moore noted.

The standing committees which the SLC voted to retain from past years are: Campus Life, Off Campus and Community Relations, Planning and Policy, Rules and Regulations, and Steering, which determines the council's agenda for discussion.

Each of the committees will have at least three members drawn from the SLC itself, in addition to other persons recruited for expertise or interest from the rest of the campus. Subcommittees will be formed to deal with specific issues within the general area of concern.

The Campus Life Committee has dealt in the past with such issues as determining library hours during exams, establishing student lounges, and regulating traffic on campus. "Campus Life deals with the pleasant things of this campus - to make them more pleasant," noted Brother Just Paczesny, Vice-President for Student Affairs.

The Off Campus and Community Relations group is concerned with studying the pros and cons of off-campus living and the responsibilities of off-campus students in the community.

The Rules and Regulations Committee sets up guidelines for the Judicial and Appeals Boards, and will review the hall J-board system. Topics such as alcohol regulations come under study in this committee.

Planning and Policy deals with long-term university concerns, as well as campus-wide studies of current interest. Campus lighting, coed housing, and parietal regulations are some of the issues to fall into this category.

The SLC's membership has been cut to 15 this year in order to increase efficiency. The council is made up of five administrators, five faculty members, and five students, including the Student Body President and a representative of the Hall Presidents' Council. The SLC will meet the second and fourth Tuesday of each month throughout the semester.

According to Kovatch

Security system adequate

by Eileen O'Grady
Staff Reporter

Even with the recent reports of alleged rapes and break-ins, St. Mary's Security Director Anthony Kovatch insists his present security system is equipped to handle any situation.

"We have continual patrol; 24 hours a day. There is always someone on patrol. We have both foot and car patrol. The routes are never assigned. If we did assign routes, then everyone would know which way you're going and when. Rather than set a pattern we deviate."

"The main road from U.S.31 going west, is patrolled continuously, especially during the dark hours," Kovatch said.

St. Mary's also offers an escort service to its students. Security officers escort them back to St. Mary's from Notre Dame after the shuttle bus stops running. The service is set up especially for one or two girls who have no way of getting home and are afraid to walk alone.

The escort service has been in use for three years. According to Kovatch, "There are a few girls who use it. They don't abuse it though. It's always one or two girls who call instead of a whole group. I'd rather send a car than take the chance of one of them getting hurt," he said.

Another possibly dangerous area is the tunnel system at St. Mary's. The tunnels connect LeMans, Holy Cross, Moreau and Regina halls.

They are open all day and locked at night after the pool clears out, usually about 11:00 P.M. They are closed during visitation hours to discourage young men from entering the dorms without leaving their I.D.'s.

Robin Raher, a St. Mary's transfer student, explained why most of the girls are afraid in the tunnels. They all seem to remember a Jeanne Dixon prediction made a few years back, when entering the tunnels alone. "She predicted that in some Midwestern private women's college, a girl would be hatched late at night in the school's tunnel system," Raher said.

Another St. Mary's student claims she uses the tunnels all the time, but at night she is afraid.

"I'm always scared in them at night. Somehow by the end of the tunnel, I'm always running. Part of the reason is the strange sounds. They echo. So if I hear any strange sounds, like the hot water pipes, I always think they are footsteps. Everyone's always afraid in them at night, but you never hear of anything happening," she said.

Kovatch says the tunnels are constantly patrolled. "When they're open, they're checked. There are emergency phones in the tunnels directly connected to the security office. The tunnels are

Rape reports cause increased usage of transport methods

by Maggie Waltman
Staff Reporter

When traveling at night between Saint Mary's and Notre Dame, SMC students are inclined to use the shuttle or escort service over walking, according to a random poll of Saint Mary's students.

The poll also showed that SMC students were not likely to hitch hike at night either.

According to a St. Mary's security spokesman, the number of requests for escorts has increased since stories about alleged rapes have been published. The guard-house gets an average of four calls a night, usually from girls who have missed the last shuttle bus from Notre Dame to St. Mary's.

"There's no way I would walk - no way," said Kathy Groskoph, a sophomore at St. Mary's. Although she has never used the escort service, she has friends who have called an escort after the shuttle had stopped.

Sophomore Marmi Lawlor said she walked several times last year. Lawlor said the stories about rape "wouldn't deter me, if I was with a group of girls. But I would never walk alone."

She said that after the rape stories, her friends at St. Mary's were "really terrified, especially those who have walked back and forth alone."

Theresa LaCava, a senior at St. Mary's, said she would not walk by herself but would try to find someone to walk with.

According to LaCava, the security guards "are never in the right place at the right time." She said she wouldn't want to take the chance of something happening if she were walking alone after dark.

Another senior, Leslie Wilson, said she would not walk alone. However she would walk in a group if there was no other alternatives.

Wilson said "through a personal experience which dealt with a potential rape, I found that the St. Mary's security force was totally incompetent." Wilson added that she would use the escort service "if I thought I'd get a response. They take so long to get there."

Mary Ann Domaszek, a junior, has used the escort service twice and said it was not bad waiting, although it took about twenty-five minutes.

Domaszek said it was not necessarily due to the alleged rapes that she would not walk by herself. "I would never walk alone at night at home either," she said.

Junior Meg McManus said she has walked alone once this year. She wasn't walking from Notre Dame, but said she would have called an escort if she'd been on campus.

McManus is "really apprehensive about walking since the alleged rapes. I try not to walk but will if there's no other way."

She added it was a shame that students have to worry about something like walking between the two campuses. "Sometimes, if the weather is nice, you just want to walk," she mentioned.

Most students do not blame the security force for the unsafe conditions. One sophomore said the force "seems to be doing a good job. You can't expect them to be everywhere at once."

She added that once an escort drove out to Scottsdale Mall to pick up her roommate.

LaCava said the security force should concentrate less on trivial things and more on how to protect the campus and the college. "They worry more about the parking spaces than weird guys walking around the campus," LaCava said.

Wilson echoed these observations. She said there should be a "shift in focus of priorities. The St. Mary's security is thoroughly obsessed with traffic tickets."

Wilson said they should be more concerned with the security of the students.

Lawlor disagreed, saying the security force and the escort service are good. She added, though, that she thought there might be door-to-door service since many students must still walk to the Notre Dame circle and from the MANILA, THE PHILIPPINES (AP) - An armed Filipino hijacked a jetliner as it approached Manila airport Tuesday and held it captive on the ground for nearly eight hours until authorities promised to help find the 4-year-old daughter he claimed had been kidnapped.

The hijacker, identified as Camilo Morales, about 25, was coaxed into surrendering in negotiations under the belly of the Philippine Airlines BAC-1-11 after officials had complied with his earlier demand to ready the plane for a flight to Libya.

Maj. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, commander of the Philippines constabulary, said the abduction of the child had made Morales "mentally unstable."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution late Tuesday to send 200 American technicians to surveillance posts in the Sinai to help monitor the interim agreement between Israel and Egypt.

The 10 to 2 vote clears the way for probable final authorization by Congress by the end of the week. This, in turn, would lead to implementation of the accord negotiated in August by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The resolution passed by the committee contains a disclaimer stipulating that Congress is not bound by any of the collateral understandings Kissinger reached with the two states during his shuttle diplomacy. The House version, carrying the same provision, is due for a floor vote on Wednesday.

checked several times nightly," he said.

The most recent disturbance was a report made by two fourth floor residents of St. Mary's Holy Cross hall last Wednesday night. About 3:00 A.M., both called St. Mary's security to report a young man had entered their room. When they screamed, he ran off. No one was hurt in the incident.

Kovatch thinks someone tried to play a prank on the girls. "Someone was trying to play Halloween tricks before Halloween," he said.

Kovatch is sure the young man was a student or one of the girl's boyfriend. "He knew the dorm and exactly where he was going. If he wanted to be indiscriminate, he wouldn't have gone up to the fourth floor," he said.

Security officers found the fire escape door on the fourth floor open. Kovatch assumes this is the way he entered. "The girls have a bad habit of opening the fire escape doors when it gets warm. They cannot be opened from the outside. But from now on, they will be secured with fire locks," he said.

Poll indicates Judicial Boards not active in majority of halls

by Cathy Cannon and Jill Truitt
Staff Reporters

According to a poll taken of hall presidents, Notre Dame Hall Judicial Boards are generally unused.

Only Sorin, Keenan, Stanford, and Morrissey report successful programs in their halls.

Tom Grimm, Sorin hall president, revealed the Notre Dame Judicial Board was modeled after Sorin's board. "We have a good workable organization. Last year our J-Board handled quite a few cases," he said.

Bill Fallon, Keenan hall president, said their J-Board handles all disciplinary actions including parietal and liquor violations.

"Each hall should determine individual rules on parietals and alcohol violations instead of the University," he added. "They can only accomplish this if the rector has confidence in the J-Board."

Morrissey hall's J-Board has been given additional responsibility concerning disciplinary decisions, according to Dan Buckley, Morrissey's president.

"The J-Board will handle all problems in the hall except those dealing with drugs," he explained.

Stanford's J-Board Chairman, Ed Dropcho, attributes his J-Board's effectiveness to hall members' awareness of their rights concerning disciplinary actions.

"We have given lists of rights on disciplinary actions to all hall members. Even if the rector doesn't inform them what they can do, they'll have some idea of their options," Dropcho revealed.

Jack Hanzel, Zahm's president, stressed responsibilities given the J-Board concerning University violations depend on the blatency of the offense.

"If a guy is caught walking out of the dorm at 3 a.m. with a girl, nothing much will be done. But if the rector goes into a room and sees a girl in bed with a guy, then I think Roemer would hear about it," he explained.

Ten hall J-Boards were used less than three times last year, according to their hall presidents. They revealed various reasons for the limited use of the Boards.

Mark Kaiser, President of Flanner, said Father John Mulcahy does not include the J-Board in disciplinary procedure. "Mulcahy doesn't use the J-Board because he doesn't agree with its policies," he said.

Walsh President, Pat Sheehan, said many students do not know that they have the option of requesting a hearing before the J-Board rather than letting the rector decide on the case.

"The people in the hall do not have a good image of the J-Board," said Jay Nowak, Alumni president. He feels if this changes the J-Board will be used more frequently.

James Roemer, dean of students, has given hall J-Boards more responsibility. Hall presidents feel this responsibility will increase the need of J-Boards.

Howard Hall has not had a J-Board for the past two years, according to Mike Welsh, Howard president.

"We've never had any problems with disciplinary procedures. The hall staff handled rules violation," he added. "We are looking into the possibility of starting one because it would be important for the hall to have one if the new SLC liquor guidelines are passed."

John Sequiera, Cavanaugh president, said, "Cavanaugh has never had a board before and I really don't think one will be helpful now. If more power is handed over to the halls, it could be an important body."

Farley, Breen-Phillips, Grace and Holy Cross are presently organizing their Judicial Boards.

Sequiera said he would like to see a situation where the J-Boards decide if a case should be kept within a hall or sent to the Dean of Students.

HPC considers hall allotments

by Martha Fanning
Staff Reporter

The Hall President's Council discussed this year's hall allotment procedure at a meeting held in Breen-Phillips last night.

Mike Welsh, SLC representative, explained the HPC budget change. "Last Wednesday the Budget Committee met to reevaluate and finalize budgets. At that time the HPC budget was increased from $12,000 to $13,000. A bill of $600 from a loan taken out last year, was immediately paid to the Student Government so the total amount for the council this year is $12,400.

Discussion centered on how the hall allotments would be handled. Elton Johnson, HPC chairman, explained he'd prefer to initiate a procedure that will be carried on from year to year.

For this year, the council decided that each president will submit a budget for their hall with explanations on how the money would be used. "I have records from 1971 on hall budgets which will be sent out to help halls decide on their budget," Johnson stated.

Bob Quakenbush, Executive Coordinator, added "I have last years budget proposals from each hall in the HPC office if anyone needs a point of reference."

The proposals will be given to a committee to be discussed and cut if necessary. When a committee member's hall budget is being considered that individual will not take part in the decision.

Johnson commented "a standing committee could make sure the hall was spending their money, if they were not going to use all of their allotment, perhaps the extra could be reallocated."

Last year several halls didn't use all of their allotment. Stanford Hall president Bob Ryan suggested each hall submit last year's budget allotment as well as a report on how much the hall spent.

Six council members will serve on the HPC Budget committee: Bob Quakenbush; Jay Nowak, Alumni President; Patty Sheehan, Walsh president; Dan Buckley, Morrissey President; Donna Crowley, Farley president; and Dennis Sullivan, Grace president.

Welsh also introduced the issue of Alcohol Guidelines for the halls. "If there is to be any hope to change the present university rules, the halls will have to form guidelines on how they would handle the problem if the present rule was changed," he explained.

Welsh requested that each hall submit a set of guidelines to the HPC within two weeks.

A proposal to have the HPC back one set of guidelines was mentioned by Ryan. "If we're to be a body that means anything, we have to start taking a unified stand," Ryan commented.

"Each hall should give to the HPC their guideline, one of which will be picked and backed by the council," he added.

Another proposal was to have the HPC form their own general guideline from the ones submitted.

After some discussion Johnson summarized the plan decided upon. "Each hall will submit their guideline from which the HPC will form a general plan. The HPC will submit this plan along with the hall guidelines to the SLC."

Matt Cockrell, director of the Ombudsman, explained the improved Campus Mail Service.

"The ombudsman reorganized the Campus Mail Service for Student Union this year. Students can drop off their mail anytime before 9:30 p.m. A person will pick up the mail around 10:00 p.m. and bring it to a box located at the entrance of Alumni Hall. Every afternoon mail from the administration building will also be picked up and brought to Alumni. In the morning, hall mail clerks will pick up the mail from Alumni and deliver it to the hall. The service is free of charge. Mailboxes are located at the North and South Dining Halls, in front of the Knights of Columbus, and in front of LaFortune," he explained.

The HPC decided upon some procedural changes dealing with announcements and speakers. Speakers wishing to appear at a meeting must get in touch with Elton Johnson, Bob Quakenbush or Joanne O'Rourke by the Friday before the meeting.

"This will serve to get them on the agenda and they will receive a set of guidelines for speaking at a meeting," Johnson explained.

Announcements from organizations should also be given to these three members before an upcoming meeting. The HPC has an office located on the ballroom level of LaFortune, in the northeast corner of the building.

The HPC will sponsor a movie Oct. 10 and 11, at O'Laughlin Auditorium. Proceeds will go to the HPC Fund being set up to defray costs of committee activities.

SMC athletic role grows

by Mary Rukavina
Staff Reporter

The St. Mary's athletic program is very much a part of the overall college as evidenced by its growth in the last few years, according to Stevie Wernig, assistant to the vice-president for student affairs. Wernig stated that she believes many factors have contributed to the success and growth of the present program.

Administrative support is the first essential factor to the program, according to Wernig. "One of the first things I did when I came to St. Mary's last year was to request that athletics be handled through an administrative office," Wernig said.

"The student athletes need to know that when they go out to represent the school they have some administrative support," Wernig stated. "They should know someone high up cares about them."

Another important factor according to Wernig, is publicity. "Publicity of the program is essential. You have to let students know what is available for them and hope interest is generated," she said.

A final factor in the success of the SMC athletic program is funding.

"We do not have to worry about division of funds for male athletics," said Wernig, "therefore we are able to fund each team completely with the money that is available through the college."

St. Mary's fields intercollegiate varsity teams in ten sports including tennis, volleyball, basketball and skiing.

Wernig voiced amazement at the ability of SMC to produce large numbers of women to participate in varsity sports. "We are a liberal arts college, primarily interested in academics," she pointed out. "We don't even have a physical education major."

In the past St. Mary's teams have practiced in less than adequate areas, Wernig stated. As an example she noted that the basketball team last year played on a slanted court.

A new recreational facility for St. Mary's is in the planning stages, however, and this new facility will alleviate some of the problems and enhance the growing program, according to Wernig.

The increased athletic interest at St. Mary's has also lead to the formation of an intramural program which will allow more girls to participate in physical activity.

Scholarships for athletics are not in the planning, according to Wernig, because the funds "just aren't available." Wernig stated that St. Mary's will remain primarily an academic institution, with athletics playing just one part in the total college program.

SMC student athletes feel that the athletic program is a healthy one and of high caliber.

Tennis team member Lynn Griffin said, "The caliber of athletes can be attributed to girls who come from backgrounds which exposed them to different sports."

Griffin feels the tennis team is a good example of her statement.

"Many of the girls have played at home competitively," she said, "or have taught at clubs which gives them the experience on which to build a team."

Barb Timm, another tennis team member added, "Many girls on any of the varsity teams are good enough to compete and find a spot on a team of a larger university."

Both Griffin and Timm believe that more intense competition would enhance St. Mary's athletics, and would like to see a revised schedule which includes larger schools.

Notre Dame Needs Affirmative Action

Notre Dame needs Affirmative Action.

Fr. Burtchaell, in his testimony before the Labor Department last week, failed to articulate the particular problems of hiring women and minority professors at Notre Dame. Burtchaell's argument that there are simply not enough qualified women and minorities to go around is a debatable point. But one thing is not debatable -- that Notre Dame suffers from a lack of commitment to Affirmative Action.

Statistics seem to illustrate a lack of concern for women and minority hiring at Notre Dame.

--Less than three percent of the faculty are women. There are no women full professors and only two have been granted tenure.

--The number of women faculty actually decreased from 1973-74 to 1974-75. The Committee on Undergraduate Life in its report on coeducation did not blame this decrease on the lack of available women. The report stated that Notre Dame has not treated its women well once they were hired. The aura of this once all-male institution and the lack of adequate numbers of women on the faculty partly accounts for a high turnover rate.

--The University has 48 ethnic minority faculty, including 15 blacks.

--Listings of women and minority faculty are deceptive. Of the 64 women faculty listed this year, 19 are library employees and seven are classified at "others." These often have no voice in the academic programs of college departments, the faculty senate, etc.

The problem this University has encountered with women and minority faculty is a vicious circle: the University loses these faculty because there are not enough of them to make a difference. Losing these minority faculty then decreases their number in absolute terms.

What commitment means Increasing women and minority faculty cannot be achieved by lip service paid to Affirmative Action. A decision to hire more representative faculty is going to mean a serious financial obligation by the University.

Fr. Burtchaell has said that there are no significant numbers of women and minority members unsuccessfully seeking jobs in universities. What about Ph.D's entering other sectors of the economy? To attract these individuals may require higher faculty salaries across the board. It may require a permanent search committee for Affirmative Action hiring, as Howard Glickstein has proposed.

A greater commitment to Affirmative Action merely begins with hiring greater numbers of women and minorities. It means encouraging upward mobility within university ranks from instructors to deans. It means that each department must make Affirmative Action hiring a prime concern.

Is commitment worthwhile?

Ultimately, the university must decide whether increased hiring of women and minorities is worth the financial expense, as well as the alleged cost in terms of quality education. Fr. Burtchaell has argued that there is a lack of qualified women and minorities, and that universities may be forced by the Federal government to hire unqualified faculty simply because they happen to be women or black or chicano. This alleged "loss in educational quality" would have to be of major proportions to outweigh the gain in value development. At a university that prides itself of forming values of students and has even instituted a "value seminar" for its students, a lack of commitment to Affirmative Action is incongruous.

What makes this lack of commitment even more incongruous is that Fr. Hesburgh spent some 15 years on the Civil Rights Commission, a group that is currently very critical of weak Affirmative Action enforcement in colleges and universities.

Fr. Burtchaell's statements seem to conflict with his inaugural sermon Sept. 14. In his sermon, Burtchaell stressed the revolution in husband and wife roles resulting from the wife leaving home to work. It is important that Notre Dame women in these initial years of coeducation be provided effective "role models" of women who have chosen a career over the traditional housewife role. Without adequate female faculty representation, Notre Dame men might fail to realize that women are just as capable as men in the career working world.

In the same way having more black or chicano or Indian professors is a broadening experience for students, in addition to providing career fulfillment for these minorities.

Fr. Burtchaell's remarks indicate a University policy that seems to contradict many of the ideals and values that Notre Dame has historically stood for: civil rights, value formation, equal opportunity employment. If his statement does indeed signal a slowdown in hiring of women and minorities, we can only express great disappointment in the University.

The Best Sermon

Joe Gill

There are nights when weariness of mind and body clouds a vision of the future, when distortions caused by mental and emotional pains are like sores that just won't heal.

It is during these nights that the candles in the Grotto shimmer in silent comfort, and while standing there, the mind cannot help but turn to God and religion.

Many years attending Catholic schools, going to church on Sunday, receiving sacraments. Many years of knowing priests and vaguely knowing nuns. Many years of praying before tests, hearing sermons and reading gospels. For many years, I was raised, and I lived, in a Catholic atmosphere.

Now and then, I think back and realize that these sermons and gospels and prayers did leave lasting impressions....

But sometimes, something very simple is learned, and for some reason is never forgotten.

When I was in the primary grades, comic books were selling for five cents a copy. Of them, I was a connoisseur. Superman, Batman, Spiderman, and Wonder Woman were extremely familiar names to an avid reader, all of ten years old.

One story at the end of a "Superman" comic book, and replete with picture and dialogue, has been held in memory.

It went something like this:

A few years ago, there was a man living in a large mansion outside of town. He was a very good and kind man, a philanthropist who freely gave money and aid to those in need. He had great musical talent; as he played the piano, he and the music became one and filled the room with serenity. He loved animals, and they reciprocated with wagging tails and joyful barks whenever he appeared. This gentle man, though, was shunned by people.

You see he was very ugly. His face was misshapen, and people would look away from him in repulsion. Because of this uncomeliness, his tremendous love for people went unrequited.

One day, the government advertised a project in which someone would bore to the center of the earth in a rocket. The advertisement stated that the person who volunteered would never return.

And so, this kind-hearted man volunteered, feeling that he had little to live for. He was strapped to the seat, had no good-byes, and no regrets....

The rocket bored for what seemed to him an eternity, but finally it stopped. He opened the hatch and viewed with astonishment a magnificent city underneath the earth.

"Welcome, beautiful one," a voice said. He turned and faced a young woman. Other men and women slowly appeared.

"But I am very ugly," said he.

"No," she responded. "Long ago, our people were blinded by a blast. We have learned to see with our feeling and our hearts. We can see your kindness, you love for others. Come, sit and play the piano for us."

He smiled, sat, and played.

The story was ended, and on the last panel, in black letters upon a yellow background appeared these words: For only when men learn to see with their hearts, as well as with their eyes and ears, will there indeed be Heaven on Earth.

Bowl game money serves as important revenue contributor

by Patrick Cole
Staff Reporter

How much is a bowl of oranges, a bowl of sugar, or a bowl of cotton worth? A few cents a pound?

Not at all. Money is at stake when the Notre Dame football team takes the field on a New Year's Day. Bowl games have become a major source of revenue for the University.

In 1969, the University broke a 45-year ban on postseason football appearances. This was done with the understanding net receipts would go to minority student aid. As a result, the 1970 Cotton Bowl game helped the minority student applicants with $160,000 in aid. Forty-one minority group freshman received Cotton Bowl-funded awards totaling $40,600 that year.

During the past five years, the bowl game revenue has continued to provide funds for the University. According to Edward W. Krause, director of athletics of the University, Notre Dame has received approximately $375,000 from both the 1970 and 1971 Cotton Bowls, approximately 450,000 from the 1973 Orange Bowl and the 1973 Sugar Bowl, and approximately $550,000 from the 1975 Orange Bowl.

However, after bowl related expenses, the net profit is considerably less than the gross income. "The net profit," said Fr. Edmund P. Joyce, Executive Vice-President of the University,

Observer
Insight

"ranged from approximately $200,000 to $325,000."

The income gained from a bowl game does not only go to minority scholarships as in the past. "The bowl games help the University get money," said Krause. The money goes to the general fund of the University and is not used for athletic purposes.

"Why not for athletic purposes? Because Notre Dame is a private school. Therefore, we get extra revenue," Krause explained.

Fr. Joyce emphasized that the University obtains revenue from nationally televised games. "The national networks like ABC set up plans to televise teams. Since we are Notre Dame, the network gives us the maximum number of times a team can be televised—three times in a two year period."

Fr. Joyce said that the University receives about $200,000 for being nationally televised and $160,000 for being regionally televised. When Notre Dame receives a "wild card" national television invitation, this does not count toward the three game limit over two years.

The players on the football team have the primary responsibility of choosing the bowl game. "The team decides," Joyce continued, "but we try to play the best team."

Krause explained how choices were made in the past. "Take the year 1971. We had an invitation to go to the Gator Bowl, but the players didn't want to go. In 1969, we chose to play Texas in the Cotton Bowl because they were ranked number one. We had a shot at the national championship," he stated.

"In 1973, we chose Alabama because they were ranked number one, and as a result, we won the national championship. At any rate, the coaches are anxious to get up the rankings."

After the players vote and the coaches consider their choice, Joyce is involved in the final decision. "Also, the Board of Trustees and maybe Fr. Hesburgh has some say in the final decision," Joyce commented.

A bowl game involves costly preparations. "We have to gather information the team and individual players for a bowl game," said Roger O. Valdiserri, sports information director. "In addition to this, we have to prepare television slides, feature stories on first team players, and supply player and team information to television networks like ABC and CBS."

Valdiserri further stated that two press conferences are conducted prior to the bowl game with the players and coaches. "It's hard to estimate the cost of providing this information. However, Notre Dame spends less than most schools," Valdiserri added.

Included in the cost of a bowl game is player and coaching staff transportation. "For a bowl game," stated Robert M. Cahill, business manager of athletics, "we must charter a plane. This year for the Orange Bowl in Miami, I had to charter a plane, a DC-8, for 223 people. These people include the players, the coaching staff, their wives and children and the administration."

The University must also pay for airline tickets to transport the player to his hometown after the bowl game according to Cahill.

Despite the expenses of a bowl game, the football program reaps a profit. "Football carries all the school expenses. In the end, the University nets a few hundred thousand dollars in profit," Joyce said.

Pesticide bans not to blame for encephalitis

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)

Bans on pesticides such as DDT are not to blame for this summer's outbreak of mosquito-carried encephalitis, Environmental Protection Agency Director Russell Train said Tuesday.

He said EPA has tried to set the record straight on that point, but "it has not deterred some members of Congress from making the same baseless charge on the floor of the House."

Nor has EPA's explanation kept Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz from "spreading the same story on repeated occasions," he said.

Train said DDT was largely abandoned for mosquito control before the 1972 ban because the insects had become resistant to it.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said in a Sept. 26 report that there were 388 confirmed cases and 427 suspected cases of encephalitis in 18 states.

TEACHING JOBS OPEN

With 107 nuclear powered ships now operating and 40 more on the way, the U. S. Navy is the largest operator of nuclear power plants in the world. As the foremost expert in nuclear power, the Navy needs talented instructors at our Nuclear Power Schools.

Instructors in basic science* and nuclear technology are needed. The program is open to both men and women, and applicants must have a BS degree, although postgraduate degrees are preferred.

New instructors receive a direct appointment as a Navy Ensign and five weeks of training and briefing - no boot camp. Starting salary is approximately $10,000 (or more) plus all military benefits, including free dental and medical care, 30 days paid vacation, and unlimited paid sick leave.

Instructors receive approximately $17,000 a year after their fourth year of teaching duty.

Instructors teach officers and enlisted men going through the nuclear power training program at Mare Island, California or Orlando, Florida - No sea duty.

All qualified applicants are personally interviewed by Admiral H. G. Rickover, Director, Naval Reactors.

Senior faculty denied full-time employment

"Despite other considerations," Lyon said, they feel that "to retire one man, while retaining another is tantamount to a public accusation of senility." Requiring all faculty members, regardless of any other consideration, to retire at the same age removes such "an invidious distinction," according to Lyon's sources.

The personal rejection implied in forcing one professor to retire and not another can lead to bitterness and alienation from the University community, it was observed.

Part-time opportunities approved

Rodes then proposed an alternative to the disputed passage, and the Senate voted to accept his substitution, which recommends that the University allow retiring faculty members the opportunity to assume part-time teaching duties. The approved passage thus allows veteran faculty to continue working without hindering the advancement of younger faculty.

Report based on survey

The report's original recommendation was based on the results of a survey of retired faculty members last spring.

That survey, conducted by the Senate's Special Committee on the Retired, revealed that 43 percent of those responding would have liked to continue teaching.

"It is not so much because their retired status is unfulfilling," the report noted, "as that they found work more fulfilling and would have liked to have prolonged it."

"Despite this generally successful adaptation of ND retirees," the report stated, "...the desire by 40-50 percent to carry on teaching or related activities after age 65 must be dealt with."

The report noted that a program of gradual retirement, was favored by respondents for both psychological reasons and economic causes. The process would be permitted "by the recent approval of part-time appointments for a few years following retirement."

The survey was distributed to 81 retired faculty members, of which number 63 replied to questions concerning their morale, income and economic well-being, professional activities, non-professional activities, and unfulfilled aspirations.

The report not noted that some respondents complained of a lack of communication from Notre Dame and contact with ND and other retirees. "Others suggested activities to improve social contact," the report said.

Almost all of the responding retired members said that they were still very much interested in and loyal to Notre Dame, the report noted. "But only 43 percent of the 58 persons who replied to the question...believe that Notre Dame is equally interested in them."

"Several persons expressed specific dissatisfaction with the impersonal, 'mechanical' way in which the retirement ceremony at the annual dinner disposed of 25-45 years of service to Notre Dame," the report stated.

"The summary removal from University mailing lists upon retirement is another irritant," it continued.

Lifestyle of retirees

Asked to characterize the lifestyle allowed by their retirement incomes, 34 of the 61 retirees responding said they were "comfortable." Thirteen claimed that increased costs have forced them to cut back on many items, while seven said they had been forced to eliminate many items altogether.

Seven retired faculty members said their income "no longer covers basic expenses" and they "must use savings to supplement income."

"Specific comments concerning the retirement situation," the report stated, "elicited a number of dignified, restrained complaints. One would like to live out his remaining span 'without the constant stress of worrying how to make ends meet,'" the report said. "Another would like to envision enough income to repair his old house, take an occasional short vacation, and not worry about hospital expenses for himself and his ailing wife," it continued.

"There are so few of these persons, less than a dozen," the report notes. "It would take so little money to solve this problem of a real part of the University community."

Activities of retirees

In the area of professional and non-professional activities, the survey indicated that "overall...the focus of activities has shifted with retirement, but activity level per se remains high. There is an indication," the report noted, "that another shift would occur if University-sponsored programs were extant, both for professional activities and travel."

The report recorded the percentage of retired faculty members involved in professional writing and research, travel abroad and within the U.S., hobbies, community affairs, church activities, and politics.

The unfulfilled needs and aspirations mentioned by retired faculty members closely parallel their attitudes toward their retirement, economic situation, and state of relations with Notre Dame and other retirees.

On the basis of the survey results, the Special Committee listed in its report a number of recommendations to the retirees, the faculty and the administration.

"Organize. Circulate a newsletter. Have social get-togethers," the report advised the retirees. "Almost three-quarters of you...live in South Bend, Mishawaka, or Notre Dame."

The report urged faculty members approaching retirement to utilize the counselling service provided by the Personnel Office. The report also recommends the inclusion of two emeritus members of the faculty in the Faculty Senate and additional voluntary contributions by faculty members to the University pension fund.

The most report's recommendations to the Administration focus on improving Notre Dame's relations with its retired faculty members in the following ways:

--"Assist the retired in organizing and operating a club."

--Give all emeriti the opportunity to receive the Notre Dame Report, Notre Dame Magazine, ND weekly calendar, ND Faculty Manual, and applications for football tickets.

--"Grant permission to each retired person and spouse to audit any course offered by Notre Dame."

"Afford to each retired faculty member the maximum possible opportunity for part-time teaching."

--Guarantee an annual income "not less than $7000, including social security" to each retiree who has served 20 years or more, "and a proportionate amount for those with fewer years of service."

Publish in the November issue of the Notre Dame Report the number of faculty who retired the previous May, their average number of years of service and their average University retirement income.

Lewis-Cavanaugh project

Volunteer program begins

by Mary Mungovan
Staff Reporter

Nine Lewis and Cavanaugh volunteers visited the elderly, the handicapped and the recuperating at Healthwin Hospital last night, launching the first night of the Lewis-Cavanaugh Community Service Project.

Under the direction of Judy Temmerman of Lewis Hall, and Chris Conley of Cavanaugh, approximately forty volunteers from both halls will devote one night a week to this project. The volunteers have been broken up into five groups (one each week night from Sunday to Thursday), with a coordinator for each night to arrange transportation.

Last night's activity was a sing-along in which both students and patients participated. "In the course of talking, singing and even dancing with some of the patients," Conley commented, "volunteers were able to break the ice and begin to get to know the patients."

"In the future, most volunteers will be visiting with the patients on a one-to-one basis," said Temmerman. Don Schlunt, Activities Director for Healthwin, will be matching up volunteers and patients according to interests and will offer suggestions on what to do.

"Some patients just need someone to listen to them or just to be there, while others like to play games or be read to," Conley explained.

Healthwin Hospital provides three types of care for its approximately 100 patients: 1) regular hospital care for the elderly or handicapped unable to see to their own needs, 2) intensive care for the more seriously ill, and

3) "skilled" care for patients suffering from long-term or malignant disease.

The Community Services Director at Cavanaugh and Lewis chose Healthwin for "its convenient location (20531 Daren Rd., South Bend) and their enthusiastic response to last year's volunteers," Conley stated. Last year five volunteers from Cavanaugh and five from Badin (who moved to Lewis) participated in a similar volunteer project at Healthwin one night a week.

Both Conley and Temmerman were pleased with the increased number of volunteers which jumped from ten to forty since last spring. Both attribute much of this year's success to the current Community Services Director, Don Longano.

"This year, thanks to Don, Community Services is really moving," Temmerman stated.

"He really is a good organizer," Conley agreed. "He believes that if you go to people with a project that's already set up, they'll be more responsive."

Community Services is in its second year as a campus-wide organization represented by each hall. Every hall has a community service director and a specific community service project to work on, usually in conjunction with another hall.

Rose Lee Tindall, assistant activities director of Healthwin, commented, "I think this is really great for young people to do."

Bradley: every week his act gets tougher to follow

by Chip Scanlon

When you're a starting member of a National Championship team as a freshman, lead your team in interceptions and wind up as a freshman All-American choice, some people might think there aren't too many thrills left. But don't bother telling that to Luther Bradley because he doesn't have the time to listen.

Everytime Luther steps onto the field he is making his act just a little tougher to follow. It's no wonder when asked about his biggest thrill in his young career he has to ponder before coming up with the answer.

Bradley was thrust into national prominence when he wreaked havoc on Pat Hayden and the 1973 version of the USC Trojans. That regionally televised game will always be remembered by Irish fans. It was then he made two of his nine career interceptions, a total which he seems to add upon with each game.

Luther also managed to bat four passes away from Hayden receivers, force one USC fumble and recover another. His interception total (6) and his passes-broken-up statistic (11) led the 1973 Irish squad. These totals are impressive for a freshman, but Luther continues to rewrite the record book in yet his second Irish campaign.

Add three interceptions to his career total, including one that broke the back of an upset-minded Purdue team, along with 21 tackles and several assists and one can see the lightning pace that Luther is travelling along at. With the Boilermakers pressing early in the fourth quarter on the Irish four yard line, Bradley plucked a ailback pass away from waiting Purdue quarterback Craig Nagel and raced 99 yards for an Irish score.

Not only did it give Notre Dame a quick six and the spark to ignite an offensive surge, it gave Bradley the record for a pass interception run and earned him UPI Back of the Week honors.

His interception against Michigan State and his touchdown saving tackle kept Irish victory hopes alive, unfortunately for only a short duration. The play which saw Luther take a deep angle of pursuit on MSU's Tyrone Wilson, fight off a blocker at the four yard line and then force Wilson out of bounds with a bone crunching hit was characteristic of the way Bradley performs everytime he steps onto the field.

With all these highlights to choose from, it's no wonder Luther has to think twice before answering what was his greatest thrill. "Winning the National Championship was the greatest thrill of my athletic career," observed Bradley. "It's not something you do every year."

Experience along with what Luther referred to as "a little bit of luck" is the difference between this year's team and the 1973 championship team. "This year, despite having a lot of talent, there is still a lot of inexperience," said Bradley. "But with each game we're gaining more experience. We'll have it all together for USC."

Luther admits he is not yet confident at his new cornerback position. The transition brings with it different assignments and more responsibility. It is a credit to Bradley's athletic ability that Coach Devine switched him to cornerback "to get Luther in-involved in defending the run as well as the pass. Bradley's 21 tackles show he is getting more involved, much to the consternation of Irish opponents.

But this performance still doesn't leave Luther content or confident. "With each game I'm gaining more confidence, but I still worry about getting burnt for the big play," he confided. "At cornerback I can't play as tight as I did at free safety, but in a couple of games I'll have more confidence," he predicted.

At present Notre Dame is without the services of eight players who have seen regular duty at one time or another this year. But Luther feels that the Irish can come back this week despite their depleted corp. "Every team has its up and down weeks and obviously last week was ours," Luther explained. "The important thing was that we've learned from the MSU game and we rebound this Saturday."

One of the main reasons Luther chose Notre Dame was so he could compete against the best teams in the nation. "Notre Dame has the prestige, they compete against the best teams in the country and have a shot at the National Championship every year," observed Luther.

This year, despite the upset and costly injuries, things will be no different. Especially if number 20, Luther Bradley, has anything to say about it.

Club Sports Summary

Notre Dame's Rugby Team took two from Kent State last Saturday morning at Stepan Field. In the first game, the Irish "B" team outclassed Kent 34-0. In the second game, the Irish "A" team took command in the second half and won 18-3.

The first half of the "A" game was very competitive with Notre Dame leading at the half by a score of 4-3. Mike Holamn made the try for the four Irish points while Kent State's three points came on a penalty kick by Jim Tersek. Both teams had ample chances but they were turned back at the last moment.

The second half was a different story however, as Notre Dame dominated play. Tries by Kevin Deegan, Sean McDonald and Mike Dacey, coupled with a conversion by Chet Zwalick, added 14 points to the Notre Dame total while Kent State was held scoreless. Notre Dame's final margin of victory was 18-3.

The "B" game was not much of a contest as the Irish squad had their own way throughout. George Spiegel, Mark Jencko, Bill McHugh, Pinky Faherty, Pat Keough, and Tony Mandiola all made tries for Notre Dame. Spiegel, in fact, scored twice. Eric Snider made three conversions and the Irish won going away, 34-0.

The Notre Dame Lacrosse Club opened their fall season last Saturday with an 8-6 victory over the N.D. Alumni at Cartier Field.

The Alumni jumped out to an early two goal lead but the club came back with four straight goals on scores by Bob Thibodeau, Thad Naquin, Jay Williams and J.P. Marchand. However Bob Morin, the leading scorer in ND history, tied the score at four by scoring the next two goals.

The third period was all club as Rick Kresock and Thibodeau gave Coach Rich O'Leary's current team a two goal lead going into the final period.

The Alumni came back again with two more goals but at the halfway mark of the period, Mark Flanagan scored the winner for the club. Mark Connelly added an insurance goal to wrap it up for the Irish.

The Notre Dame soccer club came out of a grueling stretch yesterday when they finished their fourth game in five days. The club earned a split, winning two over the weekend, then dropping contests Monday and Tuesday.

Friday night, the Irish defeated Purdue, 2-1, in Lafayette. Jim Donovan scored an unassisted goal and Kevin Buckley scored the game-winner on a breakaway after receiving a pass from Pat Fleed.

Notre Dame played an excellent defensive game on Saturday, defeating DePaul 1-0. The lone goal was scored by Tom Dernadin with Pat Flood notching another assist.

Monday ND dropped a 2-1 decision to St. Francis. They dominated the second half, but could not get a score until a minute and a half left in the game when Bill Hagerty tallied.

Yesterday the Irish were just outclassed as Goshen college shut them out, 6-0.

This past weekend the Notre Dame Sailing Team journeyed to the University of Michigan for the Cary Price Regatta. The competition was fierce with Eastern powerhouses Navy and Tufts and strong Midwest teams from Ohio Wesleyan and host Michigan present. Notre Dame finished in 6th place. 1st through 6th places were very close with only 7 points separating those positions.

The final results showed Tufts in first with 69 points, Ohio Wesleyan in second with 70 points, and University of Michigan in third with 72 points. Also, the women's team was at Ohio Wesleyan sailing in the MacDonald's Cup Women's Regatta. The final results showed the Notre Dame women in 6th while Denison University won the event.

The next meeting of the club will be this Wednesday at 6:30 in room 204 of the Engineering Building.

As an estimated crowd of 100 looked on, St. Mary's Tennis team defeated Notre Dame's Women's Tennis team 6-3 on St. Mary's courts. In what both coaches described as a "bad day for everyone," St. Mary's team, recently ranked third in the state, took five of their six wins in straight sets. In singles competition, there were two close matches. Freshman Kam Amato, playing third singles for Notre Dame, won 6-2, 0-6, 6-2 over St. Mary's third player Susan Tyroll.

In doubles competition, Notre Dame's first doubles team, Mary Shukis and Mary Jo Cushing won in a close match over St. Mary's first team Jean Barton and KeKe Brogger. They took the match in three sets; 3-6, 6-4, 7-6 and won the tie breaker 5-3. In the other close match, Anne Houser and Sheila Finneran, St. Mary's second doubles team, won their match over Anne Kelly and Sue Flanagan, Notre Dame's second team, by a score of 3-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Reds, Boston win playoffs

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox in the American League and the National League Cincinnati Reds won by identical 5-3 scores Tuesday night to sweep their playoff series and move into the World Series.

Boston relief pitcher Dick Drago killed the Oakland A's last hope for a victory with one pitch and Carl Yastrzemski contributed two hits and a brilliant fielding play as the Red Sox completed their sweep over the world champion A's in the best-of-five-game series.

Cincinnati pinch-hitter Ed Armbrister's sacrifice fly drove in the go-ahead run in the 10th inning as the Reds triumphed over the Pittsburgh Pirates to win the National League pennant.

Drago replaced Red Sox starter Rick Wise with one out in the eighth inning after the A's had scored two runs to close within 5-3. His first pitch to Joe Rudi was turned into a double play and the A's three-year reign as world champions of baseball was virtually dead.

Boston took a 5-1 lead in the top of the eighth thanks to Tovar's error at second base. With one out and Fisk on second, Petrocelli lined to third base but Tovar dropped the throw to second which would have doubled up Fisk. Dwight Evans was intentionally walked and Cecil Cooper singled to score Fisk.

Wise got the victory in his first post-season appearance, while Holtzman took the loss, his second in the three-game series. Wise worked 71-3 innings, allowed six hits, walked three and struck out two.

Holtzman was charged with four runs, three of them earned, in his 4 2-3 innings. He allowed seven hits.

The victory gave Boston its first league championship since 1967 and sent the Red Sox home to Fenway Park where they will open the World Series on Saturday against Cincinnati.

The Sox pelted A's starter

Ken Holtzman, who was pitching with just two days rest, and two relievers for 11 base hits and played flawless defense before suffering a slight fielding breakdown in the eighth.

It was a team victory for Cincinnati in a game that finished a duel of home runs and a record-equaling strikeout performance by Pittsburgh rookie John Candelaria and a last-of-the-ninth Pirates' rally that sent the game into extra innings.

The Reds gained their seventh National League pennant in the 99-year history of the franchise with a pair of runs off 35-year-old Pittsburgh reliever Ramon Hernandez in the top of the 10th.

Slager to start Sat.

Rick Slager has been designated the number 1 quarterback for this Saturday's contest with North Carolina in Chapel Hill, N.C. Slager started the first three games for the Irish and replaced last week's starter Joe Montana in the second half against Michigan State.

The long injury list has forced a number of changes in the Irish's starting lineup for the game against the Tar Heels. Sophomore Terry Eurick will replace sophomore Al Hunter at halfback; freshman Jerome Heavens will start in place of freshman Jim Browner at fullback; freshman Chris Haines will replace sophomore Ted Burmeier at split end. Burmeier will prepare for both offensive and defensive duty; junior Tony Zappala will start instead of sophomore Ross Browner at defensive end; freshman Bob Golic will replace junior Tom Eastman at middle guard; freshman Steve Heimkreiter will replace sophomore Doug Becker at outside linebacker and sophomore Tim Simon will start at free safety in place of Randy Harrison.

Harrison, Ross Browner, and Becker have ankle injuries, Hunter a back injury, and Jim Browner has an injured knee.
