CLC asks for women residents in new dorm

by Michael Onufrak
Senior Copy Editor

The Campus Life Council last night passed a resolution submitted by Keenan rector Fr. Richard Conyers calling for the administration to house women in the two new student dormitories being constructed in between the library and the towers. The proposal, which also recommended the towers remain male resident halls, was passed to "facilitate the increase of the female population with the least amount of difficulty and trauma of transition."

The resolution was generated by the presentation of a document drawn up by women who are members of the Hall President's Council. The document, which has been circulated to other dorms through the remainder of the HPC, lists several reasons why the new facilities should be residences for women. Among the reasons listed were security, potential social implications, and expense.

Breen-Phillips Hall President Dale Robinson described the document as a "communicative device for eventual affirmative action" regarding the two new dorms. The document is the result of a campus-wide rumour which, if it were found to be factual, would place men in the new dorms and women in Flanner Hall.

Flanner Hall President Don Ciancio said last night that he is aware of the rumour and "doesn't like it."

"If this rumour does turn out to be fact I think the administration will have ignored the feelings of the men of Flanner."

Our hall government has put a lot of time and money into the hall and we feel our facilities are second to none. We have the best party room on campus, a super game room and a weight room; all of which I would hate to give up," Ciancio said.

"Besides these tangible things, I think our hall is beginning to develop a tradition which will someday rival those of older dorms on the South Quad. If we all have to pack up and leave next year that tradition will be destroyed," Ciancio added that he had first heard of the rumour from HPC members and Flanner rector Bro. Peter Mahoney.

According to several sources the rumour has spread from a conversation between HPC chairman Ellen Dorney and University President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh. The rumour suggests that in order to cut down on maintenance costs in the towers, women would be housed in Flanner and men in the new dorms. At press time last night Hesburgh could not be reached and Dorney refused comment.

According to Assistant Vice-President for Student Affairs Fr. Gregory Green no official decision regarding the new dorms has been made as yet. Green did admit, however, that the dorms are currently being designed as unisex facilities.

"The new dorms are being built in such a way so they may house either men or women depending on the administration's decision," Green said. That decision should come some time after the upcoming

Gold drops, dollar gains strength

NEW YORK (AP) - The government's plan to cut inflation and support the dollar did what it was meant to yesterday, as the dollar rose and gold prices fell. But stock prices fell amid fears that the plan means higher interest rates.

Economists generally reacted favorably to the program announced Saturday, but many said it could push the United States deeper into a recession. Some said it might not be strong enough to cure the dollar's chronic slide.

A trader on the New York Commodity Exchange, the nation's largest market for gold futures contracts, said the program "doesn't look like a longterm solution" although "it will have a short-term control of the money supply effect." Prices of silver, grain and soybean futures fell on commodity markets in reaction to the actions by the Federal Reserve.

In an unusual Saturday night news conference, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul R. Volcker announced a 1 percent increase in the discount rate - the rate at which member banks borrow money from the central bank. The discount rate now is at a record 12 percent. The Fed also increased the amount of reserves member banks must keep

The actions are designed to slow economic expansion and inflation by making it more difficult for banks to lend and more expensive for people to borrow.

The moves sent the dollar up strongly in early trading in Europe yesterday and the surge held through the day.

Gold prices, which tend to move in the opposite direction as the dollar, closed at $374 a troy ounce in London and $372.50 in Zurich. On Friday, gold closed at $385.50 an ounce in both cities after hitting a midday record of $444 Tuesday.

Observer analysis

Experts disagree on gold trends

by Mary Fran Callahan

In times of economic bleakness, gold apparently shines all the brighter. After gold reached $444 an ounce last week campus experts disagreed on what this rapid increase indicates.

"The price of gold was fixed for years at $35 an ounce," commented Vincent DeSantis, professor of History, "until we went off the gold standard in the thirties and again in the seventies. When nations went off the standard, fluctuations began."

However, never before has the price of gold scaled the awesome peaks reflected in last week's figure. "The price is a reflection of uncertainty in the world," observed Bernard Kilbride, professor of Finance & Business Economics. "The foreigners see the malaise of the domestic situation and are concerned."

And why does concern

prompt binges of gold purchasing? Offering the anthropological perspective on the precious metal, Leo Despres, chairman of Sociology and Anthropology, commented, "Over the centuries, due to its scarcity and ornamental value, gold has held its value. Given that fact, people think it will continue to retain its value."

Despres compared gold to diamonds. Both have been used traditionally for quality jewelry; people invest in them for their precious qualities.

"Everybody's rushing into gold," Kilbride commented, "particularly small investors. The price will go back."

Many small investors undoubtedly turn to large corporations for financial advice. A corporate executive from Merrill Lynch, Inc. - a national stockbroker which deals with gold investments - said he wouldn't buy gold. "Personally, I would consider it to be an extremely treacherous investment. Those that buy it with the intention of selling it for a quick profit stand to lose. However, this is not necessarily company policy."

A Sept. 23 New York Times article speculated that the rapid increase of gold prices may be likened to the economic atmosphere prior to the Crash of '29. However, DeSantis did not view the current gold situation as a prelude to depression.

"People are buying gold as they might buy wheat, bananas or oil. It's just another commodity. Yet, a bar of gold is viewed as having more intrinsic value than some bushel of wheat."

The Merrill Lynch executive disagreed, "The country's economy is clearly in a crisis state. Gold is mirroring it."

One thing is certain. The darker the economy gets, the more enticing the glitter of gold.

Hesburgh reaffirms N.D. tenure rules, criteria

by Dan Letcher
Senior Staff Reporter

University President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh told the Notre Dame faculty yesterday in Washington Hall that there have been no tenure rule changes.

During his annual report, Hesburgh said that the rules and criteria are well spelled out in the faculty handbook this semester and remain unchanged. Tenure criteria -- and, specifically, standards used in judging research achievements among faculty members -- has been a major topic of concern to the faculty since early last year.

Hesburgh said the appointment stage of the tenure process is the most important part of the tenure process. He advised that careful considerations be taken at the appointment stage.

"If someone is appointed and it is wrong, this is where things go haywire," Hesburgh said. According to Hesburgh, teaching, research and service are the three most important considerations made for tenure. "Teaching is the most important area but if the University is to achieve 'excellence' then members of the community must themselves be excellent," Hesburgh stated.

He informed the 200 faculty members present of his greatest goal, "I would like to help create a great Catholic university known for its academic excellence."

In today's world, the Catholic university is the exception rather than the rule Hesburgh said. He went on to cite the world-wide decline of Catholic institutions for higher learning.

Hesburgh explained that Notre Dame is aspiring to become a

Carter designates Leif Erickson Day

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The president of the Leif Ericson Society says he thinks "eventually they'll do away with Columbus Day." "You can't have two guys discovering the same thing," insists Ivar Christensen, who says he received a proclamation from President Carter last week designating this Tuesday as Leif Ericson Day. "I was surprised how much the president really knew about our Viking hero," Christensen said. "It was the first time we've had some recognition from the top."

Youth suffers critical injury during charity concert

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) - A 16-year-old youth was in critical condition yesterday with a stab wound he suffered after "bedlam" broke out among bottle throwing youths during a charity rock concert. Thirty-seven people were arrested following the violence Sunday. The disturbance occurred at Williams Field shortly after a concert to benefit cerebral palsy victims got under way and reached a peak after 30 police officers attempted to clear the field. Seven officers were injured, none seriously.

Mother pleads insanity in children's murders

SEATTLE (AP) - A 25-year-old woman threw her two young sons to their deaths from the Pasco-Kennewick Bridge into the icy Columbia River Feb. 5 in an effort to save their souls, her lawyer told a jury yesterday. Tanya Adams of Pasco cried as J.D. Evans described opening statements to the King County Superior Court jury how the "insane and delusional" woman killed her children. Mrs. Adams is charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of her sons, Ryan, 2 1/2, and Christopher, 1 1/2. The double-murder trial was moved from Pasco to Seattle because of extensive publicity. He said she "first had decided to freeze them (the boys) in the snow outside but one of the boys started crying." Mrs. Adams pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

ND Student Legal Services receives funds from Student Government

by Tom Koegel

Notre Dame Student Legal Services has begun another year of legal aid to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, the first year with funding from Student Government.

Kathleen Kearney, Student Legal Services Division Director, noted that "The usual cases we handle are landlord-tenant problems, traffic accidents, and small-claims court cases."

There is a financial need restriction for eligibility, but almost all qualify. The only other qualification is that those applying sign a release form.

All cases are handled by second and third year law students in the Notre Dame Law School, and are supervised by a member of the Indiana Bar, John Ennis, a Notre Dame Law graduate. Under Indiana law, the law students have the power of an attorney when supervised by a member of the bar, so they are protected by law from being forced to reveal anything a student client has told them, under the attorney-client privilege.

"We are for the most part the same as attorneys," said Kearney. "We have even taken out malpractice insurance, although we hope we won't need it."

The Student Legal Service is just one of the divisions of the Notre Dame Legal Aid and Defender Association, in which Notre Dame Law students work in various communities to get experience in the legal profession, and class credit also.

It is very simple for a student to get aid from Student Legal Services. When a student applies for help in the ND-SLS office, a student intern will take all the information on the case, will give counsel, and if necessary research the problem for precedent. If the case actually goes to court, the intern will present the case in court, with the assistance of the supervising attorney.

One of the few types of cases that Student Legal Services cannot handle is any sort of fee-generating case, where an attorney would normally get a portion of a settlement for his

Furuhashi announces MBA stats

The Master's in Business Administration (MBA) program at the University of Notre Dame has enrolled 172 students this fall, according to Usaku Furuhashi, associate dean of the College of Business Administration. This figure includes 84 first-year and 65 second-year students as well as 23 students in the combined MBA-JD program with the Law School.

Furuhashi said 18 of the second-year students were spending the fall semester in England in the University's MBA London Program, headed by Dr. James F. Gaertner.

Ninety-nine undergraduate institutions, 28 states and 11 foreign countries are represented, with foreign students comprising 15 percent of the student body. Twenty-two percent of the students are women.

Erratum

Due to an editing error, The Observer incorrectly spelled the name of Saint Mary's Dean of Students Kathleen Rice in yesterday's edition. Also incorrect was the name of the new addition to the engineering building. The caption beneath yesterday's picture should have read "Fitzpatrick," not "Fitzgerald."

On controversial issues

Pope reaffirms traditional stands

WASHINGTON (AP) - The American people - starving for simple truths and spiritual heroes - will miss Pope John Paul II.

But in his absence, the debates he joined on his American tour will rage, almost certainly unabated by his unyielding endorsements of the traditions of the Roman Catholic Church.

While captivating millions with his love and his soft-spoken charm, the Pope was staunch in opposition to special changes that have changed Catholic practice, if not policy, in the United States.

Birth control, divorce and the role of women in his church are touchy issues, on which the Pope showed no inclination toward change.

The Catholic ban on birth control is almost certainly the most widely disregarded of its precepts in the United States.

Celibacy is a difficult remedy for many Catholics. An Associated Press-NBC News poll indicates that 76 percent of the nation's 49-million Catholics believe one can use artificial methods of birth control - the pill, or contraceptive devices - and still be a good Catholic.

This widespread violation may appear minor, but it is symptomatic of a steady erosion in active support of Christianity's oldest church.

The ban on divorce is another divisive church dictum that causes anguish to practicing Catholics. The AP-NBC poll, conducted in late September, indicates that 63 percent of all Catholics believe in divorce, even where children are involved. The polling shows American Catholics believe by a 53 percent to 40 percent margin that priests should be allowed to marry.

But the thorniest and most volatile of the issues facing the Catholic Church in the United States is the secondary role accorded women in church activities.

U.S. Catholics are evenly split on the question of women priests. Forty-six percent favor a shift in church policy while 48 including the priesthood.

Many Americans will treasure the small, special moments - his pauses to greet the demanding throngs, his exuberant affection for the handicapped, his embracing love of children.

But the affection the United

"...76 percent of the nation's 49-million Catholics believe one can use artificial methods of birth control or contraceptive devices..."

percent are opposed, a statistically insignificant margin.

Thus, nothing could have been more dramatic within U.S. Catholic circles than the unexpected challenge to Pope John Paul II, by a ranking American nun, that he admit women into all ministries of the church,

States feels for the leader of the world's Catholics is not likely to ease the conscience of the young Catholic wife who wants to work a few years before starting a family, or that of the priest who unhappily fell in love, or of the nun who yearns to become a priest.

SMC Student Assembly allots student activities funds

by Mary Kay Leydon

The allocation for campus clubs and organizations made by the Saint Mary's Student Assembly Sunday night were greeted yesterday with mixed emotions by the various organizations.

Most of the representatives said that the method of allocations were fair; however some clubs felt that the funds given were insufficient for achieving their goals.

The SMC Sociology Club was disappointed by the allocation. Margaret Dimond, an officer of the club, said, "We minimized the budget and requested exactly what we needed; we will appeal the decision."

The members of the SMC

Chemical Society were also disappointed with the results of the allocations. Jissica Benett, the club's vice-president said, "The amount of money is not enough to fund the activities of our club." Because many chemical corporations are not within the immediate vicinity, more money is needed to travel to these corporations, she said. The club will also appeal the decision.

The Neighborhood Roots Organization was also not pleased with the decision. They were, however, able to tap alternative sources of income.

Sheila Wixtead, the Treasurer of the Student Assembly said, "If the organizations were not happy with the money allocated to them, their appeals would be reviewed; however, the purpose of the help given is not to hand everything to the clubs, it is only to assist them." Representatives of the Committee for Alcohol Education Program and the World Hunger Coalition were unavailable for comment. The Notre Dame-Saint Mary's Right to Life Organization declined to comment.

Theater group adds Hamlet performances

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theater announces two additional performances of Hamlet due to popular demand. The extended run now includes performances tonight and tomorrow, as well as the Thursday, Friday and Saturday previously scheduled.

Tickets are $4 for General Admission and $3 for students, faculty and staff. Performances begin at 8 p.m., except on Thursday, when the show will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Hamlet, directed by Dr. Reginald F. Bain, was quite successful over the weekend. The production features costumes designed by Mrs. Diana Hawfield, an expert in that field. Hawfield and her assistants have designed 44 costumes in all, giving the audience the flavor and color of the Elizabethan period.

Hawfield is currently in her fourth year of teaching in the Cooperative Department of Speech and Drama, and formerly taught at Lynchburg College in Virginia after completing her

M.A. at U.N.C. at Chapel Hill. Mrs. Hawfield has also directed and designed costumes for Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors and portrayed Big Mama in Cat on a Hot Tin Roof.

Risking financial disaster

ISO carries on with activities

By Kathryn Casey

In spite of possible financial disaster, the International Students Organization here on campus will carry on with two activities within the next two weeks.

According to Fr. Thomas Tallarida, director of the ISO, these two activities alone will deplete the $200 which Student Government has allotted to the ISO for its year's expenses.

"Money will disappear very quickly in activities that concern not just foreign students but students on campus as well," Tallarida said.

Tallarida has submitted an appeal to the Board of Commissioners requesting more money. He explained that the ISO has over 380 members, many of whose activities fees are being spent on projects with which they are not involved. Last year the ISO received $1500 from the student government to sponsor cultural activities for foreign students. The ISO does not receive money from the University, Tallarida pointed out.

According to Student Body President Bill Roche, the budget hearings are a two-step process which allows for change. After the first draft is published, students have the opportunity to voice their opinions. Last week's budget proposal is tentative. Roche said, and there is no reason for panic. He said that if the ISO can pose a convincing argument for an increase in funds, the Board of Commissioners can alter the budget.

Roche said that the date for the second hearing is tentative, but should be held sometime next week.

The first of the two ISO sponsored activities will be a picnic held tomorrow from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the home of Notre Dame's President of the Host Family Association. The picnic will enable foreign students representing 50 countries to become acquainted with one another and with Notre Dame students who have studied abroad through programs sponsored by the University or any other academic institution.

Tallarida expressed his hope that the picnics will discourage foreign students from falling into cliques. He said that American students who have studied abroad can understand and help with transitional problems of foreign students.

The second activity will be a traditional Chinese musical presented by the Youth Goodwill Mission of the Republic of China. Composed of 16 college students, it will perform in Washington Hall on October 15 as part of a 50-day tour of the U.S.

The drama will begin with

"Drum Dances" featuring seven drums. The students from Taiwan will perform the Surf-riding drum dance, the Flower Drum Dance of Feng Yang, and the Peaceful Drum Dance.

The group appeared here in 1977 as part of the International Festival and is sponsored this year by the Taiwan Television Company. Admission to the performance is free.

Student Activities will sponsor a dinner for the Youth Goodwill Mission at the Ramada Inn. The reception in LaFortune Student Center after the show, open to all Notre Dame students will be at the expense of the ISO. The ISO will also pay for the picnic tomorrow.

Players need volunteers

The Notre Dame Student Players are looking for individuals interested in becoming involved in their fall production of "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off!"

Especially needed are volunteers to aid with lighting, scene painting and publicity. No experience is necessary. Interested persons should contact the Student Union, on the second floor of LaFortune.

Volunteers support educations

Editor's Note: This is the second part in a three part series. Part three will follow tomorrow.
by Kit Bernardi

One of the main concerns of the Volunteer Services is to educate. Many Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students participate in volunteer organizations involved in one form of education or another. Some of these groups include Alpha Phi Omega, The Primary Day School, Head Start, The Neighborhood Study Help Program, MECHA and Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

Alpha Phi Omega is a national organization with chapters across the country. The co-ed fraternity is concerned in the South Bend area with the fund-raising and publicity for Sister Marita's Primary Day School in South Bend. The Primary Day School was founded by Sr. Marita as a special educational institution for children and adolescents who have failed in the South Bend Community School System.

Once they attend Sr. Marita's school, the students are returned to the community school system. This year there are 35 students at the school ranging from second grade through sixth.

President Dan Rauch described the 40 SMC/ND volunteers service in the school as "a big help" to students, "giving them a little bit of special attention." The volunteers also aid Sr. Marita with maintenance of the school.

The Alpha Phi Omega organization holds a special fund raiser for the school - the "Ugly Man" on Campus Contest held during An Tostal. The organization also raises funds through sponsoring Shakespeare readings on football weekends. Alpha Phi Omega also sponsors the Blood Drive on campus in October.

Head Start is a child developmental program designed to give pre-school children from economically deprived backgrounds the education, medical care, and social services they need in order to begin school. Head Start also includes parental education. The president of the organization is Rosemary Calandra.

The Neighborhood Study Help Program (NSHP) involves a one-to-one tutoring service for 250 elementary children in thirteen centers in the South Bend Community. The 200 SMC/ND tutors receive transportation to and from the centers by the NSHP two times a week to "provide academic and emotional support for the kids," according to John Sax, president of the NSHP. Programs the NSHP are involved in now include a Spanish bilingual program and a program set up to aid the Vietnamese Boat People.

MECHA stands for the organization entitled Movimiento Estudiantil Chicanos de Aztlan. MECHA's activities involve the tutoring of Mexican American children "having deficiencies in school because they speak predominantly Spanish," explained President Margarita Garcia. MECHA provides direct aid to children at El Campito, a day-care center and LA Casa Center, a school for migrant workers' children. Both schools are located in South Bend.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters involves a strictly one-to-one relationship between a SMC/ND student and child in South Bend. The students visit their little brother or sister once a week and engage in an activity of interest to both. The purpose of the Big Brother/Big Sister relationship is to "show needed affection," according to President Jim Martin. The organization also sponsors grown up activities such as field trips, parties, and sports tournaments which "reinforce volunteer relationships."

great Catholic university and that "the University has the chance to become what it wants to be." We have a lay board and the spirit today which can lead us to becoming a great university, maybe the greatest in the world," Hesburgh asserted.

To become a great university, one not only needs great spirit but great financial backing. According to Hesburgh, upon the completion of the "Campaign for Notre Dame", the University will be about 12th in total endowments for private universities.

He also said this is one reason Notre Dame will be able to compete with other schools for researchers. In the area of research, Hesburgh noted that the recently completed addition to the engineering building will enhance research ability. He also told the audience that the last four years has seen an increase in outside funding for educational and research programs. "We are now receiving 9.3 million dollars for these programs; this is very good," Hesburgh said.

Budgetary topics such as endowments, building costs and faculty salaries were spoken on by Hesburgh. "I must say salaries are one of my primary concerns when looking at the budget," he said.

When compared with nine other universities, Notre Dame's 60 percent salary change over the last seven years ranks second among major universities, according to Hesburgh.

However, in the area of total compensation, Notre Dame's average of 26,500 ranks eighth. "We are catching up but not quickly enough," he said.

Although Notre Dame is not a financial heaven, if it is to become a great university, "we must become a spiritual oasis in a world that is so often in moral and intellectual disarray."

Hesburgh defined a great Catholic university as a "friendly crossroads" where all men may meet and discuss the problems of our time in friendly dialogue.

A great university must be "closed to none and open to all," Hesburgh said.

He cited statistics which showed that some but not great progress has been made in the hiring of women and special minority groups. According to Hesburgh limited pools to draw from is the main reason that only small gains have been made.

Hesburgh also spoke of his recent chairmanships on federal committees and announced that he will be serving as chairman of the newly formed national committee on immigration and refugees. Secretaries of labor, HEW and Commerce, Secretary of State and Senator Ted Kennedy will also serve on this committee.

Weather fails to dampen spirits Oktoberfest proves successful

by Cece Baliles

This year's Saint Mary's Oktoberfest and Biergarten, held outside for the first time, was very successful, despite the bad weather, according to Lisa Fulks, chairman of the committee.

Fulks was pleased that so many students showed up for the Biergarten. She commented that "the bad weather almost worked in our favor since the beer tent was very crowded." Next year she said she hopes to have two beer tents since it was so popular. The tents will be connected with music hooked up to each tent since "it was difficult to hear the music sometimes through all of the noise," Fulks said.

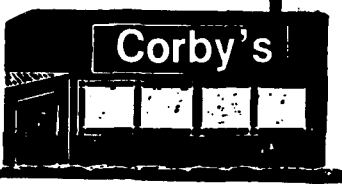

Fulks also remarked that the food tent attracted large crowds. This year students sold hot pretzels and other foods.

There were no major problems with security, according to Fulks and Anthony Kovatch, the director of security at Saint Mary's.

"A keg of beer was stolen, and several people crawled into the beer tent, but other than that there were no major incidents," Fulks added. Kovatch commented that he thought that the outdoor Biergarten was a "great idea" and that everything went according to plans.

Fulks said that she hopes the Oktoberfest will be held outside in the future since it more closely resembles the one in Munich.

seasons with Baltimore, Weaver has managed the O's to six division championships and four World Series, and he didn't always have the best talent money could buy (Take that George Steinbrenner!). He has also averaged over 100 wins a year during that span while having the free agent draft scratch from his rosters the likes of Don Baylor, Bobby Grich, Reggie Jackson and Mike Torrez.

These two teams have something that sports fans of any degree love-character. The Pirates and Orioles are 25-man families, and each one of them contributed significantly during the regular season. Neither team depends on one or two big hitters or super pitchers to do the job. Their character is highlighted by real people, not big-headed athletes, like Willie Stargell, the father-figure, who passes out stars for standout performances, and like catcher Rick Dempsey who performs in the Orioles' dugout, leading the cheers of the fans along the right field foul line, spelling out O-R-I-O-L-E-S with his body.

What we have here, not just we Oriole fans, or we Pirate fans, or even we baseball fans, but we sports fans, are the makings for the best World Series in recent memory. It doesn't have to go seven games to be great. Win or loose, both teams have done great things for baseball during this era of big heads, big bucks and big cities.

The way I see this, the Orioles could take the series in five games, but will more likely stretch it to six. Baltimoreans will be eager for a sixth game to show their support for the team which has recently been rumored off to Washington with new owner Edward Bennett Williams. Pittsburghers (what do you call a person from Pittsburgh, a Pittsburchian or a Pittsburcher?) are in no danger of losing their team, but they are just as hungry for the return of the World Series championship.

If this series fails to live up to its billing, a lot of sports writers will be eating crow.

.. Pirates

But, though the faces have changed, the situation is remarkably similar.

In 1971, the Orioles strength came from pitcher's mound as they rode the arms of four 20-game winners. (You heard right - four on the same team in the same year!) Mike Cuellar, Pat Dobson, Dave McNally and Palmer made Orioles heavy favorites to whip the boys from Pittsburgh. Some were even saying they would only need four games.

The Pirates, on the other hand, relied on the lumber. Clemente, Stargell, Al Oliver and Dave Cash had all done fantastic things with their bats that season and would have to continue to do so if the Pirates were to stand a chance of knocking off Baltimore. Inconsistency on the mound looked to be Pittsburgh's biggest obstacle.

Well, to make a long story short, the Pirates hit the ball as expected, but much to the surprise of everyone -- especially the Orioles -- the Pittsburgh pitchers were more than equal to the task. Blass won two (including a 2-1 decision in game seven), Nelson Briles won another and Kison, a baby-faced reliever who had not seen that much time during the season, came on in the third inning of game three to pitch seven scoreless innings and get his first major league victory.

And guess who's starting game one for the Pirates tonight? Yep -- and he's still as baby-faced as ever. The only difference is that his arm and his mound savvy are eight years older. Oh, yes, and he's shaving now, too.

I suppose now would be a good time to go over things like line-ups and batting averages but, why bother? The only people who read that kind of stuff are baseball purists and die-hard fans. . .

Wich has been my point all along.

This series isn't only for people who live in Baltimore or Pittsburgh. You don't have to read every page of every issue of The Sporting News to get excited about this one. This series is for everyone. It's like the pick-up softball games played after dinner at the annual company picnic. It doesn't really matter who wins or loses; it's just too much fun to miss.

Unless, of course, you happen to be from Pittsburgh or Baltimore. Then the game takes on an added meaning. Then winning and losing is important. Very much so.

Obviously the Orioles are favored and they should be. They had the best record in baseball this year and their pitching staff recorded a most impressive ERA.

In fact, some are saying the series won't go six games and I guess I'd have to agree. . .

Because I think the Pirates are going to win it in five.

Don't cloud the issue with all those statistics about which left-handed hitters can't hit right-handed pitchers or whatever. When the Bucco Bats are boomin' it matters little who's on the mound.

But just to be safe, you probably wouldn't want to bet on this series. On paper, the teams are too even; they match up too well. Besides, why sweat it out? Just sit back, grab a hunk of apple pie and enjoy.

Opposing Palmer in the second game of the Series will be ex-American Leaguer Bert Blyleven, who won 12 games and pitched the pennant clincher for the Pirates.

Weaver will switch back to the southpaw strategy for Game Three, with Scott McGregor, who pitched the pennant clincher for the Orioles, going against John Candelaria, Pittsburgh's top winner during the regular season.

Sports Briefs

The Notre Dame hockey team will be competing for the first time this year when the Spartans of Michigan visit the ACC this afternoon for a 3:45 p.m. scrimmage. Admission is free.

The Notre Dame Water Polo Club was defeated by Western Michigan on Friday, 14-11. They will try to bounce back this weekend when they travel to West Lafayette, Ind. to compete against Southeast Missouri, Illinois, and host Purdue.

The Irish field hockey team lost its second game of the year Friday, falling to Indiana state, 2-0. The loss snapped a three-game winning streak, the most recent coming over Saint Mary's last Wednesday, 5-1. Tomorrow the Irish will try to improve their 3-2-1 mark when they travel to Franklin, Ind. to take on Franklin College.

Diamond men suffer long ride home

by Bill Marquard
Sports Writer

A loss is always tough to accept, but losses on the road generally feel a little worse. The more discouraging the defeat, the longer the ride home seems.

"It was a long ride home from Xavier Sunday," conceded Notre Dame baseball coach Tom Kelly. "It gave us a lot of time to play with statistics and look at the scorebook."

Flashing a crumpled notebook page with numbers scribbled on it, Kelly remarked, "Look at these numbers. In 32 innings over the weekend, we had 19 hits to our opponents 32, but we only struck out 10 times."

By the same token, of the 19 batters on our team who walked only four scored, while five of 12, almost 50 percent, of our opponents scored."

"What this all points to is a lack of concentration, both at the plate and on the mound," explains the fifth-year coach.

"We're hitting the ball, but we must be hitting some bad pitches," causing pop-ups or easy grounders. By the same token, our pitchers must work on every pitch, knowing where to put it in the plate depending on the situation.

Notre Dame's fall baseball record dipped to 6-4 over the weekend, as the Irish split a two-game series with Bradley, losing Friday afternoon 5-1 and clinching Saturday morning's then absorbed a twin-walloping at the hands of Xavier on Sunday, losing 9-3 and 3-1.

"Xavier was a testing ground—we started a freshman and a sophomore pitcher. We have to look at our prospects in a competitive situation—when spring comes, it's too late," remarks Kelly.

"In fact, after that first loss, we rebounded in the second game to some degree."

Freshman hurler Greg Jaun allowed only four Xavier hits in the nightcap, but two of those were home runs.

"That just shows that one minor mental error here and there can make a big difference," said Kelly.

And it is those minor mental mistakes both on the mound and at the plate which Kelly hopes to correct during this last week of fall practice.

"We must work on mental consistency and concentration. Situations will be important this week. For instance, standing at the plate with a 2-0 count, as opposed to 1-2, is an entirely different situation and would dictate a change in the way the batter views the pitch."

The Irish have 1 p.m. home doubleheaders against Spring Arbor on Friday and Illinois State on Saturday to close out their autumn slate.

"This weekend will make a big psychological difference for us," comments Kelly warily. "A couple more losses will make the winter seem just a little longer."

Awesome Auburn tops Blue Division

Auburn University put on an awesome running display Friday, to capture the Blue Division championship of the Notre Dame Invitational Cross Country Tournament. The Tigers accumulated only 34 points from their top-five runners which proved to be three-times better than the 114 points amassed by second-place finisher Illinois State. Defending champion Michigan was third with a 134-point total.

Meanwhile, the Notre Dame team finished a disappointing 13th at 307, in this, the first meet of the season for the Irish. Coach Joe Plane had hoped his squad would challenge for the top spot, despite its lack of experience. Unfortunately, the top returnee from last year's team, Pat Sullivan, was having troubles with his bad knee and did not compete.

Auburn so dominated the meet that its top-five runners (those that contribute to the team point totals) all finished among the top 14. A total of 137 men completed the five-mile race, contributing to the team scores of 21 schools.

Auburn's Tom Graves won the race with a time of 23:35. The number 3, 6, 9 and 14 finishers were also from the Southeast Conference power house.

The top finisher for the Irish was junior Chuck Aragon, clocking a time of 24:41, good for the 37th spot in the field.

"We didn't run well at all," said Plane. "It was an experiment. We won't know until later whether or not it was a good move. We probably needed another race before the Invitational to prepare."

The Gold Division race also proved to be quite one-sided. Wisconsin-LaCrosse finished first with 61 points, well ahead of second place Marquette and third place Pittsburgh (Johnstown). Dan Erdel of Northern Illinois finished first in the division with a time of 24:18.

Orioles, Pirates tangle in fall classic

Michael Ortman

Let's stop the reminiscing; Weaver's got it this time

Hey baseball fans, look at this. For the first time in eight years, we have the two best teams in the sport going at it for all the marbles. The last time the sport's best two records met in the fall classic was in 1971 when these same two teams scratched and clawed for seven games with the underdog Pirates taking it.

So much for reminiscing, and on the same note, scratch that bit about the same two teams. The organizations are the same but the players are almost entirely different. Sure, it's easy to compare, but this is 1979, not 1971. What happened then will have little bearing on what happens this year.

The Orioles combined baseball's best pitching staff with a strong bench and timely hitting as they march to a 102-win season, just four more than their series opponents. At the same time, the Pirates combined an awesome collection of hitters with an equally strong bench and timely pitching as they squeaked past Montreal.

You can argue until the tulips come up which is more important, hitting or pitching, and there's plenty of evidence to back both arguments. But hey, this is the World Series, not a 162-game marathon where only the fittest survive. It may sound like a cop-out, but anything can happen.

The biggest differences between these two clubs are the managers. It boils down to true greatness against simple mediocrity (at best).

One publicist far closer to the Pirates than I, admitted that "If Chuck Tanner hadn't over-managed, the Buc's would have won the division by ten games." I'll leave it at that. On the other side of the fence is Earl Weaver. In 11 full

in series opener

BALTIMORE (AP) - A week ago, Jim Palmer suggested that southpaw Mike Flanagan, Baltimore's biggest winner, ought to be the Orioles' opening pitcher in the American League playoffs.

Earl Weaver, using managerial prerogative, filed that idea away and handed the baseball to Palmer instead.

Now, with the Orioles opening the World Series against Pittsburgh Tuesday night, Palmer's advice will be followed and Flanagan will be the Baltimore starter. The fact that the reports from Oriole scouts Jim Russo and Bill Werld emphasized the Pirates' left-handed hitters was, of course, purely coincidental.

Weaver hopes Flanagan, the top winner in the majors with 23 victories this season, can neutralize Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, Willie Stargell and Omar Moreno, all left-handed hitters and all vital parts of the Pirate attack.

With Flanagan on the mound, Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner will switch two other starters to add right-handed bats to his lineup. Rookie Steve Nicosia will catch in place of lefty-swinging Ed Ott and veteran Bill Robinson will play left field.

The Pirates' starting pitcher in the opener will be lanky right-hander Bruce Kison, who won 13 games during the regular season.

Hot dogs, apple pie, Chevy and a Pittsburgh series win

Give Mom a call and tell her to get an apple pie in the oven. Then grab your flag, jump into your Chevrolet and head on out to the ol' ball yard.

But you better hurry or you'll miss the National Anthem. It's the World Series -- and this year we got lucky.

This year we've got a real World Series; one that's appeal is not limited to Hollywood's swingers or New York's high society.

This year Reggie Jackson and the Big Blue Dodger in the Sky will all be sitting in the bleachers. (It's $17 a ticket Reggie. That sure is a lot of candy bars, huh?)

This year there's no controversy, no inflated egos, no locker room brawls.

This year it's baseball for baseball's sake. The best of both leagues with classic confrontations between great pitching and even better hitting.

This year it's Pittsburgh versus Baltimore -- the best-of-seven for all the money.

And you don't want to miss an inning.

It's a rematch of the 1971 series when the Pirates, heavy underdogs, won it in seven as they relied on the arm of Steve Blass, the bat of Roberto Clemente and the brains of manager Danny Murtaugh. Now, only eight years later, Murtaugh and Clemente have passed away and Blass is selling high school yearbooks in Pittsburgh.

In fact, the only remnants of either club's last World Series appearance are Willie Stargell, Manny Sanguillen and Bruce Kison for the Pirates and Jim Palmer, Mark Belanger and manager Earl Weaver for the Birds.
