Byrne supports Carter

CHICAGO (AP) - President Carter, ending a two-day trip to the Midwest, condemned Cuban military activities yesterday and expressed delight over Mayor Jane Byrne's near-endorsement of his re-election.

Carter came to Chicago on uncertain political ground with the city's Democratic leaders, but he returned to Washington with a suprisingly strong statement of support from Mrs. Byrne.

Although he did not get a firm endorsement for his expected bid for another term, Carter did get Mrs. Byrne's assertion that if the decision were to be made now, she would vote for him.

And the Chicago mayor made a pointed reference to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who is considering a challenge to Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, issuing a warning "to those who would divide the Democratic Party."

Before departing for Washington, the president held a "town meeting" with residents of suburban Dolton, Ill. We assured the audience gathered in a high school gymnasium that inflation would ease by the end of the year.

And he criticized Cuba as "the most highly militarized country on Earth per capita," the Cubans, he said, are "constantly interfering" with the affairs of other countries.

Carter said the Cubans have more than 45,000 troops in countries where "they have absolutely no business."

The United States will not move to establish normal diplomatic relations with the island nation until Cuba ends its involvement in the affairs of other countries and until the regime of President Fidel Castro releases "hundreds and hundreds, even thousands," of political prisoners.

Carter expressed delight at the level of support he received from Mrs. Byrne and the city's powerful Democratic apparatus, calling the mayor's remarks "perfect." He added, "I really did appreciate it."

Mrs. Byrne did not come away empty-handed, either. Carter used the opportunity to announce several programs beneficial to Chicago and to Mrs. Byrne's administration. For instance, he announced that the Ait Force would vacate a facility of O'Hare Airport so an international terminal can be built there. Mrs. Byrne had been working to take over the defense facility there for some time.

In addition, Carter announced plans for federal funding of more than 1,300 city government jobs.

Asked if he had expected a formal endorsement, Carter replied. "I think that was enough." Mrs. Byrne interrupted to say that she had gone as far as she could without incurring the anger of the chairman of the Cook County Democratic Party.

Unrest in San Salvador stirs up demonstrators

SAN SALVADOR El Salvador (AP) - Police fired rifles into the air last night to break up an anti-government demonstration, then closed off downtown San Salvador after protesters lobbed homemade bombs at a national guard installation, witnesses said.

Reports said one group of demonstrators set fire to three factories in the Ilopango industrial park outside San Salvador, the capital.

There were no reports of injuries.

The new government previously suspended constitutional guarantees and imposed martial law and a 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew.

The reports of the bomb-throwing, which were not confirmed officially, followed an announcement by the leftist Popular Revolutionary Bloc that it would demonstrate against the new regime, headed by two colonels. But that demonstration, by the most popular political action front, failed to materialize.

Earlier yesterday, troops from the First Brigade of the San Carlos base, the nation's largest military installation and the new government's headquarters, broke up a demonstration by leftists who took over the suburb of Mejicanos. Four civilians were reported killed there, but there was no confirmation.

Authorities said Col. Jaime Aboul Gutierrez and Col. Adolfo Arnaldo Nahano, who led the Monday night coup that ousted Romero's government, met yesterday with opposition political leaders. Mahano said Ramon Mayorga Guiroz, an engineer, had accepted a posit-

Tidal wave kills eight

NICE France (AP) - A rare Mediterranean tidal wave along a 60-mile stretch of the French Riviera Tuesday, killing at least eight construction workers building a breakwater jutting into the sea, police said.

Three other workers and two persons on the beach were reported missing and feared dead on the popular Mediterranean resort coast. An undetermined number of yachts and other pleasure crafts were wrecked at many points along the Riviera.

The wave swept workers, cranes, bulldozers and trucks from the breakwater under construction in Nice Harbor. Rescuers recovered the bodies of eight construction workers and three workers were unaccounted for and two were rescued, police said.

In the resort town of Antibes, the wave swept two persons walking on the beach into the sea and both were feared dead, police said.

Witnesses said they saw the sea quickly sweep away from the beach, causing the water level to recede about 300 yards from the normal shoreline. The destructive wave surged back to its normal level with tremendous force. The witnesses said the ocean did not rise above the height of a normal tide, but packed many times the force of regular waves, sweeping away objects in its path.

Auto accessory theft reports soar

By John McGrath
Senior Staff Reporter

Soaring theft rates for car stereos and other automobile accessories are causing increased alarm for area police departments, and heightened anxiety for Notre Dame students who have cars parked in campus lots.

The South Bend Police Department has reported a 20 percent increase in auto accessory thefts for August 1979 compared to August of last year, and a 56 percent rise for September of 1979 over the same month in 1970.

"We've been noticing an increase in the last six to nine months," reported Capt. Richard Chlebek of the South Bend Police Department's detective bureau. "The area around the Notre Dame campus is one of our highest crime rate census tracts -- quite a few of the thefts occur there."

The situation on the Notre Dame campus itself also has officials worried, especially in light of a special theft prevention program instituted by the Security Department, which seems to have broken down.

"There has been a great number of thefts and incidents of vandalism -- especially in the D-1 and D-2 lots," commented Glenn Terry, director of Notre Dame security. "I've become concerned recently because of the increased number of incidents that we've had reported."

Although students speculate that most of the thefts are committed by outsiders, Terry was unable to identify the culprits as being students or persons not connected with the University.

He did admit, however, that at least one measure to prevent car thefts in campus lots has been yielding less than desirable results.

"Apparently some of the students that were assigned to patrol the lots haven't been coming in as frequently as they should be," Terry said.

He noted that the Security Department normally pays approximately 11 students to patrol parking lots on Friday and Saturday nights in an effort to cut down on the incidence of vandalism and theft. The students are equipped with two-way radios to report any unusual activity they notice.

Terry was at a loss to explain why the student patrols have been lax, but added that he had discussions with University officials recently about improving surveillance in the lots. One suggestion Terry mentioned was the possibility of erecting watch towers to provide aerial views of the lots.

"I really think the thing we've slipped up on though, is not having these lot patrols come in as often as we would like," Terry said.

Mike Dunn, a resident of Howard Hall, was a recent victim of burglars. Although the main target of thieves has been car stereos, Dunn reported that a battery

Sorority pledges pull prank, steal Vet Dept.'s calf

MORGANTOWN, W. VA. (AP) - The sisters of Kappa Delta sorority got a big surprise over the weekend when they found a 200-pound calf munching hay in their living room. So did Alfred Barr, chairman of the Division of Animal and Veterinary Sciences at West Virginia University here. The calf was taken from the university's dairy farm. The calf was turned loose in the sorority house by a group of women known as pledges who intend to join the organization. "It's the best pledge prank that's ever been pulled here - it can never be topped," said Gretchen Noats, a sorority member.

Pepper causes death of alleged child abuse victim

GOSHEN, IND. (AP) - a 4-year-old girl apparently suffocated Monday night when her father poured pepper down her throat as punishment for spilling the spice, state police said. The father, identified as Harold K. Smith, 38, was arrested by Goshen police and held at the Elkhart County Jail on a preliminary charge of homicide. State police said the incident began when the child, Shawndalynn Marie Smith, spilled pepper and her mother became angry and demanded the father punish the child. Smith asked the child if she wanted some pepper, and when she said yes, he poured the contents of the shaken down her throat, police said. Investigators said Smith then obtained more pepper and also poured that down her throat. Police said no charges were lodged against Mrs. Smith.

Nuke plant employees admit guilt for damages

SURREY, VA. (AP) - A jury yesterday convicted two former nuclear plant employees on felony charges of damaging a public utility. The two had admitted they sabotaged the Surry nuclear plant, saying they wanted to draw attention to safety standards. The utility that operates the Virginia Electric & Power Co. plant here has estimated damage at $1 million from the sabotage. Kuymendall and Merrill, former control room operator trainees at the Surry nuclear plant, admitted they poured a caustic chemical on fuel rods April 27. They said they did so to organize what they regarded as a lax security and unsafe working conditions at the plant.

Curran clears Carter of charges

WASHINGTON (AP) - A special counsel, declaring that "There is no evidence to establish that Jimmy Carter committed any crimes," said yesterday no prosecution is planned in connection with the financing of the president's family peanut business.

Special counsel Paul J. Curran, concluding a six-month investigation, said "no indictment can or should be brought against anyone" involved in nearly $10 million in loans from the National Bank of Georgia to the peanut business.

Curran, in a 239-page report to Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, said there was no evidence any of the money was diverted into Carter's 1976 presidential campaign. He also concluded there was no evidence of any criminal activities stemming from the loans.

However, Curran described a series of financial irregularities, involving bookkeeping mistakes and inadequate collateral on the part of the Carter peanut warehouse, which has been heavily in debt.

He declined to characterize the irregularities, but said none of them amounted to criminal violations.

Curran also disclosed that he took an unprecedented four-hour deposition from the President at the White House on Sept. 3.

It marked the first time in history that an incumbent President had given sworn testimony in a criminal investigation, Curran said. Former President Richard M. Nixon's depositions in the Watergate scandal were taken after he left office.

Curran said Carter "cooperated totally" in the investigation and that a transcript of the interview and the President's financial records were turned over to a federal grand jury in Atlanta that looked into the Carter transactions.

Carter was asked about the Curran report yesterday while the President was attending a Democratic reception in Harvey, Ill.

"I'm glad they have completed their investigation and turned their attention to crime control," Carter replied. Asked how he felt about being declared "clean," he replied, "I knew it all the time."

An abbreviated, 179-page version of the report to Civiletti was sent to Congress and was made public at a news conference.

Curran said the shortened version contained all he was legally permitted to disclose and contained no direct testimony from the President or any other witnesses who appeared before the Grand Jury.

Miller says U.S. faces recession

WASHINGTON (AP) - Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said yesterday the nation still faces a moderate recession, despite figures showing industrial production in September registered the biggest growth in four months.

"While the recession facing the nation is expected to be moderate, the current economic outlook remains volatile, particularly in the light of the uncertainties about energy prices and availability," Miller told a congressional panel.

"We cannot be as certain as previously about the depth and severity of the economic slow-down," he said. But Miller quickly added that "there are few signs" the recession will be bad as the 1974-1975 down-turn which was the worst since the depression.

The treasury secretary's testimony before members of the Joint Economic Committee came at the same time the Federal Reserve Board released figures showing industrial production was up by 0.5 percent last month.

The increase represented a turn-around from a decline of 0.9 percent in August. The improvement was largely a result of an increase in auto output as manufacturers began production of 1980 models. But total output of the nation's factories, utilities and mines still was below the year's peak production levels set in March.

Miller said the nation's economy in recent weeks has shown "More strength than earlier anticipated," but added that he still forecasts "a moderate recession."

In fact, he indicated the outlook may have worsened as a result of the Federal Reserve Board recent actions to push up interest rates, coupled with announcements by some oil producing nations of higher prices and cutbacks in production.

The higher interest rates are "appropriate and necessary" to help fight inflation, Miller maintained.

Meanwhile, President Carter told a town meeting in Dolton, Ill., he hopes interest rates have peaked along with inflation "and will now be going down."

He said the administration's package of economic policies "is the best we can have." Carter also asserted that home buying remains a sound investment despite high financing costs.

In its report on September industrial output, the Federal Reserve said auto assemblies increased 5 percent to an annual rate of 7.9 million units,

HPC discusses CILA, budgets

by Jana Schutt

HPC held its weekly meeting in Dillon Hall last evening. The presidents heard Ted Gutmann, a speaker for CILA, discuss the budget allocations which will be held after midsemester break.

Gutmann asked for the council's assistance in publicizing the summer projects program sponsored by CILA. Deadline for application is Nov. 18.

"This is a one-to two-month learning experience designed to involve Notre Dame and St. Mary's students in social work, community organization, and medical work in underprivileged areas," said Gutmann. "Always before, the summer projects have been limited to CILA members, but this year we are opening application to the whole campus."

The student who participates in the CILA summer project must give a presentation and write a report in the fall after the project is completed. In recent years, CILA member have spent their summers in Appalachia and Tijuana, Mexico.

HPC allocations from the Hall Life Fund--HPC moneys used for student comfort, entertainment and utility--will begin after break. Sizable amounts of money will be considered only if the acquisitions are expected to serve the hall community for many years to come, explained Don Ciancio, president of Flanner Hall.

According to the budget allocations guidelines put out by the HPC committee, the size of the hall and its allotments in recent years will also be considered as factors in this year's division of funds.

All allocations must be used by the end of the first semester.

Any funds left over must be returned to HPC and will then be redistributed after the establishment of the Second Semester Hall Life Fund, the guidelines stipulate. These moneys can be "frozen," that is kept within the hall if valid reasons are put forward.

The committee in charge of the budget hearings consists of Curt Wesseln, Jane Stoffel, Chris Digan, John Reilly, Don Murday, and Paul Riehle, alternate.

A letter was read to the council asking for cooperation in a new spirit gimmick for the USC football game. Fans are asked blue before the kickoff. At a signal from the cheerleaders, everyone is supposed to put on something green for the remainder of the game. Details for the plan will be announced at the pep rally on Friday.

"With the help of the students, this can prove to be an impressive show of spirit," the letter concluded.

It was announced that the Sorin Pep Rally for the USC game will be held tomorrow night at 8 p.m. on the Sorin porch. Speakers will be Scott Zettek, Brendan Moynihan, Chuck Male, and Coach Joe Yonto. Officer Jim McCarthy will also be on hand. The Sorin Talent Show is planned for Saturday at 9:30 a.m. on the Sorin porch.

Soviet nuclear plants raise concern from energy specialists

MOSCOW (AP) - After years of little but praise for nuclear power in the Soviet Union, two top energy specialists have voiced serious doubts over the scope, safety and environmental consequences of this country's ambitious atomic power program.

Unless the program is radically altered, they say, more densely populated areas of European Russia may soon reach the limits of their "ecological capacity" to cope with new nuclear power stations.

Nikolai A. Dollezhal and Uri Koryakin sounded the warning in an authoritative article published in last week's edition of Kommunist, the Soviet Communist Party's leading theoretical journal. Koryakin is an economist and Dollezhal is chief of a department of the Soviet Academy of Sciences that deals with energy production.

Western scientific sources in Moscow said they were astonished at the critical frankness of the Kommunist article, which contrasted sharply with the upbeat tone typical of most nuclear power coverage in the government-controlled news media.

The Soviet Union's overall nuclear-fueled power capacity currently amounts to about one-quarter of the 50,000 megawatts of electricity that can be generated by atomic power stations in the United States.

But the Soviet press reports that at least 10 large nuclear plants are now under construction, with a projected capacity of more than 25,050 megawatts. Upon completion by the mid-1980s, they will boost total Soviet nuclear generating capacity above 35,000 megawatts - more than 10 percent of all electric power produced in this country.

In their detailed, 6,000-word Kommunist article, Koryakin and Dollezhal balanced both praise and criticism of nuclear power.

At the same time, however, they raised a number of serious problems facing the nuclear power program, including:

- Delays in the development of "fast breeder" reactors, which produce more plutonium nuclear fuel than they consume but require complex fuel reprocessing facilities.
- The previously forecast date for creation of powerful, commercial-scale breeder reactor stations - the start of the 1980's - has been postponed, according to current estimations, until the end of this century," they said.

Technical reliability and safety. "It is obviously wrong to believe that guaranteed, reliable, economical, advanced and time-tested technologies have been created for all production aspects of the external fuel cycle," including reprocessing.

-Increased danger of accidents in transporting nuclear fuel shipments. "The probability .. is insignificant. At the same time, with the growth of nuclear power expected in the near future... this possibility must be taken into account."

-Strain on land resources and the overall environment, partly because of the need for large cooling reservoirs and other auxiliary facilities at nuclear plants.

-In European Russia, where most nuclear construction is now under way, "the current concept of locating atomic power stations will rather soon, in our opinion, lead to exhaustion of the region's ecological capacity."

Commuter crash leaves 400 injured in Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Screaming passengers were sent "flying" down the aisles and slamming into seatbacks when three packed commuter trains crashed in a chain reaction at the peak of the morning rush-hour yesterday. There were more than 400 injuries, most of them minor, authorities said.

"We were going at a good clip, 40 to 45 miles an hour," said R.C. Morrow of Glen Mills, a structural engineer and one of the commuters on board.

"We started flying when the engineer hit the brakes. Most of the people hit their head and faces on their seats in front of them."

There were no reports of fatalities in the 8:19 a.m. crash on the Media-West Chester Line just beyond a curve in the southwest section of the city.

"Brace yourselves," shouted a motorman just before the impact.

The passengers, many dazed and dabbing their bloody faces with handkerchiefs, stumbled from the cars as police wagons, ambulances and fire rescue vehicles raced to the scene.

"A few people were trapped in the first smashed car but the firemen got them out quickly," said Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill.

The injured were taken to 23 hospitals and an elementary school, the police commissioner said.

Conrail officials said as many as 1,200 passengers may have been riding on the trains.

O'Neill said most of the injuries involved bloody noses, sprained necks and some broken bones.

"We heard this big bang and ran out there with ice and paper towels," said Ruth Wolf, a teacher at the Harrington Elementary School, a block from the accident scene. "Poor things. They were really shook up."

A nine-car lead train developed a mechanical failure and a second train, which also had nine cars, stopped behind it, according to R. B. Hoffman, and official of Conrail which operates the commuter service.

"The leading train got started and headed toward Philadelphia," Hoffman said. "The third train stopped behind the second train and the fourth hit the third before it could move away."

The force of the crash propelled the front of the third train into the rear of the second train which was just getting ready to pullout, Hoffman added.

"We have no idea what triggered the accident," he said. "All signals in the vicinity were operational when I arrived at the scene."

Five cars derailed--two on the express and three from the moving fourth train. The express had originated in West Chester, the other three trains in Media.

Reilly lectures begin today

Dr. Samuel Danishefsky, a chemist from the University of Pittsburgh who specializes in organic synthesis, will deliver three Peter C. Reilly lectures at Notre Dame today and tomorrow.

Danishefsky has developed new methods for synetically producing specific natural compounds which are potentially valuable, for example as anti-cancer agents, but which are not available from natural sources in usable amounts.

The lectures will be held in room 123 of Nieuwland Science Hall at 4:30 p.m.

Today, Danishefsky will discuss approaches to several interesting natural products being made by his group, and tomorrow he will describe the almost completed total synthesis of natural product which is an antitumor agent.

A full professor of chemistry at the University of Pittsburgh since 1971, Danishefsky received the Ciba-Geigy Award in 1976.

The Reilly lecture series honors the memory of the late Indianapolis industrialist Peter C. Reilly and is sponsored by the Department of Chemistry.

Law School sets precedent, establishes 'Sports Law' program

by Micheal Mader

The Notre Dame Law School will establish a first for the country next semester, when it offers a course in Sports Law. The class is designed to stimulate interest in cases involving the problems of athletes. School officials feel there is a real need for attorneys with a background in sports law.

According to Granville Cleveland of the school faculty, athletes are the most mistreated people when it comes to law, whether professionals or children on playgrounds.

"Right now, it would be difficult for him to find an attorney that would know how to handle the case effectively," Cleveland said.

Cleveland believes that all law schools should initiate sports law courses. "All law students should get a background in Sports Law," he added.

The course will be team-taught by six professors from the law school, each of which will specialize in one aspect of sports law. The subjects will include contracts, labor law, antitrust, torts, tax and business association, all in terms of the sports world.

As it stands now, the course will be open only to law students as an elective course, but Cleveland says the law school hopes to include undergraduates in the future.

The field of sports law is a beginning stage and very wide open at this time. Because the rate of athletes having problems in court is increasing, athletes need good, reliable attorneys, Cleveland stated.

Athletes also need help in antitrust suits and understanding contract legalities and need advice on financial situations and tax shelters, Cleveland added.

As a means of increasing interest prior to the beginning of the course, the law school is presenting a series of lectures on sports law.

Lionel S. Sobel, well-known expert on sports law from Beverly Hills, Calif., will be the first speaker in the series. He will give his talk at noon Friday in the law school lounge. He will also be available to talk one-on-one with anybody interested in the sports law field tomorrow from 2-5 p.m. in the law school library. All students are invited to come, but must sign up in the law building prior to the lecture. Martin Blackman will continue the lecture series Oct. 26 also in the law school lounge. Blackman is a lawyer and agent for many athletes.

The series will end with a talk by Sheldon Gallner on Nov. 9, again in the lounge. Gallner wrote the first book that dealt effectively with professional sports law.

Health Services reports virus wave subsides

The wave of stomach disorder that sent at least 15 students to Student Health Services (SHS) for treatment has subsided, according to Health Service Administrator Sr. Marian Ruidl.

Health officials have attributed the illness to gastroenteritis pending the release of food testing results.

"The students are responding to treatment," Ruidl said. "There have been no new admissions." SHS discharged six students yesterday, she added.

The results of dining hall food testing by Edward Riley of the Office of Safety and Health Administration are not yet available, Ruidl said, adding that she expected them within a day or two.

LET'S TALK OPPORTUNITIES

General Dynamics, a Fortune 100 company, will be visiting your campus this fall to talk to you about our broad range of high-technology programs at our 15 operating divisions throughout the United States.

At General Dynamics you will have the opportunity to work with top professionals on state-of-the-art projects like the F-16. Cruise missiles. Trident submarines. LNG tankers. Sparrow missiles. Digital telephone equipment and more. Plus, depending upon your

To find out more about high-technology opportunities with one of the high-technology leaders in Telecommunications, Electronics, Data Products, Shipbuilding, Aerospace, Tactical Weaponry and other fields, contact your Placement Office. Or, send your resume to: Corporate Director, College Relations, GENERAL DYNAMICS CORPORATION, CN21, Pierre Laclède Center, St. Louis, MO 63105.

Senior Class Trip - 1979

Acapulco is divided into an East section and a West section. The eastern part of the city is the newer, more modern and affluent area. The West side has all the character. There you will find the bullfights, jai alai matches, glass-bottomed boat rides, twin domed cathedral, and the old Acapulco waterfront. Dividing the East from the West is the zocalo, of central square.

According to various reports, the old downtown area is dirty and unattractive, the beaches cluttered with hawkers and beggars (you will learn to resist the tear-filled warm brown eyes of the little five-year-old con artists or end up buying seventeen seed necklaces that you wouldn't ask your worst enemy to wear on Halloween.)

You might stop and consider that the city you are in is more than a tourist trap...for the poor who live there it is an economic nightmare where every stitch of clothing and morsel of food that comes to them is purchased with pennies thrown by tourists. Don't feel guilty, and don't try to "help" any one out of it. Just be aware. This trip can be a fantastic education as well as a lot of fun.

Despite the drawbacks mentioned above, Acapulco is a beautiful and exciting city, sunny all year round. Several things to see are:

-Acapulco Princess - a hotel that is built like an Aztec pyramid, with an open lobby totalling 20,000 square feet. The lobby includes a 16 storey atrium complete with 40 foot high palm trees, hanging gardens and a flowing lagoon. Before you rush to reserve a room, however, note that a double will set you back $124 a day. Apparently, anything less than $40 a day is a bargain, but shop around and you may get lucky.

-Las Brisas - another hotel. This one consists of 250 little units painted pink and white set into the steep, craggy hillside 1,000 feet above the Eastern side of the bay. Each has a private or semi private pool; well, almost - for 250 units there are only 200 pools.

-Pie de la Cuesta - "Foot of the Hill" - this beach boasts some of the most spectacular sunsets anywhere. No swimming here, though; the surf rolls straight in from Tahiti and is much too rough.

-La Perla - a restaurant nightclub. Make dinner reservations and see the main feature of this cliff clinging night spot - the diver who leaps from a spectacular height into the sea, torch in hand; there are tables available but a few yards away.

-Acapulco Center - a five building complex and grand plaza studded with reproductions of Mexican artifacts. There is entertainment here every night from 7 p.m. to 2 a.m. - choose from symphony concerts, opera, a Mexican fair with cockfights, fireworks.....you get the idea.

-La Quebrada Cliffs - cliff divers plunge into the dark sea with flaming torches day and night. The 130 ft. leap ends in a narrow crevice between the rocks into 12 feet of water.

CLOTHING....

And I quote from a travel guide: Very little clothing is worn in Acapulco. No ties or jackets for men. Sandals and swim suits will do until evening when anything light and airy goes.

And from another "In Acapulco no one wears anything but a swim suit and a cover-up during the day, and wild, outlandish costumes at night. Jackets and ties here are for headwaiters or if you plan on being married or buried."

TIME DIFFERENCE...

Eastern Standard Time minus one hour.

FINANCES...

Tips float around 15 percent

10 pesos = .50
20 pesos = $1
100 pesos = $5
(these conversions are based on a $20 exchange rate)

Coinage comes in 10 peso, one peso and 50 centavo pieces. Currency comes in 1,000; 500, 100, 50 and 20 peso denominations. There are 100 centavos in one peso.

HOURS...

Shops and Offices: Monday through Saturday -- 10a.m.- 6p.m.; Wednesday and Saturday night until 8p.m. Banks: Monday through Friday -- 8a.m.-1:30p.m.; closed Saturday and Sunday.

Outside Mexico City, everything closes for two hours at midday.

DUTY FREE SHOPPING...

You may bring up to $250 worth of merchandise into the U.S. from Mexico provided you have receipts.

THE BEACHES

Tourists flock to the beaches in droves. If you can find a spot, file a claim with local authorities and consider it your own. It's not quite that bad, but the beach is busy and crowded place. Ask your guide (and it does help to have a guide) which beach he or she recommends.

Once you get there, and get used to seeing the vast expanses of flesh, check out pony riding on the beach (you know, like the ads in The New Yorker and the back pages of McCall's). You can also rent catamarans, paddle boats, fishing boats and sailfish. The shore has a festive, carnival atmosphere, is federal property and is open to all.

Popular beaches:

-Playa de Caleta - good in the morning because the shadows fall early. The water is calm, good for swimming.

-Playa de Hornos- better in the afternoon because the shadows fall later. The water is rough, not suitable for swimming.

As far as sunning is concerned, be very, very careful. An hour in the direct rays of this near equatorial zone can turn you into a lobster, result in permanent scarring, cause heat stroke and severe burning. You won't be able to spend long periods in the sun, so don't plan on long mornings or late afternoons at the beaches if you don't have adequate protection, or want to come back to campus flaming red.

DANCING...

Almost every Hotel sports a disco with its own gimmick.

-U.B.Q.'S

-Le Jardin

-Charlie's Chili--yes, this is a disco. A fun place with an emphasis on craziness--sirens blowing, balloon-popping waiters--find out for yourself.

-The Tiffany--at the Princess Hotel features three dance floors and scads of tiffany glass fixtures.

Cover charges range from $2 to $5 or more. Drinks are expensive.

Acapulco

While you are in Acapulco you might consider taking a parachute ride over Acapulco Bay. The trip involves hitching up to an off-shore power boat, or to an on-shore souped up jeep. Then, for $8 to $10 you start on a five to ten minute ride above the bay or along the beach. Afterwards, your arms are very tired and sore from holding onto the chute, but the view is worth it. Secured to the chute with various straps, there is no danger of falling out--a soft landing in the sandy beach and you're ready to take in the rest of what the beach has to offer.

ACAPULCO

For a long time Diodoquins were taken to ward off "la turista" -- they served me well enough over the years. But there have been some newer developments along these lines and I'll tell you about them: First, the May '72 issue of the FDA Drug Bulletin says that there is no acceptable evidence that Diodoquins are effective in the treatment or prevention of "travelers diarrhea."

Next the FDA recommended (in the May '72 Drug Bulletin) that a rather popular remedy Entero-vioform, not be given to prevent "travelers' diarrhea".

A few years ago, a careful "double-blind" study was performed on students going from Ohio State to the University of Mexico Summer School, and it demonstrated that one gram of Sulfasuxidine daily or one half a gram of Neomycin twice daily cut the incidence of diarrhea considerably.

There are other remedies:- Viotalandina is popular in Mexico for mild cases of stomach upset. Polmagna is said to be good for more severe cases. If cramps persist, Bellafolina is often taken. All the above drugs are prescription items in the United States, although in Mexico no prescription is usually needed.

WHAT TO EAT: Carbonated beverages, coffee, tea, strained fruit juice, enriched white bread, toast, crackers, cooked cream of wheat, refined oatmeal, farina, rice, sponge cake, plain cookies, custards, gelatine desserts, water ices or ice creams without fruits or nuts, puddings, rennet desserts, butter or margarine, cream, ripe bananas, canned or cooked apples, apricots, peaches, and pears; also bacon, ground or tender beef, chicken, fish, lamb, liver, veal, eggs, cheddar cheese, cottage cheese, cream cheese, (bake or broil the meat); Irish potatoes, macaroni, noodles, refined rice, spaghetti, boullion, sugar, syrup, tomato juice, cooked or canned vegetable purees; salt, paprika, cream sauces.

WHAT NOT TO EAT: Milk, milk drinks; hot breads, whole-grain bread or rolls; whole grain cereals, prepared or dry cereals; other cakes and doughnuts, pastry, cookies, and puddings with fruits and nuts; all other fats; all other raw fruits, all other cooked or canned fruits; all other soups, tough meats, pork, other cheeses, fried meats, corn and beans, fried potatoes, sweet potatoes, whole grain rice; other candy jam or marmalade; raw or whole vegetables; other spices, catsup, pepper, mustard, vinegar, chili sauces, steak sauces, hot sauces, gravy nuts, olives popcorn.

Drink water served in dining rooms. Ask for more, because they just don't force their expensive Tehuacan bottled water on you. In your hotel room, if there isn't a pitcher or a carafe of water on the dresser, call down for one. (Order "agua - sin gas" - or non-carbonated water.) Try not to drink water out of a tap. (There are a few newer hotels in Mexico that will tell you their tap water is OK for drinking purposes.) In villages, use bottled water or soft drinks - the Cokes are very good; so is "sidral," an apple juice drink. Steer clear of milk, even though they have excellent dairies in Mexico. Likewise use very little butter or margarine.

Remember, Mexico has good doctors, too...And Mexico has come a long, long, way in grading up their eating places, and food processing, and the chances are now fairly remote that you'll pick up "Tourist Complaint"...

THE MARKET PLACE...

You probably won't like it at first but you must haggle at the market place. They will ask you double what it's worth, and you have to take it from there. A great many of the vendors do know English, so watch what you say. After you get a little experience, haggling can be rather fun. Watch for bargains in pottery, leathersgoods, glass fiber art....

RESTAURANTS...

Most of the hotel restaurants are safe. Some nice, inexpensive places are:

-Carlos and Charlie's - you will stand in line, but a visit to this rooftop restaurant is worth it. The atmosphere is the big draw, but the food is also very good.

- Blackbeard's on the Beach - resembles a beach shack, but very good food is guaranteed.

If you care to spend more than the usual $15 to $20 per dinner for two:

- Cayuca 22 - one of the older, more respected restaurants in Acapulco.

- La Hacienda - at the Princess Hotel. The motif is ranch house and the food is unsurpassed anywhere in the city.

To be safe, do not buy fruit or food from beach or street vendors and take a teaspoon of Lomoltil every morning.

Dam breaks in California, leaves water in short supply

ELCENTRO Calif. (AP) - Officials said yesterday that California's worst earthquake in eight years broke the major canal bringing water to this arid border region, leaving some cities in the area with only a two-day water supply.

That assessment came from city and council officials who met in the garage of the Imperial County Fire Station beneath neon lights left askew. The meeting was jarred by one of the hundreds of aftershocks from Monday afternoon's quake, which measured 6.5 on the Richter scale.

At least 91 persons received injuries in the quake, almost all of them minor. Damage in the area was put at "$10 to 12 million but that's a very preliminary figure," said Imperial county fire chief Rudy Medina.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. cut short an East Coast political visit and returned to Los Angeles. He was to tour the Imperial Valley later in the day. Local authorities have already declared a state of emergency.

The quake along the Imperial fault, 150 miles southeast of Los Angeles, shifted some home foundations by a foot in El Centro and moved a road six inches.

Officials drained the All-American Canal after the trembler made several cracks in the wall of the conduit which runs about 70 miles from the Colorado River at the Arizona border and west along the California-Mexico border.

That canal is the chief aqueduct in a network of canals that has made this once-arid desert region bloom with irrigated fields, yielding one of the nation's richest array of crops.

"The All-American Canal is our lifeline," said Medina.

The valley has 90,000 residents, most of them living in the cities of El Centro, Calexico, Brawley, and Imperial.

Authorities had been worried that the strong aftershocks that jolted the area could spark a "mammoth fire," but Medina said the situation had stabilized by daybreak.

By 3 a.m., seismologists at California Institute of Technology reported hundreds of aftershocks with 26 measuring 4 or more on the Richter scale, including six over 5. The largest--5.6 hit around midnight.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. An earthquake of 6 can cause severe damage.

The initial quake, at 4:16 p.m. PDT, was centered 10 miles east of El Centro. The tremor, the strongest in the 48 continuous states since a 1971 quake in the San Fernando Valley near Los Angeles, was felt up to 300 miles away in three states and Mexico.

Just across the Mexican border in Mexicali, where some panic was reported in the city's teeming streets, police officer Apulinar Sumaran said many homes were heavily damaged and 30 persons were injured--mostly by breaking glass.

was stolen from his car Oct. 5.

"Someone got into my hood and took the battery out," Dunn said. I guess someone's battery ran out so they just looked around for another one, and decided to take mine." He estimated the battery's worth at $50.

Law enforcement officials were generally pessimistic about the chances students have for protecting their automobile equipment.

"If they (thieves) want a tape deck, there's not much you can do to keep them from breaking in to get it -- besides putting your car in a garage," Sgt. Chlebe remarked.

Terry agreed. "It's pretty hard to protect what you've got -- they're going to bust something if they want something in the car," he said.

He did suggest several options, however, that might lessen the possibility of theft and increase the chance of having stolen items returned by police. One measure he mentioned is the installation of hood locks for cars not equipped with internal hood releases, and the recording of serial numbers for expensive equipment such as car stereos.

... Pirates

Orioles down easily, allowing one hit the final three innings.

The Pirates doubled their lead in the eighth. Ed Ott opened with a single and dashed to third on Phil Garner's ground rule double that bounced into the left field stands. It was the second hit of the game and 11th of the Series for Garner, who also set a World Series record in Tuesday's game by participating in his ninth double play.

Bill Robinson, who had come into the game in a defensive shift in the seventh, followed with another sacrifice fly to left, and then Moreno, who had left 11 men on base in the first two games of the Series, delivered and RBI single, making it 4-0.

The Pirates came out swinging against Palmer from the start. Moreno bounced a single up the middle on the game's first pitch and Foli doubled off the glove of third baseman Doug DeCinces making a sharp backhand stop to throw the batter out as the runners held. Then, Stargell also went after the first pitch, popping out. John Milner was the first Pirate hitter to take a pitch and finally bounced out, ending the threat.

Baltimore had its best shot at Candelaria in the first when Garcia opened with a single and moved to second on a one-out single by Ken Singleton, who had three singles in the game. But Eddie Murray hit into a rally-killing double play.

... Tips

Dame.
 "There are many things the hitter must do mechanically, and whether you agree with his views or not, he is very technical. If nothing else, Ted really makes you think about hitting."
 In many points of his hitting philosophy, Williams concurs with the opinions of other great batters and teachers.

"Ted stressed the position of the hands and hips as well as where the pitch is," instructs Kelly, gripping a ghostly bat in his hands to demonstrate.
 Then swinging slowly as a phantom pitch was delivered, Kelly focused on the barrel of his imaginary lumber. "The angle you hit the ball at is very important as well. It all boils down to where you are and where the ball is at a given instant. In this respect, Ted differed little from contemporary thought."

Yet there was one major difference that Kelly was immediately struck with. "Ted proposed that all hitters should swing up slightly rather than down slightly as we usually teach," offers Kelly as he cocks his phantom bat to demonstrate the different planes of swing.

"His rationale was that since the pitcher was above the batter, the ball would be travelling down slightly," remarks Kelly as he traces the path of the ball from his raised right hand to his lowered left.

"Supposedly, swinging slightly upward is the only way to make direct head-on contact with the ball."

"Yet Ted was a natural hitter and had the power and precision to swing upward and make solid contact," opines Kelly thoughtfully. "For younger hitters, we always stress swinging slightly downward, because until they acquire the coordination necessary to make that contact, they are more likely to just pop the ball up for an easy out rather than getting a line drive or a bouncer through the infield."

"Of course, your chances are better if you swing straight on at the ball," concedes Kelly.

Crossing the imaginary planes of his palms he adds, "Swinging on a level other than the one the ball is coming at naturally reduces the probability of contact between bat and ball."

But Williams is quick to point out that there is a mental as well as a mechanical side to hitting. "To get the most of his talent the batter must concentrate," Kelly notes. "The more he concentrates, the better able he is to see the spin on the ball and the ball itself."

Kelly quickly recalls Carl Yastrzemski's recent appearance on the AM America show: "At the age of 40, Yaz has found it tougher to concentrate because after so long you mind begins to wander at the plate. He just tries to keep talking to himself."

Although concentration on the pitch is a must, Williams also thinks the situation plays a critical role at the plate, as Kelly concurs.

"The batter must be aware of exactly what the count is and what the pitcher is trying to do at that point. The batter must take advantage of his time at the plate."

"A two-one count is entirely different from a two-two count. In the first case the batter has the edge, but it belongs to the pitcher in the latter instance," explains Kelly.

Yet for Williams, concentration seems to have mechanical roots, as Kelly relates: "Hitting the ball a fraction off-center makes a world of difference as to where it will go. Thus, hip and hand position become critical, as does the angle and position of contact," Kelly convinces as he digs in at the imaginary plate on the floor.

"All in all, there is not much room for error in hitting."

But William's personal clinic soon came to an end as a departing flight awaited Kelly. As he boarded the plane for South Bend, Kelly left with some new ideas and many reaffirmed old ones. And, having shaken hands and exchanging a few words with a sports legend, he naturally had the lasting memories.

Rally remains in limbo

Rick Pinkowski, pep rally chairman, is seeking student reaction to a pep rally tentatively scheduled for Friday, October 26. Students are urged to respond with a note to either the Student Activities Office or the Student Government Office.

Unless enough interest is displayed the pre-South Carolina rally will be cancelled.

Womens' volleyball Belles fall to St. Francis

St. Mary's volleyball team dropped its ninth match of the season Monday, falling to St. Francis 13-15, 15-10, 15-5, 15-13 in a best of 5 series.

"We should have never lost this match. I think the team is in somewhat of a slump," stated Belle's coach Erin Murphy. "I hope that the girls will get down to business soon and start playing well as I know they can," concluded Murphy.

After the match Murphy commented on a switch in the SMC lineup, Mary Laughlin made her debut against St. Francis as a setter. According to Murphy, "She did a good job, she needs work, but is enthusiastic."

Murphy also gave credit to Peggy Pieschel for her defensive play and hustle against St. Francis.

The Belles will match up against Creighton University tonight in the Angela Athletic Facility.

The Saint Mary's snack bar will serve as a coffee house tonight from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. through the efforts of the Student Activities Programming Board and project coordinator Mary Ellen Connelly. Connelly explained that the coffee house concept will give students an opportunity to perform informally before friends, much the way Notre Dame's Nazz nightclub operates. The coffee house will be opened one Wednesday a month until the end of the semester, Connelly explained, adding that, if the concept proves popular, it may be expanded in the future.

In addition to the entertainment, the coffee house will also offer food and drinks to visitors. Jean acton is the chairperson of the entertainment committee. Tonight's entertainment will be provided by Kari Meyer and Chip Michelli.

Champs to be crowned tonight

Pirates force seventh game

BALTIMORE (AP) - Dave Parker and Willie Stargell, the power part of Pittsburgh's lineup, drove in a pair of seventh-inning runs to ignite the Pirates attack as they tied the 1979 World Series at three games apiece by defeating Baltimore 4-0 in Tuesday night's sixth game.

It was the second straight victory for the Pirates and forced the Series to a decisive seventh game Wednesday night, Scott McGregor, the winner in Game Three, will pitch for the Baltimore Orioles possibly against Jim Bibby, who started Game Four but was not involved on the decision for Pittsburgh.

Left-hander John Candelaria and bullpen ace Kent Tekulve combined for the seven-hit shutout - the first of the Series - as Pittsburgh kept its chances going to become the fourth team to recover from a 3-1 game deficit and win a best-of-seven Series.

Since scoring six runs in the eighth inning of Game Four, the Orioles have fallen into a dreadful slump, managing just one run in 19 innings. Their slumbering bats proved fatal to starter Jim Palmer, who pitched a creditable game, matching Candelaria's shutout through the first six innings.

Candelaria, who has been troubled by back and rib cage injuries, was lifted for pinch-hitter Lee Lacy leading off the seventh as the Pirates sought to get something going against Palmer. But Lacy struck out as a capacity Memorial Stadium crowd of 53,739 roared its approval. Soon, however, the Pirates silenced the crowd.

Speedy Omar Moreno, criticized for his poor hitting in earlier games, drilled his second hit of the night, a single to right. The on a hit-and-run play, Tim Foli bounces a ball up the middle. Orioles shortstop Kiko Garica tried to field the ball and keep his foot on the base for the force play on Moreno. But he succeeded in neither, and the ball squirted through for a single.

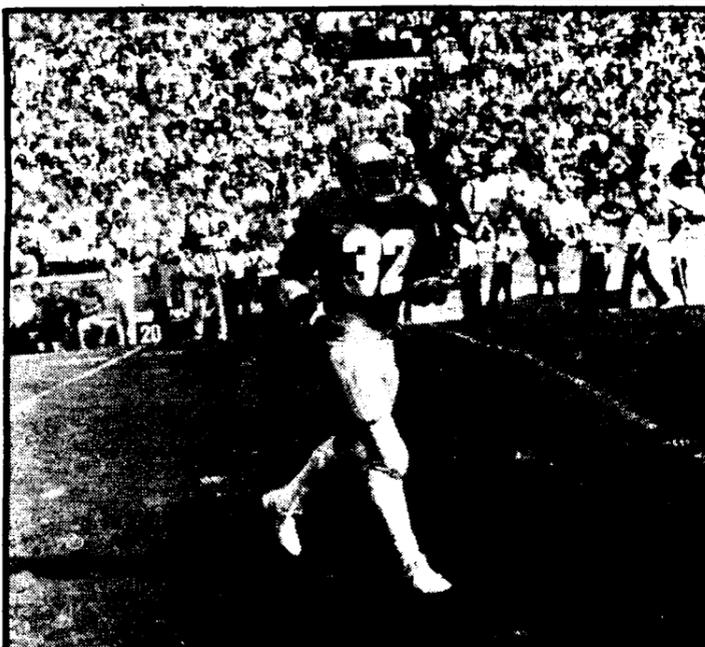

That set the Pirate's table with big guns Parker and Stargell coming up. In the first inning, Palmer had escaped a similar jam against the same two hitters. This time, however, he didn't get away.

Parker, who carried a .429 Series batting average into this game, drilled a single past second baseman Rich Dauer, scoring Moreno with the game's first run and sending Foli scampering to third. A moment later, Stargell got the second run home with a sacrifice fly to left field.

Finally in front, Pittsburgh went to the ace of its bullpen, the Lanky, bespectacled Tekulve. He had been ripped in Game Four - the victim of the bulk of that big Baltimore six-run rally. This time, it was a different story as he mowed the

Kelly hopes Williams' tips help Irish

by Bill Marquard
Sports Writer

To meet a contemporary sports legend face to face is quite an experience for most people. Just a handshake and a few words interchanged are often a lasting memory. Yet to actually sit down and talk to that sports great for two hours could be nothing more than a dream for the average person.

But for Irish baseball coach Tom Kelly, that dream became a reality.

Held over at Chicago's O'Hare airport while returning from a collegiate coaching clinic in San Francisco last January, Kelly walked over to an airport snack bar during a two-hour break between flights, sitting in a booth was Ted Williams, Hall of Famer and professor of hitting.

"Naturally, my first reaction was a doubletake," recalls Kelly with a smile. "I had watched Ted play during many summers, and I particularly remember the annual end-of-the-year Red Sox/Yankees series."

"He was certainly one of the premiere players in baseball. I had heard him talk at a few clinics, but I had never spoken to him one-on-one."

By way of introduction, Kelly explained that he was the baseball coach at the University of Notre Dame.

"He was certainly well aware of not only our athletic program, but our strong tradition as well," remarks the fifth-year head coach.

But Williams' real passion is hitting. Having studied hitting and hitters for years, he is virtually a scientist of the art and could discuss it for hours on end.

"Basically he is interested in what makes a good hitter," explains Kelly, who himself earned a PhD in educational administration from Notre

Hannigan provides momentum

by Mike Previte
Sports Writer

Momentum. How many times has it decided pivotal contests? Like Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl of 1979, or Baltimore in the six-run eighth inning of Saturday's Series game, it often takes a single outstanding play to spark that elusive feeling of being 'on the way to victory', the feeling of collectivity, of being a team of destiny.

Brian Hannigan's 20 yard run did just that early in the second half of Saturday's "A" rugby match, as it opened the gates for two more scores and an eventual 21-6 victory over visiting Xavier. The Irish back bobbed and weaved his way through a half dozen would-be tacklers to give Notre Dame a seven point cushion after Xavier had copped the Irish lead to 9-6 at the half.

The Irish opened the scoring in the contest with a penalty kick by Jim 'Z' Zidar finding its way through the uprights for a 3-0 lead. Matt O'Brien then passed adeptly to Steve Iselin who forged in for the first try of the game. Zidar's two point conversion kick made it 9-0 Irish before Xavier got on the board just as the half ended.

"Hannigan's run turned it around for us," noted Rico Harper, "We were down in spirits at halftime but a nice play by one of your teammates always seems to give a team a lift!"

Momentum. That elusive, cherished commodity.

Taking Hannigan's cue, Brian Tucker and Joe Witcher added tries late in the game to account for the final of 21-6. Witcher, playing for the injured O'Brien (back), pulled off a 30 yard run down the sidelines. The Irish A's thus ended their fall campaign on a winning note while evening the season slate with three wins and three losses.

The "B" rugger used late tries by Mike Derosiers and Jeff Kurtz to nip Xavier 8-4 while Brian McManus led the charge with some inspired second half play.

The "C" game proved to be a hat trick in the Irish victory column as Notre Dame ran up three unanswered tries on route to a 12-0 shutout of Xavier. Mike Flaherty and Steve Staff pushed across tallies for N.D., whose contest versus the alumni on Saturday is the last of the season.

Little Frankie's list

All I want for X-mas is to beat SC

You better watch out!
Stay on your feet!
Tackle him low
or you're gonna get beat!
Charlie White is coming to town.

I'll tell you right now, I'd feel a lot better if it was Santa Claus that was coming to town this weekend. He's a lot slower and much more generous than the boys from Southern Cal. But don't get your hopes up because it's only October and Christmas is two long months away. Of course, with a little luck (and a couple seats on the 50) the fat old guy might be persuaded to make an early visit to South Bend. Just to be safe, I sent him my Christmas list early.

Dear Santa,

How are you? Did you enjoy your summer? I hear you spent some time with Jimmy Carter. I must say, it sure was nice of you to give him that Middle East peace treaty. Almost as nice as when you gave him the Midwest in the 1976 election. (By the way...I was sure glad to hear Jerry Ford finally stopped sending you hate mail.)

But the reason I'm writing is because I heard you were coming in for Saturday's game and I figured, if it won't cause any problems or anything, that you might fit a couple of early Christmas presents in your sack for me. Nothing much, just:

- 300 yards for Vagas Ferguson
- 25 yards for Charlie White
- 100 copies of the Sports Illustrated issue with Charlie and Billy Sims on the cover. (You can just send those to Charlie - I hear he's collecting them.)

-100 copies of the Sports Illustrated issue with Vagas Ferguson on the cover. (You can send those to Charlie, too - I hear he's burning them.)

-59075 green jerseys (The was I figure it, we won 49-19 two years ago and only the football team was wearing green. This year, if everyone in the stands wears green...)

-Three Pac 10 officials that know the difference between a fumble and a forward pass.

-Ten bottles of diet pills for the Southern Cal offensive line.

-Four G.A. tickets (for my family, Santa, honest!)

-Three inches of snow (green snow if you can arrange it.)

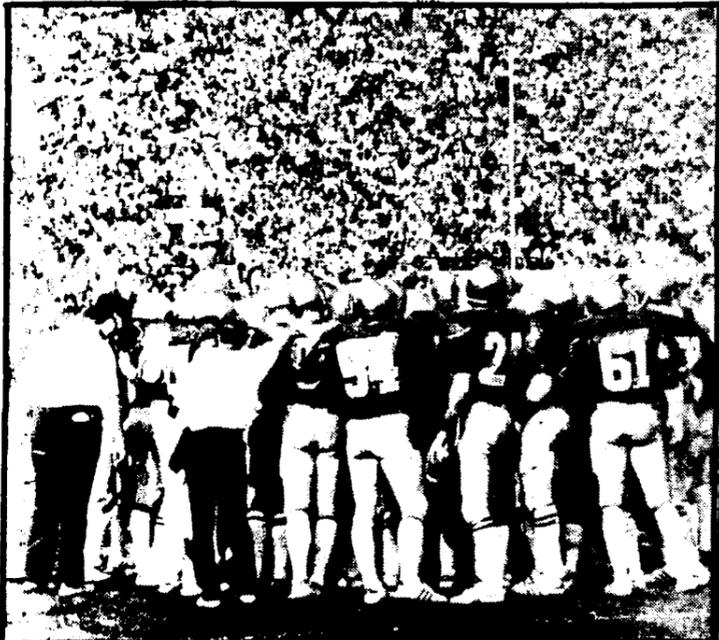

-A private showing of Knute Rockne--All American on the Southern Cal team plane.

That's about it, Santa. I hope I don't sound greedy, because all I really want is a Notre Dame win (and the four tickets.)

Thanks a lot for your time and I'll be sending you an update before December 25.

Your friend,
Frank

P.S. You might want to leave your red coat and Rudolph's nose at home.
