Port workers' strike cuts Iran's oil exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - Iranian oil exports apparently were choked off yesterday by a shutdown of the country's only crude oil port. A U.S. official said the shutdown may have stemmed from a strike by port workers.

Initial reports came to administration and congressional sources from the CIA.

The reported shutdown at Iran's Kharg Island came as the United States sought to negotiate the release of about 60 hostages held by militant students at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The students and the government are demanding that the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi be returned from New York to face trial in Iran.

There had been threats that the revolutionary government might halt oil shipments to the United States in an effort to enforce that demand.

A State Department official said initial reports indicated that the suspension barred all tankers from loading, not only those of the United States. The official, who declined to be identified, said initial fragmentary reports suggested that the shutdown involved a strike.

Last winter's cutoff of Iranian oil exports, which led to a world shortage of petroleum, came when workers shut down the oil fields in support of the revolution.

The State Department official said there was no official explanation of yesterday's shutdown nor was there any indication of how long it would last.

At the White House, an aide to President Carter said reports of an oil shutoff had been received "but not confirmed." At the time the reports were made public, Carter was meeting with his National Security Council to discuss the Iranian hostage situation.

Ali Agah, Iranian charge d'affaire in Washington, said he had no information about a shutdown of oil exports.

U.S. refuses Iranian demands

(AP) - Washington officials said yesterday the United States will not use force to free about 60 American hostages threatened with death by demonstrators occupying the American Embassy in Tehran and it expects Iranian authorities to protect them.

The Palestine Liberation Organization, which has good relations with Iran's Islamic regime, said it would send a delegation to Tehran to save the hostages' lives.

U.S. oil company executives in Washington reported an interruption in Iran's oil shipments to America and said it appeared a threatened oil boycott of the United States had begun.

Protection of the embassy captives is now the responsibility of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary council, which the religious leader ordered to run the country after Prime Minister Mehdi Baiargan and his Cabinet resigned yesterday. Both Khomeini and his council have been issuing statements backing the embassy invaders' demand that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi be returned for trial. The shah is in a New York hospital undergoing treatment for cancer and the United States has said it will not send him to Iran.

President Carter convened an unscheduled meeting of the National Security Council to discuss the crisis that flared with Sunday's embassy takeover. He called the meeting after conferring with his top

HPC allocates funds for social space

by Jana Schutt
Staff Reporter

The main topic of last night's HPC meeting was money. Members of Student Government announced the allocation of an estimated $40,000 of University funds for improving hall social space. HPC budget allocations were also approved.

Bill Vita, student body vice-president, explained that the administration has earmarked funds for social improvements in accordance with a proposal made by a committee composed of Thomas Mason, vice-president for business affairs; Fr. John Van Wolvlear, vice-president for student affairs; Donald Dedrick, director of maintenance; Fr. Michael Heppen, director of university housing; Fr. Gregory Green, assistant vice-president for student affairs; Jose Marrero, student government executive coordinator; Frank Guilfoyle, student government cabinet member; and Vita.

The money has, at present, been divided between 15 dorms with Lyons and Morrissey on the list as the highest priorities. Work on these two dorms began yesterday. Money will be spent for such hall improvements as new carpeting, refrigerators, and paneling. Details of the uses will be worked out between Fr. Heppen and dorm rectors.

According to Marrero, "The allocations were based on two goals: to give the dorms a party room and to provide them with a 24-hour lounge if they so desired."

Some of the money will also be available for dorms to buy furniture. This will be done on a cooperative basis. The dorms will provide a sum and the administration will attempt to meet that sum.

In addition to these funds, maintenance is going forward in dorms where problems were discovered.

This move by the University is seen as an extremely positive action by all parties involved.

Vita said, "This money will certainly add a great deal to the quality of life in the halls. The administrators with whom we worked were open, helpful and truly committed. They are the ones that pushed this measure through."

"Jose, Bill and Frank have done a lot of work on this project. Most people thought nothing would come of it. Instead we've managed to come up with the single biggest commitment to social space by the University," said Bill Roche, SBP.

"Of course this won't solve all of the problems, but this is a big step in the right direction. We consider it a real accomplishment and are really excited about it," he added.

All of the student government representatives present at HPC voiced the opinion that the administrators with whom they had worked were extremely committed to the alleviation of problems of social space on campus.

"I am really pleased with the optimism and cooperation that we have received from the administration and the concern shown by the Board of Trustees. They realize that this is an on-going problem and hope to keep the line of communications open. Our committee will be monitoring the progress of the project for the rest of the year," said Marrero.

Don Cianco, executive coordinator of HPC announced the decisions made at the HPC budget hearings held last Thursday. A total of $13,840 was distributed among the dorms for use, in addition to the administrative funds, for dorm improvements.

In other HPC business, Therese Tavis spoke to council about the new course evaluation booklets which will be distributed tomorrow.

Tavis explained, "This year the evaluations were done for all colleges, instead of just Arts and Letters. They go into more depth than the mimeographed sheets available in department offices."

Student Government task force will deliver the booklets to the halls, near the mailboxes. They will also be available in the Student Union office, in department offices and in LaFortune for off campus residents, according to Tavis.

Bart Henderson, president of Sorin Hall, protested the outcome of the Homecoming Decoration Contest run by Student Union. According to Henderson, the contest was cancelled without notification of the halls.

This cancellation was due to a decision by the HPC not to submit a refundable $25 registration fee to the Student Union prior to the contest. Henderson contends that the $25 was not presented to the council as a registration fee but

Parent, Kovach win in local mayoral races

by Janet Rigaux
Senior Staff Reporter

Roger O. Parent, the heavy favorite in the South Bend mayoral race, won last night by a margin of 9229 votes in an unofficial tally.

His closest contender, H. Chris Overgaard, a local businessman, received 9590 votes.

A third candidate in the South Bend race, Hugh Aughinbaugh, a retired 72-year-old running on the American Party ticket, received 285 votes.

In a closer race, Robert Kovach is the new mayor of Mishawaka defeating incumbent Margaret Prickett by 500 votes in an unofficial tally.

According to Jack Colwell political reporter for the South Bend Tribune, "500 votes is a pretty safe margin to say Kovach is the definitive winner. The official tally will not be in until noon tomorrow, but I don't think that will change the results."

Kathy Barnard, Parent staff

supporter indicated the win was an important one for the democratic party. "Parent won and so did most of the rest of the ticket except for a few precincts. We feel it is a very significant victory."

Voter apathy was apparent in South Bend as less than 50 percent of the registered voters showed up at the polls as reported by the Channel 28 6 o'clock news.

It was a different story in Mishawaka. There 72 percent of the voters turned out to elect Kovach matching the 1972 high voter turn out.

In a lackluster race in South Bend, the major issues dealt with redevelopment of the downtown area and neighborhood revitalization. Parent, a Notre Dame graduate, is a long-time supporter of downtown redevelopment.

The Mishawaka race centered around Prickett's long tenure in office. If elected, this would have been her fifth term as mayor of Mishawaka.

Kennedy to debate Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy have accepted an invitation to debate each other at a newspaper-sponsored forum in Iowa in early January, it was learned yesterday. A White House official, who asked not to be named, said the president had accepted an invitation to the forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune. The Des Moines Register confirmed yesterday that Kennedy also had accepted the invitation. The Massachusetts senator was expected to announce today he will challenge the president for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination. The Carter camp believes that the president will be favored in a debate between the two on issues. "The president intends to run on his record," a Carter aide said. "It is our impression that Sen. Kennedy intends to run away from his."

Sex test causes suspension

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - School administrators weren't pleased when 10th grader Linda Heath passed out a questionnaire on teen-age sexuality, so she spent her 15th birthday on suspension. The two-page survey, a project for Miss Heath's 10th-grade journalism class at St. Petersburg High School, asked students to respond anonymously to questions such as: Do you feel there is pressure to have sex? Are you a virgin? Would you consider abortion? Is contraception necessary? Do you believe in premarital sex? Miss Heath, who served the one-day suspension Monday, said she would appeal. She said she had misunderstood the administration's denial of permission for teachers to distribute the questionnaire in their classes to mean she could pass it out herself, which she did during lunch and between classes. She said the issue was important to teen-agers, noting the school's guidance department told her 13 students became pregnant last year and seven pregnancies had been reported at the school so far this year.

Court blocks oil lease

WASHINGTON (AP) - Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. yesterday blocked the sale of oil-drilling leases in the Georges Bank, a major Atlantic Ocean fishing ground off New England's coast. Brennan, acting on an emergency request to postpone the opening of bids for the offshore oil-drilling rights, said no bid should be opened until further word from him or the full Supreme Court. Brennan's one-paragraph order was released at 3:40 p.m. It said a temporary postponement allowed by a federal appeals court so he could consider the emergency request "is hereby continued pending further order of the undersigned or of the court." The action threw a major monkey wrench into the bid-opening process. Under procedures set up by the federal government, all bids not opened by midnight Tuesday must be returned to the oil companies submitting them.

The PLO said Yasser Arafat has ordered a PLO delegation to Tehran to "secure the lives" of the embassy prisoners.

Hasan Abdel Rahman, deputy PLO observer at the United Nations in New York, told reporters he had been informed that the PLO delegation would leave Beirut, Lebanon, for Tehran early today but he did not know if PLO chief Arafat would be in the group.

Arafat has met with Khomeini in the past and forged an alliance between his guerrilla organization and Khomeini's revolutionary Islamic government. Rahman said Arafat "has sent instructions to our office in Tehran to use all possible means to secure the lives of the hostages." He said Arafat's move was "unilateral" and PLO officials had not discussed it with U.S. authorities.

One U.S. oil company officer in Washington, who asked that he not be identified, quoted "usually reliable sources" as saying Iran has begun a boycott of oil shipments to the United States, which receives up to 5 percent of its total oil imports from Iran.

Carter administration sources said the Central Intelligence Agency has determined that loading of U.S. oil tankers was halted at Kharg Island, Iran's main oil-loading terminal.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is "extremely concerned" about the situation and is trying to help mediate a peaceful solution, his spokesman said at the United Nations.

He gave no details on whom Waldheim was speaking with but pointed out that Iran had ratified various international accords for the protection of diplomats.

Khomeini ordered his council to run the government after accepting the resignation of Bazargan earlier in the day. Later, the council asked the ministers to continue their duties for the time being, Tehran radio reported in a broadcast monitored in London.

Addressing the hostage issue, Khomeini, speaking from the holy city of Qom in a radio broadcast reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, said: "Some people are now pressing that students should leave that embassy. But we cannot sit idlehanded when the United States is weaving conspiracies against us. We demand that the United States should extradite the criminal shah to us, and the British government should extradite criminal Bakhtiar," a reference to Shapour Bakhtiar, prime minister under the fallen government of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who is now being treated for cancer in New York.

Added Khomeini: "We shall take other steps if this is not done and if these criminals are

In yesterday's elections

Cleveland ousts Kucinich

(AP) - Dennis Kucinich, the maverick mayor who withstood a recall election and two defaults on Cleveland's city debt, lost his bid for a second term Tuesday while Democrats turned aside spirited Republican challenges to retain governorships in Kentucky and Mississippi.

John Y. Brown, a flamboyant millionaire businessman, defeated former Republican Gov. Louie Nunn in Kentucky, while former Lt. Gov. William Winter won in Mississippi.

Ohio's Republican lieutenant governor, George Voinovich, led Kucinich, a tart-tongued anti-establishment Democrat, 87,501 to 68,406 with more than 90 percent of Cleveland's vote counted.

"We sacrificed the mayor's office because we refused to bow and serve to the money power of this community," Kucinich told his disappointed supporters.

The nation's voters selected dozens of big city mayors in yesterday's "off year" elections.

In Philadelphia, former U.S. Rep. William J. Green easily defeated Republican David Marston in the race to succeed Mayor Frank Rizzo.

Boston Mayor Kevin White was reelected to an unprecedented fourth term, defeating a fellow Democrat, state Sen. Joseph Timilty.

Former Rep. Donald Fraser, a Democrat, won the Minneapolis mayoral race against a field including former Mayor Charles Stenvig, and Mayor Ted Wilson easily won reelection in Salt Lake City.

In San Francisco, Mayor Dianne Feinstein trailed Supervisor Quentin Kopp with 1 percent of the vote counted. Mrs. Feinstein, appointed to succeed George Moscone after he was slain last year, was trying for the third time to be the first woman elected to the job.

Candidates sought to speak

Mock convention plans take shape

by John Cassidy

"The Republican Mock Convention selects as their candidate for president..." That's the sound that will be heard next March 7, but even now plans for Notre Dame's Mock Convention are being conceived.

Bill Kresse, chairman of the Mock Convention said, "The party platform is already being developed and candidates are being sought to speak here. Ben Fernandez of California is already tentatively scheduled to speak on November 15."

"The convention will be run just as the Republican National Convention, only on a smaller scale. "We try to follow the rules as close as possible with a few modified restrictions. One of these will be that we'll have a fraction of the amount of delegates that the actual convention has. Hopefully, we'll have 1000 delegates as opposed to the 1900 or so at the national convention," said Kresse.

The convention will open on March 5 and run through March 8. Selection of a presidential candidate will be on March 7 with the choosing of the Vice-president March 8.

"At the last convention in 1976 the late Senator Hubert Humphrey was selected with Julian Bond as his running mate.

"Upon selection Humphrey was contacted by telephone and the conversation was heard at Stepan, Center where the convention is held. The candidate will be called again this year and it should be one of the highlights of the convention," said Kresse.

The '76 convention was for Democrats. The party out of office is always the party to hold the convention.

The convention is student-run with Prof. Carleton Sterling of the Government and International Relations department as an advisor to help in the planning. Expenses are paid for by the Student Activities fund with an allotment of $5,000.

The Mock Convention was founded in 1940 by the late Prof. Paul Bartholomew who classified it as, "A course in practical politics." This is the tenth convention since its creation with only the 1944 presidential election being missed due to World War II.

In the beginning the convention was only open to government majors. In 1956 it was finally open to everyone when Saint Mary's was allowed admittance.

On November 14 anyone interested in running a presidential campaign should contact the central planning committee. All Republican candidates plus anyone who is qualified will be allowed support in the mock convention.

"There will be a state chairman from every state. Ideally, the chairman should be a resident of the state he represents, but the delegates he selects don't have to be. The convention will be very ceremonial. There'll be a prominent member of the party as a keynote speaker each night, a formal invocation, and a band," said Kresse.

"The central planning committee sets up the convention, but it is up to the students to make it work," Kresse noted.

Khomeini's power grows in Iran

*by Thomas Kent
 Associated Press Writer*

The fall of Iran's tottering civilian regime would put the country under the formal control of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his allies - ending the infighting that was a major source of chaos but increasing the likelihood other serious problems will boil over. For months, many Iranian intellectuals, political liberals and members of national minorities have regarded Premier Mehdi Bazargan's government as their closest ally in the revolutionary regime. His resignation yesterday, if it goes through, could sharply increase political tensions, observers believe.

Khomeini has called for a shutdown of "non-Islamic" political parties and has dismissed dissident ethnic minorities as the dupes of "imperialism" and "communism."

Seventy-year-old Bazargan, a devout Moslem, is known as a soft-spoken human rights campaigner with a reputation as a skillful trouble-shooter in Iranian politics and a political moderate.

The premier, a former professor, tried to put Iran's rough-and-ready revolutionary justice under state control. After the February revolution, courts loyal to Khomeini ordered the execution of hundreds of secret police and politicians from the days of the monarchy, but Bazargan campaigned for all cases to be handled by established government courts.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was forced to flee the country before the revolution. He is being treated for cancer at a New York hospital now and students loyal to the Ayatollah are demanding the shah's extradition in exchange for hostages they have held since they took over the American Embassy in Tehran on Sunday.

Sources say government officials had urged Iranian moderation in relations with the United States, but Khomeini has been far more harsh in his attacks on Americans.

The Islamic Revolutionary Council, which reportedly took over Bazargan's powers, is a secret body close to Khomeini, believed to number about 15 persons.

The elimination of the government from the Iranian power structure would leave the Revolutionary Council, autonomy-minded ethnic minorities, liberal intellectuals and leftist groups as the main competitors for a say in how Iran is run.

The Revolutionary Council is likely to retain full control over the state radio and television, the army, the government's police and the legions of armed Khomeini Revolutionary guards that often competed with the Bazargan police for power.

Liberal intellectuals have support mainly from outside the country, as well as from some workers disillusioned with Khomeini's failure to carry out promises to end unemployment, poverty and other social ills. Liberals have limited access to the national press, which is not totally controlled by the regime.

Jepsen proposes compromise plan to salvage Chrysler Corporation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Roger Jepsen R-Iowa, proposed a compromise plan yesterday to salvage the ailing Chrysler Corp. through a combination of federal aid and reorganization under the bankruptcy laws.

"Limited federal aid can be used to smooth Chrysler's transition from a full-line carmaker to a smaller, more specialized firm which all analysts agree is necessary," Jepsen told the Senate.

Jepsen made his proposal as a House subcommittee prepared to hear testimony on the Carter administration's proposal for $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees to Chrysler.

A spokesman for the economic stabilization subcommittee of the House Banking Committee said Treasury Secretary G. William Miller and Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, would testify today.

The subcommittee will act on the proposal later this week.

Under the administration plan the loan guarantees would be conditioned on Chrysler obtaining a like amount of financing without government backing.

In Detroit Monday, Michigan labor leaders said they are concerned about a proposal to withdraw $15 million from the pension funds of seven unions for a mortgage loan to the nation's No. 3 automaker.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan has proposed the use of state-guaranteed pension money for a mortgage loan on Chrysler's Highland Park headquarters.

Chrysler has said it expects to lose $1 billion this year. Officials of the auto firm have said filing for reorganization would not work because people would be unwilling to buy cars from a company that was in bankruptcy court.

Jepsen, however, said reorganization would protect the company while ensuring that its owners and creditors "will bear their share of the cost."

In bankruptcy proceedings, a federal judge is empowered to reorganize a failing company and postpone payment of its debts in an effort to put the firm back on its feet.

"In my view, it is impossible for Chrysler to continue to operate as it has, as a full-line carmaker," Jepsen said. "The sooner the company begins to make the transition from full-line automaker to a more specialized automaker like American Motors, the better."

He said the limited aid that would be part of his proposal would be for the protection of workers, not stockholders and creditors.

The Senate Banking Committee plans to begin hearings on the administration's Chrysler aid proposal Nov. 4.

Intelligence head Kim kills Park for office

SEOUL, (AP) - South Korea's powerful intelligence chief assassinated President Park Chung-Hee without military or foreign help in a miscalculated attempt to install himself as president, according to the final report on the investigation issued yesterday.

The plot is spiced with mysterious women and a misfired gun, but the report places the blame for Park's death entirely on KCIA chief Kim Jae-Kyu, a close adviser to the president.

"He had the illusion he was best-suited for president," the report said. "He miscalculated that he could exercise influence over key leaders in the government and military."

The report said Kim began plotting alone in June to assassinate Park and his chief bodyguard and most trusted adviser, Cha Chi-Chul. The KCIA chief planned to have martial law declared as a first step to installing a military regime, eventually to be headed by him, it said.

The night of Oct. 26, when Park was killed in a dining room at a KCIA building, Kim sought military support for his plan by luring army chief of staff Gen. Chung Seung-hwa to a restaurant nearby, it said. Chung, now martial law commander, refused to join the plot.

At a news conference following release of the report, chief investigator Gen. Chon Doohwan vehemently denied the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency or any other outside power was involved in the plot.

The report said eight persons have been arrested and will be tried in an open military court at an unspecified date. They include Kim Jae-kyu, presidential chief secretary Kim Ke-won, five KCIA agents who killed four of Park's bodyguards and wounded another, and a KCIA agent who destroyed evidence. The maximum penalty for murder under Korean law is death.

The report said 111 persons were interrogated during the investigation, and 78 have been released. The remaining 33 persons will be witnesses, but it was unclear if they still are being detained.

Kennedy begins run for nation's highest office

WASHINGTON (AP) - The way the story goes, when John was president and Robert was his attorney general and Ted Kennedy was thinking of running for the Senate for the first time, their father told them:

"You boys have what you want now and everyone else helped you work to get it. Now it's Ted's turn. Whatever he wants, I'm going to see that he gets it."

They have been gone a long time, the brothers and the father, and Edward Moore Kennedy has been a United States senator for 17 years, longer than 85 of his colleagues. Now that Ted is finally taking his turn - announcing today that he's ready for the presidency that John had and Robert tried to get - he is helped by the most precious legacy left by the father: The Kennedy name.

The youngest of Joseph Kennedy's sons, at 47, is older than either of his brothers were when they ran for president. He has been in the Senate longer than they were and there are volumes of speeches, debates, hearings and votes available for anyone who wants to know where he stands.

But he is perhaps known best through tragedy: the assassinations of John and Robert, the World War II death of Joseph Jr., followed by the death of his sister, Kathleen, his own brush with death in a plane crash, Chappaquiddick, the alcoholism of his wife, Joan, the cancer that claimed the right leg of his son, Ted Jr.

He is the Kennedy who waited 10 hours before reporting the death of Mary Jo Kopechne at Chappaquiddick. He is the Kennedy who was booted out of Harvard for letting a stand-in take his Spanish exam. He is the Kennedy with the reputation of a womanizer.

His wife has lived in Boston in recent years while fighting alcoholism. "We've had difficult times, but I think we've made some good progress," Kennedy says.

They have three children, Kara Anne, 19; Edward Moore Jr., 18; and Patrick Joseph, 12.

With Kennedy an official candidate for president, a lot more people will look beyond the legacy of his name and at his record.

The record has earned him a 100 percent rating from that bulwark of liberalism, the Americans for Democratic Action. And the ultra-conservative Americans for Constitutional Action rated him near zero.

Yet Kennedy claims he is not a liberal in the classic mode. He says he doesn't think government can do everything better, or that Uncle Sam should always fine-tune the economy.

The issues where Kennedy and Carter differ are few and well known - principally national health insurance and energy.

The two are in general agreement on taxes, regulatory reform and foreign policy. That means the campaign may focus more on style than substance.

Like most New England Democrats in Congress, Kennedy opposes all attempts to lift price controls from oil and natural gas. Carter wants to phase out such price ceilings.

On national health insurance, Kennedy at first proposed having the government pay all medical costs. But he has slimmed that down to his current proposal with a pricetag of about $40 billion. That is one-third as costly as his original proposal but twice as expensive as Carter's plan.

Kennedy knows better than anyone the special risk a Kennedy has in running for president. "I don't have a false sense of danger," he said recently. "I have a realistic sense of it, but I'm not obsessed by it."

Heshburgh receives medal

Father Theodore M. Heshburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame, was awarded The College Board Medal for Distinguished Service to Education Monday during ceremonies at the Board's National Forum in New Orleans.

Father Heshburgh was cited for "his national leadership and service in the advancement of educational opportunity, and demonstrated commitment to the principles reflecting the mission and purpose" of the College Board.

In presenting the award, Dr. Norman C. Francis, president of Xavier University of Louisiana and chairman of the Medal Selection Committee, noted, "Father Heshburgh has exerted far-reaching influence in the expansion and equalization of educational opportunity, and although his leadership goes beyond the campus, he is regarded as one of the most distinguished college presidents."

The College Board Medal was first presented to nine educational leaders in 1976 as part of the Board's 75th anniversary observance.

Labor voice contributes in European corporations

LONDON (AP) - The proposed elevation of Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, to the Chrysler board of directors breaks new ground in the United States, but it's old hat in Europe.

Many European nations have learned that a labor voice in management does not guarantee industrial peace, increased productivity or "industrial democracy."

Worker representation on boards of directors or other decision-making bodies is firmly established in West Germany, Australia, the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries. The communist countries of Eastern Europe also have highly developed machinery for workers to have a say in management decisions.

In contrast, Britain, France, Italy and Switzerland have few or no worker-directors. Britain and Italy are among the five countries most seriously affected by labor troubles, based on working days lost to strikes. But Switzerland ranks top for industrial peace.

"Strikes are not decided by the supervisory board," says Joery Barczynski of IG Metall, the metal workers union in Frankfurt, West Germany.

"You don't believe anyone works more or better because there happen to be labor representatives on the board."

Where workers are included on boards of directors, labor representatives often complain that employers still manage to render them powerless.

"Union members on the board arrive at a loaded table," says Karl Alf, a metal worker ombudsman in Sweden.

In some countries workers have ways that stop short of the board room to influence management decisions - participation in supervisory councils and agreements for consultation with management.

In Italy, the Federazione Lavoratori Metalmeccanici won for its 1.5 million members the right to be informed about and examine companies' production, employment, budget and expansion plans. But spokeswoman Teresa Marchesi says,

"Our model is to participate through conflicts and contractual agreements but not at the same table as management."

Germany's move toward "mitbestimmung," or co-determination, began in 1920. World War II interrupted, but industrial bosses who fled the industrial Ruhr in fear of the Allies later trickled back to find their factories running without them.

Subsequent laws provided for nearly a half share for workers on big companies' supervisory boards, which oversee management boards in West Germany's two-tier system.

But union spokesmen say the board chairman's tie-breaking vote is the real key to power. Others complain that representatives of white-collar unions are inclined to vote with management.

A status report on other European nations:

Austria: Workers must have one-third of the votes on supervisory councils, roughly equivalent to the shareholders meeting of a U.S. corporation. Workers are not represented on company boards.

Belgium: Union representatives are on boards of state firms. Large companies have a workers' consultative body.

Britain: Unions are strong but have little or no representation in the board room except in state-owned enterprises such as the Post Office and British Steel. The labor government commissioned studies which proposed steps, never implemented, toward "industrial democracy." The current Conservative government favors employee participation through stockholding.

Denmark: Corporations with at least 50 workers must have two employee representatives on their boards. But, says one worker representative, "Workers will have no real influence in management until they control 50 percent of the shares."

France: Worker participation is nonexistent, but worker councils within industries confer with management on working conditions.

Netherlands: No workers are on company boards, but companies with more than 100 employees must have "work

Amnesty International opens chapter at Purdue University

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) The international makeup of Purdue University's student body and its faculty's worldwide reknown should be vital assets in the struggle to free political prisoners around the globe, a human rights activist says.

Barb Edwards, one of the organizers of Purdue's new Amnesty International chapter, says some West Lafayette residents are no strangers to human rights violations.

A Purdue student from Hong Kong said his father, a military instructor under former Nationalist Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek, still is being held in China almost 30 years after the Communists took over.

A former Purdue student from Argentina, now living in northern Indiana, told the group how government agents came to her home, raped her sister-in-law and then took her boyfriend, her brother and her sister-in-law to prison.

The woman, who asked not to be identified for fear of retaliation against family members still in Argentina, said it was four months before she discovered where there were being held.

"They (government officials) told me that 'Who is not with us is against us,'" she said, adding, "My story is the story of a lot of people in my country."

Edwards said she was surprised and delighted at the response to her efforts to establish a chapter. About 50 persons showed up for the organizational meeting, including professors.

Those professors could use their leverage to obtain the release of prisoners or ensure their safety in foreign countries, she said.

"We could probably be one of the most efficient chapters in the state. Purdue is famous in agriculture, engineering, science, physics and chemistry," Edwards said. "AI relies on pressure to government officials, and if an important physicist were to start writing and signing petitions, they're going to look at them a lot more closely."

Such tactics have proven successful in the past, she said, citing a Canadian nuclear physicist who used his leverage as a member of a nuclear regulatory board to obtain the release of a political prisoner in Paraguay.

The country had asked Canada to build a reactor for it and was sensitive to any delays because of human rights.

The chapter, formed earlier this fall, is waiting for the international headquarters to assign it the cases of two political prisoners. AI members will then write to the countries holding the individuals and try to hasten their release.

'Underworlds' theme highlights Beaux Arts Ball

by Mike O'Brien

It is well known that architects combine several aspects of construction to create a building. It is becoming more and more known that architects can also bring together rich traditions with interesting themes to create a unique Notre Dame event - the annual Beaux Arts Ball.

The Beaux Arts Ball is according to co-chairman Joe Behles, a yearly costume party sponsored by the University Architecture students and set in the tradition of a similar event held by the Beaux Arts school of Architecture in Paris, France. The original masquerade was well attended by the elite of Paris often including royalty and members of the aristocracy.

The Notre Dame Beaux Arts Ball is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. on Saturday in the Architecture building. This year's theme is "The Underworlds", one that co-chairman Behles says could inspire costumes ranging from gangsters to fish to ghosts or goblins.

Included in the $3.50 admission cost ($3.50 at the door) are refreshments and entertainment by "The Humans", a rock and roll dance band.

Although Behles said the Ball is the major social event of the year for architecture students, he stressed that the whole student body is invited. Commenting from his personal memories of past dances, Behles called the ball "a high energy affair" bordering on the "wild and crazy".

In conjunction with the affair, the dance committee will hide two tickets to the Ball as well as an added surprise somewhere on campus. Clues to the treasure's whereabouts will be published in the Observer.

Further information on the Beaux Arts Ball can be obtained by calling Joe Behles (233-5422) or the Architecture department.

ND Grad at WNDU Anne Duffy

"It's tough to get in to TV broadcasting. I would say that I was lucky," says John Sparks of WNDU TV when discussing his personal reactions to the business.

Sitting relaxed on the sofa, arms folded, the ND alumnus continues. "TV is not glamorous at all, which is hard to believe. It's work," he says, and adds, "the biggest problems are nerves." He went on to explain that jittery nerves result from not having enough time to research a story carefully and check out every fact. "Yet, you can't afford to be inaccurate."

To illustrate his point, Sparks recalls that three times in the last two weeks, he was called out to do a report for the 6 p.m. news and did not return to the studio until 5:30 p.m. He had a half an hour to prepare the story to be conversational, yet factually and grammatically correct.

Born and raised in Miami Florida, Sparks came to South Bend in 1973 to attend the University of Notre Dame. He graduated with a degree in American Studies and became a reporter, photographer, weekend weather man, and video tape editor for a station in West Palm Beach, Florida six months after his graduation in 1977. He came to WNDU this year and is presently co-anchoring, producing, and reporting the late news.

He notes that an education provides prospective broadcasters with a good background, yet it cannot practically prepare a person for the work. Schools can teach diction and quick comprehension, Sparks conceded, but they can't teach a person to be an announcer. "He needs to have common sense and the desire to get outside experience. Journalism degrees are a dime a dozen," he says. Grinning, he adds that "training starts when you are young. You either have it or don't when you go to school." Furthermore, Sparks holds that the self confidence and ability to "roll with the punches" necessary for broadcasting must be a part of the makeup of a person desiring a career in television. They are qualities not taught in school.

Part-time practical experience in broadcasting is essential for a broadcasting student, Sparks says. He cites two reasons for this prerequisite; stations do not hire anyone without some previous exposure to the field, and the student may change his mind once he gets a taste of the business.

Sparks says that he thought he wanted to go into radio broadcasting as a freshman at Notre Dame. He sought part-time employment at a local station, WRBR. "When I got my job at WRBR, I got disillusioned. I felt I was wasting my education screaming into a microphone at 14-year olds all day," he comments.

Discussing his aspirations in the broadcasting field, Sparks reports that he would like to some day be a network reporter or a free-lance reporter. He expects to move on to bigger cities before he settles down.

"Right now, I'm learning all I can, I'll worry about my future in the future."

Horsing Around in Michiana Patty Sheehan

Have you ever wanted to go trail riding but have never been on a horse? Or do you feel like getting a beach ride together but don't know of the perfect spot? Or how about learning new techniques to practice on your horse back home? If you can answer yes to any of these questions then the opportunity to ride in Michiana awaits you!

One of the most popular riding stables frequented by Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students is Michiana Riding Stables, just off I-94 in Michigan City, about a 45 minute drive. They offer a 4 1/2 mile trail over 61 1/2 acres of land. The guided trail ride is $6, a solo trek is $8.

Various types of riding are offered, including English Hunt Seat and Flat Seat. For those not familiar with horsey jargon, "Hunt Seat" riders wear protective helmets called hunt caps, and guide the horse over fences with both hands on double reins. "Flat Seat" riders work the horses in a ring at a walk, trot and canter, cueing the horses to move at the desired gaits.

Alicia Wright, the instructor, gives private lessons for $12 per hour, $9 per hour for two to three people, and $7 per hour for four or more. Michiana Riding Stables is open every day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and lessons are given on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays.

The owner, Betty Mezel, points out that their evening activities include an 18-mile beach ride in which they supply the food at a cost of $18 per person. Hay rides pulled by draft horses can be organized for 25-30 people for about $3 per person.

More than just a weekend rider? Three years ago, students regularly participated in a riding program with Laughing Place Stables in Niles, but the owner's death forced it to close. Tom Kerner, the owner of Four Flags Stables, has "captured the tradition of Laughing Place" with the help of Betsy Walthan, a former instructor at Laughing Place. Riding lessons in Hunt Seat in a Ring, Hunt Seat over Fences and English Equitation are given with a string of 12 Thoroughbred and Thoroughbred-Quarter horses. This includes indoor and outdoor arenas, and hunt and jump courses set on 25 acres of land. Sessions are offered on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. on for $10 per private lesson and $8.50 per group lesson.

Four Flags Stables is located on Red Bud Trail, six miles north of Buchanan, about a 20-minute drive. Judging clinics have been held and plans are being made to hold a handicapped-riding clinic in the spring.

Amidst the activities of English riding, Western riding reigns in the West and Midwest and is very popular in the Michiana area. One of the most qualified and most convenient stables for Western riding is only 15 minutes away off of U.S. 31 in Niles. Keith Heil's Training Stables is situated on five acres of land and Margaret Lang, the instructor, offers lessons in Western Pleasure and Equitation using the stable's 20 Quarter horses.

"Western Pleasure" riders work the horses in a ring at a walk, trot, and canter, using one hand on a single rein and sitting in a saddle with a hor. "Equitation" involves improving the techniques of the rider in his performance with the horse.

A heated indoor ring is used for private lessons at $15 per lesson and group lessons at $10 per lesson. Group lessons are held on Saturdays 11:30-2:30; and private lessons can be scheduled with the instructor.

Niles is also the town of riding stables that specialize in certain aspects of riding, such as Don Alsbro's Stables, training in Flat Seat only. Michiana Morgan Stables works only with Morgan horses. More information concerning these stables or any of the others described above can be obtained by contacting Patty Sheehan #5120 (SMC).

Student Players -Getting Underway Gerard Curtin

To the casual observer, it must seem that theater productions are rampant these days. Broadway is enjoying patronage unimaginable a few years ago, and plays by new writers are being successfully presented all over the country. Most cities, and some larger towns have a theater group in residence, or at least ready access to the live stage. This enthusiasm has spread to many colleges and universities, as is illustrated by the formation of performing groups supported and run by students.

Happily, Notre Dame is no exception, with the "Notre Dame Student Players". The "Student Players" is an independent student group which presents plays of its own choice each semester, in conjunction with the Cultural Arts Commission of the Student Union.

Five years ago, Lou Spisto, a former Notre Dame student, saw a need at Notre Dame for an independent theater group that would present Arts Commission The Student Players receives financial support.

The Student Players have dealt primarily with light, entertaining plays, musicals, and comedies. The first production was a comedy by Neil Simon, "The Star Spangled Girl". Among the plays they have presented in the past are; "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" a musical based on the characters in Charles Schultz's "peanuts" comic strip, and "The Fantastics", a very successful musical.

In preparation for the upcoming production, each semester, a director is chosen who then submits a list of plays he would like to do. One of the plays on this list is selected, and is presented by the Student Players.

This semester's production is "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off", directed by Notre Dame sophomore Jeff Mousseau. Remarking on the upcoming production, a musical, Theresa Rebeck, the publicity director for Student Players said, "There has been a tremendous amount of work put into this play. The cast has worked very hard on the choreography and music, and it looks like it will be an excellent show. Since we have worked so hard on this, we'd really like to see a lot of student support...it should be an entertaining evening for all."

"Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" will be presented by the Notre Dame Student Players on Friday and Saturday, November 9 and 10, and Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17. Performances will be at 8:00p.m. in Washington Hall.

Consider Ireland . . .

Last September, twenty-four Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students boarded a Dublin-bound Aer Lingus 747 at Kennedy Airport in New York. They were the second group of students to be sent to study at Saint Patrick's College, Maynooth, through Saint Mary's Ireland program.

Dr. Eileen Kane's anthropology lectures. "Sausages, chips, and beans AGAIN for tea?" A pint or two and a game of foosball at the students' pub. Graduation Ball.

Thumbing to Galway to track down third, fourth, and fifth cousins--found some living in the same thatched cottage my great-grandmother had grown up in. Trying to convince them I did not want to marry the farmer down the lane, despite his great herd of cows, thanks.

Wednesday night discos; Rod Stewart, Smokie, Ian Drury, oh, no, Boney M. again? Alright, Boomtown! Then the slow set begins with Garfunkel's "Bright Eyes."

Thursday morning hangovers. Irish Culture Class. Tara, the Hill of Kings. Passage graves at Newgrange. Solitary strolls down the deserted strands of Inisheer, one of the Aran Islands.

"Fiddler on the Roof." Jews with Irish accents? The song contest.

Graffiti in Belfast; "IRA-I ran away." "Peace in, Brits out." On charred brick walls. Armed soldiers in the streets.

A five-month mail strike. Running out of oil, sleeping on mattresses around an electric fire. "Hey, that's MY hot water bottle!"

And, of course, socializing and philosophizing in the pubs, over pints of Guinness ("Just Between Friends"). Closing time; "Have ye no homes to go to!" Quick stop at Fuscaldi's for fish and chips.

Looking back, there's only one incident I regret about my sophomore year abroad--and that occurred upon my return to the States. At the Customs desk at O'Hare Airport, an official demanded I pay duty on a bottle of whiskey I'd stowed away in my carry-on satchel. Penniless, the first words I shouted to my parents on American soil were "Hey, can you throw me some money?!"

I wish it could have been "thank you"--for letting me go, and for welcoming me back.

I was one of those students, chewing on my passport and struggling with my eighty-pound backpack, wondering how I would be able to survive a year away from my family, friends, and God forbid, Taco Bell. It didn't seem possible.

I not only survived, but regard my eight months on that far-away island as a high point of experience and education. Images of Ireland return to me at a photograph, a tune, a chance meeting with another ex-Maynoother. Confetti-sized bits of silence. Escaping to the canteen for an eight-pence cup of tea, and feeling I'd led a very sheltered life.

Laughter in Liturgy

Bob Bernowski

Why so little laughter in our churches? Why the scarcity of laughter in liturgical celebrations?

My reflections originated at a prayer service I once attended. No less than four distinct periods for the observance of silence were indicated in the pamphlet for the service. What would happen, I thought, if someone slipped in a directive to laugh? I could see the theological brows pirouetting already!

How would a congregation react to such an unprecedented directive? The times I have heard congregational chuckling have been few, what I enjoyed most was not the laughter itself, but rather the bravery of its incongruity.

When you think about it, laughter is conspicuously absent from any formal gathering or worshippers. We have silence and weeping at weddings more silence and weeping at funerals. During regular services, there is that inseparable combination of silence and solemnity. I contend that it is time laughter be elevated to an honored position in divine worship.

Don't get me wrong—I am not proposing to disenfranchise other forms of adoration. These expressions hold time-honored positions in church tradition, and I would be the first to affirm their value.

But if we are to have services reflective of human capacities and if we go before our Lord as ourselves, totally and completely human, why then should we suppress our propensity to laugh?

Some would say that laughter is much too temporal, cheerful and picayune to be suitable company for

Yet I believe Jesus laughed eagerly and robustly, and I willingly forgive the holy evangelists for overlooking that fact in the urgency of their communiques. If Jesus in fact knew the eternal, incorruptable and divine. But this is man's opinion, but I don't believe it is God's.

Somewhere in the evolution of religious consciousness we created an ever widening gap between what was considered sacred and what was considered profane. Consequently, this has determined what would or would not be used in church services.

Our eyes became too discriminating and the umbrella of sanctity was not made large enough to adequately cover all the blessed things in life. the worthiness of all creation to come before the Lord shrank to a fraction of creation, compact and manageable enough to be straightjacketed in sober solemnity.

A chronic laughter I am not. Yet for any healthy life laughter is essential. If I were to end a day without once having laughed, I would consider that day rather empty. With laughter the mundane is made tolerable, what is tense is made pliable, and the intimidating seems inconsequential.

Laughter is universal, soothing and enriching. So, I ask, shall laughter continue its exile in our streets, our homes and our parties? Or shall it at long last be admitted into the territory of the sanctuary?

One may say Scripture is mute as far as a jolly god is concerned. God punishes and thwarts. He condemns and annihilates. His son was mocked by the crowds, persecuted by enemies, abandoned by friends and nailed to a cross. Towing the burdens of a sinful mankind leaves no opportunity for laughter. In the New Testament we are told Jesus wept. But nowhere does it say Jesus laughed. Messiahship, we are led to believe, is a draining job.

the Father, he must also have known what a card the father really was, is and will be. The Father's now-you-see-me-now-you-don't incognito approach, is unequalled mischievousness. Burning bushes, gentle breezes, clouds and doves, are typical of this merry masquerader. Would anything other than divine wit send a man and his family on a forty day cruise with a zoo?

There is a level of understanding which automatically reveals the lex non-scripta (unwritten law, of life: All things were created with a smile, the smile was beautiful.

Look around. God left ample evidence of his comic intent. He formed us from the very dust we purchase vacuums to eliminate. He exalts the lowly and brings down the mighty. He dupes us with apples and staggers us with grapes - The Archetypal Top Banana.

Filled with His Spirit, we have done well in extending this heavenly jocosity. God gives us the seasons, and we use them to gab. He gives us our gender, and we use it to blush. He gives us a mind so we can forget, and professors who will remind us. God does it all with love, then calls us to his side, saving the best laugh for last--triumph over death.

Good laughter is far from dispensable. It is serious business and mastery the art of laughter is worthy grace. With a more comprehensive vision of holiness, the lessening of restrictive and austere worship becomes all the more probable. Liturgical gatherings will blossom and I presume, God will be tickled pink at the prospect.

"What is a Mail Campaign" will be the topic of a presentation/discussion by Mr. Paul Reynolds, Placement Specialist at Notre Dame.

The talk, outlining the importance of a well-constructed resume and letter application during a student's job search, will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Hayes-Healy Auditorium.

Paris and the embassy takeover ended peacefully six hours later.

Yesterday, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher denounced the student takeover of the U.S. embassy, calling it "an outrage to diplomatic relations everywhere."

Prime Minister Bazargan, whose earlier offers to resign were rejected by Khomeini, left office because of Khomeini's escalating anti-American campaign, an official of the premier's office said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press's bureau in Nicosia Cyprus.

The Carter administration had been negotiating with Barzargan's government for the release of the hostages, who reportedly include seven or eight Iranians.

President Carter met yesterday with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, National security adviser Zbigniew Brezezinski and other top advisers to discuss the crises, which began Sunday when the demonstrators sieged the U.S. embassy compound in downtown Tehran.

Their demand that the Americans be exchanged for ousted Shah was rejected again yesterday by the U.S. government.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell announced the administration did not intend to use force to free the hostages, an operation which he said would be difficult to mount in any case.

Asked about the death threat, one State Department official who asked not to be identified by name said: "You're dealing with a mob."

Senate Committee votes on Salt II

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously yesterday to regard any significant improvements in the range and capability of the Soviet Backfire bomber as justifying U.S. withdrawal from the SALT II treaty.

Also, by an 8-7 margin, the committee rejected an understanding offered by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, that would have required the Soviet Union to agree not to increase the range or payload of the Backfire or to increase production beyond the present rate of 30 a year.

The Glenn amendment vote, announced after it was taken during a two-hour secret committee session, was the latest in a series of votes in which the committee rejected so-called "killer amendments," which the administration fears would prompt the Soviet Union to pull out of the treaty.

In other action, the committee voted 9 to 6 to reject an understanding that would have required the Soviet Union to agree explicitly that the use of an antisatellite weapon against U.S. intelligence-gathering satellites would be a violation of the treaty.

However, in a 15-0 vote, the committee took the lesser step of agreeing to communicate that position to the Soviet Union as U.S. policy not requiring Soviet approval.

The committee might be ready to finish its months of work on the treaty today.

In the final days of committee action, the panel's Republican minority voted to hire a leading critic of the pact, retired Army Lt. Gen. Edward L. Rowney, as an official consultant.

Chapel choir records new album

The Notre Dame Chapel Choir will record its second album today "Song of David." The album will include psalms and canticles by Dr. David Clark Isele, including the "Te Deum," as well as a piece which Don Salliers wrote for the choir entitled "Rejoice and Sing Now." Prof. Sue Martin will conduct the 63 member mixed ensemble and the album will be released on December 1st.

The choir will also make its first weekend tour of the year on November 9-11, traveling to Grand Rapids, Mich.

Arrested Klan, Nazi members air views

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) - Sixteen-year old Claude McBride often tagged along with his parents at Ku Klux Klan rallies. Sometimes he wore a Nazi wrist band to school.

"I believe the way the Klan believes, and I've raised my kids to believe the same - not to mix the races," said McBride's mother, Gail Caudle.

McBride and his stepfather, Rayford Caudle, are among 14 whites, most linked with the Klan or Nazi groups, held on charges stemming from the slayings of five persons at an anti-Klan rally in Greensboro on Saturday.

Mrs. Caudle, interviewed at the family's small, one-story white frame house in northeast Winston-Salem, said McBride dropped out of school in the ninth grade this year "because he got messed up on what bus to take."

Boger City near Lincolnton. A native of Hickory, he grew up on Railroad Street, a group of decaying mill homes. His mother, Dolly Flowers, said he didn't own a gun and never discussed the Klan.

"He called Saturday night from jail and asked how we all were," she said. "I was scared. I'd seen on TV all those men shooting. I had no idea he was involved with that."

Roland Wayne Wood, 34, of Winston-Salem, who works for a construction company and has a 10-year old son, said early last month that he founded a Nazi unit in Winston-Salem about seven months ago.

Colleen Sprinkler, a neighbor, said Wood "used to be a Nazi, but now he's in the Klan. He told us that."

Wood has a police record that includes convictions for larceny and forgery. Regarding the Klan, he said, "We love them, they're our white brothers."

Bruce Tarkington principal of Mineral Springs Junior High school, said McBride often wore a Nazi wrist band and the letters KKK written on his arm.

Mrs. Caudle said her son transferred from Dalton Junior High to Mineral Springs because some blacks threatened to beat him and his younger brother, Tim.

McBride was the youngest of the 14 arrested in the attack on members of a communist group staging a "Death to the Klan" rally.

Another of the accused is Billy Joe Franklin, 33, of Boger City, who was laid off two weeks ago from his job as an upholsterer for Pilot Furniture Co. in Newton.

Franklin was persuaded by his wife, Linda, to join the Klan about two months ago, said his brother Jerry.

"Billy Joe can't read and write and she had to read all the stuff about the Klan to him and get him to sign up as a member," Jerry Franklin said.

Infants suffer, face almost certain death in Asian refugee hospital

SA KAEW, Thailand (AP) - There is an unexpected sound among the sighing and coughing at the refugee hospital here--the squall of newborn babies struggling for life in a world of the sick and dying.

At this camp jammed with 30,000 Cambodians the babies are born too weak, too thin, wizened like old men, many destined to die within days from the starvation and disease that sapped their mothers' strength.

Twenty infants were born in the camp's first week of operation, but many were doomed before their lives began. Some are born already suffering from malaria, transmitted through their mothers' bloodstreams, an unusual phenomenon observed by doctors here.

The newborns who do not survive are part of a daily death toll that fluctuates sharply--42 on Friday, 25 on Saturday--in this camp 50 miles west of the Cambodian border.

Margaret Boothby, an Australian volunteer nurse at the makeshift hospital, said one baby died of malnutrition shortly after his birth this weekend. "I tried to help, but I was too late."

But she found another child--and this, the smallest one in camp, may live.

"At first I thought it was just a pile of clothes," but when she looked more closely at the pile of black cloth she found a tiny, wrinkled boy, his arms thinner than a woman's finger. He weighed little more than two pounds, but he has begun to gain a little and may be one of the survivors.

Mrs. Boothby tried to pull the tiny boy away, but his mother, 26-year old Yang of Cambodia's Battambang province, clutched him to her and cried out, "Who is taking my baby?"

"I thought someone was trying to steal my baby," Yang said later from her place on a straw mat rolled out on the hospital's dirt floor.

She was half-paralyzed from a stroke and grotesquely swollen from disease, lying there among the terribly emaciated patients. There are 2,000 people here seriously ill with malaria, tuberculosis and the ever-present severe malnutrition.

Yang was too ill to feed her baby and nurse Boothby gave him hourly bottles.

He was the smallest baby in the camp, but Yang's son was older than the others who lay squalling around him. He was born 16 days ago in a Cambodian village--three days before word went out that the Vietnamese soldiers were coming and the villagers fled.

Fighting between troops of the Vietnam-backed government of Heng Samrin and guerrillas of the deposed Pol Pot has driven hundreds of thousands of Cambodians into the hills, many of them eventually finding sanctuary in Thailand at camps like this. The disruptions of war have caused a massive famine.

Yang was already weak and ill by the time the warning came, but her husband carried her and their baby into the jungle with the rest of the villagers, along with their malnourished 10-year old daughter and 8-year old son.

In Mississippi, Winter thwarted Republican Gil Carmichael's bid to end 11 decades of Democratic control of the governorship. With more than half the vote counted, Winter led 234,474-159,884.

In Kentucky, Brown took a convincing victory over Nunn. With 95 percent of the votes counted, Brown led by 531,624 to 368,137.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll, like Gov. Cliff Finch of Mississippi and Rizzo in Philadelphia, was barred by law from re-election.

Mayors were being elected in 49 of the 163 cities with populations of more than 100,000.

Democrat William Schaefer won a third term in Baltimore, while Republican William Hudnut was reelected in Indianapolis. Democrat Biagio "Ben" DiLieto was elected in New Haven where he bumped off Mayor Frank Logue in a primary election.

In Gary, Ind., Democrat Richard Hatcher won a third term, as did Republican Margaret Hance of Phoenix and Republican Tom Moody of Columbus, Ohio. Democrat Doug DeGood earned a second term in Toledo.

In Houston, Mayor Jim McCon led a large field but failed to poll enough votes to avoid a runoff on Nov. 20. He will face his chief critic, Councilman Louis Macey.

Municipal elections traditionally provide an off-year test of voter sentiment. Democrats control most city governments, and slippage there is generally taken as a bellwether of things to come.

... Results

Mississippi and Kentucky also were considered important because of 1980 presidential implications. Both were key to President Carter's election in 1976, and Republican control of their state machinery in 1980 could cause problems for any Democratic nominee.

First Lady to visit Thailand

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rosalynn Carter will make a fact-finding tour of Cambodia refugee camps in Thailand this week to focus international attention on the problem.

"It's one of the moral issues of our day," Mrs. Carter said after a meeting with staff members and representatives of the United Nations and Red Cross. "We can't let people starve."

Mrs. Carter, accompanied by the U.S. surgeon general, Dr. Julius B. Richmond, was scheduled to depart today and return Saturday.

She said she and the president had discussed last week what to do about the plight of the 300,000 refugees, plagued by famine, malnutrition and other diseases.

Over the weekend, Mrs. Carter said, a government official she would not identify, suggested that the president make the journey. But Carter could not go, and so Mrs. Carter was asked to lead the mission.

"We still did not know if it was the right thing or not, but we decided yesterday that I would go," she said.

Boilers try to peak for Michigan

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) - Purdue's Boilermakers, banged up with a variety of injuries, are looking for a tough game against Michigan, and Coach Jim Young said Tuesday he hopes his squad hasn't already peaked.

"Iowa was from our standpoint a game we really had to get up and play, because we played poorly against Northwestern the week before," Young said of last week's 20-14 victory over the Hawkeyes.

"Our team played with a lot of emotion. We put an awful lot into the Iowa game. We'll certainly be ready to play Michigan, but you can reach only so many peaks, and I felt we reached one peak against Iowa."

"It's a concern," he told writers and broadcasters in his weekly telephone news conference, "although I hope it doesn't happen."

The Boilermakers will be without receiver Mike Harris, who suffered a broken jaw. Fullback Mike Augustyniak has been hobbled with a knee injury, although he is expected to play against the Wolverines on Saturday; fullback John Macon has a dislocated shoulder, and freshman tailback Jimmy Smith the third-leading rusher, quit the team for personal reasons.

"We have a number of people banged up, a lot of people questionable for this week," Young said. "I don't know exactly what their situation will be."

Young said Michigan, which beat the Boilermakers 24-6 last year at Ann Arbor, has an "outstanding football team. They have great speed in the offense, receivers and running backs. Their quarterback (John Wangler) has come in there and done a fine job."

Young, a former assistant under Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, said the Wolverines' defense has "the outstanding defense in the country."

"They have great quickness in strength, and they play the pass extremely well. They played extremely well in the last two years. There's no question it's an important game."

Young also expressed concern with the Michigan defensive line.

"We'll have our work cut out for us up front," he said. "But you can't change your offense. You just go and do the best possible job you can."

Michigan stands 6-0 in the Big Ten and 8-1 overall. Purdue, 5-1 in the conference and 7-2 for all games, must win to keep alive its slim hopes for a Big Ten championship.

Al Rosen, former president of the New York Yankees, and Cedric Tallis, former General manager of the Yankees, would become involved in operation of the Denver franchise, the AP has learned.

A knowledgeable source told the AP that negotiations should be completed this month, allowing the transaction to be presented to the American League in December during the annual winter meetings in Toronto.

... Fry

office people go out of their way to make the whole thing as comfortable as possible."

Fry survived the year and arrived in Latrobe, Pa., for the 1979 training camp with high hopes and a renewed vigor for the game of football. He was a rookie all over again and it was time to justify Chuck Noll's faith in him by showing that he could do on the field.

He started the summer at middle linebacker behind all-pro Jack Lambert and number-two Dennis Winston.

"They tried me at offensive line and I must admit that I wasn't real happy there," said Fry.

"I have always been a defensive player and, as such, the natural aggressiveness that comes with playing defense hampered me on offense." He claims he was happier playing linebacker despite being listed behind Lambert and Winston.

"I like the position and I thought I was doing real well," he points out. The reason he says "was" as opposed to "is" is because he isn't...playing, that is. He sustained a shoulder injury early in camp and is again spending his time on the injured reserves list. This time he is even more disappointed than before and with obvious reason.

"When you sit out that long and then come back, you just don't expect it to happen again," he says. "I was ready and very excited about playing again and then I suffered another injury."

Still, with all the defensive talent Chuck Noll can call on, he has opted to keep Fry on the roster for another year when he could have easily cut him without much question. The Steelers pay his salary, watch him practice and wait until he gets a real chance to show how well he can play.

Will he or won't he? It remains to be seen.....

best overall winning percentage gets the Rose Bowl nod. In that case, the Buckeyes would be 10-1 for a .909 percentage. Purdue and Michigan, both 9-2, would have .818 percentages. "If Ohio State beats Iowa," Big Ten official Jeff Elliott said Tuesday, "everything is eliminated, including Purdue. It comes down to the fact that Michigan then would have to beat Ohio State." If both Michigan and Ohio State triumph this week, they will carry 7-0 Big Ten records into the Rose Bowl showdown the following week. Purdue would be out of Rose Bowl contention.

The set of guidelines to settle the Big Ten's Rose Bowl representative came as the result of a suggestion by the conference's coaches.

What triggered their successful proposal was back-to-back controversial votes by Big Ten athletic directors in 1973 and 1974. In both instances, Ohio State was chosen over Michigan, to the dismay of Wolverine Coach Bo Schembechler.

Michigan and Ohio State played a 10-10 tie in 1973 to leave both teams with 7-0-1 conference records. The bitter rivals also posted identical overall marks of 10-0-1 that season.

The Buckeyes beat the Wolverines 12-10 in 1974. Both teams claimed the championship that year with identical 7-1-0 Big Ten marks. However, Michigan was 10-1-0 overall while Ohio State was 9-2-0.

At that time, the Big Ten permitted only one team to play in a post-season game - The Rose Bowl. That meant Michigan, even though its overall record during those two years was 20-1-1, was forced to stay home both times.

Since then, conference regulations have been amended to allow as many as three Big Ten teams to go to bowl games.

Last season, Michigan played in the Rose Bowl, Purdue in the Peach Bowl and Ohio State in the Gator Bowl. Two seasons ago, the Wolverines were in the Rose Bowl, the Buckeyes in the Sugar Bowl and Minnesota in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Sailing Club qualifies for Nationals

Notre Dame's Sailing Club finished third this weekend in the District A tournament, thus qualifying for the fall nationals to be held over Thanksgiving break in Chicago.

Flag football ends today

St. Mary's interhall flag football season will come to an end this Thursday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. when Regina meets McCandless Hall. This fall's championship game will determine rankings for spring competition, from which the winner will go to play a team from Notre Dame during An Tostal.

... National Championship

New Year's Day.

Texas should be out of it after Houston beats them on Saturday, but for insurance sake it would be nice if the Longhorns would lose one of their other three.

Arkansas has to be upset in one of the final three. Wherever you've got the best connections (Baylor, Texas A&M, or Southern Methodist) will be fine.

Michigan has to beat Purdue and Ohio State and then play in one of the worst Rose Bowls in history. I don't care who wins. How about a tie?

Make both teams look bad, say six or seven fumbles a piece.

Brigham Young? You've got to be kidding. Oh well, let them lose to Long Beach, Utah or San Diego State.

Pittsburgh should lose to hapless Penn State in the regular season finale.

Notre Dame, of course, has to destroy Tennessee, Clemson, Miami, and Alabama.

By the way, the more lopsided each game is the better. But then I don't want to ask for too much.

See ya Sunday.

As a Steeler

Fry waits on injured reserve

PITTSBURGH--Willie Fry. Most of you remember the name. He was the "other" defensive end on a line that featured all-world Ross Browner on the opposite side. Between that set of bookends stood columns of rewritten record books.

However, Browner received most of the credit and all of the glory while Fry played most of his career in Number Eighty-Nine's shadow. But many who watched from freshman year to graduation thought that Fry was every bit as good.

Maybe better; or so believed the Pittsburgh Steelers when they made Fry their number-two draft pick in 1978. If there were any questions about Fry's ability, Steeler coach Chuck Noll answered them all. You see, Noll seldom makes an error in the high rounds of Pete Rozelle's annual talent free-for-all. And his forte has been defense where he's snagged such prizes as Joe Greene, Jack Lambert, Mel Blount, Jack Ham and Ron Johnson since taking over the Steelers in 1969.

So, when Noll took Willie Fry in the second round of the draft, a lot of knowledgeable people conceded that the kid must have done something right to impress the Steelers—a team well-stocked at every defensive position. And then, when Noll released all-pro defensive lineman Ernie Holmes, well, the chances that Willie Fry would wear a black and gold uniform looked good indeed.

In his first professional football game, a pre-season match-up with the Baltimore Colts, Fry looked promising. You could tell he was a rookie because he made rookie mistakes. But, it appeared to be just a matter of time before he would make the team, serve his internship on special teams and then make his mark as a member of the heralded Steel Curtain.

Stop the presses, because it didn't happen that way.

Not quite.

After suffering torn ligaments in both hands during training camp, Fry spent the entire 1978 season on the injured list—Rozelle's answer to Purgatory. When one is unlucky enough to be placed on injured reserves, he is payed, he practices and he is part of the team—he just cannot suit up on Sunday. For a person used to playing every game, the experience can be frustrating.

"Hey, I didn't like it one bit," Fry told Pittsburgh sportscaster Myron Cope before the Steeler-Denver Bronco game on October 22. "You work out, practice—you're a part of the team, but you don't play or travel or contribute during a game. I feel lucky to be a member of the Steeler organization because the players, coaches and front

Soccer team finishes season with victory over Valparaiso

VALPARAISO--The Notre Dame soccer team closed their season on a high note yesterday, as they defeated Valparaiso, 5-0, in a one-sided affair. Their season now over, the Irish finished with a respectable 20-10-1 record, their second 20-win season in three years of varsity play.

Goalies Gerard McCarthy and Joe Giglia combined for the shutout, but were hardly pressed all day, as Valpo could only manage five shots on goal for the game. Notre Dame countered with 49 shots, and spent most of the day in front of the Crusader goal.

The combination of Steve

Kraemer and Mike Mai provided the Irish with all the scoring they needed for the game. Kraemer opened the scoring, with an assist from Mai, and then returned the favor by setting up Mai's goal, giving the Irish a 2-0 lead that would never be challenged.

Other goals were scored by Dan McCurrie, a senior playing his final game for Notre Dame, Mario Manta, and Eddie Graham, who scored the first goal of his career for the Irish.

Additional highlights of the game included the inspirational second half play of senior manager Doug Collodel.

In Kansas City

American League to discuss A's sale

NEW YORK (AP) - The American League is scheduled to meet Wednesday in Kansas City, Mo., to discuss the sale of the Oakland A's to oil mogul Marvin Davis of Denver, but AL President Lee MacPhail warns not to expect any immediate action on the matter.

"It could be weeks, it could be months or nothing may happen," MacPhail said Tuesday. "Nothing is going to happen at this meeting. We are just going to update the clubs on what the situation is at this time."

At present, the A's have eight years remaining on their lease at the Oakland Coliseum and that hurdle would have to be resolved before the club could be moved.

Charles O. Finley, the A's owner, admitted that "the club is for sale" and that he "talked with Marvin Davis and his representative some time ago. The entire situation depends on the possibility of working out something with the Coliseum."

Davis, meanwhile, told the Denver Post, "Rumors are rampant. There's nothing I can say."

The Associated Press learned Monday that the sale was in the works - a deal that would bring major league baseball to Denver for the 1980 season.

"We've been working at this for three years," MacPhail said. "So I can't tell you it is going to fall in place at this time. We are having a player relations meeting, and because all of our people will be together, we decided to review the Oakland situation."

"There are two big pieces that have to come together. One of them is Charlie (Finley.) The other is the Oakland Coliseum Board. We do not have an agreement with the Coliseum Board."

This is the second time Finley is attempting to sell the struggling franchise to Davis. He first tried last year, but several obstacles blocked the deal.

Reportedly, those obstacles have been eased and the sale virtually is certain to be completed this time.

Dear God

National Championship still within reach

Dear God,

I know LaGrotta wrote to Santa when he wanted a win over Southern Cal, but I've really got a problem.

You see, there's this poll that was released on January 2, 1980 that's supposed to tell everybody who's number-one in college football. I saw these bumper stickers in the bookstore the other day that said "Godmade the Irish #1" so I figured you were the guy that I should write to.

What I want is for Notre Dame to be there. Simple enough? Now, there are 12 other teams between us and the top-spot right now. To make it easier, I've laid out for you exactly what's got to happen to each of them and who has to play in which bowl game on New Year's Day.

Orange Bowl - Florida State vs. Nebraska

Sugar Bowl - Notre Dame vs. Alabama

Cotton Bowl - Ohio State vs. Houston

Rose Bowl - Washington vs. Michigan

Alabama must win its three remaining games and then lose to the Irish in the Sugar Bowl. (By the way, we also need Georgia to lose a conference game so Bear Bryant's boys can play in the Sugar. Say, I hear from a friend of mine down south that the Bear does a great imitation of your son.)

Nebraska must win the last three games to win the Big Eight but then lose to Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

Ohio State has to beat Iowa on Saturday but lose to Michigan in Ann Arbor the following week, thus sending the Wolverines to the Rose Bowl but still leaving the Buckeyes a popular choice for the Cotton. Since Notre Dame beat Michigan, the Irish would then have an edge over State.

Southern Cal is going to be a tough one since the Trojans poured it on the Irish three weeks ago. This weekend, let Washington beat them (giving the Huskies the Pac-10 crown) and let the Trojans lose to UCLA the following week.

Houston—Surely you still remember what you did to these guys last year. The Cougars can win their final three but let them lose the Cotton Bowl to Ohio State.

Oklahoma should be out of it after Nebraska wins the regular season finale. Don't worry, God, the Cornhuskers will finish these guys off for you.

Florida State is going to be tricky so listen closely. I know the Seminoles are presently unbeaten, and that's right where I want them. Let them beat South Carolina and Memphis State, and then let their 10-0 record and their local appeal get them invited to the Orange Bowl. Then they have to lose to rival Florida the following week before dumping Nebraska on

Purdue victory could send Ohio State to Rose Bowl

COLUMBUS Ohio (AP) - An Ohio State football victory over Iowa Saturday, coupled with a Purdue triumph over Michigan, will send the third-ranked Buckeyes to the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1975.

If that happens, Ohio State could lose at Michigan the following week and still represent the Big Ten Conference in the Pasadena, Calif., classic on New Year's Day.

The reason is a set of guidelines the Big Ten adopted in December 1974. The new rules eliminated the requirement that the conference's athletic directors vote to select the Rose Bowl team. Past votes had stirred controversy on several occasions.

If Ohio State and Purdue win Saturday and the Boilermakers trim Indiana while the Buckeyes fall at Michigan the final week, there would be a three-way tie for the Big Ten title. Ohio State, Purdue and Michigan would share the championship with 7-1 league records.

Since Purdue and Ohio State did not play, conference rules dictate that the team with the
