Campus Crusade reaches out

by Tricia Beaujean
Staff Reporter

"As the head of a large, international movement I am involved with thousands of others in a conspiracy to overthrow the world. Each year we teach tens of thousands of high school and college students from more than half of the major countries of the world in the art of revolution, and daily these revolutionists are at work around the globe spreading our philosophy and strengthening our influence."

These words appeared in the weekly periodical Christianity Today and were spoken not by a Communist party chairman but by William R. Bright, founder of the Campus Crusade for Christ. The revolution he speaks of is a spiritual one, and Bright and his workers have been out to evangelize the world since 1951. The Crusade's full time staff now numbers over 7,000 according to the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's Chapter Director Craig Valentine.

In a "College Life" Meeting Friday night, Valentine attempted to communicate 'the claims of Jesus Christ in a way that is relevant to college students,' he said.

The organization is interdenominational and non-profit, designed to "help students grow in their relationship with Christ," Valentine said.

In addition to meetings where students come to share and enjoy singing, reflective thinking and conversation, the organization has weekly Bible studies and leadership training classes. "We reach out toward the leadership on campus", said Valentine, "to help us extend a greater influence in reaching others."

Campus poll

Students expect Kennedy in '80

by Kelli Flint
Staff Reporter

Although a majority of Notre Dame students claim to be familiar with the major campaign issues, most admit that they are not aware of the individual candidates' views on these subjects. Sixty-three percent of the students project that Edward Kennedy will be the next president according to an Observer poll conducted this weekend.

Students participating in this survey make up 1 percent of Notre Dame's total undergraduate enrollment. They were chosen at random, equally distributed across the colleges, with attention given to sex and year.

Students were first asked whether or not they were familiar with the major issues of the election. Sixty-five percent answered yes while 28 percent said no, and 6 percent claimed some familiarity with the issues, but added that their knowledge was limited in the area.

They were then asked to name the three most important issues in the race. The state of the economy was named by 70 percent of the students as the prevailing issue, while the energy crisis was cited by 43 percent as a major issue, and foreign policy by 25 percent.

Nuclear power was named by 13 percent as an issue of concern, and 8 percent felt the health insurance policy and the quality of leadership were important issues.

When asked whether they were aware of the candidates' positions on the issues, 31 percent answered YES, while 51 percent said that they were not aware of the candidates' positions. Another 8 percent felt that they had some knowledge of the candidates' policies, and 8 percent gave no response.

Students were then asked which candidate's position they supported on the major issues.

Iranian students pour into US Lebanon Embassy

BEIRUT (AP)- Iranian students chanting "Death to the Americans!" scaled a fence and poured into the U.S. Embassy garden in Beirut, Lebanon, yesterday in support of the 8-day old embassy takeover in Tehran. Iran's new foreign affairs chief declared there would be "no compromise, no negotiation" to free the Tehran hostages.

It was believed that behind-the-scenes talks continued in the Iranian capital, however, with the Palestine Liberation Organization and Moslem diplomats as mediators. One Arab report said hostages might be freed by today, though an Iranian official said he saw no "omen" that this would happen.

The anti-American fervor in Tehran was unabated.

Some 200 uniformed air force men Sunday joined the thousands of Iranian protesters who have flocked to the U.S. Embassy each day since a mob of student militants seized it and about 100 American and other hostages Nov. 4. The airmen demanded that all ties with the United States be cut and all foreign capital be expropriated.

About 40 Iranians invaded the Beirut embassy garden, burned an American flag and chanted slogans for about two hours until Syrian peacekeeping troops, swing clubs, routed them in bloody melee.

When the unarmed students jumped over the embassy fence, The U.S. Marine guards did not try to repulse them and instead took to the embassy roof with their light weapons and walkie talkies.

Armed Lebanese police reinforcements arrived at the scene but took no action, apparently waiting for the Syrians, the strongest armed force in faction-ridden Lebanon.

In Tehran, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, recently put in charge of Iran's Foreign Ministry by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, told French radio interviewers "no compromise, no negotiation, is possible," over Iran's demand that the United States extradite the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to stand trial for his life.

Bani Sadr said he would not be satisfied if the deposed monarch, hospitalized in New York

Tensions stir on West Bank as Israeli's arrest Arab Jerusalem (AP) - The Israeli army yesterday jailed without charge the Arab mayor of Nablus, and influential Palestinian leader opposed to Israel's settlements policy and limited autonomy plans in the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The arrest of Mayor Bassam Shakaa, pending legal procedures to deport him, touched off angry protests in the West Bank.

In another development likely to heighten tension in the occupied territories, the Israeli Cabinet adopted a general policy decision calling for more Jewish settlements and the enlargement of existing outposts in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and the Syrian Golan Heights. A Cabinet committee was left to work out details and no number was set for new settlements.

Following the decision, an organization of poor Israelis scuffled with settlers at Gush Etzion, south of Jerusalem.

The group, which calls itself the Black Panthers, complains the government is spending money on West Bank settlements that could be used to house the poor. Israel Radio reported that one of the settlers was beaten after he fired his weapon in the air, and troops disarmed two other settlers who shot over the protesters.

The compromise Cabinet decision, accepted unanimously, seemed aimed at heading off a showdown and possible resignation within Prime Minister Menachem Begin's fractured government.

The Cabinet also chose a new site for the Elon Moreh settlement a few miles from the campsite it now occupies overlooking Nablus.

The Israeli Supreme Court ruled Oct. 22 that private land for Elon Moreh was illegally seized and ordered the settlement evacuated with 30 days. The settlers, who have strong right-wing support in the government, have so far refused to budge, threatening a major confrontation within the Cabinet that could topple Begin from power.

After Shakaa was taken to the maximum-security Ramla Prison near Tel Aviv, the Nablus town council resigned and other West Bank mayors consulted on a possible mass resignation. Scattered demonstration, and school and business strikes were reported throughout the area, inhabited by 700,000 Palestinians.

Shakaa won a temporary injunction from the Supreme Court against his expulsion last week, but the army spokesman said the court did not bar Shakaa's detention until a hearing could be held.

Six derailed freight cars erupt in explosion

CANTONMENT Fla. (AP) - Six propane-laden railroad cars derailed and burst into flames in the Florida Panhandle early yesterday, civil defense official said the derailed freight was a time bomb that could tick for days. Florida highway patrol troopers said there were no injuries and called the situation "stable." But Buck Renfro of the Escambia County civil defense warned of the potential for an explosion. "It could happen in several hours, it could happen tomorrow," said Renfro. "In Waverly, Tenn., they had one happen even after all the fires went out. They were cleaning up the area when one of the cars vented and killed eight or nine people. That's what we're trying to prevent."

Controversial movie stars Redgrave as Jewish heroine

HARRISBURG, PA. (AP) - Filming has started at a ramshackle section of a Pennsylvania military camp for a controversial television movie starring Vanessa Redgrave as a Jewish heroine. Miss Redgrave, who has supported the Palestine Liberation Organization, is cast as Fania Fenelon, who escaped execution at a Nazi death camp by joining a prison orchestra. Jewish groups and individuals in the United States and elsewhere, including Miss Fenelon, bitterly opposed the selection of Miss Redgrave for the film, "Playing for Time." But CBS refused to change its decision because of Miss Redgrave's political views.

Tankers spread fumes; residents evacuate homes

MISSISSAUGA, Ontario (AP) - Authorities began evacuating 100,000 residents from this town west of Toronto yesterday as sickening fumes poured from burning tanker cars of a derailed train. One car was leaking deadly chlorine gas, officials said. Some 10,000 residents had been moved by mid-afternoon to high schools and shopping centers in the area. No injuries were reported. Flames flared from seven tank cars and threatened another that had ruptured and was leaking some chlorine gas, Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said.

Kole to perform magic show featuring psychic phenomena

Internationally known illusionist Andre Kole will perform his two-hour "World of Illusion" Tuesday in Washington Hall at 8:00 p.m. The performance will include Houdini-like escapes and transcendental levitation. Kole will also discuss his first-hand investigation of the possibility of communication with the dead, the occult, the Bermuda Triangle mystery and other psychic phenomena from India and Egypt.

Kole has achieved international fame through live performances to more than 76 million people in 73 countries throughout the world. He has reached millions more through televised performances in over 40 countries.

"As an illusionist I do not waste my time trying to accomplish that which is possible, but rather I concentrate on that which is impossible," Kole says.

Kole is a recognized expert in the area of psychic research. At the request of Time magazine several years ago, he made a study of the "psychic surgeon" in the Philippines who claimed to perform miraculous operations without the use of medical instruments or anesthetics. Subsequent to his on-the-scene investigation, Kole testified in court on behalf of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission in its attempt to stop the promotion of fraudulent psychic healers in this country.

Several years ago, Kole was challenged to examine the miracles of Jesus Christ from the standpoint of an illusionist and a skeptic to determine if the miracles of Christ could have been the work of a master magician. Kole says he made some discoveries then that changed the course of his life, and he will share some of his findings during his performance.

Kole often appears as a special traveling representative for Campus Crusade for Christ International, and interdenominational Christian organization founded in 1951.

ND-ROTC completes Ranger training utilizing tactical skills

by Sal Granata
Staff Reporter

The Irish Ranger Company (IRC) of the Notre Dame ROTC battalion completed their second fall semester Field Training Exercise on Saturday morning.

The IRC is a special unit of Army ROTC cadets distinguished by their black berets and noted for their motivation and tactical proficiency. Saturday, the company participated in joint maneuvers with members of the Navy's Marine Option Program. The Army cadets conducted a number of information-seeking reconnaissance patrols while the Marines acted as spoilers.

The Cadets maneuvered in the woods Northeast of Stepan

Center, navigating by compass and utilizing skills they had previously known only through classroom experience.

According to Captain Robert Clemens, all the goals of the training were met. He said that the training exercise was a success since the students were given a chance to practice in the field what they learn on the blackboard. An important aspect of the operation is the traits of leadership essential to creating a good second lieutenant as well as a good person.

Interviews of the cadets produced a consensus of the learning experience dimension of their training.

John Plunkett, a junior from Holy Cross, said "although you can study this material in the classroom, until you try it in the field you never know how it really is."

Betsy Spinelli, a veteran IRC member from Farley Hall said that she learned how to assemble and disassemble the M-16 rifle, a requirement at the Advance Camp all Army Cadets participate in between their junior and senior years.

One freshman from Lewis was enthusiastic about the early morning mission. "I was surprised, I really enjoyed it. I thought it was going to be rough. It wasn't easy but everyone helped out and all the things we learned in the classroom jelled."

As another cadet observed philosophically, "going out on on FTX makes you think how nice it would be if you never have to do this for real."

In Greensboro, N.C.

CWP buries five slain in parade

GREENSBORO, NC (AP)--About 350 demonstrators with an honor guard carrying unloaded rifles wheeled the coffins of five slain communist activists to their graves in a steady rain yesterday.

Nearly 500 combat-equipped National Guardsmen, 250 state police and 175 local police lined the 1 1/2-mile parade route.

The parade in honor of the five persons killed last weekend in a "Death to the Klan" rally was delayed for about two hours as Communist Workers Party, sponsor of the march, argued over whether members of an honor guard could carry weapons.

City officials agreed to allow an honor guard, seven men and three women, to carry unloaded rifles, a stipulation they said they had made earlier.

With a "state of emergency" in effect, police obtained a blanket search warrant to stop and search any vehicle or individual in the Greensboro area.

Some arrests were made just before the march began. Officers delivered a group of prisoners to the city jail but declined to say how many were arrested or where the arrests were made. A police spokesman said, however, that the prisoners included sympathizers for the marchers and for the Ku Klux Klan.

Police had expected anywhere from 2,000 to 5,000 people to line the parade route.

The Communist Workers Party had urged sympathizers from around the country to come to Greensboro.

"Avenge the murder of the CWP 5," read a poster circulated by the party. It pictured a man in overalls clubbing a Nazi with a rifle butt.

Iranian crisis

NEW YORK (AP)-Exiled Iranian politician Shahpour Bakhtiar, ousted when revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini seized power, predicts Americans held hostage in Tehran will be released "without blood, without hurt."

The former prime minister was interviewed recently by ABC-TV, which aired the results Sunday on its "Issues and Answers" program.

Bakhtiar said his feelings about the safe release was based on his belief that the seizure of the American embassy and the hostages was "against the international tradition of the Iranian people."

"There is no government in Iran," he said. "The people are excited, jobless, and the mob are doing that. I am very sorry that Khomeini and other authority in Iran accept this procedure."

He also said a "military force landing in Iran is not the best way to settle down this dispute."

Bakhtiar predicted the rule of Khomeini would soon end because there is unrest in Iran and because "politically Mr. Khomeini is on very bad terms with everybody."

"I think Khomeini is going down and down. He has lost a lot of people and the atmosphere of terror in Iran and some sort of hysteria in Iran," he said.

"I am not waiting for the fall of Mr. Khomeini," Bakhtiar added. "I have made my mind up I am going to fight. I am fighting for liberty, independence and democracy."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. George McGovern called yesterday for a moratorium of political debate over the seizure of American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Iran, saying the United States should speak with one voice-and that must be a calm one.

The South Dakota Democrat, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," heartily endorsed a questioner's suggestion that candidates avoid the Iranian question until the hostages are safe.

"The fewer recommendations we have now as to what course should be followed, particularly retaliation, the better off we'll all be," McGovern said.

"I would say to follow the administration's lead on this, because it's such a delicate situation that we have to speak with one voice....The administration under the circumstances is doing the best it can, (and) the less criticism, the less suggestions of alternative courses that come from others, the better."

McGovern also urged private citizens, labor unions, students and other to stay calm and not aggravate the situation. Any demonstration must be peaceful, he said.

"I can certainly understand the anger," he said. "I don't think anyone feels more of a sense of outrage than I do...."

"But what good does it do for us to take some precipitous, violent action that would give us the satisfaction of saying, 'well, we showed our muscle,' if we ended up with the deaths of 61 innocent Americans?"

WASHINGTON (AP) - California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. urged Americans yesterday to walk and pray today "to show the strength and unity of American people behind our American citizens in Iran."

Brown, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, also said the United States should be prepared to live without Iranian oil. And he predicted it will be "very difficult" to continue diplomatic relations with Iran after the present hostage situation is resolved.

Answering question on the NBC television program "Meet the Press," Brown said the Iranian crisis could be "an opportunity to wake up the nation, to recreate in ourselves a spirit of strength and unity."

Brown refused to criticize President Carter's handling of the Iranian situation or suggest any alternatives except his call, which he repeated three times in the interview, for a national day of prayer and walking.

"I'm not going to offer the president any suggestion as long as American citizens are held captive and in danger of their lives," Brown said. "I will support President Carter's attempt, whatever it may be, to secure the release of the American citizens."

Brown said later he did not intend to suggest there should be special demonstration or marches opposing Iran. Instead, he said, he was urging citizens to take part in the regularly scheduled Veteran's Day parades and other events around the country today.

Valentine cited research done at Carnegie Institute which concluded that employers were most frequently looking for "character" during interviews. He added that the organization is "not a church but rather an organization designed to work alongside the church in influencing young adults."

"There are so many leaders on this campus who are highly qualified academically, but it is important not only to have technical and academic skills but a person needs character as well," said Valentine. "We try to provide the right environment to build character."

Campus Crusade for Christ holds annual Christmas conferences throughout the country. These conferences involve university students from around the country and include speakers, seminars and singing groups according to Krin Valentine, also a staff member. Announcement of a Conference in Kalamazoo will be publicized by the campus chapter.

The group has also invited Crusader illusionist Andre Krole to the Notre Dame campus Tuesday. Valentine said of the coming event "It will be an opportunity to contact 500 people. At the conclusion of his show, Krole will share how Christ changed his life." He added that Krole was once asked to investigate the miracles of Jesus Christ and through his illusionist knowledge "came to the conclusion that Jesus Christ was real, that he was who he said he was."

The 50 or so members of the campus chapter share common reasons for their involvement with the Crusade for Christ. Notre Dame student Beth Toomey said "everyone here feels the same way I do about Christ, and I am impressed that everything is presented in such a normal way." Publicity Chairman for Andre Krole, Jeff Blackburn said, "I enjoy sharing with people who believe as I do."

"I came to the meetings to grow closer to Christ through what they can teach me," said Rich Stevenson. Saint Mary's student Beth Shmecker said she attended "to share things that I cannot share with some of my other friends."

Bright, the man behind the national movement traces its origin to "a call from God that came to me while I was studying for a Greek examination at Fuller Seminary," according to a published interview in Christianity Today.

Trbovich, Miller in race

Mine workers to vote for new president

CHARLESTON, W. VA. (AP)—To hear former United Mine Workers Vice President Mike Trbovich tell it, five years haven't changed things much in the UMW.

Trbovich, who held the No. 2 spot during union President Arnold Miller's first term, was openly feuding with Miller some 2½ years after their 1972 election. Miller charged Trbovich with planning to oppose him in the 1977 election. Last week the 56-year-old union chief accused his current vice president, Sam Church, of plotting to oust him from office with the help of the union's governing body, the International Executive Board.

"It's the identical problem," Trbovich said Friday in a telephone interview from Clarksville, PA., where he lives in retirement.

"Sam Church is in the same position that I was in. I was doing a lot of work, a lot of travel, for the membership. But if someone within the union does something for the membership (Miller) gets mad about it, because he wants all the credit."

The relationship between Miller and Trbovich began deteriorating shortly after their election. Trbovich had expected to lead the Miners for Democracy reform ticket, but was eased aside for Miller, who at the time headed a vocal movement for improved black lung benefits. Their feud did not become public, however, until some two years later.

Miller stripped Trbovich of all his duties and ordered him to sign a sworn statement that he would not seek the union presidency in 1977.

"He said that if I would agree not to run, and if I would support the administration on all policy decisions at board meetings, that I would be permitted to run the safety division without interference. I refused to sign this and was dismissed from my final official function."

Despite his refusal to sign the statement, Trbovich never challenged Miller for the presidency. In the 1977 campaign, Miller was opposed by LeRoy Patterson, a Kentucky strip miner, and Harry Patrick, Miller's secretary-treasurer during the 1972-77 term.

"I decided if the man didn't trust me, the hell with him," Trbovich said.

Miller and Church apparently got into an argument at an IEB meeting in Marion, Ill., two weeks ago. At that same meeting, the board rejected Miller's nominees for union safety director, F.L. Philyaw and David Lee Smith, respectively.

Then, last week, Miller lashed out at Church during a meeting in Charleston of the West Virginia chapter of CONPAC, the union's political arm. Miller said Church had been trying to spread dissent against him within the union's leadership and had attempted a secret meeting of the IEB to confront him.

Church said he was "astounded" by Miller's accusations and by the Union president's decision to find someone else to share his political ticket 1982.

"Mr. Miller is a very sick man," Church said.

"I don't think me or anyone else I've talked to would seek Mr. Miller's ouster," he added.

Like the public split between Miller and Trbovich, the feud between Miller and Church has apparently been building for months. It has become public about halfway through the officers' five year terms.

Church was unwilling to discuss the problems he and Miller have been having.

"I'm not going to air the union's problems before the media," Church told reporters. "If we've got problems, we'll solve them."

Two-and-a-half years away from the union's Washington headquarters have made Trbovich less reticent.

"Miller's afraid somebody is trying to take his job, and he's been afraid of that ever since he was elected.

"They needed a change in leadership in the last election. And if they don't get new leadership soon, there's going to be nothing left of the union," Trbovich said.

Kennedy's policies were favored by 21 percent, while those of Baker received 11 percent, Reagan 5 percent and Carter and Ford (a declared non-candidate) each garnered 3 percent. Other candidates received only one vote from the students.

Of the students who supported Kennedy's views, 69 percent of these claimed they were unaware of the candidates' positions on major issues. Seventy-nine percent of those surveyed who said they were informed in this area supported candidates other than Kennedy.

Finally, students were asked who they felt would win the Presidential election. Kennedy was favored by 63 percent, while Carter followed with 16 percent, Baker with 3 percent and Reagan with 1 percent. The most ardent supporters of incumbent Carter were found among the science majors polled. Twenty-five percent of these favored the president.

The remainder of those polled stated that they didn't want any of the present candidates to win the election. They felt that it was too early to judge the candidates, and said that they hoped for a dark horse to enter later in the race.

Emergency Relief Campaign for Cambodia Begins

Dear Editor:

On November 9, an ad-hoc committee, the Students Concerned for Cambodia, was formed in view of the situation that:

1) Cambodia is a disaster of immense magnitude and urgency; 2.25 million face starvation within months.

2) Cambodia is a unique instance of human suffering, imminent starvation due to recent political strife.

3) This disaster can be averted if massive humanitarian aid is forthcoming.

The Students Concerned for Cambodia, empathizing with University president Fr. Theodore Hesburgh, believe that immediate action on behalf of Cambodia is a moral obligation of this generation. Specifically, we believe, as does Fr. Hesburgh, that a direct relief effort on the part of the Notre Dame student body has tremendous potential to aid Cambodia.

The Students Concerned for Cambodia is launching an emergency relief campaign to begin now and last until Thanksgiving with all collected monies going to Catholic Relief Services. The CRS has proven itself very effective in dealing with this emergency.

Among the fund-raising events planned are:

1) direct collections outside dining halls on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday;

2) a Clemson game concession booth;

3) a schoolwide fast at Monday dinner, November 19.

There will be an organizational meeting Tuesday, November 13, at 7:00 PM in the Nazz for all those willing to work on the campaign with Students Concerned for Cambodia.

We urge the student body to respond appropriately to all of our efforts in the next few days; to respond appropriately to the 2.25 million Cambodians who face death; to respond appropriately to an obligation for humanity.

Prisoner Requests Mail

Dear Editor:

My name is Freddy Heistand, I'm white and 32 years old. At the present time I am in the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility in Lucasville, Ohio.

-I am doing a life sentence here, and will spend many years in this prison until I am eligible for release. It gets very lonely here, especially since I don't get much mail.

I am wondering if you would please print this letter in your school newspaper? I would love to hear from anyone who would care to write. And I would also enjoy getting pictures of those who write if they have any pictures they would care to send.

Thank you for your time and I hope you do this favor for me. Hope I'll be hearing from some new friends soon.

New Security Services for Women

Dear Editor:

We would like to inform the ND-SMC community of the existence of SWAC (Social Work in Action Committee). Our purpose is to work with the security departments on both campuses to insure the safety of all students. We are focusing on three areas of concern: (1) off-campus emergency transportation, (2) improved security on the ND-SMC road, and (3) awareness of the existing security services.

We would also like to inform all Notre Dame women of a service which is in existence at Saint Mary's and now is available at Notre Dame. If you are parking your car in any student parking lot on campus and are alone or feel your security is threatened, adhere to the following procedure. (1) Stop at either gatehouse and inform them of the parking lot to which you will be going. (2) Proceed to the parking lot and keep your doors locked and headlights on. (3) Please wait in your car and a security guard will escort you to your dorm. We strongly encourage you to take advantage of this service for your protection.

We would appreciate any comments about the effectiveness of this service. If you have any suggestions please contact: Donna Shannon, SMC-4868, P.O. Box 1090LE.

Logan Center Children Need Tickets

Dear Editor:

It is that time of year again when we will hopefully take 300 kids from Logan Center and Big Brothers/Big Sisters to the Clemson football game. We need the help of the ND-SMC community, and ask that you donate your student football ticket so that these kids may get the chance to watch and experience a Notre Dame football game. We will be collecting the tickets at dinner in the North and South dining halls and at the Saint Mary's dining hall starting Tuesday, Nov. 13.

The game itself means a lot to all the kids, with the chance to cheer for the Irish and meet the players afterward being a thrill they talk about for weeks. The trip to the football game is one of our most popular events and one that is looked forward to all year. The kids are the greatest fans in the world, whether the Irish are up or down. So if you wish to donate your ticket, drop it off at dinner. We will be extremely grateful. Once again, thank you for all your support.

Heavy Mail

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON--The mail has been rather heavy this week. A lady in Manhattan writes:

Dear Mr. B.,

I just received my bank statement from Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and have been credited with $3 billion to my account. My husband said it couldn't be the bank's fault because they don't make errors. He said I must have messed up my checkbook again. I went over every stub and could not find a $3 billion mistake. I found one for $17.50 and another for $60, but none for the larger amount.

I am certain someone put the $3 billion in my account by mistake. My question is, should I notify the bank or keep the information to myself in hopes that Manufacturers Trust doesn't discover it?

Please advise.

Mrs. Paul Conway

Dear Mrs. Conway, Your husband is correct in saying that large banks do not make mistakes. Therefore, it seems to me that you may have deposited $3 billion in your checking account and forgot to keep the receipt. Or perhaps someone with the same name deposited $3 billion in her account and you were credited with it.

I'd advise you not to tell the bank as they will get very upset with you for bothering them on such a minor matter. They will either ask you to move your account to another bank or will bill you with a service charge for making them go into their computers.

I would leave the $3 billion in your account for six months. If you don't hear from Manufacturers Hanover by then you can start writing large checks on the assumption that, even if the bank made such an unlikely error, they will be too embarrassed to admit it.

Sincerely,
A.B.

Dear Sir,

I live in Key West and do a lot of Scuba diving off the coast of Florida. For the past three months I keep hearing a lot of shoveling and digging when I'm under water. Is it possible that the Russian Combat Brigade is digging a tunnel from Cuba to Miami? If so, should I notify President Carter?

Lee Fentress

Dear Lee,

Please don't say anything. President Carter is having enough trouble getting his SALT Treaty through. If Sen. Frank Church hears about the tunnel he'll demand that the President do something about it.

The Soviets will maintain that they're only building the tunnel as a training exercise. Carter will have to take their word for it because he still doesn't know what the Soviet brigade is doing in Cuba. Besides you're not sure the tunnel is being dug by the Russians. It could be our own CIA digging one to Havana to find out what is going on there.

Sincerely,
A.B.

Dear Mr. B.,

I'm a marshmallow salesman and I met this nice guy in a bar in Bloomington, Minn. He said he was the manager of the New York Yankees and he bought me a drink. Then I offered him a free marshmallow and he hit me in the mouth. I had to have 18 stitches on my lip. Now he wants me to do a Lite beer TV commercial with him. What do you think?

Yours truly,
Bloody Manny

Dear Manny,

As soon as your lip heals I'd do it. There is a lot more money to be made in selling beer than in toasting marshmallows. But tell him if he socks you in the mouth again, you will hit him over the head with a beer bottle.

Apology

Due to a layout error, a column by Rosemary Mills, entitled "A lesson in mismanagement and confusion," appeared in incorrect order on Friday's editorial page. We apologize for this error.

Chimes are sweet when the metal is sound

Mary Leavitt

"We want to print quality material."

In these words, Dr. Max Westler, advisor of the Saint Mary's literary magazine Chimes, summed up the publication's editorial policy. Westler pointed out that Chimes has come a long way since its conservative beginnings.

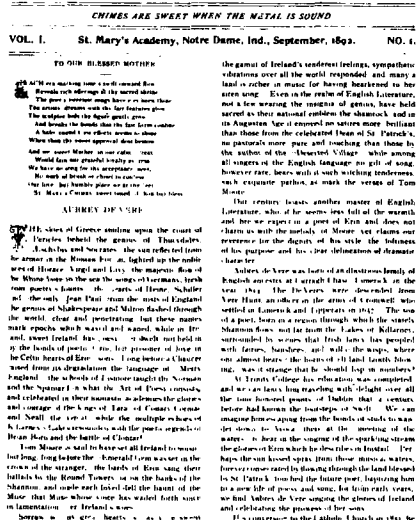

In September of 1892 when the first issue of Chimes was published, its policy was stated in this way: "The design of these pages is to promote the advancement of all that is good and noble in the heart of every pupil of Saint Mary's; to elevate their standard of literary taste and to serve as an incentive to earnest and persevering labors in all that pertains to a thorough Christian education."

At this time, Chimes was a monthly publication which carried short stories, poems, essays and editorials. Also included were academic acknowledgements of monthly certificates presented to the students of Saint Mary's for "politeness, neatness, order, amiability, correct deportment and observance of rules."

The style of the magazine was strictly literary; even the news items were written in the flowery, literary language popular at this time.

Since the publication was printed under the direction of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, the biggest concern was that the outlook of Chimes

St. Mary's Chimes.

The facing page of the 1892 Chimes, the first edition of the literary journal and the cover of the 1979 Chimes.

remain a moral one. In the first issue appeared a poem dedicating Chimes to "Our Blessed Mother," and for many years, most of the pieces published were of a religious or philosophical nature.

Through the years, Chimes evolved into a publication of a different form than the original one. In 1925, a group of interested journalism students formed the Blue Pencil Club to encourage literary contributions to publications. This group changed the style and form of Chimes, developing it into a magazine containing mostly short stories and essays although for the most part, the essays still dealt with religious or philosophical material.

With the coming of the war in the forties, Chimes published essays and even some short stories dealing with national affairs, bringing to the students a new awareness of life outside of Saint Mary's College. By the fifties, Chimes was examining the controversial topics of the times, taking on a worldly tone much in contrast to its earlier issues.

The Chimes of the sixties mirrored the revolutionary mood of the decade with its efforts to imitate the sexual symbolism of such authors as e. e. cummings and Dylan Thomas.

Today, Chimes is a selective artistic periodical, publishing poetry, short stories, art work, and photographs. The staff of Chimes consists of interested students, editor Kari Meyer, and Dr. Max Westler, advisor of Chimes for the past five years.

In the past few years, Chimes has favored a balance of art and creative writing. From time to time, faculty translations of foreign works have been published.

Contributions are now being accepted from both Saint Mary and Notre Dame students. Upon receiving the submissions, the staff reviews each piece for quality and originality.

The chosen material is sent to the printer over spring break and is released in late April. Copies of Chimes will be available to all students free of charge.

The deadline date for contributions is March 26. They should be sent to Max Westler, Rm. 310 Madaleva Hall, SMC.

Editor's note: This article is a reflective piece by a student who spent last summer in Alaska. It's purpose is to share a wilderness experience and to illustrate the reality of aesthetic benefits from such experience. Others who have had out of the ordinary experiences during their summers away from ND which they feel would interest other students are invited to submit articles to the Features Editor.

Looking around my comfortable room in Lewis Hall, I can not help but be reminded of another home. I think of a small, shabby cabin, appropriately named "The Tern Inn", at St. Theresa's Summer Camp in Soldona Alaska. In that two room hut, I and four other students resided for the summer. For two months I had the glorious opportunity to work, play and live in "The Last Frontier"--Alaska. Never have I been so utterly and simply content, and often I wondered if I could be so again. The job, the campers, travel, the land and the incredible beauty aroused a spirit that I never knew belonged to me--the love for simplicity, nature and God.

Last spring I accepted a position at St. Theresa's Summer Camp, working as a counselor. Having never been a counselor or camper, the thought of being a friend, mother, entertainer, disciplinarian, and teacher all at once excited me.

A new group of campers arrived at St. Theresa's each Sunday. The weeks required much work, especially since the staff had to remember that even though we'd gone through the activities numerous times, the camp was new to each week's group. I worked most frequently at the Waterfront or Field Events. Special activities included Wednesday night's Overnighter for the older campers, and Skit Night for the younger kids; Thursday's St. Theresa's Olympic Games complete with leap frog, tug-o-war, cheers and songs; Carnival Night on Friday evenings.

The campers began their day with a Christian Living class, taught by the counselors, and then proceeded to six different activity periods. Yet, my most treasured work was just being with the campers. I played my guitar and sang very often, read the girls a late night story, slept with a homesick child, washed a bed-wetter's sleeping bag and laughed with them.

To feel that I had touched children who needed me and opened their hearts to song and prayer fantastically rewarded my efforts. Exchanging goodbyes and addresses made Saturday mornings the most difficult days as we watched special children walk out of the staff's lives.

The staff reserved the weekends for carefree jaunts across the Kenai Peninsula, usually to Homer or Seward. We spent one weekend camping on the Homer Pit, the second largest gravel pit in the world. We pitched our tents on the small rocks close to the water's edge. That night we cooked fresh shrimp on the ends of whittled sticks over the driftwood fire, drank chilled wine and played our guitars. Even at midnight, the sky still glowed under the setting sun and the mountains encircled our campsite.

A thirsty hiker takes a drink from a mountain stream.

We stopped along the road at a cool stream and drank the icy water. The sunlight danced across the clear stream and we shrieked with joy to see fifteen-inch pink salmon spawning upstream. I picked and pressed delicate wild flowers. At Seward we camped in the mountains alongside a rushing turquoise brook. The glacial water's symphony filled the chilly air, drowning out our voices and guitars. The mountains converged directly on the camping spot and the saluting spruce pierced the vast sky. During the misty night, clouds descended down the mountains and crowned the moss-carpeted hillside. Looking out across Resurrection Bay, the sloping mountains appeared hazy and prehistoric. I remember thinking that the country was hazy and dreamlike--a land for whose description the English language provided no words.

At the end of the summer, the staff took a three-day trip to Mt. McKinley. The park represented the first culture shock and undoubtedly we were all uncomfortable in the cramped camping spot, especially when we were used to seeing few people on our weekend excursions. We rode the park bus to Eielson Lake, where we climbed our last mountain.

Although it took much adjustment, I am now home. I walk around the lakes on chilly, brisk October evenings. The mist rises from the water, just as it had done on St. Theresa's Lake, and fogs my mind. I recall the eagle that soared above my canoe, the brilliant blue sky as vast as my love for Alaska, the spruce saluting the sculptured, royal mountains, the sun dancing on turquoise water, the pale blue emanating from the glaciers. Yet, the greatest treasure bestowed on me is the ability to see beauty in everything--the Golden Dome reflecting on the still lake, the bright changing leaves, the dew covered grass under my feet.

Remnants of Peoples Temple campsite continue to haunt South African nation

JONESTOWN, Guyana (AP) - A year of searing weather and creeping vegetation has scourged away the signs of grisly horror, but the Peoples Temple deaths that shocked the world left an indelible mark on Guyana's people, politics and reputation.

Alleged government ties with cults have become a political issue as Guyana struggles with its worst economic and political crisis since gaining independence from Britain in 1966.

But 150 miles northwest of the capital and its crisis, this colony carved from the jungle sleeps serenely beneath the tropical sun.

The police officers and soldiers who guard Jonestown and the farm workers who maintain it doze through the midday heat. "We're just supposed to keep the grass down in the center," said one.

But grass grows through the rotting wooden walkway connecting parts of the compound; sections have collapsed into drainage trenches underneath.

Local officials complain it is hard to muster enough individuals from the superstitious local people to maintain the compound.

"People around here still call it Ghost Town," said Richard Cruickshank, agricultural supervisors.

Cruickshank said he had only 46 workers to maintain the Jonestown compound, harvest crops of plantains and cassava and tend the hundreds of pigs and chickens left by nearly 1,000 cultists.

The main pavilion is restored to how it may have looked before the Nov. 18 tragedy. A fresh layer of crushed seashells covers the dirt floor where more than 900 bodies lay for nearly a week, bloating in the tropical heat.

Rows of benches face the framework of the stage where the Rev. Jim Jones stood as he urged his followers forward to drink cyanide-laced Fla-Vor-Aid.

The main compound buildings now house some of the farm workers and soldiers. One of the larger ones now bears the sign "Jonestown Police Station" and is home to police Cpl. Abdool Inshan, who heads the security detachment.

Bodies had also lain on the stage, whose planks were ripped up and burned, soldiers say. The ashes were buried behind the pavilion, along with topsoil soaked with fluid from decomposing bodies.

Last year, reporters with Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., on his fact-finding mission to Jonestown had seen scores of male cultists sleeping on bunkbeds in that building. Ryan, three newsmen and a defecting cult member were killed at a nearby airstrip shortly before the mass poisoning began here.

The small cabins were long ago stripped of valuables. Inshan said about 20 persons were caught breaking into the storehouses where salvageable items were locked up. He declined to speculate on whether the trespassers had been lured by tales of money, gold or jewels hidden at Jonestown.

Immediately after the murder-suicide, police recovered $1 million in cash—mostly in $100 bills—around the site. Two survivors said later in Chicago that an additional $600,000 may still be found.

Rumors and stories about buried wealth circulate occasionally in Georgetown. One local journalist said many people believe a group of Temple loyalists who remain in the sect's Georgetown headquarters are waiting for a chance to look for the runmore treasure.

Generally, however, there is little talk in Georgetown about Jonestown or the Peoples Temple.

Two cult member are being held without bail in the capital awaiting legal action on charges stemming from the deaths.

Larry Layton, 32, is the subject on a court of inquiry in Georgetown, which has accepted as evidence his year-old confession to the killings.

In his confession, made shortly after the slayings, Layton said he believed Ryan was linked with the CIA and would spread bad publicity about the Temple. Ryan was in Guyana to investigate allegations that Jones was keeping cult members in Jonestown against their will.

An initial preliminary inquiry found probable cause for formal charges, but the inquiry has ruled invalid on a legal technicality.

The other cultist in Eteran, Beikman is charged with murder in the deaths of Sharon Amos, the cult's public relations officer, and her three children.

Mrs. Amos and her children had their throats slashed in the cult's Georgetown headquarters shortly after reportedly receiving a radio message from Jonestown on the night the mass killings took place.

Officials say Beikman is set for trial during the current court session which ends before Christmas. But his trial has been postponed at least twice before.

The government of Prime Minister Forbes Burnham seems unsure what to do with the jungle site.

Chances of reactivating Jonestown as an agricultural center seem remote due to the superstition surrounding the place, officials say.

Nothing has been done with suggestions that it be turned into a penal colony or maintained "as a curiosity, something like a museum or tourist attraction for its historical value," as recommended by Health, Housing and Labor Minister Hamilton Green.

Opposition political leaders still demand an impartial investigation of the events at Jonestown and alleged ties between cult members and government officials. Burnham named Chief Justice Alfred Crane to head a commission of inquiry, but the commission has yet to begin work.

The issue is a minor one compared with a worsening economic and political picture. Production levels of rice, bauxite and sugar—the nation's foreign exchange earners—are falling. Violent street clashes have broken out between police and a newly formed political party dedicated to Burnham's overthrow.

People express resentment that Guyana has become known internationally as the site of the Peoples Temple tragedy.

"I met a Canadian or an American on the Great Wall of China," said a local journalist just returned from a state-sponsored trip. "When I told him where I was from, he said, 'Oh yes, that's where the Jonestown thing happened.'" for cancer treatment, were merely expelled to another country.

Even if the shah dies in the United States or is expelled, Iran would still hold a trial, "because it is the Americans we want to judge for their misdeeds," he said.

The Iranian revolutionaries blame the shah's U.S. allies in part for the crimes they say he committed against the Iranian people during his 37-year reign.

They contend, too, that the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was nothing more than a "spy center" actively seek to overthrow Khomeini's revolutionary regime.

The Tehran embassy hostages "were arrested by the students, not by the government," Bani Sadr said, although they have Khomeini's support for their demands.

Foreign diplomats who saw the hostages Saturday said they appeared in good health. Informed sources in touch with diplomatic mediators in Tehran said Sunday there are a total of 98 hostages—62 Americans and 36 embassy employees of other nationalities, including Indians and Pakistanis.

FOR YOUR HIT MOM AND DAD UP HOW TO
It's easy. All you have to do is cut out, sign and send the letter below.

Dear Mom and Dad,

How are you? I'm fine, and the doctor says I'll feel even better when I get a few days' rest and a couple of home-cooked meals. But with the condition of my wallet, it looks like I'll have to hitchhike home for the holidays.

My roommate just made plans to go home with Greyhound and says Greyhound is a great way to fight inflation because their fares are so reasonable.

Greyhound even makes it possible for someone to prepay a ticket in one place so someone at another place can just pick up the ticket and come home. You can even send along a small cash advance with the ticket. Greyhound will take care of everything for just a small fee. Boy — is my roommate lucky.

Well, I have to run to pick up some more of that expensive medicine. I miss you all very much and hope to be home next weekend.

Love and kisses,

Demonstrations lead to vicious pranks; youth dies harassing Iranian student

DENVER, (AP)—An Iranian chemistry student was held for questioning yesterday after a 16-year-old youth was shot and killed and two companions were wounded after allegedly harassing the man, police said.

The shooting outside Afshin Shariati's southwest Denver apartment came after two days of demonstrations around Colorado related to Iranian students and the hostage situation in Iran, but police would not speculate whether the shooting was connected with those protests.

The dead youth, identified as Paul Nortliky, died at the scene, officers said. His two companions were identified as Steve Roane, 17, and Michael Lopez, 16, also of Denver.

Shariati, 21, is a student at Loretto Heights College, majoring in chemistry and petroleum engineering, said apartment manager Steve Gerhart, a 25-year-old University of Denver graduate student.

Police said no charges had been filed against Shariati.

A neighbor, Kelly Ryan, 21, said she was in bed "when I heard some people running and glass crashing. I heard them running across the top stairs and then down the stairs. Then I heard two shots. I figured somebody had been shot or there had been a party or something."

'Help me, man.

I've been shot.'

Jim Costillo, 29, who lives in an adjacent house, said someone began beating on his front door early yesterday.

A young man, later identified as Lopez, stood bleeding on his doorstep, Costillo said. "Help me, man, I've been shot. Let me in," Costillo said the youth told him.

"He said the Arabs had shot him," Costillo said. Costillo called police, who arrived about five minutes later.

Detective Doug Hildebrand said the three youths "and several others" decided on Saturday night they would "find some Iranians to hassle."

Hildebrand said they looked on mailboxes in the apartment house for an Iranian name then smashed a picture window in Shariati's third floor apartment, apparently from the outside.

As the youths ran for their car, the detective said, Shariati came out of his apartment and fired in the direction of the fleeing juveniles with a rifle.

Moritzky died there. Roane was shot in the lower leg and was treated and released. Lopez was wounded in his left arm and hospitalized.

Gerhart described Shariati as "very polite. I've never had any trouble with him at all and he's lived here better than a year." Gerhart was not aware the shooting had taken place until told by reporters outside the three-story tan brick complex.

Students express confusion over SMC add/drop policy

By Mary Leavitt

Many Saint Mary's students who express confusion about the policy for dropping courses may wait too long to begin the procedure. This delay could result in a permanent blemish on the student's record.

For the first seven days that a student is enrolled in a class, the class may be dropped without the withdrawal being recorded. In this case, there is absolutely no evidence of a withdrawal on the student's record.

For the next five weeks, the student has the option of dropping a class and having a withdrawal appear on her record. Permission is needed from the teacher of the course to be dropped and the Office of Academic Affairs or a doctor when the withdrawal is for reasons of poor health.

After this, dropping a class becomes a more serious matter and special permission is needed. If permission is granted and the student has a passing grade in the course, a withdrawal appears on the student's record. If the student has a failing grade in the course, an F appears on the record although the F is not added into her semester average.

What many students do not realize is that there is no such thing as a withdrawal F. On a student's transcripts, the F appears to the unknowing viewer as a final grade. The student must make it clear that this grade is not a final one.

"If it looks hopeless for a student and she has absolutely no chance of passing a course, we will usually advise her to drop the course so she will have more time to devote to her other classes," said Dr. Dorothy Feigl, chairman of the chemistry and physics department. "Otherwise, it really is better to stick it out considering the consequences."

shot off the goalie's stick to give the Irish the lead. Shortly thereafter, Meredith again ignited the crowd when he made a great play to deflect John Friedmann's shot from the left point into the cage past an unexpected Fricker.

With Friedmann in the penalty box for elbowing, Michigan went to work, and less than a minute later Laurion was beaten for the second time by Lerg at 14:22. Thirty-nine seconds later, Irish defenseman Scott Cameron was sent to the sinbin for holding, and Lerg picked up a hat-trick for the night after taking a pass from teammate Murray Eaves and blasting a shot past what seemed to be a screened Laurion. With the score notched at four, both Notre Dame and Michigan came out for the final stanza looking to cash in on a mistake, but Notre Dame made the first one 49 seconds into the period when Meredith was called for checking from behind. Eight seconds later, Eaves connected on the Wolves fourth powerplay goal to regain the lead for good. On the play, Eaves was left all alone on the right edge of the crease and he slipped a pass from ever present Lerg into the exposed cage. For the remainder of the game, it was all Fricker, as he stopped 15 shots in shutting out the Irish in the final stanza. Fricker made numerous glove saves on point blank shots, and left the Irish shaking their heads time after time.

With 6:46 left in the contest, Baseotto scored an insurance goal to dampen Notre Dame's hopes for a comeback. Michigan added icing on the cake at 19:35 with a short-handed empty net goal and skated off with a hard-fought, well-played win.

touchdown would have given Notre Dame some added impetus to build on and come back in the third quarter.

Instead the Volunteers added to their lead, and the defense held Notre Dame in check for the rest of the game.

"We played the way we are capable of playing," said a jubilant Majors. "It is a great day for Tennessee football because we beat a team with great tradition and class. You couldn't ask for anything better than that."

"It was our inability to tackle and defend that hurt us most," Devine commented. "when they got to the goal line they scored and we didn't. We just couldn't slow them down at all."

Tripucka (18 points, 11 rebounds) and guards Rich Branning (18 points) and Bill Hanzlik (8 points, 9 rebounds).

The remainder of Notre Dame's team made up the Blue squad. The game was run very informally, as players were shifted between the two squads once the Greens had opened a 16-point first-half lead.

Freshman forward Bill Varner was the leading scorer for the Blue starters. He scored 16 points in addition to collecting six rebounds. Junior guard Stan Wilcox and freshman pivot Tim Andree, also starters for the Blue, scored 11 each.

extra-man opportunities. Despite numerous chances for both teams, the red lamp was not lit until the 19:26 mark of the period when Michigan center Dan Lerg, with Notre Dame's John Higgins off for boarding, beat goalie Dave Laurion after receiving a pretty pass from freshman standout Bruno Baseotto.

The Irish, on the other hand, were continually frustrated by Fricker. He played an outstanding game, shutting the door repeatedly on the Irish forwards, including several breakaway saves which left the crowd in amazement.

In commenting on the loss after the game, Irish coach Lefty Smith summarized Michigan as being a very strong club, but added, "I think we're as good, we had the opportunities but we just couldn't cash in. That was the difference."

Smith felt that the key to the loss was Fricker, saying, "Their goaltender came up with a great performance," as was evident by his 37 saves for the night, many of which were nothing less than spectacular.

After Baseotto picked up his own rebound and poked it past Laurion at 2:31 of the second period, the Irish attack suddenly fell as they ran off a string of four unanswered goals to gain their first lead of the game. Sophomore Dave Poulin opened the scoring for the Irish when he alertly snuck from behind the Michigan cage and stuffed the puck past a surprised Fricker, 4:26 into the period, and the Irish were off and on their way.

Two minutes later, Michalek knotted the score at two-apiece when he beat Fricker on a point-blank shot directly in front of the crease, as Meredith and Lucia combined for the assists in setting up the score. At 8:41 of the period, Meredith got in on the goal-scoring act as he picked up a loose puck in front of the net and wristed a

COHN FOR ROOMMATE!

Vols' emotional victory dampens ND bowl hopes

by Mark Perry
Sports Editor

KNOXVILLE - For Notre Dame, Saturday's contest against Tennessee was to be another step towards a possible post-season bowl bid. But for the Volunteers, playing before a record crowd of 86,489 in Neyland Stadium, the game meant much more. For coach Johnny Majors, the players, and the Tennessee fans, it was possibly the most important game in their 89-year football history.

Riding that emotional wave, the Vols took advantage of a series of Notre Dame mistakes to roll to a 40-18 victory.

"Give Tennessee credit for playing a great game," praised Irish linebacker Bob Crable. "They were up and we were flat, for some reason."

"People don't realize how big a part emotion plays in football. Southern Cal could come in here and get beat if they were down. You've got to have the discipline to be ready every week. Not many teams do."

But emotion is not all that wins football games, as Notre Dame coach Dan Devine noted. "Tennessee won because they executed the fundamentals better than we did. When a team does that, it should be complimented."

"We don't have any excuses whatsoever. We played a team that played better football than we did today. It's tough for all of us to face up to that."

It appeared that the Irish had the upper hand early in the game, as they rolled 80 yards on ten plays on their first possession to grab a 6-0 lead. But Chuck Male's miss on the extra point try started a series of Irish miscues that would help the Vols roll up a 30-12 halftime lead.

Tennessee also drove for a touchdown on their first possession, and Alan Duncan's extra point gave them a 7-6 lead. On Notre Dame's first play after the kickoff, quarterback Rusty Lisch threw a screen pass to fullback Ty Barber, good for 27 yards, but a holding play brought the play back. Devine thought this might have been the turning point.

"That would have put us at midfield, but instead we were back at the 5," he noted. "We knew the way we were playing defensively, we had to keep up with them point for point. Then we dropped a pass that still would have got us out of that hole."

"That was a series that we needed early to keep up. The game could have developed into an exchange of points with that series."

Instead it was Tennessee that was scoring all the points, as freshman tailback Hubert Simpson ran for three second quarter touchdowns, and the Vols added a safety.

The two-pointer occurred after tailback Bernie Adell accidentally stepped out of bounds at Notre Dame's one-yard line on a Tennessee kickoff. Lisch attempted a handoff to fullback John Sweeney to get the Irish out of the hole, but the pair collided in the end zone, and Lisch was tackled by Brian Ingram attempting to roll out of trouble.

The Irish had an opportunity to get back within striking distance late in the first half, but came up short. Vagas Ferguson scored on a two-yard run to make the score 30-12 with four minutes left. Tennessee quarterback Jimmy Streater was injured on the next series and backup Dave Rudder fumbled the ball into the arms of Steve Cichy on a scramble on his first play.

A long pass by Lisch put the Irish within scoring range, and they drove down to the Vols' two. But an alert play by linebacker Chris Bolton kept Ferguson from reaching the end zone on fourth down.

"We just had to stop them," Bolton noted. "They were challenging us. I was chasing the ball, and saw Ferguson moving to the left. I shed a block and stopped him."

"It was a big defensive series for us," Majors added. "A

Irish split high-scoring series

by Michael Olenik
Sports Writer

Notre Dame's hockey team battled the Michigan Wolverines to a series split this past weekend at the ACC, giving the Irish a 3-3 Western Collegiate Hockey Association record while handing Michigan its initial loss of the season. Both Saturday's 11-9 Irish win and Friday's 7-4 Wolverine triumph were characterized by fast skating and hard hitting, as is evident by the fact that 31 goals were scored and 34 penalties were whistled in the series.

On Saturday night, 3,852 fans were treated to a shootout as Notre Dame's offense exploded to hand Michigan its first loss of the season. Kevin Humphreys was the key factor in the victory, scoring a hat-trick while adding three assists for the Irish.

Humphreys seemed pleased with the team's play, stating "It's got to be good for our confidence, especially after going down by three. Splitting with the number one team is good, but we were hoping for a sweep."

Michigan opened the scoring in grand fashion, however, by registering three goals in the first 10 minutes against freshman netminder Bob McNamara.

The Irish finally beat Wolverine goalie Paul Fricker at the 17:50 mark of the first period, when defenseman Jeff Brownschidle deked his way past the Wolverine blue line before blasting a hard shot into the nets for an unassisted tally.

The Wolves took a 4-1 lead 1:43 into the second period when Murray Eaves lifted a shot into the Notre Dame twines. But after that score, the Irish exploded for four consecutive scores, three of which were on powerplays. Tom Michalek, Greg Meredith, Humphreys and Brownschidle all lit the red light in that spree, giving Notre Dame its first lead.

Roger Bourne evened the score at 15:20 despite two beautiful initial saves by McNamara. Notre Dame struck back quickly, scoring two more goals before the period ended, and taking a 7-5 advantage into the final period.

The last stanza proved to be a wide-open affair, with eight goals being scored by the two teams along with hard hitting and furious end-to-end action. At 4:56 Michalek beat Fricker with a shorthanded goal after picking up a missed shot from Humphreys to expand the Irish lead to three. Michigan retaliated less than a minute later on a score by John Olver, but Kevin Humphreys, at 6:43, scored Notre Dame's second shorthanded goal in less than two minutes, much to the delight of the vocal Irish fans. Dave Poulin increased the lead to 10-6 at 13:37, with assists going to Don Lucia and Bill Rothstein, as the fans sensed a rout.

It was not to be, however, as Michigan erupted for three tallies in only 32 incredible seconds to tighten the score at 10-9 with four minutes to play. But Notre Dame's defense rose to the occasion and shut out the Wolverines for the remainder of play to preserve the Irish win.

In Friday night's action, Michigan's highly-routed powerplay unit lived up to its reputation by cashing in on four of eight Approximately 8700 fans turned out last night to watch the Green squad post a 99-54 win over the Blue squad in Notre Dame's annual intrasquad charity basketball game at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

The game was the first public appearance of the year for the Irish, who open this Thursday by hosting the Soviet Union National team. And Digger Phelps, entering his ninth year as coach of the Irish, used the intrasquad affair to prepare for the Soviets.

"We definitely accomplished what we had intended to," said Phelps. "We were playing in front of a crowd, and we also used the international rules that we'll have to use on Thursday."

"We tried to simulate things that the Russians would do with their defenses, and execute our offense to beat their defenses."

Junior center Orlando Woolridge led all scorers with 28 points - with all but two of his 12 field goals coming on slam dunks. A starter on the Green squad, Woolridge also had nine rebounds.

Woolridge was joined on the Green squad by forwards Tracy Jackson (23 points) and Kelly
