Vance resigns position over Iranian conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is resigning in the wake of his disagreement with President Carter over the attempt to rescue American hostages in Iran, The Associated Press learned last night.

Vance's departure, considered imminent, is certain to add to Carter's problems following the collapse of the mission in a remote desert in Iran last week.

"They had a good relationship, but both the president and the secretary concluded it was impossible for him to function as secretary of state," a senior administration official, who refused to be identified, said.

Details of the resignation were not disclosed, but it was confirmed by sources both inside the administration and the Congress.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S. Dak., declared that "I deeply regret the resignation of Secretary Vance...it is clearly a loss for the cause of common sense."

Vance was the only member of the National Security Council who opposed the operation, the official said. But afterward, he supported the administration in explaining the operation to foreign governments.

Vance's disagreement over the military venture was only one of a series of setbacks for the soft-spoken former Wall Street lawyer, whose approach to foreign policy was one of conciliation, rather than confrontation.

Again and again, he ended up on the short end of power struggles with Zbigniew Brzezinski, the determined anti-Soviet national security adviser who played a prominent role in drawing the United States away from detente with the Russians.

There was no immediate indication of who would take Vance's place. He had said he would be leaving at the end of the four-year presidential term, even if Carter is re-elected, and Warren M. Christopher, the deputy secretary of state, has been considered a leading prospect to succeed him.

A theory has persisted from the start that Brzezinski, like Kissinger, would like to move from the national security adviser's job to secretary of state. But last month, Brzezinski told a women's Democratic group that his choice for a new secretary was Christopher, a slight Los Angeles lawyer who served in the Justice Department during the Johnson administration.

Christopher recently has taken on a number of travel missions that normally would have been Vance's, including efforts to persuade European leaders to support Carter's economic sanctions against Iran and against the Soviet Union for the Soviet's intervention in Afghanistan.

Vance, 63, is a veteran of the Democratic foreign policy establishment whose international views underwent a major shift during the Vietnam war. A former deputy defense secretary, he became a quiet advocate of conciliation and a low-keyed approach to world problems.

One of his principal interests, a transition to black rule in Rhodesia, was accomplished largely through the offices of the British government. But in arms control and human rights, Vance saw once-favored Carter policies take a back seat to growing confrontation with the Soviet Union.

While Brzezinski, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and other key advisers to Carter were prominent in the aftermath of the rescue attempt, there was no sign of Vance, even though he quietly worked pre-dawn hours at the State Department directing notification to foreign governments and consultations with key members of Congress.

In dealing with foreign governments, Vance seems to enjoy a good reputation. His avoidance of bombast was appreciated in foreign capitals. From the start, he never attracted the attention of his celebrated predecessor, Henry H. Kissinger, who had a gift for publicity. Vance did not seem to mind and even brushed off frequent reports of differences with Brzezinski who is in more of the Kissinger mold.

Seek asylum in Cuba

Guerrillas end embassy siege

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - Guerrillas ended their 61-day occupation of the Dominican Republic Embassy yesterday, flying aboard a Cuban jetliner to Havana where they were granted political asylum. All 16 of their diplomatic hostages, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, were freed.

The ambassadors from Venezuela, the Dominican Republic, Israel and Egypt were released just before the Soviet-built Ilyushin jet took off at 8:20 a.m., about 1 1/2 hours after the

The others, including Asencio and the papal nuncio, were flown to Havana along with the guerrilla band, then set free, according to reports from Havana and Washington. Shortly after the siege began, Cuban President Fidel Castro offered the guerrillas asylum.

From Havana, Asencio was flown on a charter plane to Homestead Air Force Base in Satisfactory condition

'Earthball' game injures freshman

by John M. Higgins

A Notre Dame student was injured during an An Tostal "earthball" game on Stepan Field Saturday. Witnesses said that Robert Hartnett, a freshman from Flanner Hall, ran into the 6-foot diameter "earthball" and was "trampled" by the crowd after he fell to the ground. The student was transported to Saint Joseph's Hospital where he was listed in satisfactory condition.

Earthball is played on a football field with anywhere from 20 to several hundred players on each team. The players line up on either goal line and the inflated ball is placed in the center of the field. The players then run to the ball, bat it into the air, and try to move it down the field over the opposing team's goal line.

On Saturday, approximately 200 or 300 people from the North and South quads lined up on opposite goal lines. According to witnesses, at the referee's signal Hartnett ran towards the ball with the rest of the North Quad team.

Reaching the ball ahead of his teammates, he bounced off the ball and fell to the ground. "We saw him go down and tried to stop," said one player who was at the front of the North Quad pack. "But the guys in the back couldn't see him and kept pushing forward."

'Nothing like this has happened. It was just a freak accident.'

As soon as the referees saw Hartnett go down, they stopped the game. "He was knocked unconscious and bleeding pretty badly," said referee Bill Hogan, "but he was still breathing." An ambulance was called to the scene and Hartnett was transported to the hospital where he was treated for a concussion and facial lacerations.

"It was wild," one witness said. "600 people came together and then BOOM! this kid gets trampled." "We thought we could control it," Hogan said. "It was all over in 15 seconds. It was just a freak accident."

Hartnett, who was unconscious for six minutes said he did not remember what happened. "(At the hospital) people kept asking me 'What happened?'" he said. "I just kept saying, 'I don't know, I don't know.'"

The game resumed soon after the ambulance drove away. "We changed the rules after the accident," Hogan said. "Instead of placing the ball in the middle with the players on the goal lines, we started with everyone standing around the ball, holding it up in the air rather than rushing at it. We had no problems after that," he added.

However, there were still people falling down. "But whenever that happened the students stopped the game themselves," Hogan said. "The players really got it together after the accident."

Why wasn't the game stopped? "John Calloway (An Tostal Chairman) and I decided to continue," Hogan said. "The rules were changed and we judged that it was safe now."

"We've never had any problems like this before," said Chris Digan, who has refereed several earthball games over the last few years. "Nothing like this has ever happened. It was just a freak incident."

"On the other hand," he reflected, "If I had known North Quad would get beaten, I would've told them to stop." In jubilation over the victory, one South Quad resident said enthusiastically, "They all got trampled."

Anderson headquarters close, prepare for Independent bid

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Indiana campaign headquarters for Republican John B. Anderson are closing their doors to signal a new beginning. The pursuit of an independent bid for the presidency. "Because of the state of the campaign, we've had pull-backs in our (Indiana) operation. Headquarters around the state are being shut down as of Friday," said Anderson worker Stu Wachs after the veteran Illinois congressman announced his decision Thursday to run for president as an independent. State coordinator Don Redfern said Thursday that the Indiana Anderson for President committee was disbanding, but that a group to push Anderson's independent bid in Indiana might be "formed in the near future."

Hunt brothers given $800M despite credit restraints

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Paul A. Volcker, helped arrange up to $800 million in credit for the billionaire hunt brothers of Texas to help them pay their silver speculating debts, it was learned last week. Meanwhile, the chairman of the House Banking Committee accused the board of appearing to violate its own credit restraint directives through its involvement in the transaction. Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., also said he planned to hold hearings on the development. A government source, who did not want to be identified, said Volcker gave his approval to the line of credit from private banks in late March because of concern that the financial problems of Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt placed some brokerage houses and banks in potential jeopardy. Volcker's approval apparently was deemed necessary because the board had announced rigid restraints on credit sought for speculative purposes two weeks earlier, on March 14. The credit restraints are an integral part of the government's anti-inflation program.

Murderer files lawsuit alleging poor jail conditions

FORT WAYNE Ind. (AP) - A convicted murderer, now serving a life term at the Westville Corrections Center, has filed a $365,000 civil rights suit against county officials for allegedly poor conditions in the Adams County Jail. The suit, filed in U. S. District Court by Ernest Richard Tope of Decatur, Ind., contains 51 allegations about overcrowding, lack of recreational facilities and general poor conditions at the jail. The suit names as defendants former Adams County commissioners Robert Workinger and Henry Detting; current commissioner Floyd Baker; former Sheriff Harold August, and Deputy Sheriff William Bauman. Tope was held in the Adams County Jail before and during his 1975 trial for the murder of Cheryl Ann Felger of Van Wert, Ohio, the year before.

Recession attacks several Indiana automakers

By The Associated Press - (AP) As the nationwide recession deepened, planned layoffs this week in Marion, Muncie, Evansville and Anderson brought the number of additional Indiana workers idled to 1,481. In Muncie, 500 persons were laid off at the Chevrolet plant, and an additional 200-250 workers will be idled indefinitely at the Warner-Gear division of Borg Warner Corp. The layoffs at Chevrolet, which a spokesman said were due to the downturn in auto sales, will only last two weeks. But there are already 182 persons on indefinite layoff at the plant, which makes transmissions for Chevy cars and trucks.

New building planned

WNDU accepts bids for building

by Kelli Flint
Senior Staff Reporter

At least fifteen organizations have expressed an interest in occupying the current WNDU building, according to Leo Corbaci, Dean of Administration.

WNDU is awaiting finalization of plans for a new facility, which will be located on Door Road. The dates for the groundbreaking and completion of the building are uncertain at this time.

However, Corbaci estimated that the new facility should be completed within the next 18 months. "There has been much interest expressed the building," Corbaci said. "There have been no serious discussions yet as to who will occupy it."

Corbaci did not release the names of the organizations that have expressed interest in the WNDU building. The Observer has learned of three of these organizations.

Educational Technology Services has expressed written interest in the building, according to Andrew Zand, coordinator of Educational facilities would enable ETS to expand their current services.

"We now have only two or three areas for individual viewing of tapes," Zand said. "this causes problems because of the number of students that use our facilities. We've designed a plan that would add three individual viewing areas, and also allow for two large group areas."

Zand said that he is optimistic about his chances for obtaining the WNDU building for ETS. "Since the WNDU building is designed for media, I would like to think that our Services (ETS). "We have even designed floor plans for the building," Zand said. "We feel that a central location would make ETS more accessible for students."

Zand noted other advantages associated with the new location. "If we were located in the WNDU building, we would be able to cut the use of vehicles for delivering film and equipment, he said. "We would be close to many buildings that make use of our facilities."

Zand added that the WNDU

chances of getting it are pretty good."

A committee of students met with University President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh recently to discuss a proposal recommending that the WNDU building be used as a Social Concerns Center, according to committee member Will O'Brien. "The two main points of our proposal were that the University should have a center for Social Concerns, and that the WNDU building would serve that purpose," O'Brien

Denver offers solution to starvation problem

by Marty Carrigan

"It really is possible to eliminate hunger on this planet in the next 15-20 years," said John Denver at a Saturday press conference before his concert at the ACC. In 45 minutes he presented a very convincing and emotional plea to eliminate hunger.

"Fifteen to twenty million people starve each year and I want to do something about it," emphasized Denver. His talent lies in communicating with people. Many have written him to tell him that his songs express feelings and emotions that they could never put into words.

As a member of the President's commission on World Hunger, Denver wants to educate and communicate with people to make them aware that there is a problem. Fifteen to twenty million people starve to death each year, and it "is a

Inmates take several hostages as 'peaceful' negotiations begin

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) - A food service worker and six guards were taken hostage yesterday by about 35 apparently unarmed inmates at the Indiana State Prison, but three of the hostages were released and negotiations started in what was called "a peaceful mood."

Four hostages were still held by the inmates, according to Dan Rose, LaPorte County sheriff. But he added, "Everything is in a peaceful mood. The situation is in hand. I'm optimistic."

Another 200 inmates had barricaded themselves inside another section of the prison but held no hostages, officials said.

"There are around 35 prisoners in the NSB (New Security Building), but only four or five of them seem to be interested in the whole thing," said State Sen. John R. Larson, chairman of the Indiana Senate Corrections Committee.

"There's no leadership among them. They're very unorganized and probably frightened," Larson told newsmen at the prison. "Negotiations will continue through the night. We expect a settlement by early morning, noon at the latest. There is a tone of optimism."

Larson said the prison takeover apparently was related to the stabbing of one guard Saturday night. He said the guard, who was not identified, was stabbed and pushed down a flight of stairs. His condition was not known.

Larson, a Valparaiso Republican, said the wounded guard apparently was "one of the guards the prisoners have a grievance with."

"Much of this goes back to some particular people that the prisoners have disagreements against," he said.

Officials "made a choice to negotiate... instead of storming and removing the prisoners, because they believe the prisoners are serious," Larson added.

There were no reports of injuries and the inmates were not believed armed, said William Watt, executive assistant to Gov. Otis R. Bown.

Bill Warrick of South Bend television station WSBT, one of the newsmen inside, said the inmates sought better medical care, individual review of the cases of prisoners in the security lockup and better news coverage of the prison. They also wanted amnesty for all inmates participating in the incident.

Warrick said the inmates told him the safety of the remaining hostages depended on full compliance with their demands.

About 100 state troopers stood guard in riot gear. County and city police were also at the prison. "We do have more state police being called in for backup," said Sgt. Larry Dembinski, public information officer at the state police post in nearby Lowell.

There was some confusion earlier whether six or seven hostages had been taken originally.

Watt and state police said that after one guard was released when he complained of hyperventilation, there were five guards and a food service worker being held in the security area of the "C" cell block. But Maj. O. Warren Jackson said only four guards and the food service worker were held. No names were released.

There are 1,600 inmates at the prison in this city of 39,000 residents on Lake Michigan. It is Indiana's only maximum security prison, although a federal maximum security installation is located at Terre Haute.

The Michigan City facility has a long history of problems.

The most recent occurred in March 1979 when inmates held three guards hostage in a secluded unit before releasing them unharmed when prison authorities agreed to discuss their grievances. The incident followed a four-day hunger strike by 27 inmates.

According to committee member Mary McCarthy, the committee is optimistic about their chances of obtaining the WNDU building. "We feel that the development of a Social Concerns center is a priority and should be looked on as such," McCarthy said. "As a Catholic institution, we have a commitment to volunteer and other service programs. A Social Concerns Center would be an expression of our commitment to social concerns."

Radio station WSND has also expressed an interest in occupying the WNDU building, according to WSND Executive Board member Paul Stauder.

"There has been a working relationship between WNDU and WSND," Stauder said. "WNDU would be a great facility for WSND, since we're already a radio station. We looked into expanding our office space and possibly adding another studio prior to WNDU's announcement that they would be vacating their current facility."

Stauder said that he is uncertain of WSND's chances of obtaining the WNDU building. "If we were given the building, there would be fewer changes involved with our moving in," Stauder said. "We could easily transmit from the WNDU building, and our relationship with WNDU would ease the transition."

Henry Valenzuela got the Irish off to an explosive start with a three-run homer in the first inning.

SATURDAY

Pitching abounded for the Irish as both Mike Kenahan and Marty Vuomo tossed six hitters, pacing Notre Dame to 5-1 and 3-0 victories respectively over Illinois Chicago Circle.

In the first game, Kenahan struck out three and did not walk a batter as he improved his season record to 4-0. Voelinger snapped a 1-1 deadlock with his two run shot in the third inning.

In the second game, it was Voelinger again driving in what proved to be the winning run with a first inning sacrifice fly bringing home Vuomo, who set down 12 straight Circlebatters over one stretch, struck out four and walked none.

SUNDAY

With 24 hits in just 14 innings of play, the host Irish coasted by Bowling Green in the opener, 6-2 and eaked out an 8-7 win in the nightcap.

Mike Deasey, now 5-1 on the year, went the distance gave up no earned runs, just four hits and struck out seven Falcon batters in the first game. Valenzuela drove in two runs with a first inning double down the left field line.

Bryan Smith gave up 13 hits and seven runs but still chalked up a complete game, as Notre Dame held off a late Falcon surge to improve the season slate to 22-7. Mike Simendinger was the hitting star in the nightcap with three hits and three RBI's.

With the team loss went almost all hopes of a possible NCAA representation. Notre Dame's best shot for a trip to Athens, Ga., was at number one doubles where Harris and Herb Hopwood had been as hot as the whole team, winning 14 straight before yesterday.

"Crout and I wanted to win that one more than anything," said a disappointed Hopwood, "but now the pressure's off. I guess that's some consolation."

The 15-3 Irish must regroup between now and Wednesday when they take on always tough Western Michigan at the Courtney Center. Notre Dame won a 5-4 squeaker last year at Kalamazoo.

With the season goal of 20 wins still mathematically within reach, Harris has made one thing quite clear. "I guarantee we'll win 20 matches," he said yesterday. "In fact, I feel sorry for our next five opponents. They're gonna run into one fired up team."

Defending Chumps finish Bookstore as champs...

by Frank LaGrotta
Sports Writer

When Tom Sudkamp and Company were contemplating names for their 1980 Bookstore Basketball entry, the logical selection was Defending Chumps.

After all, they were called The Chumps last year and they won the title which made them defending champs this year. And "Chumps" sounds like "Champs."

Well, almost.

Anyway, Bill Hanzlik made the prophetic team name stick yesterday when he scored nine points and grabbed 14 rebounds to make the defenders become the repeaters in the finals of Bookstore IX.

A near capacity crowd of over 2,000 watched the Chumps defeat Strappamasquon and the Combat Wombats, 21-11, behind the ACC under cloudy skies that typically shroud these Bookstore affairs. Yet neither the weather nor the Wombats could stop the Chumps as they rolled to their second consecutive Bookstore crown.

Ironically, Hanzlik did not share in the Chumps 1979 victory because of the NCAA ruling prohibiting varsity basketball players with eligibility remaining to play in the tournament. But he was on the roster this year and no one realized it more than the Wombats.

"Bill played very well today," commented team captain Sudkamp who had six points in 13 attempts for the winners. "He had a good tournament and I know he wanted to win the thing."

The game started slowly with Hanzlik hitting five of his first seven shots to give the Chumps a 5-2 lead. Pete Holohan hit his first shot for the Wombats then missed his next seven attempts before dropping a short jumper to cut the Chumps lead to four. The winners led 11-7 at halftime before outscoring their opponents 10-4 in the second stanza.

Rusty Lisch, named the tournament's most valuable player after the finals, contributed five points and five rebounds to his team's championship victory. Lisch picked up his third straight Bookstore title yesterday. He was a member of the 1978 champions, Leo's Last, and also played for last year's titlists.

It was also Lisch's fifth straight final-game appearance. Prior to his three titles, he played with Bill Paterno's Average White Team which lost to Dave Batton's TILCS in the 1976 and '77 finals.

Holohan paced the losers with four points while teammates Mike Courey and Greg Knafelc had three and two, respectively. Willie Fessler also had two for the Wombats.

Yesterday marked the last appearance of the The Chumps in Bookstore competition. All five of their players will be leaving Notre Dame at the end of the school year. In the last three years the team compiled a 19-1 record.

... while Blowoffs win women's title

by Mark Perry
Sports Editor Emeritus

Early Sunday morning most of the students at Notre Dame were still in bed recovering from a weekend's worth of An Tostal activities. But behind the ACC ten early risers were battling it out for top honors in the second annual Women's Bookstore Basketball tournament.

And those who happened to get up before noon and make their way to the court constructed in the ACC parking lot saw B.J.'s Blowoffs win a hard-fought contest over Total Class 21-15.

Shari Matvey (six-foot-one) center who set numerous records in her first year on Notre Dame's women's varsity basketball team, led the way for the victorious Blowoffs, hitting ten baskets and grabbing 11 rebounds.

With Total Class leading 2-1 early in the game, Matvey connected on three straight shots as the Blowoffs grabbed a 4-3 advantage. Maggie Lally, who also played this season for the Irish varsity, hit on two long jumpers to put Total Class back in the lead, but baskets by Kim Kewitt and Beth Aries put the Blowoffs in the lead for good.

Total Class had a tough time trying to overcome some fine shooting by the Blowoffs (21-36 for the game) and couldn't get inside on Matvey, who blocked several shots and intimidated her opponents on several occasions.

Aries gave the Blowoffs a solid one-two punch on the front line, as she scored six baskets and grabbed 11 rebounds. Hewitt and fellow guard Joy Orie added some solid shooting from the backline, combining to hit five of six shots. Team captain Beth "B.J." Jones, playing with two sore ankles, was a solid candidate for the "Ironperson" award, as she sprained her knee early in the second half but still managed to grab five rebounds for the Blowoffs.

Cathy Carrie and Carrie Luepke tied for scoring honors on Total Class, scoring four

Ohio State snaps netter's streak

by Michael Ortman
Associate Sports Editor

Just as records were made to be broken so too were streaks begun to be snapped.

The Notre Dame tennis team had its string of 14 consecutive victories stopped yesterday afternoon as visiting Ohio State rallied for a 5-4 win in a rain delayed affair divided between the Courtney Tennis Center and the Lafayette South Racquette Club.

"I'd rather have lost and acted the way we did, than win and acted the way they did," said a dejected captain, Carlton Harris of the childish behavior of

Big Ten singles champion Ernie Fernandez and a variety of off the court comments made by the Buckeyes. Fernandez continually argued line calls, even after he had been granted a linesman in both singles and doubles.

The Irish held a seemingly comfortable 4-2 lead going into the doubles competition, needing just one win in three matches to take the victory. After the number three duo had split sets and the number one and two Irish teams had lost their first sets, the heavens began to sprinkle, and the remaining sets were forced downtown since an RV show occupied the courts in the ACC. "As it turned out, I don't think the rain made that much of a difference," said Irish coach Tom Fallon. "The number three doubles match was a

Walk-ons : A special breed

Tom Gibbons

Often times, when fans hear coaches complaining about the NCAA's limit of 95 grants-in-aid, they can't figure out why that number is so restrictive. After all, there are only 22 starters, and a handful of special teams players. So 95 scholarships should be more than adequate.

But many fans aren't aware of just how many players are actually needed. Prep teams, whose main responsibility is to learn and master the opposing offenses and defenses and run them against the first and second squads, play a vital role on any team. Injuries also take their toll on the 95-player limit.

Both of these factors bring out the importance of walk-on players. Their contributions are even more crucial in the spring, when the team is working with only three classes of players.

These unselfish players attend every single practice and meeting, learning the complex systems and terminology, without many of the tangible rewards that their scholarship teammates receive. Instead of getting their room, board and books paid for, these players have to be content with the satisfaction of knowing that they are making a very real, if often overlooked, contribution to the team's success.

While their teammates are being interviewed by television and radio stations, the walk-ons practice with the hope of some day getting a chance to play. But they are aware that the odds are against them. One of the few chances these players had to play against teams from other schools was lost when Notre Dame was forced to drop its junior varsity schedule in each of the last two seasons due to a shortage of players.

Every once in a while, though, a walk-on player earns a chance to play in a varsity game. Through a combination of outstanding play in practice and being in the right place at the right time, they get their shot at playing time. Lou Pagley, Chuck Male, Tom DeSiato, Joe Unis, Mark Norman and Bob Burger are just some of the walk-ons who have seen action in important games.

Players like these provide additional incentive for their fellow walk-ons. And their successes on both the practice and playing fields also give a big boost to all of their teammates.

Win six Irish sweep double-headers

Playing a grueling six games in three days, the Notre Dame baseball team mowed down visiting Huntington, Illinois-Chicago Circle and Bowling Green, sweeping all three double-headers and notching Notre Dame's first 20-win season since 1959.

The Irish couldn't seem to put solid pitching and explosive hitting on the field at the same time, but if the arms weren't stifling opposing hitters, it was the Irish bats singing. "Turn out the lights, the party's over..."

Here's the weekend rundown:

FRIDAY
In the opener, Greg Rodems collected three hits including a three run homer and drove in six runs, leading the Irish to a 15-7 win over Huntington. Greg Kot earned the victory with relief help from Steve Whitmeyer. The 1.000 fireman went 5.000, giving up no hits, 2 runs in five while earning his first save of the season.

In the nightcap, sophomore Dan Szajko brought home captain Dan Voelinger with a bases loaded single to center in
