Makeshift quarters found for St. Edward's homeless

by John McGrath
News Editor

Ninety-eight St. Edward's Hall residents will be living in makeshift quarters this semester and their former home lies in a state of ruin, all victims of a destructive June 25 fire which swept through the building's fourth floor and roof.

Although damage was extensive, University officials have decided to proceed with plans to rebuild the hall. Donald Dedrick, director of the Physical Plant, told The Observer yesterday that reconstruction of the 98-year-old structure could begin as early as Oct. 1.

In the interim, 98 of St. Edward's scheduled 124 residents will be housed in portions of Grace, Flanner, and Columba Halls, according to Fr. Michael Heppen, director of housing.

Sixty-six students are to be lodged in converted study lounges in the two tower dorms. Twenty of the study lounges in Grace and Flanner have been prepared to house three or four students each along with resident assistants and an assistant rector from St. Ed's.

The section of Columba Hall nearest the Grotto known as Vincent Hall has been prepared to house the remaining 32 students and St. Edward's Rector Fr. Mario Pedi.

"They're going to try to maintain their hall spirit," said Heppen of the displaced St. Ed's residents. He indicated that plans are even being made to field St. Edward's intramural sports teams this year.

Four firemen were injured while fighting the blaze which started in the upper floors of the structure. Workmen who ironically were in the process of installing a sprinkler system, sounded the alarm shortly before 9 a.m. when they smelled smoke.

There was some speculation that blowtorches being used by the workmen may have been at fault for the blaze.

No formal loss figure has been announced pending the resolution of insurance coverage conflicts.

At the height of the fire, ten pieces of fire equipment were at the scene. The vehicles encountered some difficulties in approaching the structure because of the lack of an access road, and some had to run over bushes to get within reach of the fire.

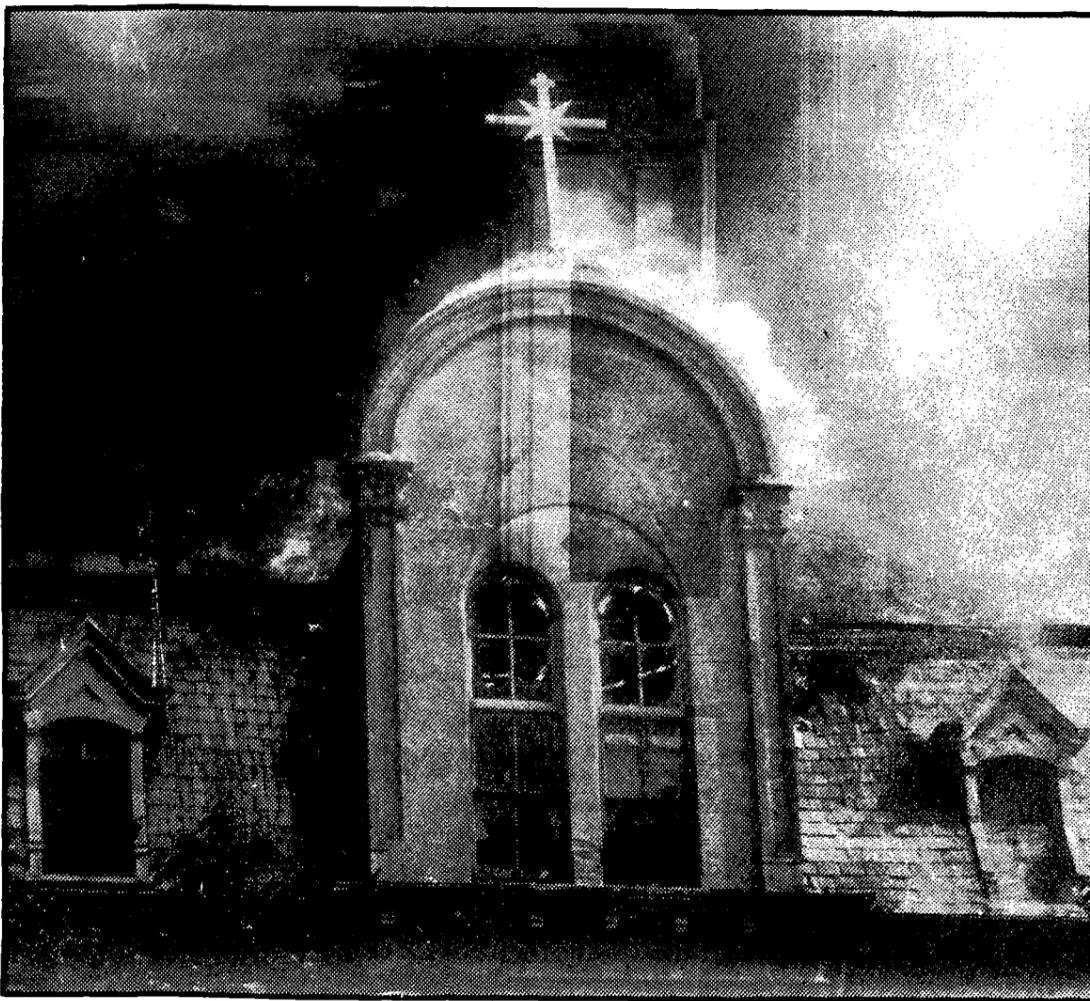

Employees of the Administration Building, a scant 30 yards away, were evacuated at one point for a short time as flames threatened to spread.

Fr. Pedi was the only person living in the structure over the summer, and he was in class at the time the fire broke out. Many of his personal belongings were saved, including his pet bird, a Moluccan Cockatoo.

Two other prized fixtures of the hall, a fresco on the second floor painted in the late 1800s and a stained glass window of Fr. Edward Sorin, were also saved, although water damage was heavy throughout the building.

The blaze was brought under control by approximately 11:30 a.m., and University officials were immediately forced to consider options for providing

Devine: A soul search ends

By Paul Mullaney
Editor-in-Chief

Notre Dame football coach Dan Devine ended a prolonged soul search last Friday by announcing that he will resign from his post at the conclusion of the 1980 season.

The unexpected announcement, which even caught most athletic department officials by surprise, was televised nationally over ABC during halftime of the Aug. 15 exhibition game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Atlanta Falcons.

Devine, who opens his sixth season at Notre Dame two weeks from today when the Irish host Purdue, cited "personal reasons and family considerations" for his resignation.

"I always felt I would be the first to know when it was time for me to step down," said Devine. "I want to spend more time with my family."

Devine reportedly reached his decision in early August after months of deliberation. After notifying University President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh and Executive Vice-President Fr. Edmund P. Joyce, who serves as chairman of the faculty athletic board, Devine was given liberty to handle the announcement as he saw fit.

Shortly after lunch last Friday, Devine received a phone call from Dave Diles of ABC Sports, who had heard reports that Devine was planning to resign. Diles was prepared to make the announcement on national television.

Devine then made a deal with Diles and ABC. If the network would withhold from making the announcement until later in the day, Devine would go before a live national audience to make his announcement. This would allow him to first inform his players and coaching staff.

"Naturally when you make a decision like this you confide in a few people," said Devine. "But when you tell somebody a secret, it's no longer a secret. So I couldn't wait with the announcement, because I didn't want the squad and the staff to hear about it from somebody else."

Devine has been under pressure from various alumni groups since succeeding Ara Parseghian in 1975, and his wife is suffering from multiple sclerosis. He emphasized, however, that he received no pressure to quit, and the decision was his alone.

"All I can say is that it has been a great five years," said Devine, "and I want to be able to say it was a good six years. My top priority right now is to keep outside influences away from this team so they can play the type of football they are capable of playing."

There has been much speculation as to Devine's replacement, but Joyce — who will eventually make the decision — will be unavailable for comment until he returns from his visit to Israel in early September.

Devine, meanwhile, has not announced any future plans. "I really don't think I'll coach again," he said. "I won't say never, because I know there will be opportunities, but I'm about 98 percent sure I'll never coach again."

In five years at Notre Dame, Devine has compiled a 44-14-0 coaching record. His teams are undefeated in bowl competition, winning the 1976 Gator and the 1978 and '79 Cotton Bowls. His 1977 squad won the national championship with an 11-1 record.

Devine is Notre Dame's 23rd head football coach.

Frosh crowds move across U.S. 31

by Mary Fran Callaban
Senior Staff Reporter

Due to an increased number of freshmen admitted, coupled with the summer fire at St. Edward's dormitory, overcrowding on campus has emerged as a problem this fall. To partially alleviate the crowding, administrators have housed 34 freshmen at Villa Angela on U.S. 31 and converted study lounges into student residences on campus.

University administrators have leased Villa Angela, a former residence for brothers teaching at St. Joseph's High School, from the Fort Wayne/South Bend diocese until Jan. 1. The rationale behind the decision, according to Villa Angela rector Delores Ward, is that the new dorms under construction on the North Quad will not be finished and ready for students until second semester. Administrators say they did not want to admit students at mid-year but did not want to have the dorms go unoccupied for a semester.

According to Fr. Michael Heppen, Housing director, freshmen being housed in Villa Angela are "enthusiastic" to come to Notre Dame. He declined comment, however, on the matter of whether the 34 women had been wait-listed first and then accepted last minute. "I don't think it's really pertinent to go into that information," he said.

Freshman arriving Thursday afternoon, however, confirmed that they had all been wait-listed, rejected for admission to the University and then called mid June and offered admis-

The bold Israeli government gave preliminary approval yesterday to a hydroelectric project that would channel water from the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea. Arabs in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip are strongly opposed to the plan.

Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai said the station would save Israel $800 million in oil imports annually at current world prices.

It could provide 18 percent of Israel's current peak-hour power needs without raising the level of the Dead Sea, where water evaporates so quickly that the lake is the highest in mineral content in the world, he said.

A 67-year-old retired funeral home director who supposedly raised marijuana plants "as a diversion," has been fined $1,000 and placed on two years' probation for possession of 400 plants. Henry Zopf was sentenced Thursday after pleading guilty before Judge James Scullary in District Court. Defense lawyer Cynthia Spinola said

Zopf started gardening after he retired. "He needed a diversion and turned to growing marijuana. They were small plants and I'm sure he had no idea what he would do with them once the plants matured," she said.

A local television station in Travers City, Mich., was scheduled to show the 1940 Ronald Reagan film Knute Rockne: All-American, but pulled the movie at the last minute for fear it would be required to provide equal time for President Carter and candidate John Anderson. Instead, WGTU showed The Story of Sea Biscuit, starring Shirley Temple, as its Tuesday afternoon movie. "It's a good thing she's not running for anything this year," said station manager Foster Winters.

Campaign workers for Rep. John B. Anderson said yesterday they'll have more than enough voters' signatures to get their candidate on Indiana's presidential ballot this November. Between 15,000 and 20,000 signatures had been filed with county clerks around Indiana this week in time for the Friday deadline, Ann Rogers, an Anderson campaign spokeswoman, said. By late Friday afternoon, 4,000 to 5,000 of those signatures were certified, Ms. Rogers said. The Illinois congressman needs 6,982 certified signatures of registered voters to be placed on the Indiana ballot.

A house resolution introduced yesterday urges state election officials to ensure that absentee ballots are sent to the American hostages in Iran. Rep. Thomas B. Evans Jr., R-Del., said the resolution would ask state officials to check whether any of the 52 hostages held since last Nov. 4 are registered voters in their states. If so, an absentee ballot would be forwarded to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for the hostages to vote in the November general elections. Evans said, "This action would show both our fellow citizens and their captors that America has not forgotten them, and their precious rights of democracy cannot be locked out by a bunch of international hoodlums."

Consumer prices did not rise overall in July, the first month without an increase in more than 13 years. But a new burst of food price increases signaled that more inflation is on the way. The Labor Department reported yesterday that the Consumer Price Index held steady in July, mainly because the cost of buying a home dropped for the first time in seven years. Food prices shot up by 0.9 percent — the biggest increase since March — and a dramatic rise in wholesale food costs in July has yet to work its way to consumers. When mortgages and the cost of homes are excluded, prices rose 0.6 percent during the month, a rate that, if continued for 12 months, would mean annual inflation of 7.4 percent. Overall consumer prices increased 13.3 percent in 1979 and at an annual rate of 12.6 percent during the first seven months of this year. The index in July stood at 247.8 before seasonal adjustment. That means goods and services that could be bought in 1967 for $100 cost $247.80 last month. The 1967 dollar is not worth 40.4 cents.

The first court-martial of an American returning from a Vietnamese prisoner of war camp was to begin today with Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood facing charges of desertion and collaboration during the nearly 14 years he spent in the Southeast Asia country.

Outside the tiny courtroom at Camp Lejeune, N.C., where Garwood will be court-martialed is a bright red wall poster urging leathernecks to "Stay Proud, Stay Marine."

Mostly sunny today with highs in the mid to upper 80's. Fair and warmer tonight with lows in the mid 60's. Partly cloudy Tuesday with a slight chance of afternoon thundershowers.

Inside Monday

Your first taste of an all-nighter

There's a lot to be said for composing prose at 4 a.m. One thing that certainly should not be said is that it is an ideal time to write or think. One thing that may be said is that you will find yourself doing it often.

And that, perhaps, is the sagest "welcome" message I can give you. In fact, I find myself at this very moment composing prose I thought — for sure, for sure — I would write in the casual bliss of mid-afternoon. But these are the times that try men's souls. They are also the times when one digresses with frightening frequency, allowing one's thoughts to meander into literary allusions pertinent to the plight of plans and the late hour's merciless rush toward deadline. For instance...

"The best laid plans of mice and men aft gang aglay" (Robert Burns of course). Or perhaps something appropriate to the late hour and deadline. Dr. Samuel Johnson, whom you should get to know, once said: "When a man knows he is to be hung in a fortnight, it concentrates his mind wonderfully." Wonderful.

Ah, but why do I stray from my subject. "Is it perfume from a dress...that makes me so digress?" (that is T.S. Eliot, but don't worry about him until you're either a junior or very sure of your sexual nature). One could go on, but mounds of literary allusions do not a piece of journalism make, and that is what I have been told to do: make journalism, not allusions. It's kind of like "make love, not war," only in reverse.

Now, just between you and me, we have probably lost everyone at this point we wanted to lose along the way. So let's get to the point of all this, which they wouldn't have been interested in reading anyway.

No matter what you had been led to believe by well-meaning but hopelessly naive high school guidance counselors, college is not where one goes to earn a degree guaranteeing a high-paying "starting salary." That's utter crap. Anyone around here who tells you that, professors included (gasp), are people whom you shouldn't trust.

No, if the truth be told, college will do more for you than simply show you the way to those gold paved avenues called "career opportunity." College will teach you how to get yourself in a bind, then get back out again. This lesson will serve you well in "the real world," a concept bandied about quite a bit in college, a place never so neatly defined as a syllabus, an environ never quite so predictable as a South Dining Hall dinner.

A lot of concepts are bandied about in college. And most concepts, though they float and flail in the difficult realm of the abstract, sincerely attempt to arrive at a conclusion that makes the "real world" more concrete, more meaningful, more more. Journalism makes that attempt too. Sometimes it is an exercise in simple concreteness; making economics comprehensible, putting Palestinian terror into historical perspective. Sometimes it is an exercise in commentary; shedding light on the human situation by showing the relationship between a ghastly fire and crowded dormitories. And sometimes it seeks to entertain by reflection; connecting thoughts in the night with an overall scheme of a college education. Pretty presumptuous, huh?

Our philosophy at The Observer remains one of staunch commitment to the ideals and cannons of journalism: accuracy, fairness, accountability. We also try to stir the coals of thoughtful criticism, as any intelligent publication needs to do. The Inside column is a little of that intellectual fire. Generally we will add to the reportage you may find on the front page or substantiate the opinions you will read in the editorials. Or we may just accent the crisp perceptions that entertain on the features pages. Or, as in today's column we may just meander.

But there's a method to our madness, and in it you may just find your first model of a time-honored collegiate exercise: writing under deadline pressure. You see, the point of this column can be outlined as though it were a lecture on a blackboard. First, you do what you must to fulfill a requirement. Next, you reflect on your predicament until literary insight grabs hold and takes over. Then you feed yourself intellectually with the notion that most of the guidance you receive for your $6,000 plus per year is depressing but very, very wrong. Finally, you console yourself in the knowledge that the real world is real, its ebb and flow far removed from the mundane concerns of academia. Thus it can be said journalism is the remedy for a multitude of non-sequitrial sins.

But there is a larger lesson here. Within the next week you will look at each individual syllabus handed you by your professors. You will listen soberly to their wise and careful admonishments to "not fall behind" or to "start your paper now." You will nod gravely. You will absorb their countless examples of poor foolish students who, thinking they were immune to last minute dashes, entered upon the three-little-piggie syndrome, whereby they played until the wolf came calling. Finally, you will forget everything they said and find yourself, as the sun comes up, resorting to analogies from children's tales.

There's a lot to be said for concluding prose at 7 a.m.

Interhall requires insurance

Every student who participates in any intramural or club sport activity must be covered by some form of insurance policy. Participants in non-contact intramural sports must fill out the medical consent, insurance and release from available in the non-varsity office, C-2 in the ACC.

Students planning to participate in a contact intramural sport (football, soccer, basketball and hockey) or a club sport must bring proof of insurance to the non-varsity office.

These insurance requirements must be met before a student is eligible to participate in any activity. Failure to comply will jeopardize the status of the hall and/or team of any ineligible player.

Campus construction on dorms, science hall continues

by John McGrath
News Editor

Several new buildings have risen into the Notre Dame skyline since the end of the Spring semester, and work is slated to begin soon on yet another.

Most visible of the projects are the two new dormitory structures adjacent to the Library and the Stepan Chemical Hall, located to the rear of Nieuwland Science Hall.

Work is approximately 75 percent complete on the in-board "twin" dormitory nearest to the North Dining Hall, according to Donald Dedrick, director of the Physical Plant. He added that plans call for that structure to be ready for occupancy by January.

The contractor yesterday said they can have all the brickwork done in seven working days," Dedrick said. "Right now the building looks pretty rough, but there really isn't that much left to do with it."

The "outboard" dormitory is only 50-60 percent complete, however. That structure is not expected to be ready for occupancy until June 1981. Workmen have only gotten as far as the third floor deck on that planned four-floor building. The total cost of the twin dorm project is approximately $7 million, and is being financed by a donation from mall developer Frank J. Pasquerilla of Johnstown, Pa. Each of the dorms is to house 250 students. It is expected that women will occupy both halls.

Dedrick estimated that work is now 50 percent complete on the $9 million Stepan Chemical Hall. The 106,000-square foot complex is expected to be completed sometime in 1982. The new building will accommodate classrooms and laboratories now located in the old Chemical Engineering Building.

Work is expected to begin soon on a new structure to which will house the studios of WNDU radio and television. The building will be located near the intersection of U.S. 31 and Dorr Road in the vicinity of the Burke Memorial Golf Course.

Early plans unveiled in the Spring called for a 30,000-square foot structure, which would double the present size of WNDU's facilities.

Construction is expected to take 12 months.

It had been expected that groundbreaking would take place at mid-summer, but plans have been held up. According to Greg Giczi, director of promotions for WNDU, bids are expected to be let soon, however, with a probable start of construction following soon afterward.

Ruth Kelly, manager of the Notre Dame Credit Union estimates that the her organization's new $1.2 million structure is approximately one-third complete.

The 18,000-square foot facility, located across Douglas Rd. from the present office, will feature a drive-in capacity for two cars — a service not offered at the present location.

Occupancy is slated for next May.

Dedrick also outlined this summer's dorm renovation work. Five dorms, Sorin, St. Edwards, Walsh, Badin, and Carrol were targeted for over $1 million worth of renovations. With the exception of St. Edward's, Dedrick described the work as "essentially completed."

Three construction companies performed the work — the first stage of a program to bring some of the older residence halls up to modern standards.

The work included the installation of two stairwells in Badin Hall. Those plans caused controversy in the Spring because they necessitated the eviction of Tony's Shoe Shop, a privately owned business located in the Southeast corner of the building.

In the aftermath of the fire at St. Edward's, cleanup work has been going on in that structure in preparation for rebuilding. Although he could give no cost estimates, Dedrick estimated that work on rebuilding the hall could begin Oct. 1.

Reagan, Bush confer on apparent contradiction

LOS ANGELES — George Bush, his mission to China in behalf of Ronald Reagan an apparent flop, arrived here yesterday to confer with the GOP presidential nominee and try to patch up their contradictory remarks over relations with the world's most populous nation.

Reagan and Bush planned to meet privately today before holding a news conference on Bush's just-concluded three-day trip.

The official New China News Agency said Bush had "failed to reassure China" about Reagan, and that his attempt was "cancelled out" by Reagan's renewed call for an official governmental relationship with Taiwan.

In China, Bush had told reporters that a Republican administration could not legally establish a governmental liaison office on Taiwan and, even if it could, had no intention of doing so.

Bush bypassed reporters at Los Angeles International Airport, and was whisked away in a motorcade. At his hotel, he was brought in a back door, and refused to stop for questions.

When a reporter shouted a question about the New China

News Agency account, Bush said over his shoulder: "We sought an exchange of views."

Reports from Peking following his departure said he had received a stern message from Chinese leaders that a Republican reversal of policy on Taiwan, with whom the United States maintains only unofficial trade and cultural relations, could jeopardize a developing anti-Soviet alliance between China and the United States.

But Bush, at a stopover in Honolulu, said that when "You sit down with the top leaders of China and have a very frank exchange of views, it's got to be a big plus."

As for Reagan's statements on U.S.-Taiwan relations and a possible U.S. liaison office in Taiwan, Bush commented, "Look, this subject is a very complicated one, and the language is so imprecise that you gotta know exactly what you mean by that."

He suggested that the whole controversy stemmed from semantic confusion over the difference between such words as non-governmental, official and official.

"Our effort is to continue to improve relations with the People's Republic and yet recognize that the people on Taiwan are, indeed, friends. And that's what it's about," Bush said.

In Peking, Bush told Senator Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping that a Republican administration office on Taiwan and had no intention of doing so if it could.

Police issue charges on unknown couple

SOUTH BEND, IND, (AP) - It's a case involving diamonds, a young woman, dozens of false names and forged addresses; police are ready to issue charges, if they only could figure out who to charge.

A man calling himself Dr. A.W. Stephens, or Michael Collins, is in custody in this southwest Indiana city along with a woman who says she is either Sharon Miller or Kathy Winn.

Miller-Winn told police she is 23 and from Springs, Ark. Stephens-Collins said he is 29 and from Kissimmee, Fla.

"We have confirmed that Stevens is not the man's real name. That name was traced to an obituary found in a looseleaf notebook, one of many obituaries found. This man is a real slick operator, the slickest I've seen yet," city detective Darrell Grabner said.

The two were arrested Wednesday as they fled from a jewelry store in Mishawaka, apparently conspirators in a scheme to acquire diamonds from area jewelers by using either forged credit cards or certified checks.

The pair attempted to make their get-away in a car police say was stolen from New Mexico.

The woman's role in the scheme is not clear yet, Grabner said. But so far police have discovered about 50 different names with birth certificates, drivers licenses and various type of registration in the man's belongings.

The identities have linked him to Arkansas, Virginia, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Florida, Massachusetts, Alabama, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Indiana.

"The man apparently came to town, opened a checking account at a Marshall County bank (20 miles south of South Bend) using a Bremen address that listed a Stephens as a resident. He then apparently made up business cards identifying him as a doctor," Grabner said.

"The man would pick out his aliases from people who were roughly his age and who died in locations other than where they were born," he said.

It appears that this may be the man's first arrest, Grabner said. FBI bureaus and police departments across the country have been asked to help determine his identity.

lodging on an already overcrowded campus.

According to Dedrick, reconstruction work will attempt to approximate the original blueprints as closely as possible.

"We're going to try to be as faithful (to the original plans) as possible," Dedrick said. "We might even be able to install a mansard roof similar to the original one as cheaply or cheaper than a regular roof like the one on Cavanaugh."

No cost estimates or completion target dates were available, but Dedrick noted that cleanup work should be completed within the next week, and rebuilding could begin as soon as Oct. 1.

St. Edward's Hall was built in 1882 to house Notre Dame's minim department, a type of boarding school for young boys. It was converted for use by University students in 1929 following the discontinuation of the minim department.

Hesburgh enters 27th year

Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., one of the presidents of major American universities longest in office, is in his 27th year as head of the University of Notre Dame. Four of five living alumni of the University have his name on their diplomas.

His career illustrates the many-faceted role of a contemporary leader in American education, a role which highlights the increasingly interrelated areas of education, government and public affairs. In a national news magazine's 1978 poll of influential Americans, he was ranked No. 2 in influence within the field of religion and third in education. Over the last decade, Notre Dame's president has been involved in national studies of race relations, higher education, campus unrest, and a volunteer armed force. His most recent Presidential appointment was to the rank of ambassador to head U.S. delegation to a 1979 United Nations conference on the transfer of technology from developed to undeveloped countries.

Father Hesburgh's chief contribution on the national level has been in the area of civil rights. Appointed to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights by President Dwight D. Eisenhower when the commission was established in 1957, he was named its chairman by President Richard M. Nixon in 1969 and served in that capacity until his resignation at Nixon's request in November, 1972. Notre Dame, with the assistance of the Ford Foundation, has established on campus a Civil Rights Center which will promote the cause of human rights in this country and abroad.

Nixon's successor as the nation's chief executive, Gerald Ford, appointed Father Hesburgh in 1974 to his nine-member board charged with administering clemency to Vietnam War draft evaders and deserters.

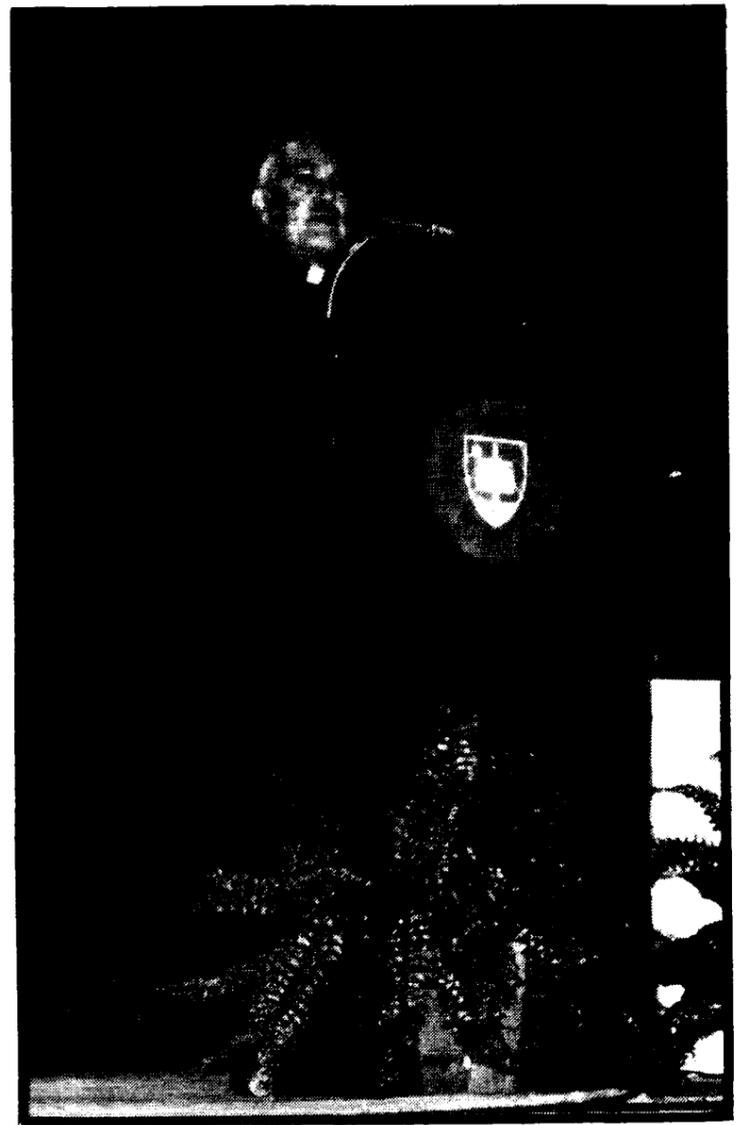

Since leaving the civil rights commission, Notre Dame's president has been very active as chairman of the Overseas Development Council, a Washington-based private organization formed in 1969 to promote effective aid to underdeveloped countries. He has also traveled widely in Third and Fourth World areas, often on assignment from the Rockefeller Foundation, which he joined as a trustee in 1963 and of which he became chairman of the board in 1977. He formerly served on the President's General Advisory Committee on Foreign Assistance and is a director of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Many of his recent writings, including The Humane Imperative, published by the Yale University Press in 1974, stress interdependence of the earth's peoples as the key to human survival in a time of shrinking resources. As a member of the board of the Chase Manhattan Bank, he has emphasized investment by transnational corporations in underdeveloped countries.

Two major developments at Notre Dame during his administration were the reorganization of the University's governance under lay control, accomplished in 1967, and the introduction of coeducation at the undergraduate level in the fall of 1972.

Father Hesburgh's leadership in education in recent years has been reflected in his work as president of the International Federation of Catholic Universities, which he headed from 1963 to his resignation in 1970, and as a member of the Kerr-Carnegie Commission on the Future of Higher Education, the key national study group on higher education's problems and promise which completed his work in 1974.

Sixty-one colleges and universities have conferred honorary degrees on Father Hesburgh, among them Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Dartmouth, St. Louis, UCLA, Michigan State, Northwestern, Illinois, Indiana, LeMoyne, Fordham, Wabash, Brandeis, the University of Southern California, the Catholic University of Santiago (Chile) and the University of Vienna (Austria).

Highlighting a long list of special awards given Father Hesburgh is on the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor, bestowed on him in 1964 by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Among groups which have honored him are the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Urban Coalition, the American Jewish Committee, the Indiana Bar Association, The United States Navy, and the National Institute of Social Sciences. He is an elected member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the National Academy of Education, and the American Philosophical Society.

Father Hesburgh was born in Syracuse, N.Y., on May 25, 1917, the son of Anne Murphy Hesburgh and Theodore Bernard Hesburgh, an executive of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. (A brother, James Hesburgh, was graduated from Notre Dame in 1955, received his M.B.A. from Harvard in 1960 and now is President of Intercole Automation in Los Angeles.) Father Hesburgh has two sisters, Mrs. Robert O'Neill, Cazenovia, New York, and Mrs. John Jackson, Syracuse, N.Y. A third sister, Mrs. Alton Lyons, Oneida, New York, died in 1957. Both his parents are dead.

He was educated at Notre Dame and the Gregorian University in Rome, from which he received a Bachelor of Philosophy degree in 1940. He was ordained a priest of the Congregation of Holy Cross in Sacred Heart Church on the Notre Dame campus June 24, 1943, by Bishop John F. Noll of Fort Wayne. Following his ordination, Father Hesburgh continued his study of sacred theology at the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., receiving his doctorate (S.T.D.) in 1945. He joined the Notre Dame faculty the same year, and served as chaplain to World War II veterans on campus in addition to his duties in the theology department. He was appointed head of the department in 1948, and the following year was named executive vice president in the administration of Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., University president.

At the age of 35 in June, 1952, Father Hesburgh was appointed the president of Notre Dame. His administration has marked one of the greatest periods of physical growth and internal academic development in the University's 135 year history. Today he heads an institution with a beautiful campus of 1,250 acres, a distinguished faculty of more than 700 scholars, and an enrollment of some 8,800 students from every state in the Union and more than 60 foreign countries.

Since Father Hesburgh became president, Notre Dame has erected two dozen major buildings, including the 14-story, $9 million Memorial Library which opened in 1963; a $3 million Computing Center and Mathematics Building; a $2.2 million Radiation Research Building built on campus by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission; a $1.5 million Center for Continuing Education; Lewis Hall, a residence for women; an $8 million Athletic and Convocation Center; Hayes-Healy Center, the $1 million home of Notre Dame's new graduate business administration program; a University Club and two high-rise residence halls, and the Paul V. Galvin Life Science Center, which includes the new quarters of Lobund Laboratory for germfree animal research and the departments of biology and microbiology.

ND, SMC tuition costs rise again

by Kelli Flint
Senior Staff Reporter

Both the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College have increased tuition costs for the 1980-81 school term.

Undergraduate tuition at Notre Dame has increased $500, up to $4630 a year, while room and board costs increase $250 for an average fee of $1765.

Salary and benefits improvements for University employees and higher food and energy costs were cited as contributing factors to the increase by the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, University president. Hesburgh added that a review of 35 peer institutions revealed that Notre Dame's tuition ranked 28th and room and board 35th in board. The increase in tuition and room and board costs is more than in previous years, according to Richard Conklin, director of Information Services. "The cost increase is more substantial than in previous years, but inflation has also increased more substantially," Conklin said.

Tuition at Saint Mary's College increased from $1775 to $1975 per semester, while board increased $30 and rooms an average of $60 per semester.

The cost increase at Saint Mary's is not as substantial as it appears, according to Student Accounts associate Diana Barnes. "The tuition increase is not yearly, therefore the amount is not unusually high," Barnes said.

As a result of the cost increases at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, more available funds have been allotted for financial aid, officials at both schools said.

Available scholarship funds for Saint Mary's increased from $330,095 to $336,310. Notre Dame received an increase in financial aid funds proportionate to the increase in tuition costs, according to Joseph Russo, director of financial aid.

Russo added that financial aid has always been a problem at Notre Dame. "There is never enough money to assist all of the students who apply," Russo said. "The problem worsened due to both the increase in tuition costs and the state of the economy."

Riehle will centralize SG

By Tim Vercellotti

A more centralized voice in student affairs is the immediate goal of student government this year, according to student body President Paul Riehle. Riehle hopes to effect reforms in the current system, the official voice of Notre Dame students. His plans are based on the conversion of the Hall President's Council into a student-senate.

According to Riehle, the present student government is too decentralized. "I want to make the HPC the center of the student government. This would give the student body wider representation, as well as a more effective voice in the administration," Riehle explained. Also, Riehle feels that a student senate would give an element of continuity to the work of the student government.

Reforms in the make-up of the government would involve changes in the government's constitution, which can only be done in a constitutional convention. Riehle hopes to gather ideas for governmental reforms through open meetings, to be held in the residence halls.

The student government can be worked out through these forums and then it will be formalized through the convention," Riehle stated.

The purpose of a student government, regardless of its form, is the service of students. Riehle said that this year's student government has both short and long term plans. Among these are a recycling program, and a student social center.

Riehle intends to establish office hours soon, and he encourages all students, especially freshmen and transfer students to stop in at his office on the second floor of La-Fortune.

SMC student government

The Saint Mary's Student Government is in a process of change and experimentation this year. According to President Kathleen Sweeney, "We are experimenting with many new ideas. A lot is in the drawing stages that should come together in the next week or two."

The Judicial System underwent restructuring during the 1979-80 academic year. These changes will be announced and explained to the students in the first weeks of classes, according to Sweeney.

The Student Assembly, described as the "congress" of the Student Government, was disbanded last spring. The Student Government is now conducting a self-study to decide if it will be reinstated or replaced.

"The Student Government brings many of the disjointed areas of student life together. It is involved in community affairs, social justice and combining the academic life with the social life at Saint Mary's," explained Sweeney.

The Board of Governance is the main governing body of the student government. According to the Student Government Manual, "The purpose of the Board of governance shall be to act as a steering committee by discussing problems relating to Student Government and by making recommendations to student committees. It shall

Freshmen to live off campus

Heppen holds, however, that the women are not living off campus. "As far as I'm concerned, they're not off campus. They're very much a part of Notre Dame," he said. He also said that parents of the Villa Angela freshmen are "very happy" that their daughters are coming to Notre Dame.

Ward, a Pennsylvania native and mother of three Notre Dame graduates, said she had not had many apprehensive reactions from freshmen parents. She did acknowledge that she had received a negative reaction from one parent who expressed concern over the situation.

"Precautionary security measures are being taken. We're discouraging the girls from walking alone and at night," Ward said.

Freshmen, however, reacted somewhat negatively to their residences.

"I feel like I'll be left out of the excitement of the campus," one commented.

Another woman said, "I didn't mind it (the arrangement) at first, but now that I'm here I see what I'll be missing."

Freshmen further added that they think their living arrangements will hinder their social activities as well as their involvement in student activities.

Heppen confirmed that an extensive shuttle program will be implemented to enable the women to get to meals, classes and activities.

"It is only for three months though," Ward commented. "I think that's why the girls are accepting this so well. They're looking forward to being in the new dorms next semester." Ward confirmed that University administrators have "promised" the women residences in the new dorms next semester.

Since the women must literally hop on a bus to eat breakfast, freshmen also commented somewhat negatively on their eating arrangements at the South Dining Hall.

"There's no food over here at all," one freshman commented. "It's an inconvenience to take a shuttle bus to dinner."

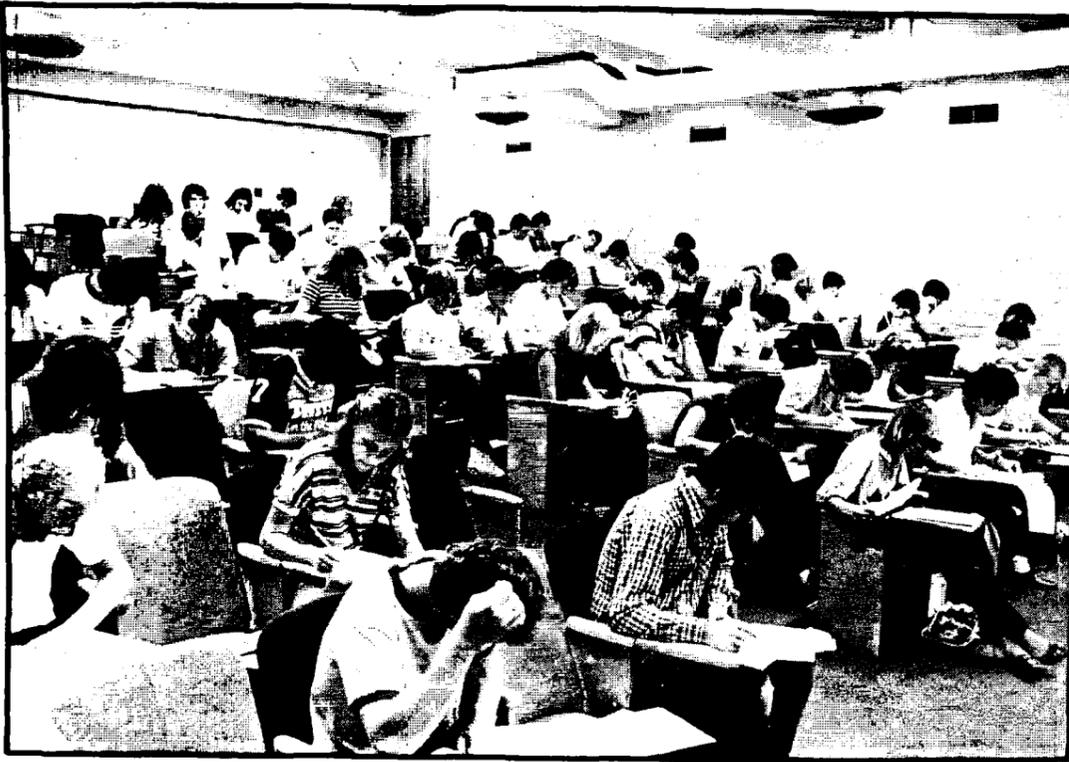

Ward said that plans are underway to initiate a weekend breakfast program utilizing Villa Angela's operable kitchen and dining room.

The rooms in which the freshmen are staying consist primarily of spacious singles. Several freshmen did say, however, that they would prefer having a roommate first semester.

"I guess will just be knocking on each other's doors a lot," a girl commented.

To obtain her position as rector, Ward explained, she wrote a letter to the University expressing an interest in "doing something." In the letter she included her work experience which was nursing, as well as her knowledge of the campus. She said she was contacted last July with the offer of Villa Angela rector.

In addition to the situation at Villa Angela, campus dorms are also feeling the pressure of additional students. Residents of St. Edward's Hall are living at several dorms on campus. Students returning to dorms at both ND and SMC have observed that last year's baggage rooms and study lounges have now become student residences. Housing authorities said a total of 20 rooms were renovated.

Frosh advisor job challenging

by Mary Leavitt
St. Mary's News Editor

The position of Freshman Advisor is not usually thought to be the most glamorous job in the world by most, but for Susan Vanek, the job is a challenging one. Previously a member of Saint Mary's faculty in the Modern Language department, Vanek sees her new position of freshman advisor as part of a natural progression towards which she has worked.

"I have always been interested in freshmen and the special problems they may meet with," Vanek said.

The freshman office offers services in five basic areas. It schedules the first semester programs for all incoming freshmen. As the freshman progresses through her first year, the office will assist her individually with academic planning. In addition, the department offers help with study skills, keeps academic records for each freshman and provides information about academic policies.

Vanek, who is herself a graduate of Saint Mary's College, looks forward to working with the freshmen on a personal level.

She denies that the Saint Mary's woman can be stereotyped. "There is not typical Saint Mary's student," Vanek commented. "Each one is an individual with her own personality."

"I really want to play down the idea of freshman year as being so all important," Vanek continued. "It is just one step of many that will be taken by each student. The important thing is to keep an open mind and not overlook all the opportunities which are available at this time."

The freshman office is located in Room 121, LeMans Hall.

The Executive Committee is formed by the President of Student Government, the Vice-president for Academic Affairs and the Vice-president for Student Affairs.

The President, Kathleen Sweeney, is responsible for the effective operation of Student Government and is the official representative of the Student Body.

The Vice-president for Academic Affairs, Joan McCarthy, is responsible for all areas concerning student academic life.

The Vice-president for Student Affairs, Nini Stol, is responsible for all areas affecting student co-curricular life.

Other members of the Board are the class presidents, hall presidents and commissioners which represent all areas of student life.

The system of student representation begins at the level of the hall commissioners who bring the opinions of students to the attention of the hall councils. The Council then acts as the direct link between the students and Student Government.

Democratic convention: The inside story

Art Buchwald

NEW YORK — The story of how Teddy Kennedy agreed to appear on the podium with President Jimmy Carter last Thursday night is now leaking out in dribs and drabs. It is a tale of all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity, and sometimes bitter recrimination. The negotiators met soon after Teddy's speech on Tuesday night, when the Carter people realized that if Kennedy did not appear on Thursday evening the Democratic Party would be torn asunder. Top aides from the Carter and Kennedy factions closeted themselves in a tent at Camp Waldorf on Park Avenue. Teddy's people knew they were dealing from strength. His chief negotiator said, "Our boy is going back to Cape Cod unless he gets his $12 billion jobs program in the next budget."

...all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity...

Carter's top aide said, "He's got it. But he has to be in Madison Square Garden, out of sight while the President makes his acceptance speech."

"No way," the Kennedy man said. "Teddy stays in his hotel suite until the speech is over."

"Okay, as long as he gets to the Garden before the applause for Carter starts. But we want Teddy when he arrives on the podium to embrace Carter just like Menachem Begin does all of the time."

"Teddy never embraces anyone. We might let you have a handshake if Carter agrees to do away with tax shelters."

"We don't see any problem with that. But we have to have more assurance that there will be party unity. We want Carter to be able to lift Teddy's arm in a victory gesture for the covers of Time and Newsweek magazines."

"It can't be done," the Kennedy negotiator said. "Ted has tennis elbow and it hurts him to lift his arm over his head."

"He's been lifting his arm during the entire campaign."

"He only got the tennis elbow after he decided not to put his name in for nomination."

"How about the other arm? Carter will stand on his right."

"Teddy hurt that arm sailing. Teddy doesn't want Carter lifting either of his arms."

"Would he lift it if we came out for his national health program?"

"I'll have to check with him on that." The aide called Kennedy and then said to the Carter people, "Teddy would like to do it but his doctors say he has to keep his hands in his pockets."

"You have to give us something," the Carter man pleaded. "It would look terrible if Teddy comes on the platform and keeps his hands down. What about a smile? Can we count on a big Kennedy smile when he's up there?"

The Kennedy man said, "Impossible. A smile from Teddy is non-negotiable."

"You got us up against the wall. Suppose we give Massachusetts a new naval base, three Air Force bases and a contract to build a strategic bomber."

"That's worth Teddy making a fist, but not a smile."

"So what's he going to do when he arrives on the platform?"

"He'll shake hands with Carter and Rosalynn and say hello to Amy and then wave to the crowd."

"But that will look terrible on television. We want to leave New York united. Surely Teddy can give us a little more than that. What if he kisses Amy on the cheek? That can't hurt him with his supporters."

"I'll check with him," the Kennedy man said.

The aide spoke to Teddy and hung up the phone. "Teddy says he doesn't kiss children."

"So all we've got so far," the Carter man said, "is Teddy

Required reading list for all ND-SMC freshmen

Michael Onufrak

Each year the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's branch of Sigma Omicron Sigma, the nation's leading collegiate journalist's fraternity, publishes a list of seven important books considered essential reading for incoming ND-SMC freshmen. This year's list, selected over the summer by the fraternity's executive committee, pertains particularly to problems and pitfalls which have consistently plagued ND-SMC freshmen over the years.

1. Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas
Written by Dr. Hunter S.

Thompson and published in paperback by the Fawcett Popular Library. Available in The Hammes Bookstore on the Notre Dame campus for $2.50 plus tax. The Sigma Omicron Sigma committee found that many freshmen were unaware of certain cultural peculiarities and social habits manifested by many college students. The committee, after studying several freshmen who had completed Dr. Thompson's volume, concluded that the freshmen had "discovered what all the fuss was about."

2. The Hesburgh Papers: Higher Values in Higher Education
Written by Notre Dame President Fr. Theodore M.

Hesburgh. Published by Andrews and McNeel and listed at $12.95 in the bookstore. Not yet available in paperback, Fr. Hesburgh's book provides an excellent introduction to freshmen who do not immediately grasp the concept of a "great Catholic University." Also explains the theory behind a campus under constant construction. Excellent gift for an incoming freshman.

3. The Joy of Cooking
Written by Irma S. Rombauer and Marion Rombauer Becker. Published by Signet and available in paperback for $5.95. Another excellent gift book, most often exchanged between new freshmen and their older brothers and sisters.

A Sigma Omicron Sigma survey of over 7,800 ND-SMC alumni showed that former ND-SMC grads who had chosen to give this book to their younger brothers and sisters had eaten an average of 641 meals in an ND or SMC dining hall. Especially useful for freshmen who move off campus later in their college careers.

4. Wake Up the Echoes: Notre Dame Football

By Ken Rappaport. Published by Strode Publishers and listed at $9.95. A good introduction to women who might be unfamiliar with this august tradition. Extremely useful to men and women forced to room with ND trivia freaks.

5. A Panorama: 1844-1977;

Saint Mary's College By Sr. Mary Immaculate Creek. Published by Saint Mary's College at $6.50 per copy. Useful to the Notre Dame male who is interested in understanding the historical ethos inherited by freshmen of Saint Mary's.

6. The Doctor's Guide to Tennis Elbow, Trick Knee and Other Miseries of the Weekend Athlete

Written by Leon Root, M.D. and Thomas Kiernan. Published by the David McKay Company and available for $4.95. Invaluable to freshmen who participate in Notre Dame and Saint Mary's interhall football programs.

7. How to Get the Job You Want
By Melvin W. Donahue and John Meyer. Published by Spectrum Books at $3.95 per book. Essential for pre-med students who are unable to obtain a place in medical school or pre-law intents who fare poorly on LSAT. A good book to buy now and save for later.

All books on this list are available in the Notre Dame Hammes Bookstore and can be obtained through Alpha Omicron Alpha in a leather-bound, gold-embossed special Freshman Edition. Direct all inquiries to The Observer.

showing up on the podium. Is that it?"

"Isn't that enough? If you don't like the terms, he can always fly out before Thursday night."

"I better check with the President." Carter's aide called up Jimmy and told him the terms. There was some back-and-forth talk and then the aide hung up. "The President said we'll agree to everything, as he feels Teddy's appearance is essential to his victory in November."

"Did you tell him Teddy wouldn't smile?"

"Yes, and Jimmy said he wasn't worried, because he'll be able to smile enough for both of them."

'THE ADMINISTRATION SAYS IT'S OK TO START SPENDING AGAIN, AND THAT'S JUST WHAT I'D DO IF I WASN'T BROKE AND OUT OF WORK!'

My first night at Notre Dame or 'Dazed and Confused' in Lewis Hall

Ann Gales

I'll never forget my first night at Notre Dame. Mom and Dad deserted me in Lewis Hall before dinner. My roommate was out with her parents, so I bravely set out for the South Dining Hall alone. I think I finally found it about a half hour later.

My first meal in the dining hall was quite an experience. I couldn't believe what a zoo that place was. Not knowing anyone I asked two girls who looked like freshmen if I could join them. Our conversation was very polite — and very strained. We discussed our home towns, musical interests and future plans. They were very nice, but I longed for the friendly faces of my high school crowd.

Feeling a little sick after my first taste of dining hall food, I hiked back to Lewis Hall where I found my roommate unpacking. We sat down on our beds with their green blankets and starched sheets, and shyly searched for things to say.

I asked: "Where did you go to high school," as I wondered "What if she thinks I'm a real nerd?"

She asked; "How many are in your family," wondering "What if she studies all the time?"

And so the conversation went: timid questions, nervous answers, and long, awkward pauses...

Later our R.A., whom I thought resembled a drill sergeant in appearance and manner, dropped by to ask if we wanted to go to a party off-campus that night. We decided to go for lack of anything better to do, and set out for the main circle a while later.

At the circle we were greeted by some guys from Dillon who escorted about 30 freshmen girls into the back of a U-Haul truck, then slammed the door and hauled us away like cattle.

The party was in the backyard of a house on Notre Dame Ave. I can't remember exactly how many kegs there were, but everyone had a beer in their hand.

I overheard some guys who looked like seniors mention something about "checking out the new shipment," as we walked by.

Everyone seemed to be having a good time, but in the oisy, laughing crowd I felt isolated, lonely and terribly out of place.

I stayed long enough to drink one beer, then I found my roommate (in the dark I wasn't even sure I'd recognize her) and told her I was walking back to campus. When I got back to my room, I wrote my HTH an eight-page letter and went to bed.

Before I came to Notre Dame, someone told me that my freshman year would be one of the best but hardest years of my life. My friend could not have spoken truer words.

Adjusting to college life is difficult for everyone. Some seem to handle the adaptation period more confidently than others, but every freshman at one time or another feels the pangs of missing home and friends.

The first few weeks of school my freshman year I was constantly seeing people from a distance who I thought I knew from high school. When I got closer I'd realize, with disappointment, that I was mistaken. The only cure for the freshman syndrome — and a sure one at that — is time. Slowly but surely, you'll get to know your roommate and neighbors; after a while the walk to the dining hall won't seem so long; and over Christmas break you'll find yourself mistaking people from home for friends from school.

Controversy surrounds rural utilities

Colman McCarthy

WASHINGTON — If she had been wiser to the ways of Washington pushiness, Levonda McDaniel, the secretary of the Brumley Gap, Va., Concerned Citizens, would have taken more than two minutes to tell her story. Mrs. McDaniel, one of 200 participants in a recent White House meeting with rural women, rose to tell a cabinet member and a pair of assistant secretaries that she and her neighbors in Poor Valley in southwest Virginia were getting the muscle from the American Electric Power Valley and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The full story would have taken hours to tell. Some 119 families in Brumley Gap may be flooded off their land if AEP goes ahead with plans for a large pumped-storage power plant. But Mrs. McDaniel took only two minutes. She had the instinctual graciousness not to hog the time, knowing that every other woman here — from rural places like Clairfield, Tenn., Roundup, Mont., Watkins, Minn., Columbia, Mo., Chelsea, Vt., Franklin, La. — could have risen to tell of the struggles to preserve the integrity of their local communities.

Despite the frustration of the conference's time limitations — it was only for an afternoon — the women who came knew that merely to be organized was worth celebrating.

For many, the days of milking the cows when the hired man gets sick, or baking pies and organizing the quilting bee, are memories of the peaceful past. As one woman wondered, what's the use of keeping to the simple things of farm life when the complexities of economics and politics are conspiring to drive you off the land?

With 7,600 acres of American farm land being turned over to non-agricultural uses every day, those rural women who must work outside the home often find hidden barriers.

Government officials, for example, say that a small business is one with fewer than 250 employees. But according to Rural American Women, a Washington-based group, 87 percent of all women-owned businesses have no employees besides the owner, and 80 percent of businesses in rural areas have fewer than 25 workers.

As a result, the smallest of the small are often the first to lose out in federal and state programs for rural businesses.

The group recommended that "a small business be defined as one with less than 25 persons — not 250."

For many of the women at the White House meeting, the Equal Rights Amendment, while necessary, doesn't engage the emotions as other issues do. Appalachian women want equal rights, but they want the strip miners in their local valleys to restore the land, which few of them do. Women in the rural South want their families to have access to water and sewer services; nationally, 30,000 rural communities lack these services. Rural women want medical services. Only 12 percent of the nation's physicians are in rural areas, though 30 percent of the national population lives there.

The immediate goal of the leaders of Rural American Women — a membership group of about 35,000 — is to create an awareness beyond the cities; these women's issues are much different than those articulated by urban women.

Meaning no offense to the sisterhood in the cities, Jane Threatt, the South Carolinian who is president and founder of Rural American Women, says that, "The strength I see in rural women I just don't see in urban women. Rural women don't concentrate on things like personal growth or fulfillment. That's intellectualizing, and we don't have time for it."

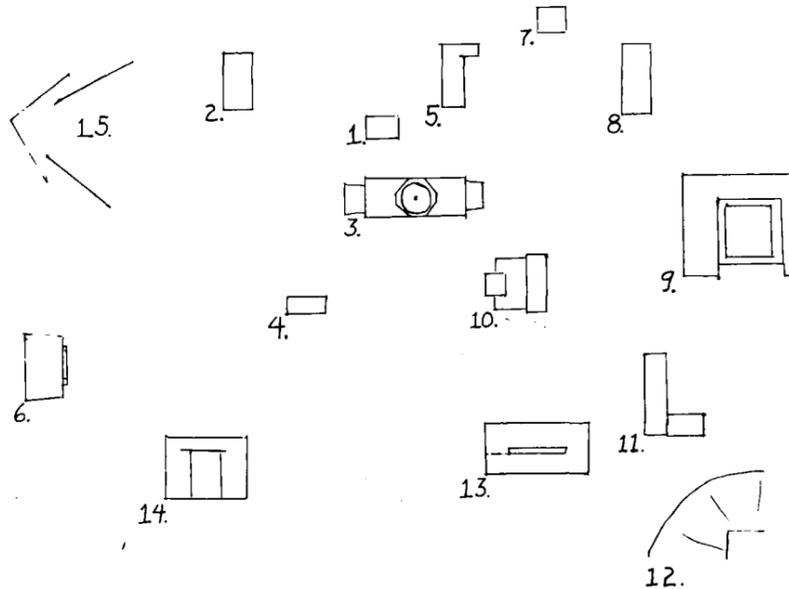

At this point, it is hard to say whether rural women can be rallied into an effective power bloc. The women at the White House were aware that perhaps the administration, by calling the meeting, was engaging in tokenism. But the evidence of concern seemed to suggest otherwise. For the past three years, Jack Watson has been quietly traveling the country to meet with rural groups and give them what encouragement he could to organize. It was Watson whom Rural American Women worked with to bring the White House meeting.

In exchanges between the women and administration officials, a comment from Bob Bergland, the secretary of agriculture, that "you have more power than you realize," was greeted with skepticism by some. It shouldn't have been. In more than a few American communities, it has been the strength and fire of women like Levonda McDaniel that has meant the difference.

Insider's Guide to the Notre Dame Campus

Mark Ferron

One of the common complaints of newly-enrolled freshmen is that they are not fully acquainted with the campus. New students can be confused by the hundred-odd buildings. Many must ask older students questions like, "Where are the fourth-floor classrooms in O'Shaughnessy?"

To help the new students and to make them feel like a part of Du lac, we present a tour of the attractions on campus.

Freshman Year Office (1).
In this building, we find the offices of Emil T. Hofman, Dean of Freshmen, and his staff. Dr. Hofman is available on Wednesday afternoons for ring-kissing. (Phone for an appointment).

St. Michael's Laundry (2).

The University is particularly proud of the service they afford the male students with this ultra-modern laundry facility. As a further improvement, the laundry has just this year added a new boiling cauldron and rock.

Administration Building (3).

Under the Golden Dome are many of the vital departments of the University, among which are the Admissions Office (who due to a massive clerical screw-up admitted this freshmen class) and the Office of Student Accounts which never screws up when it comes to promptly sending tuition bills).

Bookstore (4).

Here students can buy all those non-resalable books at prices well above cost. The lower floor has the finest selection of Osmond albums in Northern Indiana.

Infirmary (5).

The Student Health Center provides the best in modern medical care. If you feel under the weather, be sure to stop by for a leeching.

Rockne Memorial (6).

Afternoons during the school year, "the Rock" is the site of many exciting on-court battles between students. Sometimes they play basketball.

Security Office (7).

This is the centrally-located headquarters where our champions of justice work 'round the clock to protect the campus from that menace, the illegally-parked car.

North Dining Hall (8).

"Quality Food" is not a foreign term to the Dining Hall cooks; they know what it means and work diligently to assure that none is served here. It is also a great place to practice your foreign languages when ordering entrees.

Memorial Library (9).

Later in the semester, the second floor of the "Sacred Silo" is the site of the nightly meeting of the ND/SMC Gossip Society.

LaFortune Student Center (10).

A multi-purpose building, LaFortune houses the offices of student government, where you gain valuable experience as a lackey to the Administration. Also in LaFortune is the Huddle, fast-food restaurant par excellence. A favorite place for the over-30 crowd, it is world-renown for that savory grease-bomb, the Huddle-burger.

O'Shaughnessy Hall (11).

This is where most freshmen classes are held. In the basement of the building is the grade-lottery machine which professors use to randomly generate the semester's grades.

Notre Dame Stadium (12).

Here is the site of last year's greatest victory: section 35's success at "passing up" Glenda "Fats" Donahue.

Cushing Hall of Engineering (13).

On Friday mornings, the Engineering Auditorium is a favorite hang-out of students of Emil T. and others with masochistic tendencies.

South Dining Hall (14).

Like the North Dining Hall, the South offers a meal-time change of pace for those tired of eating tasty or appetizing food.

The Crossing (15).

Most freshmen will make the trip "across Highway 31" within the first two weeks of the semester. For the fortunate, it will also be their last.

Making Transitions Easier

Molly Woulfe

"Freshman year is a very special time for young people, a time of transition. That transition must have a special approach," Emil T. Hofman, Dean of Freshman Year of Studies, maintains. The Freshman Year of Studies, located next to Brownson Hall, seeks to make transitions easier, helping freshman to arrange their academic schedules and providing needed guidance in adjustment, academics, long-range academic and career planning and personal problems.

According to Dean Hofman, the Freshman Year of Studies is, in effect, a college for freshmen who have not yet declared their majors and formally enrolled in a University 'college.'

"We provide whatever assurance is needed by them to be successful in the freshman curriculum," Dean Hofman explains.

The department has a staff of advisors, each of whom is assisted by six or seven seniors, readily available as counselors. "Our freshmen don't have serious psychiatric problems, but common problems such as homesickness," Hofman remarked. Talking with students who have "been there" can ease freshman anxieties. All freshman are encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity for personal guidance and assistance.

The Freshman Year of Studies also sends out monthly newsletters to freshmen and provides free tutoring service, as well as self-instructing media aids, in Brownson Hall, through the Freshman Learning Resource Center. Tutors provide help "over and above what can be reasonably expected of the teachers," Hofman claims, and can strengthen communication between professors and students. The Resource Center is directed by Sandra Har-matiuk.

The Freshman Year of Studies also sponsors a number of activities for freshmen because "they're fun, and good options to the drinking scene," Hofman said. These options include cookouts, shopping tours, and Freshman Date night, details of which can be found in the freshman newsletter.

To provide further aid for freshmen adjusting to college life, a booklet by Hofman offering tips from paper-writing to partying, will be distributed to every Notre Dame freshman. Hofman promises the booklet is backed by "thirty years' experience."

The Freshman Year of Studies is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

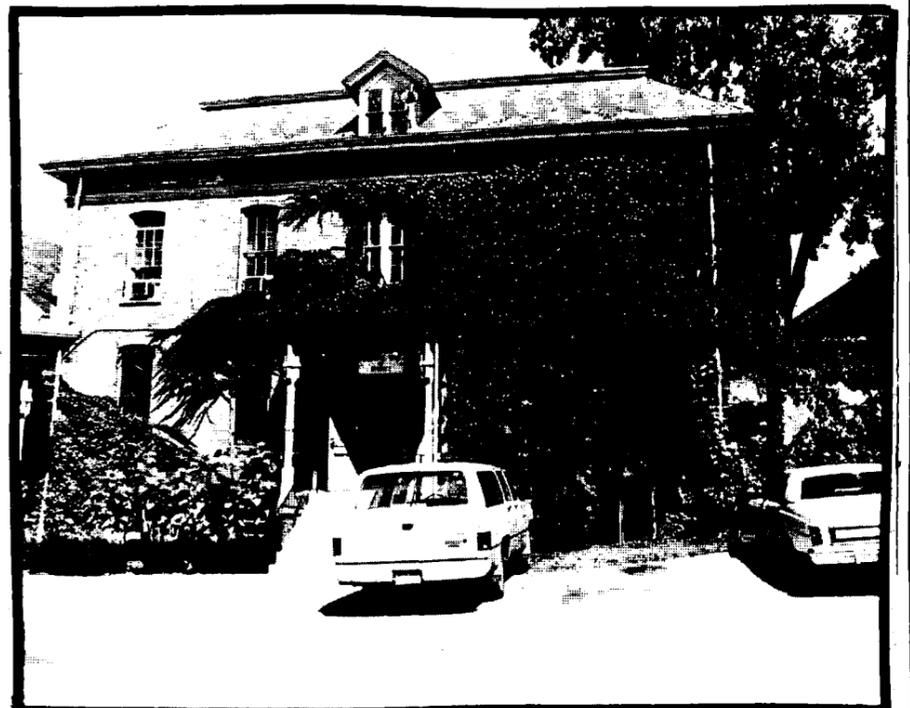

Saint Mary's Freshman Office, located in Room 121 LeMans, is headed by Susan Vanek. The office counsels freshmen on first semester programs and study skills, handles changes in academic records, and provides information about academic policies.

Students may also pick up information about activities in conjunction with the Career Development Center, and foreign study programs here.

According to Vanek, the Freshman Office will try "to get the students on the right academic track to a successful college career." The Office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, other times by appointment.

What's All This, Then?

For those freshmen eager to spread their wings and explore the environs outside the shadow of the Golden Dome, we have tried to put-together a brief list of local restaurants and entertainment. This list is by no means complete, nor is it an endorsement, per se. Entries were chosen as much for their accessibility from campus as their individual merits

The South Bend Nobody Knows

Browse through a South Bend telephone directory. One discovers that there are 61 apartment complexes, 13 architects, 8 billiard rooms and clubs, one Arthur Murray Dance Studio, and 82 taverns (including one with the intriguing name of "Marion's Hide-a-way"). The phone book hints at an area's activities: its businesses, history, and pleasures. But what is the story behind those brief listings? How did these people, some of whom live in those 61 apartment complexes, find themselves in South Bend?

Like Notre Dame, South Bend traces its roots to an enterprising Frenchman. It was the French explorer Robert Cavalier Sieur de La Salle who first blazed trails in the area, travelling down the Mississippi from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico around 1675. A plaque in South Bend's Riverview Cemetery commemorates La Salle's visit to the area. The early French influence is reflected in Indiana names: Vincennes, Versailles, Vevay and Lafayette.

Despite La Salle's early explorations, it took the French more than a century and a half to establish a local presence — not until 1829 when fur trader Pierre Navarre arrived to establish a trading post for the American Fur Company on the south bend of the St. Joseph river. The trading post was originally known as "Big St. Joseph Station" or "The Bend". The present name was not adopted until 1830, when French settler Alexis Coquillard christened the post of 128 traders South Bend.

Today, the population has reached almost 125,000. When the surrounding St. Joseph county is included, the number rises to 280,000.

Almost seven percent of the population is black. Another 15 percent is comprised of what the census sheet labels "foreign stock". These are the ethnic groups of South Bend — the Poles, Hungarians, Serbians, Greeks, Swedes, and Mexicans — that prouddling to their language and culture. (For example, one can still find church services in Polish.)

Where do all these people work? Notre Dame is the town's second largest employer, with 2800 employees. Historically, however, the Studebaker Corporation was the area's most important employer. Studebaker was founded in 1852 when two of five Studebaker brothers started a blacksmith shop which soon expanded into wagon and buggy making. By the end of the century, Studebaker was one of the largest wagon makers in the country, and in 1904, it expanded still further into automobile production.

South Bend was the heart of the Studebaker operation, acting as corporate headquarters and residential territory for Studebaker's largest production plant. By 1949, 12,000 locals were employed for the company.

Unfortunately for South Bend, Studebaker suffered a series of marketing setbacks after introducing the streamlined body in 1949-50. By 1963, the work force dropped to 7,000, and finally, Studebaker left the region altogether in December, 1963. Today, the Studebaker factory is a wholly-owned subsidiary of McGraw-Edison where the Avanti, a high-priced, custom-made sports car, is still manufactured in very limited numbers.

Studebaker's departure left the Bendix Corporation as the town's major employer, with a work force of approximately 6,000. Founded in South Bend in the 1920's, Bendix began as a manufacturer of auto parts, and later moved into aviation production. The South Bend plant still concentrates in these two areas, although Bendix has expanded considerably beyond its South Bend beginnings and become a worldwide conglomerate with many diverse interests.

But, as the number of taverns reveal, there is more to do than work. There are varied attractions for diverse interests. Take architecture, for example. South Bend boasts two buildings designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, a forerunner of the modern school of architecture. The Avalon Grotto, 705 W. Washington, is a private home designed during Wright's final architectural period. The other has recently been sold to a private party and is not open to the public. Information on these places can be obtained from the Northern Indiana Historical Society and the South Bend Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Another interesting building is the

Michelle Kelleher

Studebaker Mansion or Tippecanoe Place. Completed in 1889, it was the residence of company president Clement Studebaker.

If all this history fails to catch your interest, there is always the great outdoors. The Freshman Year of Studies periodically sponsors trips to Bendix Woods where one can go hiking, skiing or picnicing. One sight not to miss: pine trees planted to spell out "Studebaker" (the park was formerly the Studebaker proving grounds). Other picnic places are the Rum Village Park and Nature Trails.

The phonebook, radio and South Bend Tribune are useful ways of becoming acquainted with the area. Movie cinemas offer a reasonably good selection of both first-run and held-over movies, and the local theatres — the South Bend Civic Theatre, the Century Center, and the Morris Civic Auditorium, among others present an ambitious selection of comic, musical and dramatic entertainment.

The four years at ND-SMC can be spent a lot more enjoyably if one takes advantage of what South Bend has to offer.

Michelle Kelleher, a proud Hoosier from Crawfordsville, Indiana, is a fourth year government major. This is her first contribution to Features.

London journalists hold out

LONDON — Journalists at The Times of London went on strike for more pay yesterday, marking the first walkout by journalists at the prestigious newspaper. Negotiations involved members of a government-appointed arbitration committee, management representatives, and leaders of the Times' local of the National Union of Journalists, which represents 280 journalists at the newspaper. The journalists, who were not involved in a previous dispute that halted publication of the Times for 11 months until it reappeared last November, insisted that management honor a 21 percent pay increase recommended by an independent arbitrator. The Times has said it could afford to pay only 18 percent.

ERA supporter faces sentence

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An eight-women, four-man jury on Friday convicted a former National Organization for Women volunteer of bribery in attempting to influence an Illinois lawmaker to vote for the Equal Rights Amendment. But the jury returned an announcement of an innocent verdict on a lesser charge of soliciting a lawmaker to commit official misconduct. The jury deliberated more than seven hours before returning the verdict against Wanda Brandstetter, a 55-year old Chicago businesswoman. Mrs. Brandstetter was charged with offering a $1,000 bribe to freshman Republican Rep. Nord Swanstrom on May 14 if he would vote for the ERA. Circuit Court Judge Jeanne Scott could sentence Mrs. Brandstetter to seven years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

two squash courts and more. Every freshman becomes somewhat familiar with the building right away. Except for those students in an ROTC program, all freshmen must take physical education. The initial meeting of all of the phys-ed classes takes place on the third floor of the Rock in the large gymnasium. At that time, the phys-ed program and all of the rotation options will be explained in detail by Dennis Stark, chairman of the Physical Education Department. Each semester is divided into three rotations with each rotation four to five weeks in length. Each student may choose a different sport for each rotation. Varsity athletes will receive credit for four of their six rotations and therefore will be required to take only two sports.

Admission to the building is granted only to students presenting a valid, Notre Dame identification card (which freshmen will receive at registration on Monday). Notre Dame students may bring along an out-of-town guest who will be issued a temporary ID by the Rockne staff.

The building's hours of operation are 7:30 a.m. - 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. - 11 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. through 11 p.m. on Sunday. Since the swimming pool is used so extensively by Notre Dame's swimming teams and water polo team, as well as for phys-ed classes, its hours of operation are somewhat different. The pool is accessible from 12 noon - 1:15 p.m., 3 p.m. - 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. - 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 1 p.m. - 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. - 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Always check the Rockne bulletin board or the board in your dorm for changes in this schedule.

The Saint Mary's campus boasts a well-equipped sports complex in its recently completed Angela Athletic Facility. Angela's unique architectural style and design has been nationally recognized and awarded several times in its brief history. The complex has three interchangeable courts used for tennis, volleyball and basketball; a multipurpose area for fencing, gymnastics, tumbling, exercise and dance; and two racquetball courts. In addition, the facility houses a universal gym, billiards, and ping pong tables. Angela is open daily from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Courts may be reserved two days in advance. Located inside Regina Hall is the campus's indoor-outdoor swimming pool, featuring a one meter diving board and a skylight which is opened in the summer. Saint Mary's has an impressive list of outdoor athletic facilities as well. It includes nine tennis courts — six of which are lighted — a driving range, putting green, and a field for flag football and field hockey. The most recent additions to this list include a softball diamond and an all-weather track.

Athletic and Convocation Center

When Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center opened on December 7, 1968, NBC sportscaster Curt Gowdy called it "the best, most complete sports complex in the country." Many similar facilities have been built in the 12 years since, yet the ACC still ranks near the top of the list.

A newcomer to the University might wander through the ACC's maze of stairwells and corridors for hours and still not see it all. The building's 464,800 square feet of usable floor space make it the largest exhibition hall between Detroit and Chicago.

Quite simply, the double-domed ACC is divided in two. Under the south dome is the 11,345 seat basketball arena, home of Fighting Irish basketball. Yet the arena's incredible flexibility permits it to house major concerts (The Cars, Bill Cosby coming up), guest speakers (former President Ford last winter) and more.

Under the north dome is the fieldhouse, an even more flexible facility used by over a half dozen varsity teams at various points during their respective seasons. The most notable fieldhouse residents are the hockey and track teams who not only practice there, but compete as well. Hockey seating permits over 4,000 fans to watch the Irish and seating is provided for several hundred track and field fans.

In addition to the dozens of phys ed students who use the ACC daily, the many facilities between the domes and around their perimeters are for the use of all Notre Dame students and faculty. Four basketball courts, eight handball/racquetball courts and four squash courts are available. Unlike the Rockne Memorial facilities, however, which are available on a first-come/first-serve basis, the ACC courts should be reserved.

Also located between the domes and around their perimeters are most of the athletic department's administrative offices. On the second floor are the ticket office, the sports information office, the student managers' office, the Monogram Room and the administrative offices. On the first floor are almost all of the varsity sports (and coaches) offices plus the varsity training facilities and weight room.

Students may be asked to present a valid Notre Dame identification card to be granted admittance to the building. Those wishing to borrow equipment (i.e. rackets, basketballs, towels, etc.) must present a Notre Dame ID.

The building's hours of operation vary with the schedule of special events, but basically, the ACC is open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. Check the ACC bulletin board or your hall bulletin board for schedule changes.

have done everything they can to tighten the race with excellent summer practice sessions. In the eyes of many, Grooms and Kiel have pulled even with, if not surpassed, seniors Mike Courey, Greg Knafelc and Tim Koegel in the Irish quarterback derby.

Everyone knew last spring that both Kiel and Grooms were fine quarterbacks, but they have surprised even Devine with their performances thus far.

"The two freshmen (QB's) are better than I thought they were going to be," said Devine.

Grooms, who followed Ohio State star quarterback Art Schlichter at Miami Trace, threw only three interceptions during his career at the Greenfield, Ohio, high school.

All Devine would say about the current quarterback situation was that, "the guy who the staff decides can best beat Purdue will open for us."

Even if Kiel sees little action directly behind center, it appears that he will still be taking several snaps every game. At this point it looks like the Columbus, Ind., native has the inside track on the punting chores. Kiel averaged 38.4 yards on 105 attempts in high school, including a record-setting 74-yarder last fall.

Kiel, ranked by most scouting services as the best high school punter in the nation for the last two years, could add an exciting fake possibility to the Irish special teams.

Other freshmen almost certain to see action this fall, mostly on defense, include defensive backs Chris Brown, who runs the 100 in under 10 seconds, and Stacey Toran, a defensive back and wide receiver in high school who caught 20 passes last year, averaging better than 25 yards per reception. In the secondary he picked off three passes and made 46 tackles.

Freshmen John Mosley and Rick Naylor should add depth to the Irish linebacking corp. Mosley is a converted running back from nearby Culver Military Academy in Culver, Ind. Naylor, a member of Coach and Athlete's "Super 11" last year, joins a long list of Cincinnati's Moeller High School graduates to play at Notre Dame, including active players Bob Crable, Tony Hunter, Tim Koegel, Dave Condeni and Harry Oliver.

Rookie defensive end Mansel Carter is yet another newcoer who should help out on defense this year. The 6-8, 225-pound Carter was a high school teammate of former Irish record holder Jerome Heavens at Assumption High School in E. St. Louis, Mo., where he recorded 17 career sacks and 60 solo tackles.

vities, which is available in their office on the first floor of the ACC. The most famous non-varsity sport on campus, however, doesn't come under the auspices of the Non-Varsity Sports Program. Rather, it is the campus-wide Bookstore Basketball tournament held each spring during An Tostal. The student-run event will celebrate its tenth anniversary in April, and received national acclaim in Sports Illustrated magazine in 1978. The single-elimination tournament is open to any student, graduate and undergraduate, and any faculty and staff member.

Air Force tickets remain

Four of Notre Dame's five 1980 home football games are completely sold out, according to Irish ticket manager Mike Busick.

No tickets remain for the Purdue (Sept. 6), Michigan (Sept. 20), Miami (Oct. 11) or Army (Oct. 18) games slated for Notre Dame Stadium.

Some tickets do remain for the November 22 Air Force game — and they are available to the general public.

Air Force tickets can be ordered through the mail by writing to the Notre Dame Ticket Office; Athletic and Convocation Center; University of Notre Dame; Notre Dame, IN 46556. Tickets are $12 each, and there is a postage and handling charge of $1 per order.

All checks should be made payable to the University of Notre Dame.

ND general try-out meeting

There will be a general meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Library Auditorium for those interested in trying out for women's basketball, fencing, field hockey, tennis, swimming (co-ed), and volleyball. The meeting will also include reports on intramural and interhall competition, sport interest groups (women's fast pitch softball and co-ed gymnastics) and club sports (track and cross country, co-ed rowing, co-ed sailing, and co-ed skiing). Call 2163 for more information.

Baseball team slates meeting

There will be a very important meeting both for returnees from the spring 1980 Notre Dame baseball team and any new candidate interested in trying out for the squad. All classes freshmen through senior are invited to the Wednesday meeting at 4:15 p.m. in the football auditorium in the ACC (enter gate 2). Please bring a pen or a pencil.

Faces and Places

Edward 'Moose' Krause

A dominant Notre Dame sports figure for nearly 50 years, Edward W. "Moose" Krause has served Irish athletics on the gridiron, at the basketball hoop, on the track and finally, in the administrative aspect as athletic director for 31 years. Krause, a graduate of DeLa-

Salle High School in Chicago, was honored in 1976 by being named to the National Basketball Hall of Fame. Krause was also granted all-American honors in football and basketball during his three years as a Notre Dame athlete. Krause also served the Irish as varsity basketball coach, compiling a 98-48 composite. The 67-year old Krause is the father of the Rev. Edward Krause Jr., a religious studies professor at Saint Mary's College.

Edward "Moose" Krause

Col. John Stephens

Col. John Stephens

Col. John Stephens, associate athletic director, jokingly refers to his job as "Moose Krause's office boy." Stephens served as a professor of military science and commanding officer of the Notre Dame Army ROTC before his appointment to his present position in 1976. The recipient of the Legion of Merit, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart, Stephens functions as liaison between the University and the NCAA. Stephens has also aided in the scheduling of football games and works as one of Notre Dame's chief public relation officials.

Tom Kelly

Tom Kelly

Tom Kelly, director of non-varsity athletics at Notre Dame, has excelled in many areas since his arrival at the University 16 years ago. Kelly began as an assistant baseball coach under the tutelage of hall-of-famer coach Clarence "Jake" Kline. In just a few short years, Kelly was appointed assistant director of non-varsity sports. In the spring of 1979, Dominick "Nappy" Napolitano retired from his post as director of non-varsity athletics and Kelly assumed the position which he still retains today. In this vein, Kelly deals with intramural, interhall and club sports. Following the 1975 baseball season Kline retired, leaving Kelly as coach of the Irish team. Kelly functioned as coach until the end of the 1980 spring season when he stepped down to devote more time to his job in the non-varsity athletics office.

Dennis Stark

More freshmen will encounter this man in a classroom situation during the upcoming week than any other faculty member, including Emil.

Dennis Stark, chairman of the Physical Education Department, is the man responsible for coordinating all of the intricacies of Notre Dame's extensive freshman phys ed program. Lining up instructors for each of the sports in each rotation as well as class locations are only a small part of Stark's responsibilities at Notre Dame.

A 1947 Notre Dame graduate, Stark returned to his alma mater a few years later as a phys ed instructor and in 1958 assumed the head coaching chores for the newly formed varsity swimming team, a post he has held ever since. Under Stark, the Irish swimmers have compiled a 133-119-1 mark in 22 seasons.

Swimming plays an important role in Stark's phys ed program here. After a brief orientation on the third floor of the Rockne Memorial on the first class day, each freshman must pass a simple swimming test on day two. "Not being able to swim is nothing to be ashamed of," says Stark. "If someone doesn't know how to play tennis or how to play volleyball, their life isn't in danger. On the other hand, not being able to swim can be life-threatening. Our program is a precaution for their benefit."

Those students falling below a certain point level in their swimming test will be required to take swimming during the first of their six rotations. After that, they will be free to choose a sport they wish to learn more about.

Joseph O'Brien

Assistant athletic director and business manager Joseph O'Brien has handled all areas of Notre Dame athletic budget and travel for four years. O'Brien, a 1949 Notre Dame graduate, was the most influential figure in arranging for the specifics concerning the 1979 Mirage Bowl in Tokyo, Japan. Prior to his selection as assistant athletic director O'Brien served over 20 years as personnel director for the University.

Joseph O'Brien

Michael Busick

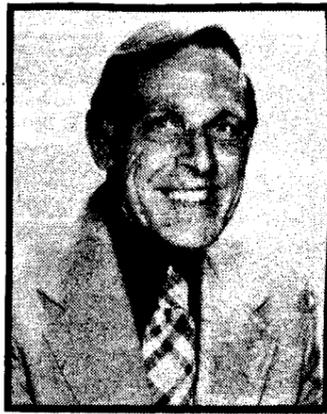

Michael Busick

Mike Busick directs Notre Dame's expanding ticket department that encompasses all University events. Under his realm are the ticket programs for Notre Dame football, basketball and hockey as well as ACC concerts and other special events. His increasingly complex operation includes the use of the University computer facilities to aid in the allocation, distribution and mailing of athletic tickets.

A 1973 Notre Dame graduate, Busick served as head football manager for the 1972 Irish season. Just three months after his graduation, Busick became Notre Dame's assistant ticket manager and assumed the top ticket position in March 1975.

Roger Valdiserri

A 1954 Notre Dame graduate, Roger Valdiserri heads into his 15th year as Sports Information director and his fifth as assistant athletic director.

One of the most respected men in his field, Valdiserri heads a staff of two full time assistants (John Heisler and Karen Croake), three secretaries and over a dozen student assistants who work together staffing press box facilities, publishing press guides for the University's varsity sports as well as football and basketball programs and providing a wealth of Irish statistics and sports information to the world. The department primarily serves as the public relations department for Notre Dame athletics.

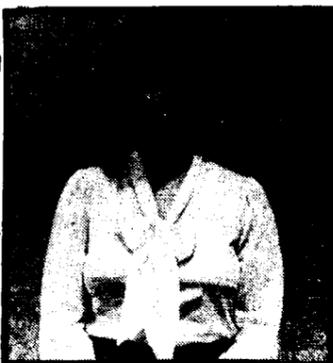

Since 1967 Valdiserri has earned 31 awards from the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) for his sports publications.

Roger Valdiserri

Erin Murphy

Erin Murphy, Saint Mary's assistant athletic director, will begin her second year as a Belle administrator and will also start her second season at the helm of Saint Mary's volleyball squad. Murphy has experienced a broad athletic background herself as a player at Lewis University and as a competitor on several volleyball teams on the national level. Before coming to Saint Mary's, Murphy developed her administrative skills by directing athletics for Chicago's Park Districts for several years.

Erin Murphy

Astrid Hotvedt

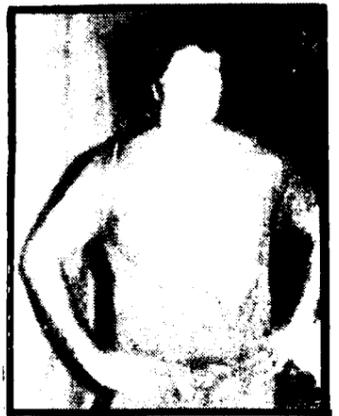

Serving as Notre Dame's Coordinator of Women's Athletics is Astrid Hotvedt. The 1969 Eastern Michigan graduate came to Notre Dame in 1974 after years of both participation in and administration of women's sporting activities. Astrid is in her fifth year as an Irish administrator and, until this season, she coached the women's field hockey team as well. Hotvedt continues to work for the expansion of women's athletics at Notre Dame by seeking out the needs, interests, and talents that exist in the rapidly growing women's sports program at Notre Dame.

Astrid Hotvedt

Jerry Dallessio

Jerry Dallessio plays a dual part in the production of Saint Mary's athletics. In addition to being the Belles' athletic and recreation director, Dallessio finds time to coach the varsity basketball team as well. Coach Dallessio received his B.A. and M.A. from Notre Dame. He has had considerable experience in elementary and high school athletics, serving as the girls basketball coach at South Bend St. Joseph's high school before moving up the road to Saint Mary's. In his two years as Athletic Director, the Belles' sports program has undergone tremendous growth, and Dallessio has produced the most successful cage squads in Saint Mary's history.

Rockne Memorial

Affectionately known to its legion of fitness freaks as "The Rock," The Rockne Memorial is a facility for the use of not just varsity athletes, but the entire Notre Dame population. Located at the extreme west end of the South Quad, the Rock offers something for every casual exerciser including a swimming pool, two basketball courts, one complete weight room plus another under construction, 10 racquetball/handball courts,

And a last

A first time for everything

There's a first time for everything, and your freshman year at Notre Dame will be filled with premiers, such as your first extended stay away from home, your first roommate, your first Saga cooked meal, your first college class, and your first "Double kmil."

Paralleling these forgettable experiences are the ones treasured by those tam and plaid clad alumni, the times we'll play most clearly when we're playing "Remember when?" at our first class reunion. Few other universities offer the combination of excellent academic and athletic experiences. During your years at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame you will surely encounter times similar to these bits of Irish legend:

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — October 22, 1977 —

Wearing green for the first time in over a dozen years, the "Green Wave" poured into Notre Dame Stadium and overwhelmed Southern Cal, 49-19. Dan Devine, in his third year as head coach for Notre Dame, led the Green Machine down the path of Irish memorabilia.

HOUSTON, Tex. — January 2, 1978 — Notre Dame stole a controversial national championship from Bear Bryant and his Crimson Tide as the Irish upset undefeated and number-one pegged Texas, 38-10. The national title returned to South Bend once again, its first visit since 1973.

HOUSTON, Tex. — New Year's Day, 1979 —

the Irish secure a last-second, miracle win over Houston in the Cotton Bowl with a Notre Dame touchdown as the clock reached 0:00, by Kris Haines on an eight-yard pass from "The Comeback Kid" Joe Montana. Placekicker Joe Unis nailed another miracle as the Irish tallied a win on the extra point kick, 35-34.

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — February 27, 1980 — a stunning upset of number-one ranked Depaul, 76-74, in a double-overtime thriller by Richard "Digger" Phelps' basketball squad in the ACC. Notre Dame graduate and Blue Demon's coach, Ray Meyer, could not out-craft the master Phelps, and the Chicago based team became the sixth team in recent history to achieve the nation's acclaim as number one, only to tumble to the Irish.

The list of Notre Dame come-back wins, miracles and legendary feats is near endless. History is made each day at Notre Dame as the annals thicken with each accomplishment. As a member of the student body that won a unprecedented MVP award in the 1977 Notre Dame-San Francisco basketball clash, you will have the opportunity to see that history happen.

Beth

Due to the results of the Title IX ruling, which forces Notre Dame to spend more money on women's sports, your freshman year will also be the rookie season of competition for women in Division I basketball. The women's volleyball team and men's lacrosse team will open their initial seasons at the varsity level. You will have the chance over your years to watch these and other teams grow from infancy to puberty and finally to maturity.

The 1980-81 academic year also will be a year of lasts. The hockey team will compete in its last year in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association as the "Irish Icers" prepare to jump to the Central Collegiate Hockey Association for the 1981-82 season. This will also be the final season for many Notre Dame and St. Mary's athletes slated to graduate in the spring. The list of Notre Dame's senior superstars includes the likes of Kelly Tripucka, Tracy Jackson, John Scully, Tom Gibbons, Orlando Woolridge, John Komora, Dave Campbell, Herb Hopwood, Mark Hoyer, Jeff Brownschidle, Maggie Lally, Tricia McManus, Kevin Lovejoy, Sami Kahale, Oliver Franklin, Maureen O'Brien . . .

Your first year will also be one of Notre Dame's most widely recognized personalities' last year. Football Head Coach Dan Devine, now entering his sixth year as an Irish mentor, gave the demanding Notre Dame fans a national championship in 1977. Devine's service to the community is immeasurable and the class of 1981, this year's seniors, are appropriately the last class to graduate that actively took part in that historic championship. Let it be in your prayers that Dan Devine can give you such a memory, a national championship in your first year, and in his last at Notre Dame.

Marshall, freshmen a big plus to 1980 Irish football squad

by Paul Mullaney and Michael Ortman

Earlier this month, the Big 10 and the Pac 10 (known in Rose Bowl circles as the Pac 5) announced that they would support the reinstatement of the freshman ineligibility rule, which the NCAA eliminated in 1972. But the NCAA meeting won't take place until January, and until some action is taken in this direction, freshmen can play college football. Notre Dame fans should be quite glad those meetings aren't until January.

Not less than three Irish freshmen have a better than average chance of starting this season, and several others should provide much needed depth in places where the Irish need it the most.

The rookie with perhaps the best shot at starting the September 6 season opener against Purdue is defensive lineman Tim Marshall. The 6-4, 240-pound amazon from Chicago is very much in the running for a spot on the line, but exactly where is still uncertain.

"Marshall will start," said Irish head coach Dan Devine earlier this week, "I can almost predict that. You just can't keep a player that good out of the lineup." "Just because I'm a freshman," says Marshall with confidence, "that doesn't mean I have to play like a freshman."

Marshall, who was named to literally every major publication's high school All-America team, was named Catholic Player of the Year after his senior season at Weber High School, an honor won the previous two years by Tony Hunter (1978) and Bob Crable (1977), both now starring for the Irish.

Joe Terranova, director of one of the nation's leading high school scouting services, affectionately dubbed Marshall "a Darth Vader in cleats," partly because of his size, but mostly because of his aggressive style of play.

The biggest question on everyone's mind since the end of last season has been, "Who's gonna quarterback?" Freshmen Scott Grooms and Blair Kiel

Kelly directs non-varsity program

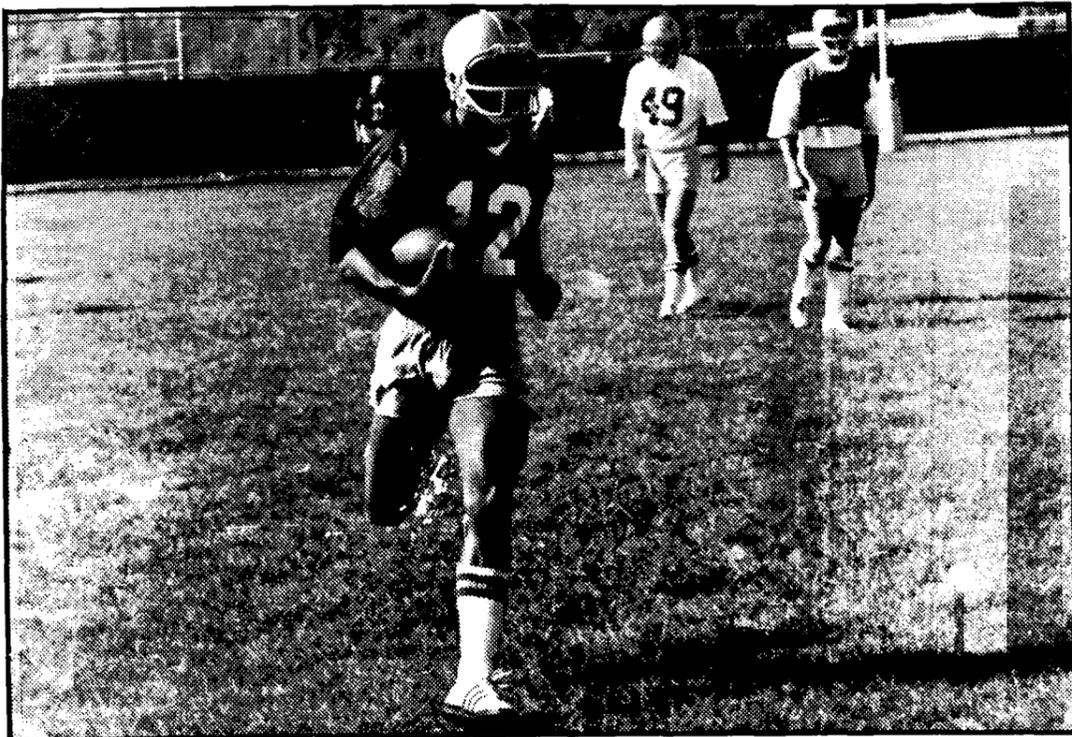

by Craig Chval
Sports Writer

Dr. Tom Kelly wants you! Before you decide to put your athletic career in mothballs in favor of thirty dollar calculus books and three-hour science labs, be mindful that Kelly's non-varsity athletic program offers better than fifty activities open to all students. From boxing to squash to ice hockey, there is something to keep every ex-jock jocking around. The residence halls are the basis for most team sports, with each hall entering teams depending on its population, interest level and the sport. There are also several events that individuals can enter on their own, such as the Notre Dame Open, a campus-wide golf tournament contested on Notre Dame's Burke Memorial Golf Course. In addition to Notre Dame's vast intramural program, Kelly and his assistant, Rich O'Leary, oversee Notre Dame's nine club sports. Women's track, skiing, rugby, men's volleyball, rowing, sailing, weight lifting and water polo all compete against other schools and clubs throughout the Midwest.

Notre Dame's ninth club sport, boxing, is entering its 51st season in 1980-81. The club has earned a national prominence with its annual Bengal Bouts, a three-day tournament, the proceeds of which are donated to missions in Bangladesh. The finals of the Bengals have been televised by NBC-TV for the past two years. The Department of Non-Varsity Athletics posts bulletins regarding sign-up deadlines and playing dates in the Rockne Memorial and the Athletic and Convocation Center. Kelly and his staff also have published a guide to all non-varsity activities.
