New directive limits Stepan use

By TOM JACKMAN and BOB VONDERHEIDE
News Staff

All future Polish Weddings, Irish Wakes and movie showings in Stepan Center have been permanently cancelled by the University, as a result of two letters sent to Student Union Director Bill Lawler last week.

The letters, one by Dean of Students James Roemer and one by Director of Student Activities James McDonnell, were spurred by what McDonnell termed "numerous reports of drunkenness and illness" as a result of the Student Union-sponsored "Polish Wedding." The annual event, held in Stepan Center during Welcome Week, featured non-alcoholic refreshments and live music, but McDonnell's letter charges that "most of the 900-plus students brought alcohol into Stepan Center."

The "Irish Wake," a similar party-type event sponsored by Student Union, is held annually during the An Tostal festival in April. Feature-length films are shown occasionally in Stepan Center also, in a more informal atmosphere than those shown in other campus buildings.

McDonnell said in his letter that his attention to the matter was drawn initially by the posters advertising the Polish Wedding, which said "BYOB," and featured a beer can.

Lawler, in an earlier letter, apologized to the administration and accepted full responsibility for the advertising, claiming he was unaware of DuLac's prohibition of alcohol promotion on campus.

However, it was the event itself which inspired Roemer and McDonnell to take action. McDonnell wrote, "never have I received reports to this extent concerning any event." He also observed that "we see similar trends (of BYOB) in LaFortune at the Nazz and Chautauqua."

Dean Roemer, whose letter was shorter than McDonnell's, stated that "as of now, this tradition is ended." He added that "none of these alcohol rules are new. Alcohol is never allowed in Stepan Center."

The sanctions also include a stipulation that all future advertising must state that alcohol is not permitted, and this must also be stated on admission tickets. "On-site security will have to be increased," McDonnell wrote, "and procedures instituted to ensure that alcohol is not carried into Stepan."

Lawler was unavailable for comment last night.

McDonnell suggested that "perhaps it would be better holding events in the ACC, dining hall, Engineering Auditorium, and Washington Hall — locations in which we have not experienced the alcohol problems associated with a Stepan event."

Two other major student-sponsored activities held in Stepan Center — the Collegiate Jazz Festival and the Country Rock Jam — were not cancelled by the administration, but McDonnell has instructed that the new sanctions apply to these events as well.

Power failure

Explosions darken Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion and fire at a generating station knocked out power to much of lower Manhattan for four hours yesterday, trapping office workers in elevators, snarling traffic, closing financial markets and creating transit chaos for homebound commuters.

Traffic lights went out, telephones went over to emergency power, and cars jammed intersections where traffic lights were out, creating paralyzing street gridlock. Traffic control agents were dispatched, and some private citizens stepped in to direct traffic to help solve the giant tieup.

An eyewitness said he heard two explosions at the Con Ed station, but the company said it had not determined what caused the blast. Four hours after the blackout started, power was restored to all areas.

Paul Cohen, a Traffic Department control agent standing in the middle of a downtown intersection, said that with traffic lights out "people just do what they want. It's bedlam over here. There are a lot of tempers."

"I've been sitting here for about one hour," said Rolando Reys as he listened to the radio in his idling sports car at the corner of Broadway and Chambers Street at about 6 p.m.

Flashlights and candles lightened the way down darkened stairwells for workers trapped in skyscrapers.

Many people were drinking beer on the street. But many bars were closed because they were without power and electric cash registers would not work.

Telephone service was switched to emergency power, but dial tones were slow in coming. Lines of people at downtown phone booths stretched 20 deep.

Subways slowed to a crawl with signal lights affected. Bus stops were jammed with displaced subway riders.

"People just do what they want. It's bedlam over here."

Before power was restored, Lawrence Kleinman, a Con Edison spokesman, said there was no danger of the kind of problem that has blacked out the whole city in the past. "The problem is contained within the area that has been affected," he said.

Roemer toughens stand on alcohol abuse

By BOB VONDERHEIDE
News Staff

Dean of Students James Roemer, in issuing his annual alcohol directive banning kegs of beer on campus, included a new, specific fine of $100 for all students having a keg on University grounds.

A $100 fine is also the penalty for carrying alcohol on campus-owned grounds, or for drinking alcohol inside the football stadium, according to the directive.

Roemer, by spelling out the specific fines, sees the directive as an indication of a "tougher stand" on alcohol abuse at Notre Dame.

"An awful lot of people here abuse alcohol," Roemer said. "As part of an educational institution, there's no way we can look the other way. We want to deal with the problem in a strong, effective way."

Before the changes were made, Roemer consulted Student Body President Don Murday, Judicial Coordinator Carol Silva, and Hall Presidents' Council President Mike Martin for their reactions.

Murday feels the keg fine is far too high and that it will not deter alcohol abuse. "You can get drunk just as well off cans as off kegs," he said, adding that kegs are more economical and easier to clean.

Roemer said the administration remains opposed to kegs because "a keg attracts a large crowd of people who hurry to get their share. Granted," he said, "it tastes better and is more economical, but there's almost a compulsion to exhaust the contents of a keg."

In other years, the directive did not spell out the fines; it only said violators might be sent to the Dean of Students, who usually handled the problem by assessing a $50 fine.

Kegs were also confiscated and deposits forfeited.

Roemer set the fine at $100 since that amount is a "stronger deterrent." Also, he said the $50 fine became traditional six years ago when $50 was worth "about as much as $100 is now."

"We're trying our darnedest to enforce this policy," Roemer added.

New faculty offices

Donor contributes $5 million for complex

By JOE LUBBEN
News Staff

A grant of $5 million by an anonymous donor will enable the University to build a new faculty office complex on the southeast quadrangle behind O'Shaughnessy Hall.

The long-awaited building will house the offices of the faculty in the College of Arts and Letters that are presently located in the basement of the Memorial Library.

The anonymous grant will provide most of the funding for the project, which will not only alleviate the present cramped condition of faculty offices, but also create room for expansion of the University Library collection in the area now used by the professors.

According to Donald Dedrick, director of the physical plant, the building is in a "schematic planning stage." He explained, "right now we're deciding what type of facilities we will have, without doing any actual designing." It will be at least a year, he said, before bids are taken for the actual construction. However, Dedrick predicted "it's going to be an exciting building."

Improvement on the present situation of the faculty offices for Arts and Letters is definitely needed, according to acting Dean Robert Burns. "The offices are cramped," Burns said. "We simply don't have adequate office space."

He added that "the faculty are like moles living underground there (in the library basement)." The new facility will have windows for natural light in all the offices, according to Burns. "This building will be a welcome improvement."

While the faculty and students will have a better environment in which to meet, the Memorial Library will be gaining a fair amount of space from the vacated offices in its basement. Though he said it is still too early to make definite plans for utilizing that space, Director of the Libraries Robert Miller speculated that "any space opened up would be used primarily for expansion of our collection."

However, Miller explained that much remodeling would have to be done before the areas could be utilized. Miller estimated that it would be at least three years before such a project would be completed.

Solidarity's powerful Warsaw branch proposed free elections in Poland yesterday in a draft resolution that put the independent union on a new collision course with the communist regime. The delegates to the union's first national congress tried to sidestep another challenge to the government — a measure that would remove wording from the union charter acknowledging the leading role of the Communist Party. But the congress faced a procedural fight over the issue, and Gdansk delegate Lech Sobieszek worked furiously to put it back on the meeting's already packed agenda. Meanwhile, the Polish Communist Party paper, Trybuna Ludu, said the support Solidarity expressed for free union activists throughout the Soviet bloc was "an attempt to interfere in the socio-political life of friendly — (communist) — countries." "In plain language, the message is a call for changes in the existing social structures in other countries of realistic socialism, a call for creation of similar organisms as Solidarity, and a readiness to cooperate in such changes," the paper said. — AP

Balking at any return to the "old ways of Nixon," Democratic congressional leaders assailed yesterday a drive by President Reagan's supporters to reinstate executive authority to withhold money Congress had voted to spend. Speaking to reporters upon Congress' return from a month-long recess, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Reagan's "pie in the sky" economic predictions are falling apart. Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, said he saw an administration in disarray. House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois and Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., met with Reagan at the White House Tuesday to propose legislation that would give Reagan limited authority to impound — namely, not spend — appropriated funds. Richard M. Nixon repeatedly impounded federal funds when he was president. An anguished Democratic Congress enacted legislation which barred that practice in 1974. — AP

Primary elections in the nation's largest city were apparently doomed yesterday when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to interfere with a voting rights ruling that barred today's scheduled vote. After hearing oral arguments in his chambers, Justice Thurgood Marshall discussed the case with other justices by telephone, then issued a two-sentence ruling denying a stay. Tom Goldstein, a spokesman for the mayor, said Corporation Counsel Allen Schwartz "has called the mayor and told him there'll be no citywide election tomorrow." Goldstein said, "There are options that can be pursued tomorrow," but he would not elaborate, saying only that "we will have further announcements tomorrow as options become clear." Schwartz, the city's top lawyer, had sought the stay from Marshall after failing to win reconsideration from the special three-judge panel that issued the ruling Tuesday. The ruling left campaigns in chaos and voters in confusion. — AP

Tavern owner Ramona Desich testified yesterday that Ralph DeMeyer, at the time a candidate for St. Joseph County sheriff, offered to allow her to operate a house of prostitution in exchange for campaign financing. DeMeyer later was elected, and remains in office. Mrs. Desich said the deal was offered during a meeting in February 1978 involving herself, DeMeyer and Edwin Hayden at Hayden's home in Mishawaka. Hayden, who was an organizer of DeMeyer's campaign, is an unindicted co-conspirator in the charge that accuses the sheriff of extorting money from Mrs. Desich from 1978-80 in exchange for protection of Mrs. Desich' prostitution operations. DeMeyer was indicted by a federal grand jury late last spring. — AP

Eighteen thousand Hoosiers will lose welfare benefits Oct. 1, according to the head of the Indiana Department of Public Welfare, under new guidelines adopted by Congress. Robert F. Smith, the department's acting administrator, said federal, state and local expenditures for welfare in Indiana will dip about $20 million a year because of the changes. Smith said the new procedure involves a formula used to calculate eligibility for Assistance to Families with Dependent Children and the related Medicaid. A more complicated system will be replaced by setting a maximum of 150 percent of the state standard of need for recipients which is based on size of family, said Marion N. Steffy, director of public assistance. When a person gets a lump sum payment, such as an insurance settlement, she said, the money will be considered in determining AFDC eligibility for that month. Also the amount that exceeds the monthly allowance for income will be used to judge continued ineligibility, she said. — AP

Forty-six Chinese scientists say they believe they have found a rarity in the modern world — a pollution free spot. China's official Xinhua news agency said the conclusion followed examination of thousands of animal, plant, soil and water samples on the 8,182-foot Fanjing mountain in south China's Guizhou province. The secluded mountain in subtropical northeastern Guizhou usually is shrouded in clouds. Gray and gold-haired monkeys, as ancient and rare as China's prized Pandas, inhabit the mountain, the report said. It said most of the forest on Fanjing mountain still is virgin timber, and some of the medicinal and other plants there date back to anywhere from 2 million to 70 million years ago. — AP

Leaders meet

Reagan assures U.S. support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, moving to allay Israel's concerns about U.S. arms deals with her Arab foes, assured Prime Minister Menachem Begin yesterday of unflagging American support because "We know Israelis live in constant peril."

Neither leader mentioned publicly the pending $8.5 billion package of U.S. arms to Saudi Arabia, which may face a threatened congressional veto next month, as they exchanged tributes in an elaborate welcoming ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House.

When the two men met privately, Begin outlined "quietly and without the slightest bit of rancor" his opposition to the Saudi sale but did not ask Reagan to withdraw it, according to a senior U.S. official who asked not to be named. After hearing Begin out, Reagan then "indicated he expects the ... sale to be approved by Congress," the official said.

Still, that test on Capitol hill looms as extremely close, by all accounts, and the administration hoped Begin would indeed muffle his heretofore vehement opposition to the Saudi deal. In exchange, Reagan was expected to offer even closer military links between Israel and the United States — including, possibly, intelligence gathered by American satellites.

But Reagan left no doubt Arab countries have roles in his strategy to protect the Persian Gulf oilfields against Soviet encroachment.

"Working with all our friends in the Middle East we seek to reinforce the security of the entire region," Reagan said in his public remarks.

And yet, he said, "the security of Israel is a principal objective of this administration."

"We know Israelis live in constant peril," Reagan declared at the ceremony under sunny skies. "But Israel will have our help."

Begin, who is on his 12th visit to the United States, has assailed the Saudi arms sale as "endangering very seriously the security of Israel." It would give 62 American F-15s the Saudis are buying the range to reach Israeli territory. Also included in the deal are five modern radar planes which operate as a far-seeing flying command post.

In his speech, Begin stressed Israel's vulnerability. He said it had to fight five wars "out of necessity to defend our people and to save its existence and sustain our independence."

At the same time, he assured Reagan "we shall stand together and Israel will give its share in defending human liberty."

Reagan and Begin met for nearly two hours, initially with a handful of advisers, then with a larger group.

Vernon Jordan resigns as League president

NEW YORK (AP) — Vernon Jordan Jr., one of the nation's most respected civil rights leaders who survived a sniper attack last year, announced yesterday he will resign as president of the National Urban League.

Jordan, whose departure is effective Dec. 31, said he would become a partner in the Washington, D.C., branch of the Dallas law firm of Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld. Robert Strauss, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and former President Carter's 1980 campaign director, is a partner in the firm.

The 46-year-old Jordan said neither his health nor the still unsolved May 29, 1980, attack in Fort Wayne, Ind., had anything to do with his decision to leave the non-profit, non-partisan civil rights organization after a decade as its leader.

"I contemplated a 10-year job from the beginning. Ten years of hard work suggests that it's time to pass the torch," he said.

He added, "I feel absolutely terrific."

An outspoken critic of Reagan Administration policies, Jordan said that while he would be "off the front line, from time to time I will speak my piece ... One can resign from the leadership, but not from the troops. I'm still black. I still care. I'm still committed."

A seven-member search committee has been appointed to assist the Urban League's board of trustees in selecting a successor. Coy G. Eklund, chairman of the board, said the organization has "no one in mind at the moment" but expected the decision to be made before Jordan leaves.

"I love the leadership of the Urban League with pride in what we have been able to accomplish; disappointment with the halt in progress toward equality; sadness at leaving my colleagues and friends, and exhilaration at the prospect of a new career," Jordan told a crowded news conference.

Woman peddles monkeys

By DAVE GUFFEY
News Staff

A woman claiming to be from a youth charity group was illegally soliciting in Holy Cross Hall Tuesday night, and an investigation has shown that the woman is probably a member of the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christians, commonly referred to as "Moonies."

Around 11:15 p.m. Tuesday, a woman approximately 23 years old was going door-to-door selling small stuffed monkeys. She claimed that it was "National Monkey Day" for her charity and profits from the sale of these toys would go to take care of orphans and for alcohol and drug rehabilitation.

However, the woman never specifically named her charity, and her sales approach was remarkably similar to those used by members of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church, according to local reference works.

Several Holy Cross residents bought the stuffed toys for five dollars each. One paid by check. When he asked who he should make the check out to, the woman told him to put the initials "H-S-A — U-W-C."

This is the acronym for the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christians or the "Moonies."

Holy Cross Rector Bro. Frank Ro-saert noted that no one had been given permission to conduct such a sales campaign on campus by the Student Activities office, which must sanction all such solicitations.

Holy Cross and other residents have been warned to report any such door-to-door solicitations to their rectors immediately.

...Kegs

A rough draft, which the three student leaders examined, dictated that "other sanctions" would have been possible also for having kegs or for carrying alcohol. Murday said that Roemer struck that phrase from the directive altogether at the three students' request attempting to eliminate any vagueness in the policy.

Actually, a directive dated Sept. 4 erroneously includes the "other sanctions" phrase on the keg fine, but a corrected directive dated today outlines just the $100 fine.

Amnesia victim rediscovers wife

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — When Larry Krusinski leaves the hospital for the first time in a year, he will go home to a wife he can't remember marrying, but a woman who cared so deeply for him that he fell in love with her twice.

Krusinski is suffering from amnesia — the aftermath of head injuries suffered in a car accident that almost killed him.

After 12 months in a hospital room, Krusinski will return home Saturday to join his wife, Jane, who has twice inspired his love.

The ordeal began one evening in September 1980 when Krusinski's car smashed into a tree. Krusinski, then 28, arrived at the hospital in a coma. A priest gave him last rites. Doctors were not certain he would survive.

But his wife was.

THURSDAY FOCUS

"The one thing I remember was touching him for the first time there," she said. "I thought if I touched him, he'd be OK. God, he was still alive.

"I remember people asking me if I was prepared if he would die," said Mrs. Krusinski, a 25-year-old beautician. "I just didn't think of it. It was like a dream standing there."

For 10 anxious days, Mrs. Krusinski waited for signs that would give her hope. His eyes opened. His hands started moving.

But when he looked into her eyes he saw a stranger. He didn't recognize the woman he had married three years earlier.

"I didn't realize I wasn't going to be remembered," she said. "I kept trying to show him pictures. He didn't remember them. He really didn't know what he looked like. He hadn't seen a mirror."

The past was not a total blank. "He remembers his family and most of my family," she said. "He could recall when he was a little kid just like yesterday. He recognized college friends and stories they told. He even remembered our first date when we went and played bingo."

Program offers awards

The Youthgrants Program of the National Endowment for the Humanities will once again offer a limited number of awards to young people in their teens and twenties to pursue non-credit, out-of-the-classroom research projects in the humanities. The deadline for receipt of completed application forms is November 16, and funded projects begin the following May.

Up to 75 grants will be awarded, offering as much as $2500 for individuals and a few group grants up to $10,000 ($15,000 for exceptional media projects). Youthgrants are intended primarily for those between 18 and 25 who have not yet completed academic or professional training but can demonstrate the ability to design and perform outstanding humanities research and translate that into an end product to share with others.

If you are interested in the program, a copy of the guidelines should be available for review at the Placement Office.

But the memory of their home and their days together was wiped out.

Still, Mrs. Krusinski wasn't frightened. She visited him almost every day, bringing him pizzas, telling him funny stories and saying again and again that she loved him. "I was trying to bring his memory back," she said.

Throughout the long days of waiting, she said, "He was real honest. He didn't remember me. But he really seemed to like me. He trusted me right away."

And then one special day, after she told her husband she loved him, he repeated the words to her.

"I think he fell in love with me all over again. He doesn't remember that he ever loved me before."

Don't drink, drive

To enjoy a night out with friends at the local bar may sound like fun, but the thought of who's going to drive when it's time to leave is not.

Alcohol-related driving accidents (one-half of highway fatalities) kill 25,000 people each year, with many of the victims simply innocent motorists who happen to collide with someone not responsible enough to realize the effects of alcohol on driving. Even with a high body tolerance to alcohol, the substance, a depressant, slowly creeps into one's system, dulling reflexes and judgement and creating a dangerous situation behind the wheel.

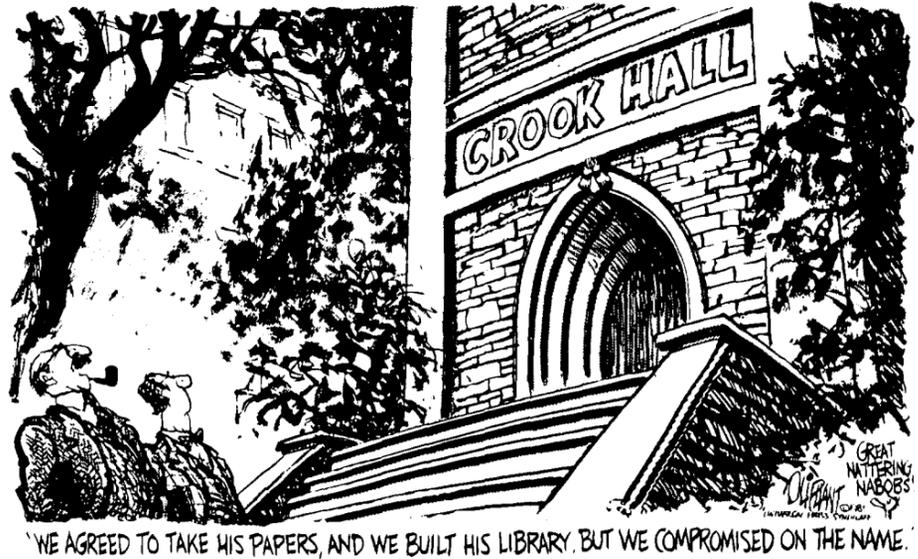

In 1979, 47,000 individuals from 18-24 were arrested for driving while intoxicated, with the overall amounts totaling 977,300 males and 94,400 females arrested for the charge according to the Statistical Abstract of the United States.

Millions of dollars are spent each year on various drinking-driver programs, but a 1979 study done by the federal Comptroller General's Office indicates that attitude is the problem. "Before any significant reduction in alcohol-related traffic accidents will occur, a long term continuous educational commitment must be made. Governments, educational institutions, and the general public need to work together to change attitudes about drinking and driving," the report states.

Society's acceptance and use of alcohol — too much alcohol — is a large obstacle to solving the drinking-driver problem. The CGO report also cites a 1977 Gallup poll that reported 71 percent of American adults indicated themselves as "drinkers" as opposed to "abstainers." Per capita consumption of alcohol has been increasing steadily over the past 20 years, weaving alcohol into almost every leisure setting — whether it be an athletic event, social gathering of friends and organizations, or the weekly ritual of "happy hour." Drinking, according to the CGO report, "is often associated with positive concepts in our society, such as maturity, glamour, and good times."

Drinking and driving is unacceptable at all times. The Observer recently endorsed a keg proposal for campus residence halls. We also endorse responsibility. Injury to yourself, or worse, to someone else, due to negligence is inexcusable.

Whenever you drink, don't drive — ever.

U.S. correct in South Africa

If you desired, Thursday last, to take your news from evening television, and relied on CBS, you would have come upon the story of the South African incursion into Angola as follows:

Dan Rafter: "South Africa's incursion into Angola evoked condemnations from governments around the world — with one major exception. The only vote supporting South Africa's right to participate in the discussion on the future of Namibia (was the United States) ... Its lone support for the South Africans has evoked some comments."

(Camera to Julian Bond, black activist in Atlanta.)

Bond: "This nation is a blot on the conscience of the world. For the United States to be in alliance with it lowers us to a level that no president previously has ever done."

(Camera to Andrew Young, former U.S. ambassador to the U.N., now running for mayor of Atlanta.)

Young: "(The acti t on by the United States) will cost American corporations billions as black Africans take their business elsewhere. Supporting racist South Africa in Angola, (we are) thereby sanctioning the slaughter of blacks by 4.5 million whites in a continent of 450 million blacks."

(Camera to Donald McHenry, former U.S. ambassador to the U.N.)

McHenry: "The U.S. risks being identified as a country which will do nothing unless we are opposing the Cubans and the Soviets ... we would go to the help of the devil."

(Camera to an assistant to Dan Rafter.)

Assistant: "Black leaders are planning to express protest ... If South Africa is permitted to invade Angola without any protest, who is to say that Zimbabwe won't be next?"

Had enough? There is no way in which that question can be negatively answered — because there is no more. I mean, that is CBS's entire treatment of the entire incident, three black leaders telling us that South Africa is a racist country, and that the United States, by voting for South Africa, is derivatively pro-racist.

What happened?

In 1975 the Cubans, directed by the Soviet Union, landed a detachment of troops in Angola. Their goal was, of course, to communize Angola. To take advantage of a) the departure of the Portuguese, and b) the confusion in Washington over the loss of Saigon, to do to Angola what the communists were simultaneously doing to Mozambique and would later do to Ethiopia, i.e., establish communist dictatorships aimed at

About the Author: William F. Buckley, Jr., one of the most controversial public figures in America, is the editor of National Review, host of television's "Firing Line," nationally syndicated in over 300 newspapers around the country, and the author of numerous books. Buckley's career has taken him from Yale to the United Nations into politics and journalism, where he has become something of an institution. His column will run every Thursday in The Observer.

bringing convulsion to non-communist African states.

The United States was enjoined by such as Senators Church, Cooper and Javits from resisting the colonization of Angola by Cuba. However, anti-totalitarian forces, notably championed by Jonas Savimbi, have ever since continued to resist the central communist tyranny.

South Africa, which has been running Namibia (South West Africa) ever since World War I, notwithstanding that the old mandate has been revoked by the United Nations, is unwilling to turn Namibia over to the South West African Peoples Organization (SWAPO) because this movement, quite simply put, is an arm of the Soviet Union. SWAPO has engaged in concerted acts of terrorism against Namibia from its guerrilla bases in Angola.

William F. Buckley

On the Right

The South Africans announced that this must end and struck the guerrilla bases in Angola; and, having struck them, pulled out.

The United Nations, led by such exemplars of freedom and justice as the Soviet Union and China, drew up a resolution condemning South Africa and a second resolution banning South Africa from participating in any of the conferences that would determine the future of Namibia. With the exception of Great Britain, which abstained, other countries took what one must these days call the "Mitterrand Line."

The United States, through Ambassador Kirkpatrick and Charles Lichenstein, voted No in a carefully worded statement which said a) we don't approve of violence; b) we don't approve of apartheid; but c) this isn't a pure and simple case of South Africa attacking a peaceful Angola, but one of a series of violent actions and counteractions, precipitated by Angola, not South Africa; and d) the issue before the U.N. is the action against Angola, not the domestic policies of South Africans, as to which the U.S. is fully on the record. And finally, e) there would not seem to be much point in discussing the future of Namibia, which is governed by South Africa, without the participation in those discussions of South Africa.

This is a complicated world, but it really isn't so complicated that CBS News should leave us feeling that we would get a clearer account of what is going on by reading the comic strips than by listening to three U.S. black leaders who find nothing to criticize in the Cuban totalitarization of Angola, and who seek to frighten us into good behavior by the awful specter of a black African boycott of American industry.

ND-SMC gays seek support

Dear Editor:

Over the last 12 years the Gay Students of Notre Dame-Saint Mary's College (GSND-SMC) have been meeting the needs of gay students in the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's community. Continuing in this tradition we wish to inform gay students that there is an existing group of students willing to provide mutual support.

It might help people to better understand this group by stating some of the things we are not. We are not a political group concerned with wielding power within the University or anywhere else. We are not a group of freaks or whackos but a group of normal, well-balanced, intelligent human beings indistinguishable on the whole from anyone else on campus. In fact, most people probably have gay friends without ever suspecting they are gay. Further, we are not interested in "recruiting" people to our ranks, but we are concerned with helping people who are questioning their sexuality in the generally repressive atmosphere here at ND-SMC.

If you are a gay student, think you may be gay, or are just interested in finding out what being gay is all about feel free to call the Gay Student Hotline at 283-6282 between 9 and 11 p.m. on Thursday nights, or write ND P.O. Box 206. Confidentiality is guaranteed.

Gay Students of Notre Dame-Saint Mary's College

ND alum offers help

Dear Editor:

I read your editorial, "Whither o-c crime," (Sept. 2) with much interest. As a landlord of many Notre Dame students and a former Domer myself (Class of 1981), I am very concerned with the crime situation. I have tried to be active in solutions to a very real problem. Last year, as a senior at ND, I met much resistance from all sides — administration, city and students. In spite of this, limited success was achieved, even in the face of apathy.

As in past years, I would like to offer whatever I can — to whom it may concern — my availability and concern with the safety of my "tenants," many of whom have become friends. The article made a few good points. However, my students are not in this alone. They never have been and never will as long as I have a say in it. Granted, people aren't beating a path to help them. Nonetheless, I am willing to do whatever I can — as a landlord or otherwise — to help improve things. The "status quo" is no more acceptable to me than it is to the ND students living in any of my homes.

Again, for whatever it is worth, I offer my help. Give me a call (234-7968) or stop by any evening at 525 Napoleon St. I welcome the chance to accomplish more improvements.

Then came the key third set, the turning point of the match. In the ninth game, Krishnan was up 40-0 on his serve. But McEnroe won the next five points, earning the only service break of the set. It was all downhill for Krishnan after that. Kickers quest for NCAA berth

By RICK KRIST
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame soccer team gained varsity status four years ago, few would have believed the program would progress to the point it is at now. The first four years have seen the team struggle through the ranks of NCAA Division I soccer, constantly growing, to the point that now the Irish field an experienced, confident group of athletes, capable of playing with the best the NCAA has to offer.

The ups and downs experienced by the squad have been numerous. Inconsistencies have plagued the team the last two seasons. Last year, for example, the squad lost a number of games which it probably should have won. The goal of this year's squad is to overcome the let downs which invariably occur throughout a season.

This year's squad will be one full of depth, especially at the forward position. The loss of Kevin Lovejoy, Notre Dame's all-time leading scorer, is not to be minimized. However, indications are that this year's squad will provide a more balanced and probably more effective scoring attack. Consequently, opponents will have to concentrate on containing several players, whereas in the past, most teams would key on Lovejoy.

Co-captain Sami Kahale leads the Irish attack. The senior from Rome, Italy, shared top scoring honors last season with Lovejoy. "I feel our offense is much improved over last year," says Kahale. "The communication between the forward and the halfbacks is better than it's ever been, and our attack will offer more variety than it has in the past."

Coach Hunter says Kahale "must assume the role of coach on the field this season." Hunter is also confident that this year's balanced scoring attack will provide more goal output than in the past.

The starting three at forward most likely will be Kahale at center forward with junior Mario Manta and sophomore Rob Snyder on the wings. However, freshman Richard Herdigan of Somerset, England, stands a chance of starting. "Rich knows the game extremely well. He fits in well and he's tough. I think he has a very good chance of being one of the starting forwards," comments Hunter.

Rounding out the offense this year will be Alan Gianotti and Ed Graham. Both should see plenty of action this fall coming off the bench.

Due to the increased depth at the forward spot, senior Ed O'Malley will convert from wing to left halfback. O'Malley ranked second in scoring for the Irish last season with 13 goals. His role at halfback will be offense-orientated and he should contribute significantly in scoring.

The job of the halfbacks this year will be altered significantly.

"Our halfbacks will attack more this year," explains Hunter. "In the past, our halfbacks weren't prominent in the scoring attack. We expect a significant amount of our goals to come from the halfback position this year."

Joining O'Malley at midfield will be junior Jay Schwartz. As the center halfback, Schwartz will utilize his passing skills and hustle, qualities which are essential to a center halfback.

Filling in at midfield will be Mike

Sullivan and Steve Berry. Both figure to see a lot of playing time. "Sullivan and Berry are just about equal to our starting halfbacks," comments Hunter. "We feel that we're not going to hurt ourselves at all by any substitutions."

The big question mark this season will be the defense. Hunter has expressed concern over the defense, which may be the key to the team this year. "Our defense has not worked that well together this fall," admits Hunter. "This is especially disappointing because I honestly thought it was going to be our strongest area this year. As a result, we may be making some changes in the near future to strengthen the defense."

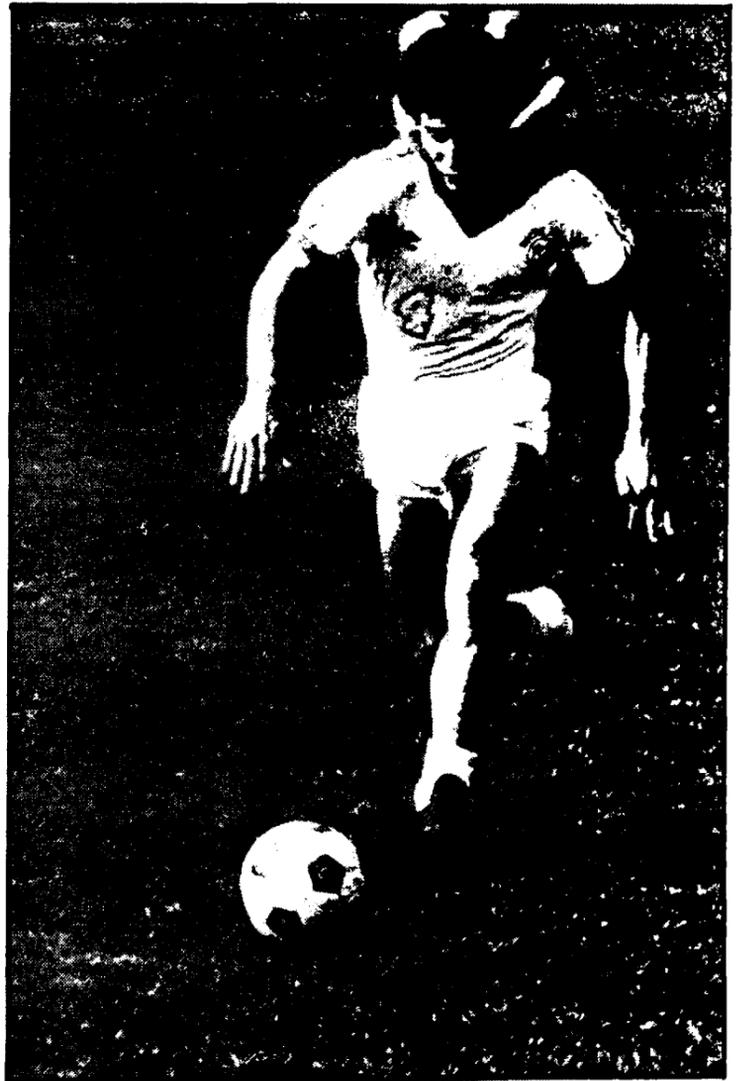

These changes may include freshman Tom Halubeck, who was sensational in high school at St. Xavier in Cincinnati.

"Tom is originally a midfielder," explains Hunter. "However, we've moved him to fullback at practice and he's done very well there. I think that's where his future with the team may lie."

Anchoring the defense will be senior co-captain and center fullback Jim Stein. Stein is an aggressive, dedicated player. Hunter considers him one of the finest defenders in the Midwest. He saw action in only two games last year, due to a shoulder separation and a broken leg. He will be in charge of covering the best player on the opposing team this fall.

Stein also feels that the defense hasn't played up to its potential.

Billikens to face tougher Irish

As far as the NCAA soccer world is concerned, the game couldn't have been less important. But for the Notre Dame soccer team, an entire season may be built around the lessons of one meaningless exhibition game last spring in Fort Wayne, Ind.

The contest featured a young, revamped Irish lineup against the defending national runner-ups from Indiana University. For the past three years, Head Coach Rich Hunter and his Notre Dame program have been marking their progress as a team by the results of their annual autumn matchups against two or three of the Top 10 teams in the nation (i.e. Indiana, St. Louis, Penn State). Last April, however, Hunter decided to stick Indiana onto the end of Notre Dame's nine-game spring schedule to get a preview of what his squad will be up against this fall.

For the first time in his coaching tenure, Hunter found out his band of non-scholarship ballplayers could throw one hell of a scare into a premier national power like Indiana. Eighty minutes went by that April afternoon with Notre Dame and Indiana even at 1-1 on the scoreboard, until the Hoosiers finally broke free for two goals in the last ten minutes and a 3-1 victory.

Five months later, Rich Hunter and his band of no-names sit patiently, awaiting the arrival of St. Louis University — the fifth-ranked team in the nation, a school with all kinds of scholarships, and the closest thing to a UCLA basketball-like legend offered by Division I soccer — for a showdown Sunday (3 p.m.) on Alumni Field. When Hunter and his players talk about St. Louis, they talk about that Indiana game last spring.

"There is every good reason why we should have a good chance Sunday and why we should do well all year long," says Hunter, now in his fifth season as the only coach in Irish history. "We've gotten better every year. During the spring last year, the kids just gained in confidence because they worked hard all year long and made themselves better ballplayers. They proved it against Indiana."

The levels of maturity and sophistication in the Irish game which fell miserably short last fall in a 6-1 thrashing by St. Louis have improved markedly in 1981 for Notre Dame with the return of a healthy, in-tact lineup with another year's work and experience under its belt. Don't expect the Billikens to score six goals inside the 10-yard line as they did a year ago, and don't expect the Irish to exhibit the lack of poise and confidence of last year's disaster.

"The biggest thing last year, aside from people being awestruck, was that our forwards chased St. Louis' fullbacks all over the field," recalls junior halfback Jay Schwartz. "By overcommitting, a lot of two-on-one situations were created. On Sunday, we'll try to channel them more and not commit to their back passes. "We're much better controlling the ball this year," he adds. "I know the guy I'll be playing is going to be a scholarship player and by all rights, he should be better, but we're all just gonna have to hustle, beat them to every ball and be physical."

"I think about that Indiana game a lot. I know we can play with those guys." Co-captain Sami Kahale, playing the best ball of his career this fall, expects the Irish to show the Billikens a whole new dimension in Notre Dame soccer.

"We're going to take control of the tempo right away by controlling the ball and passing it slowly — not just trying to get rid of it," says the senior striker who rates as Notre Dame's fourth all-time leading scorer. "If we keep our cool and aren't intimidated and just play under control, we can stay with them."

"Against Indiana last spring, they weren't expecting us to be so competitive," remembers Kahale. "We played a defensive game because their skills are so good, but we didn't let them through. By the second half, Indiana began to get impatient and make mistakes. If we can stay with St. Louis for that long, anything can happen. But we can't have an off day."

"I know we can do it." Inconsistency was the biggest Irish problem during their 1980 campaign. But Hunter begins this season with one critical ingredient he was missing a year ago in St. Louis and all season long — perfect health. Except for senior fullback Jim Stein's lower back pains (he will start tomorrow against Loyola and Sunday against St. Louis), Notre Dame has a healthy lineup. Last fall, Hunter played the Billikens without three key starters and lost a fourth 10 minutes into the match with stomach problems.

"We were disorganized and confused last year with so many guys out," Hunter recalls. "But we're healthy now and the kids know what they can do. Our players are much better. If they play to their potential, we'll have a chance."

And if the autumn Irish extend St. Louis for an entire game the way they did against Indiana last spring, this game could be the one to pull Notre Dame's soccer program out of its holding pattern and into the race for a long-awaited NCAA playoff bid.

"We're having a little trouble getting organized. However, I feel that once the season gets underway, we'll be all right."

Scheduled to start at the outside halfback positions are sophomore Joe Holterman and junior Brad McCurrie. Holterman proved he can do the job when he assumed the starting role last year. Other fullbacks who may see action this fall are Kevin Coughlan, Roer Brown and Phil Sweester.

An added dimension this fall will be a fourth fullback, commonly called a sweeper or "last man." This spot will be filled by sophomore Ted Schwartz. He will be playing behind Stein and will play a crucial role in the team's fortunes.

Probably the most important position on a soccer team is the goalkeeper. The Irish are not lacking in this aspect of defense. Senior John Milligan will get the starting nod. "John is everything anyone could ask in a goalkeeper," asserts Hunter. "He's tough, quick, and has improved in his ability to control the goal area." Backing up Milligan will be junior Gerard McCarthy. He has also shown that he can do the job, having compiled an impressive 1.03 goals against average in 17 games in 1980.

It all adds up to what should be an interesting campaign for Hunter and his squad. This may be the beginning of a new era for the soccer team As Hunter puts it, "beating a team like St. Louis or Indiana would be similar to Notre Dame's football team winning its first big game. I feel we have the capabilities to pull off an upset of that magnitude, and I think the players deserve it. The attitude is 100 percent better this year as opposed to last year, and I think that may carry the team over an Indiana or St. Louis."

Lacrosse tryouts end; team looks to season

By PETER BOGAARD
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team ended its tryouts yesterday, with prospects looking better than ever for a successful season. Coach Rich O'Leary has done a fine job stimulating interest in the program, which saw 19 freshmen attend the tryouts held Monday through Wednesday.

Playing in the Varsity Division of the Midwest Lacrosse Association, the stickmen ended last year with an impressive first-year record of 6-6.

With 13 returning lettermen and an outstanding crop of freshmen, the team looks to win their division, dethroning last year's champs, Ohio State.

The squad is led by senior co-captains Dave Lewis and Mike Lynch. Both hail from Delbarton High School in Morristown, New Jersey, as do four other members of the team. The freshmen are expected to give a big lift on the attack and in the midfield. Coach O'Leary stated, "We are relying on the freshmen for some solid production."

Senior Tony Belden, who spent three seasons playing musical positions, has been named captain of the Irish special teams.

A team player

Belden leads specialty squads

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Tony Belden has always owned the reputation as a team player. So it came as no surprise to those who know him best — his coaches and his teammates — that the big senior was voted specialty teams captain for Notre Dame's 1981 season.

"He's a team man all the way," praises Coach Joe Yonto, who tutored Belden on defense. "He's enthusiastic, hard working and unselfish. And he's accepted every position change that's come his way."

Belden's list of position switches is almost as long as the winters in his hometown of Crystal, Minn. He has been shuffled from offense to defense, from fullback to linebacker, back to fullback, again to linebacker and then over to defensive end. And he doesn't pretend to have enjoyed it.

"I guess the biggest disappointment in my career has been not being able to spend four years at one position," offers Belden. "For a while I thought the coaches were on Planet Zoom-Zoom," he laughs. "It got to be a joke among the guys — I'd go out to practice and everyone would ask me where I was playing that day."

As if bouncing around the depth chart wasn't bad enough, Tony's career has been interrupted by injury, too — a broken wrist and a damaged knee. But few heard Tony complain, and fewer saw him give up.

"I never quit anything in my life," he states. "I just tried not to dwell on all the problems I encountered."

Belden's resiliency impressed his peers and his opponents. A ferocious tackler, the 6-2, 230 pounder has been a solid backup at linebacker and end, sometimes despite cumbersome casts and crutches. And under Notre Dame's new wholesale substitution policy, he's finally found a home on the defensive line's left side. But Belden's biggest mark has been made with the specialty units, and although his contributions may have been more obvious had he excelled in one particular position, a glamourless career with the suicide squad hasn't bothered Tony, who insists he's never taken headlines too seriously anyway.

"I just enjoy playing football, and the specialty teams are an important aspect of every game," he explains. "I've been a part of them for four years, and I know the kicking game can turn things around immediately."

Yonto, too, believes the value of the special units shouldn't go unnoticed, so the position of a squad captain was reinstated after a three year absence.

"There was just a feeling among all the coaches that it would be great to identify those squads and give them a leader, and it's appropriate that Tony was picked," offers Yonto. "He has a tremendously positive attitude about teamwork. He sacrifices everything for the good of the other players."

On Saturday, Belden will march to midfield, flanked by co-captains Bob Crable and Phil Carter, for the opening coin toss. "If someone would have told me that when I was a kid, I would never have believed them," he beams. And that experience will more than make up for any frustration that's touched his career.

"You see the Dome, the lakes...it doesn't take long to fall in love with this place. No matter what's happened," he proclaims, "I wouldn't want to be any other place on Saturday than Notre Dame Stadium."

IRISH ITEMS: Over 5000 LSU fans are coming north for Saturday's game... Coach Gerry Faust is dressing 120 players for the game, the most ever for a Notre Dame home game. Only Rob McGarry, Tim Tripp, and Tom Doerger will not suit up... Tailback Phil Carter will see action Saturday, even though Greg Bell will start in the tailback spot. Carter has been sidelined most of the practices because of strained ligaments... Wingback John Mosley is questionable for the game. He has not practiced since being sidelined in last Saturday's scrimmage with a pulled thigh muscle... For the first time in history an LSU road game will be televised back to Baton Rouge on local TV this weekend... The audio portion of that telecast will be provided by the LSU Football Radio Network, which consists of over 50 stations... The Tigers will arrive in South Bend at approximately 4:00 p.m. tomorrow, and will workout immediately upon arrival... Former Irish coaches Ara Parseghian and Dan Devine have been at several practices and scrimmages this fall... Members of Notre Dame's 1943 National Championship team, as well as players from Notre Dame's unbeaten teams of 1946-49 will hold a reunion at the game this weekend.

McEnroe, Austin advance in Open

NEW YORK — Defending champion John McEnroe shook off a first-set loss and rallied to beat Ramesh Krishnan of India, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4, 6-2, yesterday, advancing into the semifinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Moving into the women's semifinals were third-seeded Tracy Austin, No. 4 Martina Navratilova and No. 11 Barbara Potter. Austin trounced No. 6 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, 6-4, 6-3; Navratilova stopped Anne Smith 7-5, 6-4, and Potter eliminated amateur Barbara Gerken 7-5, 7-5.

In a men's fourth-round match which was postponed Tuesday night by rain, No. 8 Eliot Teltscher outlasted No. 14 Brian Gottfried, 6-4, 6-0, 5-7, 1-6, 6-3.

Krishnan, son of a former Indian Davis Cup star and the 1979 Wimbledon junior champion, took the first set from the top-seeded McEnroe, winning a tiebreaker 12-10. The smooth-stroking Krishnan kept McEnroe at bay with perfectly placed ground strokes and a delicate touch at the net.

The two traded service breaks in the ninth and 10th games of the second set before McEnroe squeezed out a 7-4 tiebreaker, winning the final two points on Krish-

Sailors relax, enjoy life

A certain AMF-Voit commercial emphasizes a point on the definition and art of relaxation.

While one may think that he is relaxing with a good brisk sit within the confines of four walls with the boob-tube blaring away, he doesn't realize that true relaxation could stem from participation in recreational activities.

Senior Jerry Daus, president of the Notre Dame Sailing Club, along with at least 120 other members of the club realize the distinction quite well.

"There is an idea of being when you go out sailing on a quiet, peaceful afternoon with the sun shining down on you and the wind blowing behind you," explains Daus. "It's really relaxing and it can relieve so many of the tensions that you can build up so easily. "It sure is better than just sitting around in a room for an hour."

While Daus' praises of the sport make him sound like a co-producer of a Christopher Cross album, his feelings obviously are shared widely around the campus as student participation in sailing makes it one of the most popular activities on campus.

Basically, the popularity is derived for two reasons — the first often being overlooked.

"There is absolutely no experience necessary for joining the club," points out Daus. "We had about 30 people alone on Activities Night who thought you had to have at least some background on sailing. We have a fine novice program which will provide the experience."

A second reason for its popularity is because the program is one of the more laid-back operations at the University.

"There is no commitment that a person has to make once he joins the club," says Daus. "It's what the person wants to get out of the club that matters. We're mostly out to relax and have some fun at St. Joseph Lake. On Wednesdays and Thursdays we'll run some races, but it's not a requirement to take part in them.

The races usually take 15 minutes, and are run all-day on Saturdays and half-days on Sunday — obviously for the "gung-ho's" of sailing as Daus says.

"We have about 10 or 15 people who really compete hard," he concludes, "but this is something that most anyone can definitely enjoy on their own free time."

And that's what relaxation is all about.

"The only thing you have to do to join the club is to pay a $25 fee. The great part though is that for the rest of the year you can check out a sail-boat at our lake without charge since you're a member. In contrast, someone else may have to pay $30 for just an hour to go sailing."

One should not get the impression, however, that competition is minimal.

With a past that produced some all-Americans and Top 10 national-rankings, a tradition has been built where the Irish have been regarded as one of the better teams from the Midwest region — a trait that often leads to demanding schedules.

Last weekend's showing at Yale for instance resulted in a disappointing 14th place finish out of the 18 teams that competed.

"The result really wasn't that disappointing since we competed against some of the top schools in the nation that had lots of all-Americans," maintains Daus. "We have some regattas coming up now (every weekend for the rest of the semester) in which we're pretty optimistic about doing quite well."

Among them is the one which the club will host September 19-20 at Eagle Lake in Michigan, one of the largest regattas in the Midwest.

The regattas themselves consist of only four or six of the members from the team competing in the two divisions of the race. A skipper and the crew make up the people who race the boat, with the crew usually being a female.

Notre Dame's A-Division representative consists of the fine senior duo of Skipper (and race crew captain) Phil Reynolds and crew Carol Silva, while the B-Division alternates sophomores J.B. Kuppe and Chris Hussey along with Daus. Other top performers include senior Skipper Jay Kiley, and two outstanding freshman, Bob Hannon and Tom Fink, who have competed in National Amateur Sailing Regattas.
